A MATRIMONIAL CASE.—A curious case was heard at Castleford Petty Sessions on Wednesday, when Mabel Adams summoned her husband, David Adams, a Fryston miner, for desertion. The applicant, a girl of prepossessing appearance, stated they were married at Castleford in December last. Immediately after the wedding they went to Fryston, it being arranged that afterwards they should separate, each going to their respective parents. The defendant wished them to go into lodgings, and on the day after the wedding she said "We had a few words, and never spoke to each other for three or four months." At Whitsuntide, however, they went into lodgings for a week, after which they went to her parents' house for one night. He went out the next day, saying he "had had enough," and was going home. After that, she said, defendant made her an offer of 7s. 6d. a week if she would not bother him. On the 6th of the present month they met and went to a picture show, and when they got out she asked him to go back with her, but he refused, saying he was going to see a man. Cross-examined, she said she left her husband the day after the wedding because it was arranged that they should do so. She did not tell him she was going home to her mother because she was sick. She went to him on Sunday week, as she thought, it was time he started keeping her. She was not wearing her wedding ring now "because she wasn't." (Laughter). She admitted writing to her husband's mother: "Dear Mother." The chairman here intervened, and obtained admissions from both the parties that they were willing to live together "away from each other's relatives." The case was adjourned for a month to await results.

GARFORTH

On Saturday afternoon in the Bowling League Garforth Conservatives defeated Halton Travellers by 206 to 148.

It is proposed to have lectures in Garforth next winter, and a meeting will be held on Thursday, July 2nd, to make arrangements. See advt.

BOWLING.—On Saturday afternoon in the Yorkshire Consolation Cup Competition Batley were opposed to Garforth Working Men at Gipton Wood. Batley proved the winners with a total of 240 against Garforth's 177.

TRANSPORT AUCTION MART.—On Monday at this mart Mr Wm. Ash sold 150 head of well-finished stock. Trade for beef was good; small sheep more late rates, but heavier weights and pork pigs were easier. Prices:—Fat bullocks 24s to £24 15s., shearlings, 47s. 6d. to 58s. 6d., fat ewes 42s. 6d. to 50s., fat lambs 30s. to 36s.; pork pigs 90s. to 98s., stores 15s. to 30s., choice lean 5 cwt. pig, good feet 73/., small about 5 cwt., heavy ditto 82/., fat ewes 72/., lambs 10d. to 11d. per lb.; pork pigs 7s. 0d. per stone of 14lb.

MR HOUFTON TO STAND AGAIN.—Mr J. P. Houlton, son of the late Mr C. Houlton, of Garton, who stood unsuccessfully in the Liberal interest at the recent by-election in North-East Derbyshire, was last Saturday adopted as the Divisional Liberal Association, at Chesterfield, as prospective candidate at the next election. Mr Houlton asserted that the action of the Liberal party in the recent contest was more than justified, and he said there was a certainty of success in similar circumstances in the future. The by-election demonstrated that a Labour ticket man could not, in any circumstances, win the seat. The situation the Liberal and Labour parties had to face was that the seat rested between the Liberal and Tory parties He did not wish to do anything that was calculated to widen the breach between Liberalism and Labour, and he would do anything he could to bring back a harmonious working among all sections of the Liberal party in the division.

PICTURE HOUSE.—At the Picture House this week popular programmes have attracted appreciative audiences, and it should be noticed that during the week-end a picture of the noted Fantomas series—"The Trophy of the Mask-of Ball"—is being screened. Other good pictures will make up a programme at once attractive and interesting. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday next Miss Hilda Moore, the celebrated picture artiste, will appear in her famous dramatic tragedy, "His Blind Wife," and everybody will enjoy the powerful acting of this beautiful actress. The process by the Mask-of will be pictorially described, and other films promised are "The Gangsters," "The Switch Tower," and "The Mouse and the Lion. Wednesday night's performance has been set aside for the benefit of Mr W. Blackburn, who has been ill for a long time, and the kindness of the management should meet with a good response from the resident-ats. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday a splendid photo-drama of the American civil war, "Blood Will Tell," will be the chief attraction, and other pictures on the bill are "The Two Glasses," showing the history of a wine glass and a glass of water; "When Mary Grew Up" (comedy), "A Family Mixup" (a laughable Keystone), "Just Kids" (comic), and "The Little Hero" (depicting exciting fire scenes and a plucky lad's daring feat). For times and prices see advert.

BARKER'S PLIGHT.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday James Barker, a labourer, of Garforth, was summoned for having been drunk and disorderly at Garforth. P.C Beevor stated that about 7.10 p.m. on June 13th he was on the Station Road, Garforth, when he saw the defendant, who was in a very drunken condition, staggering from one side of the street to the other. There were several people about at the time, and some of them had to step on the footpath because of defendant. He collided with two mail carts, nearly upsetting the children inside, and violently kicked over a baby's perambulator. Mr Dransfield, who did not appear, was fined 7s. 6d. and costs.

HALTON

It should be noticed that the organ-opening ceremony at Halton Wesleyan Chapel takes place to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon. See advt.

BOWLING.—On Wednesday, in the Morley Trophy Competition, Halton played Gipton on the green of the latter. Scores:—Gipton 247, Halton 176. Details (Halton names first):—A. Caine 21 v. J. Longthorn 28, G. Nicol 18 v. H. Hilton 21, W. Ginns 18 v. A. Parker 21, F. Vince 12 v. W. Houghton 21, H. Thomas 6 v. W. Clifton 21, J. Belfield 8 v. R. Laidlaw 21, G. Caswell 13 v. J. Service 21, W. Hall 18 v. F. Kilburn (capt.) 21, T. Booth 12 v. H. Watson 21, H. Lamb 16 v. S. Bielby 21, W. Green 21 v. W. Jefferson 15, J. Guest 13 v. C. Watkin 21.

IN DARKNESS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, William Henry Holdsworth, carrier, of Leeds, was summoned for driving a vehicle at Halton without a light. P.C. Robinson stated that about 10.40 p.m., on Wednesday, June 10th, he was on the Leeds and Selby Road, at Halton, when the defendant came up in charge of a vehicle, which had no light. When spoken to by the officer defendant said the lamp had only just gone out, and he was going to the bottom of the hill to get a candle. Defendant, who did not appear, was fined 5s. and costs.

SNAKE IN THE GRASS.—On Sunday afternoon Mr George Oswald Bell, of Halton, and a party of friends were visiting the grounds of Templethorpe, which were thrown open to the public, when Mr Bell found a snake in the grass. The party had just entered the grounds by the Moor Road entrance, when the discovery was made. It is about thirty-eight inches long, and tapers off from the head. It has a forked tongue, which it can dart out with lightning rapidity. Mr Bell secured it by the tail, in which position he was photographed. Now he has it at his home. It is believed to be an adder, and it is stated there used to be a lot of adders in the grounds at one time.

GOLDEN WEDDINGS.—A very interesting gathering was held in the Guild Room of the Wesleyan Chapel last week, when four more were celebrating their golden wedding. Mr and Mrs Wm. Todd, and Mr and Mrs Wm. Guy, who are all very highly respected in the neighbourhood, were the recipient of suitably inscribed tea-pots from their class leader and fellow members, who also provided a substantial tea. Mr Todd was chapel-keeper for 12 years. After the repast, congratulations, singing, speeches, etc., were the order of the evening, during which Councillor and Mrs Verity (Whitebeck Farm) presented each couple with a pretty gold and white afternoon tea-service. Another pleasing feature was the presence of Mr and Mrs Schofield, of Featherstone, who were also honouring their golden wedding. They were married at the same time as Mr and Mrs Todd at Rothwell Church, June 11th, 1864, and have spent most of the anniversaries together since. All the persons mentioned duly responded to the many congratulations, and all expressed their pleasure and happiness at having spent a most enjoyable evening.

KIPPAX

A report of Kippax Parish Council meeting will be found on another page.

MEDICAL CHARITIES.—Mr R. Plows, hon. sec. of Kippax and Ledston Medical Charities Committee, writes to us concerning a report that has been sent out. It was alleged a certain person had been refused a "recommend" to a convalescent home, and Mr Plows says the person in question has never made application for a "recommend."

PARISH CHURCH.—The school anniversary services were held on Sunday in the schoolroom. Special hymns were sung by the children, under the direction of Mr Keeble (organist and choirmaster), and recitations were also contributed by several scholars, who had been trained by Mr Howell. The Vicar preached morning and evening in the church, and all the services were well attended. The celebration was continued on Wednesday. The children formed a procession and marched from the Sunday School along the principal streets of the village, singing their hymns at various points. The Kippax Old Band headed the procession, and also accompanied the singing. The children's tea followed the parade, and the public tea was held immediately after, and attracted a large gath-ring. In the evening the Old Band headed a well-ordered procession down to Kippax Park (by kind permission of Mr. D. Bland, J.P.), and there dancing to music supplied by the band was engaged in by the young men and women, while the children played games. The weather was fine, and the gathering was a great success.

LOFTHOUSE

SALE OF LOFTHOUSE PARK.—At Wakefield on Friday night Mr A. Hudson (Messrs Dodds and Hudson) offered by auction the freehold estate, Lofthouse Park, comprising the mansion house, park, pavilion, Hawthorn Cottage, and pleasure grounds, and containing in the whole about 58 acres. Bidding rose to £5,500, at which figure the property was knocked down to Mr W. Dixon, architect, Barnsley, on behalf of Messrs Barclay and Co., bankers.

METHLEY

RECTOR AND MISSIONS.—The proceedings in connection with the Pontefract Rural Deanery Missionary Exhibition were reopened on Friday by the Venerable Archdeacon Armstrong Hall, rector of Methley and Archdeacon of Richmond. The Archdeacon mentioned the historical fact that in his possession was a reprint of St. Nicholas Hospital, Pontefract, showing that in 1320 the Custos, singularly enough calling himself "Archdeacon of Richmond," came over to Methley, and there collected rents due in respect of lands belonging to the Hospital. Archdeacon Hall commended the Exhibition to the careful attention of every Bible reader, for the scenes presented would, he believed, prove exceedingly useful in helping to grasp the true meaning of passages which might hitherto have been somewhat obscure.

OULTON

BOWLING MATCH.—On Saturday in the Preston Shield Competition Oulton played Morley, and the scores were:—Morley 204, Oulton 196. Details (Morley names first):—J. Redshaw 2 v. W. Peters 21, W. Bennett 21 v. C. G. Cameron 17, B. Littlewood 21 v. J. Murtland 4, S. Steele 21 v. F. Elfis 19, J. Gomersal 21 v. W. Lock. wood 19, R. Raw 7 v. J. Brown 21, J. Taylor 11 v. J. H. Armitage 21, A. Walker 16 v. B. Wood Higgins 21, J. Clough 21 v. J. Buck 9, J. Allen 21 v. H. W. Mitchinson 16, F. Greaves 21 v. W. Poole 12, W. Sykes 21 v. H. Grant 6.

BOWLING.—In the match between Leeds and District and the West Riding Mr J. W. Morley (Oulton) was defeated by Mr F. Wood (Elland) by 3 points. Mr. W. P. Peters (Oulton), however, beat Mr F. Riley (Brighouse) by 9 points.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—The anniversary services in connection with the Oulton Wesleyan Sunday School were continued during the past week-end. On Saturday afternoon the children paraded the village singing their special hymns, and at the close of the proceedings a tea was held in the Sunday School, this being followed by a public tea. Afterwards the children were taken to a field, where all manner of games were indulged in. On Sunday there were again good attendances at all the services, the special preacher being Mr J. W. Ridyard (Woodlesford), who also addressed the children in the afternoon. The children gave their special hymns, and various scholars, who had been trained by Mrs Penn and Miss Henstock, recited. The singing was accompanied by the organ and an orchestra composed of Miss Routh (Woodlesford), Mr Witchell (Oulton), and Mr H. Noble (Swillington).

ROBIN HOOD

ACCIDENT.—Whilst running to catch a car at Robin Hood on Wednesday afternoon a miner named George Underwood, of Outwood, who had just come up from Messrs J. and J. Charlesworth's pit, was knocked down by a motor car, which was travelling towards Leeds. The unfortunate man was dragged some distance along the road and badly hurt. Dr Stevenson's assistant, who was passing at the time, rendered what aid he could, but the injuries were of such a character as to necessitate the injured man being removed to the Leeds Infirmary.

ROUNDHAY

GOLF COURSE.—On Wednesday the Parks Committee of the Leeds Corporation considered a report submitted by Dr Mackenzie with regard to the proposal to construct a municipal golf course at Northill Field, Roundhay, and it was decided that, subject to the approval of the City Council, the work should be proceeded with. The course will be one of nine holes, and the cost of construction is estimated at about £200. The first tee will be within five minutes' walk of the Mansion in Roundhay Park.

FRENZIED SCRAMBLE.—A correspondent writes: —I hope you will allow me an opportunity of voicing my intense indignation at the mismanagement of the tram service from Roundhay Park on Saturday night. Knowing the great crowds which would be certain to be there after such a lovely afternoon and evening, surely better provision should be made for the return journey. The scene of the frenzied scramble for seats or standing room beggars description, women, especially the aged and those with young children, having to submit to being thrust aside and trampled on by young athletic hooligans of the locality.

WEDDING.—A pretty wedding was celebrated at St Martin's Church, Chapeltown, Leeds, on Wednesday, between Miss Annie Priscilla Cunningham, only daughter of Mr and Mrs Arthur Cunningham, of Laura Villa, Roundhay, and Mr Arthur Frederick Watson. The bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Constance Swainston, of Leeds, and Miss J. B. Watson, acted as best man. Afterwards a reception was held at the Mansion, Potternewton Park. The honeymoon is being spent in the Lake District. Mr Cunningham, who is president of the Yorkshire Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, had the whole proceedings "filmed."

MOTOR CAR DESTROYED.—A landaulette, belonging to Messrs Hindle Brothers, Ltd., Roundhay, caught fire near Northallerton, and was completely destroyed. The car was a very fine 15 h.p. Daimler landaulette, and was travelling to Northallerton from Leeds. When a quarter of a mile South of Otterington House, on the Northallerton and Boroughbridge Road, the car caught fire, and in a short time was a mass of flames. The body was totally demolished, the glass wind screen melting in the fierce heat. The gear box and the axles were also completely destroyed, and the only part of the car likely to be of further use is the engine. The automobile was valued from £350 to £400.

BAND PERFORMANCE.—On Saturday there were huge crowds at the band performances in Roundhay Park. The band of the 2nd Battalion of the Seaforth Highlanders provided music of the best class, including selections from Wagner and Grieg, and the players could not be heard to better advantage than when gratified with the reception accorded them. The Seaforths gave two performances, one in the afternoon as well as one in the evening. The total takings for the day were £100, which is said to be a record for band performances at Roundhay. The afternoon's takings were approximately £30, and the evening's £70. Apart from the music supplied by the Highlanders, there was a spectacular interest that proved a great attraction. The picturesque kilted uniforms were of themselves a novelty, and the Highland sword dances given by the pipers were warmly appreciated.

STOURTON

LANGUAGE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Frederick Duffill, a wheelwright, of Stourton, was summoned for having used obscene language at Stourton. Defendant said he did not remember using it; they had been for an enjoyable half-day. A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

ANNIVERSARY.—On Sunday the Sunday School anniversary at the Primitive Methodist Church was celebrated, and special services were held. In the morning the choir and the scholars visited the parts of Stourton which were missed at the Whitsuntide festival, and sang their hymns. In the afternoon at the children's service an address was given by Mr Greenwood Ayrton, of Harehills Avenue Church.—Mr Brook, the Sunday School superintendent, presiding. The festival hymns were again a feature of the service, while some of the scholars who had been ably trained by Miss G. Lambert, gave recitations. Those who recited were:—Clara Phillips, who gave "Smiles"; Lilian Walton, "Love's mission"; and Harold Brook, "H, ii"; while Master Harry Taylor sang "Flowers of every hue." In the evening Gertie Bosomworth recited "The little mud sparrow," and Doris Pigott sang "When evening shadows gather." Miss Bosomworth also sang "The hill of sorrow." The preacher was Mr Greenwod Ayrton.

The magistrates at Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday were Mr E. C. Brooksbank (Chairman), Mr J. H. Ingleby, and Captain York.

Licensing Returns for the House of Commons on Wednesday Mr Lane Fox asked the Prime Minister when it was proposed to introduce a Housing Bill to take the place of the housing provisions included from the Insurance Bill. Mr Asquith said he hoped it would be introduced next week.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Spofforth cricketers met at home, and the better of a drawn game. Scores:—Spofforth—Smithson 9, King 4, S. H. Hill 12, Howard 10, Procter 24, Oddy 14, A. Hill 6, Thompson (not out) 25, W. Morrison 4, J. Morrison (not out) 14, extras, 14; total (for 8 wkts.), 133. Declared. Old Leedsians—Rigby 21, Lambert 2, Vause 0, Nutt 17, Cooper 0, Rigby 8, Evans 2, Hodgson (not out) 20, Jackson 2, Cissen (not out) 5, extras, 8; total (for 8 wkts.), 85.

ROTHWELL URBAN COUNCIL.

The monthly meeting of the Rothwell Urban District Council was held at the Council Offices on Monday evening, Mr J. Hirst (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs J. Armitage, W. R. Chadwick, H. Corden, T. P. Wade, W. Wade, H. Kirkby, W. Lunn, W. Robinson, W. Speak, and S. Dobson, with the Clerk (Mr W. Dodgson), the medical officer of health (Dr H. Stevenson), the sanitary inspector (Mr E. F. Moorhouse), and the surveyor (Mr J. Southwart).

MR BLAKEY'S BEREAVEMENT.

Before commencing the business of the Council the Chairman called attention to the absence of the vice-chairman (Mr G. W. Blakey). Since the last meeting Mr Hirst said, Mr Blakey and his family had had a very severe bereavement by the loss of a daughter in the foundering of the Empress of Ireland. He (Mr Hirst) remembered Mr Blakey's daughter as a teacher in the Rothwell National School, and he wanted no better testimony than what the late Mr Pearson once said—that Mr Blakey ought to be proud of his daughters. Recounting the circumstances of the sad affair, Mr Hirst said that Miss Blakey left home two years ago with a promise to her parents to come and see them in two years' time. She endeavoured to fulfil that promise, and he believed that it is had not been for the unfortunate accident she would have arrived home within two years since she left. Unfortunately, the meeting had not taken place, and he moved a vote of condolence with Mr and Mrs Blakey and their family in the sad bereavement. He felt sure that when they knew that the Council joined with them in their sorrow it would help to alleviate it.

Mr Lunn asked the Council, seeing he knew it had been a very sad blow to Mr Blakey, who had for weeks been unable to talk of anything else but of the coming home of his daughter, if Mr Lunn was supported, and, after making a personal reference to the family, said that in such disasters they saw the advantage of people being taught in the Elementary schools. Public authorities were neglecting their duties, education authorities in particular, in not giving the children attending the schools the facilities for learning to swim. They in Rothwell were not doing their duty yet in giving children that advantage.

Mr Kirkby also supported the vote, which was passed, by the members standing.

HIGHWAYS COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Highways Committee it was resolved that the committee negotiate with Mr Farrer for the purchase of a frontage in Oulton Lane and Gillett Lane, from the entrance of the cottages beyond Whitehall Field in Oulton Lane to a point in Gillett Lane opposite the first projecting garden wall. It was resolved that it be left with the surveyor to arrange with the Tramway Co. to tar macadam the tramway margins in the Leeds and Wakefield Road. The surveyor was instructed to apply to the Road Board to made the road from Thorpe to Oulton, and from the Bones to Oulton fire-class roads, and the road from Ardsley Station along Lee Moor Lane to Methley a second class road. It was resolved that the committee meet Mr Hirst and Mr Hindle in Windmill Lane, the surveyor to bring plan of the land required from each. It was also resolved that the existing flagged footpath in Armitage Street be extended and the kerb stones from Leeds. When a quarter of a mile South of Otterington House, on the Northallerton and Boroughbridge Road, the car caught fire, and in a short time was a mass of flames. The body was totally demolished, the glass wind screen melting in the fierce heat. The gear box and the axles were also completely destroyed, and the only part of the car likely to be of further use is the engine. The automobile was valued from £350 to £400.

BAND PERFORMANCE.—On Saturday there were huge crowds at the band performances in Roundhay Park. The band of the 2nd Battalion of the Seaforth Highlanders provided music of the best class, including selections from Wagner and Grieg, and the players could not be heard to better advantage than when gratified with the reception accorded them. The Seaforths gave two performances, one in the afternoon as well as one in the evening. The total takings for the day were £100, which is said to be a record for band performances at Roundhay. The afternoon's takings were approximately £30, and the evening's £70. Apart from the music supplied by the Highlanders, there was a spectacular interest that proved a great attraction. The picturesque kilted uniforms were of themselves a novelty, and the Highland sword dances given by the pipers were warmly appreciated.

SANITARY COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Sanitary Committee it was resolved that Mr Denton be allowed to use dry ashpits to his houses in Shaw Fold, and further that pointries be provided at Closing order will be made on Shaw Fold, are to be brought up for determination when ashpits have been constructed. It was decided that the relaying of the kitchen floor and the repairs asked for in respect of No. 1 and No. 2 Mill Hill be insisted upon; that a demolition order be made in respect of the thatched cottage, and that notice be served on the owner of the property in addition order be made for the three tile houses, Rothwell Haigh, and that notice of the same be served on the owner; that the question of five yards given by Greenwood Ayrton, of Harehills Avenue Church.—Mr Brook, the Sunday School superintendent, presiding. The festival hymns were again a feature of the service, while some of the scholars who had been ably trained by Miss G. Lambert, gave recitations. Those who recited were:—Clara Phillips, who gave "Smiles"; Lilian Walton, "Love's mission"; and Harold Brook, "H, ii"; while Master Harry Taylor sang "Flowers of every hue." In the evening Gertie Bosomworth recited "The little mud sparrow," and Doris Pigott sang "When evening shadows gather." Miss Bosomworth also sang "The hill of sorrow." The preacher was Mr Greenwod Ayrton.

The magistrates at Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday were Mr E. C. Brooksbank (Chairman), Mr J. H. Ingleby, and Captain York.

Licensing Returns for the House of Commons on Wednesday Mr Lane Fox asked the Prime Minister when it was proposed to introduce a Housing Bill to take the place of the housing provisions included from the Insurance Bill. Mr Asquith said he hoped it would be introduced next week.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Spofforth cricketers met at home, and the better of a drawn game. Scores:—Spofforth—Smithson 9, King 4, S. H. Hill 12, Howard 10, Procter 24, Oddy 14, A. Hill 6, Thompson (not out) 25, W. Morrison 4, J. Morrison (not out) 14, extras, 14; total (for 8 wkts.), 133. Declared. Old Leedsians—Rigby 21, Lambert 2, Vause 0, Nutt 17, Cooper 0, Rigby 8, Evans 2, Hodgson (not out) 20, Jackson 2, Cissen (not out) 5, extras, 8; total (for 8 wkts.), 85.

The monthly meeting of the Rothwell Urban District Council was held at the Council Offices on Monday evening, Mr J. Hirst (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs J. Armitage, W. R. Chadwick, H. Corden, T. P. Wade, W. Wade, H. Kirkby, W. Lunn, W. Robinson, W. Speak, and S. Dobson, with the Clerk (Mr W. Dodgson), the medical officer of health (Dr H. Stevenson), the sanitary inspector (Mr E. F. Moorhouse), and the surveyor (Mr J. Southwart).

MR BLAKEY'S BEREAVEMENT.

Before commencing the business of the Council the Chairman called attention to the absence of the vice-chairman (Mr G. W. Blakey). Since the last meeting Mr Hirst said, Mr Blakey and his family had had a very severe bereavement by the loss of a daughter in the foundering of the Empress of Ireland. He (Mr Hirst) remembered Mr Blakey's daughter as a teacher in the Rothwell National School, and he wanted no better testimony than what the late Mr Pearson once said—that Mr Blakey ought to be proud of his daughters. Recounting the circumstances of the sad affair, Mr Hirst said that Miss Blakey left home two years ago with a promise to her parents to come and see them in two years' time. She endeavoured to fulfil that promise, and he believed that it is had not been for the unfortunate accident she would have arrived home within two years since she left. Unfortunately, the meeting had not taken place, and he moved a vote of condolence with Mr and Mrs Blakey and their family in the sad bereavement. He felt sure that when they knew that the Council joined with them in their sorrow it would help to alleviate it.

Mr Lunn asked the Council, seeing he knew it had been a very sad blow to Mr Blakey, who had for weeks been unable to talk of anything else but of the coming home of his daughter, if Mr Lunn was supported, and, after making a personal reference to the family, said that in such disasters they saw the advantage of people being taught in the Elementary schools. Public authorities were neglecting their duties, education authorities in particular, in not giving the children attending the schools the facilities for learning to swim. They in Rothwell were not doing their duty yet in giving children that advantage.

Mr Kirkby also supported the vote, which was passed, by the members standing.

HIGHWAYS COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Highways Committee it was resolved that the committee negotiate with Mr Farrer for the purchase of a frontage in Oulton Lane and Gillett Lane, from the entrance of the cottages beyond Whitehall Field in Oulton Lane to a point in Gillett Lane opposite the first projecting garden wall. It was resolved that it be left with the surveyor to arrange with the Tramway Co. to tar macadam the tramway margins in the Leeds and Wakefield Road. The surveyor was instructed to apply to the Road Board to made the road from Thorpe to Oulton, and from the Bones to Oulton fire-class roads, and the road from Ardsley Station along Lee Moor Lane to Methley a second class road. It was resolved that the committee meet Mr Hirst and Mr Hindle in Windmill Lane, the surveyor to bring plan of the land required from each. It was also resolved that the existing flagged footpath in Armitage Street be extended and the kerb stones from the Bones to Oulton be made up and taken over by the Council on the completion of the Private Street Works of which notice has been given. It was decided that the Council offer without prejudice to pay one half the cost of repairs to the stream through Mrs Nother's land, the estimated total cost being £12 12s.

A ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

In moving the adoption of the minutes, Mr W. Lunn said the first paragraph of the minutes meant that they were asking Major Calverley for a price for part of Oulton Lane and part of Gillett Lane up to a point. The committee thought an improvement was needed at the commencement of Oulton Lane, and the best way would be to widen Gillett Lane and the corner of Oulton Lane, as far as they were going to build houses.

Mr S. Dobson called the attention of the Committee to the condition of the footbridge at north field, which crosses the East and West Yorkshire Union Railway. The boards, he explained, were loose, and the actions of some mischievous lads might result in a serious accident.

The minutes were passed.

SANITARY COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Sanitary Committee it was resolved that Mr Denton be allowed to use dry ashpits to his houses in Shaw Fold, and further that pointries be provided at Closing order will be made on Shaw Fold, are to be brought up for determination when ashpits have been constructed. It was decided that the relaying of the kitchen floor and the repairs asked for in respect of No. 1 and No. 2 Mill Hill be insisted upon; that a demolition order be made in respect of the thatched cottage, and that notice be served on the owner of the property in addition order be made for the three tile houses, Rothwell Haigh, and that notice of the same be served on the owner; that the question of five yards given by Greenwood Ayrton, of Harehills Avenue Church.—Mr Brook, the Sunday School superintendent, presiding. The festival hymns were again a feature of the service, while some of the scholars who had been ably trained by Miss G. Lambert, gave recitations. Those who recited were:—Clara Phillips, who gave "Smiles"; Lilian Walton, "Love's mission"; and Harold Brook, "H, ii"; while Master Harry Taylor sang "Flowers of every hue." In the evening Gertie Bosomworth recited "The little mud sparrow," and Doris Pigott sang "When evening shadows gather." Miss Bosomworth also sang "The hill of sorrow." The preacher was Mr Greenwod Ayrton.

The magistrates at Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday were Mr E. C. Brooksbank (Chairman), Mr J. H. Ingleby, and Captain York.

Licensing Returns for the House of Commons on Wednesday Mr Lane Fox asked the Prime Minister when it was proposed to introduce a Housing Bill to take the place of the housing provisions included from the Insurance Bill. Mr Asquith said he hoped it would be introduced next week.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Spofforth cricketers met at home, and the better of a drawn game. Scores:—Spofforth—Smithson 9, King 4, S. H. Hill 12, Howard 10, Procter 24, Oddy 14, A. Hill 6, Thompson (not out) 25, W. Morrison 4, J. Morrison (not out) 14, extras, 14; total (for 8 wkts.), 133. Declared. Old Leedsians—Rigby 21, Lambert 2, Vause 0, Nutt 17, Cooper 0, Rigby 8, Evans 2, Hodgson (not out) 20, Jackson 2, Cissen (not out) 5, extras, 8; total (for 8 wkts.), 85.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR
ENGAGEMENT RINGS, £1:1: £33. £5:5: £10:10: & £100 ea.
DYSONS
PENDANTS. EARRINGS, SCARF PINS, & JEWELLERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION. from £1: to £150.
SEE OUR WINDOW EXHIBIT.—ALL PRICES MARKED:
DYSONS
24,25,26,(LOWER) BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
THE LARGEST STOCK IN THE COUNTY, OF GOLD & SILVER WATCHES from 10/6 to 50 GUINEAS EACH
SPECIAL VALUE GUN-METAL LEVERS :—
The "Universal" 30s. The "Roughwear," 15s. The "Black Prince" 10/6.
WATCHES
OLD WATCHES, JEWELLERY & SILVER TAKEN IN EXCHANGE. VALUATIONS FOR PROBATE, &c., &c.
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WANSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers
and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street,
LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

Furniture Delivered
ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.

T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST,
LEEDS.

N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.

NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

ESTABLISHED 1871.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.
THIS INSTITUTION was ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they say, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in charitable institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Cones, or other painful and useless appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances, and in isolated positions can have the advantage of MR ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure, or benefit to the patient.
Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 2
On Alternate Saturdays, June 13th and 27th. Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.
TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION. ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s. SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 30s.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE. Age Limit, 16-66?

Section	Death	Total Disablement up to 52 weeks	PREMIUMS Per Week	Two Weeks	One Month
	£	£
A	500	50/-	2/-	5/-	10/-
B	250	25/-	1/6	2/6	5/-
C	100	10/-	9d.	1/-	2/-

These insurances do not cover Professional or Trade Risks, or obviously dangerous adventures.
GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD., PERTH, SCOTLAND.
Assets nearly £7,000,000. Established 1885

A sum of £39 was collected at the military services at the Selby Abbey Church on Sunday on behalf of the new Church Institute, and the augmentation of the Abbey benefice.

TEMPLENEWSAM PARISH AFFAIRS.

WHITKIRK RECREATION GROUND.

The members of Templenewsam Council meeting at Hollon on Monday (in the chair), J. Owrid, J. A. Dixon, G. D. Crosthwaite, H. Greaves, C. E. Goodall, W. Baker, Fitton, and Firth, with the Clerk (Mr Vernon Greaves).

At a meeting of the Allotments Committee it was agreed that a minimum balance of £5 over and above expenses be retained by the County Council, and the Clerk was instructed to obtain information as to the Council being in a position to give a discount of five per cent. on rentals paid promptly.

Tenders were obtained for water pipes for the allotments in Keighley Lane, and it was proposed that the money should be borrowed from the overseers and be paid back in thirteen years. Before doing anything further in the matter it was decided to ask the allotment-holders concerned (31 in number) whether they were willing to pay a certain sum annually in redemption of the loan.—Mr Dixon said that he understood some of the allotment holders did not want the water.—The Chairman said that they must get to know that when the Clerk wrote to them.—Mr Dixon asked what would happen if a large minority were against the scheme.—The Clerk said that one way would be to give them notice to give up their allotments.—Mr Crosthwaite: That would be a shabby way of doing things.—Mr Firth said they should leave the matter until they knew what their position was.—The matter then dropped.

It was reported that the Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., had granted what remains of the old cricket ground at Whitkirk, consisting of 1a. 2r. 8p. on 3 yearly tenancy for use as a recreation ground, at a rental of one shilling. Owing to the danger from traffic, he was against the making of an entrance in Selby Road, but in view of the opposition to a suggested entrance from Hollyshaw Grove, he was willing that a temporary gate should be placed on the Selby Road side so that the children could have the use of the field this summer. In the course of discussion, Mr Firth said it might be suggested that an entrance should be given from the "Brown Cow" Yard.—The Chairman said that would be interfering with the property of some one else.—Mr Crosthwaite said he thought it was safer to give an entrance from the Selby Road than Hollyshaw Lane.—Eventually Mr Dixon moved that Mr Wood's offer be accepted, and that he be asked to make the Selby Road entrance a permanent one in view of the opposition to the Hollyshaw Grove entrance.—Mr Firth seconded, and this was adopted.—Messrs Owrid, Tomlinson and Calton were appointed to interview Mr Marsden on the matter.—Mr Firth said he understood the Ratepayers' Association were to do something in regard to seats in this recreation ground.—Mr Catton: We shall be very thankful.

It was reported that twelve old school desks had been brought and placed in the Halton Recreation Ground, and it was decided to obtain tenders for fixing the seats.

It was decided, on the motion of Mr Firth, to give the use of the Halton Recreation Ground on July 13th to the Skyrack Police for a charity cricket match.

The Council agreed to issue a precept for £25 on the overseers.

Application having been made to the Motor Union for danger-signs to be fixed at the Halton School and Pinfold Lane, Halton, a reply was received stating that it had been sent to the signs department.

In regard to water flowing over a footpath leading from Primrose Lane to Killinghark, the owner of the land (Mr Morkill) wrote that he would give the matter attention when he next visited Halton.

RECTOR OF BOLTON PERCY AND MISSIONS.

POOR AND THE GOSPEL—ATTITUDE OF THE RICH.

Dr Crosthwaite (Bishop of Beverley and rector of Bolton Percy), at the opening of a missionary exhibition at Pontefract, said that wherever they looked—to Africa, to India, further east to China, or still further east to Japan—everywhere were calls which were unmistakable to the Christian Church from all parts of the globe, to reinforce the present army of missionaries, and to grapple with the emergencies which were arising and the new problems which were developing solution. He had the great pressure the other day of sitting with a lady whose husband was working in the Provinces of India, where were taking place those great risen movements toward Christianity which were affecting the lowest of the people. They were sometimes told, "Yes, you can get the lowest people, but you can't get at the educated folk." They must not, however, forget the Gospel in its first beginnings appealed rather to the poor and those who were less educated, but when the higher classes saw the fruits of the Gospel upon the lower fellows, they were glad to embrace its teaching. It would be a mistake to think no work was being done amongst the higher classes in India, because in India—where really great results were being attained. Those mass movements constituted a problem of their own, because the people coming in required teaching, and a great increase in the number of men and women working amongst them. The number of Christians in the Punjab was now three times what it was ten years ago, and whilst the whole population of the Provinces had increased by five per cent. during that period, the number of Christians had increased by 30 per cent.

That, a year ago they had a most remarkable experience in the fact that the Chinese Government specially invited the prayers of the Christians in that country and elsewhere on behalf of the new Parliament, and that for the first time Christianity in the minds of the Chinese people to a position it had never occupied before that invitation was given. They must take the opportunities which had thus arisen, and the same encouraging signs could be observed in Japan. It was not only large sums which were required, and the appeal for assistance could not be confined to those who could afford large sums only. They needed also the pence of the people. He was interested the other day in perusing the balance sheet of a hundred years ago issued by the parish in Somerset in which he was born, and there found so many people promising to raise so much apiece, and so many children offering a half-penny a week; and in the same way they all had a duty to give as God had blessed them and to contribute heartily and generously. He was quite sure they would find a good deal to interest them in that exhibition, and he trusted that their interest would bear fruit in the future.

TRESPASS.—At Wetherby John Woolliscroft, shop assistant, and Henry B. Lee, wool merchant, both of Wetherby, were fined 2s. 6d. and costs each for trespassing on the North Eastern Railway at that place.

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

BARKSTON ASH LEAGUE MATCHES.

Nine matches form the Senior League programme for Saturday. Saxton, who were beaten early in the season at Church Fenton, expect to turn the tables on their opponents, but they must show a little more stamina. South Milford, too, have something to wipe out, and Cawood will find difficulty in annexing points at Milford. Tadcaster, at home, will be expected to account for Church Fenton Sycamore, but a reproduction of Sycamore's best form will provide an interesting match. Halton are confident of their ability to beat Barwick, and Micklefield, on form, should succeed at Preston, but the homesters are a team of triers, and they will eventually come into their own.

The best game of the day will probably be at Seacroft, where Garforth will try conclusions with the homesters. Both teams are on an equality in the League table, and as the 'Crofters were lucky to win the first match between the teams, a keen struggle for the points is assured.—Halton Wes. and Crossgates meet at Halton. —Halton Wes. must have an advantage, while Shadwell, if they give of their best, should manage to beat Collingham. Crossgates Wes. have improved whilst Whitkirk have gone backward but the latter will come again, and the Wesleyans will have to show all their skill if they are to go up to the League table.

LANE FOX CUP COMPETITION.

In the first round of the Lane Fox Cup Competition on Saturday afternoon Garforth Wes., one of the smartest teams playing in the Junior League, accomplished a very creditable performance by defeating Collingham on their own ground by twenty runs. The game was not without its interesting features, and it may be truthfully stated that the match was won by the last man on the Garforth side. The Wesleyans, who had first lease of the wicket, had a very moderate score when A. Hewitt, the last man on the side, joined Gent, and it looked as if the match were a gift for Collingham. Hewitt, however, completely upset the calculations of the trundlers, and he defied the attack until he had put 34 on the register. Gent's score was 14 (not out). The total was 91. Emmerson captured five wickets for 21, and Gibson had 4 for 21. Collingham, unlike their opponents, started in promising style, and Smithson, Whitehead, and Smith made 14 each, Gibson 15, and Young 7, and then there was a collapse, Ward bowling with deadly effect. Six players had only half-a-dozen among them, and the innings realised 71. Ward's six wickets cost 19 runs, and Brownridge's 3 were got for 20. Garforth Wes. opponents in the next round on July 18th are Crossgates.

Halton Wes., who entertained Barwick, made their place in the second round secure. Barwick, who have shown an improvement in recent matches, gave a fairly good batting exhibition, and they were not got rid of until they had scored 141, of which Fred Lamb had 18 and Walton 13. The bowling honours for Halton were divided. G. O. Bell had the best figures—3 for 12, C. E. Batty's cost 15, and Micklefield had 2 for 6. Halton lost three of their leading batsmen for 18, but Crosthwaite played careful cricket, and he credited himself with 19 (not out). Six wickets were down when the total was 65, so that the struggle was keenly interesting right up to the finish. Bowes secured 3 wickets for 18, F. Lamb had 2 for 20, and Hartley one for 8 runs. Halton will play Seacroft in the next round.

Seacroft had a very easy journey to the second round, Swillington Park, who were no match for their opponents, are not in the League, and they might do themselves a service by joining the Junior League next season with a view to qualifying for higher honours. The losers' innings realised 43 (E. Gummerson 12), and Pickersgill secured three of their wickets for six runs, while D. Burton claimed 4 for 20. Seacroft got the necessary runs with only one wicket down, D. Burton scoring 11, and Stead 27 (not out).

Garforth again demonstrated their superiority to Great Preston, and if the winners maintain their present form they should go far in the tournament. Batting first, the Garforthians gave a fine exhibition, and excellent cricket was played by S. Glover (18), H. Prime (40), and W. Glover (33). Stephenson was given out lbw, without scoring, but Morley made 15. E. Birch 10, and G. Reed, who went last to the wickets, 15 (not out). The total was 153. For Preston J. Green was the only bowler capturing 5 for 35. Preston opened, singularly enough, with four Wigglesworths, and two of them were unfortunate to be sent back without scoring. H. Wigglesworth, however, put on 17, and valuable assistance was rendered by G. A. Varley and Firth (6), but the others made no substantial score, and the innings closed for 68. Williamson claimed two wickets for 7, G. Reed 2 for 11, Pickersgill 2 for 18, and Ballance 3 for 22. In the next round Garforth will meet Tadcaster.

Shadwell were unable to again rout Crossgates as they unexpectedly did a few weeks since, but they made a splendid fight. The match was played at Shadwell. Crossgates made a very disappointing start, Barnell, Sykes, and Spivey being dismissed for eight runs. Their failure was calculated to have a depressing effect, but it seems to have inspired the other members of the team to greater endeavour, and Goodall trounced the bowling without mercy, sending up Fairburn to the tune of 26, and J. Brookes St. 22 (not out), and the innings was not completed until 179 was on the board. Arthur Heaton captured 7 wickets for 59, and Wood had a fine 60, but they showed commendable pluck, and at one time it looked as if a close finish was in store. Heaton made 13, Scott 16, Freeman 23, and Smith 17, but the tail failed to wag, and the total was 108. Walter Sykes, who has filled various roles on the cricket field, came out well as a bowler, capturing five wickets for 25, and while Yates had 3 for 23, and Harvey 3 for 26.

Saxton were never given a better opportunity of beating their friends from Milford, and they are now wondering how they failed to take advantage of it. It was, I understand, a splendidly contested match, and at one period there was every prospect of Saxton winning, but a "rot" set in, and the Milfordians again came out on top. Milford gave a poor batting display, and their score of 43 (Hutchcroft 15) must be taken as a tribute to the skilful handling of the bowling. Saxton tried five trundlers, and Parkinson 5 for 10, T. Sissons 3 for 15, W. Thirkill 2 for 4, and E. Stoker 1 for 9. Saxton, for whom Stoker put on 13, opened fairly well, and 30 was registered for a loss of half the wickets, but Fourteen runs were required to give them victory, but Chilton put a check to any chance they had. He captured five wickets in quick succession, and brought the match to an end without another run being got. It was a fine feat, and is, I fancy, a record for this tournament, although it has before been accomplished in the League. Chilton had six wickets for 2 runs, and E. Atkinson had 3 for 14.

I understand that there was some bother about the finish of the match at Cawood. The homesters, batting first, put on 66 (J. Ward 16 and S. Land 17), and Micklefield replied with 67 for the loss of 21 and A. Smith (10 not out). The players had retired to the pavilion, and the scorers having again been counted, it was discovered that Micklefield had put on 66. Cawood refused to return to the field to finish the game, and the Executive will have to decide the question. A precisely similar case occurred recently at Aberford, and, judging by the decision given in that case, Micklefield will be awarded the match. For Micklefield Tompkinson captured 3 wickets for no runs, Townend had 3 for 15, and Smith 4 for 36. On the other side C. O. Lund's 3 wickets were got for 19, and Stockdale's 2 for 19.

The best match of the round, as I anticipated, was played at Old Manston, and nine records were set up by Crossgates Wes. and Tadcaster. The Calcarians, with many years' experience, are one of the leading clubs in the district, and it was thought that they would prove a little better than their opponents, the majority of whom are young players, but Crossgates were given a splendid chance of overcoming their doughty rivals, and they failed to take it. The homesters made the Tadcaster bowling look poor stuff by sending up 109—the largest score ever put on against the Calcarians, it is said—and Webster, the captain, rattled up 89, while George Umpleby scored 37. Coultas 27, C. Brook 12, and E. H. Riley 11. Tadcaster made a great response, and when three wickets were down about ninety runs had been registered, but the scoring slackened somewhat, and it was not until Herbert and West came together that all hope of completing the game that day was abandoned. When play stopped Tadcaster had 137 for 8 wickets, and Mason made 28, Todd 15, Baker 14, and Garbutt 27. A fairly large crowd gathered to see the finish on Tuesday night, and a victory for Crossgates was anticipated. Herbert and West were in a peculiarly safe stand, but Mason, who never batted better, and West was almost as good. The bowling, which was not well handled, was poor, and the fielding was by no means smart; in fact, some of the Crossgates players were suffering from over-confidence. George Umpleby was put on to bowl after a considerable amount of the deficit had been wiped out, and in his second over West skied the ball. It dropped into a player's hands, and, to the astonishment of the crowd, he failed to hold it. Any chance Crossgates had of winning was gone, for only about a dozen runs were required, and Herbert (45) and West (36) raised the total to 202. It will be seen that 401 runs were scored in the match. Too much credit cannot be given to Herbert and West, because they turned what the majority of people thought would be a defeat into a fine victory.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Barkston and Beamham had a very exciting match, in which the bowlers were in the ascendancy, and the honours went to Beamham by a couple of wickets. Barkston were dismissed for 21, and Dawson claimed six of their wickets for 13, while Shaw had 4 for 7. Beamham lost eight wickets in making 22, and Hardcastle secured 3 wickets for 9, and Wood 4 for 12.—Kirk Deighton, at home, had their record spoilt by South Milford at A. The Milfordians put on 173 (C. Hey 37), and E. Linfoot captured five of their wickets for 18, and H. Oxley had 3 for 29. Kirk Deighton replied with 35 (White 14), and A. Lindley accounted for six wickets for 11 runs, and J. Hill had 2 for 23.—Ulleskelf, at home, defeated Sherburn W.R., and the feature of the game was the score of J. Potter, who contributed 61 to a total of 167. Sherburn, who made 16, was the only other player on the side to get two figures. Cawthorne bowled well for Sherburn, taking 7 wickets for 33, and B. Hey had 2 for 20. Ulleskelf were dismissed for 147 (Cawthorne 16), and J. Potter claimed 3 wickets for 7. W. Bean had 3 for 14, and F. Stronach 2 for 18.

In division 2 Micklefield A., the bottom team, are to be congratulated on their first win, but the handling of the bowling was very helpful. Aberford's score was 72 (Stringer 21 and Griffin 12), and J. Simpson secured five wickets for 20. For a loss of nine wickets Micklefield got the necessary runs, and the finish was very exciting. Simpson scored 27 and Garforth 14 (not out). Abbott had 2 wickets for no runs, Griffin 3 for 15, and Inman 3 for 20. Aberford must give attention to fielding if they are to make headway.

With the downfall of Seacroft A. at Garforth every team in the Competition has been defeated. The 'Crofters, who had won five matches straight off the reel, were dismissed for 41 (Ball 14), and W. Hainsock had five wickets for 18, and F. Hancock five for 23. Garforth replied with 44 for a loss of five wickets (Hemsworth 17, not out, and Kilburn 10). For Seacroft W. Linley captured three wickets for 18 and A. Linley had 2 for 12.—Halton A. were out for bowling records at Barwick on Saturday. Batting first, the winners registered 115 (F. Nicholson 32, H. Heigh 15, Todd 13, not out, J. Guest and N. Sunter 11 each), and T. H. Robshaw secured 3 wickets for 31 and M. Lumb 3 for 22. Barwick's innings did not lag long; indeed, there was a splendid display of bowling and fielding, and the pavilion was reached with only seven wickets down. Longden's seven wickets cost only two runs, while H. Dobson's 3 were got for 7. With practice Barwick will come yet.

ROTHWELL LEAGUE—KIPPAX WIN.

On Saturday afternoon Kippax played Woodlesford, and their opponents scored 156 for 7 wickets, while Woodlesford had to be content with 114. The second teams met at Kippax, and the homesters won easily. They registered 88 (Stoker 29, Cockerham 15, Ballance 14, and Eastwood 10), and Woodlesford were dismissed for 15. G. Crigwell captured 7 wickets for 5, and A. Crigwell had 3 for 10.

ROTHWELL AND WAKEFIELD CUP.

On Saturday the Rothwell A. team visited Carlton to play a match in the first round of the Wakefield and District Cup Competition. The homesters sustained a crushing defeat, being only able to muster 51 to Rothwell's 156. Rothwell's first innings was a splendid one, and although the first wicket fell for 29, a further three runs had only been scored when the third batsman left. Matthew Todd, B. P. Coultas, 15; R. T. Baker, Beaumont, 14; J. W Garbutt, b P Coultas, 47; Pritchard, b E. Clough, 0; H. Raper, b A. Beaumont, 4; G Freer, b G Umpleby, 2; J. T Hebden, c Beaumont, b Umpleby, 3; E W Herbert, not out, 45; F. West, not out, 36; extras, 8; total (for 8 wkts.), 202.

Fall of the fifth wicket the board recorded 86. J. Tiffany was the top scorer with 33, while W. Nelson made 20. W. Ingleby and F. Stringer claimed 19 each, and J. Hobson had 16. When Carlton went in to bat, S. Fallinder soon made short work of the opposition, dismissing eight of the batsmen for 30 runs, while F. Stringer took 2 for 11.

OULTON'S BIG SCORE.

At Oulton on Saturday the first eleven gave E. Green and Sons, Ltd., a hard task. The homesters declared at the fall of the third wicket, the score standing at 172. J. D. Butterick, who made his first appearance with the Oulton eleven this season, rattled up 61, not out. R. Higgins made a half-century before he was caught, while H. J. Butler played up to his usual form, making 34. The visitors put on several bowlers, the best show being made by B. Stead, who captured 3 for 27. The game was drawn, the visitors making 106 for eight wickets, and J. Butterick took 4 wickets for 40, and B. Walker 2 for 29. The second teams met, and Green's team won easily. They scored 212, and Oulton replied with 116, C. Higgins scoring 39, Jones 29, G. Higgins 8, T. Wright 6 (not out), C. Butterick, Whitworth, and Fox 5 each, and Lockwood 3. There were 15 extras.

LANE FOX CUP COMPETITION

COLLINGHAM AND LINTON V. GARFORTH WES. —At Collingham. Scores:—

Garforth Wes.—R. Ward, c Smith, b Emmerson, 5; F. Siberry, b Emmerson, 8; V. Siberry, b Emmerson, 3; H. Goodall, c Tetley, b Gibson, 0; W. Turner, b Gibson, 6; J. Johnson, b Gibson, 11; F. Gent, not out, 14; R. Brownridge, 5 Emmerson, 0; H. Siberry, c Dalby, b Emmerson, 0; J. Bulmer, b Gibson, 5; A. Hewitt, b Smith, 31; extras, 15; total, 91.

Collingham and Linton—R. Smithson, b Ward, 14; F. Whitehead, c V Siberry, b Brownridge, 14; R. Gibson, b Ward, 15; A. E. Smith, b Brownridge, 14; W. Emmerson, c Brownridge, b Gent, 0; A. Young, c H Siberry, b Ward, 7; T. M. Harland, not out, 5; J. W. Dalby, b Brownridge, 1; H. Tweddle, b Ward, 0; M. Dalby, b Brownridge, b Ward, 0; extra, 1; total, 71.

HALTON WES. V. BARWICK.—At Halton. Scores:—

Barwick—F. Lamb, c C Bell, b G O Bell, 18; W Hartley, b C Bell, 3; J. Robshaw, c Crosthwaite, b C E Batty, 5; G. Bowes, b C E Batty, 4; H. Walton, b Murtland, 13; W. Armitage, lbw. b H Wilson, 0; W. Lovett, c Crosthwaite, b C E Batty, 3; T. Robshaw, c C E Batty, b Murtland, 4; J. Pollard, not out, 5; V. Robshaw, lbw, b G O Bell, 0; K. Birch, c J A Popplewell, b G O Bell, 0; extras, 9; total, 64.

Halton Wes.—Kilburn, lbw, b Bowes, 5; J. Wellwell, c and b Bowes, 8; J. A. Popplewell, b Lumb, 5; G D Crosthwaite, not out, 19; G. O Bell, c Hartley, b Lumb, 1; G. E. Batty, b Lumb, b Bowes, 0; Murtland, b Hartley, 8; Stevens, not out, 4; extras 15; total (for 6 wkts.), 65.

GREAT PRESTON V. GARFORTH.—At Great Preston. Scores:—

Garforth—S. Glover, b Green, 18; H Prime, b Thompson, 40; H. Williamson, c Green, 6; W Glover, b R Wigglesworth, 33; T Ballance, lbw, b R Wigglesworth, 0; H. Morley, c Varley, b Green, 15; J Killburn, c Cockerham, b Green, 2; A Firth, run out, 1; E. Birch, b T Wigglesworth, 10; H Pickersgill, c Thompson, b Green, 1; G Reed, not out, 15; extras, 12; total, 153.

Great Preston—T Wigglesworth, run out, 0; Hs. Wigglesworth, c Firth, b Williamson, 17; G Wigglesworth, c Glover, b Pickersgill, 0; R. Wigglesworth, c Glover, b Ballance, 4; W. Cockerham, c and b Ballance, 6; K. Ward, c Ballance, b Pickersgill, 1; Thompson, c Firth, b Ballance, 1; G. Varley, b Williamson, 16; F. Firth, b Reed, 9; J. Green, c Prime, b Reed, 4; J. Cloper, not out, 0; extras, 10; total, 68.

SHADWELL V. CROSSGATES.—At Shadwell. Scores:—

Crossgates—Barnell, c Metcalfe, b Heaton, 2; Sykes, b Wilson, 1; Spivey, c Wilson, b Heaton, 5; Brookes, c Scott, b Wilson, 10; Goodall, c Umpleby, b Heaton, 81; Fairburn, c Umpleby, b Heaton, 26; Craven, c D Wilson, b Heaton, 8; J. Brookes, not out, 22; Harvey, c Umpleby, b Heaton, 9; Wilson, c Heaton, b Wilson, 7; Yates, b Heaton, 0; extras, 5; total, 179.

Shadwell—Heaton, lbw, b Yates, 13; Scott, c Craven, b Sykes, 46; Metcalfe, b Yates, 0; Wilson, b Yates, 4; Freeman, b Harvey, 22; Fairburn, b Sykes, 0; Smith, c Sykes, b Harvey, 17; Hulley, not out, 1; Umpleby, c Yates, b Harvey, 0; Peel, b Sykes, 0; Mills, b Sykes, 0; extra, 1; total, 108.

SAXTON V. SOUTH MILFORD.—At Saxton. Scores:—

South Milford—R. Sutton, c and b Sissons, 6; Metcalfe, b Richardson, 0; E. Atkinson, c R Firn, b Sissons, 3; A. Atkinson, b Richardson, 1; H. Chilton, c Richardson, b Sissons, 6; Hutchcroft, c Richardson, b T. Sissons, 15; Richardson, 2; Heselgrave, c Richardson, b P. Lawn, 0; C. Sutton, c W. Firn, b P Lawn, 1; A. Lindley, b Stoker, 3; N. Hanson, not out, 0; extras, 5; total, 43.

Saxton—E. Stoker, c Hutchcroft, b Atkinson, 13; J. Firn, b Atkinson, 5; W. Firn, b Lindley, 3; W. Thirkill, c C. Sutton, b Atkinson, 6; T. Richardson, not out, 2; P. Lawn, bwb, b Chilton, 11; T. Sissons, b Chilton, 0; S. Knowles, b Chilton, 0; R. Firn, st Sutton, b Chilton, 0; A. Parker, c Lindley, b Chilton, 0; H. Hawkesby, st Sutton, b Chilton, 0; total, 39.

CAWOOD V. MICKLEFIELD.—At Cawood. Scores:—

Cawood—C. O. Lund, c Wallis, b Smith, 4; J. Ward, c Smith, b Townend, 16; S. Lund, b Smith, 17; W. Barker, b Smith, 1; H. Lund, b Townend, 0; J. Robson, bwb, b Stockdale, 0; Mr. Smith, 3; C. Jackson, run out, 2; F. Ward, b Townend, 0; F. Thompson, b Tomkinson, 6; R. Lupton, b Tomkinson, 0; extras, 8; total, 66.

Micklefield—G. Tomlinson, lbw, b C. O. Lund, 9; A. Godber, b C. O. Lund, 8; A. Stone, hit wkt, b C. O. Lund, 21; A. Smith, not out, 10; W. Wallis, b Robson, 0; Stockdale, c J. H. Townend, b Stockdale, 1; S. Taylor, not out, 5; extras, 3; total (for 5 wkts.), 66.

CROSSGATES WES. V. TADCASTER.—At Old Manston. Scores:—

Crossgates Wes.—C. Brook, run out, 12; P. C. Binns, b Baker, 6; D. Umpleby, b Baker, 0; G. Umpleby, c Grimston, b Herbert, 37; E. Webster, c Baker, b Freer, 89; E. Clough, b Herbert, 1; E. Holliday, c Grimston, b Raper, 11; P. Coultas, b Freer, 27; A. Beaumont, b West, 2; A. Beaumont, b Freer, 0; A. Withy, not out, 1; extras, 12; total, 199.

Tadcaster—J. F. Mason, b P Coultas, 28; H. Todd, b P. Coultas, 15; R. T. Baker, b Beaumont, 14; J W Garbutt, b P Coultas, 47; Pritchard, b E. Clough, 0; H. Raper, b A. Beaumont, 4; G Freer, b G Umpleby, 2; J T Hebden, c Beaumont, b Umpleby, 3; E W Herbert, not out, 45; F. West, not out, 36; extras, 8; total (for 8 wkts.), 202.

SEACROFT V. SWILLINGTON PARK.—At Seacroft. Scores:—

Swillington Park—W McFarlane, b G Stead, 6; A Jackson, b D Burton, 0; Ed. Gummerson, c and b D. Burton, 12; W. Tiffany, run out, 8; T. Firth, st Atack, b Burton, 0; H Brittlebank, b J W Pickersgill, 1; T. Jackson, st Atack, b Burton, 6; W. Somers, run out, 1; E Gummerson, not out, 1; F. Lister, b J W Pickersgill, 0; H. Tiffany, b J. W. Pickersgill, 2; extras, 6; total, 43.

Seacroft—D. Burton, c and b McFarlane, 11; G. Stead, not out, 27; T. Toft, not out, 5; extra, 1; total (for 1 wkt.), 44.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	5	4	1	0	8
South Milford	5	4	1	0	8
Saxton	5	2	3	0	4
Cawood	5	2	3	0	4
Church Fenton Syc.	5	1	3	1	3
Church Fenton	4	1	3	0	2

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Micklefield	5	4	1	0	8
Seacroft	5	4	1	0	8
Garforth	5	4	1	0	8
Halton	5	3	2	0	4
Barwick	5	1	4	0	2
Great Preston	5	0	5	0	0

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wes.	5	4	1	0	8
Crossgates	5	3	2	0	6
Shadwell	5	3	2	0	6
Crossgates Wes.	5	2	3	0	4
Whitkirk	5	2	3	0	4
Collingham	5	0	5	0	0

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A	6	4	0	2	10
Kirk Deighton	6	4	2	0	8
Ulleskelf	6	4	2	0	8
Bramham	6	3	3	0	6
South Milford A.	5	3	2	0	6
Sherburn W.R.	6	2	4	0	4
Barkston Ash	6	1	5	0	2

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft A.	6	5	1	0	10
Garforth A.	6	5	1	0	10
Halton A.	6	5	1	0	10
Great Preston A	6	3	3	0	6
Aberford	6	2	4	0	4
Barwick	6	1	5	0	2
Micklefield A.	6	1	5	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wes.	5	4	1	0	8
Crossgates Wes. A	5	3	2	0	6
Crossgates A.	5	3	2	0	6
Swillington and Colton	5	3	2	0	6
Whitkirk A	5	2	3	0	4
Halton Wes. A	5	0	5	0	0

E. D. Pawson, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

SENIOR LEAGUE

Saxton v. Church Fenton—Messrs R. Firn (Cawood) and J. Limbert (Micklefield).

South Milford v. Cawood. Messrs T. Ambler (Church Fenton) and T. Carroll (Tadcaster).

Tadcaster v. Church Fenton Sycamore. Messrs H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton) and J. Lupton (South Milford).

Halton v. Barwick. Messrs J. Johnson (Seacroft), and H. Johnson (Crossgates).

Great Preston v. Micklefield. Messrs A. Gascoigne (Kippax) and H. Jackson (Seacroft).

Seacroft v. Garforth. Messrs J. Thompson (Great Preston) and C. Pleasants (Halton Wes.).

Halton Wes. v. Crossgates. Messrs T. Mathers (Great Preston) and T. Crosland (Micklefield).

Shadwell v. Collingham. Messrs J. L. Kitching (Leeds) and W. Crosland (Barwick).

Whitkirk v. Crossgates Wes. Messrs C. Atack (Micklefield) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Kirk Deighton v. Tadcaster A. Messrs H. Watson (Barkston Ash), and E. Smith (Ulleskelf).

Bramham v. South Milford A. Messrs J. D. Snowden (Wetherby) and H. Irish (Wetherby).

Ulleskelf v. Barkston Ash. Messrs H. Bell (Saxton) and C. Thornton (Barkston Ash).

Garforth A. v. Seacroft A. Messrs S. H. Ecclestone (Crossgates Wes.) and G. C. Earnshaw (Oulton).

Micklefield A. v. Halton. Messrs A. Birch (Garforth) and A. Bailey (Garforth).

Barwick A. v. Seacroft A. Messrs T. P. Spivey (Crossgates) and F. Hebden (Garforth).

Crossgates A. v. Halton Wes. A. Messrs J. Burton (Seacroft) and J. W. Fallingham (Leeds).

Swillington and Colton v. Garforth Wes. Messrs T. Blackburn (Great Preston) and F. Pickersgill (Seacroft).

Crossgates Wes. A. v. Whitkirk A. Messrs E. Levitt (Swillington and Colton) and W. Nicholson (Halton).

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

BRAMHAM V. BARKSTON ASH.—At Bramham. Scores:—Barkston Ash—F. Hills, 5; A. Lazenby (not out), 2; H. Hardcastle o, J. White o, H. Wood 2, W. Liddle o, F. Greenwood 2, A Bateson 2, A. Smith (not out) 2, D. White o, extra, 1; total, 21. Bramham—E. Case 2, F. Gibbons 3, A. Stockdale 4, H. Tindall o, J. Dawson 3, G. Shaw o, R. Hebron 2, G. Brown (not out) 5, H. Shaw 3, R. Eastwood (not out) o; extra, 1; total (for 8 wkts.), 22.

ULLESKELF V. SHERBURN WHITE ROSE.—At Ulleskelf. Scores:—Ulleskelf, J. Potter 61, F. Stronach 16, R. Bean o, N. Ward 1, J. Sykes o, W. Bean 1, G. Lacey 3, F. Smith o, B. Varey o, T. Tenstead (not out) o, extras, 13; total, 101. Sherburn W.R.—B. Hey o, L. Hester 3, W. Swift 5, E. Townend 4, H. Cawthorne (not out) 16, Douglas o, Cook 2, Gill 0; total, 47.

KIRK DEIGHTON V. SOUTH MILFORD A.—At Kirk Deighton. Scores:—South Milford A.—Bassett 2, C Hey 37, A Chilton 7, L. Dutter o, F. Crawford 5, A. Lindley 3, J. Hill 6, D. Terry 4, Stalbarian 1, Wise (not out), 1, W Lindley o, extras, 6; total, 72. Kirk Deighton—F. Iley o, extras, 6; total, 72. Nicholson o, J. Oxley o, T. Beasley 4, E. Linfoot 4, A. Swann o, T. H. Raine 6, R. Nicholson o, G. White 14, C. Oxley 2, H. Oxley 3, J Beasley (not out) 1, extra, 1; total, 35.

ABERFORD V. MICKLEFIELD A.—At Aberford. Scores:—Aberford—J. Blaidey 3, H. Abbott 3, J. Inman 2, O. Griffin 12, G. Connell 4, A Lupton 3, A. Pratt (not out) o, A. Beaton 8, A. Swinger 21, B. Pickles o, J. Coggins 8, extras, 8, total, 72. (Micklefield A.—J. Simpson 27, P. N. Butler, not out, 22; extras, 5; total (for 3 wkts.), 172. Declared. E. Green and Sons—B. Stead, c H. J. Butler, b Butterick, 4; G. Mabson, c Walker, b Butterick, 7; J. Denton, c Cliff. Higgins, b Butterick, 16; W. Ough, bw, b Waller, o; A. Hazal, b Walker, 1; G. Lockwood, c and b Butterick, 2; C. Wilcock, c Cliff Higgins, b R. Higgins, 30; F. Dey, not out, 26; A. Smith, b Jackson, o; F. Lee, not out, 13; extras, 7; total (for 8 wkts.), 160.

CROSSGATES A. V. WADE AND CO.—At Crossgates. Scores:—Wade and Co.—W. Wade, b Walker, 7; B. Farrow, b Linley, o; E. Holmes, b Walker, 3; W. Wade, c Wilkinson, b Linley, 2; F. Newby, bw, b Linley, 3; F. Aspin, b Turner, 8; A. Farrow, c Whiting, b Linley, 3; Schofield, b Turner, 5; J. Peck, b Linley, 3; W. Peck, c Whiting, b Turner, 5; Blaize, not out, 4; extras, 7; total, 53. Crossgates A.—W. Wilkinson, c Wade, b Farrow, 6; H. Linley, c W. Peck, b J. Peck, 10; H. Holliday, c Peck, b Farrow, 10; C. Whiting, c Wade, b Farrow, 2; H. Smith, bw, b Farrow, 4; Reg Davis, c Wade, b Peck, o; W. Walker, b Peck, 2; W. Glover, b Farrow, 5; A. Curtis, b Farrow, o; A. Turner, not out, 6; W. Slater, c and b Farrow, o; extra, 1; total, 48.

WAKEFIELD AND DISTRICT CUP.

ROTHWELL A V. CARLTON A.—At Carlton. Scores:—Rothwell—W Nelson 20, W. Charlesworth 6, A. Tiffany 33, F. Brown 2, G. Ingleby 8, J. Paley 19, F. Stringer (not out) 19, E. Tiffany 7, J. Hobson 16, W. Parish 8, S. Fallciner o, extras, 24; total, 156. Carlton—W. Newton o, H. Hardwick 8, W. Fox 8, W. Asbton 5, S. Nelson 1, J. Ashcroft 2, A. Gill (not out) 1, W. Baxter 2, extras, 2; total, 11.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY Outwood v. Carlton. Messrs Tate and Lumb. Kippax v. Robin Hood. Messrs Newton and Morley.

Rothwell v. Oulton. Messrs Britton and Booth. Stanley v. Woodlesford. Messrs Tattersall and Fox.

ROUNDHAY

AVIATION CENTRE.—Negotiations are practically completed for the conversion of the Olympia Skating Rink in Roundhay, into an aeroplane factory. The lessees will be the Blackburn Aeroplane Company, who are to take the building on a lease of several years. There has been some talk that the surrounding land might be used as a school for aviation, but it is doubtful if it is spacious enough for that purpose. The Olympia, of course, was built during the roller skating boom, and the flag was kept flying there long after the other rinks had closed their doors. Latterly the chief form of attraction has been periodical boxing shows.

ROTHWELL LEAGUE.

KIPPAX A. V. WOODLESFORD A.—At Kippax. Scores:—Kippax—R Stoker 29, A. Ballance 14, H. Batt 1, G. Crigwell 2, L. Willi

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
MILLER'S NORTH OF LEEDS
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

LOVE'S CROSS ROADS.

By MRS. L. T. MEADE

Author of "The Orchid Room," "The Medicine Lady," "From the Hand of the Hunter," "His Masonic," "Linda, Wife Hater," &c.

CHAPTER XXII.

That evening, Miss Patricia retired early to bed; that is, she went to her room. She sat for a long time lost in thought. Then she went to her writing-table and wrote a short note to Paul Colthurst.

"My dear Paul,—I am going to London by an early train in the morning, but hope to be back again in the evening, so it isn't good-bye. I am going on your business, want you to have a talk with Pamela, and I want you to forbid her to allow a man who calls himself Silas to come into the grounds until after to-morrow.—Your affectionate old friend,

"PATRICIA RANSOME."

"P.S.—Every word of this letter is urgent, and is for yourself alone."

Miss Patricia laid the letter where it could be found, and very early in the morning got on her neat dress, hat, and jacket, and started for London. She arrived at Victoria about nine o'clock. This was no time to be scrupulous with regard to the saving of money. She took a taxicab, therefore, to No. 10, James-street, Russell-square. The Perkinses, the Mac-shalls, and the Cashalls had just finished breakfast when Miss Patricia's taxicab drew up at the door. Miss Hattie Luck made an exclamation from her place opposite to the window.

"Why, if that isn't dear Miss Ransome come back again!" she cried.

Mr. Oswald was in the act of putting a cup of coffee to his lips. He did not know why, but he spilt a little of it. He had no apparent reason to feel uncomfortable, but Miss Patricia was the last person he wanted to see at that moment. He bent his head, therefore, across the table, and began to speak to Mr. Perkins.

"Shall we all go upstairs and have a good time listening to your delightful musical entertainment?" he said.

"With pleasure," said Mr. Perkins, wiping his mouth with his handkerchief and rising.

"My dear, have you finished breakfast?" said Oswald, turning to his wife. "Tom, are you ready? Laura, are you ready? Miss Patricia Ransome will require fresh coffee, Miss Hattie. What you have given the rest of us is far and away too weak for a grand lady who has been residing at Connop Grange. We needn't wait, however, while she is having her breakfast. Perkins, go along at once, and waste no time, Perkins; I am really interested in that last composition of yours. I felt a tingling in the tips of my toes all night after hearing it; I did, truly."

"Miss Patricia is entering the dining-room, and a minute or two later Oswald left the house. He did not join the Perkinses in their musical entertainment. The quartette was shouted in harsh and tuneless peals through the house, that was without music, and he affected to pity it. Mrs. Oswald wondered what had become of her husband.

As a matter of fact, Oswald had gone straight down to Lush. He wanted to get there before Miss Patricia's return. He must get rid of Silas Lake. Miss Patricia was right. The man was not wicked enough for his purpose.

It was a glorious day in summer. He slouched his hat well over his eyes. He did not want any of the guests from Connop Grange to recognise him. Luke had informed him that he was staying at Mrs. Martin's. He inquired for the house, and arrived at her house about one o'clock. She was preparing a simple dinner for her children, and started when his tall presence and ungainly figure filled up the doorway.

"What can I do for you, sir?" she said, dropping a curtsey.

"I want to speak to a man who I am given to understand lodges in your house. He calls himself Silas."

"Oh!" said Mrs. Martin. "Silas——"

"Had man!" said little Nance, crouching up against her mother as she spoke.

"He came in last night," said Mrs. Martin, "and ate three big bloaters, and I never saw man eat, and then went out, and I haven't seen anything of him since. I don't know that I am sorry altogether about him. He hasn't paid me for three days; so, sir, if he's a friend of yours, perhaps you'd let me have a few shillings for the owner."

"I'll do nothing of the kind. He isn't a friend of mine. Can you give me anything to recognise him by? Like had informed him that he was staying at Mrs. Martin's. He

"Naturally," said Oswald. "We're all on the side where our bread is buttered."

"I have come here to tell you that the sooner you remove a person of the name of Silas from the neighbourhood of Connop Grange, the better for yourself. There's a tramp who calls himself Silas living at present in a cottage at Lush. He has taken it into his head to frequent the Grange, and, in particular, tries to excite the compassion of my dear young friend, Pamela Lennox. Her heart is so kind that anyone who is in trouble appeals to it. The man is a bad man, and a tool of yours, and I will bim to go."

"A tool of mine!" murmured Oswald. "A person called Silas, living at Lush, a tool of mine! You certainly talk nonsense."

"On the contrary, I talk the truth; there is no doubt whatever on the subject. The man must go. I believe you have him there for mischief. If mischief arises, I am in a position to hold you responsible, Mr. Oswald—into hot water. The man has confessed that he is employed by someone who pays him well. He has confessed that he has something to do, and that when it is done he will be paid much better. In fact, for a man in his position he will be rich for the remainder of his days. He made that confession to Miss Pamela Lennox, and to prove to my head that you might be interested in him; so last night I met him alone, and asked him if he knew you."

"And what did he say?" asked Oswald.

"He said, 'Yes'; he said 'Yes,' without uttering the single word. I said it in the twinkling light of his eyes, in his trembling lips, by the queer green-grey colour which spread over his face. He said it in his abject terror. He said it because the agony of it deprived him of speech. Mr. Oswald, you had better remove that man; and I wish to tell you that the marriage of Pamela Lennox and Peter Colthurst is being arranged for the 25th of August. Remove that man as quickly as you can, Mr. Oswald. He is either too wicked or not wicked enough for your purpose. But if he attempts to do any injury to those who are dearer than life to me, I shall kill what I know, and you, sir, will be in a most awkward position."

"Really, Miss Patricia, really! You are quite past learning. You dare to accuse me, because a man, a disreputable man, has chosen to go and live at Lush, and because that man has chosen to haunt the grounds of the Grange, and because when you speak to him he looks rather frightened. And the man Thomas Oswald in the world! And if he is such a poor coward, would he not get into a fright when you spoke to him?"

"You are the man he fears, there is no doubt on that point," said Miss Patricia, "and the sooner you get him away the better it will be for you."

"I know nothing about him; I am not going to interfere with him. A nice state of things the world would come to if I were to be imposed upon and suspected on account of every tramp who comes to stay for a short time in a quiet village."

"Well, please yourself. I thought it was only right to give you warning. I am going back now to enjoy Miss Hattie's good coffee."

Miss Patricia entered the dining-room, and a minute or two later Oswald left the house. He did not join the Perkinses in their musical entertainment. The quartette was shouted in harsh and tuneless peals through the house, that was without music, and he affected to pity it. Mrs. Oswald wondered what had become of her husband.

As a matter of fact, Oswald had gone straight down to Lush. He wanted to get there before Miss Patricia's return. He must get rid of Silas Lake. Miss Patricia was right. The man was not wicked enough for his purpose.

It was a glorious day in summer. He slouched his hat well over his eyes. He did not want any of the guests from Connop Grange to recognise him. Luke had informed him that he was staying at Mrs. Martin's. He inquired for the house, and arrived at her house about one o'clock. She was preparing a simple dinner for her children, and started when his tall presence and ungainly figure filled up the doorway.

"What can I do for you, sir?" she said, dropping a curtsey.

"I want to speak to a man who I am given to understand lodges in your house. He calls himself Silas."

"Oh!" said Mrs. Martin. "Silas——"

"Had man!" said little Nance, crouching up against her mother as she spoke.

"He came in last night," said Mrs. Martin, "and ate three big bloaters, and I never saw man eat, and then went out, and I haven't seen anything of him since. I don't know that I am sorry altogether about him. He hasn't paid me for three days; so, sir, if he's a friend of yours, perhaps you'd let me have a few shillings for the owner."

"I'll do nothing of the kind. He isn't a friend of mine. Can you give me anything to recognise him by? I will pay for my own food."

As Oswald spoke he flung himself into a straw armchair which was the stand not far from the hearth. Nance immediately began to cry.

"Mother had man! 'Nother had man!" she said, gazing up with terrified blue eyes at her mother.

"What a horrid little child! Send her out of the room," said Oswald, who felt in a raging passion.

"No, sir," said Mrs. Martin; "it's yet who'll go out. This house is my house, and this child is my child, and the child has got to be where I can read aright where wickedness is concerned. She shan't be frighted in her mother's house, she shan't. You go out, sir, or I will give you no food. I don't want your money, I don't want to see you or your friend again."

"You'll suffer for this, my good woman. A day will come when my position at Lush will be very different from what it is now. A day will come when you will scrape the ground when you see me coming, and then laughed for joy.

"Free! Free!" he said to himself, and he rushed into the street, pulled up his shirt sleeves, and plunged his hands into the running water.

"Now I feel clean, but not clean enough," he murmured. "I guess I'll undress and take a wash all over." He spoke to Pamela.

He removed his clothes, and got into the stream and bathed. Then he dried himself, sitting in the sun afterwards to dry his clothes again, and walked slowly back in the direction of Mrs. Martin's cottage.

Mrs. Martin had just returned. Silas pushed in his head.

"Where be the young 'un?" he said.

"I don't you fret about her. We don't want the likes of you round here."

"Where be the young 'un?"

"Nay, kiddy, come along," said the mother.

Silas stood trembling by the door. Little Nance entered from the inner room. She looked at Silas. Silas had picked a quantity of forget-me-nots. He held them out to the child.

"Pretty, pretty! Clean, clean!" he said.

"Clean! Pretty!" answered Nance, and she ran willingly up to the man and held out her little hands for the flowers.

"I'll kiss on, if on 'Alex'" said little Nance.

"Heaven bless the child!" exclaimed Silas. Tears rushed to his eyes.

"Whatever has come to you, man?" exclaimed Mrs. Martin.

"I know what's come to me!" he answered. "I felt it now I test it by that young 'un o' yourn. She couldn't touch me when I was sin soiled; but I am clean, and she lets me speak to her. I'm goin' along to Connop Grange. There's summat I want to say there. Here's yer three shillin'. Good bye."

He laid the money on the table and left the house.

Silas, after leaving Mrs. Martin's cottage, walked like a man who had most truly received a fresh lease of life. Nothing mattered any more—neither life nor death mattered. He was clean. He had been so terribly soiled by sin, so sunk in iniquity, that his presence state of bliss brought that rapture which so high and dry above mere earthly things. He was a poor, unkempt, untaught creature but at that moment he was incapable of self fishness. He had no considerations for personal danger. He wanted to do what was right. It would do it at once. As for himself, neither life nor death mattered.

He reached the wide gates which led to the Grange, and as the lodge-keeper happened to be away, and had left her eldest little girl—bonny, fair-haired maid-of about ten years old—in charge of the lodge, Silas feared no rebuff here, although the fact that Mr Pamela had allowed him to come in and wal about under the trees and by the runnin stream, and along the borders of the lake, ha made him more or less certain of a welcome He called out, and the little girl ran quit willingly to open the gates. Now, indeed, h was all right. It did not matter in the leas to him how he looked. He wanted to se Pamela; he wanted to tell her the simpl truth; afterwards—but there was no room in his heart for afterwards.

Now it so happened that although things had gone with wonderful prosperity for Silas up to the present moment, he was not to have matters all his own way even in such an important hour as chosen to confess. Paul Colthurst had received Miss Patricia's letter, and it had filled him with considerable uneasiness. He was, as a rule, given to be afraid of nothing. He resolved, however, not even to tell his wife of the contents of the letter. He mentioned at breakfast that Miss Patricia had gone to London on some private business of her own, and would be back in the evening. The young people, Peter and Pamela, both expressed regret at her absence. Mrs. Colthurst said nothing. She meant to take our dear friend for a long drive in the motor-car this morning."

"Well, mums," remarked Pamela, "that surely can be put off until to-morrow."

"My darling, it must be put off, as she is not here."

"I should like Patricia to say us a very long visit," said Colthurst, looking at his wife.

"Certainly, dear Paul," replied Mrs. Colthurst. "The longer the better, as far as I am concerned."

"Oh, mother," exclaimed Pamela, "do let the sweet creature stay here until after I am married, then she shall come and stay with Peter and me at Brabazon Hall. I do love her very much. There is something so very sweet and unworldly about her. Don't you love her, Peter, don't you?"

"I do indeed," replied Peter. "I have an extraordinary sensation when I am with her —as though I had known her very well indeed long ago. Of course, I did know her, didn't I, father?"

"Yes, my boy," replied Paul.

"She talked to us about it, don't you remember, Peter?" exclaimed Pamela. "But she begged of us not to speak of it. I wonder why!"

"As a matter of fact," said Paul, bringing his hands words with some difficulty, "there was a time when she looked after you, Peter, and then I took you to live altogether with me. I think she felt the parting from you very terribly."

(To be continued).

VILLAGE LIFE.

Here is a sample of Mrs. Horace Iremlett's style, from "Curing Christopher" (John Lane):

"The village of Uppington was founded on one side by Thomas, and on the three others by London suburbs; but Uppington itself was not a suburb, and its inhabitants were anything and everything but suburban. The shopping centre consisted of one long street, along which the electric trams ran with an audacity that even after four or five years daily surprised and pained the older inhabitants.

"It was the custom of Uppington ladies to shop there from eleven to one every morning, in the interests of their housekeeping. The financial operations might not be extensive, and not infrequently were briefly entered in the grocer's weekly book as 'one tin pine chunks, 4½d.,' the tradesmen having earlier in the morning collected their orders from the ladies' own lips, the mistress herself in art pinafore. But eleven o'clock was the appointed time for shopping, and as everyone was bent on the same errand, it had become a recognised social event, with its own rules of precedence and etiquette.

"You might—indeed should—wear old clothes in the morning. A knitted coat and skirt, perhaps, or a cotton skirt, with a hat you had obviously—the more obviously the better —trimmed yourself, was a scheme of dress that evinced right feeling. Silk underskirts and white kid gloves were the outward and visible sign of the bounder—at the outset. You, however, were not left long to bound outside if surreptitious inquiries as to the source of her affluence were found satisfactory; that they were so often not so perhaps accounted for the Uppington prejudice in favour of simple attire."

PUTTING HIM WISE.

"I feel as though I have known you always," he said.

"You oughtn't to tell girls that you feel you have known them always," she said. "It isn't complimentary. You ought to express sorrow that they are so difficult to know, and play the card that you hope, by great humility and kindness, one day to know them."—"Otherwise Phyllis," by Meredith Nicholson (Constable).

THE LADIES' COLUMN.

SOME CLEANING HINTS.

THE GAS FITTINGS.

When cleaning brass gas or electric light fittings, never use metal polish, as this spoils the lacquer. If they are very dirty, wash with weak vinegar and water. Rub dry with a soft duster, and polish with a dry leather. If brass fittings are rubbed occasionally with a soft duster slightly moistened with salad oil, and then with a dry duster, no further cleaning will be necessary, and they will always keep bright.

FOR WHITE PAINT.

A simple and effective way to clean white paint that is not very dirty is to dip a piece of clean damp flannel in a little whitening and rub over the surface lightly. It will leave the paint remarkably clean and new-looking.

WASHING CHAMOIS LEATHER.

In washing anything made of chamois leather, use warm water, with a little ammonia in it. Wash by rubbing between the fingers, but do not wring. Press it between the palms of the hands, and hang before the fire or in the hot sun, to dry quickly, pulling it into shape often while it is drying, to prevent its drying hard and stiff. When dry, it can be softened by rubbing softly with both hands.

TO MAKE WINDOW GLASS SHINE.

If your window glass is lacking in brilliancy, clean it with a liquid paste made of alcohol and whitening. A little of this mixture will remove specks and impart a high lustre to the glass.

CARE OF THE CELLAR.

Open the cellar windows, and let in all the fresh air possible. After the cellar is well aired, give the walls a coat of whitewash, and the floor a great purifier. To make a solution for a cellar wall, take one gallon of unslacked lime and slack with hot water; then add one-quarter pound of cream; add two tablespoonfuls of salt to the mixture, and apply to the wall with a whitewash brush. Let it dry thoroughly, and apply a second coat. It will harden and be almost as solid as cement. Put a little lime in the cellar to keep it dry, renewing as occasion demands.

A GOOD FURNITURE POLISH.

A good furniture polish, which is black and which will remain soft in the container, is made as follows: Three ounces of wax, two ounces of varnish, and six ounces of water are heated together, and when thoroughly mixed add four ounces of boiled oil and five ounces of turpentine. This should be poured in wide-mouth containers, where it will keep indefinitely.

CARE OF HAIR BROOMS.

Hair brooms last longer if they are kept clean. They are easily cleaned on washing-day after the last lot of clothes has been taken from the copper. Some of the water left over should be used by the addition of clear, cold water, and the broom shaken up and down in it until all the dirt is removed. The broom should be left long in the water. When lifted from the water, it should be rinsed in cold water, and then shaken well. Shake as much as dry as possible, it should be stood in a dry place with the head upwards until it is quite dry. The handle should be scrubbed each time the broom is washed.

DARK ROOMS.

Dark rooms bring depression of spirits, imparting a sense of confinement, of isolation, of powerlessness, which is chilling to energy and quenching to hope. Even in a cellar, and in a gloomy house, where walls and furniture are dingy and brown, you have but to let in the sunshine, to open wide the window, let light stream in, and gloom vanishes, and care and sadness flee.

REVIVING LEATHER FURNITURE.

Wash the leather as well as the framework with clear, lukewarm water, and dry it with a soft linen cloth. When quite dry, apply a little furniture polish to the framework and polish it vigorously. When the frame is done, apply a little furniture polish to the leather and rub it lightly until the surface is uniformly bright.

When furniture is upholstered with fabric, it needs a special treatment. Remove the dust by beating the furniture down with a light cane or fine-pipe, and then brushing the surface with a furniture brush, or, better still, go over the upholstered parts with a vacuum cleaner. When this has been done, dip a large sponge into warm water to which has been added a little ammonia. Squeeze the sponge as dry as possible, and lightly rub the cushioned parts of the furniture. Rinse and dry the sponge very often. It is surprising what a lot of dirt will be absorbed by a sponge that is almost dry.

CLEANING PAINT AND VARNISH.

Here is a painter's recipe for cleaning paint and all varnished surfaces: Take a tablespoonful of soda, add a teaspoonful of salts of tartar to half a bucketful of warm water, wash the paint with a rag dipped in this, using no soap, and it will remove every speck of dirt. Rinse in clear warm water, and dry with a chamois.

VARNISHED PAPER.

The varnished wallpaper in a kitchen gets very dirty. When spring-cleaning time comes, clean it in the following way: Add two tablespoonfuls of ammonia to half a bucketful of water, and wash the walls down with a flannel dipped in this. Then take half a bucketful of clean, fresh water, add to it two tablespoonfuls of turpentine, and wash the walls a second time with this, wiping as dry as possible afterwards. This gives the paper a nice polish.

OILED DUSTERS.

Take a piece of soft material and soak it in paraffin, wring it out, and hang it in the air to dry. It is then ready for use. There will be no unpleasant odour, and you will find that the dust will be picked up effectively, and gives a brilliant polish to mirrors and gas globes, if you rub them afterwards with a soft rubber.

TO REVIVE THE COLOURS OF CARPETS.

After the carpets have been beaten in the open air, and relaid, wipe over the surface with a clean flannel that has been wrung out of warm water softened by the addition of a tablespoonful of liquid ammonia to a pint. As soon as the flannel is soiled, rinse it and, when the whole carpet has been treated, set the window and doors to get a draught and avoid walking over the carpet until it is quite dry.

PREVENTING MOULD ON BOOKS.

An effective way to prevent books from becoming musty and possibly mouldy in moist weather is to place a few drops of oil of lavender and Canadian balsam in a back corner of each shelf. This will not injure the bindings of leather books as sulphur compounds do, but helps preserve the bindings. The two substances are easily obtained.

LEEDS, SKYRAC & MORLEY SAVINGS BANK
ESTABLISHED 1818. CERTIFIED UNDER ACT OF PARLIAMENT.
Head Office: No. 30, Bond Street, Leeds.
BRANCH OFFICES:
148, MEADOW LANE. 183, NORTH STREET.
261, HUNSLET ROAD 2, ARMLEY ROAD.
All Open Daily, 10 to 3 (Saturdays, 10 to 1), and on Saturday Evenings, 6 to 8.
GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT.
Sums from 3d. upwards received.
Interest 2½ per cent. on every complete 10/-
INVESTMENT DEPARTMENT.
Sums from £5 to £500 received.
Interest 3 per cent., clear of Income Tax.
HOME SAFES Issued Free of Charge. No Charge made for Bank Books.
Secretary and Actuary . THOMAS ROBINSON, A.C.A.

DISTRICT BREVITIES.

Tadcaster is quite up-to-date. The band plays selections of music in the park.

• • •

Garforth is at a standstill. No building has taken place in it for a long time. Why?

• • •

In a workshop at Wetherby, the other day a king fisher was caught, but it was set at liberty.

• • •

Have Tadcaster District Council given up the idea of making an improvement at Sherburn Cross.

• • •

The Wetherby Board of Guardians have made £5 14s. profit by the keeping of three pigs for fourteen weeks.

• • •

Many people are wondering why Seacroft is not included in the Crossgates and Roundhay town-planning scheme.

• • •

The attendance at the meeting of Tadcaster Guardians on Monday was small. Interest in the work seems to be waning.

• • •

Some Wetherby folks are still grumbling because they have no proper swimming bath. Why not agitate until one is obtained?

• • •

The Wetherby Rural District Council have decided to make closing orders in relation to 19 houses at Spofforth and three at Wetherby.

• • •

Mr G. M. Abbey, the new Chairman of Oulton District Education Committee, is a resident of Oulton, and a member of the Parish Council.

• • •

Councillor W. Lunn, who has been re-elected vice-chairman of Rothwell Education Committee, is the prospective Labour candidate for Holmfirth.

• • •

The magistrates at Selby Petty Sessions on Monday were the Rev. B. Hemsworth (Chairman), Mr M. Scott, Mr W N Cheesman, and Mr H. Pulleine.

• • •

It should be noticed that Sherburn Show is on Monday, July 13th, and it should attract a large crowd from the district. Poultry classes are again included.

• • •

Will the Wesleyan Methodists return to old methods and start open-air preaching again? At Rothwell this was advocated. Cannot a church become too respectable?

• • •

Mr John Butterick has again been elected Chairman of Rothwell Education Committee. He has for many years been one of the leading educationists in the district.

• • •

Rather costly! Thomas Carr, of Selby, who travelled from Doncaster to the Abbey Town in a first-class carriage with a third-class ticket has had a fine of 20s. and costs to pay.

• • •

A number of houses are to be closed at Rothwell, and Mr Lunn argues that provision should be made for the people who will have to leave their dwellings. Will the Council build houses?

• • •

Lofthouse Park, which was at one time the residence of one of the Charlesworths, was turned into a pleasure resort, but it has been a failure, and has been sold. What will be done with it now?

• • •

A nursing scheme for Garforth does not seem likely unless prominent residents take it up. It is probable that were another attempt made it would receive the support of the working-classes.

• • •

The Barkston Ash Bowling Association's individual merit competition takes place at Garforth on Saturday, July 4th, and the final rounds will be played at Garforth on July 6th.

• • •

Why is there so much infectious disease in Rothwell district? Are the parents taking proper precautions to prevent children being infected. Carelessness is often the prime cause of disease being spread.

• • •

Dear coal! Ann Wilkinson, married woman, East Rigton, was fined 1s. and costs for stealing four-pennyworth of coal, tipped in a field by the Wetherby Rural District Council for the use of their road rollers.

• • •

Tadcaster Guardians have advertised repeatedly for an assistant and laundress at the workhouse, but they have not got one yet. Yet there must be many women qualified for the position out of employment.

• • •

After Tadcaster! The Wharfedale Guardians have rejected by a large majority a motion in favour of a resolution urging an increase of the old-age pension maximum to 7s. 6d., and the reduction of the age limit to 65 years.

• • •

A woman charged with being "d. and d." in Roundhay Road, appeared before the magistrates. "I think you twisted my arm," said she to a constable. "I didn't," was the reply. "Yes, you did, dear," was the affectionate assertion.

• • •

In Barkston Ash villages there should be an open-window crusade. It is needed. "To fight consumption," says a doctor, "you must eradicate the practice which ladies have of drawing curtains and closing windows, thus shutting out the greatest blessings given them—sunlight and fresh air."

• • •

Has Kippax managed to persuade the squire to rent a field for a recreation ground?

• • •

Beadlesaie, which has been prevalent at Thirsk, has broken out in Wetherby district.

• • •

One day this month Crossgates had 323 telephone calls. How many will Barwick have per diem?

• • •

Clifford residents are dissatisfied. They want a later delivery of letters, and the authorities won't grant it.

• • •

Rothwell is not by itself. It is said that at Wellingborough people cannot get married because of a house famine.

• • •

The Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., of Templenewsam, has been elected on the Standing Committee of the National Society.

• • •

A move! Rothwell Council are making inquiries as to the cost of maintaining a swimming bath, etc. Will the scheme come off?

• • •

What is Oulton coming to? A constable told his magistrates he heard an Oulton man using language "not fit to be repeated in Court."

• • •

A terrific storm passed over Selby on Sunday night. At the Abbey the Vicar had to stop his sermon, and the congregation sang a hymn.

• • •

"Tell the truth," said a defendant at Tadcaster again and again, "it goes farthest." The magistrates, however, did not accept his statement.

• • •

It is suggested at Thorner that a permanent memorial to the late Rev. F. W. Boyd, and his work should be promoted. Now is the time for action.

• • •

It is stated that baths in many of the houses at Rothwell are not used for the purpose they were intended. Ay, was not a man discovered keeping rabbits in one?

• • •

Wetherby District Council has a housing problem. Will they erect houses to take the place of those for which closing orders have been made at Spofforth?

• • •

Twenty thousand people—many from Crossgates, Shadwell, and Seacroft—attended the band performances at Roundhay Park on Saturday, and £100 was collected—splendid!

• • •

Is this a record? Mr William Adsin, of Collingham, who is well-known in Barkston Ash Division, has been a local preacher for fifty years in Tadcaster Wesleyan circuit.

• • •

The holding of a business meeting in connection with Rothwell Wesleyan Circuit in the open-air was a novelty, and the members enjoyed it. The example may be followed in other circuits.

• • •

A number of Crossgates ladies have been trying to solve the mysteries of bowling, and it is said that some of them throw the "woods" with skill. Will a ladies' bowling section be formed?

• • •

The formal opening of the reconstructed course of the Garforth Golf Club has now been fixed for Saturday, July 11th, and endeavour is to be made to secure the attendance of the new Open champion.

• • •

People in the district should notice that the grounds of Templenewsam will be open on Sunday afternoon. The privilege has been enjoyed for a good many Sundays, and it has been appreciated.

• • •

Dangerous! The police stated at the Skyrack Court that a Garforth man, who had been drinking, neatly upset two prams with children, and locked over a dog that came in his way. Was he a footballer?

• • •

The Skyrack police can turn out a team of good cricketers, and if they had practice they would prove a formidable side. They are at present engaged in raising money for the police and other charities.

• • •

Who are the culprits? It is stated that recently at Wetherby about 20 keys were removed from a length of rail and that on another occasion a number of log signals were taken away. The N.E.R. Co. are pleased, naturally.

• • •

A Tadcaster man, who said he was blind in one eye and could hardly see with the other, pleaded that he was looking for mushrooms when charged with game trespass. A keeper said he found snares on him—presumably for catching the mushrooms.

• • •

If every parish got out a return of the benefits received from Leeds Infirmary, as was done for Crossgates, Halton, and Seacroft, the funds of the institution would undoubtedly be considerably augmented. Many people have no idea of the work that is being done.

• • •

It was always so. The Rector of Bolton Percy referred, in a speech, as to how the poor accepted the Gospel more readily than the rich. It is possible that some of the very wealthy nowadays would think it infra dig. to profess the same religion as paupers!

CROSSGATES MAN INJURED. IN MOTOR COLLISION.

BICYCLE AND SIDE-CAR WRECKED.

An alarming motor accident, in which a Crossgates man was involved, occurred on Sunday afternoon on the Great North Road, at the junction of the Thirsk and Ripon roads, about four miles from Ripon. The "four lane ends" is known as a most dangerous place, and accidents are frequent, as motorists coming from the Thirsk road to cross to Ripon have not a clear view of the main road.

Miss Hettie King, and Mr and Mrs Grange, were driving from Leeds, where Miss King appeared at the Empire last week, to Newcastle in a 25 h.p. Metallurgique car, when, on approaching the junction with the Thirsk road, the chauffeur observed a motor-bicycle and side-car emerge from the Thirsk road.

The chauffeur checked his speed, and swerved with the object of avoiding the bicycle, but the near side of the car caught the side-car, completely smashing it and throwing out the occupants, who were Mr J. W. Holland, 44, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds (the owner, who was driving), and Mr H. Crossley, 36, Marshall Street, Crossgates, who was in the sidecar.

They were taken back direct to Leeds in a motor-car, suffering from injuries. The bicycle and sidecar were completely wrecked, but the engine was intact. The motor-car, in swerving, struck a tar barrel at the side of the road, bending the mudguard on the near side and twisting the steering gear.

EASTERN AINSTY PETTY SESSIONS.

At the Eastern Ainsty Petty Sessions at York on Saturday the magistrates present were Major R. Allenby (in the chair), Major Richardson, and Major T. H. Lindberg.

William Henry Bailey, a labourer, living at Bishopthorpe, was charged with being drunk and disorderly on June 4th. The defendant did not appear. The Bench imposed a fine of 2s. 6d., with 5s. 6d. costs.

Thomas Fairbrother, a private in the West Yorkshire Regiment, failed to appear on a charge of riding a bicycle without a light on June 5th. A letter was read from the defendant, saying that he was unable to be present, as he was in training at Lichfield. Police-constable Bradley said that about 12.10 a.m. on June 5th he was on duty on the York and Tadcaster road, near Dringthorpe, when he saw the defendant riding a bicycle without a light. He stopped him and asked him why he had not a light. Defendant replied that he was very late, and his light having gone out about four miles back, he had not troubled to re-light it. Witness asked him for his name. He gave it as Harry Johnson, and said he belonged to the West Yorkshire Regiment, stationed at Fulford. Witness made inquiries at the Barracks the next day, and found there was no soldier there of that name, so he went to Strensall to make inquiries. He found the defendant there, and served him with a summons after ascertaining his proper name. The Bench imposed a fine of 2s. 6d. and 5s. costs.

A SMASH IN YORK ROAD.

Yesterday at Leeds County Court a case was heard arising out of a collision between a cycle and a motor cycle in York Road, Leeds, on a Sunday in April last. Plaintiff was Fred Dennison, a warehousman, of Holbeck, and he claimed 10 guineas from Joseph Clegg, of 120, Armley Road, Leeds, for damages to his cycle. Defendant counter-claimed for 20 guineas damages to his motor cycle.

Mr J. A. Greene, for the plaintiff, stated that Dennison was cycling home from York when the defendant collided with him. His machine was so badly damaged that it could not be mended.

His Honour Judge Greenhow: It is a poor sort of place, isn't it, to go to on Sunday afternoon. They ought to have gone to Roundhay Park. (Laughter).

Mr Green maintained that the defendant was, at the time of the accident, on the wrong side o' the road.

Plaintiff, in the box, stated that he was travelling at between 8 and 10 miles an hour.

Mr Arthur Willey (for defendant): Wasn't it nearer 20?

Plaintiff: You can't do that speed on York Road.

Why not?—Because of the people hanging about, and the children playing there.

Mr Willey: Come, now, didn't you lose your head?

Witness (with his hand to his head): No, it is here yet. (Laughter).

Mr Willey: Well, it is a valuable asset to you. I hope you have got something in it. (Laughter).

His Honour: It is evidently full of jokes. (Laughter).

Plaintiff added that in his opinion defendant could have avoided the accident.

Mr Willey: Yes, I daresay, if you had sent him a telegram the night before. (Laughter).

Mr Willey went on to explain with some detail the scene of the accident, and the Judge remarked: I think you must have a country house here, Mr Willey. (Laughter).

Eventually his Honour found for the plaintiff, and awarded him five guineas damages, dismissing the counter-claim with costs.

A pretty garden fete in aid of the Thorparch Marguerite Home of the Leeds Invalid Children's Aid Society was held on Saturday afternoon in the grounds of "Highfield," Headingley, the residence of Mr and Mrs R. A. Hudson. The most interesting feature was an open-air play, "The Goblin Market," which was given by a number of children, picturesquely garbed as goblins on the lawn.

LORD HAWKE AND CRICKET.—Speaking at a gathering in London on Tuesday night Lord Hawke made some interesting remarks on cricket. "I should like," proceeded his Lordship, "to say a word with regard to cricket as played to-day in England. Much has been written, and much has been said, about cricket to-day losing ground, and that its appeal to popularity is diminishing. I do not believe it. (Hear, hear). It is true that twenty-seven ago cricket had not the rivalry of golf and lawn tennis, now at their zenith. I will tell you something more. The Press now so admirably reports many matches that all over the country many thousands do not take the trouble to go two or three miles to see the game. (Laughter and applause). We must remember, too, that 25 years ago there were only eight first-class counties, also that in England to-day the hard-working supporter of cricket cannot find time to watch a game. I think the mere fact that to-day there are 16 first-class counties shows that cricket is progressing, that our national game is healthy, and that we still have a very fair share of the public support."

SHERBURN PETTY SESSIONS.

Yesterday at Sherburn Petty Sessions the magistrates present were the Rev. B. Hemsworth (Chairman) and Mr William Crosland.

Mr Hy. Wrigglesworth, of the Half-Moon Inn, Lumerton, applied for an occasional licence for Newthorpe Sports, and it was granted.

James Hunter, miner, of Brotherton, was charged with being drunk and disorderly on the 13th inst on Milford Road, Sherburn. P.C. Holliday stated that he found defendant drunk and disorderly. He had a bicycle, and he gave him a wrong name and address. Fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

George Webster, miner, of Brotherton, was charged with having ridden a bicycle without light on the 13th inst on the Milford Road, Sherburn. Fined 6s. and 7s. 6d. costs.

William Roberts, miner, of Castleford, was charged with having a gun without a licence on the 7th at Fairburn. P.C. Meehan stated he saw defendant in Fairburn Ings with a gun, and he was shooting wild ducks. He asked him for his gun licence, and he had not got one. Fined £1 and 7s. 6d. costs.

George William Wicks, miner, of Leeds, was charged with stealing a child's hobby-horse, the property of Charles Stather, of Ledsham, on the 20th inst at Ledsham. Charles Stather, farmer, Ledsham, stated that he saw his child's hobby-horse in the farmyard, and during the afternoon, about 4 p.m., he found it was missing. He reported the matter to the police. He valued the property at 12s. 6d. He did not give any authority for it to be taken away. Wm. Gregory, The Crescent Micklefield, said he saw prisoner with the hobby-horse at Peckfield. He asked him for a lift in his trap. P.C. Wickham said he was informed of the loss of the hobby-horse, and he made enquiries and found prisoner lived at Leeds and worked at Ledston Luck Pit. He saw prisoner, who replied "I found it." On being formally charged the prisoner pleaded guilty. The Chairman said he had a good character, and they would deal with him under the First Offenders' Act. He would have the costs to pay, £1 1s.

SELBY AGRICULTURAL SHOW.

The annual show of the Selby Agricultural Society was held on the Bowling Green, Selby, yesterday, under conditions which augured well for its success.

The increasing interest taken in the exhibition by local farmers was an encouraging feature, and it was hoped that with larger support and favourable weather, the Society's financial position, which for some time has not been very rosy, would improve.

Entries were satisfactory, both in numbers and quality. The horse section was a strong one, for in addition to local exhibits there were entries by well-known owners in the open classes. Numerically the horses were slightly less than 12 months ago, when they numbered 190, and it was felt that in an agricultural and hunting district like Selby the total is quite unsatisfactory.

Selections of music were played by the Selby Olympia Military Band, and an attractive evening programme including a variety entertainment and fireworks was arranged.

Local Classes.—Agricultural Colt or Filly Foal —1, Tom Burton, Cliffe, Selby; 2, G. H. Collins, Hillam; 3, Holmes Bros., Pollington.

Agricultural Brood Mare and Foal—R Thompson and Son, Scurff Hall, Drax; 2, J. W. and A. Pollard, Moor Allerton Hill; 3, T. Harrison, Kirkby Overblow.

Gelding or Mare—1, W. Helm, South Milford; 2, J. Pocklington, Wistow; 3, W. Darby, South Duffield, Selby.

Open Classes—Shire Mare and Foal—1, W. Webster, Stockton-on-Forest; 2, R. Thompson and Son, Drax; 3, J. W. and A. Pollard.

Shire Colt Foal—1, Tom Burton, Cliffe, Selby; 2, J. W. and A. Pollard; 3, T. Elvidge, Stubbs Grange, Norton, Doncaster.

Shire Filly Foal—G. Collins, Hillam; 2, Holmes Bros., Smaith; 3, Hardy Bros., Howden.

Local Class—Hunting Foal—1, George Tankard, Thorganby, York; 2, W. Lofthouse, Bishopthorpe, York; 3, S. and J. O'Gram, Quosquo Hall, Selby.

Open Classes—Hunting Brood Mare and Foal —1, W. Lofthouse; 2, W. Severs, Wilstrop Hall, York; 3, George Tankard.

Hunting Yearling, Colt, Gelding or Filly—1, C. P. Whincup, Spofforth, Doncaster; 2, W. Lofthouse; 3, T. Holmes, Burn, Selby.

Hunting Two-Year-Old Gelding or Filly—1, W. Lofthouse; 2, S. and J. O'Gram; 3, Strickland Foxton, Eartick, York.

Hackney Colt or Filly Foal—1, W. Bramley, North Duffield; 2, W. Greenwood, 92, Briggate, Leeds, and Roundhay; 3, R. Gledall, Cliff Common, Selby.

Hackney Brood Mare and Foal—1, J. Taylor, Low Caton, Stamford Bridge; 2, W. Bramley; 3, R. Gledall.

On Monday at Tadcaster Petty Sessions the temporary transfer of the licence of the Royal Oak, Tadcaster, was granted to Mr F. Macnamara.

CASE OF ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—Arthur Swaby, of Hunslet, attempted suicide on Friday at the residence of his brother at Kirk Deighton, Wetherby. Swaby, a former employe at a railway goods yard at Leeds, had been in ill-health for some time, and had been staying with his brother at Kirk Deighton. On Friday, while lying in bed, he cut his throat with a razor, but fortunately did not sever the jugular vein. Dr. Hargreaves was called in, and stitched up the wound, and later the man was conveyed by motor car to Leeds Infirmary.

PATENTS.—Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, Chartered Patent Agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax.—Applications—J. Bronet, F. Thorman, and H. C. Wood, Tadcaster, improvement in sludge dryers (addition); James Rose, improvements in brewing beer and ales. Application completed—J. W. Leadbeater, Doncaster, improvements in the treatment of peat. Patents accepted—J. Flower, J. W. Bradley, and G. Wichmann, Leeds, improvements in internal combustion and steam turbines (addition); W. J. R. Leech and Rudyer Vale Collieries, Ltd., Leeds, improvements in pit bottom docking plant.

TADCASTER TOWER BREWERY ANGLING CLUB.—The first match of the season took place at Newton-on-Ouse on Saturday. The conditions for angling were favourable, and the weather all that could be desired. The weigh-in results as follows:—1, T. Richardson, 16¼oz.; 2, J. Capel, 14½oz.; 3, T. R. Reed 12oz.; 4, A. Butler, 10½oz.; 5, J. Kirby, 9½oz.; 6, H. Nottingham, 5½oz.; 7, R. Taylor, 5½oz.; 8, J. Bradley, 4½oz.; 9, H. Taylor, 4½oz.; 10, R. W. Pannett, 3½oz.; 11, W. Moore, 3½oz.; 12, C. Bell, 2½oz.; 13, W. Overall, 1½oz.; 14, R. Kendon, 1½oz.; 15, T. Kitchin, 1½oz.; 16, T. Wheatley; 17, T. Needham; 18, R. Overall; 19, A. T. Taylor. After weighing in, the members adjourned to the Dawnay Arms, where an excellent tea was partaken of. The return journey down stream in the cool of the evening was most pleasant, and headquarters, the Ship Inn, King's Staith, were reached about 10 p.m., where the distribution of prizes by Mr T. Dixon concluded a most enjoyable and successful outing.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OTTER WORRY.

To the Editor.

Sir,—The following account of a hunt with a female otter must be the opening of the otter hunting season in the north-western district. It seems worthy of further publicity as showing what a disgusting "sport" this so-called otter hunting really is:—

"The quarry first swam towards the mill dam, and it looked as though she intended to swim over this barrier, but she changed her mind and made her way back to the head of the pool, hounds swimming her "wash" in the spotty water, which evidently carried a fair scent. A remarkable hunt followed full of sound work, with keen eyes watching the "chain" going down the stream at the open places, with hounds close foot. A prettier bit of hunting could not have been desired. For four hours the otter was chased—being lost and found again repeatedly—and then hounds drove her the full length of the mill dam. Instead of swimming over the dam she ran up a wet ditch, which sealed her doom. She proved to be a three-year-old "lady" of 16lb."—Barrow Daily Mail, June 18th.

From a humane point of view one of the greatest objections to the "sport" is that it can only be followed in the summer months when many otters are still breeding, and it thus involves the harrying and destruction of mothers in milk, the starvation of suckling cubs, and other odious things.

In stag-hunting and in fox-hunting, hounds are frequently whipped off when the hunted creature has been too exhausted to go further, but the otter hunter rarely shows this clemency, to his quarry—the hunt is almost always to the death, it being, next to the fierce excitement of the hunt, no insignificant part of the fun to run up scores. Hence the average hunt is a prolonged affair, otters not infrequently being chased from hover to holt, up and down stream, for six, seven, and eight hours from find to finish. The Carlisle Otter Hounds hunted one poor tormented creature for eleven hours.

It would thus seem that fairplay has no place whatever in the rules of otter hunting, and those who go out with the mere lust for a kill in their hearts can hardly be considered more than cultured savages. It is indeed high time that steps were taken to put a stop to their barbarous practices.—Yours, etc.,

JOSEPH COLLINSON.

York House, Lincoln's Inn Fields,
London, June, 1914.

GAME TRESPASS AT HEALAUGH.—On Monday at Tadcaster Petty Sessions Samuel Wells, labourer, of Tadcaster, was charged with game trespass on June 3rd on Mr E. Brooksbank's land at Healaugh.—James Spink, gamekeeper, said he saw defendant creeping along a hedge side, and when he spoke to him he bolted. The man had snares on him.—Defendant said that he was out for mushrooms, and that he had no snares.—Several convictions were proved against defendant, and he was ordered to pay 2s. 6d. and costs.

STACK FIRE.—A lodging-house attendant named Fred Johnson observed a quantity of straw in a Dutch barn in the cricket field at Tadcaster to be on fire. He at once raised an alarm, and hose piping from Mr Samuel Smith's Brewery and the Tower Brewery were connected to the town hydrants, and efforts were made to extinguish the flames, this being successfully accomplished in about four hours. The barn contained about 20 tons of wheat straw, which was practically destroyed. The damage is estimated at £100, and is covered by insurance.

GOLF.—At Wetherby on Saturday the scores in the qualifying round of the Bridgeman Simpson Cup Competition were:—T. Bath, 89, 18, 71; S. S. Sykes, 79, 6, 73; W. N. Christie, 83, 9, 74; R. L. Bath, 94, 20, 74; N. Graydon, 89, 14, 75; H. Heap, 91, 16, 75; M. Heap, 97, 22, 75; W. Graydon, 87, 11, 76; Dr H. Tempest, 94, 18, 76; S. Folbigg, 94, 16, 78; W. D. Pearson, 94, 16, 78; H. Armitage, 92, 13, 79; F. Armitage, 99, 20, 79; H. G. Gilbert, 101, 22, 79; E. R. Wawn, 87, 5, 82; R. Lee, 95, 12, 83; J. Pearson, 104, 20, 84.

ELTOFTS DEFEATED.—Eltofts have had a very successful season, having defeated opponents by large scores, but on Saturday afternoon they were defeated at home, Arthington being their opponents. Scores:—Arthington—H. Marshall 1, Frank 3, Wood 5, J. Marshall 46, Mawson 9, S. Sharper 17, J. Sharper 15, R. Child 14, J. W. Proctor 0, G. T. Proctor (not out) 7, D. Child 0, extras, 6; total, 123. Eltofts—Pickersgill 1, Midgley 20, Arrowsmith 4, Hudson 19, Turner 4, Foster 16, Maltby 22, Bratton 0, Graydon (not out) 0, Hardisty 0, Stabler 0, extra, 1; total, 87.

WEDDING.—On Wednesday, the wedding took place at All Saints' Church, Margaret Street, Cavendish Square, London, W., of Edith, the eldest daughter of Mr James Powell, Prospect House, South Milford, and the Rev. F. Thatcher, of Holy Trinity Church, Hastings. The ceremony was performed by the bridegroom's father, the Rev. W. Thatcher (vicar of All Saints' Church, Liverpool), assisted by the resident clergy. The bride and bridesmaid (her sister, Miss Annie Powell) were beautifully attired. The bride's father gave her away. The best man was the Rev. G. H. Hewitt. The happy couple left during the afternoon for Canterbury, where they are spending the honeymoon.

ARCHBISHOP'S APPEAL.—The Archbishop of York, in the course of his sermon on Sunday, at the military service at Selby Abbey, on the words "The Master said come . . . and they all began to make excuses," referred to the Ulster problem. Speaking in impassioned tones, he said that the country was addressing to all its citizens a summons of special urgency and entreaty. "I know not how it is that the great bulk of our people seem still to be unaware we are approaching day by day to the time of a greater and more fateful crisis than has been seen by our fathers for many generations. We are drifting into the possibility of civil strife, and I would not be the servant of my Master unless I spoke His message through our country's need. 'Come,' 'Think,' 'Care.' It is a summons indeed that makes demands. It means we must lay aside this apathy, which seems so strangely to set its blight upon our public life. It means most of us will have to reconsider many of the obligations of party pride and loyalty, and because I suppose it is a summons that makes so great a demand that men seem to be for ever making excuses. We hear them saying 'This is all exaggeration'; 'it is only the big talk of the politicians,' 'we all know that it cannot come to that'; 'we are not interested in these affairs; let these Irishmen settle their own business in their own way. What I am interested in is what I have to pay for my insurance, or what I may expect for myself in better housing or in the way of wages from a charge on taxation to which I shall give as little myself as I can.' Is it not true that these are the sort of excuses that men are making to the summons of their country at this time? They are not making it felt that the public opinion of this country will not stand further drifting into danger and demands of our leaders of all political parties that they shall bring this thing to some settlement in justice and in peace.

BUY "ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."

THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.

The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of

SPRING FOOT STYLES.

Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.

Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
OR THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

Telephone No. 1129.

RHODES & SONS,

Posters, Handbills, Circulars, Business Cards, Balance Sheets, Fixture Cards, Catalogues, Ball Programmes and . . Every description of . . General and Commercial Printing.

Commercial and General Printers Lithographers, Bookbinders, &c.

ORDERS BY POST OR TELEPHONE PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Magazines, Periodicals, &c., Bound to any Pattern. . .

"Rothwell Courier and Times" Office,
2, AIRE STREET.
LEEDS.

THE SHORTEST CUT TO ECONOMY.

Entirely New Stock for Spring.

LATEST FASHIONS & SHADES IN Costumes, Dresses, Raincoats, Skirts and Sports Coats.

SMITH & PETTY,
44, LOWERHEAD ROW, LEEDS.

LONDON IN THE EIGHTIES.

Mr. Wilfred Whitten—"John o' London"—knows his beloved city well, and is full of London lore. In "A Londoner's London" (Methuen) we get glimpses of the London which has now so changed within the last generation:

"In the late Eighties there was a vestige of courage in taking the Victoria Embankment by night, or walking through the Seven Dails. There was no Charing Cross-road to air St. Giles's, and no railway to bisect St. John's Wood. The sign of the Bull and Mouth Tavern, facing St. Martin's-le-Grand, still reminded pale Londoners how

Milo, the Cretonian,
An ox slew with his fist,
And ate it up at one meal;

Ye gods, what glorious twist!

"In Holborn you might walk through the square carriage-way of Furnival's Inn, under which Dickens passed in the flush of his youth to sign his contract for the 'Pickwick Papers.' Next to Furnival's Inn stood, or staggered, an inn that Dickens must have loved. Passing it, you saw pewter candlesticks; on entering it you were served with port negus by a waiter in lineaments and dignity the double of Mr. Speaker Peel. . . Hood had some warrant for his portrait of a Londoner, wistful of Holborn among dairy delights. For under Furnival's Inn—not the building one knew, but its immediate predecessor—there had been a cider vault kept by one John Grey. This man, after years of attendance on his customers, had made a decent fortune, and was able to buy an estate in Yorkshire, to which he retired. But the clatter of hoofs in Holborn was ever in his ears; and, finally, he returned to London and endeavoured to buy back his old cellar. Failing in this, he offered to be a waiter where he had formerly been master; he was accepted, and drew a salary to the day of his death."

CRICKET.—On Saturday at Church Fenton a match was played between Mount (York) and Church Fenton, and the homesters were defeated. Scores:—Mount—A. Thackrah 6, L. Gray 32, W. G. Thompson 0, E. Bedford 0, J. Iveson 1, R. Daggett 4, T. Gledhill 7, G. Bleby 8, H. Gill 0, R. Coates 12, H. Butterfield (not out) 1, extras, 2; total, 73. Church Fenton—V. Cloughton 4, T. Jackson 5, J. Thompson 12, W. D. Foxton 0, W. Mosby 0, S. Hargreaves 10, Whincup 1, A Foxton 5, Holgreaves 6, H. Hastle (not out) 11, J. Henry 1, extras, 21 total, 57.

Mr A. W. Westerman, of Tadcaster, played for Leeds and District in the bowling match against West Riding on Tuesday, and he defeated Mr Hartley (Brighouse) by 12 points.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon a match was played at Thorner between the Mexborough team and Moortown. Scores:—Moortown—M. Topham 44, Wilson 6, Pickles 30, Haywood 2, Barnfather 12, A. Topham 11, Little 3, H. Wood 4, C. Wood 0, Boothman 6, Marsden (not out) 0, extras, 15; total, 133. Thorner Mexborough —Thompson 0, Flint 2, Revis 2, Hanson 3, Illingworth 0, Yates 12, Atkin 1, Dixon 4, Jarrat 3, H. Randerson (not out), 4, E. Randerson 3, extras, 4; total, 38.

CRICKET.—A match was played between Hickiam and Hazlewood Castle on Thursday at Hickiam, and the home side won easily. Scores:—Hazlewood—H. Simpson, b Walker, 6; W. Illingworth, c Heard, b Lumb, 2; H. Pickles, b Lumb, 6; T. Simpson, b Stoker, 3; B. Hey, c Lumb, b Stoker, 8; A. Lupton, run out, 21; B. Pickles, b Walker, 7; H. Storey, b Watson, 0; R. Nutton, b Watson, 0; J. Hopps, c Selby, b Walker, 2; J. Walton, not out, 7; extras, 5; total, 67. Hicklam—F. Lumb, b Pickles, 26; J Blakey, lbw, b H. Simpson, 7; H. Walker, b Hey, 1; F. Walker, c Illingworth, b H. Simpson, 1; E. Stoker, c Storey, b T. Simpson, 21; H. Watson, b T. Simpson, 0; O. Griffin, c Pickles, b T. Simpson, 2; F. Selby, b Hey, 22; R. Heard, run out, 0; J. Abbott, not out, 11; T. P. Fawcett, b Pickles, 8; extras, 7; total, 107. In the second innings Hazlewood scored 89.

REFRESHMENT HOUSE KEEPER FINED.—On Monday at Selby a summons was heard against Thomas Carr, refreshment house keeper, Selby, for travelling in a first-class compartment with a third-class ticket on the N.E.R., between Doncaster and Selby, on May 23rd. Supt. T. Pearson, of the N.E.R. Police Department, York, prosecuted. Constable Sedman, of the Railway Police, said the defendant got out of a first-class carriage at Selby, and found that he had given up only a third-class ticket. Defendant, when asked if he had travelled in a first-class carriage replied "Probably I did." He afterwards returned to the station, and wanted to pay the excess fare, but it was refused. Mr Claude Kemp, who defended, said that the defendant's wife was seriously ill, and defendant on arriving in haste at the station got into the nearest carriage in his anxiety to get home. Defendant was fined £1 and costs.

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten.

BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW MAKING A
SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS
In all the LATEST STYLES, for
SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.
LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.
5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared
BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Store,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.
96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.
Telephone No. 253. JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291. CROSSGATES 6.
DOBSON & CO.,
— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —
Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,
SEACROFT, AND
70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.
Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.
PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

SMART & SON,
8 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.
SPECIAL LINE OF
TOYS. — DOLLS. — GAMES.
Week-end Hampers, Suit Cases and Basket Ware.
ALL THE LATEST LINES.
For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,
SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

ALLPASS & CO., LTD.,
Established over Thirty Years Ago.
HOUSE FURNISHERS,
Cash or Deferred Payments.
BABY CARS & WASHING MACHINERY
A Specialty.
UPPERHEAD ROW, LEEDS.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Sourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 79—[Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper] NEW SERIES SATURDAY, JULY 4 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
LIGHTNING PROGRAMME.
THE STAGE ALWAYS OCCUPIED.
MONDAY, JULY 6th, 1914.
TOM FOY.
In a New Comedy Sketch, entitled, "In trouble Again."
3 AEROS. FRANK POWELL.
ALICK LAUDER. VERONICA BRADY.
KALMA & CO. AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.
QUEENIE LEIGHTON.
The Charming Drury Lane Comedienne.
THORNTON AND WAGNER.
Refined Entertainers.
Also, the Greatest Mystery of Modern Times, WALKING THROUGH A BRICK WALL.
TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY.
At 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.
EVERY ITEM A SPECIAL FEATURE.
NO WAITS.
Booking Office open at Theatre, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily for advance booking of Boxes, Orchestra Stalls, and Grand Circle.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
ISABEL D'ARMOND and FRANK CARTER.
DE LASSA TROUPE.
LIL SPRIGHTLY.
BAKER AND BALFE.
4 SISTERS RUBY.
HIPPODROME PICTURES.
THE FIMANS.
"The Silver Hat," Presented by HARRY MARVELLO.
WARSAW BROS.
MISS INA HILL.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 7s., 6d., and 4d.

CITY VARIETIES, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY 7 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, JULY 6th, 1914.
KO TEN ICHI TROUPE.
HARRY CLIFFORD.
WILL LINDSAY.
CORA MIRTH AND HARRY MELODY.
VARIESCOPE.
V. WAKEMAN.
MABEL AND CLIFF. DIAMOND.
Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Specialty.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence :—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Established 1860. SPARKLING HOSPERADE Trade Mark
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
OBTAINABLE FROM HOTELS RESTAURANTS & MALTSTERS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON LTD LEEDS.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds,
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Treasures are often discovered in unexpected places. Hulton Wesleyan Church, beautifully redecorated, has been furnished with a fine pipe organ, and, as one person said, "it is a thing of beauty," but the glory of the building, to my mind, is its carved pulpit—a veritable treasure in its way. No one seems to know its complete history, but I understand that in the late Mr Hugo Ingram's time it was lying in a lumber-room at Templenewsam, and at the request of the late Mr W. G. Crosthwaite's father, who was employed on the estate, he presented it to the Methodists at Hulton. It was then in a dilapidated condition, but Mr Crosthwaite must have discerned its value, and its renovation revealed what a beautiful piece of church furniture it was. Where the pulpit was used prior to its being stored in the lumber room no one can really say, but it is probable that it was used in a private chapel at Templenewsam.

In the country districts labour troubles have not caused much inconvenience to the farming community, and it is unfortunate when they do occur, because they tend to have bitterness between the disputants. Farmers must, therefore, be careful in the example they set their employees. I notice that at a meeting of the Yorkshire Union of Agricultural Clubs Mr Frank Myers, a prominent member of the Tadcaster Chamber, advocated the use of the strike weapon against the Government in the event of certain grants being withdrawn. "Let us refuse," he said, in effect, "to pay the insurance." So much has been heard about insurance that one would imagine it was a grievous burden, threatening to break the back of agriculture, but what does it amount to? If a farmer employs six servants the weekly payment is 2s. a week! Some of the industrial firms in the towns, employing hundreds or thousands of men, are meeting their obligations without eternally grumbling. Insurance is the law of the land, and, whether people like it or not, it must be paid. So what's the use of grumbling about a shilling or two a week? What I wanted to point out, however, was that if a bonding agricultural advocates the strike weapon, instead of legitimate agitation, he must not be surprised if the farm labourers adopt that means in order to put more money in their pockets.

Human nature is a puzzle! About a year since an agitation was set going for the erection of a school in the Street Lane district of Roundhay. Letters were written to the papers, public meetings were held, and I believe deputations waited on the powers that be, all with a view to the Authority meeting what was alleged to be a great need. Accepting the agitation as genuine, the Authority opened a school, and how many scholars, think you, have been enrolled? Twenty-six! One reason given for this is snobbery, it being alleged that children are being kept away because their parents are waiting to see if the children from the Leeds Board of Guardians' home in Street Lane will be sent to the new school or not. Of course, residents deny this, and say there is no need for such a school. What was the meaning of the agitation, then? It may be pointed out that the children living in the Hunslet Guardians' homes at Rothwell Haigh attend the elementary schools at Rothwell, and I believe they are a credit to all concerned. Now Roundhay folks are saying that what they want is a secondary school, but the Education Authority will think twice before spending the ratepayers' money on such an establishment. They will profit by the lesson they have just received.

Garforth ambulance workers have again scored. In the Aberfordia League competition the women have won the silver cup presented by Col. Gascoigne, D.S.O., and the men have secured the Barkston Ash Shield, which was the gift of the late Mr J. O. Andrews, who was for a short time M.P. for Barkston Ash, but never took his seat in the House of Commons. The shield, when first put up for competition, was won by Milford Junction railway men, and then after a lapse of several years, it went to Garforth colliery team. Now it has come into possession of the Aberfordia League, there is a guarantee that it will be competed for annually. In addition to these trophies, Garforth has the shield presented by the Squire of Templenewsam to the Yorkshire Mines' Ambulance League. It will not do, however, for all the prizes to go to one place, and the other teams must make a big endeavour next year to defeat the Garforthians.

Bramham Park, the property of Mr Lane Fox, M.P., and one of the finest country seats in the county, was the scene of a fete on Saturday afternoon, but, for some reason or other, it was not so well supported by the people of the district as it should have been. Perhaps a little more judicious advertising would have brought better results. Three ambulance competitions were a feature of the meeting, but, unfortunately, there was little interest for the public, who do not understand the work in the way they do cricket and football. The fete was in aid of the funds of the Bramham ambulance company, and it is rather a pity that the exchequer will not benefit more from the meeting.

Is any progress being made with the scheme for taking the traffic direct from the industrial establishments at Tadcaster to the Railway Station? During the last ten years the "exports" of the town have increased enormously, and the consequent heavier traffic has caused a very large expenditure on the repair and maintenance of the roads. The N.E.R. Co., it was thought, intended to take the goods from the principal establishment straight from the brewery to the station by means of an overhead railway, but they have always put the District Council off when they have asked them to carry out the work. Shunting is carried on in the station itself, and as the present arrangements are not by any means good, it might pay the Company to get land on the other side of the railway bridge and deal with the goods traffic there. Whether that is feasible or not, the District Council should not allow the question to rest, because they may be sure that so long as they are quiet the N.E.R. Co. will make no move. Tadcaster is certainly entitled to a little more attention from the N.E.R. Co., but it will not get it without agitation.

Tadcaster East Council took well after the interests of the parish, and their complaints and suggestions to the District Council invariably receive attention. Many Councils are forever grumbling about the limited scope of their duties, but they can do a lot of work in a quiet way if the members are observant. Nuisances, obstructions, improvements, and protection of public rights should be brought to the notice of the District Council, who alone have power to deal with these matters, and the co-operation of the two bodies must yield good results for the ratepayers.

The C.E.M.S. and clergy at Whitkirk have, I understand, been giving a demonstration of what might be called "muscular Christianity." In order to show how useful they could be, they decided to put the churchyard in a better state, and they have been busy repairing the flagging and effecting other improvements. Whitkirk churchyard is a hallowed spot. In the days when the Doomsday Book was written a church was in existence there; it was the place where the Knights Templers worshipped; and the ground which the worshippers on Sunday walk over, was trod by the great of the land in the dim and distant past. In the old burial ground I have come across two good epitaphs, one being the familiar one "This world's a city full of crooked streets," but many of the ancient sandstone tombstones have been destroyed by the enemy of all perishable things. A tidy churchyard is always a pleasing sight, and the C.E.M.S. are doing good work.

It will be remembered that recently the increase of the representation of Templenewsam on the District Council was discussed at a meeting of the Ratepayers' Association, but no action was taken. In 1906, I find, the Parish Council made an application on behalf of the township for another member, and it was considered by the County Council, who inquired the opinion of the District Council. The District Council were not apparently enthusiastic, for they replied that they thought the disturbance of the balance of power on the Hunslet Board of Guardians—the townships of Hunslet have a majority and the District Councillors are Guardians—would be an insuperable barrier. Of course, the Guardians could not be expected to return a favourable reply, so the application failed.

Seeing Kippax has managed to persuade the squire to consider the question of a recreation ground for the children, is it not possible for Garforth to secure a playing field for the little folks? In the urban area there is no place where boys and girls can play their games, and they have consequently to make use of streets and back yards. This is a very undesirable state of affairs. Comparatively few ratepayers would complain were the Council to rent a field for this purpose; in fact, a good many people have, at one time or another, advocated the opening of such a ground. More than one attempt, I know, has been made to meet the needs of the children, but they have met with no success, and the Council have still an opportunity of distinguishing themselves.

Hunslet Guardians have given themselves a somewhat difficult point to settle. About a year ago one of the boys in the Rothwell Haigh Homes won a scholarship, and the Guardians were, naturally, very proud of the lad's success. They agreed that he should go to a secondary school. He has attended a school in Leeds for about a year, and it is now suggested that the lad should give up the scholarship and enter the workhouse master's office. It does not look very fair to the boy, and the advisability of keeping him associated with the Poor Law may appear a questionable move by many people. The matter, however, should be considered from a commen-sense point of view. Does the Poor Law offer to the lad inducements better than he would receive at the end of his three years' training, and does the boy want to be a clerk in the workhouse master's office? If the boy has conspicuous ability he could win his way by means of scholarships, if he so desired, to the university, but who is to decide that question? Whatever the Guardians do will affect the future life of the boy, and they should be careful.

Kippax "fathers'" have a grievance. It is said that deposits of cast-off clothing—a little gold mine for the rag and bone man—and discarded tin pans, etc., have been used in the adornment of a certain lane, and, as Kippax has its own views on art, these deposits run counter to the public taste. The Council state they have already condemned this attempt to set at defiance the desires of the people, and, as nothing has been done to remedy the grievance, they have adopted what might be styled an attitude of speechless indignation—they are angry but they decline to say anything more about the matter. If the deposits are a nuisance—that is the crux of the question—and the local Sanitary Authority fail to take action, the "fathers" can appeal to the County Council, who will speedily bring the offenders to book. If, however, no nuisance has been committed the "fathers" may protest in vain.

The Rev. J. C. Robinson, has been re-appointed to Tadcaster by the Primitive Methodist Conference.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE

At the Empire Palace this week two leading positions are occupied by American artistes, Nella Webb, who is one of them, has both personality and a useful voice, and her numbers all have point about them. She is worthy of a good place. The other American turn is that of Van and Schenk, who are described as a great comedy duo. Their items are far from great as comedy, but their business has a style which lifts it above the commonplace. A contrast to the Americans is provided by Ernie Mayne, whose comical figure and equally comical songs, make everybody laugh. Many people must be puzzled to know what are "pimples" on pickled pork, but his song on their momentous subject causes much merriment. Cruikshank, in his familiar style of business, has had a good reception. The programme also includes Louie Tracey, Briff, Broff, and Broff, comedy acrobats; Fred Edwards and May Yates, in a comedy dialogue; Edward Crossland's Melody-makers, and O'Gorman Bros.

The Leeds Empire programme on Monday next consists of all-star turns, particularly agreeable to its clientele. At the top of the bill is that ever popular comedian, Tom Foy, in an entirely new and original production, entitled "In Trouble Again." As a droll comedian Foy has few equals. Veronica Brady, the popular musical comedy star, in comedy songs and quaint ideas; Alic Lauder, in character Scottish songs; Frank Powell, character comedian; Kalma and Co., "Ye Colonial Wizards," featuring "The Flouting Ball" and "The Maid of all Nations"; Queenie Leighton, the charming Drury Lane comedienne; 3 Aeros, amazing trapeze artistes, including a new comedian; Thornton and Wagner, refined entertainers; Miss Wagner's gowns by "Clement," Paris, hand painted by Harry Thornton; and the American bioscope.

Josolyne's act, the greatest mystery of modern times, "Walking through a brick wall," will be produced at the Empire next Monday evening. A lady is placed on one side of a solid brick wall 10ft by 6ft. with a screen around her, and a similar screen is put on the other side of the wall. Although the audience stand around the structure all the time, in a few seconds the lady appears on the other side.

LEEDS HIPPODROME

At the Hippodrome "I Should Worry," a revue written by Mr James W. Tate, pays a well-come return visit this week. Jake Friedman, so well known on the halls, takes one of the principal parts, and his comical ways and singing set everybody in a good humour. Another good comedian is Tom Terry, who makes a very vivacious ballet dancer. Jack Wayho and Alec Hassell fight a fierce duel in the approved Continental style. Amongst the ladies special mention must be made of Bonny Browning and Vera Hilliard. The revue would be incomplete without these very chic and prepossessing young ladies, and their work as hard, and also correct in every detail. The whole show is exceedingly good. Emerson and Baldwin, juggling comedians, go through a clever show; Burr and Hope, in an artistic vocal scena, show much originality in their method of treating an old theme; and Croene and Hamilton cause much laughter with their portrayal of the latest fashions in dress; Jack Croene will be remembered as a pantomime favourite at the Grand. Others appearing are the Society Quartette, and Molly McCarthy, a dainty comedienne.

At the Hippodrome next week the first appearance in Leeds will be made of the De Lassa Troupe, who style their speciality as "thrills in the air." Isabel D'Armond and Frank Carter, a couple of stars from the London Hippodrome, also top the bill, featuring their biggest hit from "Hullo Tango." "Love Me while the Lovin's Good." Others who constitute the fare are Warsaw Bros. in a satirical mythological phantasy, "Pan and Orpheus"; Miss. Ina Hill, a well-known prima donna from the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company; The Four Sisters Ruby, contortionists, acrobats, and dancers; Jean's new era magic "The Silver Hat," a novel magical problem presented by Harry Marvello; Baker and Balfe, eccentric exponents and dancers; Lil Sprightly, character comedian; The Fimans, two fellows and a fire station; and Hippodrome pictures.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES

At the City Varieties this week the Four Shades, fascinating ladies, who sing, occupy the leading position, and they have been well received. Joe Almasie and Miss Jamina, a jumping juggler, and a lady Arab tumbler, are smart in their work, and another turn which is well appreciated is by Quinn and Logan in "The Sheehack and the Pea." These two boys are natives of Leeds, and their singing and dancing are in good order. Others appearing are Isa Wise, who has a good song; The Shannons, in a smart singing and clever patter; and Minnie and Rose Finnette, in a refined speciality act.

The top of the bill for next week is occupied by a party of clever Japanese conjurers, The Ko Ten Ichi Troupe, who will feature their illusion, the enchanted fountains; Will Lindsay, described as the funniest of all Yorkshire comedians, should provide an acceptable turn brimful of mirth; Mabel and Cliff Diamond, will appear in a novel singing and dancing scena; Cora Mirth and Harry Melody, in a comedy speciality; V. Wakeman, the human gramophone, introducing imitations of Caruso and Tetrazzini; Harry Clifford, coster comedian, and pictures on the Variescope complete a very acceptable programme.

THE SCHOOLS.—The percentage of attendance for the eight schools in Sherburn division last month was 90.92 against 93.09 for June last year. Sherburn Endowed had the best attendance of all the schools in Garforth division, the figures being 96.29 against 96.55. At Sherburn Girls' School the percentage was 93.42 against 92.35, and at the Infants' School 86.32 against 94.

Damage by the Storm.

Astonishingly little damage has been done by the terrific thunderstorm which raged over the district on Wednesday evening—undoubtedly the most violent that has been experienced for many years. At its worst, between six o'clock and seven, the thunder was nearly continuous, and as many as twelve lightning flashes were counted in a minute. The area covered by the storm was widespread, and at almost every point in the district its force seems to have been felt. The sharp, whip-like crack, coincident with the flash, showed that the lightning was very near indeed.

Three houses were struck by lightning at Aberford, and animals were killed at Scarcroft and Bardsey.

At Garforth hail-stones of the size of marbles fell, but as far as can be ascertained no damage was done in the village.

In Leeds one house was struck. The building which was damaged is a house and shop, occupied by Mrs Mann, greengrocer, in Cross Green Lane, just at the junction with Easy Road. Here, the chimney was shattered about quarter-past six, and the lightning, apparently having made its way along the roof, descended through a bedroom window. The glass and the sash were splintered, a piece of broken woodwork being carried right across the street, and through the window of a house on the other side. The bedroom was empty, and no damage was done except to the structure. The chimney was choked up with bricks and soot, and the paper on the ceiling was stripped off. Slates were taken off the roof, and the rain poured through into the room. The only occupants of the house at the time were Mrs Mann and her grandchild. Mrs Mann was in the shop and the child was standing in the doorway of the house, directly under the room which was damaged. Mrs Mann heard the crash of falling bricks, and then the little girl came running to her in a state of terror, saying that "the moon" had just flashed past her head.

The local interference with the telephone has not been serious, but Rothwell Exchange was quite cut off.

A chimney stack at Middleton was struck by lightning, and it is said to be in a dangerous condition.

Henry Harrison, of Potwell Farm, about a couple of miles outside Pontefract, was struck dead by the lightning. The discovery was made by a neighbour, Mr James Booth, who noticed that a stack on Mr Harrison's premises was on fire, and on proceeding there he found Mr Harrison lying dead near the stack. He had evidently been struck down by the same flash which had fired the stack. Mr Harrison leaves a widow and a grown-up family.

SOMETHING IN THE EYE.

Never needlessly expose the eyes to foreign particles, but when necessary wear plain glasses. When experimenting with chemicals always turn the mouth of the tube or bottle away from the face and eyes. Whenever an eye is injured severely place the patient immediately in a dark room and under the care of a skilled physician, whose directions must be implicitly followed. The foreign bodies may be solids, as sand, cinders, hair, dirt, &c., lime, acids, or alkalies. Do not rub the eyes. Avoid sudden glares of light, never look directly at the sun. To remove the solid particles from under the lids, it is sufficient to pull the lid away from the eye and to wipe the body with a piece of moist paper or the corner of a handkerchief; if it is under the upper lid, grasp the lid firmly between the thumb and finger, lift it from the eyeball and draw it down over the lower lid, and then allow it to slide slowly back to its natural position. The foreign body will be scraped off by the lashes

At Aberford Church School last month the percentage of attendance was 88.72 against 90.83 for June last year.

Pea-pulling commenced in the district on Monday morning, Messrs Anson Bros. employing a large number of hands in the industry.

A sum of £517 17s. has been sent by Mr Robert Ibbitson, to Leeds Infirmary, being the proceeds of Thorparch Hospital Sunday, promoted by the local branch of the M.U.O.

GOLDEN WEDDING.—Mr and Mrs Alfred Ridsdale, of Kirkby Overblow, have just celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. They were married at Kirkby Overblow, and, with the exception of the honeymoon, Mr Ridsdale has never spent a full week out of Kirkby Overblow. He has just passed his 74th birthday, but is still able to fulfil his duties as sexton and bell-ringer.

A SMASH.—William Basley, Darlington, chauffeur to Sir Henry Havelock Allan, Bart., M.P., was, at Wetherby, yesterday, fined £10 and costs for driving a motor-car at a speed dangerous to the public at the cross roads, at Boston Spa, on Whit-Sunday. It was alleged that he went over the crossing at a speed of forty miles an hour, and that he collided with a car driven by Mr Harry Hall, motor engineer, Boundary Road, Leeds. The latter's speed was only about eight miles an hour, and he turned to the left to try and avoid the collision. His car was completely wrecked, and he was confined to bed for some days by his injuries.

REMANDED.—Yesterday at Selby James Nicholls and Wm. Harper, of the Dragoon Guards, stationed at Dunbar, were charged with stealing £6, the property of Mr E. A. How, headmaster of the Drax Grammar School, near Selby, on Wednesday. The prisoners, it was stated by Supt. Stafford, paid a visit to Mr How and asked for assistance. They were invited into the study, on the mantel-shelf of which was placed gold and silver. Mr How proceeded to get them refreshment, but on his return he found that the men had disappeared, and also a sovereign. The men were arrested in a public-house at Langrick. It was since ascertained that the prisoners were deserters. They were remanded in custody.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
COMMENCES SATURDAY, JULY 4th.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

DOYLE'S
The Noted China House
Its Easy to Improve the Appearance of Your Home.
There is nothing that will so easily improve the appearance of a home as tasteful Glass and China Ware, and to fully realize the remarkable advance which has taken place in this industry, one must call through Doyle's splendid Showrooms, which are full of the most exquisite and dainty China and Glassware imaginable. Throughout the prices are strictly competitive, and many of the unique styles and designs are quite exclusive, and can only be obtained from US. Why not call the next time you are in Town, or at least look in our windows.
Tea Sets, 40 pieces ... ... from 9/6 to £20
Dinner Sets ... ... ,, 10/6 to £30
Toilet Sets ... ... ,, 5/6 to £10
Trinket Sets ... ... ,, 2/6 to £5
59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS
DOYLE'S. LTD

BEST & BOOTH,
TAILORS,
119, KIRKGATE,
AND
11, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.
Ladies' Department, Duncan Street.
Look Out for B. & B.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949.
Huddersfield: " 1609.
Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES :—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

ROSES

Roses have made rapid progress during the recent showery weather, and seem to have made up for the check they received from the severe frost in May. We press upon our readers the importance of frequent syringing, especially in town gardens. By keeping the stems and foliage clean much is done to counteract the evil effects of smoke and chemical-laden atmosphere. Occasionally an infusion per-parted from soft soap and quassia chips should be used with the object of keeping down greenfly. The unsightly rose-maggot can only be kept in check by hand-picking. If large blooms are wanted, disbudding will have to be resorted to. Beginners are naturally reluctant to remove any strong, healthy looking flower buds, and we heartily sympathise with them. Personally, we can admire a cluster of naturally grown roses just as much as we can one huge bloom. This, of course, is a matter of taste. If any disbudding is practised it should be attended to immediately the buds are large enough to handle. Flowers intended for exhibition purposes should be shaded from bright sun, and protected from rain. Any garden sundries dealer will supply suitable contrivances for these purposes. Established trees may be freely supplied with liquid manure. There are few greedier plants than a rose.

SWEET PEAS

Early sown sweet peas are now blooming freely. It is very important that the roots should never be allowed to suffer for want of water. There are various ways of preventing this. If time will allow, regular supplies of water may be given. This is a phase of culture which is often sadly mismanaged. A mere sprinkling of the surface soil is useless. When water is given, it should be in sufficient quantity to reach the deepest roots. Some growers never water the plants after they commence to grow freely. A good mulching of manure is given immediately after the final watering, and this is supplemented by occasional coverings of soil from the sides of the rows. In adding more soil to the sides of the rows care should be taken to make it quite firm. This is a little point that is often overlooked. It is well known that sweet peas make rapid growth in loose, rich soil, but it is at the expense of the flowers, especially during dull or wet weather. Spring-sown plants that are just showing buds require some encouragement. It is a mistake to allow them to commence flowering before they become strong in the main stems. It will occasion very little delay to remove the first few buds which show, as invigorated growth will follow, and buds that show later will produce finer blooms. It is a great pity they will open very nearly as soon as the weaker ones would have done if they had been left.

DAHLIAS

Dahlias should now be growing freely and will require suitable supports. If these were not placed in position at the time of planting they should be got in at once. The main stems should be tied as they grow. They are very brittle, and if allowed to blow about are often certain to get snapped off at the joint. They should not be tied too tightly to the stakes, but should be allowed sufficient room to swell. When the plants make a "break," that is, commence to branch, four of five of the strongest should be selected as flowering stems, and if each of these is tied to a separate stake a shapely plant may be secured. Free-growing varieties should have a quantity of the lateral growths removed, simply retaining the strongest. Earwigs are very fond of dahlias and invariably prove troublesome. Quantities may be trapped by placing an inverted plant pot on the top of the stakes, with a little dry hay in each. Examine these traps several times a day, and destroy any insects that may be found therein.

ANNUALS

Hardy annuals may be encouraged to give of their best by severely thinning the seedlings. Very few gardeners have sufficient courage to do the necessary amount of thinning. Such plants as Shirley poppies, cornflowers, etc., require at least inches of space. When this is secured they branch freely, and continue to bloom many weeks after the more crowded plants have exhausted their vigour. This is easily explained. If a large number of plants are allowed to grow in each other in a small space they become drawn, weak, and spindley, and the roots quickly assimilate the food contained in the soil. On the other hand, when thinning has been suitably attended to, the plants have the full benefit of light and air, whilst the roots have a comparatively larger area to wander in in search of food. Tall growing varieties should be neatly staked. If allowed to blow about at will, they do not thrive satisfactorily, as the roots get strained, and many of the shoots get broken off. If the soil is dry, a good soaking of water should be given before thinning.

FOXGLOVES

The present in a good time to sow foxglove seeds. Sow on a moist, partly shaded border, and attend to watering. As soon as the seedlings are large enough to handle, prick them out into a nursery bed in a similar position. Watering may be required until they commence to grow freely. There are few prettier plants for a shady border, and when once established it will only be necessary to thin out the seedlings afterwards. They seed freely, and from one seed stem hundreds of plants will appear. The seedlings from a present sowing may be transferred to their flowering quarters in October. The giant form is extremely useful for planting in large shrubberies.

VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Continue to sow and transplant lettuce, and make further sowings of radishes.

There is still time to sow the curled kale to be used as a second crop. The seedlings should be pricked into nursery beds as soon as they are large enough to handle. From there they may be transferred to plots cleared from the maturing of early peas, cabbage, etc.

Celery is a native marsh plant and obviously requires moist treatment. During dry weather frequent applications of water must be given. The surface soil should be stirred with a hoe or hand fork a few hours after water has been given, and as soon as the plants commence to grow freely a little soil should be placed around them with the object of conserving moisture. Keep a sharp look out for the leaf-mining maggot, and remove affected parts as soon as they are observed.

Kidney beans sometimes hang fire for a long time. Any rows that are showing this tendency should be watered with a solution of nitrate of soda at the rate of half an ounce to the gallon. Parsley should be thinned out sufficiently to allow it to develop. Each plant should be allowed at least nine inches of space. If large quantities are required the thinnings may be transplanted.

Peas should never be allowed to topple over. Keep the haulm erect with suitable supports.

PLANTS UNDER GLASS.

CLERODENDRON FALLAX

If required for winter-flowering a batch of plants should be propagated from cuttings taken from the old plants that were cut back in the early spring. The cuttings should be placed in a warm house under a bell-glass or frame and afforded gentle bottom heat. When they are rooted pot the cuttings singly in pots, placing them in a warm house or stove near to the roof glass. For the second potting employ a compost consisting or rich loam and leaf-mould mixed with coarse sand and a small quantity of bone bones. Large, well-grown specimens are an acquisition in the stove house during the autumn months. The clerodendron may also be propagated from a sed, which should be sown according to the period the plants are required to flower.

MELONS.

Melons which are growing freely in their own house should be carefully trained to the trellis as they develop. The roots may be watered if the soil is dry, but the watering should not be done close to the collar of the plants. The soil can be prevented from drying too quickly by laying over the surface of the roots an inch or two of short manure; this also nourishes the plants when the fruits are swelling. The bottom heat temperature should be about 85 degrees, and the atmosphere at night should be 70 to 75 degrees, according to the weather, rising 10 to 15 degrees in the day when the sun is warm. In the morning the walls and paths should be damped, and in the afternoon of every bright day the house should be gently syringed. In dull, mild weather care must be taken not to allow the atmosphere of the house to become close and humid; ventilation must depend upon outside climatic conditions, usually increasing up to noon, and afterwards decreasing with the declining sun. Succession crops should now be planted, and the seed for later crops sown.

CUCUMBERS.

Cucumber plants in the forcing house which are now in full bearing should only be allowed to carry a crop sufficient to keep up the requirements, as over-cropping exhausts the vitality of the plants. The roots should be liberally supplied with water, and if the bed has hitherto been only partially moistened, it may now be completed, using the same compost, and adding a mulch of rotten manure. An occasional dampening with manure water will help to keep the plants in a vigorous and fruitful condition. They should be regularly thinned. As the nights become milder and the heat of the sun more powerful the night temperature may be increased to 75 degrees, when closing the house in the afternoon the foliage should be sprinkled with warm soft water, and a moist atmosphere maintained.

SHOCKING AFFAIR AT LOFTHOUSE.

LINESMAN ELECTROCUTED.

A shocking affair occurred at Lofthouse on Monday. Joseph Roddy, a linesman in the service of the Post Office, who lived at 54, Leighton Lane, Park Lane, Leeds, was working on the Wakefield Road, near the Eagle Inn, when he received a shock from a circuit of at least 6,000 volts, and was electrocuted, although it was not until some time later that he died in the Leeds Infirmary.

It is a peculiar circumstance of Roddy's death that he was engaged at the time of receiving the shock in placing notices cautioning linesmen as to the need for keeping within measurable distance of each other on the top-most wires. On the Wakefield Road the telegraph poles carry at intervals the crossing wires of the Yorkshire Electric Power Company, and the electricity passing through those wires is of such high voltage that hitherto it has been considered dangerous that workmen engaged in line work should come into near proximity to them. As a matter of fact, to-wards the top of each pole is fixed an iron platform with the specific object of preventing workmen getting anywhere near the power wires.

Roddy was engaged in fixing caution plates warning workmen not to go upon that platform, and it is inconceivable that a man so engaged should wilfully endanger his own life. No one but a little girl, it seems, saw the accident happen, and all she saw was a big flash at the moment when he fell.

Inquiries made by the authorities seem to show that Roddy was killed whilst actually fixing the caution plate between the topmost wire of the Post Office and the iron platform which is fixed to mark the danger zone. Overhead, at a distance of nearly three feet from Roddy, passed the Electric Power Company's wire, and great though that distance was, the only explanation for the fatality is that an arc was set up between the power wire and Roddy's body. If that is accepted as having been the case, the authorities will need to revise their theories as to what constitutes the danger zone of a high tension wire.

Roddy, who is stated to have been an experienced and capable workman, was married only three months ago.

Mrs. W. Bowman Cutter, a wealthy widow, of seventy, living at Bowon, Massachusetts, eloped with her chauffeur, a twenty-one-year-old Reddein.

Mr Lloyd George in Parliamentary papers states that he is not at present prepared to introduce legislation reopening the general question of the taxation of liquor and liquor licences.

A man was working on his allotment near Stroud when a swarm of bees attacked him. He took to his heels and gained the shelter of the hospital, where he was relieved of his enemies.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.
Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.
(All rights reserved).

A SUCCESSFUL BREEDING SEASON.
(Continued).

(Readers are particularly requested to note that this series of articles commenced with the earlier issue in January. In order to obtain their full value, the earlier article should be read in conjunction with the current one).

Our chickens are now a week old. Visitors to poultry shows, and ourselves fanciers, frequently comment upon the extraordinary size of the exhibits. How is it done? Of course, hereditary influence is an important consideration, but even this is absorbed by the question of management during rearing.

Successful fanciers realise that the young chicks must be kept growing each and every day, right from the time of hatching.

Periodical cycles of enthusiasm are of little worth. Whilst the chicks are growing, in fact until they attain maturity, there must be no week-ends, no Bank holidays, no days off, for any little set-back means that the chicken ultimately attaining maximum growth.

The majority of you are mainly interested in egg production, and that I have chiefly in mind as I write. But I am sure that their importance is interested if we are rearing chickens for table purposes. In that case your success depends entirely upon marketing your product at the earliest possible moment. Every day's delay means extra expense in feeding, as well as market prices depreciating. Truly table chickens are an example of the early bird catching the worm; the worm in this case being top prices.

I dislike preaching, from boyhood days it worried me, but a few words of wholesome advice are frequently beneficial, particularly if they are the result of experience, and are adopted and acted upon.

I therefore unhesitatingly assert that one of the most important factors to your success is constant, intelligent care and management of your growing stock.

Thy will always thrive better on soil which has not previously carried poultry. The housing accommodation must be good—perfectly clean and sanitary, draught as well as rain-proof, and with ventilation whilst even a suspicion of overcrowding must be strictly avoided. Chickens cannot grow rapidly and healthily except under the most favourable conditions. Hundreds start off well, but as they grow extra accommodation be ing provided; growth is checked, vitality suffers, disease germs are no longer conquered, but become themselves the victor in the contest, and what promised so well is being waged between disease and health. Failure ensues. Cause and effect; you were wanting in your management, 'twas not a case of hard luck at all.

Be very careful then to provide ample accommodation, and on strictly sanitary lines. I do not like the youngsters cooped up in foster-mothers or houses with wire-netting fronts and doors. Take advantage of every minute of sunshine. Keep the youngsters as active of possible. Avoid long grass; this is frequently saturated with dew during the early hours of the day; commonsense alone should dictate to you that such a condition is undesirable. Heavy winds try the youngsters sorely; often they are overpowered, and the result is a compression of the vitality. As the nights become milder and the heat of the sun more powerful the night temperature may be lowered to 75 degrees, when closing the house in the afternoon the foliage should be sprinkled with warm soft water, and a moist atmosphere maintained.

SHOCKING AFFAIR AT LOFTHOUSE.

LINESMAN ELECTROCUTED.

A shocking affair occurred at Lofthouse on Monday. Joseph Roddy, a linesman in the service of the Post Office, who lived at 54, Leighton Lane, Park Lane, Leeds, was working on the Wakefield Road, near the Eagle Inn, when he received a shock from a circuit of at least 6,000 volts, and was electrocuted, although it was not until some time later that he died in the Leeds Infirmary.

It is a peculiar circumstance of Roddy's death that he was engaged at the time of receiving the shock in placing notices cautioning linesmen as to the need for keeping within measurable distance of each other on the top-most wires. On the Wakefield Road the telegraph poles carry at intervals the crossing wires of the Yorkshire Electric Power Company, and the electricity passing through those wires is of such high voltage that hitherto it has been considered dangerous that workmen engaged in line work should come into near proximity to them. As a matter of fact, towards the top of each pole is fixed an iron platform with the specific object of preventing workmen getting anywhere near the power wires.

Roddy was engaged in fixing caution plates warning workmen not to go upon that platform, and it is inconceivable that a man so engaged should wilfully endanger his own life. No one but a little girl, it seems, saw the accident happen, and all she saw was a big flash at the moment when he fell.

Inquiries made by the authorities seem to show that Roddy was killed whilst actually fixing the caution plate between the topmost wire of the Post Office and the iron platform which is fixed to mark the danger zone. Overhead, at a distance of nearly three feet from Roddy, passed the Electric Power Company's wire, and great though that distance was, the only explanation for the fatality is that an arc was set up between the power wire and Roddy's body. If that is accepted as having been the case, the authorities will need to revise their theories as to what constitutes the danger zone of a high tension wire.

Roddy, who is stated to have been an experienced and capable workman, was married only three months ago.

A HEARSON INCUBATOR for 5/- a year!

A 60-Egg Hearson costs £5 8 6 complete and carriage paid, and will hatch every fertile egg for upwards of 10 years, therefore the initial outlay works out at less than 10/- per annum; that is the Poultry Fearer's most profitable investment. May we send you a free copy of "The Problem Solved," which is published at 21/-?
Proprietors: SPRATT'S PATENT LTD., 24-25, Fenchurch St., London, E.C.

FINAL REDUCTION FOR SITTINGS

4/- There is still time to set eggs from light breeds, Buff Orpingtons, Silver Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, Black Orpingtons, Anconas, Leghorns, or White, Black and Brown Langshans, Gold and Silver Sebrights. 4/-

Pure-bred Day-old Chicks of above breeds, 10/- dozen.

RALPH R. ALLEN, SAWBRIDGEWORTH, HERTS.

ALLEN'S CHOLERA CURE. Price 8/1, post paid.
A positive Cure for Cholera, Bowel Trouble, Indigestion, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, &c. Used occasionally as a tonic-aperient it will keep the vent in will effectually prevent disease of the kind. Directions with each bottle.

ALLEN'S GAPE CURE. Price 8/1, post paid.
Will surely and quickly cure Gapes. Infectious disease if used as directed. Full instructions with each bottle.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES. Price 1/6 per box, post paid.
The Poultry Friend. Immediately a bird is noticed off colour a capsule (iron, quinine, and cod-liver oil) night and morning will quickly restore it. Use for a day or two before and after shows they are invaluable.

ALLEN'S YEAST & BUTTERMILK. Price 1/3 per Large Tin, post paid.
The whole flock should be treated occasionally; every Broody Hen before entrusting her with a sitting of eggs.

RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

HOUSE-BREAKING AT ROUNDHAY.

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT'S EVIDENCE.

An extraordinary case in which two respectably connected youths are involved has occupied the attention of the Leeds police. According to the evidence the se youths, both smart and well-dressed, Bertie Randolf Terry (18), tailor, son of a respected Hornsey tradesman, and Walter Gudgeon (19), grocer's assistant, of 8, Trelawn Place, Headingley, have in their spare time broken into dwelling-houses and committed thefts.

On Monday the youths were committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions on a charge of breaking into the house of Mr A. S. Gall, of the Agricultural Department of the Leeds University, at Rutherglen, Lidgett Park Road, Roundhay, who is well-known as a lecturer in the district, to John Leth, and stealing money and various articles of jewellery.

Mr Gall, giving evidence, said that he and his wife had been out that evening, and when they returned they saw the prisoner Terry standing at the corner of the road, talking with a police-sergeant. Upon entering their house they found that it had been ransacked, and their absence, an entrance having been obtained by bursting the back door lock. Finding that valuables had been taken, he went out to inform the police, and saw Terry in custody. He was then charged with the sergeant had gone.

Taking him to be merely a casual bystander, Mr Gall said he asked Terry which way the sergeant had gone. Terry asked, "Is anything the matter? Shall I fetch him?" The witness explained, and Terry ran after the policeman, and returned with him and a plain-clothes officer, who also visited the house.

According to further evidence, the defendants were arrested through an attempt to dispose of a gold watch, the number of which Mr Gall had taken care to give to the police. Until that time there had been no suspicion that the two young men were concerned in the theft.

A second charge against the two prisoners was mentioned, and admitted on their behalf by Mr R. C. Davies, who appeared for them, and who said it could be taken into account when the men were dealt with at the Sessions. This was a case in which they were charged with breaking into the house of Mr Austin Mahoney, the well-known Leeds singer, in Grange View, Chapel Allerton, on January 23rd, and stealing a silver watch.

The prisoners on being committed for trial were allowed bail.

GARDEN PARTY AT ROUNDHAY.

At the Hall, Roundhay, on Tuesday afternoon, the Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr E. A. Brotherton) and the Lady Mayoress (Mrs Ratcliffe) dispensed hospitality to a party of blind collectors, and engaged in the effort to raise an Endowment Fund for the provision of Braille literature for the blind.

The party of the blind made a very interesting group. Included in their number were Mr H. C. Preece, a former well-known amateur county cricketer, who played with Essex, and the fact that Essex are to play Surrey during the week recalled to his mind that when he first played against Yorkshire in 1896 at Leyton, he had the unhappy experience of being bowled first ball by Wainwright Peel.

Another picturesque personality in the party was Mr Meredith, who regularly attends cricket and football matches; while Sergeant Wm. Johnson, is a blind ex-soldier of the King's Liverpool Regiment, who was with General Buller in the South African campaign, and being ambushed, received four bullets.

One bullet lodged embedded in his neck, only to re-appear in his mouth while breakfasting two years later. Besides blinding him it destroyed his olfactory nerve, but the sword is a compensation, for not only does it include insect pests, which are greatly responsible for fatalities during childhood, but also cats, rats, foxes, stoats, weasles, rooks, hawks, crows, etc.

To avoid these risks many poultry-keepers use portable wired chicken runs. These can be readily moved, afford adequate protection against the above-named enemies, and are comparatively inexpensive.

Yes, as I read through the foregoing I feel its purport is, use commonsense, display untiring energy, and success will be your reward.

Originally, it was my intention to write further upon dietary in this article, but that must now be deferred to a later one.

(To be continued).

(Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer must enclose a penny birds for post-card examination, must remit half-crown postal order).

The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, have been assassinated while driving through the streets of Sarajevo.

SKIN SPECIALISTS' MEDICAL MIXTURE
PROF. CROSSWAITE
54, KIRKSTALL RD., LEEDS.
HOURS OF ATTENDANCE:
Morning: 10 to 12. Afternoon: 2 to 4. Evening: 5 to 8.
WEDNESDAY (Evenings only) 6.30 to 8.
No Attendance on Sundays.
COMFORTABLE WAITING ROOM.
PRIVATE CONSULTING ROOM.

CHILD CURED OF WORMS.

(Copy). 4, Parkfield Row, Beeston, Leeds, May 8th, 1911.

Dear Sir,—I have the greatest pleasure in sending you this letter, thanking you for the wonderful cure of my baby boy, aged 2 years. You will no doubt remember me bringing him to see you in September last year. He was troubled with worms. He could not sleep at nights, was very irritable, and getting thinner every day, and we had tried various remedies, but all seemed to do him no good. He was under your herbal treatment for 3 weeks and had two boxes of powder and six bottles of medicine, and he new seems to be a new child. They do not believe us when we tell them his age, they say he is more like four, he is such a fine boy. He sleeps well, is very contented, and is getting as fat as butter. You have done him a £1000 worth of good. He is a perfect picture of health at the present time; all who see him say so, and nothing I can say is worthy of the wonderful cure. Please accept my heartfelt thanks.

From yours truly,
Mr and Mrs SPEIGHT.

HOUSE-BREAKING AT ROUNDHAY.

WELL-KNOWN RESIDENT'S EVIDENCE.

An extraordinary case in which two respectably connected youths are involved has occupied the attention of the Leeds police. According to the evidence the se youths, both smart and well-dressed, Bertie Randolf Terry (18), tailor, son of a respected Hornsey tradesman, and Walter Gudgeon (19), grocer's assistant, of 8, Trelawn Place, Headingley, have in their spare time broken into dwelling-houses and committed thefts.

On Monday the youths were committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions on a charge of breaking into the house of Mr A. S. Gall, of the Agricultural Department of the Leeds University, at Rutherglen, Lidgett Park Road, Roundhay, who is well-known as a lecturer in the district, to John Leth, and stealing money and various articles of jewellery.

Mr Gall, giving evidence, said that he and his wife had been out that evening, and when they returned they saw the prisoner Terry standing at the corner of the road, talking with a police-sergeant. Upon entering their house they found that it had been ransacked, and their absence, an entrance having been obtained by bursting the back door lock. Finding that valuables had been taken, he went out to inform the police, and saw Terry in custody. He was then charged with the sergeant had gone.

Taking him to be merely a casual bystander, Mr Gall said he asked Terry which way the sergeant had gone. Terry asked, "Is anything the matter? Shall I fetch him?" The witness explained, and Terry ran after the policeman, and returned with him and a plain-clothes officer, who also visited the house.

According to further evidence, the defendants were arrested through an attempt to dispose of a gold watch, the number of which Mr Gall had taken care to give to the police. Until that time there had been no suspicion that the two young men were concerned in the theft.

A second charge against the two prisoners was mentioned, and admitted on their behalf by Mr R. C. Davies, who appeared for them, and who said it could be taken into account when the men were dealt with at the Sessions. This was a case in which they were charged with breaking into the house of Mr Austin Mahoney, the well-known Leeds singer, in Grange View, Chapel Allerton, on January 23rd, and stealing a silver watch.

The prisoners on being committed for trial were allowed bail.

GARDEN PARTY AT ROUNDHAY.

At the Hall, Roundhay, on Tuesday afternoon, the Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr E. A. Brotherton) and the Lady Mayoress (Mrs Ratcliffe) dispensed hospitality to a party of blind collectors, and engaged in the effort to raise an Endowment Fund for the provision of Braille literature for the blind.

The party of the blind made a very interesting group. Included in their number were Mr H. C. Preece, a former well-known amateur county cricketer, who played with Essex, and the fact that Essex are to play Surrey during the week recalled to his mind that when he first played against Yorkshire in 1896 at Leyton, he had the unhappy experience of being bowled first ball by Wainwright Peel.

Another picturesque personality in the party was Mr Meredith, who regularly attends cricket and football matches; while Sergeant Wm. Johnson, is a blind ex-soldier of the King's Liverpool Regiment, who was with General Buller in the South African campaign, and being ambushed, received four bullets.

One bullet lodged embedded in his neck, only to re-appear in his mouth while breakfasting two years later. Besides blinding him it destroyed his olfactory nerve, but the sword is a compensation, for not only does it include insect pests, which are greatly responsible for fatalities during childhood, but also cats, rats, foxes, stoats, weasles, rooks, hawks, crows, etc.

To avoid these risks many poultry-keepers use portable wired chicken runs. These can be readily moved, afford adequate protection against the above-named enemies, and are comparatively inexpensive.

Yes, as I read through the foregoing I feel its purport is, use commonsense, display untiring energy, and success will be your reward.

Originally, it was my intention to write further upon dietary in this article, but that must now be deferred to a later one.

(To be continued).

(Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer must enclose a penny birds for post-card examination, must remit half-crown postal order).

The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, have been assassinated while driving through the streets of Sarajevo.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Few samples were offered. Wheat 33s. to 36s., oats 20s. to 21s., rye 24s. to 25s. per qr.

PROVISION.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 11d. and 12 for 12., butter 10d. to 1s. per lb.; strawberries 4d. per lb; peas 1s. to 1s. 3d. per peck; cherries 4s. per stone; gooseberries, 10d. to 1s. per stone; chickens 4s. 9d. to 5s. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—The prices for old potatoes were: Sond Up-to-Dates 60s. to 65s., sand King Edwards 70s. to 75s., warp King Edwards 80s. to 85s. per ton. A better supply of local new potatoes at 1s. 4d. per stone, or 7s. to 8s. per bag.

CATTLE.

SELBY, Monday.—At this mart Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 87 beasts, 24 sheep and lambs, and 26 pigs. There was the usual attendance of buyers. Trade was a dragging character, best beef making up to 6½. per stone; an improved trade for stores, and good quality in calving heifers and cows found a ready market. Prices as follows:—Fat bullocks, up to £26 12s. 6d. each, fat heifers up to £21 15s. each, fat cows up to £20 10s. each, store cattle up to £12 12s. 6d. each; cows in calf up to £22 5s. each, pigs, up to £7 17s. 6d. each. Heifers in calf up to £19 5s. each, fat sheep up to £2 10s. 6d. each, pork pigs up to £5 16s. each, and small store pigs up to 18s. each.

WHITKIRK AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Bartle and Son's catalogue included 88 dairy cattle and store beasts, 49 fat cows, 115 sheep, 105 pigs, and four calves. The attendance of farmers was affected by haymaking. A good show of dairy cattle, and despite a rather slow trade, a fair clearance was effected. The best newly calved cows made £23 2s. 6d. to £25, medium and secondary kinds £19 7s. 6d. to £22, present calvers £22 15s to £25 15s. August calvers to £19 17s 6d., two-year-old store cattle £12 12s 6d to £15 12s 6d. Little alteration in fat cattle, best bullocks and heifers 7½d., good beef 7½d. cows 6½d per lb, bullocks to £21 5s., heifers to £21 15s., cows to £22 2s. 6d., bulls to £24 5s. Sheep again met a good market, small shearlings 9d., ewes to 7½d., lambs 10½d. to 11d. per lb. Pigs were cheaper; small porkers to 8s., heavier kinds to 7s. 6d. per stone (14lb.), young store pigs 15s. 6d. to 20s., and stronger sorts to 31s. 6d. each.

WETHERBY, Monday.—At this mart Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a good show of prime fat stock; the attendance was rather below the average, and only the very choicest beef made late rates. Big heavy bullocks made a shade less money, and may be quoted from 8d. 9d. to 9d. per stone, cows and heavy beef from 8s. to 8s. 6d. per stone. Sheep again met a good price, from 6d. to 7½d. per lb; and lambs made about late rates. Pork pigs made about 6s. 6d. per stone. Bullocks made up to £27, sheep to £5 5s., each. Fat cattle sold: Bullocks and heifers, 389 sheep and lambs, and 6 pigs. Six grand bullocks from Mr R. Machin, Cattal Grange, made £27; £26 12s 6d., £26 15s., £25 15s., £25 5s., and £24 7s. 6d.; from Mr T. Watson, Newton Kyme, made £24 5s., £22 7s. 6d., £22 15s., £23 10s., £21 7s. 6d.; from Mr Holdsworth, to Mr Bielby, to £21 7s. 6d.; from Mr Bielby, from £20, £18 10s., £18 7s. 6d.; from Mr Bielby, from Mr L. Eversidge, six grand bullocks, £25 5s., £24 7s. 6d., £21 17s. 6d., £20 5s., £19 17s. 6d.; from St. John's Institute, three beasts made to £21 12s 6d., £17, £16 10s.; from Mr R. C. Bielby, two bullocks making £23 7s. 6d., and £23 17s. 6d.; from Mr J. H. Hoole, of Bickerton Grange, six good bullocks making £23 7s. 6d., £23 5s., £22 17s 6d., £22 12s 6d., £21, etc.; from Mr Norfolk, Tockwith, two bullocks making £21 10s., and £21 10s.; from Mr J. Richardson, of Linton, made £25 7s. 6d. and £22 17s. 6d.; from Mr J. Atkinson, of Walshford, to £22 10s.; from Mr Walshford, to £21 10s.; from Mr J. Walshford, made £21 15s., £24 2s. 6d., £22 7s. 6d., £22 17s. 6d., £21 2s. 6d.; from Mr F. Burniston, of Wharton Lodge, two bullocks, making £23 5s., £20 15s.; from Mr J. Norfolk, Tockwith, two bullocks making £21 10s., and £21 10s.; from Douthwaite Bros., two bullocks making £21 12s. 6d. and £17 15s.; from Mrs Carr, Hunsingore, two bullocks making £25 and £22 17s. 6d., and one heifer £19 15s.; from Mr Hawkswell, Synginthwaite, two bullocks making £24 12s. 6d. and £23. Prime sheep from Mr J. N. Atkinson made to 6½. 6d. each; from Mr R. Bielby to 6½. 6d. each; from Mr R. Machin to 6½. each; from Mr H. Holmes to 5½. each; from Mr J. Gowland to 5½. each; from Mr R. Bielby to 5½. each; from Mr Masson to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr R. Burrell to 5½. each; from Mr Barnett to 5½. each; from Mr Tindall to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr J. T. Dearlove to 5½. each; from Mr W. S. Bielby to 5½. each; from Mr Elwess to 5½. each; from Mr Liversidge to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr H. Grainger to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr Pawson to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr Holmes and Hardisty to 5½. each; from Mr J. Jewitt to 5½. each; from Mr Elwess to 5½. each; from Mr L. Masson to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr Isaacs to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr Liversidge to 5½. each; from Mr W. Atkinson to 5½. 6d. each; from Mr Blaken to 5½. each; from Mr Beech to 5½. each; from Mr Buckle to 5½. each; from Mr Sturdy to 5½. each; from Mr Elvidge to 5½. each; and from Mr Goodworth to 5½. 6d. each.

SELBY

TRAWLERS LAUNCHED.—On Saturday three was launched from the yard of Messrs Cochrane and Sons, Ltd., ship-builders, Selby, a steel screw trawler, the principal dimensions being 130ft. by 23ft. 6in. by 13ft. 6in. moulded. She was built to the order of Messrs Roberts and Ruthven, Ltd., Grimsby, and will be fitted with powerful triple expansion engines by Messrs C. D. Holmes and Co., Ltd., of Hull. As the launch left the ways she was gracefully named Velia by Mrs E. Towne, of Fleetwood. Afterwards another trawler was launched, the principal dimensions being 122ft. by 23ft. by 13ft. 6in. moulded. The vessel has been built to the order of Messrs Roberts and Ruthven, Ltd., Grimsby, and will be fitted with powerful triple expansion engines by Messrs C. D. Holmes and Co., Ltd., of Hull. As the launch left the ways she was gracefully named Mona by Mrs R. W. Roberts, of Grimsby, after which the party adjourned to the builder's offices, where the usual toasts were given and responded to.

LADIES BLANCHARD'S PILLS
Are specially recommended by Chemists and Druggists as the safest and most reliable remedy known for all irregularities and obstructions. They speedily bring on the monthly period with regularity. Are sold in three strengths, No. 1, 2s. 9d.; No. 2, 5s.; No. 3, 10s. 6d. Of all Chemists, Sole Agents, Messrs. Evans, Sons, Lescher and Webb, Ltd., Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C. Sent to any address in the United Kingdom on receipt of Postal Order. Beware of Imitations. Ask for BLANCHARD'S PILLS. Refuse substitutes. Write for Pamphlet. Free Sample by return. Address: BLANCHARD, Ltd. Chemists, 3, BALSTON LANE, LONDON.

Telegrams Scott, Selby. Telephone 194.

IF YOU REQUIRE

GENUINE RAW PERUVIAN GUANO, FISH GUANO, SULPHATE of AMMONIA, NITRATE of SODA, RAPE NUTS and DUST, KAIFE MEAL, PURE DISSOLVED BONES, PURE BONE MEAL and FLOUR, SUPER-PHOSPHATE (16 per cent.), BASIC SLAG, SULPHATE of POTASH, GENUINE KAINIT, LAND SALT (in Truck Loads), ETC., ETC.

We shall be pleased to quote Prices for any quantity.

QUALITY and GOOD CONDITION of the above GUARANTEED.
PROMPT DELIVERY can be given either at Works here or at Buyer's Station.

M'SCOTT & Co
OIL MILLS, SELBY.

Thousands of People Praise Teasdale's Chlorodyne

—the old and trusted medicine that has stood the test of 70 years—as the best remedy known for

COUGHS, COLDS, COLIC, CRAMP, STOMACH ACHE, BOWEL PAINS, DIARRHŒA.

Mr. Bramham, Kirkhamgate, Wakefield, says:—"For sixteen years Teasdale's Chlorodyne has been our family medicine for Coughs, Colds, Diarrhœa, Sleepless Nights, and all kinds of complaints. We have had other Chlorodynes, but find none equal to Teasdale's."

"Teasdale's Chlorodyne should always be kept in the house as handy family medicine. It saves doctors' bills."

Trial Bottle, only 7½d., Larger Sizes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d. Can be had of Chemists; also Boots's and Taylor's Drug Stores, and Goodall, Backhouser, & Co.

ASK FOR
TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

Refuse others recommended to be as good. Insist on having "TEASDALE'S."

SHORT STORY.

DANGEROUS RIVAL.

Marian Summers was capering slowly along the grassy border of the parish churchyard. Whitehill Park, her father's beautiful residence in the Midlands, where a charming society suddenly sprang over an adjacent hedge, and held a letter towards her.

"What on earth is the meaning of this?" she exclaimed, ripping up her horse and opening the envelope with a dexterous twist of the jewelled handle of her riding-whip.

The note ran as follows: "I implore you to grant me an interview this evening I shall be at Spinney Hollow, by the gate which skirts the churchyard till nine. Remember that I am entitled to an explanation, for you have treated me cruelly. I returned from India, but at present desire my visit to England to be unknown to anybody except yourself.—A. D."

"There's no answer," she said to the gaping rustic, as she resumed her ride homewards, a frown of alarm and agitation instantly seizing upon her mind.

For this sudden and wholly unexpected return of Arthur Chinnery from India suggested a reopening of all the painful and scandalous questions connected with his name, and put a present damper on her visit to England to be unknown to anybody except yourself.—A. D."

"There's no answer," she said to the gaping rustic, as she resumed her ride homewards, a frown of alarm and agitation instantly seizing upon her mind.

For this sudden and wholly unexpected return of Arthur Chinnery from India suggested a reopening of all the painful and scandalous questions connected with his name, and put a present damper on her visit to England to be unknown to anybody except yourself.—A. D."

"What on earth is the meaning of this?" she exclaimed, ripping up her horse and opening the envelope with a dexterous twist of the jewelled handle of her riding-whip.

The note ran as follows: "I implore you to grant me an interview this evening I shall be at Spinney Hollow, by the gate which skirts the churchyard till nine. Remember that I am entitled to an explanation, for you have treated me cruelly. I returned from India, but at present desire my visit to England to be unknown to anybody except yourself.—A. D."

"There's no answer," she said to the gaping rustic, as she resumed her ride homewards, a frown of alarm and agitation instantly seizing upon her mind.

For this sudden and wholly unexpected return of Arthur Chinnery from India suggested a reopening of all the painful and scandalous questions connected with his name, and put a present damper on her

HALTON WESLEYAN CHURCH.

ORGAN-OPENING CEREMONY.

SUCCESSFUL SERVICES.

Halton has a long and honourable connection with Methodism. It was probably established in the stirring days of Wesley, but the early history is obscure, although we are told that two gay-rously disposed persons, desirous of extending the influence of the work, left two cottages in 1811 as a site for a Wesleyan Chapel. Not unduly was a chapel built, but it has given its name to a street. For many years the members were content with the facilities provided by the chapel itself, and then Sunday-school accommodation to meet the demands of the times, was needed, and the splendidly-appointed premises at the back of the chapel were erected as they were required. Thereafter, it was decided to extend and improve the church itself. The handsome porch at the front of the building was erected as a memorial to members of a well-known family, and the introduction of a pipe organ, which necessitated considerable alterations, was determined upon. For several years the members have been engaged in raising the money to carry out this scheme, and on Saturday they saw the realization of their hopes. A handsome organ, excellent in tone, has been built by Wordsworth and Co., of Leeds, at a cost of £380, and, installed at one end of the chapel, at the back of the choir seats, it enhances the beauty of the building, which has just been painted and redecorated.

At the organ-opening ceremony on Saturday afternoon there was a good congregation representative of every part of the circuit, and among those present were Mrs Atkinson, of Church, Mrs W. G. Crosthwaite (Halton), Rev George Allen, B.A. (Leeds), Rev. Owen Jones (superintendent minister), Rev. E. Bell (Cross-gates), and the Rev. E. Rees (Garforth). The Rev. Owen Jones, who gave the dedicatory prayer, said that the success of the effort was due in a large measure to the ladies of the congregation, and no one had done more to bring it about than their friend and class leader—Mrs W. G. Crosthwaite—who bore a name long associated with the cause. He called upon her to present a silver key to Mrs Atkinson.

Mrs Atkinson, a fine old lady, who was accompanied by her son, Mr F. D. C. Atkinson, of Halton, the treasurer of the Organ Fund, and Mrs Crosthwaite then took their places in front of the organ, and Mrs Crosthwaite said she was pleased to see that day and to be in that position. For years they had worked for the object they had in view, and now their desires had been fulfilled, and they were only waiting to praise God for His goodness. She was delighted to be associated with Mrs Atkinson in that opening ceremony, for she and her family had taken a kindly interest in the chapel, and she had great pleasure in presenting the silver key to Mrs Atkinson.

After she had unlocked the organ, Mrs Atkinson made a charming little speech. She said that she made no apology for addressing them as friends, for she seemed to have known them for many years. When she was a girl she used to drive through Halton on the way to visit her sainted grand-parents, Mr and Mrs Baggett, of Kippax, and now she had been drawn much nearer to them since her son had come to dwell among them. It was a great pleasure to her to open the new organ, and she trusted that it would help in the worship of Almighty God in that house of prayer. "God bless you all." she concluded.

The dedicatory sermon was preached by the Rev. George Allen, B.A., from the words "I shall yet praise Him." (Psalm 43. 5).

Mr Freeman Whatmore, Miss Bacc, Cantab., formerly organist at the British Embassy Church, Berlin, presided at the organ, and he revealed its beauty of tone and resources by rendering "Extempore Voluntary" and "Festal March."

The Rev. Owen Jones said the organ was a thing of beauty and sweetness. They had several sweet organs in the circuit, and he had heard of the sweetness of the one at Seacroft, and he wondered if the people there thought the organ at Halton was as sweet as it. (Laughter). One pleasing feature of that gathering was that all parts of the circuit were represented—from Richmond Hill to Kippax. He congratulated the Halton friends on the success of that effort. They started before he came into the circuit, and they had raised in connection with the effort £504, and that without the help of Mr Carnegie. (Laughter). When he came into the circuit they had £140 of the £645 in hand, and in three years they had raised £360, and, according to the financial statement, they still needed £85. He was told, however, that certain other work would have to be done, and for that an additional £30 was required, or £105 altogether.

The Rev. E. Bell, in proposing a vote of thanks to all who had taken part in the service, said they all knew the deep interest Mrs Crosthwaite took in the work of God at Halton, and they wished to thank her for the graceful way in which she had done her part. Then there was their mother in Israel—Mrs Atkinson, to whom they were grateful for her services. When he saw her his first thought was "What a grand old Christian lady." She had given sons and daughters to Methodism, some being in the mission field. They would couple with their thanks to her their deep love and respect. He also included the preacher, the organist, and the choir.

The vote was cordially passed.

Mrs Atkinson generously gave £25 to the Organ Fund and £25 towards the extinction of the debt on the church property. Mrs W. G. Crosthwaite contributed £5 to the Organ Fund, and the collection realised £11.

The tea which followed in the schoolroom was very largely attended, there being about 500 people present, and the proceeds were about £20.

At the evening meeting there was a very large attendance, and County Councillor Dewhirst, of Whinmoor Lodge, who gave £5 to the fund, presided. A very happy address was given by the Rev. George Allen, B.A., but the feature of the proceedings was an organ recital by Mr Freeman Whatmore, whose masterly handling of the instrument was greatly admired. His contributions were:—Voluntary, "Coriolanus" (Beethoven); selection, "Introduction and Toccata" (Dr Spark); selection, "Andante from violin concerto" (Mendelsohn); voluntary, "Melody in F" (Rubenstein); selection, "Intermezzo et Accensus" (Rossini); selection, "Sonata pathetique" (Beethoven). The soloist was Mr Arthur Morgan, Wolverhampton, gold medallist Brit. Music Exhibition, London, 1913, and his fine bass voice was heard to advantage in "Honour and Arms," which was sung in finished style. The "Hallelujah chorus" (Handel) was rendered by the choir, and the meeting proved a most successful one. At the close the usual vote of thanks were accorded on the call of Mr J. W. Crosthwaite, of Harrogate (formerly of Halton).

On Sunday the preacher was the Rev. Owen Jones, who is shortly leaving the circuit, and Mr Whatmore again presided at the organ. A musical service was held in the afternoon, and there was a good congregation. Councillor W. Verity, of Halton, who gave £5 to the fund, presided. Mr Whatmoor again delighted the congregation by his skilful playing, and his repertoire included:—Voluntary, "Offertoire" (Wely); selection, "Air varied" (Haydn); selection, "Spring song" (Hollins); voluntary, "Sinfonia Fugue" (Boch). The choir gave in pleasing style "The Heavens are telling" (Haydn), and "Achieved is the glorious work" (Haydn), and Mr Morgan's solos were "The Lord is my Shepherd" (Liddle) and "Like as the hart" (Allitsen). The collection amounted to £3 10s. 9d. At the evening service, when the chapel was crowded, Mr Morgan gave a fine rendering of "When I survey" (L. Hope), and the choir sang "Gloria" (Mozart). Mr Whatmoor played several organ selections, including "Nocturne" (Chopin), "Wedding March" (F. Whatmoor), "Spring song" (Mendelssohn), "Humming song" (Mendelssohn), and overture "Tannhauser" (Wagner). The collection realised £4 19s. 6d., and altogether the proceeds of Sunday's services were £16 5s. 11d.

The total realised for the Organ Fund by the opening services was about £500.

BARKSTON ASH FARMERS AND RATING.

VIEWS OF CAPTAIN YORK, HUTTON HALL.

BILBROUGH FARMER ADVOCATES STRIKE AGAINST INSURANCE.

At a meeting of the Yorkshire Union of Agricultural Clubs and Chambers of Agriculture on Thursday at York there was a small attendance. Captain York, J.P., of Hutton Hall, Marston, who is one of the Tadcaster magistrates, presided, and Mr Frank Myers, of Bilbrough, and Mr. John Thompson, East Rigton, Bardsey, were also present.

The secretary read resolutions passed by clubs, including Tadcaster Chamber, against the abolition of the Agricultural Rates Act without a compensating return.

Mr J. Suggitt (Sheriff Hutton) proposed:—That this Union emphatically protests against the discontinuance of grants under the Agricultural Rates Act in the absence of corresponding relief of local taxation of equal amount in every rural district.

Mr Abbott (Malton) seconded.

The Chairman said this was a very important thing. The Government proposed to rate them on a new system, to separate the value of the house from the land which it stood upon. They were to escape the rates upon their houses, but the whole amount that was to be paid was going to be put on the land. This, in his opinion, was a most vicious system. The Liberal argument was that the present system taxed a man on the product of his industry. That was all very well, but by the income tax they taxed a man on the product of his industry. It appeared that it was right in one case and wrong in another. In agricultural districts, if they looked at the rate books, they would find that houses bore a very small portion comparatively of the rate total. They were so different from the men in the towns. The land on which the house of the man in the town stood was a small thing, but with the farmer the whole thing was reversed. The land was the farmer's raw material, and from any point of view he thought it was vicious to transfer to this class of property the whole of the amount to be paid to local expenses. A penny rate on the capital value over a considerable number of acres would make a perfectly enormous difference to them. They were badly off paying on the annual value, but that was not half so bad as paying on the capital value. It placed in the power of the local authority a big weapon against the man interested in land.

They had always had rating on the annual value, and it was far and away the fairest thing. It was tangible and fairly easily ascertained. The proposed new basis would be difficult to ascertain, and they would be constantly having appeals. The third thing he wished to refer to was that all grants in the Budget were dependent on the passing of the site values portion of the Bill. The next thing they had to consider was if this site value provision passed, who was going to benefit by it? In the event of these distributions being made, those who spent the most money and had the most to spend, namely in the towns and more populous areas, would certainly come in under those grants for larger subsidies than would the smaller places. The agricultural places with smaller opportunities for spending on a large scale, and which were carefully managed, would certainly suffer in proportion to their neighbours who had greater opportunities. They ought to make some sort of protest. The time, he thought, was not yet, because they had not had the whole of the thing thrashed out, but they knew from a course of meetings at which this Budget had been discussed these three points had been raised, and they should certainly go in for a very severe censure of them. (Applause).

Mr F. Myers supported the resolution, and thought that unless they made some stand they were going to have nothing to do with the matter but pay. He felt very grieved that farmers were not taking more interest in it than they were. He thought that room would have been crowded. They ought to strike now, and if the Government withheld relief under the Agricultural Rates Act they should withhold all contributions under the Insurance Act, and they would have the labourers with them. If they stuck together it would take a lot of enforcing, and if it cost them a little it would not break them.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

ATHLETIC FETE AT BRAMHAM PARK.

AMBULANCE COMPETITIONS.

In aid of the funds of the St. John Voluntary Aid Detachment (Bramham No. 249), an athletic fete and ambulance competition were held in Bramham Park on Saturday afternoon. The spacious grounds and gardens, which by the kind permission of Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., were thrown open to the public from eleven o'clock in the forenoon, looked at their best in the glorious sunshine, and these were visited by large numbers of people.

Mr Lane Fox, who was at home, but had to leave shortly after lunch-time, showed a great interest in all that passed off, while he also proved a busy figure as one of the judges in the various events which were down for decision in this capacity he was ably assisted by Mr W. T. Lipscombe. In addition to the athletic sports there were ham and cake guessing competitions, bowling at the wickets, shooting competition, and Aunt Sally.

The results of the athletic events were as follows:—100 Yards Flat Race (boys)—R. Collins. Potato Race (girls)—R. Rodgers. Potato Race (men and boys)—C. Hill. Egg and Spoon Race (girls)—R. Rodgers. 100 Yards Flat Race (men)—C. Hill. High Jump (open)—H. House. Long Jump (open)—C. Hill. Quarter Mile Flat Race (open)—C. Hill. Wheelborrow Race (men or boys)—H. House. Bicycle Slow Race (men)—J. Gallaghan. Sack Race (open)—L. Shackleton and H. Woodruffe.

Following the athletic events an ambulance competition took place below the East Terrace. The contests, which were open to members of voluntary aid detachments, comprised three events, viz.:—(1) for stretcher squads of four men (2) for nursing sections of five women; and (3) the best improvised ambulance cart or wagon prepared by squad of four men. In the first competition the entrants were the Bramham detachement, and a party representing Hammerton and Ouseburn. In the nursing section those taking part were ladies from Bramham, Harrogate No. 1, Knaresborough, Bramham-cum-Thorner (under Mrs Ellis), Wetherby No. 1, Ouseburn and Hammerton. There were only three entrants for competition three, viz., Hammerton, Ouseburn, and Bramham. To those who possessed a knowledge of the rudiments of first aid, the competitions proved interesting, but beyond the witnessing of the first event in which the squads had to treat a supposed casualty to which a wood pigeon, the pair of the wounded, were the victims, the general interest seemed to wane. After being treated the "wounded" were carried by the stretcher squads to the hospital tent, by the stretcher squads to the hospital tent, by the sentry who were handed over to the members of the nursing section for treatment.

The judging of the work was under the direction of Lieut. Colonel A. E. L. Wear, of the West Riding Division Clearing Hospital, Leeds, and he was assisted by Major Coupland, Capt. Darlow, and Capt. Ewing, all of the R.A.M.C. About six o'clock Lieut. Colonel Wear announced as the result of the ambulance work, declaring the team of the Hammerton Squad as winners both for the stretcher work, and the improvised ambulance waggon, which was made of simply a motor car, fitted up with spars, to which slings for the purpose of holding the stretcher, were attached. The first section from Knaresborough, under Lady Mountgarret, of Eagle-hall, Pateley Bridge, were declared winners of the nursing competition.

Lieut-Colonel Wear said he had a few words to say to the ladies in connection with the nursing work. The ladies were very good in bedmaking and general work, but there was one thing they forgot. The moving of the patient was the very first thing they ought to study. He instanced how in the test that afternoon, a section of ladies had, in treating a patient suffering from a shattered ankle, and probably in a state of collapse, left him outside. He took exception to any squad who did not send out someone to give the patient a little brandy, a little tea, or anything of that sort.

The prizes, which were of a monetary kind for the men, and neat wallet cases of instruments intended to be attached to Sam Browne belts, for the nursing sections presented by Lady Mountgarret, who was suitably introduced by Mr W. T. Lipscombe. Lady Mountgarret also presented the prizes to the winners of the various competitions as follows:—Ham guessing, Miss Shaw; cake guessing, Mr Cameron and Miss Poulter; and shooting competition, Mr Thorley.

A vote of thanks to Lady Mountgarret and Lieut.-Colonel Wear, was moved by Mr Lipscombe, and cordially passed.

Dancing followed in the grounds until eight o'clock.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A QUESTION FOR MR LANE FOX, M.P.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Mr Lane Fox, M.P., is returned to Parliament to represent agriculture, which is the means of livelihood of most of his constituents. In common with the other Unionist M.P.'s, he stood aside with folded arms and allowed Mr Lloyd George to accept the "Edinburgh Compromise" as the chief plank in the party platform.

This was an act of treachery to the farmers.

Since then I have tried, in vain, to get from him an answer to this question:—

"Will you pledge yourself to vote against and oppose in every way the present fiscal proposals of Mr Bonar Law, known as the Edinburgh Compromise?"

I, therefore, ask every farmer, and every labourer—the labourer must suffer if the farmer is ruined—who hears Mr Lane Fox speak in his constituency to demand an answer to the above question; a straightforward "yes" or "no." He cannot refuse to reply when challenged in public.—Yours, etc.,

BERNARD GILBERT, Hon. Sec.,
Farmers' Tariff Union
(formed to oppose the present fiscal proposals).
Hawthornden, Lincoln.

MEETING AT POTTERTON HALL, BARWICK.

C.E. WAIFS AND STRAYS SOCIETY.

On the lawn of Potterton Hall, Barwick—the residence of Mr and Mrs H. S. Childe—a meeting was held on Thursday afternoon in connection with the Church of England Waifs and Strays Society, and addresses were delivered by Colonel Beresford Peirse, and the Rev. Charles Escritt (organising secretary for the Ripon diocese) Mr H. S. Childe, J.P., presided, and he was supported by the speakers and the Rector of Barwick (Rev. R. H. Harvey).

Colonel Beresford-Peirse said he had acted as secretary for twenty years, and it had always given him great pleasure to work on behalf of the great society inaugurated by Prebendary Rudolph. There were twelve Waifs and Strays' Homes in Yorkshire, and the chief one was at St. Chad's, far Headingley, Leeds, where eighty girls were kept. They were divided into three classes—girls of the school age, cripples, and those who having left school were being taught domestic service, were taught a trade—machine knitting principally is done. They were not content to make coarse garments, but even knitted stockings for the Episcopal Bench. (Laughter). There was also the Beckett Home at the top of Meanwood Hill, Leeds, which was an industrial institution, the thirty girls there having been committed by a magistrate or education authority. They were taught by residents, and the treasurer was kept very actively in hand. It was wonderful how soon they fell into the ways of the Home, and the results were good. Many were sent to Canada, as it was found desirable to get them out of their returning to the old surroundings. At Nidd Bridge they had another Home built and practically half-endowed by Lord Mountgarret. The babies and strays of Lord Mountgarret first call upon it. No fewer than 22 boys up to the age of 14 were looked after at the Bede Home, Wakefield. When over 14, they were put on a farm or started in the Army, or Navy. The success there had been great. One of their boys had taken scholarships at Oxford, and was on the point of being ordained as a deacon, while another had obtained a County Council scholarship and was training as a teacher. It was difficult to find work for the boys, however, 14 being a difficult age. Other Homes were situated at Mirfield, where 20 girls from six to 14 years of age were kept; and at Huddersfield, where they took boys from six to ten. In conclusion he pointed out that they had none to thank more than the rural deans and parochial secretaries, who had so wholeheartedly helped to collect, and without whose help so much could not have been done.

Mr Escritt said the Society was taking hold of those who were a menace to the nation's life, controlling, training, and educating them, and then sending them out useful and worthy citizens. It was a striking fact that not more than 5 per cent. of the 20,000 children in the Homes had proved wasters. The Society had to deal with a grade of life which lacked brains, blood, morals, education, and honour. He wanted the Church of England people to realise that they were not an outside Society. The Society must be the work of the N.S.P.C.C. possible. The latter prosecuted the parents, but what happened to the little ones when their father and mother were sent to prison? A good many of those cases found their solution in the fact that the children were handed over to them, and so the two Societies worked together harmoniously for the salvation of children.

Colonel Beresford-Peirse and Mr Escritt were thanked, on the motion of Mr Childe, seconded by the Rev. J. P. Whitworth, vicar of Thorner.

ABERFORDIA AMBULANCE LEAGUE.

COMPETITIONS AT GARFORTH.

Under the auspices of the Aberfordia Ambulance League two interesting competitions—one for women and one for men—took place at the Conservative Club, Garforth, on Saturday afternoon. Ten teams were forward in the women's contest, the trophy being a handsome silver cup, presented by Col. Gascoigne, D.S.O., of Lotherton Hall, and nine men's teams entered the competition for the Barkston Ash Shield, presented by the late Mr J. O. Andrews, of Boston Spa. Mr R. Rutledge, jun., the organizing secretary for the League, had charge of the proceedings, and Dr. E. P. Pickersgill, of Sherburn, was judge in the men's contests, Sergeant Smithson, R.A.M.C., taking the drill, while the ladies' work was judged by Mr Herman, of Wakefield, and Dr. Lawther, of York. At the close Mr Rutledge announced the results in the women's competition (Gascoigne Cup) as follows, each team consisting of four members:—

1	Garforth No. 1	185
2	Aberford No. 1	177
3	Tadcaster No. 2	176
4	Tadcaster No. 1	172
5	Seacroft	168
6	Monk Fryston	165
7	Garforth No. 2	162
8	Brotherton No. 1	150
9	Aberford No. 2	149
10	Brotherton No. 2	143

The results in the men's competition (Barkston Ash Shield) were as follows:—

1	Garforth No. 2 (J. W. Chadwick, captain)	85
2	Garforth No. 1 (H. Fryer, captain)	78½
3	Bowers Allerton No. 1. (A. Haines, captain)	78
4	Garforth No. 3	77
5	Rothwell	74½
6	Bowers Allerton No. 2.	67½
7	Bowers Allerton No. 3	63
8	Rothwell	61½
9	Rothwell	57½

Dr Herman said that he was one of the judges of the women's competitions, and the contests were very keen indeed. The teams were all good—some better than others. They all did extremely well, and it seemed rather hard-hearted not to give them all full marks. (Laughter).

Dr Lawther said that all his tests were well done with one exception. Personally he was sorry that each team did not get a cup. He wished some rich man would give one to each team. (Laughter).

Dr Abbott, of Aberford, said that these competitions were intended to serve an educational purpose, and not only by showing teams their weakness in some things that they could make themselves efficient.

LATEST HORTICULTURAL IDEA.

The unhappy man whose garden has hitherto defied the most careful attempts at horticulture, will derive new inspiration from the Flower House Show of the Royal Horticultural Society in London. All he has to do is to swamp the land and start a bog garden.

The idea is quite the latest horticultural experiment, and the show contains some excellent examples of what can be done. It is claimed that the bog garden may be planted from February to November; that it is much more attractive than the rock garden inasmuch as the latter has to be planted on a big scale to produce any bold effect and that the bog garden by its very nature makes it preferable in many respects. In February British primroses can be grown, followed by Japanese primroses, tall growing gentians, spireo and kliums—then bog growing a cycle of beautiful flowering plants which will keep the bog garden attractive right down to the late autumn.

During this month the shows at Sherburn and Monk Fryston take place.

PIMPLES AND BURNING RASHES.

A COMMON SUMMER COMPLAINT.

"My face and neck were covered with fiery pimples and burning rashes," says Mr James Killick, of 51, Little Surrey Street, London, S.E. "The skin itched and smarted so badly that I could not sleep at night and had no peace during the day-time. My legs were also affected. For over a year I tried different ointments without getting any benefit at all.

"Then I began to use Zam-Buk, and soon found the smarting and itching getting less severe. By continuing Zam-Buk all the blotches and pimples were gradually cleared away and my skin was renewed. I am quite free from disfigurement now. Zam-Buk is really splendid for the skin!"

Zam-Buk is a preventive of, as well as a cure for, summer skin diseases, and is particularly valuable for blood-poisons arising from a scratched pimple or neglected sore. Zam-Buk is a pure herbal balm of unequalled power, and is quite different from cheap ointments and salves which contain lard and other rancid animal fats.

Zam-Buk Balm is sold only in sealed packages at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. by chemists and drug stores. Never sold from door to door. Beware of worthless imitations and sub-titutes.

WESLEYAN CIRCUIT MEETING AT WHINMOOR.

MEETING IN A GARAGE.

Owing to the kindness of Mr and Mrs Isaac J. Dewhirst, of Scarcroft, who had invited the members of the Leeds Richmond Hill quarterly meeting and their wives to Whinmoor Lodge for the June tea and meeting, an experience was gained that was probably unique in the history of quarterly meetings. It was unique in that the tea and meeting were held in Mr Dewhirst's commodious motor house, which was carpeted and tastefully decorated with plants, whilst everybody appreciated the charm of the beautiful surroundings, the perfect weather, and the genial and generous hospitality of the host and hostess.

About 130 sat down to tea, which was of a sumptuous nature. Hearty thanks were afterwards accorded to Mr and Mrs Dewhirst, on the proposal of Mr A. J. Hunnam, seconded by Mr C. Batty, and supported by Messrs W. Dibb and H. Andrew, and Mrs Dewhirst replied in her usual happy way.

Between tea and meeting the appearance of the grounds suggested a garden party rather than a church quarterly meeting, many indulging in games on the lawn, whilst others paraded in conversational groups.

The Rev. Owen Jones (superintendent) presided at the meeting, and was supported by his colleagues, Rev. Edwin Bell and Edward Rees, the lay agent, Mr H. Andrew, the circuit stewards, Messrs Bert Wrigley and Tindale Rippon (Halton), the secretary Mr G. P. Holford (Crossgates), and a large attendance of members, including many ladies.

After the hearty singing of a hymn, prayer, and confirmation of the minutes, the finance committee's recommendation that the ministers' stipends be increased from June, 1915, was submitted by Mr Wrigley, seconded by Mr Bell, and unanimously agreed to, as likewise was the recommendation that the reception meeting to the new minister (Rev. Geo. Searle) be a circuit gathering, that it take place in Richmond Hill on September 21st, and that any balance occurring be placed to the circuit funds.

Harehills Lane members, having of their own initiative generously offered to take an increased assessment of £10, provided Beckett Street was relieved to this extent, the proposal was gladly acquiesced in.

Mr Wrigley presented the financial statement. It showed a balance of income over expenditure of £1 2s. 6d. for the quarter, and this, with a balance of £20 7s. 11½d. brought forward, left the steward in hand £21 10s. 5d. in hand.

Mr Rippon reported that the cost of removing Rev. Edwin Bell (Crossgates) to a better house and of the necessary repairs had been £24 9s. 8d., apart from the value of gifts in kind. This cost had been entirely borne by the Crossgates people, so no expense had fallen on the circuit funds. They greatly appreciated much appreciation of the generous effort.

The numerical statement showed that the circuit was down on the quarter. There had been 1,000 members.

The Rev. Owen Jones, in reviewing the past three years' work, delivered an inspiring address. The circuit had raised during the period no less than £4,000 in special efforts alone. The worry of debt was calculated to hamper spiritual work. The co-operation of the members of the several churches of the circuit in lifting the burden had, however, been a means of grace.

Connexional collections totalled £360 12s. 4d., an increase of £7 4s. on the year. This was the third successive increase reported.

A very earnest discussion followed the reading of the Sunday School report by the Rev. Edward Rees, in which a good deal was recorded. Many suggestions were made for the Council's consideration, the practice successfully adopted at Harehills Lane of methodical visitation of absentees by the teachers, with a careful recording of results, being specially commended.

Most striking testimony to the esteem of Rev. and Mrs Owen Jones, who are leaving the circuit this conference, was borne by many. Lack of time prevented others from speaking. Mr Jones feelingly responded.

Mr Dewhirst, in a happy speech, stated that it had been a real joy to his wife and himself to entertain the members of the meeting.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" followed by the benediction, closed one of the most uplifting quarterly meetings ever held in the Richmond Hill Circuit.—Communicated.

A QUESTION OF SUNDAY LABOUR.

At the Bishop Auckland Police Court, two workmen claimed a day's wages for being refused their boards as a penalty for not turning out to work at Messrs Pease and Partners Bowden Close Coke Works on Sunday, the 14th ult. On the other hand the owners summoned 45 employees for absenting themselves from work on the next day, which the men did as a protest against the owners' action.

Mr Dix, for the owners of the Durham Coke Oven Association, pleaded the Sunday Observance Act of 250 years ago.

The Bench awarded 2s. 6d. and costs against each of the 45 defendants, but expressed the opinion that the masters' representatives should have used more tact. The case against Messrs Pease and Partners was dismissed with costs, as was dismissed each side paying their own costs.

Mr Dix said the Association would probably appeal to a higher tribunal, and have the matter of Sunday labour settled.

Children of the Blackley Municipal School, Lancashire, have arranged to provide supplies of clog-soles for the Shackleton Antarctic expedition.

A STOURTON MAN'S DISAPPEARANCE.

"MR SIMPSON" HAS NOTHING TO SAY.

With reference to the recent disappearance from Stourton of a married man, Mr Vincent Sharp, aged forty-one, the Hunslet relieving officer, and two young women, Miss Annie Seaman and a friend, a gay, wavy golden brown moustache, hair of the same colour, inclined to be bald on the top of the head, florid complexion, smartly dressed. The newspaper representative, who was armed with a press cutting, sought the man passenger and said to him:—

"Mr Simpson?"

"Who are you, sir?" was the reply.

"I am a reporter on the 'Sun'."

"I have nothing to say to you, sir; nothing at all."

"I thought," said the interviewer, "that you might tell me where to find Mr Sharp. There has been a bit in the papers about his disappearance."

The passenger smiled, and after remarking, "The least said the soonest mended," disappeared down the companion-way.

PRESENTATION AT ROTHWELL.

LATE N.U. CLUB OFFICIAL HONOURED.

An interesting presentation was made in connection with the Rothwell Northern Union Football Club on Saturday night, when Mr W. H. Watkin, the late secretary of the Club, was made the recipient of a coloured photograph of the team and the officials in recognition of his services. Mr Watkin, who lived at Rothwell up to last August, was waggis clerk at Messrs J. and J. Charlesworth's Rothwell Haigh Collieries, and in August last he was asked by them to act as wages clerk and cashier at Rotherham. When he left the district he resigned his position as secretary to the N.U. Club. There was a good attendance of the players and officials of the club at the presentation, which took place at the Black Bull Hotel. Mr J. Oakland, a vice-president, presided, and also made the presentation.

Mr Oakland said—It is with the greatest possible pleasure that I rise on behalf of your admirers, the members of this club, to ask your acceptance of this photograph of the team and officials. Although not of great intrinsic value, we all know you will treasure it none the less. I can assure you the spirit which has actuated the movement throughout has been one of admiration for the very valued service you have rendered to this club during its formation and for the first two years of its existence. No one could have worked more unselfishly or more single-mindedly than you did. I am sure I am echoing the sentiments of everyone present when I say how deeply we deplore the loss of your valuable aid and assistance. At the same time we congratulate you on obtaining a much more lucrative appointment than you had in our midst, and that your future career may be blessed of good and honourable citizens is the sincere wish of every subscriber to this testimonial. I ask you to accept the photograph with our best wishes and I am sure it will always, when you gaze upon it, bring back to your mind many pleasant recollections of your happy associations with the Rothwell Northern Union Football Club.

Mr Watkin, in reply, said he did not know what he had done to merit the gift. During his term of office he had tried to be fair to all, and to treat them as made friends. It was a very great pleasure to him to think that, although he had left the district, he was not forgotten. If he had had the choice of choosing a gift he could not have chosen a more appropriate one. He thought it was a work of art, and, as the chairman had said, it was not the monetary value but the feeling which had inspired the givers which would cause him to treasure it. There was only one thing to regret and that was that on the photograph there was not a trophy. He certainly thought that during the last season the team would have won at least one trophy, but he was confident that the players had done their utmost, and it was not their fault they did not succeed. However, he hoped and trusted that next season there would be a good N.U. football team in Rothwell, that they would have a good committee and good officials, and that at the end of the season they would be able to show at least one trophy.

SELBY RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL.

At the meeting of the Selby Rural District Council on Monday, Mr Harris Anson presiding, a circular was read from the West Riding County Council with reference to the provision and maintenance of sanatoria for the treatment of tuberculosis. Towards the expenses a Government grant and contributions by the Insurance Committee were made, and the balance remained to be met by the County Council and the sanitary authorities.

Dr Bertram Hill (Medical Officer) said the last expenditure was estimated at 3s. 8d. per bed.

It was agreed to enter into an agreement to pay the proportion due from the Selby district.

The medical officer reported that he had visited the two cottage hospitals at Newland, Drax. Two of the houses were unoccupied, being unfit for habitation, and the remaining eight were more or less damp and without proper ventilation which might be altered so as to open.

This was agreed to.

Mr G. T. Fenteman: The inmates are over 70 years of age, so their health cannot have suffered.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

EVERY WOMAN

Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means, Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 0
30	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 0
40	1 0	2 0	3 6	6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s.	per inch	per insertion.
26	do.	1rd.	do. do.
52	do.	8d.	do. do.

TO LET.

TO Let Good COTTAGE, with Living Room, Scullery, and Three Bedrooms. Rent 4s. clear.—Apply, Chas. Briers, Barwick-in-Elmet. 3 2026

WANTED

DAY GIRL wanted, at once.—Apply, Pearce, 8, Carter Mount, Whitkirk. 2

GOOD GENERAL wanted.—Apply, Mrs Yeritt, Roseville, Green Lane, Halton, Leeds. 3 1476

WANTED LAD for FARM WORK. Live in. About 16.—Apply, G. Dixon, Swillington. 3

WANTED Strong GIRL, able to wash. Under maid kept.—Apply, Best, Hollyshaw, Whitkirk 2 1990

WANTED Good DAY GIRL. Small family.—Mrs Holliday, The Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 2202

WANTED Young Respectable GIRL at once to assist in house. One maid kept.—Apply, Mrs Archbold, Stanks, Crossgates. 2 1992

WANTED Boys and Girls (age about 14) to assist with PHOTOGRAPHIC PRINTING.—Apply, W. Bramley, Stanks, Crossgates. 2

WANTED Two or Three Strong YOUTHS (age about 16 or 17, to learn brass turning.—Apply, The Yorkshire Copper Works, Ltd., Leeds. 1

GENERAL (Good) required at once, clean, quick. Cook kept. Good wages.—Apply by letter, to the Black Horse Hotel, Askwith, near Otley. 2208

WANTED HOUSE in CROSSGATES or District by July, August, or September. Rent £17 to £19.—Apply, Box S, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds. 2017

CONFECTIONERY.—Wanted a FEMALE IMPROVER or APPRENTICE, also Strong, Respectable, ERRAND BOY.—Miss Steel, Arcade, Crossgates.

WANTED PERMANENT ROOMS for Single Gentleman at Garforth, Whitkirk, or Crossgates. Near to station preferred.—Reply to Box. No. 20, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds.

FOR SALE.

YOUNG AIREDALE BITCH for Sale.—Apply, Frank Whitford, Station Road, Kippax.

FOR Sale, GENT'S. CYCLE, good condition, new Tyres, Cheap.—Apply, Mrs Brownridge, Windsor Terrace, Garforth. 2

FOR Sale PIANOLA. Cost £55. Almost new. £10. Free inspection. Financial trouble.—Address, Box 2203, "Skyrack Courier" Office, 2, Aire Street, Leeds. 3

DAY OLD CHICKS, Black Minorca, White Leghorn, 5s. 6d. per dozen; also a few two-weeks old, 8s. per dozen, and one month 12s. per dozen.—Taylor, Poultry Farm, Oulton. 1 1462

FOR Sale GENT'S CYCLE, new, 3 Speed, Coaster Hub, Michelin Tyres, £5 5s. GENT'S CYCLE, Coaster Hub, 28 in. Frame, 35s.—H. Brook, Leventhorp, Woodhesford, near Leeds.

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also first-class YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandon Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free 2 Stamps.—(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES.—Woods Chlorodyne Remedy is guaranteed more than any other advertised remedy. For cases of irregularities Chlorodyne Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9 special 4/6. Cheshire Homes free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber Goods, 20, Lords Street, Chepstow Road, Leeds. Only address—Ne and Ale W.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 5s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment only. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Tin Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/8 at
LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc. kept in Stock

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges,
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

BY Permission of the Hon. E. F. L. WOOD, M.P., parts of the PARK and PLEASURE GROUNDS at TEMPLENEWSAM will be THROWN OPEN to the PUBLIC on SUNDAY AFTERNOONS, July 5th, 12th, 19th, and 26th, from 2 to 6 p.m. Entrance by Whitkirk and Halton Moor Roads only.
The Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., relies upon the visitors to observe the printed notices and to see that no damage is done to the trees or shrubs. No bicycles, motor-cycles, conveyances, or dogs will be allowed in the Park.

SHERBURN-IN-ELMET AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The 26th ANNUAL SHOW will be held on
MONDAY, JULY 13th, 1914.
£125, 3 Silver Cups, in Prizes.
Horses, etc., Poultry. Sports in the Evening.
Schedules ready. Special Railway Rates.
C. Eshelby, Sec.

A GARDEN FETE AND SALE OF WORK will be held at BROOKFIELD, GARFORTH BRIDGE,
on SATURDAY, AUGUST 1st, 1914,
in aid of the Swillington Church Expenses.
Sports, Competitions, Dancing on the lawn. Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance. Admission 6d. After 6 p.m. 3d. Meat Tea 9d.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

WEEK COMMENCING JULY 6th, 1914.

MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—

STAR PROGRAMMES.

ALL THE LATEST AND BEST OF THE CINEMA ART.

DRAMA, HUMOUR, INSTRUCTION.

Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., and Friday at 7. Saturday 3, 6.30, and 8.30.
Admission: 2d., 4d., 6d. 6d. Seats may be booked
Children half-price Saturday afternoon.

FOX'S CYCLE STORES,
BRIGGATE, GARFORTH, Near LEEDS.
Agent for
RENOWNED CENTAUR CYCLES
at Popular Prices, from £5 5s. 0d.
See Special Value Guaranteed Cycle, Free Wheel, 2 Rim Brakes, 13 months' Guaranteed Tyres at £3 17s. 6d. cash.
EXPERT ON ALL REPAIRS.
J.E.S. I h.p. Auxiliary Stocked (also Petrol).

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
Dental Rooms,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extraction. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
He Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free, or British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 35Y.
Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR, GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.
EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.
Monday, 6th July, 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day, and Scarborough for 1 to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. Tuesday, 7th July, 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day and Scarborough for 1 to 4 days. Wednesday, 8th July, 11.45 a.m. (calling at Crossgates only) to Pontefract (Races). 12.15 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Grosmont for ½ day, and Whitby for 1 to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day and Bridlington for 1 to 4 days. 1.10 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day and Scarborough for 1 to 4 days. 1.32 p.m. to Selby and Hull. Thursday, 9th July, 11.45 a.m. (calling at Crossgates only) to Pontefract (Races). 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day and Scarborough for 1 to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Bubwith (Show), Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for 1 to 4 days. Friday, 10th July, 12.3 p.m. (calling at Crossgates only) to Stamford Bridge, Pocklington, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Bridlington. 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Saturday, 11th July (starting at Crossgates), 7.8 a.m. to Grimsby Docks and Cleethorpes. 7.30 p.m. to Leeds, 7 a.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby. 7.15 p.m. to Selby, Driffield, and Bridlington. 11.45 a.m. to Selby and Hull (calling at Crossgates only). 12.43 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, Grosmont, and Whitby. 12.30 p.m. to Scarborough. 12.45 to Selby, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Bridlington. 1.32 p.m. to York, Coxwold, Ampleforth, Gilling, Helmsley, Kirbymoorside, and Pickering. For further particulars see bills.

TELEPHONE 1877 CENTRAL.
BUCKTON'S
CABS OR TAXIS
"We Never Sleep"
END OF CLAYPIT LANE LEEDS TOP OF COOKRIDGE ST

TENDERS

TENDERS are invited for the PAINTING, DISTEMPERING, and PAPERHANGING of the Interior and Exterior of the Kippax Central Working Men's Club.
For specifications, apply personally to the Secretary.
Tenders to be sent in not later than Saturday Morning's Post, July 11th, endorsed "Decorating," to WILLIAM BELLERBY, Secretary.

GARFORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

TENDERS FOR PAINTING AND LETTERING.

TENDERS are invited for the PAINTING and LETTERING of Distance Plates from Hydrants.
For particulars and situation of Hydrants apply to James Dawson, Captain of the Fire Brigade, East Garforth.
Sealed Tenders to be sent to the Council Offices, Garforth, addressed to me, the undersigned, on or before 6 o'clock on Wednesday Next, July 8th, 1914.
ALBERT EDWARD CARR,
Clerk to the District Council.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

THE CAR THAT HOLDS THE ROAD IS THE CHARRON.
Sole Leeds and District Agents.
DOCKRAY & CO.,
LEE'S YARD,
MEADOW LANE, LEEDS.
HAVE A TRIAL RUN AND TEST IT.
Tel. 1734

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists.
Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
PROPRIETOR: H. BEEFORTH.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE,
(Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS).
ADVANCES KNOWN TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 for 2½d. per month.
£1 0 0 ,, 5d. ,, ,,
£2 0 0 ,, 10d. ,, ,,
£3 0 0 ,, 1s. 0d. ,, ,,
£5 0 0 ,, 1s. 8d. ,, ,,
£8 0 0 ,, 2s. 8d. ,, ,,
£10 0 0 ,, 3s. 4d. ,, ,,
Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 4 LADY LANE LEEDS.

Established 37 years.
WM. DENTON & SON,
22, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
ESTATE AGENTS & RENT COLLECTORS
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Insurance Brokers.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

DENTISTRY.
W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 30a. Boar Lane (over Messrs. Newby's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s., each.
Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 1s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3517C.

THOS. COOK & SON,
CALL and WRITE US IF YOU WISH FOR ADVICE NO CHARGE
BOOK PASSAGES or give any information about EMIGRATING to CANADA, AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, AFRICA, AMERICA, &c., &c.
We have our own Offices and staff in each of these Countries.
ESTAB. SINCE 1841.
140 OFFICES In ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD
55, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &C.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

Furniture Delivered
ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.

T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST, LEEDS.

N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.

NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY NEXT.
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction,
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 10.30 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART.
25 PRIME BULLOCKS and HEIFERS.
110 CHOICE SHEARLINGS and LAMBS.
20 PORK and STORE PIGS, also
WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

BEULAH HOUSE, CROSSGATES.
LOUIS FERRARI
Instructed by the Execs. of the late B. W. Castelow, will Sell by Auction, on the premises as above, on Wednesday, 8th July, 1914, at 11.30 o'clock,
THE HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, TRAP, HARNESS, and OUTDOOR EFFECTS, comprising three handsome 8 days' grandfather clocks, mahogany dining-room suite in hair-seating, mahogany centre table, 6 mahogany single and 1 easy chair in maroon velvet, sofa, dining table, occasional tables, mahogany desk, hearthrugs, fenders, inlaid linoleums, mahogany double cupboard, a few choice oil paintings, including Rustic Scene, with pigs and figure, signed G. Morland, 1791; engravings, convex mirror, antique gilt mirror, ornaments, china tea services, dinner service, glass, cutlery, silver table, dessert and tea spoons, electro-plate, 6 well-made mahogany chests of drawers, Spanish mahogany 4 ft. 6 in. wardrobe, mahogany Tudor bedsteads, iron bedsteads, wire mattresses, feather beds, bedding, mahogany dressing tables and washstands, swing mirrors, 2 mahogany night commodes, cane chairs, English timepiece, overmantels, 2 kitchen dressers, rocking and other chairs, birch chairs, kitchen tables, regulator clock, washing and cooking utensils, Ratner safe, 2 single stone diamond rings, pearl pin, gold albert, lady's gold neck chain, brooches; also RALLI CAR, by Lockwood and Clarkson; set of E.P. mounted harness, hay chopper, turnip pulper, garden and stable implements, ladders, wheelbarrows, 30 head of poultry, stack of straw,
On View Morning of Sale.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
ROND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes. Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased entirely at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs. J. CUNDALL & SON
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK, and WHARFEDALE AUCTION MART, TADCASTER.

Fine Low Shoes
For SUMMER and the HOLIDAYS
We specialise on low shoes. We offer you shoes at 10/6 that in style, fit and comfort cannot be equalled at anything like the price.
The New Summer Models of
THOR SHOES for MEN
GATORA SHOES for LADIES
are a long way ahead of any other brands, even at shillings more per pair. Don't just accept this statement. Call and see the shoes in our windows—step into the store and ask to examine any that interest you—don't purchase unless you are absolutely satisfied that the shoes are what we represent them to be. In ladies' shoes we have splendid lines at 7/11 which compare favourably with shoes sold at 10/6. The name Southall stands for quality and dependability—you buy with security from Southall.—Note our address, and call the first time in the City.
SOUTHALL & Co.
8, New Station Street
(Opposite Albion Street),
LEEDS.

TO BE CONTENT
With anything but the best in spectacles or eyeglasses is the wisdom of the unwise.
Thoughtful people recognise this fact, and value their eyes too highly to run unnecessary risks by wearing wrong glasses.
It is to such that this appeal is made; and if your eyes are causing you trouble, we ask you to call and talk the matter over with us, when we shall be pleased to advise you.
HEYWOOD,
OPTOLOGIST,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

A model of a school has been built by school children at Wetherby.
Fryston Hall will probably be used as a colony for the feeble-minded.

— TRY —
SANGFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt, and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANGFORD & Co., Ltd., LEEDS.

ESTABLISHED 1871.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.
THIS INSTITUTION was ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they may, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in charitable institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character, without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Cornets or other mechanical or painful appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances, and in isolated positions can have the advantage of Mr. ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure, or benefit to the patient.
Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7 on Alternate Saturdays, July 11th and 25th. Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.
TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION, ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s. SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE. Age Limit, 12-65!

Section	Death	Total Disablement up to 26 weeks	PREMIUMS One Week	PREMIUMS Two Weeks	PREMIUMS One Month
	£	Per Week	1/-	2/-	3/-
A	500	50/-	3/-	5/-	10/-
B	250	25/-	1/6	2/6	5/-
C	100	10/-	9d.	1/-	2/-

These Insurances do not cover Professional or Trade Risks, or obviously dangerous adventure.
GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE, ASSURANCE CORPORATION Ltd., PERTH, SCOTLAND.
Annuls nearly £2,000,000. Established 1885

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

ESTABLISHED 1849.
W. T. GRISDALE,
Painter and Decorator,
36, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Pattern Books sent to any Address. Estimates Free.

Mr. & Mrs. Turner,
7, Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's East-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited.
Highest Price Given.
el. Nos.: Leeds 3188: Bradford. 2417.

Rothwell Courier & Times
SATURDAY, JULY 4th, 1914.

Apathy and selfishness, according to a Church dignitary, are the outstanding characteristics of the national life, and, to some extent, the assertion is true. The nation, as a nation, is inspired by no high ideals, although indignation is soon aroused by the perpetration of injustice, but it is probably no worse than ever it was. People are apt to see things altogether out of proportion; they fail to profit by the teaching of history; and they persuade themselves that unless the country does just as they think, disaster will follow. But, as a rule, disaster does not come. Conditions, it may be pointed out, have changed, and are changing. In the old days the country was governed by a few individuals, who were not responsible to a nation of voters for their actions, and all questions of policy, at home and abroad, were settled by them. Men with ideals had their influence then, just as they have now, but progress was necessarily slow, and from time to time, owing to the discontent of the voteless masses, rioting occurred. The citizens then were inspired by no higher ideals than the people are now, and as to public questions they were practically ignorant, because the newspaper had not become a means of information and a popular educator. Nowadays the gentlemen who administer the affairs of the country are responsible to the electorate, who, if dissatisfied, may sweep them from office, but it is impossible to maintain public interest in public affairs for any length of time, and this is reflected in the columns of the daily newspapers which cater for the great masses of the people, because they give the news that is demanded. At election times the national attention is directed to the great movements of the day, and men eagerly discuss the pros. and cons. of questions, and work up a little enthusiasm for this cause or that, but the observant know that interest soon dies down, and the people turn to other matters. Still, they are ever ready, when a crisis occurs, to play their part. It would no doubt be better for the country were the electors to keep themselves well-informed on national affairs, but, for a variety of reasons, it is impossible to expect this, and to make, however, severely criticised the people may be, they will go their own way. It was complained the other day that the only thing that interested people was what directly concerned themselves—selfishness, and this is seen among all sections of the community. Nearly all agitation is based on selfishness; even in such matters as education and religion the bias is noticeable; but what people are concerned about are their possessions or prospective possessions. One class agitates for a lightening of financial burdens, a second class seeks to benefit itself at the expense of another, which assumes the defensive and endeavours to get protection for itself, and so it is all through the social scale—the movement is for class aggrandisement. Of course, this is one result of our competitive and social systems, and, until men and women are inspired by higher ideals, the nation will jog along in the old way.

Consideration for others is of more importance than good manners, yet there are people who never practice the one while they are continually harping on the value of the other. Not infrequently both go together, but it is not difficult to find men and women with little pretence to manners who give a kindly thought to those around them. In family life, strange as it may seem, little consideration is often shown by one member towards another, and, the home, instead of being a place of happiness and peace, becomes a proper "bear-garden." It is unfortunate it should be so, but human experience reveals that none can be so cruel as one's own. And in the relationships existing between employers and employed what a difference do we find? On the one hand, masters regard men as mere machines, and men look upon masters as veritable blood-suckers, while, on the other hand, when a kindly personal interest is recognised the relations between the parties are cordial. Of course, in these days of collective bargaining conditions have been set up which make it hard for both employers and men, for some of the Trades Unions are hard task-masters, exercising a blighting influence upon all who come within their scope. Nevertheless, the old-time industrial relations are not dead, and it will be a bad thing for all concerned when monetary value comes to be the only consideration on either side. Domestic servants are decreasing in numbers, we are told, but has it not been noticed that some people have no difficulty in getting servants, whilst others are unable to obtain help. A reason must exist for this. Domestic service is honourable employment, and many girls would be better engaged in it than following their present ill-paid occupations, but more and more the young people are showing a reluctance to coming under the rule of a mistress. Girls, it is said, demand more liberty nowadays—more than is good for them, and it is a pity that so many wander aimlessly about the streets at nights, but that does not provide a complete answer for the domestic servant question. Many people forget that girls are human beings like themselves, with a capacity for enjoyment, and with feelings like themselves, and this leads to trouble. A story was told the other day about an indignant lady, who was holidaying at the seaside. She had her woes, and what were they? "Yes," she said, "I've taken a furnished house here for six weeks, and I wish we'd gone to an hotel. It saves such trouble with the servants. Would you believe it, that when I've brought my two maids down to this beautiful place, where they have sea air and sunshine all the time, they have actually asked for their night out just as if they were at home? I told them that it was a nice return for my kindness to them. So one of us has to miss the concert once a week to sit at home with the children." The unhappy lady forgot that she brought the maids with her for her own convenience, and they, of course, were expected to give up their little leisure in order that the mistress might have additional enjoyment. The ungrateful maids were very unkind. If a mistress desires satisfactory service she must see that she herself is prepared to give satisfaction. Thoughtlessness, rather than lack of consideration, is sometimes at the bottom of the trouble, but the results are the same. When people are brought into intimate relationship it is obvious that there must be a little give-and-take if matters are to go smoothly, and this can be accomplished without the relaxation of discipline.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Meetings and public entertainments cannot be attended to unless intimation is sent beforehand and addressed to the Editor.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

DEATHS.

CARNOCHAN.—June 27th, 1914, at 21, Bondfield Terrace, Methley, Blanch, the beloved wife of Roy Carnochan.
HEMINWAY.—June 29th, at Market Place, Wetherby, aged 87 years, George Heminway, expt.
MAWSON.—June 26th, at "The Grove," Eccup, in his 32nd year, Edgar, the beloved son of Mr. and Mrs Edmund Mawson.
MOUNTAIN.—On June 28th, at General Infirmary, Leeds, Mary Esther, the dearly beloved wife of Arthur Mountain, of Fearnville Mount, Oakwood Road, Oakwood.
RAWLINGS.—June 29th, at Collingham Bridge, aged 33 years, Florence, wife of George H. Rawlings.

IN MEMORIAM.

WILKINSON.—In loving memory of Seth Wilkinson, of Garforth, who died, July 1st, 1910.
WILKINSON.—In loving memory of Samuel Wilkinson, who died July 1st, 1910.
—Wife.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

The Rev. W. G. Softley has been re-appointed to Rothwell by the Primitive Methodist Conference.

No Match.—Rothwell Trades-men were to have played a cricket match with the Hunslet Tradesmen on the Wednesday half-holiday, but the latter team did not pay the visit, presumably owing to the threatening weather.

Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr F. M. Lupton (in the chair), Col. A. M. Sagar-Musgrave, Mr J. R. Cross, MP., J. Hirst, and Mr E. Parkin.

Warrant Granted.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday a warrant was granted by the magistrates for the arrest of William James Rodgers, a motor-man, of Rothwell, who failed to put in an appearance at the Court to answer a summons for neglecting his child. It was stated that Rodgers had gone to work.

Cricket.—The Rothwell W.M.C. were defeated on Saturday, when they met the representatives of the Armley and Wortley Socialist Club at Rothwell. The homesters batted first, and were dismissed for 253, a score which was soon got by the visitors, who won by seven wickets. Scores:—Rothwell—S Pritchard 6, J. Parker 0, Dore 4, M. Naylor 0, R. Stringer 0, J. Scanor 0, W. Booth (not out) 3, J. Taylor 0, H. Sanderson 3, J. W. Fox 4, N. Wood 1, extras, 4; total, 25. Armley and Wortley—H. Bennett 11, F. Judd 11, Duffy (not out) 9, F. Lane 1, E. Claughton (not out) 2, extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 26.

Bowling.—On Saturday Rothwell bowlers entertained a team from Castleford, and won easily by 73. The aggregate scores were Rothwell 318; Castleford 245. Details (Castleford names first):—F. Robinson 21 v. J. Baldwin 3, J. Rhodes 21 v. C. Dobson 20; T. Gallagher 8 v. J. Chapman 21, B. Wright 21 v. F. Hallas 20, J. Forster 3 v. H. Morgan 21, R. Forster 15 v. W. Richardson 21, H. Sweeton 19 v. A. Chapman 21, G. Bluemun 2, J. Harrison 20, Z. Wright 10 v. H. Wormald 21, W. Heptonstall 11 v. A. Denton 21, G. Fowler 5 v. C. P. Ward 21, A. Fowler 21 v. H. P. Chapman 7, J. Austerbury 16 v. D. Barker 21, T. Butler 21 v. J. Oakland 17, J. Harwood 7 v. J. Tiffany 21 W. Box 17 v. G. W. Nodding 21, and G. Sidwell 8 v. W. Bennett 21.

Anniversary.—The anniversary services in connection with the Wesleyan Sunday School were continued on Sunday, when special sermons were preached by Mr J. W. Hampson, of Shipley, who greatly interested the scholars by his address in the afternoon. There were good attendances at the services, and the children sang their anniversary hymns. In the afternoon Mr W. Butterfield, of Rothwell, presided over the children's service, and in addition to the festival hymns, recitations were given by some of the scholars. Mr S. Morton conducted the singing. On Wednesday the annual festival was spoilt by the storm, much to the disappointment of the youngsters. When the storm broke the children were in procession, and singing their hymns, and as the big drops began to fall they took shelter. Tea was served in the schoolroom, and afterwards games were played, under the direction of the teachers.

The Storm.—A heavy storm broke over Rothwell and district on Wednesday, but fortunately no serious damage was done. At noonday the heat was oppressive, and rumblings of distant thunder were heard about two o'clock. Shortly before three rain fell heavily for about half-an-hour, the storm quickly passing over only to return later. From five o'clock onwards it was very dark, and about 5.30 the storm broke. The lightning flashes were almost continuous, the thunder peals being unusually loud. Rain fell in a deluge, and an hour later the storm was on an abatement, although rain fell practically the whole of the evening. Owing to the rain, which flooded the streets in the town down by the Court Inn, the sewers were quickly discharged for a time, and after the floods had subsided the streets were covered with sand and gravel.

ALBERTON BYWATER

Homing.—On Saturday Alberton Bywater Homing Society sent 59 birds to take part in the race from Guernsey (301 miles). Results:—Simpson 1,032 (wins 6d. pool), Booth Bros. 973, Hutchinson Bros. 934, Simpson 908, Atkinson 905.

BOWERS ALLERTON

The Schools.—Bowers Allerton had the second best attendance of all the schools in the Kippax district last month. The percentage was 94.07 against 96.33 for June last year. At Great Preston the percentage was 76.54 against 90.17.

Hands cross the Sea.—On Monday morning the children of the Bowers Allerton Church Mixed School received two letters from their uncle attending the Normal School, Auckland, New Zealand, and along with the letters were a large number of picture post-cards depicting interesting phases of colonial life, especially that of the school child. According to the letters, picture palaces have had the same "boom" in New Zealand as we have experienced here. One youthful correspondent states that she has seen an airship for the first time. A similar batch of letters has been despatched to their New Zealand friends by the Bowers Allerton children, and one boy, evidently a football enthusiast, has asked his New Zealand correspondent to look out for Freddy Smith, of Bowers Allerton, who is with the Northern Union football team now touring in New Zealand.

CARLTON

ANNIVERSARY.—The parading of the village by the children of the Sunday School, who sang their festival hymns, a public tea and games for the children on Saturday afternoon, and special services on Sunday in the chapel, formed the other anniversary in connection with the Carlton Primitive Methodist Church to a close. The youngsters had quite an enjoyable time on Saturday afternoon, a large number being accommodated at tables, fitted up behind the Church, for the tea. Sports and games of all kinds were played in a field kindly placed at the disposal of the teachers and the children by Mr Murtland. On Sunday the sermons were preached by Mr T. Naylor, of Rothwell, and there were good congregations. The children sang their hymns and recitations were given in the

CROSSGATES

On Wednesday a terrific thunderstorm broke over the district, and between six and seven in the evening rain fell in torrents.

On Saturday afternoon Crossgates R.H. bowlers had a match with Halton Travellers, and the latter were defeated by 195 to 160.

PLAYING FIELD.—In regard to the proposed recreation ground for the children of Crossgates, a petition is being prepared for presentation to the City Council, and it will shortly be placed before the ratepayers, who will be asked to sign it.

CROSSGATES DEALER'S AFFAIRS.—The creditors of James Luther Thorpe, hardware and crockery dealer, of The Arcade, Crossgates, met for the first time at Leeds on Monday, when the debtor's statement of affairs showed liabilities expected to rank at £176 14s. 10d., assets totalling £18 2s. 4d., and a deficiency of £158 12s. 6d. Debtor attributed his failure to "Competition, County Court costs, interest on borrowed money, and lack of capital for trading." No resolutions were passed.

BOWLING.—On Saturday afternoon a League match was played at Garforth between Cross-gates and Garforth and the latter won by 181 to 136. Details (Crossgates names first):—J. A. Rymer 5 v. E. Walker 21, G. W. Burch 19 v. T. S. Slater 7, F. Hardcastle 21 v. C. W. Slater 10, H. Whitfield 5 v. G. Walker 21, F. W. Jubb 8 v. A. Collins 21, H. Burnett 15 v. G. Tindall 21. W. Holdsworth 10 v. A. Matthews 21, J. Semper 11 v. D. Gent 9, G. Danby 11 v. W. Howson 21, J. Firth 21 v. F. Walker 6.

CROSSGATES DEFEATED—On Saturday afternoon Crossgates golfers played their return match with South Leeds at Rothwell Haigh. Scores:—South Leeds: Single 11, foursomes 6; Crossgates—Singles 1, foursomes 0. Details of singles (South Leeds's names first):—F. J. Brown 1 v. J. Simpson 0, J. Pratt 1 v. J. Hall 0, J. Hall 1 v. E. H. Haswell 0, W. Brown 1 v. J. Townsend 0, A. Drake 1 v. W. Bromley 0, W. H. Turner 1 v. E. N. Thewlis 0, J. Clark 0 v. J. R. Ramsden 1, W. Pratt 1 v. W. Webber 0, D. McCandlish 1 v. W. McPherson 0, H. Clark 1 v. H. Dixon 0, G. Green 1 v. E. Coates 0, J. Prince 1 v. T. C. Frost 0.

FAIRBURN

HOMING.—On Saturday three members of Fairburn Homing Society sent 26 birds to take part in the race from Guernsey (302 miles). Results:—Fox 943 (wins A pool), Powell 920, and Barker and Sons 898.

GARFORTH

During the storm which raged in the district on Wednesday hail stones as large as marbles fell at Garforth.

In the competition for the Childe Cup on the Garforth golf links Mr T. C. Simpson was returned as winner, the runner-up being Mr L. Booth.

BOWLING.—On Saturday afternoon in the Barkston Ash League, Garforth were at home to Crossgates, and the latter were beaten by 181 to 135. Garforth W.M. overcame Halton by 204 to 104.

THE SCHOOLS.—The percentage of attendance for the schools in Garforth division last month was 90.43 against 89.51 for June last year. The figures for the various schools were:—Garforth Council, mixed, 93.06 against 93.03, and infants, 88.62 and 89.50; East Garforth, 90.90 and 89.37; Garforth Parochial, mixed, 93.97 and 92.96, and infants, 83.33 and 78.42; also Garforth R.C., 87.18 and 88.37.

PRESENTATION TO MINISTER.—The Rev. F. E. Thistlethwaite, Primitive Methodist Circuit sup-tintendent at Knaresborough, who preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening, was on Monday presented with a handsome dressing-case by the members of the congregation and Mrs Thistlethwaite (his sister) with a timepiece and a pair of vases. Mr Thistlethwaite, who has been appointed Selby Circuit superintendent, is completing twenty-four years in the ministry. Mr Thistlethwaite is well-known at Garforth and Stanks, where he was stationed some years ago.

GARFORTH W.M. WIN.—A Bowling League match was played between visitors and Garforth W.M. on Saturday at Garforth, and it resulted in a win for Garforth. Scores:—Garforth W.M. 204, Halton 104 points. Details (Garforth names first):—J. Whitfield 21 v. G. Wood 6, J. Firth 21 v. A. Caine 13, A. Reed 21 v. G. Simpson, 7, F. Simpson 21 v. R. Morris 4, J. Whitley 21 v. F. Vince 3, T. Cockerham 18 v. T. Clarkson 21, G. Fresman 21 v. J. Cockell 11, A. Cockren 21 v. H. Thomas 16, J. Backhouse 18 v. W. Green 21, and M. Morritt 21 v. C. Lambert 5.

PICTURE HOUSE.—Capital programmes have been submitted at the popular Picture House this week, and there have been appreciative audiences. On Wednesday evening the directors very kindly gave a performance for the benefit of Mr W. Blackburn, who has been ill for a long time, and their generosity has been greatly appreciated by the residents. The outstanding pictures for the week-end are "Blood will tell" and "The two glows," both interestingly interesting films. Next week programmes of excellent pictures will be exhibited, and there will no doubt be good audiences. For times and prices see advert.

URBAN COUNCIL.—On Wednesday evening there was an amusing experience in connection with Garforth Urban Council. The monthly meeting was called for 7.30, but only two of the nine members put in an appearance, and, as there should be a quorum, no business could be done. The members who attended were Mr Archer and Mr Gascoigne, and the officials present were the Clerk (Mr A. E. Carr), the surveyor and inspector (Mr T. Abbott), and the water inspector (Mr Naylor). After waiting for fully half-an-hour, it was decided to adjourn the meeting until next Wednesday, in accordance with the standing orders. This is the first meeting of the Council that has been abandoned owing to non-attendance of members. It was stated that two members had sent letters of excusement, and they were not expected to attend, one member was away from home, and a fourth was indisposed.

The Rev. J. P. Osborne, of Garforth, has been appointed to Pontefract by the Primitive Methodist Conference.

GOLF.—Garforth golf course is to be formally inaugurated on July 18th, and the principal feature of the day will be an exhibition match between Abe Mitchell, the famous ex-amateur who is now professional at Sonning-on-Thames, and Tom Williamson, of Notts County, the leading professional of the Midlands, who is a brother of the professional to the Garforth Club. This will be the first time that Mitchell has been in the North of England, and his encounter with Williamson will be well worth seeing. Mitchell was a caddie, and afterward chauffeur, to Sir Abe Bailey, the South African magnate, and as an amateur he did notable performances.

GREAT PRESTON

THE CHURCH.—A very enjoyable time was spent on Saturday afternoon by a good number of the members of St. Aidan's Church, who held their annual strawberry tea in a field (kindly lent by Mr J. Rye. Magnificent weather prevailed. The following ladies served the tea:—Mrs Gregory, Mrs Oxbridge, Mrs N. Firth, Mrs D. Firth, Mrs Holyhead, Mrs Manners, Mrs Jubb, and Mrs Miller. Mr F. H. Lees presided over dancing while Mr Nowell was M.C. The proceeds are for the building of a boundary wall round the church.

HALTON

Lady Dorothy Wood has presented a trophy to the Ripon lady golfers for competition.

THE SCHOOLS.—The percentage of attendance at the Halton School, mixed, last month, was 87.69 against 80.05 for June last year, and at the Infants' School 76.72 against 71.96. Measles have affected the attendance. At Colton School the percentage of attendance was 86.40 against 91.60.

LANGUAGE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Joseph Hargreaves, a watchman, of Leeds, was summoned for using obscene language at Halton. P.C. Stothard stated he heard the defendant using the language complained of in High Street, Halton, at 10.20 p.m. on Sunday, June 21st. Defendant, he said, was arguing with some others. A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

KIPPAX

We have received a letter on the medical charities question in Kippax, but as it seems to be a purely personal matter we regret that we cannot publish it.

TEMPERANCE.—A temperance meeting was held in the United Methodist Church on Tuesday evening, when an address was given by Mr Gregory McIntyre, of Leeds. The Rev. H. W. B. Chapman was the preacher at the Thursday evening preaching service.

THE SCHOOLS.—The percentage of attendance for the eight schools in Kippax district last month was 89.04 against 91.22 for June last year. The figures for the Kippax schools were:—Boys' School 89.09 against 92.94; Girl's School, 91.07 against 90.03; Infants' School, 87.06 against 84.41.

EXCURSION.—On Saturday about 300 members of Kippax Central Working Men's Club and Institute and their friends journeyed to Redcar and Saltburn. The excursion left Kippax at 5.58 a.m., and arrived at Saltburn about half-past nine. The weather was convenient home of the Club and Institute Union at Saltburn, which is entirely upheld by the Union Clubs for the benefit of their own members, and everything about it is conducted in a very large number visited it, all agreeing that the home is an excellent institution. A thoroughly enjoyable day was spent, boating and fishing, bathing, drives, etc., being indulged in. The party returned home at 1.30 on Sunday morning, all agreeing that the trip had been one of the best of its kind from the village.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE.—The monthly meeting of Kippax Education Committee was held on Wednesday—Mr E. Parkin, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. The other members present were:—Messrs J. Hardisty, J. Cripwell, W. Mellor, S. R. Silverwood, Jas. Farrant, and Ismay Robinson, with the Clerk (Mr Powell). It was stated that measles have been prevalent in the district Common, and the school has been closed in consequence. Mr Milnes, head teacher of the Bowers Allerton School, applied for permission to take a class of students to Monk Fryston for an observation lesson on July 15th, and the request was granted. Following the medical inspection of Kippax school children, it was reported that there were a few cases of defective vision, adenoids, and defective hearing, which had not received attention, and the committee have decided to intervene the parents as to the treatment of the children. The Chairman: If the parents of these children are in poor circumstances they can have assistance in the purchasing of spectacles. The combined nursing scheme was not considered.

KIPPAX AND LEDSTONE MEDICAL CHARITIES SOCIETY.—The annual open-air concert was held on Sunday in Tate Field (kindly lent for the occasion by Mr Tate). The Kippax Old Band paraded the principal streets, playing selections, and collectors solicited subscriptions on behalf of the charities on route. The Wesleyan Primitive Methodist and United Methodist Sunday School children walked in procession to the field. The choir connected with the United Methodist Church contributed special hymns, conducted by J. Radcliffe, and the two selections played by the Kippax Old Band, conducted by Mr A. Denton, were a feature in the proceedings. The speakers were Mr C. Anson, J.P. (Castleford), Pastor Smith (Leeds), and Mr Geo. Horton (Leeds). Mr I. J. Dewhirst, C.C. (Scarcroft), presided. The total receipts are less than those of the previous year. The uncertainty as to the future of meeting might account for the reduced takings. The amount with which the Committee have to meet the demands made upon them, according to the secretary's report, which was given on Sunday, is about £15. Six applications have already been received for "recommends," and though the committee state their willingness to meet the wishes of those unfortunate individuals who need assistance, this cannot be done unless more money is contributed by the public. A resolution of thanks to the Chairman and speakers was moved by Mr Jas. Smart, and seconded by Mr R. Plows (secretary). There was a small attendance, apparently the Sunday school children, and the teachers.

LEDSHAM

At Ledsham School last month the percentage of attendance was 91.66 against 82.45 for June last year.

FORMER VICAR'S DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE.—The wedding took place on Tuesday at St. Chad's Church, Headingley, Leeds, of Mr Charles Ashforth Cartledge, younger son of the late Rev. C. A. Cartledge, vicar of Bishop Middleham, County Durham, and the late Mrs Cartledge, of Harrogate, and Miss Ethel Cooper -Snowdon, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Richard Kemplay Snowdon, vicar of Ledsham, and Mrs Snowdon, of Headingley, Leeds. The service, which was fully choral, was conducted by the Bishop of Beverley, and the Rev. C. C. Marshall, vicar of the parish. The bride, who was given away by her brother, wore a handsome gown of ivory satin and lace, embroidered with pearls, and a valuable old Honiton lace veil, lent by her aunt, Mrs Elgood. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and asphantis, which with a diamond ring and platinum chain were the gifts of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids were the Misses Marjory and Lily Snowdon, sisters of the bride, Miss Cartledge, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mclaughlin. The best man was Mr Richard W. Fawcett, of London. A reception was afterwards held at the residence of Mrs Snowdon, and later in the day the happy pair left for the English Lakes.

LOFTHOUSE

On Friday at Wakefield George Jackson, Joseph Donnelly, Alfred Green, and Henry Pollard, youths employed at the Lofthouse Colliery, had 9s costs each to pay for riding on tubs in the mine.

At the Wakefield West Riding Court on Wednesday, Arthur Blanchard, painter, was remanded until Monday next on a charge of attempting to set fire to a haystack belonging to the Lofthouse Colliery Co., at Outwood on Tuesday. The prisoner gave himself up to the city police.

MIDDLETON

A sum of £1 8s. 6d., workmen's fines at Middleton Colliery, has been sent to Leeds Infirmary.

THEY CHEERED THE KING.—About 150 of the employees of the Middleton Estate and Colliery Company, accompanied by the manager, colliery grinner, and other officials, and also parties from Kitson's, Fowler's, and Braime's, to the number of over 300, had their annual trip to London last Saturday. The party, under the guidance of Mr Bentley, of the Polytechnic Touring Association, reached the gates of Buckingham Palace in time to see the King accompanied by the Queen and Princess Mary, depart to review the London Fire Brigade. Very few people were about, but the King was received with a rousing cheer by the Yorkshire men, which he smilingly acknowledged.

MOOR ALLERTON

PROPERTY SALE.—By order of the trustees, of the late Mr J. R. Flitch, the freehold residential estate known as "Southlands," situated at the junction of King Lane and Harrogate Road, Moor Allerton, was offered by auction on Tuesday night by Messrs Hepper and Sons, of Leeds. The main lot, including the residence, out-buildings, lodge, gardens, paddock, and plantations, covering about 4 acres, 3 roods, 33 perches, was sold for £4,200. Lot 2, containing about 2 acres, 2 roods, 10 perches of grass land, and Lot 3, containing about 8 acres 1 rood 10 perches of land, a farmhouse, and cottages were withdrawn.

CHURCH CHOIRS' FESTIVAL.—The seven choirs of North Leeds joined in a festival evensong at St Matthew's Church, Chapel Allerton, on Wednesday night. The choirs were those of St. Martin's (Potternewton), St. Clement's (Chapeltown Road), St. Aidan's, St. John's, and St. Edmund's (Roundhay), St. John's (Moor-Allerton), and St. Matthew's (Chapel-Allerton). The Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis were sung to Walmsley's setting in D minor, and Dr. Bairstow's anthem "I will greatly rejoice" was well rendered. The Rev. G. Birchenough (Moor-Allerton) preached the sermon, after which the Solemn Te Deum in G. (Pendergast) closed the service. Mr H. Rose (organist of St. Matthew's) conducted, and Mr P. P. Dickinson, Mus.Bac., presided at the organ.

OULTON

The percentage of attendance at Oulton School, mixed, was 92.31 against 93.06 for June last year, and at the Infants' School, 90 against 94.16.

BOWLING.—On Saturday afternoon Oulton played a Mowley Trophy Competition match at Hunslet with the Parish Church team. Scores:—Hunslet Parish Church 203, Oulton 190. Details (Hunslet names first):—H. Fynes 6 v. W. Hutchinson 21, G. F. Hardwick 21 v. G. H. Abbey 15, J. Cockerill 21 v. J. Graham 11, S. Cheatham 18 v. B. Healy 21, H. Austwick 21 v. W. Jopling 15, T. Collier 12 v. F. Bell 21, T. Dawes 21 v. J. Steele 16, E. Burgess 21 v. C. Sharp 21, T. Rosenshaw 21 v. G. Williams 1, F. Allen 13 v. J. Harrison 21, J. Facer 14 v. T. Collins 21, J. Holmes 21 v. H. Grant 4.

PRESENTATION.—After a match between Oulton and Rothwell on Saturday afternoon at Rothwell, two presentations took place. The first, which was the handsome Leeder cup over which the bowling competition was played, and medals to the Oulton team for last year, was made by Mr Chris. Barker (Rothwell). The second was more of a personal matter for the Oulton men, who presented one of the players, Mr H. Cope, who is leaving the district, with a pair of companion pipes. Mr Cope, who was an assistant at the Rothwell Council School, has been appointed to the headship of a school at Brandsburton, Beverley. He has during his stay in the district rendered good service to the Oulton first eleven. The presentation was made on behalf of the members of the team by Mr E. Boothroyd.

ROUNDHAY

WEDDING.—On Wednesday the marriage took place at St. Aidan's Church, Roundhay Road, Leeds, of Mr Charles Bush, who has been manager of the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, for fifteen years, and Miss Ada Armitage, of Roundhay, who has been on the staff of the theatre. The bride, who was attended by her niece, Miss Gladys Bullock, as bridesmaid, and by Master Arthur Lewis, wore a dress of navy blue satin trimmed with white, and a white hat with white wings. She was given away by her father, Mr J. H. Armitage. Mr Tom Axe, of Leeds, acted as best man. The reception was held at the Victoria Hotel, and was attended by many theatrical friends. The honeymoon is being spent at Beddington.

MUNICIPAL GOLF COURSE.—On Wednesday at Leeds City Council meeting upon the minutes of the Parks Committee being submitted, Mr Masser alluded to the proposal to establish a municipal golf course at Roundhay. He said it had been objected that the course would not pay, but that was not what they really wanted it. However, he was satisfied that there was a demand for the course, and that it would do something to enhance the attractions of Roundhay Park. The amount to be expended was the small sum of £200, a sum which it took to make a bowling green. He prophesied that within the space of twelve months from the present date the whole of the £200 would have been paid off from the profits, and Leeds might go on to provide golf courses in different parts of the city. The minutes of the Committee were approved.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.—At Leeds on Friday a rough-looking man, named James Glyde (36), of no fixed abode, against whom there was a long record of convictions, was sentenced to a month's hard labour for loitering with intent to commit a felony in Roundhay Park late on Thursday night. Police constable Horan said that at 11.30 p.m. he saw prisoner trying the doors and windows of the cafe near the Waterloo Lake. When witness approached he hurried away, but was overtaken and questioned. He said he was doing said "I am going to Ilkley. Prisoner, in the course of a long, rambling statement, said he had only just come out of prison, and that the police had been following him about. He added that the constable asked him if he had had any beer, and he replied "It takes me all my time to get something to eat; never mind beer. I've never had a gill since I've been out."

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Roundhay were defeated at Selby. Scores:—Roundhay—Craven 1, Morris 3, Umpleby 2, Hammond 1, Bentley 1, Childerson 1, Brown 12, Bowman 3, Watson 1, Blenkinsop 3, Oliver (not out) 0, extras, 9; total, 38. Selby—Hoyle 0, Winterburn 0, Yates 1, Bailey 5, Townend 0, Anderson 3, Braithwaite 2, Tomlinson 12, Ibbetson (not out) 11, Carson (not out) 2, extras, 1; total (for 8 wkts.), 39.

IN THE LAKE.—Minnie Manby (39), a widow, described as a domestic servant, a delicate-looking woman, was charged at Leeds on Saturday with attempting to commit suicide. On Friday night Police constable Dodds was called to Roundhay Park, where, it seems, the defendant had thrown herself into the Waterloo Lake, but had been got out by a young man who was boating there. She was removed to the Infirmary. Dr Sims, the police surgeon, who had examined the woman, recommended that she should be kept in charge for a short time. The accused, who was very repentant, was sent to the Workhouse for 14 days.

SEACROFT.

NO FRONT LIGHTS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday George Frederick Fraser, chauffeur, of Leeds, was summoned for having driven a motor-car at Whinmoor without the regulation front lights. P.C. Stimpson stated that about 10.15 p.m. on Saturday, June 21st, he saw the defendant driving along the York Road at Whinmoor without any front lights, although his rear lamp was lighted. A fine of 7s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

GUARDIANS AND LADIES.—On Wednesday, at a meeting of the Leeds Board of Guardians, Miss Kitson objected to a proposal that a deputation to choose a new Infirmary matron should consist of four male members of the Board. The matter, she said, was peculiarly one for lady members to take a part in, and she proposed that Mrs Moorhouse, a lady member of the deputation, Mrs P. Leigh remarked that no lady would go on such a deputation with three gentlemen. Miss Kitson's proposal was rejected, and the original proposition was carried.

GATES ON FOOTPATHS.—There is a footpath (writes a correspondent in a Leeds paper) leading from Foundry Lane, across to Aslett Hill in which the farmer has railed all the gates up, and left stiles which are so constructed that ladies with tight skirts simply cannot get over them. This is a lovers' walk, and ladies who get in difficulties can usually, of course, claim ready assistance from their swains, but all the same it is a pity that such stiles have been made. Then, again, the farmers complain that very often their gates are left open. There are, it is true, thoughtless people who would not trouble to close any gate, but on the other hand a lot of farmers lay in a store of trouble for themselves by having such rickety fasteners on their gates or by having no fasteners at all. My experience is that with most of the gates on the footpaths outside Leeds, it is impossible to fasten them unless you take the trouble to tie a rope round the gate post. Thus, while I admit that in many cases farmers are justified in complaining of the thoughtlessness of people who pass through their fields and leave gates open, they are just as often to blame themselves for having gate fasteners which don't fasten. After all, the public have their rights, though farmers as a class don't seem to think so. Where there is a public footpath, the public have a right to pass along it without being delayed and obstructed. And what about one farmer near Leeds who at one stile had broken off the stones which jutted from the wall so as to form steps for the public?

STOURTON

FLOODING.—The residents of several houses at the bottom of the Pontefract Road, Stourton, had a trying time during the storm on Wednesday evening, in coping with the water which came pouring down the roadway, and flooding the cellars.

PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.—On Sunday afternoon at the Primitive Methodist Church, the distribution of prizes and medals won by the P.S.A.s took place. There was a good attendance, presided over by Mr Collinson. The prizes were presented by Mr J. S. Verity, of Rothwell, who also gave an appropriate address on "Books."

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Applications—C. G. F. and J. N. Porritt, Dewsbury, improvements in trousers presses; Thomas Hart, Thorner, pasting and gumming machine, for tickets, labels, etc. Application completed—E. Stott, Oldham, improvements in mull frames. Patent accepted—W. J. B. Leech and A. Edwards, Leeds, treatment of hot gases in coal distillation.

BOYS IN TROUBLE.—At the Children's Court at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday three boys, Percy Hamel (14), Stourton, Alfred Farrar (14), Stourton, and Arthur Hunt (14), of Hunslet, were charged with doing wilful damage to rhubarb, the property of Mr Selwyn Wade, Stourton. None of the boys appeared, but the mothers of Hamel and Farrar presented themselves at the Court. The Chairman asked the boys were, and they replied that they were at work. The Chairman said the boys were wanted before the court and not the mothers, as the boys, and, if necessary, have to punish them. He ordered the case to be adjourned seven days, so that the boys might appear.

SEQUEL TO AN ACCIDENT.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday two waggoners, William Goodall and Samuel Westerman, of Leeds, were summoned for being in charge of vehicles without lights. P.C. Boys stated that about 10.20 p.m. on Sunday, June 15th, he was on the Pontefract Road, Stourton, when the defendants came up each in charge of a waggon which had no light. Westerman, who was the only defendant to appear, said he and the other defendant worked for the same firm in Leeds. When coming along the road by Stourton they had had an accident. They had set off in good time so as to reach Leeds before lighting up time, as neither had any lamp. The Chairman said he would reduce the fine to 2s. 6d.

DAMAGE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Ernest Freer, Thompson Freer, and Leonard Freer, all of Hunslet, were summoned for doing wilful damage to growing grass, the property of Mr Selwyn Wade, of Stourton. The evidence was that the defendants were seen to walk along the grass for about yards, and then lie down. Ernest Freer said he did not consider that doing any harm. The previous night he had bought a bird, and he took it out into the fields to hear the other birds, as he wanted to know whether it was a songster or not. Thompson Freer repeated this story, saying they were "taking the bird out for a walk." There were others in the field, he said, but the police officers never said anything to them. Mr Walter Wade said the damage which had been done was of the value of 3s. Each defendant was ordered to pay 1s. and the costs.

SHADWELL

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon a match was played between Clifford House and Leeds Springfield at Shadwell, and the Springfield team won easily. Scores:—Leeds Springfield—Hare (not out) 116, Greaves 60, Barrett 14, Fozzey 6, Marshall (not out) 22, extras, 5; total, 4 (for 3 wkts.). Declared. Clifford House—Walker 17, Wilson 39, W. Jackson 6, Simpson 3, Wormald 31, E. W. Nicholson 11, A. W. Boyle 1, Hill 0, S. R. Jackson 0, D. Boyle 0, R. P. Nicholson (not out) 2, Dewhirst 0, extras, 10; total, 131.

HAD BEEN AT SHADWELL.—The Leeds Recorder (Mr E. Tindall Atkinson, K.C.) yesterday was in a slight quandary as to how to deal with an incorrigible youth of nineteen, who came before him at Leeds Session charged with the theft of a silver watch, a silver chain, and a silver medal, the property of his uncle. The lad, Geo. Wm. Coatham (19), labourer, appeared younger than his years, but he realised his position. It was stated that he had a bad reputation. Detective Sergeant W. Kitteringham said that in 1905 the lad was committed to an industrial school at Shadwell. Five years later he was licensed out to a farmer at Liversedge, but he absconded, and he also ran away from three other places he was sent to. After that he was sent to the Ad-I Reformatory, but not long after his discharge from that institution he was apprehended on the present charge. "I shall have to send you to gaol," the Recorder added, addressing the prisoner, "but not amongst the other prisoners. You must go to prison for four months in the Second Division."

SWILLINGTON

MR S. Dickenson, of Swillington Common, won first prize in the hackney classes for three-year-old gelding or filly at Selby Show.

THE SCHOOLS.—The percentage of attendance at Swillington Parochial School last month was 89.53 against 90.09 for the previous June, and for Swillington Common 70.93 against 95.40. The latter was closed owing to sickness.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon a match was played at Moortown between the home team and Swillington Park. Scores:—Swillington—Jackson 1, Gummerson 11, Hutchinson 3, T. Jackson 8, Firth 3, Brittlebank 13, E. Gummerson 24, Somers 4, Dickenson (not out) 0, Dickenson, extras, 3; total, 50. Moortown—Wilson (not out) 32, M. Topham 2, Haywood 1, Barnfather 5, Layton (not out) 8; extras 5; total (for 3 wkts.), 53.

WOODLESFORD

At Woodlesford - mixed school, the percentage of attendance last month was 91.22 against 91.51 for June last year, and at the Infants' School, 85.49 and 88.18.

HIS SENTENCE.—At the Quarter Sessions at Leeds on Monday Robert Redfern, a fireman, of no fixed abode, who was committed by the magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on the previous Tuesday to take his trial on a charge of stealing a watch and albert, a pair of boots, and gold in cash, the property of Frank Johnson, Woodlesford, was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

Middleton Colliery Co. and a Footpath.

FEELING IN THE DISTRICT.

On Wednesday at the meeting of Leeds City Council there was a breeze as soon as business started. The Town Clerk began to read a petition from a number of ratepayers with respect to the closing of a public footpath by the Middleton Colliery Company in the course of certain work they were carrying out, and which, it was alleged, they had no right to do.

Alderman C. H. Wilson suggested that it would save time if the petition were referred without more ado to the Tramways Committee, who would in any case have to deal with it.

A Labour member said it was very important the matter should be dealt with quickly. There was a great deal of feeling about it in the district. "The Middleton Colliery Company," he said, "are going to close certain parts of the moor."

The Lord Mayor said that to him Alderman Wilson's suggestion seemed a practical one.

Alderman J. R. Ford: We should know what it is about.

Alderman Wilson: It is a sheer waste of time. You must refer it to the Tramways Committee.

Mr D. B. Foster: Let us refer it to Alderman Wilson. He will do it better than any committee.

Finally, the Town Clerk briefly explained the contents of the petition, and it was then referred to the Tramways Committee, Alderman Wilson observing that whatever were the rights of the Council, they would be maintained.

THE SCHOOLS.—At Barwick School last month the percentage of attendance was 92.50 against 90 for June last year.

The percentage of attendance at Micklefield Mixed School last month was 90.88 against 94.24, and at the Infants' School 83.96 against 91.72.

While King George and Queen Mary were driving to Hyde Park on their way to a fire brigade review on Saturday, two suffragists flung a bundle of leaflets into the royal carriage. Some of the papers struck the King's hat and others the Queen's parasol. The women were taken away by the police.

CRICKET.—At Spofforth on Saturday afternoon the homesiders effected a draw with Leeds Training College. Scores:—Spofforth—King 59, Howard 44, S. H. Hill 22, Oddy 11, Smithson (not out) 43, Thompson 0, Bubby 2, Scott (not out) 1, extras, 19; total (for 6 wkts.), 202. Declared. Training College—Entwistle 23, Taylor 25, Watkins 13, Halliday (not out) 27, Crossland 21, Wilson 0, Stancliffe (not out) 10, Dalby 0, Lockwood 0, extras, 20; total (for 7 wkts.), 139.

THE LATE MR. G. HEMINWAY.—Mr. George Heminway, ratepayers' secretary, who had been confined to his bed for some time, has died, having attained the age of 87 years. The deceased's father, Jonathan, was 96 years old when he died. The remaining business at Wetherby was started by Jonathan's father in 1787, and is kept in the family to-day. Mr George Heminway, like his father, was a great worker for the Friendly Society, being for 36 years secretary. The deceased leaves a son, who will carry on the rope-making business, and several daughters.

THE STORM.—Two thunderstorms passed over Wetherby on Wednesday afternoon, and there was no rain to speak of until just before five o'clock, when it commenced to fall heavily. Motorists coming into the town reported that from Brough, to within three or four miles of Wetherby the rain had been very heavy all the afternoon, and had filled the ridges in the fields, while some of the roads they said, ran like rivers. It was half-past five when the storm broke over Wetherby, and the lightning became very vivid. While the lightning was at its worst the rain more or less abated. At six o'clock rain again fell in torrents, and continued for some time, the cellars of several houses in the town being flooded.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR
ENGAGEMENT RINGS, £1:1: £3:3: £5:5: £10:10:0 £100
DIAMONDS
PENDANTS, EARRINGS, SCARF PINS, & JEWELLERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION, from £1 to £100.
SEE OUR WINDOW EXHIBIT.—ALL PRICES MARKED
DYSONS
24,25,26, (LOWER) BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
THE LARGEST STOCK IN THE COUNTY, OF GOLD & SILVER WATCHES from 10/6 to 50 GUINEAS EACH
SPECIAL VALUE GUN-METAL LEVERS :—
The "University" 30s. The "Roughwear," 15s. The "Black Prince" 10/6
WATCHES
OLD WATCHES, JEWELLERY & SILVER TAKEN IN EXCHANGE. VALUATIONS for Insurance, Probate, &c.
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS

HUNSLET RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL.

CHIMNEY STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

The monthly meeting of the Hunslet Rural District Council was held yesterday afternoon at the Council Offices, Leeds Street, Hunslet, Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs P. S. Marsden (vice-chairman), G. Armitage, W. Vevity, and J. Flanagan, with the Clerk (Mr W. B. Pindar), the medical officer of health (Dr Buck), the sanitary officials (Messrs W. Whitehead and P. C. Higgins), and the surveyor (Mr J. Nuttall).

Dr Buck, in his report for the past four weeks, showed that there had been reported thirteen births in the district—seven being in Oulton and Woodlesford, four in Templenewsam, and two in Middleton. During the same period nine deaths, comprising two in Oulton-with-Woodlesford, three in Templenewsam, and four in Middleton, had occurred. Seven cases of scarlet fever, three of which had been removed to the hospital, were notified, along with one case of diphtheria, and one case of erysipelas.

The Clerk asked the doctor if he had heard anything of a case of typhoid at Halton.

The doctor said he had no notification as yet.

The Clerk said he had heard of it through the nurse.

Dr Buck said the doctor would not notify it until he was absolutely certain.

A circular letter from the Local Government Board was read by the Clerk, calling attention to country holiday camps as likely factors of spreading infection. The circular mentioned the fact that very often sanitary arrangements were not made.

With respect to the Combined Nursing Scheme a letter was read from the County Council asking for the representatives of the Council might be sent along with representatives of East and West Ardsley, to a meeting at the County Hall, Wakefield, on Monday next.

The Chairman and vice-chairman were appointed to attend.

The Clerk also reported that he had received a formal agreement from the County Council with regard to the treatment of tuberculosis. The Council had agreed, said the Clerk, to pay one half of the expenditure incurred by the County Council with respect to patients from the district, so far as the expense was not defrayed by the West Riding Insurance Committee and by Government grants.

The agreement was accepted.

Mr Whitehead, the sanitary inspector, reported that owing to the heavy storms the sewers at Oulton and Woodlesford had been flooded, and the backwash had entered some of the houses through the gratings.

The Clerk: We can't prevent that?

Mr Whitehead: No.

Mr Armitage: You would call it an act of God, wouldn't you?

Mr Whitehead also reported that the long chimney at Middleton had been struck by lightning, and was in a very dangerous condition owing to its being cracked most of the way down.

Mr Armitage: Is there any danger to the public?

Mr Whitehead: It is close to the roadway.

The Chairman said Mr Nicholson had told him the chimney was going to be pulled down.

The Clerk said he thought it would be sufficient if a letter was sent calling attention to it.

This was agreed to.

The Council, on the advice of the Clerk, decided to prepare the information asked for by the Roads' Board.

A letter was read from Mr James Armitage, the chairman of the Water Committee of the Rothwell Urban District Council, asking that the pipes leading up to the reservoir near to John O'Gaunt's, Rothwell Haigh, might be raised as they were about five feet below the surface, and, therefore, were liable to be damaged by frost. The pipes were laid down by the Council, and the other Councils paid a proportion of the cost. The Rothwell Council would bear the cost.

It was agreed to make the alteration.

On Wednesday a violent thunderstorm broke over Tadcaster, and rain fell in torrents.

STOCKELD PARK DEFEATED.—On Saturday at Stockeld Park a match was played between the home team and the Old Leodensian Rugby team. Scores:—Stockeld Park—Carver 2, Forth 6, Waterhouse 0, Ridsdale 1, Pearson 5, Jenkinson 2, Reaks 0, Allsopp 1, Dalby 4, Greaves (not out) 7, Squires 9, extras, 7; total, 35. Old Leodensians—L. W. Rigby 5, H. J. Rigby 6, Evans 5, Nutt 4, Cooper (not out) 6, Jackson 4, Vause 0, Hodgson (not out) 4, extras, 3; total (for 6 wkts.), 37.

A SHUNTER'S END.—An inquest was held by the Leeds City Coroner (Mr J. C. Malcolm) on Monday on the body of Arthur Swaby (45), a shunter, who lived with his mother at Kirk Deighton, near Wetherby. On June 19th Swaby was admitted to the Leeds Infirmary with a scalp injury, and he died on Saturday from cancer. The doctor said that although the wound was severe, it had nothing to do with the man's death. A verdict of "Natural causes" was returned.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(LATE A. C. WANSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

GARDEN PARTY AT ROUNDHAY.

The grounds at The Hall, Roundhay, the residence of the Lord Mayor of Leeds, looked picturesque yesterday afternoon, on the occasion of a garden party given by his Lordship and the Lady Mayoress (Mrs Charles Ratcliffe). The heavy rain which accompanied Wednesday night's thunderstorm had freshened the foliage, and unfortunately the weather did not remain fine. Between three and four o'clock thunder showers fell, and outdoor festivities were abruptly terminated.

It was a gathering thoroughly representative of the social, civic, and public life of the city. Several hundreds of invitations had been sent out, and as most of them had been accepted, it is safe to say that the party was a very goodly-considerable when all the guests had assembled.

The guests were received by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, after which they found plenty to amuse and occupy their attention. Tea was served in the handsome marquee, and at intervals selections of music were played by the band of the 7th Battalion Leeds Rifles; in addition there

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

BARKSTON ASH COMPETITION.

Interest in the Competition continues very keen, and it is evident that in all the divisions of the Senior League there will be a fine struggle for supremacy. To-morrow (Saturday) South Milford should account for Church Fenton, and Tadcaster will be expected to succeed at Cawood, while Church Fenton Sye., at home, have a capital opportunity of picking up a couple of points at the expense of Saxton. Sea-croft expect to overcome Barwick, Micklefield, at home, have a pull over Halton, and Garforth, on their own ground, will likely fort playing on their own ground, will likely prove an good for Preston. The principal match in the other division is at Old Monston, where Crossgates Wes. and Halton Wes. meet, and, unless the boosters show their very best form, it is probable that they will go down, for Hallon are doing well just now. Crossgates, at home, should turn the tables on Shadwell, and Collingham will strive to get their first points at the expense of Whitkirk. That they will prove no good for Preston.

SENIOR LEAGUE MATCHES ON SATURDAY.

Tadcaster have once more assumed the leader-ship of division 1, and, unless they have a lapse, they will be difficult to oust from the position. Church Fenton Sycamore, who tried their luck at Tadcaster, were no match for their opponents, and they had to admit inferiority in all depart-ments of the game. Of course, it was not ex-pected that they would defeat the Caleurians, but that they would defeat the Caleurians, but they who are going splendidly just now, but they might have made a better show than they did. Tadcaster scored 149 for seven wickets and declared, and a feature of the innings was the skilful batting of J. F. Mason, who claimed no fewwy than 95. George Foster made 27 (not out), Hebden 22, and Herbert 21. Harrison was the best of the Fenton bowlers, taking two wickets for 48 runs, while E. Poulter had 2 for 46, and five 8 runs, while E. Poulter had 2 for 46, and Whittingham 3 for 28. The Sycamore team made a disastrous start, the first six players having only 11 among them, and while G. Ambler and A. Poulter, who had a stack, improved matters, the side was got out for 49. Herbert bowled grandly, capturing 7 wickets for 16, and the other three wickets went to Baker for 14 runs.

South Milford, who lost the first match at Cawood, have good reason to regard the skill of their opponents with respect, and on Satur-day afternoon they certainly got a fright. The match, contrary to expectations, was drawn, and the teams divided the points. This means that South Milford have now a point less than Tadcaster. Batting first, Milford gave a good exhibition, and one is pleased to note the return to form of Bob Sutton, who, with 126, was the highest scorer of the match. Hutchcroft, who got 28, shows improvement week by week, and E. At-kinson and Chilton made a dozen each. Dobson secured 3 wickets for 20, C. Jackson had 2 for 10, and Stockdale had 2 for 14. Cawood soon lost Ward for nil, but C. O. Lund (23) and S. Lund (20) caused the Milfordians trouble. Dobson failed to score, and then Stockdale came in and rattled up 25. Thompson was responsible for 18, and when the last men were at the wickets 18, and when the last men were at the wickets 18 runs were only six runs behind. It is a pity they were only six runs behind. It is a pity time did not allow the match being completed, for the finish would have been very exciting. E. Atkinson secured 3 wickets for 28, H. Hesetgrave 3 for 23, and Chilton 3 for 48.

The matches in which Saxton are engaged sometimes yield surprising results. Had they taken their opportunities this season they should have had other four points at least, but their batsmen have failed completely after their commanding position. On Saturday they had a glorious chance, but again they threw it away, and Church Fenton deserved every credit for profit-ing by their opponents' weaknesses. Church Fenton scored 29, and T. Richardson, who per-formed the "hat trick," captured six of their wickets for 13, while T. Sissons had 4 for 11. Saxton were asked to get thirty, and their feeble response was 25, of which J. Firn had 11, and 10 were extras. One player was absent, so that nine players had the magnificent score of 4 amongst them. Church Fenton it must be stated, fielded excellently, and threw away no chances. Saxton must really try to hat a little better. Claughton's four wickets were secured for six runs, and Dixon's five cost nine runs.

The meeting of Garforth and Seacroft was, as I predicted, productive of a splendid match, and, as both games have been won by Sea-croft by a wicket, it is evident that the teams are well matched. Garforth got first knse of the wickets, and H. Prime made 11, S. Glover 21, and W Glover 26. The next six men fared ill, having only 15 among them, but G. Reed caused the Seacroft scorers some trouble, being not out with 19 to his credit. C. Johnson secured 4 wickets for 27 and D. Burton had 4 for 43. Seacroft did not open so promisingly as they should have done—D. Burton 11, T. Toft 13, and G. Thompson 1 were got rid of fairly cheaply—but George Stead, who has been a valuable "find" for Sea-croft this season, trounced the bowling and com-piled 36. Harry Mack putting on 18. Then the scoring slackened, but C. Johnson (20, not out) defied the bowlers, and his sturdy defence really enabled his side to win the match by a wicket. H. Pickersgill's three wickets cost 18, and T. Ballance had 4 for 41.

Micklefield, who are on the same ring of the League as holder as Seacroft, made the Great Pres-ton bowling look poor stuff, and the all-round excellence of the batting is good evidence that Micklefield are coming again. They registered 182 for a loss of six wickets, and Wallis made 75, Smith 23, Godber 22, Taylor 16 (not out), and Tompkinson 14. H. Wiggleswortn was the best of the eight Preston bowlers, but his two wickets being got for 13. Great Preston were dismissed for 69, Varley having 15, Green 14 (not out), Firth 12, and T. Wiggleswortn 12. The bowling honours for Micklefield were divided. Smith claiming 2 wickets for 7, Stone 2 for 14, and Tompkinson 2 for 19.

Barwick and Halton had a well-contested match on the Primrose Valley ground, and, thanks to a splendid innings of 64 by C. Sutter, the home-sters won by 24. Halton's total was 114. (Daniel 18 and Benson 10), and Brown got two wickets for 8 runs, J. Robsaw 2 for 14, F. Lamb 3 for 30, and W. Hartley 2 for 49. Bar-wick made a good response, and Sutter and Hartley started well for 31, while H. Walton made 20. W. Benson secured 4 wickets for 21, Daniel had 2 for 32, and Sunter 2 for 17.

Halton Wesleyans have strengthened their hold on the leadership of division 3, and it will be very difficult to shift them now. Crossgates were not without hope on Saturday afternoon that they would get on terms with their rivals, but they were out-played. The Haltonians, who had choice of ground, were in fine form, and they kept their opponents busy leather-bunting until 152 runs were on the board. J. Pepple made top scorer with 39, H. Wilson had 21, Kilburn 19, C. Batty 18, O. Bell 15, and Murt-land and Powell 10 each. Crossgates tried six bowlers, and Yates had the best figures for the side, while Goodall had 4 for 35. Crossgates started in good style, Barnell making 13, Sykes 23, Goodall 19, and Craven 17, and then there was a collapse, the last five men having only five among them. Wilson trundled with great effect, securing five wickets for 11 runs, while O. B-ll had 2 for 29, Powell one for 5, and C. Bell one for 17 runs.

Collingham, who could muster only ten men on Saturday, are still at the tough of despond-ency, while Goodall had 4 for 35. Crossgates started in good style, Barnell making 13, Sykes 23, Goodall 19, and Craven 17, and then there was a collapse, the last five men having only five among them. Wilson trundled with great effect, securing five wickets for 11 runs, while O. B-ll had 2 for 29, Powell one for 5, and C. Bell one for 17 runs.

Whitkirk have come again! Crossgates Wes-leyans, who were without E. Clough, Webster, and D. Umpleby, were their opponents, and, al-though they batted very well, they could only get to the top of the tree, and put on 89. Arthur Beaumont scoring 19, P. Coultras 17, and V. Thompson 13. Ernest Ingle secured four wickets for 38. E. Poulter had 2 for 7, and E. Wainwright 3 for 20. Milford and Arthur Shep-herd opened the Whitkirk innings, and they made 63 between them. Shepherd gave a glimpse of his old form, and his innings was without blemish. Now that he has got a start, prob-ably he will keep going. When four wickets were down Whitkirk were a run ahead, so that they won easily. Wilby, who had 2 wickets for 12, had the best figures among the Crossgates bowlers. Ellis had one for 13, and G. Umpleby one for 21. Seven players had a turn with the leather.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Ulleskelf are doing well in the League, and they intend, if at all possible, to be in the semi-final stage. They were at home to Barkston on Saturday, and they won a handsome victory. The score was 100 (R. Ward 29, Bean 14, and Sykes 12), and five of their wickets were taken by A. Smith for 37, Bailey had 3 for 17, and Hill 2 for 31. Barkston made a bad start, losing three wickets without scoring, while other three afterwards failed to register a single. The total was 33, and Bailey got 11 Stronach claimed four wickets for six runs, F. Smith had five for seven, while on the Barwick side Woodhead secured five for 30 runs, and T. H. Robshaw 3 for 38.—Garforth B. accounted for Great Preston A. at Garforth. The homesters' total was 143 (J. Kilburn 59, W. Ballance 20, not out, and W. Kilburn and W. Hancock 11 each). Oldham's one was the only boss eight, and Culley's three were got for 35. Preston made 69 (H. Wiggleswortn 20, Hutchinson 14, and Thompson and Colley 12 each). F. Hancock obtained 4 wickets for 20, and W. Hancock had 5 for 29.

Garforth Wes. have been ousted from the lead-ing position in division 3 H, and four teams are now on an equality. On Saturday afternoon the Garforthians went to Colton Mill, and they were dismissed for 49 (R. Brownridge 15 and H. Ward 13), and this was largely brought about by the bowling of Mosby, who had five wickets for eight runs. Hunt secured 2 for 7, and Dob-son had 2 for 15. For a loss of three wickets Suffling—not out, 39—and A. Dobson 20 and E. Gascoigne 12, not out), Ward having two wickets for 22.—Crossgates A. defeated Halton Wes. A. without losing a wicket. The losers got 48 (Clark 16 and Hemsworth 12), and Turner obtained six of their wickets for 14, and Wilkinson 3 for 9. Wilkinson (21) and Linley (21) got the runs necessary for victory.—Cross-gates Wes. A. tried conclusions with Whitkirk at Old Manston, and the ground team won by a very substantial margin. The winners registered 152 for seven wickets, H. Thompson making 38, Brook 26, and J. Selman 18, not out). W. Cuttle, who had 7 wickets for 35, was the only Whit-kirk trundler to meet with success. Whitkirk responded for 49 (Cuttle and Woodward 13), and A. Brook captured seven wickets for 17 and H. Brook 2 for 18.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Rothwell found Oulton a little too good for them on Saturday afternoon, when they were de-feated in the League by five wickets. However, the homesters made a good show, totalling 128. J. Newton was the top scorer with 36, he having the misfortune to be run out, and W. Bedford and H. Hemsworth were next best, with 21 and 19 respectively. On the Oulton side the batsmen stood their ground well after the fall of the second wicket, when the board recorded only two runs. The third wicket went down when the board showed 55, and the 97 mark had been reached when the fourth man left the field. H. Bailey (33) A. E. Wright (26), and W. Hutchinson (23) had the best figures. Among the trundlers P. C. Higgins (2 for 7), W. Hutchinson (2 for 18), and H. Cope (3 for 33), and H. Hemsworth were next best, with 2

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
MILLER'S
NORTH ST. LEEDS
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

LOVE'S CROSS ROADS.

By MRS. L. T. MEADE

Author of "The Cockhill Room," "The Medicine Lady," "From the Heart of the Hunter," "His Mother," "Little Miss Hester," &c.

CHAPTER XXIII.—continued.

"I wonder why you did it, father?"

"Oh, I had my reasons."

Paul Colthurst turned very pale. Pamela looked full up at him. A queer sort of wonder entered her heart which she could not altogether account for, but neither Peter nor Mrs. Colthurst noticed anything in particular.

When breakfast was over and the little party were dividing to go on their different daily avocations, Paul Colthurst went up to Pamela and took her hand.

"Come into the rose garden with me, Pam," he laughed and said. "Yes, certainly, father."

He looked down at her with great affection, and drew her pretty white hand through his arm.

"It is so sweet to be able to call you father."

"And the sound, my darling, in my ears, is the most delightful music in the world," replied the man.

"Do you really love me as much as all that?" asked Pam.

"Pamela, I love you with all my heart."

"Father, I think you must have by nature a very loving heart."

"Why do you think that, Pamela?"

"Well, you seem to love so many people. Mother—you are so very good to mother."

"Pamela, child, why should I not be good to my wife?"

"Then you are so angelically sweet to me, and of course you love Peter—naturally you love Peter, your son. Of course, that is natural, darling."

"Yes, yes, Pam; quite natural."

"They say are so kind to dear old Miss Patricia Ransone. It is not every man who, sweet as the dear old lady is, would be so good to her as you are."

"We'll grant it, then, Pam, that I am an affectionate sort of person. I believe you are right. It gives me pleasure to love, and it gives me pain to hate."

"Darling! You don't hate anyone!" said the girl.

"I am not so sure."

"Whom can you possibly hate?"

"Pamela, need we discuss this question any further?"

"Certainly not, if you don't wish it."

"I don't wish it, my dearest. Pamela, I want you to make me a promise."

The girl looked up at him expectantly. She half opened her lips, then closed them again.

"I want you to make quite a simple promise. It is this."

"Well, why don't you say? Of course, will make any promise you wish, father, but I would really prefer to know what it is first."

"You are a wise and cautious child, and I will tell you. You know that poor tramp whom you have taken up."

"Silas?" said the girl.

"I have heard you speak of him by that name."

"It is his name, father."

"I want you to have nothing further to do with him, Pamela. I intend, in the course of the morning, to give orders at the lodge that under no pretext whatever is he to be admitted again inside the grounds."

"But, father dear, how cruel! And why? Poor fellow, he is so sad. Why should we who are happy deny him the pleasure of listening to kind words? Father, I don't like you when you speak to me like that."

"I do what I do at the request of a woman whom you dearly love."

"What—Miss Patricia?"

"Yes."

"Oh! father, what does she mean?"

"Pamela, child, I don't know myself; only I want you to make me the promise."

"Father, I cannot make it; it seems to me unjust. Peter and I, we were planning yesterday to do some little thing for that poor fellow, and I have been collecting a few pairs of old clothes—things quite worn out and not any good at all to my darling boy, but which would be, eh! of immeasurable use to that poor, stunted, starved creature. We were going to make up a neat little parcel—a few shirts and a jacket and socks and shoes—and we were going to watch for him—he comes every day, you know, into the grounds—and give them to him. May we not do that, father?"

"There isn't the least reason why he should not have the clothes, my dear; but you, Pamela, must have nothing to say to him."

"Do, please, let me say this one more thing. Let me at least give him that little bundle of clothes. Father, I wish you would."

"Give them to me, child, and I will see him and give them myself."

"No, no!" she answered, almost defiantly, her sweet eyes filling with tears. "You see, dad, it's like this. He doesn't know anything about you. In his eyes you are just a gentleman, top in the world, and very grand. I think he'd so much rather have them from me, and Peter will be with me, and after wards, if I must, I will tell him that he is not to come here any more. It does seem very, very cruel, and I don't understand it a bit. I think Christian people are often wonderfully un-Christian. I can't help it—I do feel like that. But it must be, I suppose, only, please, I will give him those clothes to-day."

"No, Pamela, you must not."

The girl's eyes flashed fire. She felt really angry.

"Pamela, I mean it. Until you are married, my dear, until you are more grown up, are more or less under your mother's control and under mine, and you must obey us."

"You insist!"

"I do, my child, absolutely."

"Oh, oh!" said Pamela.

She loosened her hold of her father's arm and rushed away. He watched as she disappeared from view. He knew in a moment the way in which she ran that she was hiding her tears from him; at the same time he was certain that she would not disobey.

He sat down on a bench not very far off. He said to himself: "I wish Patricia would not write such extraordinary letters. I cannot say how much it has annoyed me—and dear little Pamela is right. She has the true Christian spirit in her heart. What a sweet nature it is here! How lucky Peter is, Hullo, Pete! What is the matter, my son?"

"I wanted to know, father," said the young man, coming up quickly, "what is wrong with Pamela?"

"Peter dear, I made a simple request which she does not like."

"Indeed she doesn't," said the young man, "nor do I. We both arranged to give that poor tramp a few of my cast-off garments this morning, and you have forbidden us to give them."

"I have."

"It seems extraordinary of you, father."

"Peter, I am sorry. It is my pain not to be able to explain to you the motive under which I act; but if you can persuade Pamela to give you the clothes I will take them myself to where the poor tramp comes, and will give them to him."

"Father, you know it isn't the same."

"We must ask Miss Patricia what it all means when she comes back to-night. Peter, In the meantime I am doing what I do at her urgent request. She is a wise woman, and should not do anything of the sort without having a definite motive. All you and Pamela have to do is to be patient until Patricia returns this evening."

"Well, I will talk to Pam, but I can't bear to see her unhappy," said the youth.

He wandered away, and Paul went into the house. There he found letters awaiting his immediate attention, and, in consequence, forgot to give that order at the lodge gates which would have prevented poor Silas entering the forbidden grounds.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Meanwhile, Oswald hurried back to town. His spirit was burning with fury at him. He felt like one who saw the great chance of his life slipping from him. He was oppressed by a nameless terror. Suppose circumstances were too strong for him? He remembered quite well the very man whom Silas Luke had gone to see. He also had known Jakes far away in Africa. Jakes was noted for his skill in discovering antidotes to all sorts of snake poisons. Jakes made a good deal of money annually from snake bites, and Jakes made a study of the subject, and when they could come to him in good time, as a rule, saved their lives. The Boers also admired him very much for his rough-and-ready skill as a doctor. He had, in consequence, saved enough money to go to England. He had none of the necessary medical qualifications, but he set up as a sort of quack doctor, and treated his patients with medicines and so-called advice for a shilling per head.

Oswald puzzled and puzzled over the man's address. It had slipped his memory. He knew that if he thought long enough and hard enough he would remember it, and once having remembered it, all would be well. If Silas Luke had a conscience—an unexpected, uncomfortable, unlooked-for conscience—Reuben Jakes was certainly not troubled with that commodity.

Oswald sat back against the cushions of the railway carriage, closed his eyes, and thought. He was clever at forcing memory to do her work. Sometimes she lagged unconscionably sometimes she cheerfully obeyed. He collected clues around him—clues which would bring him to the spot where Reuben Jakes lived. One clue seemed to lead to another.

All of a sudden he clapped his hand on his thigh. "I've got it!" he cried, speaking half aloud.

He remembered Tottenham Court-road. He remembered the small side street. He remembered the little room on the third floor. Now he was all right. As soon as ever he found himself back in Victoria he hailed a taxicab, got into it, and drove to Tottenham Court-road. He desired the man to put him down at the side street which led eventually to the still smaller street where Reuben Jakes lived. He paid his fare, and walked the remainder of the distance. He felt certain now that he was in the way of luck, as he expressed it. Having reached Jakes's address, everything else must come right.

He reached the man's room. He tapped impetuously with his walking-stick on the back of the door. A voice said, "Come in," and he entered. Jakes was seated on the edge of a rickety old bedstead. He had a bottle of stout on a table near by, a haunch of bread, some butter, and a piece of Cheddar cheese.

He was enjoying this meal, when he turned his unkempt and ugly face to look full into the face of Thomas Oswald.

"Hullo!" he exclaimed. "By all that is wonderful, what has brought you to see me, old chappy chap? I am right glad to see you, Oswald. Take a chair, and tell me what you want."

"I will take a chair, and I will just tell you this much. Are you willing to do a job for me—quickly—on the nail—without any questions asked? a perilous job, a nasty job, which, clumsily done, may lead to—well, to the gallows; but a job which, if cleverly and effectually done, will make you a man of wealth to your dying day! Are you ready to take it on? If you are, you get twenty pounds on the nail. Further, the job is completed when you get five hundred pounds, and for the remainder of your life five pounds a week."

"Why, why!" exclaimed Reuben, his face full of animation, every scrap of inertia having departed. "This looks uncommonly like unconscionably like what that poor chap Silas Luke came to see me about a few days ago!"

"Are you on or are you off?" repeated Oswald.

"I'm on; of course I'm on."

"You clearly understand what it means?"

"I understand nothing, except that there's an ugly bit of danger."

"You don't earn five hundred pounds and five pounds a week without there being an ugly bit of danger. Come now, Reuben Jakes."

"I confess not."

"Well, are you on or off?"

"I'm on."

The man paused. Oswald looked round the room.

"If I could change a hole of this sort for the pleasures of life just by a stroke of the hand, do you think I'd hesitate? Not a bit. There's the chance of your losing your life; but surely, as it stands at present, it isn't much to lose!"

"It's more than you may think," replied Reuben. "It may not seem enjoyable to you, but it is to me. I get on with the shilling pretty regularly, and I've an easy conscience; and I've got a new cologuring matter which makes me sell my bottles of medicine like winkle. I'm making a fine trade all my own. Often and often I see twenty patients in a morning, so often I see twenty patients in a morning, so that I'm doing a fine trade all my own. Often and often I see twenty patients in a morning, so often I see twenty patients in a morning, so that I'm doing a fine trade all my own. Often and

M.P. for Barkston Ash and the Government.

ADDRESS BY MR LANE FOX, M.P.

Members of the Church Fenton and District Conservative Association had a pleasant social gathering in the schools at Church Fenton on Thursday evening. Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., attended, and opportunity was taken to recognise the services to the party in the locality of Mr H. S. Spark, who is leaving the village. Mr Spark presided, and among others present were Mrs Spark, the Rev. J. E. Keates (vicar of Church Fenton), Mr Lodge (Conservative agent for the Division), and Mr J. Harrison, and Mr G. H. Ambler.

Mr Lane Fox, who met with an enthusiastic reception, alluded to the difficulties of the Government over the Budget, pointing out that some of the most respectable members of the Liberal party could no longer stand the extravagance and carelessness of Mr Lloyd George's financial methods. There was, no doubt, a great deal of unrest in the party. If the Unionist party did come into power they would not, at any rate, think it necessary to keep back the relief to rates which Mr Lloyd George promised, and was now holding back quite unnecessarily. (Hear, hear). Mr Lloyd George was trying to find places for all his valuation people—the men who had been valuing land, with very little knowledge and very little success—and that was the reason for holding-up the relief he would give to the rates. What people objected to was the extravagant way in which Mr Lloyd George's proposals were carried out. (Hear, hear). Over 12,000 new officials had been created by the Government since 1906, most of them being very comfortable and well paid. (Laughter). The Insurance Act, he was told, was now costing 27 millions one way and another. Did they really think that was the value they were receiving from the Act? ("No."). That was an instance of the extravagant way in which things could be done. Now we were on the brink of civil war in Ireland, thanks to the Government, and he really did not see how a serious and disastrous conflict could be avoided. The Government, too, had chosen to rob the Church in Wales, and if they thought they could do it, they would also rob the Church in England.

All these things explained why the Government were so anxious to cover up their actions, and it must not be thought all the talk about a land campaign and improving the lot of everybody was without reason. (Hear, hear). Mr Lloyd George knew quite well that the Government had got a very bad record, and that he must try to get the minds of the people on to something that would please them better. Every one wanted to see the lot of the agricultural labourer improved—(hear, hear)—but there was the risk that ill-conceived methods might have exactly the opposite effect. (Hear, hear). If, instead of creating officials, the Government would do something in the way of diverting the money elsewhere, there would be some reason to believe in the promises they made. (Applause). They did not tell the labourer in the country that at the same time they were going to increase his wages they were going to take away his allowance and make him pay more for his cottage. Quite the most shameless thing the Government were doing and saying was their pretence that they were going to do something to improve the cottages and the houses in the country. That was the thing that many wanted to do, and were trying to do, but what had the Government done during the eight years they had been in office? They had done absolutely nothing, but on the verge of an election were making promises. He had a grave suspicion of promises made when a party knew they were on the verge of an election. (Applause). It was true they had built a large number of cottages in Ireland—at the demand of Mr Redmond—but England had not been considered. There were many good judges who thought that the Government were in such difficulties about Home Rule and the Budget, and in such general difficulty, that in a few weeks another election might have to be fought. He trusted that in that district they would do their best to expose the mendacious promises now being made. (Applause).

A cordial vote of thanks to Mr Lane Fox was passed, on the motion of the Chairman, seconded by the Rev. J. E. Keates, and supported by Mr Ambler, and a similar vote was accorded the Chairman.

Remarkable Attack on Women.

WOMAN'S EXPOSURE OF HER SEX.

An article apparently from the pen of a woman, in this month's "English Review," denounces in unmeasured terms the militant methods of the Suffragettes, and incidentally seeks to pull down woman from the pedestal on which man has placed her.

The writer declares herself an ardent advocate of the extension of the franchise to woman, and says she regarded passively the first efforts of the militants to draw attention to the cause, but, she proceeds, what is happening now is another story.

WHEN WOMAN IS BRAVE.

"Attacks on works of art, the burning down of beautiful old churches, slashing pictures, in short, vandalism—this is not the work of revolution. This is not militancy, but hysteria. The mental condition of a man or woman who destroys a work of art is unsound; such an individual is dangerous, a public nuisance. They are moral criminals.

"Let me say here at once to my fellow-women, those of us who are not suffering from epidemic hysteria: 'This must be stopped, or we other women, we mothers, we lovers, we wives, those of us to whom sex is beautiful and not a disgrace, we too will be held responsible by posterity and will become a byword of shame to our children.'

"The other day a big man said to me:—'Oh, but they have shown pluck, you must admit.' I said: 'What of it? Ask your mother what agony she suffered at your birth. Go to a lying-in hospital and ask childbirth. Ask a doctor, and then you will know what bravery is. Ask the poor, with their patience that is of God. This militant business is a hysterical pleasure to the women. They give themselves to it, as in former times they gave themselves to religion; as a woman gives herself to her lover, to her child.

UNDRESSING IN PUBLIC

"What you English men—Continental men do understand woman, I think—don't understand is that the militants go through their outrages in very much the same spirit as that which prompts girls to go on to the stage in tights, and women generally, to undress themselves in public. Our morality is controlled by suggestion. All the restrictions, laws, codes, and moral systems of the world have been made by men; woman's code is simply man's code.

"Look at our fashions! Are they modest? Go to the opera and see the naked arms, shoulders, backs, and false hair, complexions, busts, the skirts outlining the thighs and legs, the panelled dress display, and ask yourself if woman is really the tender, modest, retiring, sweetly-virginal creature you pipe-sodden Englishmen have made of her with your Puritanism and pretty-pretty art, your Peter Pan sentimentalism, your baby stage heroines, your ecclesiastical canons of chastity, your insular attitude of hypocrisy towards sex and life.

"In Spain, the women love bull-fights, the blood, the suffering, the mangled horses, the deaths, the brutality, the lust, the mad excitement. Don't English angel-women follow the hounds to the death, follow the men shooting or rather massacring pheasants, partridges, grouse, etc., and do they faint when a wounded bird flutters to the ground? All this talk of woman's natural modesty, goodness, and immaculacy of disposition is sheer bunkum; it is what men like to believe of woman, neither more nor less. Many of us find it terribly irksome living up to it, I can tell you.

"As for our goodness, Heaven knows what it would be like but for you men who have jammed it into us, by rote of laws and religions till almost we lost possession of our bodies. I tell you, you are mistaken about woman. She is what she thinks you men like her to be. It is because she has got tired of her servility that the suffrage movement has come into existence; it is because she is as yet untrained, unformed, is still a schoolgirl in powers of mental self-control, that it is so necessary to guide and direct her first flights towards freedom if they are ever to mature into conscience and utility.

THE NEED OF FORCE

"And it is because I know how utterly wrong she will go if she is not restrained and disciplined that I say to you men, help her; help her to realise herself, help her to help you, but be not afraid of her. As you have moulded her in the past, help to mould her now. To-day, she is a child, a silly, hysterical flapper. She must be taught that as force breeds force, so evil deeds are evil, in woman as in man. It is not kind to let her shame and disgrace herself.

"You men have the power. Use it. As a horse has to be ridden in, often with spurs and hard blows, as a colt has to be licked into shape, so we women must be knocked into counsels of decency. To spare is to encourage them. To show weakness is to ruin them. Let women but know that they will be treated just like madmen if they behave like madwomen, and there will soon be an end to this orgy of epidemic hysteria which is disgracing the name of England."

BARKSTON ASH BOWLING ASSOCIATION.

League Table, including Saturday, June 27th.

	P.	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Crossgates	7	2	3	758	858	0
Crossgates Recreation	7	3	4	1048	1259	2
Garforth	8	5	3	1377	1210	4
Garforth Conservatives	7	4	3	1223	1175	4
Garforth W. Men's	5	4	1	966	669	4
Halton	6	4	2	1032	945	0
Halton Travellers	8	1	7	1114	1541	0
Tadcaster	8	4	4	1383	1344	0

Points are given on the result of the home and home games.

WALTER GREEN, Hon. Sec.

INDIVIDUAL MERIT COMPETITION.

The draw for the opening rounds of the Barkston Ash Individual Merit Competition, to be played on Saturday, is as follows:—

PLAYED AT GARFORTH W.M. GREEN.

PRELIMINARY ROUND

A A. Bowmas (Crossgates Rec.) v. W. Holdsworth (Crossgates).
B J. A. Rymer (Crossgates) v. T. Clarkston (Halton).
C F. Hardcastle (Crossgates) v. D. Hill (Tadcaster).
D R. Morris (Halton) v. G. W. Burch (Crossgates).
E W. Green (Halton) v. H. Whitfield (Crossgates).
F G. Cowell (Halton) v. H. Burnett (Crossgates).
G G. Danby (Crossgates) v. N. Rhodes (Tadcaster).
H C. Holliday (Crossgates) v. G. Nicol (Halton)
J F. W. Jubb (Crossgates) v. J. P. Cowl (Crossgates Rec.).
K A. W. Wiseman (Tadcaster) v. M. Elliott (Crossgates Rec.).
L H. C. Wood (Tadcaster) v. H Lamb (Halton)
M E. Walker (Tadcaster) v. J. Crossley (Crossgates).

FIRST ROUND

O Winner of D. v. Winner of J.
P Winner of G. v. T. Fidgett (Crossgates).
Q Winner of E. v. Winner of A.
R Winner of H. v. Winner of B.
S Winner of C. v. Winner of M.
T Winner of L. v. H. Thomas (Halton).
U J. H. Hall (Tadcaster) v. Winner of F.
V T. Waddington (Tadcaster) v. Winner of K.

SECOND ROUND

Winner of O. v. Winner of P.
Winner of Q. v. Winner of R.
Winner of S. v. Winner of T.
Winner of U. v. Winner of V.

PLAYED AT TADCASTER

PRELIMINARY ROUND

A H. Goodall (Garforth W.M.) v. H. Dransfield (Garforth Cons.).
B T. Simpson (Garforth W.M.) v. G. T. Young (Garforth Cons.).
C E. Walker (Garforth) v. J. Barker (Garforth Cons.).
D T. Booth (Halton Trav.) v. G. Walker (Garforth).
E J. Whitley (Garforth W.M. v. C. W. Slater (Garforth).
F A. Matthews (Garforth) v. W. Adams (Halton Trav.).

FIRST ROUND

G Winner of E. v. F. Hutchinson (Presidents)
H A. Reed (Garforth W.M.) v. G. Tindall (Garforth).
I A. Cockrem (Garforth W.M) v. Winner of B.
J Winner of A. v. H. Margerison (Garforth Cons.).
K H. Freeman (Garforth) v. T Whitley (Garforth W.M.).
L W. Cook (Garforth Cons.) v. Winner of D.
M G. Hill (Garforth W.M.) v. Winner of C.
N Winner of F. v. G. Freeman (Garforth W.M)

SECOND ROUND

Winner of G. v. Winner of H.
Winner of I. v. Winner of J.
Winner of K. v. Winner of L.
Winner of M. v. Winner of N.

The last four ties at each green will meet on the Gascoigne Arms green, Garforth, on Monday, July 6th, at 6.15 p.m. to compete in the final rounds.

WALTER GREEN, Hon. Sec.

SALE OF A BURN FARM.—A freehold farm of 22 acres, at Burn, was sold by Messrs Richardson and Son at the George Hotel, Selby, on Monday, by Order of the executors of the late Miss S. A. Oxtoby. The farm is in the occupation of Mr Joseph Taylor at a rental of £45 per annum. Bidding commenced at £500, and rose to £1,110, at which price the farm was purchased by Ellis's Charity, owners of adjoining property.

The Singular Fatality at Lofthouse.

THE INQUEST.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned on Wednesday at Leeds in the case of Joseph Roddy (39), of 54, Leighton Lane, Park Lane, Leeds, a Post Office telegraph lineman, who met his death (as stated elsewhere), by an electric shock while working on the Wakefield Road telegraph wires.

The deceased was identified by his widow, to whom he was married only three months ago.

Mr E. F. Hart appeared on behalf of the widow; Mr A. R. Chorley, for the Yorkshire Electric Power Company; and Mr T. B. Johnson, superintending engineer of the North-Eastern district, for the Post Office.

Mrs Roddy said her husband was in splendid health when he left home on Monday morning, and he was not subject to fainting or giddy fits.

Edith Gould, of 13, Cottage, Wakefield Road, Lofthouse, said she saw the man working on one of the telegraph poles. He was some distance under the platform which separated the Post Office wires and the live wires of the Electric Power Company. As he was hammering there was a flash like that of electricity and a loud explosion, and the man fell.

The Coroner: Are you sure he did not touch any of the top wires?

The Witness: Certainly; he could not have reached them.

She added that she was about forty yards away. Assistance was obtained at once, and the man taken to the Infirmary.

Dr Flint, of the Infirmary, said the man was unconscious when admitted, and he died soon afterwards. He was suffering severely from shock, his hair was singed, and there were burns on his face, hands, and one knee. He had also internal injuries.

Mr Arthur Edwin Bland, senior inspector, employed by the Post Office, said the man was working under his instructions. He was a perfectly careful man, with twenty years' experience, erring rather on the side of safety than recklessness. The work he was engaged on was special and dangerous, and the deceased was chosen because of his character. There were thirty-six places to be fixed, bearing the words, "Danger." Post Office workmen are prohibited from entering upon the platform about this notice." Roddy was fastening the last one when the accident occurred.

The witness said he could throw no light on the cause of the electric spark which connected the man's body with the live wires above the platform. He was satisfied that Roddy would not go above the platform, though he thought he must have been near the top Post Office wires as he broke one of them in his fall.

Mr William Thomas Cooper, engineer to the Power Company, said he could not understand how the accident happened. No further precautionary measures could be taken, unless they were "fool-proof" and completely prevented anyone getting near the live wires.

A verdict of "Accidental death" was returned, and a juror remarked that they were "as far off as ever from the cause of the shock" which the man sustained.

Annual Clearance Sale.

WATCH OUR WINDOWS DAILY FOR BARGAINS IN

Costumes, Dresses, Skirts, Raincoats, Blouses.

SMITH & PETTY,

MANTLE WAREHOUSE,

44, Lowerhead Row (3 Doors from Briggate,) LEEDS

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291. CROSSGATES 6.

DOBSON & CO.,

— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —

Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,

SEACROFT, AND

70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.

Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.

PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.

96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).

DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.

3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.

3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.

PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.

Telephone No. 253. JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

SMART & SON,

3 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.

SPECIAL LINE OF

TOYS. — DOLLS. — GAMES.

Week-end Hampers, Suit Cases and Basket Ware.

ALL THE LATEST LINES.

For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,

SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

THE CHALLENGE!

Never Beaten.

BRAITHWAITE'S

"The Firm with a Reputation."

ARE NOW MAKING A

SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS

In all the LATEST STYLES, for

SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.

LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.

5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared

The Value for Money Boot Stores,

BRAITHWAITE'S, 58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.

Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

Telephone No. 1129.

RHODES & SONS,

Posters, Handbills, Circulars, Business Cards, Balance Sheets, Fixture Cards, Catalogues, Ball Programmes and . . Every description of . . General and Commercial Printing.

Commercial and General Printers, Lithographers, Bookbinders, &c.

ORDERS BY POST OR TELEPHONE PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Magazines, Periodicals, &c., Bound to any Pattern. .

"Rothwell Courier and Times" Office,

2, AIRE STREET. LEEDS.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.

THE GREAT CURE FOR COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.

Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.

OR THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.

J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Swout Street, LEEDS.

MATTHIAS ROBINSON'S, LTD.

GIGANTIC SUMMER SALE

SATURDAY, JULY 4th, at 10 a.m.

PHENOMENAL BARGAINS IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

GOWNS.

A Clearing Line of Satin Charmeuse Dresses, in rose, navy, black, ivory, and dark and light saxe. Usual price, 30/-; Sale price, 15/11.

One Very Charming French Dress. The Bodice and Tunic are in Blue and White Spotted Foulard. The lower part of the Skirt is in very fine Soft Bangaline Silk, which hangs in delightful folds, finished with a very wide fuchsia coloured Belt. A fine lawn embroidery collar completes this dress. Usual price, 8gns.; Sale Price, ... 3 Gns.

COSTUME and MANTLE Dept.

A very large quantity of Navy Blue Suiting, Diagonal and Admiralty Suiting Serges, all the newest shapes with belts at back, or hip belts, all to be cleared at 15/11

A big variety of Sports Coats, in checks, violet, tan, mustard, saxe, cardinal, and scarlet. All to be cleared at 8/11

Also one dozen only, to be sold at 5/11

An immense variety of Raincoats, the new semi-Raglan sleeve or with the set-in sleeve, three-quarter, seven-eighth, and full length, with or without belts 8/11

200 Skirts, in Tweed, Navy, Black, Saxe, Tan, Brown, Grey, and various other shades, in all sizes, with side seam and fold, to be cleared at 4/11

SPECIAL LINES IN RAINCOATS.

About 2 dozen Coats, three-quarter length, with patch pockets and belt, round waist, in violet, green, brown, and fawn, to be sold at 15/11.

MOURNING DEPARTMENT.

A useful and smart selection of Black Coats and Skirts, in Corduroy Suitings, Serges, and Silk. Season's price, 3½ guineas; prices ranging from ... ... 1 Gn.

White Pique Skirts, in all sizes, from 3/11; also Drills, Ducks, and Crepe Cloth, from 6/11.

DRESSMAKING—Perfect Fit Guaranteed.

As a special feature of the Sale, and to further extend this department, our Dressmaker will be prepared to make Stylish Dresses of the latest fabrics, at the Special Price ... 42/-

READY-TO-WEAR COTTON FROCKS.

A variety of Smart and Useful Dresses, in Navy Suiting Serge, Striped and Black and White Check, to clear 12/11

A big selection of Zephyr, Voile, Cotton, Crepe, and Cotton Brocade Useful Morning Frocks, from 2/11

A big variety of Muslin and Voile Dresses, handsomely embroidered, charming styles, from 4/11

A Special Purchase of Pique Dresses, in smart little shapes, from 2/11

DON'T MISS THESE!

75 dozen Finest Quality Embroidered Linen Pillow Cases, frilled and hemstitched, all Irish manufacture, many of these are worth 10/6 pair; Sale price, to clear, each ... 2/6

Frilled Cotton Slips, 1/11, 1/10 pair.

Hemstitched Cotton Slips, 1/10, 2/1½, 2/6 pair.

Hemstitched Linen Slips, 1/10½ each.

50 dozen Pillow Cases, buttoned ends, 4½d. each.

10 dozen Bolster Cases, full size, 1/0½ each.

Hemstitched Embroidered American Slips, 9½d. each.

Linen Crash Roller Towels, each ... 9½d.

Turkish Roller Towels 1/0½

Hundreds of Odd Towels, slightly soiled, to clear at exactly Half-price

SHEETS! SHEETS!!

Owing to the steady advance in the price of raw material, we strongly recommend our customers to take advantage of this Sale.

50 pairs of Hemstitched Cotton Sheets, double bed size, made from the finest Egyptian Cotton, former price, 12/6; Sale price, pair 10/6

35 Hemstitched Sheets, several rows of beautiful drawn-thread work, usual 7/6; Sale price, 5/6

A few Irish Embroidered Sheets, slightly soiled, to clear 5/3

We shall offer a number of Satin Toilet Quilts, odd patterns and sizes, slightly soiled, these will be marked at absurdly cheap rates to clear.

15 only, White Feather-Weight Quilts, for Summer use, 2½ by 3, 6/11 each; usual price, 8/6.

25 Large Size, Finest Quality Mercerised Quilts, white, pink, blue, and gold, usual price, 12/6; Sale price 9/11

DRESS DEPT.

Few shades only, in All-Wool Face Cloths, regular price, 2/1½; Sale price ... 1/6

975 yards Wool Taffetas, San Toys, Serges, Whipcords, &c. ... ... 1/6 yard.

550 yards Stripe Gab. Twills, 52 in. wide, in a variety of colours, suitable for Dresses, Costumes, Dust Coats, Capes, etc., 1/6 yard; worth 3/6 yard.

600 yards Imitation Donegal and other Tweeds, regular price, 4/11½ to 3/6; Sale price, 1/6

Several pieces of Navy and White Check, regular price, 2/6; Sale price 1/6

SILK, BROCHE, CREPE, and VELVETEEN DEPARTMENT.

90 pieces Natural Shanting Silk, 25 and 32 in., to clear 1/-

700 Silk Suede, in saxe, ivory, and rose, &c., 36 in. 1/6½

400 Velveteen, 22 in., in all leading shades, 11½d.

A Special Offer of Black Satin Merve, 36 in., 1/6½.

Black Satin, heavy weight, for Coats, &c., 40 in. 2/9

UNDERCLOTHING DEPARTMENT.

Ladies' Net and Lace Camisoles, very dainty patterns, 1/6, 1/9½, 2/-.

Ladies' Longcloth and Lawn Combinations. A wonderful collection comprising lace trimmed, embroidery and hand embroidery, to clear at 1/9½, 2/-, 2/6, 3/- to 8/6.

Ladies' Swiss Combinations, deep crochet top, must be cleared, 1/-, 1/6, 2/-, 2/6 to 5/- pair.

A very Special Lot of Swiss Vests, high and low necks, 6½d., 1/-, 1/6, 2/-.

Ladies' Summer Woven Directoire Knickers, in all the leading shades. 1/-

UNDERSKIRT DEPARTMENT.

Ladies' White Underskirts, trimmed lace and embroidery, the new shape, all to be cleared at 1/-, 1/9½, 2/6, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-.

Princess Skirts, up-to-date, embroidery and lace, well worth a visit, must be cleared at 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, and 7/-.

Coloured Print Skirts, 1/-, 1/9½, 2/-.

A Mixed Lot of Silk and Satin Skirts, Underskirts, in black and colours, all to be cleared at 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/-, and 8/-.

CORSETS! CORSETS!!

50 doz. Dove and White Coutille Corsets, a sub-powders, perfect contour, latest shapes, season's price, 5/11, to clear, pair ... 3/-

About 20 doz. Assorted Oddments and Makes we are discontinuing, Broches, Coutilles, &c., all sizes, this season's goods, values 2/11½ to 5/11; to clear 2/-

Dainty French Coutille Corsets, in Sky, Pink, White, and Dove, new buttonhole embroidery, long over hips and low busts, smart shape, and 4 suspenders, usual price, 5/11; to clear 3/-

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

Special Clearing Line of Children's Coloured Alpaca and Shanting Coats. Usual prices, 4/11, 5/11, 6/11, to 18/11; Sale prices, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-. These garments must be cleared regardless of cost.

Coloured Alpaca and Serge Kilts, 20, 22, 24 in., all to be cleared at 1/-

Also Cream Alpaca Kilts, large sizes; Sale price 1/6

Girls' Coloured Print Overalls, suitable for seaside wear; all sizes. Usual prices, 1/11½, 2/6, 2/11½, 3/6, 3/11½; all to be cleared at 1/3, 1/6, 2/-, 2/6.

BLOUSE DEPARTMENT.

The "Gladys" Coloured Fancy Crepe Blouse, crossover style, self and Paisley collar and cuffs, three-quarter and long sleeves, fast washing, light washing Prints, perfect fitting and well finished, usual prices, 1/11½ and 2/6; Special Bargain 1/-

300 dozen of Fancy Coloured Crepe Blouses, new coat collar, front fastening with large pearl buttons, long sleeves and perfect fitting, must be cleared. Special Bargain price 1/6; Ordinary, 2/11½.

200 dozen of French and Hercules Print Shirts, all good fitting and smartly finished, Polo and low detachable collars, fasten front and side, all fast washing colours, very Special price 1/6; Ordinary 1/11½ and 2/11½.

Cream Zap Silk Fancy Blouses, low collars and long sleeves, daintily trimmed with lace, well finished and good fitting, in all sizes, must be cleared at 8/-; Ordinary price, 12/11.

TRIMMED MILLINERY SHOWROOM.

Exceptional Bargains in Model Hats, smart and exclusive styles, trimmed tastefully with feathers, mounts, and floral effects. The original prices of these from 25/11 to 3 guineas; to be cleared at 10/- each.

About 200 Trimmed Hats, all latest productions in hand-made Straw, Lace, Arcophane, and other dainty materials, in black and coloured, all different styles and varieties to suit every individual taste. Usual prices, from 15/11 to 23/11; Sale price ... 7/6

About 150 Coloured and Black Trimmed Hats, including Matrons' Toques, and a few Ladies' Bonnets, all this season's newest productions, trimmed wings, flowers, mounts, and feather effects. Usual prices, from 8/11 to 14/11; Sale price 5/-

BRIGGATE and KIRKGATE CORNER, LEEDS.

Telephone 4181 Central, Leeds. ARTHUR H. ROBINSON, Managing Director.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

ALLPASS & CO., LTD.,
Established over Thirty Years Ago.
HOUSE FURNISHERS,
Cash or Deferred Payments.
BABY CARS & WASHING MACHINERY
A Specialty.
UPPERHEAD ROW, LEEDS.

Rothwell Courier & Times
AND
Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO 80.—[Registered at the G.P.O.] as a Newspaper. NEW SERIES. SATURDAY, JULY 11 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
LIGHTNING PROGRAMME.
THE STAGE ALWAYS OCCUPIED.
MONDAY, JULY 13th, 1914.
TROVATO.
Humorist, Violinist, and Originator of his Style and Mannerisms.
HERBERT DARNLEY.
In a revival of the latest of the famous "Potts" sketches, "POTTS IN PORT."
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.
4 READINGS. JOHNSON & BERT.
ROWLANDS & FORD.
HARRY BEDFORD. REBLA.
HAMLIN & MACK.
In Song, Story, and Dance.
TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY.
AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 3s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.
EVERY ITEM A SPECIAL FEATURE.
NO WAITS.
Booking Office open at Theatre, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily for advance booking of Boxes, Orchestra Stalls, and Grand Circle.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
MISS CLARICE MAYNE & "THAT."
FOREMAN & FANNAN.
MURFAYNE
HIPPODROME PICTURES.
SISTERS JEROME.
THE HARMERS.
KISBEY.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 7s., 6d., and 4d.

CITY VARIETIES, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY 7 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, JULY 13th, 1914.
JACK SHIRES.
ANNETTA CAMPBELL.
SYDNEY E. BRANDON.
3 MAX BROS.
VARIESCOPE.
NESTAR.
PASTOR & MERLE.
Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY.
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Established
SPARKLING HOSPERRIDE
TRADE MARK
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
Obtainable from HOTELS RESTAURANTS & STORES
REYNOLDS & BRANSON LTD LEEDS.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds,
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

People who have not been in the grounds of Templenewsam cannot complain of lack of opportunity. By the courtesy of the owner, thousands of residents have visited the ancient place on the Sunday afternoons of May and June, and it is evident that Mr Wood's kindness has not been abused, because the grounds are to be open every Sunday afternoon in July. Had there been any destruction of plants or trees, I assume that the privilege would not have been extended, and it is pleasing that the public have done nothing to make the owner take drastic measures.

In Kippax, I understand, two medical charities organizations exist, and this may be owing either to the zeal or differences among the people, but it is obvious that there is room for only one body. Kippax has a population of over 4,000, and among the villagers are many ardent workers for the charities, which have benefitted by the generosity of the people for many years, but over-lapping never did any good, and the semblance of differences is not calculated to encourage growth, so I would suggest to all concerned that one organization be formed to do the work. This is a public question, and I think that if representative men were to call a meeting of all workers the way would be smoothed for co-operation among all classes. Usually in villages it is difficult to get people to give voluntary service for this splendid work, but Kippax is one of the villages which is not in that unfortunate position, and it is a tribute to the public-spirit of the residents. We received a letter last week bearing on this question, but as it was mainly taken up with personal explanations it was unsuitable for publication. We gladly publish correspondence, but the letters must deal with matters from a public point of view.

Do the ratepayers of Crossgates, Seacroft, Shadwell, and Roundhay agree with the attitude adopted by male members of Leeds Board of Guardians to their lady colleagues? Judging by the remarks of some of the ladies all is not well. The men seem to think that they have an exclusive possession of wisdom and judgment, and, of course, when a deputation was required to interview women candidates for a certain office four male Guardians were appointed. Poor Law administration is work for which ladies are well-fitted—in fact, I have heard one of the male Guardians speak in terms of the highest praise of some of the ladies, whose ability, discretion, and enthusiasm were admirable, but apparently the Leeds Board are determined that the sex shall have as little say as possible in the affairs of the Board. Seeing that the official to be appointed was a woman, at least two lady members should have been on the deputation, but the Board declined to put one on.

Why should the ladies not retaliate at the next election? It would add to the gaiety of the contest. By that time, however, the lords of creation may have climbed down, because women's votes are essentially useful at a certain time. The Hunslet, Tadcaster, and Wetherby Boards have each one lady member, so they cannot compare with the Leeds Board, which has a number of lady members, but I know that women are sometimes better Guardians than men, giving time and attention to the work which involves no little sacrifice.

By a singular combination of circumstances, it was impossible to have the Garforth Urban Council meeting on the 1st inst., and it was accordingly adjourned until Wednesday. Such a thing may never again occur in the history of the Council, and it is the first time I have known of a meeting of any local body adjourned for such a cause. In the days of the old Parish Council at Garforth an interesting and amusing incident occurred. One year the annual meeting was held before the proper date, and the "fathers" were no doubt surprised when it pointed out in this column that they had been "too previous." The consequence was that, to put matters in order, they had to convene another meeting and do the business over again.

Recently a newspaper correspondence has taken place concerning stiles and gates on footpaths, and there is no doubt reason for complaint by farmers and the public. In various parts of the district mischief-loving individuals, who delight in causing annoyance to pedestrians, have torn up stiles, and recently a farmer in the Templenewsam district showed me an excellent stile which it must have taken considerable force to destroy, for the planks were fastened by very large nails. The damage, I believe, is done by young men, and it is a pity an example could not be made of some of these offenders.

On the other hand, farmers and landowners are not always ready to fulfil their obligations, and stiles have remained in a dilapidated and dangerous state state for years. More than once public attention has been directed to the condition of stiles on footpaths at Whinmoor and Barwick, but no remedy has been applied. Paths through fields must not be obstructed, or if fencing is erected proper stiles must be made, and the farmer for owner who neglects to provide a stile must not complain if his fence is broken down.

Sherburn has its annual show on Monday, and the meeting is eagerly looked forward to by numerous residents of the district. The Society, like other institutions, has had its ups and downs, but in recent years it has made steady progress, and the quality of the exhibits at the show is always high. Not many years ago a horticultural exhibition was run in connection with the meeting, but owing to the apathy of local people it was dropped, and a new attraction in the shape of a poultry show was introduced with marked success. To this branch of farming—a side line, it might be styled—more attention than ever is being given, and to those who conduct it on common-sense lines, as shown by our poultry expert, a new source of profit has been opened up. For that reason it is probable that more interest will be evinced in poultry shows than was the case a few years ago. Cattle exhibits are another feature at Sherburn, and if local farmers were a little more enthusiastic competition in this department would be very much keener. One often hears grumbling by agriculturists about outsiders entering and carrying off all the prizes, but are the grumblers not to blame themselves? If they would send sufficient animals forward to compete, restrictions would no doubt be soon placed on "pot-hunters," but they cannot expect show committees to remain inactive whilst they are apathetic. Competition among local exhibitors is what every committee desires, because they know that it would enhance the value of their undertaking if interest were more widespread locally.

In Barkston Ash the game of bowls is becoming increasingly popular, and if more greens were provided it would assuredly make greater headway. Barwick, Aberford, Bramham, Spofforth, Kirk Deighton, Sherburn, Church Fenton, South Milford—to mention only a few of the villages—have no facilities for bowling, and it is unfortunate, because the game is excellent recreation and it makes for good fellowship. The final for the championship at Garforth was witnessed by a fairly large number of spectators, and the players—Thomas (Halton) and Westerman (Tadcaster)—provided capital sport. Westerman, who is an ex-champion, is no doubt the best bowler the district has produced, and his record in past tournaments testifies to this, but he has not, owing probably to a lack of practice, been playing quite so well this year. Thomas has always been recognised as a skilful bowler, and Reed and Simpson (Garforth W.M.) are making reputations for themselves.

Sir William Younger, who, I believe, is a son-in-law of the late Sir Robert Gunter, of Wetherby Grange, has the ring of the true social reformer about him, and property-owners in the district—wealthy or poor—who own rotten property have, I hope, read his speech on tuberculosis at the Leeds conference. He is a member of the Royal Commission on Housing (Scotland), and he said that when he saw houses in which thousands of people lived he wondered that they had so long tolerated in patience such hideous conditions of existence. "Why," he asked, "should a working-man, when he took a house, be subjected to conditions under which he ran many times greater risk of phthisis than did his wealthy neighbour?" Why? Because, as a rule, the people who could remedy the conditions do not care how their poorer fellows live. Touch their pockets, and they scream at once. Yet thousands of people are being done to death every year in damp dwellings. Dr. Kaye, medical officer for the West Riding, says that tuberculosis is a disease brought about by bad housing, and he ought to know something about it.

One of the most important questions which has received the attention of the Tadcaster Guardians and District Council for several years came before the meeting on Monday, and it was discussed with closed doors. Mr Bromet, who was appointed Clerk several years ago, and who is very popular with the members, applied for an increase of salary, and, comparing his remuneration with Clerks of other bodies in the area, he had justification for his action. But why should the information to which the ratepayers were entitled have been withheld? Mr Bromet's salary for both offices was, I believe, £510, and out of this he had to pay clerks' salaries, office rent, etc., and he has been given an advance of £135. The members recognized that he was entitled to an advance, and I understand there was no opposition, although there was a difference of opinion as to the amount to be given. As far as I can learn there was nothing to debar from the ratepayers, but certain members would probably go back to the methods of the "good old times" if they were allowed.

Considerable damage has been done in the district to crops by the recent storms, and here and there fields of corn "laid" by the heavy rains may be seen. One Towton farmer, I understand, estimates his loss at a considerable sum, and in the district around Church Fenton it will be impossible to cut a considerable acreage by means of the reaper. While the rain was a blessing it has apparently not been an unmixed blessing.

A complaint has reached me concerning the Shadwell motor-bus service, and the Corporation officials, if they are not too busy, will perhaps give it consideration. An excellent service is given on Saturdays, but that is not the only day of the week, and I understand that the residents are not at all pleased with what the Corporation gives them on other days. Needed, and this will be obvious when it is stated that the last 'bus to the village is at 6.20 p.m. Having given Shadwell's grievance publicity, I hope the Corporation will do their part and provide a remedy.

Owing to the apathy of club members there is a danger of Barkston Ash Football Association, which was once one of the most flourishing organisations in Yorkshire, going to the wall. Only one club representative attended the annual meeting, the others present being members of the Executive, and no one was inclined to accept office. Many causes are given for the decline of the game in the district, but in the villages it is difficult to maintain enthusiasm in connection with any organization for a number of years. The Association possesses four valuable trophies, three given by generous donors, and it really is surprising there is not keener competition for them. If organized football ceases to exist in the district the players will have themselves to blame, and they will have to come to a decision on the 22nd inst.

Tadcaster District Council on Monday was in the same mood as a certain noble politician, who, using strong language, expressed an utter disregard for the consequences that might follow a particular action. It was an unfamiliar role for the Council to adopt, but where the Chairman leads there are always some members who dare to follow. A lady, who prefers to hide her identity from the public, generously erected a water trough for the benefit of cattle on the road between Tadcaster and York, and the District Council asked the permission of the Local Government Board to pay the cost of the water supplied to it. The Board practically declined to sanction the expenditure, which they said must come before the official auditor, and the Highways Committee recommended that the matter be allowed to drop. But a section of members were not inclined to accept this, and it was decided, by one vote, to turn the water into the trough and run the risk of a surcharge. One farmer—Mr Frank Myers—stated that the trough was altogether too elaborate, and horses and cattle could not be driven up to it. However, the decision has been taken, and the next move is with the auditor.

More than one complaint has been received concerning accidents occurring owing to the carelessness or recklessness of cyclists at Kippax, and it is evident that a little caution is wanted on the part of wheelmen. A gentleman told me that he was cycling towards the village the other day, and a cyclist, with head down, came round a bend of the road at a fast speed. Before he discerned the danger the cyclist dashed into the other machine and there was a smash. Both men were injured, and the offending cyclist had his bicycle completely wrecked.

NEWTHORPE CHARITY SPORTS.

On Saturday afternoon the annual athletic sports at Newthorpe were held in a field kindly lent by Mr Wm. Bromley. There was a good attendance, about 1,500 spectators witnessing the events. Last year the Leeds Infirmary benefitted to the extent of £22 by the sports. The Micklefield Brass Band was in attendance and played selections of music during the afternoon and evening, when a gala was held. The following helped to make the venture a success:—Judges, Messrs J. Jackson, H. Goodall, W. Bromley, H. Hare, and J. Greensmith; starter, Mr Bromley; clerks of course, Messrs. Goodall, W. Mack, A. Rodgers, W. Brooks, J. Crowther, W. Palfryman, E. Blythe, and H. Copley; starter, Mr G. Playforth; bellman, Mr J. Johnson; stewards, Messrs. T. Wood and G. Wrigglesworth; number board, Mr E. Waites; gatemen, Messrs. H. and J. Dunnington and F. Wrigglesworth; dart throwing, Messrs R. Bonfield and H. Wood; bowling at wicket, Mr G. Smales. The prizes were presented to the successful competitors by Mrs W. Bromley. Results:—

So yards race for boys attending schools at Micklefield, South Milford, Sherburn, and Ledsham. Final—1 R. Webster, Micklefield 2, H. Mottram, Sherburn; 3 Cromack.

120 yards flat race (open).—Heat winners—J. Bramfoot, Outwood (7). W. Walker, Kippax (13), H. Buck, Hunslet (6), E. Parker, Purston (9), C. Hill, Toulston (13), C. Eastwood, Kippax (13), N. Eccles, Eastmoor (12). Final—1, Buck; 2, C. Hill; 3, Walker.

Half-mile cycle race (open).—Heat winners—C. Mortimer, Garforth (80), R. Shackleton, Brotherton (50), G. W. Binns, Kellfield (95), A. Steels, Ledston (55). Final—1, Binns; 2, Shackleton.

80 yards schoolboys' race (open).—Heat winners—1, Wilson, Stanley (6), C. Moore, Stanley (23), P. Lofthouse, Altofts (12), J. T. Moulding, Kippax (9), T. Lewis, Featherstone (14). Final—1, Wilson; 2, Lofthouse.

Three-quarter mile cycle handicap (open).—Heat winners—R. Shackleton, Brotherton (75). F. Moore, Brotherton (65), J. T. Downes, Kippax (100), H. Booth, Ferrybridge (45). Final—1, Booth; 2, Shackleton.

Bowling at wicket—1, Barker, Fairbarn; 2, H Dunnington, Newthorpe.

220 yards handicap (open).—Heat winners—H. Buck, Hunslet (6), C. Hill, Toulston (23), H. Lord, Purston (21), C. Soar, New Fryston (21), B Bradley, New Fryston (9). Final—1, Hill 2, Bradley.

One mile cycle race (open).—Heat winners—A Milner, Brotherton (90); R. Shackleton, Brotherton (100); H. Booth, Ferrybridge (80). Final—1, Milner; 2, Booth; 3, Shackleton.

So yards race for married women. The first prize was a pig given by Mr Samuel Grimbley, Newthorpe.—1, Mrs Wm. Lawson, South Milford; 2, Mrs Capes, Newthorpe; 3 Mrs Cockill, Micklefield.

So yards race for men over 50 years of age (4 miles radius).—1, J. Artle, Micklefield; 2, J. Thompson, Micklefield.

The marriage of the Hon. Bernard Howard, eldest son of Lord Howard of Glossop, and the Baroness Beaumont, of Carlton Towers, near Selby, will take place at the Catholic Church, Carlton (the Rev. Father Waugh, priest-in-charge) on July 30th. Dr. Cowgill, the Lord Bishop of Leeds, will read the nuptial Mass.

CRICKET.—On Saturday a match was played between Monk Fryston and Whitwood, and it was drawn. The homesters made 252 for 9 wickets and declared, and their opponents scored 78 for 8 wickets. Scores:—Monk Fryston Park Cricket Club: J. Pickering 19, T. Kirkman 10, R. Harrison 9, J. Long 32, T. Heptonstall 0, T. Atkinson 7, S. Robinson 13, W. Long (not out) 29, H. Laycock 19; J. Foster 6, extras 17; total (9 wkts.) 252. (Innings declared). Whitwood—F. Birks 9, H. Jones 3 C. White 21, A. Wailes 25, W. Bucknall 1, H. Reed 0, H. Moore 0, H. Copeland 1, W. Bailey (not out) 6, W. Tonks (not out) 12; total (for 8 wkts.), 78. (Match drawn).

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week Kalma has a couple of baffling illusions in "The Floating Ball," and "The Maid of All Nations," and his sleight-of-hand tricks are performed extremely neatly. The building of a brick wall on the stage on Monday by 250 of the local unemployed labourers was the preliminary to the presentation in the evening of the illusion "Walking through a brick wall," which Mr G. E. Josolyne claims to have invented. The wall is placed in the centre of the stage, which is carpeted, and a young lady stands on one side of the wall. Small wooden screens are then placed on opposite sides of the wall, one enclosing the lady, and when they are removed she is found on the other side of the wall. The audience, needless to say, are completely mystified. "In Trouble Again" is the title of a new sketch which provides Tom Foy with the opportunity of revealing the weird workings of a bucolic mind, the absurdities of which are irresistibly funny. The Three Aeros, trapeze artists, have an amazing comedian, and Mr Wagner give an entertaining turn. Veronica Brady can make an old song go with a swing, and Frank Powell has some good gags.

According to one of our greatest musical critics, "Tristram," of the "Referee," Mr Frank Allen, the managing director of Leeds Empire, is going to present the most extraordinary violinist, with a delightfully humorous vein in his performance, to visitors on Monday next. He has made a marvellous success last week in London, and of his ability "Tristram" says:—His name is Trovato, and in a scene to himself, this newcomer has startled the audience into amazement and admiration. Trovato is a marvellous comic violinist, playing his fiddle on his knee, and acting in the quaintest fashion with a fine command of facial play. Not only does Trovato play the most difficult of music, but he makes his fiddle echo certain sounds as they occur in the audience, such as laughter, sneezing, and almost the very words of expression, such as bravo, encore, etc. The management is to be congratulated on securing this astounding fiddler. He is indeed a "Ben" to the patrons next week. Herbert Darnley in the latest of the famous "Potts" sketches, viz., "Potts in Port." This will be presented by Miss Wm Blundell, who, by the way, was the original Miss Porter in "Private Potts." Miss Blundell will be supported by a full London company, and the whole will be personally produced by Herbert Darnley, who will also sustain the title-role. In three scenes. Others in the bill are the Four Readings, sensational jugglers of human beings; Hamlin and Mack, in song, story, and dance; Rowlands and Ford, comedians; Rebla, eccentric juggler; Johnson and Bert, acrobatic comedians; and Harry Bedford, comedian.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week there is an excellent programme. The Warsaw Brothers, in a "satirical mythological phantasy," "Pan and Orpheus," give a really clever turn, which consists of brilliant playing on various instruments and some first-rate yarns. Their turn is new, clean, and novel, and on Monday night they brought down the house. There are more thrills in the performance by the De Lussi Troupe than one can count; and Miss Ina Hill, late of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, had to sing three songs on Monday night before the audience would let her go. Mr P. T. Selbit, who has brought many startling illusions to Leeds, presents the baffling mystery, "Walking Through a Wall," which he claims as his original idea. It is a smart piece of work, and quite bewilders the audience. Baker and Balfe perform on the xylophone, and the gentleman dances a clog dance as it should be rendered. The Four Sisters Ruby are a troupe of talented ladies who do acrobatic and contortion feats extremely well, and Miss Isabel D'Armond and Mr Frank Carter have one or two very good songs. Then there are the Fimans in a comical sketch; and Lil. Sprightly, character comedienne.

Miss Clarice Mayne, who, along with "That" (Mr James W. Tate), tops the bill at the Hippodrome next week, needs no introduction to Leeds audiences after her successes in the last two season's pantomimes at Leeds. The turn will comprise selections from their repertoire of Kisbey, the call boy, ranks second on the bill of fare, which also includes Foreman and Fannon (Percy and Harold), the millionaires; Bert Jayne, the monarch of the xylophone; the Sisters Jerome, duettists and dancers; The Harmers (Frank and Beryl), versatile vocal duo, and the Hippodrome pictures.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES.

At the Varieties, in the leading position, are the Ko Ten Ichi Troupe, Japanese conjurers, who go through a clever performance, and introduce their celebrated Basin act. They hold a rousing reception on Monday night. Mabel and Cliff Diamond present an entertaining singing and dancing act. Will Lindsay, who has been the mainstay of many a pantomime, appears "on his own," and keeps the audience in a very contented frame of mind. V. Wakeman, who styles himself "The Human Corkscrew," successfully imitates such great artistes as Caruso and Tetrazzini. Others appearing are Cora Mirth and Harry Melody; and Harry Clifford, coster comedian.

Next week at the popular Varieties Jack Shires, described as a star comedian with a new style, will figure in a song scena, featuring "P.C. Green of Pudsey." Others billed to appear are Annetta Campbell, a sweet singer; Sydney E. Brandon, character impersonator; Three Max Bros., ragtime wooden shoe and ice skate dancers; Nestah, somedy juggler; and Pastor and Merle, quaint humorists. The pictures to be shown are "Her Wayward Son" (dramatic), and "The Whirlwind Kids" (comic).

Mr A. T. F. Young, of Bilbrough, won first prize in the driving in harness class, and third in the class for nag at Haxby Show on Wednesday.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

Its Easy to Improve the Appearance of Your Home.
There is nothing that will so easily improve the appearance of a home as tasteful Glass and China Ware, and to fully realize the remarkable advance which has taken place in this industry, one must walk through Doyle's splendid Showrooms, which are now full of the most exquisite and dainty China and Glassware imaginable. Throughout the prices are strictly competitive, whilst many of the unique styles and designs are entirely exclusive, and can be had only be obtained from Doyle's. Why not call the next time you are in Town, or at least look in our windows.

Tea Sets, 40 pieces	...	...	...	from 9/6 to £20
Dinner Sets	...	...	...	,, 10/6 to £30
Toilet Sets	...	...	...	,, 5/6 to £10
Trinket Sets	...	...	...	,, 2/6 to £5

59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.
DOYLE'S, LTD.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
ON THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291.
,, CROSSGATES 6.
DOBSON & CO.,
WHOLESALE & RETAIL —
Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,
SEACROFT, AND
70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.
Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.
PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
Huddersfield: ,, 1609.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

HARDY PENNIALS.

Many varieties of hardy herbaceous plants may be successfully raised from seed sown this month. Such subjects as delphiniums, lupins, bellyhocks, and oriental poppies are indispensable in large gardens. They are strong-growing and showy, and the lupins in particular should be grown for clothing banks and wide borders. They show to the greatest advantage when massed in groups. The seedlings should be allowed to flower once in the nursery beds, so that each one can be labelled as to colour. When this is done delightful colour effects can be worked out when transferring them to permanent quarters. Reverting to sow a huge basket filled entirely with lupins and Spanish iris. The lupins were planted in groups of five, and between each group a space of about six feet was left for the accommodation of the irises. The colour scheme had been tastefully worked out and the effect was superb. An even better effect might be obtained by substituting the German iris for the Spanish. Mention of the iris family reminds us that one rarely sees the bulbous section used to the extent it deserves. The English and Spanish varieties are remarkably pretty, and amateurs would do well to bear them in mind when placing their next bulb order. They do well in town gardens and continue to flower for many years. Reverting to the subject of raising perennials from seed, we would advise our readers to purchase their seed from firms making a speciality of this class of plant. Sow in boxes and put them in a close, shaded frame, until germination takes place. When the seedlings appear gradually accustom them to light and air, and prick off as soon as they are large enough to handle. Gradually harden off, and plant out in nursery beds before the young plants get crowded. Watering should be performed with if the weather is dry, and every encouragement should be given to promote free growth. Invariably a number of worthless varieties will appear amongst a batch of seedlings, and these should be weeded out whilst in flower. In the case of the Hollyhocks it is advisable to remove them to a cold frame before winter sets in, especially if the soil is wet and heavy. On light, sandy soils, it is quite safe to leave them outdoors. Seedling Sweet Williams, coreopsis grandiflora, primroses, auriculas, and that are large enough, may now be planted into nursery beds. Water freely until the plants get established, and attend to weeding and mowing the surface soil as occasion arises. The raising of these hardy subjects from seed will be found to be an interesting and pleasing method of stocking a garden.

VEGETABLE GARDEN.

PARSLEY.

There is such a constant demand for parsley that special efforts should be made to maintain a regular supply. For winter use it is advisable to make a sowing of seed this month. Sow thinly in a sheltered position, and when the seedlings appear thin out to nine inches apart. Spring-sown plants should now be growing freely, and here again severe thinning should be practised. If the soil is dry give a good watering before attempting to draw out surplus plants. If large quantities are required, the thinnings may be replanted in suitable quarters. In exposed districts seed may be sown in a shallow cold frame.

VEGETABLE MARROWS.

Marrows are so easily grown that there is a danger of them being badly neglected. Their rapid growth correctly implies a need of an extremely large amount of water. If they are allowed to get dry at the roots growth is checked, and the marrows become hard, pithy, and a strong flavour. As soon as the plants commence to bear fruit they should be liberally supplied with liquid manure. It is a great mistake to allow the fruit to remain on the plant until they attain a large size. When this is done, they not only depreciate in quality, but cause the plants to suffer in consequence of having to develop seed.

BROAD BEANS.

The broad bean is a very accommodating plant and will give good returns on almost any kind of land, and is not very particular as to aspect. It will crop in either a sunny or semi-shaded position. The plants should now be developing pods, and when a fair length of blossoming stem has been made the tops of the plants should be removed. This causes the flow of sap to be diverted into the young pods, and increases the yield. Topping should be resorted to as soon as black fly makes its appearance, even if only a short stem has been made. As soon as the crop has been gathered the plants should be pulled out. If they are allowed to remain in the ground they produce a quantity of young shoots from the base, but as these are too late to give a second crop, they are not only useless, but they exhaust the soil.

FRENCH BEANS.

The surface soil between the rows of French beans should be regularly broken up with the hoe. As growth proceeds draw a little soil to the sides of the rows. This keeps the plants erect, checks evaporation, and provides fresh feeding accommodation. Gather the pods before the seed commences to swell. This will ensure a long-continued supply.

PLANTS IN POTS.

HERBACEOUS CALCEOLARIA.

If more plants are wanted a sowing of seed may now be made. Earlier sown seedlings will now be growing freely. It will be noticed that there is a wide difference in the stamina of the plants. The strongest may be relied upon to produce flowers in which yellow largely predominates. If really large specimens are wanted a few of these may be retained, but if rich-coloured and heavily-mottled flowers are wanted the strongest plants should be discarded. Grow in a cool, moist, shaded position, and keep a sharp look-out for greenfly, the calceolarias worst enemy.

GLOXINIAS.

Gloxinias grow luxuriantly in a temperature of about 60 to 65 degrees, with plenty of atmospheric moisture. Young seedlings should be shaded from bright sunshine, and grown within a foot of the roof glass. The soil most suited to gloxinias is a light, fibrous loam, with one-third each of leaf-mould, peat and silver sand. A little rough manure may be sprinkled over the crocks. When flower buds appear, weak liquid manure may be given once a week. When the flowers commence to open discontinue the feeding and reduce the temperature. Choice varieties may be increased by placing leaves, with about an inch of foot stalk attached, in a box of sand and leaf-mould. Bury the stalk in the compost, leaving the leaf just clear of the surface. Place the box in a warm house and shade from bright sun. In a few weeks' time a young bulb will form at the base of the stalk. If a bulbouse is available a sowing of seed may now be made. Grow the seedlings on through the winter on a shelf near the glass. They will flower early next year. After flowering they may be potted on into larger pots and will grow away without a check and flower again later in the year.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

The main batch of plants should now be in their final pots and standing in the open. They must be remembered that Chrysanthemums require the maximum amount of light and air; there must be a distinct air space between the plants, and they should be arranged in such a manner as to shade each other as little as possible. Many growers place their plants in "a nice sheltered position," which, as often as not, is one where they get drawn and spindly, and fail to produce satisfactory flowering wood. Full exposure, short of subjecting them to destroying winds, will give the best results. Keep the surface soil free from weeds, and examine the plants daily to prevent a severe attack of insect pests. Prevention is much better than cure, and regular syringing with soot water and an occasional dust over with tobacco powder will do much towards keeping the plants clear of green and black fly, "jumpers," and daddy-long-legs. Surplus side shoots should be picked out whilst quite small. The longer they are allowed to remain on the plants the greater the injury they do to them. Closer attention to these details goes a long way towards bringing success.

A ROTHWELL MAN AS PARLIAMENTARY CANDIDATE.

MR LUNN AND HOLMFIRTH.

On Saturday Councillor William Lunn, of Rothwell, was adopted as prospective Labour candidate for the Holmfirth Division. The adoption meeting took place at the Spring Vale Council School, Penistone, and it was thoroughly representative and enthusiastic in character. Nearly fifty delegates were present, representing 5,000 trade unionists.

Councillor F. W. Castle, of New Mill, Hyddersfield, presided, and the resolution adopting Mr Lunn as the candidate was proposed by Mr S. Illingworth (Strafford Rob Roy Branch of the Yorkshire Miners' Association) and seconded by Mr J. Dixon (financial secretary of thes Yorkshire Miners' Association). Addresses in support of the resolution, which was carried with unanimity, were delivered by Councillor T Phipps (Dodworth), Mr E. J. Heywood (Dyers and Finishers, Holmfirth), Mr Ben Riley (Labour Agent), and Councillor Egerton P. Wake (National Executive of the Labour Party).

Mr W. Lunn expressed his willingness to accept the invitation to contest the seat at the next election. He realised, he said, that he was undertaking no light task, but he knew he would have the help of a large number of workers. He would endeavour to realise that by securing victory for him at the next election they would be securing victory for themselves. He asserted that the Labour Party could not be blamed for the three-cornered contests. In that constituency they would ask for no favour from any Party. They should offer no apology to any Party for fighting that division or any other industrial constituency. (Applause). Holmfirth, he contended, was a division that ought to be represented by Labour. He also expressed himself in favour of the policies of the Miners Association and the National Labour Party.

Mr Lunn, who was defeated at the bye-election in Holmfirth in 1912, was also invited to become Labour candidate for Wakefield.

AN ARMY OF ANGLERS.—The quiet village of Ulbsheft was invaded on Saturday by a whole army of anglers from the West Riding, who had journey by special train from Leeds to take part in the annual week-day fixture of the Leeds and District Amalgamation. The previous record in the direction of individual entries was left a long way behind, and nearly 400 were ready to begin fishing when the signal was given to commence operations at 4 p.m. Everything seemed favourable to fair sport—a grand day, with a nice uptown breeze, and the river Wharfe coloured just sufficiently to conceal the ulterior motive of the man on the bank. In the deep, dead water nothing was caught except eels and flounders, but in the "streamy" swims the small dace provided considerable diversion. Operations ceased at seven o'clock.

MARVELLOUS CURE OF BLEEDING PILES.

(Copy). 17, Sweet Street, Holbeck.

To Mr J. Crosswaite,

Dear Sir,—This is to certify that I was cured of bleeding piles by your remedy of herbs, and I only took one bottle of medicine and used one box of ointment. I shall recommend you to everyone I come across. You may use this testimonial as you like.

(Signed) ISAIAH WHEATLEY.

SANSPAREIL HERBALIST
PROF. CROSSWAITE
21 KIRKSTALL RD.

HOURS OF ATTENDANCE:
Morning: 10 to 12. Afternoon: 2 to 4. Evening: 5 to 8.
WEDNESDAY (Evenings only) 6.30 to 8.
No Attendance on Sundays.
COMPORTABLE WAITING ROOM.
PRIVATE CONSULTING ROOM

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

CLERK'S SALARY INCREASED BY £135.

KIPPAX, TADCASTER, BARKSTON, SHERBURN AFFAIRS.

The fortnightly meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held at Tadcaster on Monday.—Abl. E. C. Brooksbank, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. Other members present were Mr J. W. Blackburn (vice-chairman), Rev. Canon Greenwood (Grimston), Miss Bethell (Newton Kyme), Messrs W. Jackson (Acaster Selby), E. Midgley (Colton), Watson (Stutton), W. V. K. Young (Clifford), R. Routledge, and B. Braham (Garforth), T. H. Prater (Darlington), J. Wordsworth and E. H. Lowe (Great Preston), J. W. Dobson (Newthorpe), W. Sykes, C.C., J. H. Ingleby, J.P., J. Nettleton, H. P. Clinch, and W. Schofield (Tadcaster), W. P. Nicholson (Stutton Grange), F. Myers (Bilbrough), T. Hey, J. E. Smithurst, and J. J. Foster (Sherburn), G. Webster (Huddleston-cum-Lumby), W. A. Dickinson and J. Hewitt (Keppax), E. Parker (Ledsham), R. Wright (Barwick), R. H. Parker (Askham Bryan), White (Barkston), F. Phillips, G. Pearson, and H. Surdy (Allerton Bywater), W. Simpson (Lead), A. Johnson (South Milford), J. H. Schofield (Oxton), Carlton (Stutton), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Bromet).

THE HOUSE.

The master's report showed that during the fortnight there had been five admissions to the workhouse and five discharges. The number in the workhouse was 86 and in the homes 17—103 against 99 at the corresponding date of last year. The tramps relieved during the two weeks were 23 and 24 against 19 and 12.

At a meeting of the House Committee the salary of Nurse Owen was increased by £5.

The Finance Committee approved of the bonds of the assistant overseers for Appleton and Alferton.

The Local Government Board wrote sanctioning the appointment of Dr. Ross, medical officer for Ryther.

It was decided to get copies of the report of the Yorkshire Poor Law conference.

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

Mr J. J. Foster moved the following resolution:—"That this Board respectfully urge His Majesty's Government to pass into law with all possible speed the Bishop of London's Bill to amend the Criminal Law Amendment Act. That a copy of this motion be sent to the Bishop of London, Lord Lansdowne, the Home Secretary and the Local Members of Parliament." He said that it was horrible to contemplate the facts that had been brought to light within the last two years, and he thought that the proposed amendment of the law would strike at the root of the terrible white slave traffic.

Mr Nettleton seconded, and the Chairman supported, and said that if they could do any good by passing this resolution they should do it.

The resolution was agreed to.

TREATMENT OF MENTALLY DEFICIENT.

The Rev. Canon Greenwood gave a report of the conference at Wakefield on the Mental Deficiency Act, and spoke against dealing with the mentally deficient by the County Council in the institutions which were dealt with. He thought the Guardians could do the work more cheaply themselves. At Settle, he pointed out, there were large Union buildings and only a few inmates. He could see no reason why the premises could not be utilized by the Boards at Tadcaster, Wetherby, Otley, etc., and make it a special institution for the treatment of cases. The Government would pay so much per head per week for the cases sent. He suggested that the Clerk should write to the Clerk of the Wharfedale Union and ask him to convene a meeting of Guardians similar to one that had already been held.

It was decided that the Clerk write to the Clerk of the Wharfedale Union on the lines suggested by Canon Greenwood.

CLERK'S SALARY.

The Board thereafter considered an application from the Clerk for an increase of salary.

The matter was taken "in committee," and the Board gave him an increase of £60 per annum.

DISTRICT COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the District Council the officials present were the medical officer (Dr. Hill), Mr Scott (surveyor), and Messrs Driver and Wood (sanitary inspectors).

In a meeting the Highways Committee the question of the improvement at Kippax station bridge was discussed, and the railway company are to be asked to submit an estimate of the cost of doing the work. The County Council are to convene a conference of highway authorities, and Messrs Parker and Hey and the surveyor were appointed to attend the committee meeting. A deputation of the County Council in regard to the speed limit through certain villages, and the County Council will communicate with the Council.—In the matter of the Sherburn, a sub-committee met County Council representatives, and it was recommended that one-third of the cost of the improvement be borne by the District Council, one-third by the County Council, and one-third by the Roads Board. It was decided that the District Council pay one-third, and Messrs Cawthorne and Hey were appointed to interview Mrs Pearson in regard to the necessary land.—A letter was read from Kippax Parish Council complaining of the way that tar-spraying had been carried out in the village and asking the Council to make such arrangements in doing the work, as would not inconvenience the inhabitants. It was decided to reply that the work was being carried out in accordance with the regulations of the Roads Board.

TO RISK A SURCHARGE.

A letter was read from the Local Government Board in reply to a letter sent by the Council asking for permission to pay for water supplied to a trough at Colton Lane end. They stated that the expense must come before the official auditor, who could not sanction the expenditure on any particular account.

Mr Ingleby said that it was a peculiar answer to return after giving the lady permission to erect the trough.

The Chairman said that permission was given for the erection of the trough, and then the Council said they would pay for the water if the Local Government Board sanctioned it. He suggested that they should put the water in and chance the Local Government Board.

Canon Greenwood said he thought they might run the risk of a surcharge. If there was any doubt about it he would sign the cheque for one.

The Chairman said he would sign too.

Mr Sykes said that the trough would be a great benefit, but there should be a notice put up warning engine men that if they used the water they would be prosecuted. He said that he was over the road the other day, and he saw cattle coming from York, and they were in a bad state, and the water would be a great boon in such cases.

Mr Ingleby said that if anyone would sign the necessary form to the Water Committee the water would be turned on.

Mr Hey said that they had no power to supply water.

The Highways Committee recommended that the matter be allowed to drop, but as an amendment it was proposed and seconded that the water be supplied.

Both Mr Myers and Mr Midgley opposed the amendment, and the Chairman said he was surprised at two farmers.

On a division ten voted for the amendment, and nine against, and it was, therefore, agreed that the water should be turned on.

CLERK'S SALARY.

Mr Bromet made application for an increase of salary as Clerk to the District Council, his salary being £250, and the reports he had to leave the room, the discussion being taken "in committee."

After considerable discussion a resolution was carried increasing the salary by £75 a year, making with the increase of £60 for the Union work, a total advance of £135.

Mr W. Schofield complained of a smell in Bridge Street, Tadcaster, and it was referred to the inspector.

SANITARY AND BUILDING.

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee a report was received on housing at Barkston, and it was resolved to ask the County Council what area of land they were prepared to offer. Plans for buildings at the "White Swan," Kippax, were adjourned.—An application was received from Kippax for a slaughter-house licence and it was granted.—Plans for a shop and slaughter-house at Tadcaster were passed.—Notice is to be served on persons at Barkston to abate a nuisance caused by keeping cows and pigs too near dwellings.—In regard to Kippax sewage works, a letter was read from Messrs Braithwaite and Co., asking for a deputation to attend a meeting of that body.—The Local Government Board wrote asking for a reply to their letter as to housing conditions at Tadcaster, and the Clerk was instructed to reply that a full inspection was being made by the medical officer, and his report would be submitted in due course.—A tender for the building of a tool house at Lock Lane was accepted.—A notice is to be served on Mr N. Smith, Tadcaster, to remove garden rubbish in Cinder Lane.—It was stated that the sewage syphon at Tadcaster was blocked, and the matter was left with the inspector.

The medical officer reported that during the month there had been 23 deaths and 65 births. The school at Scholfield near Cawood had been closed owing to an outbreak of measles.

MR LANE FOX, M.P., AND THE CHANCELLOR.

NOT A BANKER NOR LIBERAL MILLIONAIRE.

SQUIRE OF TEMPLENEWSAM AND RATING.

In the House of Commons in the debate on the Budget, Mr Lloyd George moved an amendment reducing the amount of the income tax from 1s. 2d. to 1s. 1d. in the £. He said the reason why the Government proposed this alteration had already been given to the House and had been discussed at considerable length. The moment the Government decided to postpone the full effect of the land taxes for one year inevitable that some proposal of this kind would have to be made—that there would have to be a reduction in the amount of the taxes proposed to be levied.

Mr G. R. Lane Fox said he was not a banker nor a Liberal millionaire, but there were some of the points which affected him. He thought it was a matter of very great regret that, when an opportunity had last come for those who had been pressing for relief to be given to the local authorities, that opportunity should have been ruthlessly taken away from them by the action of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He (Mr Lane Fox) did not personally relish paying an extra penny on the income tax any more than hon. members opposite, but since he had been a member of this House, if there had been one thing more than another to which he had been definitely pledged it was that, at the earliest possible opportunity, he would vote for the relief of the ratepayers, and more particularly for the relief of the burden of the rates on real property and placing it on personal property. Yet, even at the present moment, to carry out that pledge the act of the Chancellor of the Exchequer had put it off for another year. He thought they had a right to complain of that action. They had had numerous pledges from the Chancellor of the Exchequer for the relief of the local authorities, and for putting more of the burdens on personal property, but they would once more be disappointed. Although many of them considered that the income tax was higher than it need be, they were prepared to vote for it if they were certain of the promised relief to local authorities. (Hear, hear). They would, however, be prepared to have the courage of their convictions and go into the lobby against this proposal to justify their desire to fulfill their pledges. They had great doubt now whether any real relief would be given to the rural districts. It would have been perfectly possible for the Chancellor of the Exchequer to have given relief to the local authorities, but the opportunity had been taken away from members to fulfil their pledges, and he hoped it would be the pressure of public opinion after what had been promised in the way of relief of local authorities. (Hear, hear).

The Hon. E. L. Wood said it was because he wished to help the local authorities that he should join with other hon. friends in opposition to the Chancellor of the Exchequer's amendment. He wished to advance a further argument than those mentioned in regard to local authorities having the promise of relief. Apart altogether from reasons and motives that had led the group of Liberal millionaires to protest against the penny on the income tax, everyone knew that if the grants had been given, the time of Parliament would have been mortgaged to make them permanent by withholding the grants for four months. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had to decide in his mind how to use this surplus, and whether the reduction of the Income Tax was the best form of relief. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had decided on the reduction of unearned income tax because he knew that the Labour Party would never vote against the Government, no matter what the latter did. (Opposition cheers and laughter). On the other hand, the millionaires would do so, and the right hon. gentleman knew it. (Ministerial laughter). Mr Lloyd George would have been far wiser to have avoided increasing the death duties and to have put the increase on the Income Tax. Death duties seemed to him to have every kind of vice that could be found in any form of taxation. They were capricious and uncertain, for they depended for the amount of their collection on the uncertainty of human life. Furthermore, these duties had to be paid in one lump sum, which was often an intolerable burden upon the estate which had to pay it. It had always seemed to him undesirable to encourage, as such duties did, the spendthrift estate owners to spend his income and leave to posterity a heavy debt to pay out of capital. Death duties were financially a bad arrangement because they encouraged gifts inter vivos.

On a division the Government secured 251 votes against 156.

BARKSTON ASH BOWLING ASSOCIATION

INDIVIDUAL MERIT COMPETITION.

TADCASTER AND HALTON PLAYERS IN THE FINAL.

The annual individual merit competition promoted by the Barkston Ash Bowling Association was commenced at Tadcaster and Garforth on Saturday afternoon, and there were fifty entries, the majority of the prominent bowlers in the district competing.

The concluding rounds of the competition were played on Monday evening on the Garforth Club's green, and there was a fairly good turnout of spectators. The semi-finalists were A. W. Westerman, of Tadcaster, who has already won the championship, and Alfred Garforth (W.M.), T. Simpson (Garforth W.M.), and H. Thomas (Hulton). Westerman, who had the game in hand all the way, defeated Reed by nine, but Thomas and Simpson furnished a splendid struggle, the Halton player winning by a couple of points. Simpson certainly bowled as well as his opponent, but he had not the best of luck. The final was keenly interesting, and it was unfortunate it was played in semi-darkness. Westerman got the lead at the outset, and then Thomas took matters in hand, and the game stood at 12-5 in his favour when his opponent got the "jack." Westerman added three to his score, and then Thomas secured a couple, Westerman afterwards scoring a single. At this period Thomas had to be sent to Tadcaster player's 9, and he added four before Westerman had a look-in. After this the latter pulled up in fine style, and Thomas' lead was reduced to two. The Halton man got a single, and, with a couple of points required for game, his chances of winning were regarded as a certainty. But Westerman went into the lead again, and with the score standing at 19 to 17 in Thomas' favour, the Tadcaster player had the "jack." He failed to benefit by his opportunity, and Thomas chalked up two and won by four points. When the competition was completed it was nearly half-past nine. Mr Hutchinson (President) was on the ground, and carried out the arrangements, along with the hon. sec. (Mr Green). Details:—

AT GARFORTH W.M. GREEN.

Preliminary Round.

W. Hildesworth (Crossgates) w.o. v. A. Bowmas (Crossgates Rec.) absent.
J. A. Rymer w.o. v. T. Clarkson (Halton) absent.
T. Hardcastle (Crossgates) w.o. v. D. Hill (Tadcaster) absent.
R. Morris (Halton) 21 v. G. W. Burch (Crossgates) 15.
W. Garforth (Halton) 21 v. H. Whitfield (Crossgates) 14.
G. Covell (Halton) 21 v. H. Burnett (Crossgates) 20.
G. Danby (Crossgates) 21 v. N. Rhodes (Tadcaster) 8.
C. Holiday (Crossgates) 21 v. G. Nicol (Halton) 18.
A. W. Westerman (Tadcaster) 21 v. M. Elliott (Crossgates Rec.) 7.
F. W. Jubb (Crossgates) 21 v. J. P. Cowl (Crossgates Rec.) 15.
H. Lamb (Halton) 21 v. H. E. Wood (Tadcaster) 18.
J. Crossley (Crossgates) 21 v. E. Walker (Tadcaster) 17.

First Round.

G. Danby 21 v. T. Fidgett (Crossgates) 13.
F. W. Jubb 21 v. R. Morris 15.
W. Green 21 v. G. Covell 16.
C. Holiday 21 v. J. A. Rymer 9.
F. Hardcastle 21 v. J. Crossley 10.
H. Thomas (Halton) 21 v. H. Lamb (Halton, Tadcaster) 6.

Second Round.

F. W. Jubb 21 v. G. Danby 19.
W. Green 21 v. C. Holiday 10.
Harry Thomas 21 v. F. Hardcastle 13.
A. W. Westerman 21 v. G. Covell 20.

AT TADCASTER GREEN.

Preliminary Round.

H. Goodall (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. H. Drarsfield (Garforth Conservatives) 14.
T. Simpson (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. G. T. Young (Garforth Cons.) 10.
E. Walker (Garforth) 21 v. J. Barker (Garforth Cons.) 9.
G. Walker (Garforth) 21 v. T. Booth (Halton T.) 17.
J. Whitley (Garforth W.M.) w.o. v. C. W. Slater (Garforth) absent.
A. Matthews (Garforth) w.o., v. W. Adams (Halton Travellers) absent.

First Round.

J. Whitley 21 v. F. Hutchinson (Thorner) 15.
A. Reed (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. G. Tindall (Garforth) 4.
T. Simpson 21 v. A. Cockrem (Garforth W.M.) 12.
H. Goodall 21 v. H. Marginson (Garforth Cons.) 13.
T. Whitley (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. H. Freeman (Garforth) 12.
W. Cooke (Garforth Cons.) 21 v. G. Walker 11.
G. Hill (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. E. Walker 17.
G. Freeman (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. A. Matthews 20.

Second Round.

A. Reed 21 v. J. Whitley 18.
T. Simpson 21 v. H. Goodall 8.
T. Whitley 21 v. W. Cooke 12.
G. Freeman 21 v. G. Hill 11.

AT GARFORTH GREEN.

Third Round.

A. Reed 21 v. G. Freeman 15.
A. W. Westerman 21 v. W. Green 13.
H. Thomas 21 v. T. Whitley 8.
T. Simpson 21 v. F. W. Jubb 11.

Final.

A. W. Westerman 21 v. A. Reed 12.
H. Thomas 21 v. T. Simpson 19.

Final.

H. Thomas (Halton) 21 v. A. W. Westerman (Tadcaster) 17.

EVERY WOMAN should send two stamps for our 32 page Book, treated Book, containing Valuable Information how all irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means. Recommended and endorsed by Physicians as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Clarewont House, Dalston Lane, London.

Telegrams Scott, Selby. Telephone 194.

IF YOU REQUIRE

GENUINE RAW PERUVIAN GUANO, FISH GUANO, SULPHATE of AMMONIA, NITRATE of SODA, RAPE NUTS and DUST, RAPE MEAL, PURE DISSOLVED BONES, PURE BONE MEAL and FLOUR, SUPER-PHOSPHATE (16 per cent.), BASIC SLAG, SULPHATE of POTASH, MURIATE of POTASH, GENUINE KAINIT, LAND SALT (in Truck Loads), ETC., ETC.

We shall be pleased to quote Prices for any quantity.

QUALITY and GOOD CONDITION of the above GUARANTEED. PROMPT DELIVERY can be given either at Works here or at Buyer's Station.

M. SCOTT & Co
OIL MILLS, SELBY.

TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S TEASDALE'S

Thousands of People Praise
Teasdale's CHLORODYNE
—the old and trusted medicine that has stood the test of 50 years—as the best remedy known for COUGHS, COLDS, STOMACH ACHE.
COLIC, BOWEL PAINS.
CRAMP. DIARRHŒA.

Mr. Bramham, Kirkhemgate, Wakefield, says:—"For sixteen years Teasdale's Chlorodyne has been the family medicine for Coughs, Colds, Diarrhœa, Sleepless Nights, and all kinds of complaints. We have had other Chlorodynes, but find none half so good as Teasdale's." Teasdale's Chlorodyne should always be kept in the house as handy family medicine. It saves doctors' bills.

Trial Bottle, only 7½d., Larger Sizes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d. Can be had of Chemists; also Boot's and Taylor's Drug Stores, and Goodall, Backhouse, & Co.

ASK FOR
TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.
Refuse others recommended to be as good.
Insist on having "TEASDALE'S."

CHLORODYNE CHLORODYNE

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.
Lecturer to the Horts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.
(All rights reserved).

(Readers are particularly requested to note that this series of articles commenced with the first issue in January. In order to obtain their full value, the earlier articles should be read in conjunction with the current one).

The serial article, "A Successful Breeding Season," is suspended this week, owing to the necessity of special advice concerning management during hot weather.

Overcrowding and vermin are the rocks from which poultry-keepers must steer clear during the present month.

Considering the former, you probably have more head of poultry to-day than at any period of the year; you have completed your hatching operations; your early chickens are three-parts grown; in fact, many are approaching maturity, whilst many of you have not yet disposed of your two-year-old hens. And all this possibly with but little more accommodation than during the winter months!

"Overcrowding is as bad for poultry as for man," writes the Rev. T. W. Sturges in the "Poultry Manual"; many diseases, the presence of vermin, and stunted growth being some of its effects.

Repeatedly it has been pointed out that if you would be financially successful with your poultry it is a fundamental rule that you must never keep a single wasted in your yards. Such birds swallow the profits from your good ones ere making. Surely this axiom, in conjunction with the evils attendant on over-crowding, renders it imperative for you to at once weed through your stock and market such as come under the category of wastrels.

Your hens have laid for two seasons, what do you expect further from them? Either this month or early next they will moult; for a considerable period you will have no return whatever from them—and in their third season it will be such a negligible quantity as not to meet your room merchant's account.

During the lavish festivals about Eastertide you would have secured top prices for fat, old hens, to-day they will not realise so much, but nevertheless get rid of them at once; they are an actual source of loss at the moment, there is no prospect of them materially improving, and you want the room.

Your early hatched chicks. If you are breeding for utility purposes you should now be killing regularly, this action tending to prevent overcrowding, but if you only go in for exhibition, surely there are many that you can cull out with advantage to the remainder.

Vermin! Those who have acted upon the advice given earlier in the season, to creosote and limewash all houses, will be comparatively immune from these pests; those who have not done so will have all their work cut out to combat their ravages now that the hot weather is with us. That sickly bird that died! It was not due to the heat; examine her—literally infested with lice —and their depredations are the cause of her pale, anæmic condition and ultimate death. Learn to stone unturned to be rid of vermin; growth in young stock, condition in mature stock; in other words, "Spratt's" cannot be where vermin exist.

The moulting season will soon commence, lucky indeed the poultry-keeper whose birds get this over quickly and well. Nothing like assisting obtaining the new puts a great strain on the bird's constitution; the addition of a tablespoonful of flowers of sulphur to the soft food of about a dozen fowls, on fine mornings, will materially assist them.

During the heat of summer, and particularly at moulting time, a tonic is undoubtedly beneficial, and that known as Douglas Mixture is particularly recommended. It is easily prepared and is inexpensive. Take a quarter-pound of sulphate of iron crystals and a half-ounce of sulphuric acid. Place them in a large, glazed, earthenware jar, and pour over the contents one gallon of water. Stir with a stick several times during the day till all is dissolved. After skimming, the mixture should then be bottled and well corked. A tablespoonful of the mixture to each quart of drinking water is the correct dose. This should be given in earthenware vessels, and not in iron or zinc founts.

Male birds intended for next year's breeding pens should be isolated in comfortable quarters with a convenient run.

If you go for a summer holiday, make adequate arrangements for the care and comfort of your birds. Results will not follow your last six months' efforts can easily be ruined by a fortnight's neglect.

Keep the fowls' drinking water protected from the rays of the sun, and change it frequently.

Eggs are now sought after, and prices are paying well, therefore, and start feeding your hens for laying immediately the moult begins.

(To be continued).

(Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Ralph R. Allen, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown postal order).

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Fair attendance, but trade very quiet. Little wheat available, at 35s. to 35s. 6d., oats 20s. 6d. to 21s. 6d., rye 23s. to 26s.

PROVISION.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 11 and 12 for 1s.; butter 11d. to 1s. per lb.; chickens 5s. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—An increasing supply of local new potatoes in the market. The prices were from 5s. to 5s. 6d. per hamper of 6 stones, or 16d. to 11d. per stone. Trade is old potatoes is nearly finished, the prices being: Sand Up-to-Dates 60s. to 65s., sand King Edwards 55s. to 70s., warps 80s. to 85s. per ton.

Every Chick a Promising Youngster the natural result of feeding on

Spratt's CHICKEN MEAL and "CHIKKO" "THE DRY MASH"

If you want to rear strong, healthy birds, order "Spratt's" Fountain Sealed Chicken Meal or "Chikko" "The Dry Mash." Send for Samples and Prices to Spratt's and Poultry Cultivator Spratt's Patent (1907) Ltd., Fenchurch Street, London, E.C., and Leeds.

CATTLE.

GARFORTH AUCTION MART, Monday.—Mr William Ash had again a fair supply of very choice fat stock, and there was a good attendance of buyers. The weather being cool, trade was good. Best beef made fully 7½d.; secondary quality and cows 6½d. to 7½d. per lb.; sheep made 2s. to 3s. per head more than last market. Choice shearlings easily reached 9½d. per lb.; and heavy weights 8½d. to 9d. Fat lambs made 9d. to 10d. per lb. Mr T. I. Ledgard sold 5 fat bullocks, which made £18 7s. 6d., to £22 10s. each; Mr J. T. Craven's heifers made £18 2s. 6d. to £22 15s. Fat cows made up to £21 15s. Mr Ben Bramley had some well-finished sheared, that sold at 54s. to 59s. 6d. each. Mr Jno. Rickard's shearlings making from 57s. 6d. to 65s. each. Messrs T. Winter and Son's half-bred shearlings sold at 59s. to 66s. 6d., and their sheep realised up to 55s. each. Lambs made from 39s. to 37s. each. Four cart horses from Messrs Bentley's Yorkshire Breweries, Ltd., realized 114 to 19 gns. each.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a good show of prime fat stock. The attendance of butchers and dealers was rather below the average. Trade for best beef was about the same as a week ago. Best beef 8s. 6d. to 9s. per stone. Sheep met a good trade, making 9d. per lb.; ewes and heavy sheep made less money. Lambs ruled dearer. Pork pigs moved slowly at 6s. to 6s. 6d. per stone. Stores made less money. Numbers sold —89 beasts and calves, 158 sheep, and 87 pigs.

SELBY AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 86 beasts, 44 sheep and 39 pigs. Good attendance of butchers and dealers. A quick trade for the best beef at 9s. per stone. Sheep and pigs were unchanged in value. Prices:—Fat bullocks to £23 15s., heifers in calf £16 10s., to sheep £3 15s., fat lambs £2 4s., bacon pigs £6 12s. 6d., pork pigs £5 9s. 1s., sows and gilts £3 16s., small store pigs £1 12s. 6d. each.

FINAL REDUCTION FOR SITTINGS

4/- There is still time to get your Seeds sown before the end of July. Sow Allen's Seeds and you will be sure of a good crop. Allen's Seeds are the Best. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Flower, Vegetable, Field and Grass Seeds, Bulbs and Plants, Roses and Fruit Trees, Poultry Appliances, Bee Hives and Bee Appliances, Garden Tools and Sundries, Poultry Foods, Manures, Weed Killers, Insecticides, Fungicides, Sprayers, Pumps, Garden Seats and Rustic Work, Tents and Marquees, Flags and Bunting, Fireworks, Etc., Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Poultry, Pigeon, Cage Bird and Dog Requisites, Foods, Appliances, Medicines, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Bee Hives and Bee Appliances. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Rabbit Hutches, Appliances, Foods, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Pigeon Lofts, Appliances, Foods, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Dog Kennels, Appliances, Foods, Medicines, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Cage Bird Cages, Foods, Appliances, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Aviaries, Appliances, Foods, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Rustic Work, Garden Seats, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Tents, Marquees, Flags, Bunting, Fireworks, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Garden Tools and Sundries. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Weed Killers, Insecticides, Fungicides, Sprayers, Pumps, Etc. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Manures. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Poultry Foods. Post-free Illustrated Catalogue of Bee Foods. Post-

A BARKSTON ASH FARMER AND LABOUR.

WHAT HE SAYS FARM LABOURERS CAN SAVE.

MINIMUM WAGE—HALF HOLIDAY.

TIED HOUSE SYSTEM—TRADE UNIONS.

Mr John Thompson, of East Rigton, Bardsey, a well-known farmer and Barkston Ash politician, read a paper on the labour question from a tenant farmer's point of view at Boroughbridge, on Saturday. He said it was a subject on which the opinion of everyone, including farmperson, politician, and peasant was freely ventilated, but on which the farmer (perhaps wisely) rarely said anything at all. His remarks would apply chiefly to the northern counties, with which he was tolerably well acquainted. There was probably no subject which was so thoroughly misrepresented as the position of the farm worker. The despairing politician in search of a new cry thundered his anathemas from the platform. The labour agitator, who made his living by creating discord between employer and employed, bawled on the village pump, and the man in the street aired his views in the public press. They were told everywhere that the farm man was wretchedly paid and miserably housed, that his soul was not his own, and that drastic legislation must be passed to put all matters right. Now, was it not as well to consider how far all this was true? Was he wretchedly paid, as compared with other workers? He ventured to say not. In the first place he must consider the average village boy. He left school at 14, and then hired himself to a farmer. The first year he received a wage of about £7. He was either taken into the farmer's house or boarded with a foreman or hind, and was infinitely better fed and housed than the boy in the town. In the time he was 17, his wage would have risen to about £17, and by the time he was 25 he would be receiving from £26 to £28 a year. That was, of course, if he was a trier, and had made himself a capable man, which he had every opportunity of doing. By the time he was 30, if he had remained unmarried, he could easily have saved from £200 to £300, and if he chose to do so could either go farming for himself, or set up as a dealer, or in some other business. There were many doors open to him. As a case in point, a young man left his employment a little while ago with £250 he had saved, and he frequently met a man who some years ago was in his employment, and out of his savings had started in business, and was now one of the most prosperous men in his district. He did not suppose there was another man in that room who could not name half-a-dozen men who started life as ploughboys, and who, were now either substantial farmers or prosperous men of business, and who could do anything to help them but their own grit, perseverance, thrift, and determination to succeed.

The statement so often made that there was no prospect for the farm man, and that he was in a blind alley which led to nowhere, was absolutely false and misleading. It presupposed that the youth had no particular ambition, and that he married fairly young, and settled down as a farm hand. How did his lot compare with the town hand? He became foreman, shepherd, cattle man, or general labourer, according to his capabilities or inclination. His wages as a rule would be from 25s. to 27s. per week with extras. His extras were a very considerable item, and usually included house and garden, rent free, a certain amount of meal and drink, milk and potatoes, and he had no hesitation in saying that he was in a better position than the man in the town who received from 30s. to 10s. a week more. It was proposed by legislation to shorten the working day, to establish a weekly half-holiday, and to fix a minimum wage? All these proposals were entirely impracticable. The nature of the business of farming was so precarious that it was absolutely necessary there should be a great deal of give and take. They could not compare it with any other occupation. Where else could they find any stock like stock—the life and soul of farming—it was an absolute necessity that they should be regularly fed and attended to. Suppose what would happen where a flock of sheep was kept on turnips, or on a dairy farm, on the half-holiday. Would the sheep be content with only two rows not milked? It would mean ruin to the flock or herd. Farming was the only trade where the wage was paid whether the work were on or not. To give an instance on his own farm—and he knew this experience was the rule and not the exception—during the months of April and May, when the working horses were only on the land 10 days during 10 weeks. Many men on the farm required practically exactly the same amount of that time, but not a man lost a day's wage. What other industry was carried on under similar conditions? Why, no trade happened in the building trade, or in any other out-door occupation? During a wet harvest, or hay-time, frequently, day after day, and week after week, nothing was done but wait, and while the farmer saw his substance wasting, wages went on just the same. Naturally, at such time came when the work could be done, every effort had to be made, and short hours or a half holiday, and that probably on the only day when work could be done, would be disastrous to all concerned.

As for a minimum wage, it would mean the stopping of the older, less efficient men to begin with. And if the man was to have a minimum wage, what was to secure a minimum price for the farmer's products? In one of Mr Lloyd George's flamboyant speeches he compared the life of the miner with that of the farm man, and said that if the miner had a minimum wage and short hours, so should a farm man. He could not imagine how anyone could compare the lot of men leading such totally different lives. Mr Lloyd George did not say that the coal owner was practically without competition while the English farmer was subject to the fiercest competition the world had ever known. This country was the dumping ground for all the surplus edible products of the whole world. He was competing against the produce of the great tracts of fertile virgin soil of Canada and South America, with the natives of India, where men were content to live on a wage of a few pence a day, and with Russia and other European countries, where men worked for wages and under conditions impossible here. An argument often heard was that by increasing wages, shortening hour, giving holidays, etc., that men would be attracted to the land. They probably would, but it was obvious to the meanest understanding that any legislation which affected the small and precarious profits of farmers must of necessity destroy their capacity to pay wages and that land already labour starved would be in a still worse case. It would mean that the man who now employed six men would make shift with five. It appeared to him deplorable that any political party, or any class, should try to stir up strife between employer and employed, and preach that abominable doctrine that the man who paid the wages was the natural foe of the man who received them. (Applause). The formation of trade unions, with the certainty of strikes, manipulated by unscrupulous and self-elected leaders, would be disastrous to everyone concerned. He did not think the farmer had anything to fear from the men themselves, but they could not have trade unions without officials, and strife and discord were the bread and butter of the trade union officials.

There could be, he thought, no two opinions that more houses were wanted, and as landlords had very little encouragement to supply them, it was a matter which must be taken up by the local authorities. Many attacks were made on what was termed the "tied house system," a system which had always worked admirably, and has secured a supply of cottages for labourers on particular farms. He saw that Mr Tom Mactay, in a speech at Ormskirk, Lancashire, said they were determined to abolish the damnable tied cottage system. He could not imagine anything more disastrous either for the farmer or labourer. Once they separated the cottages, which were provided by the landlord, from the farm, there could be no inducement to let them to farm labourers at all. They would then naturally be let to anyone who was prepared to pay a good rent for them, and the farm would be deprived of labour altogether.

A BRAMHAM GARDENER'S JOKE.

SEQUEL TO A LOVE AFFAIR.

A respectable-looking and intelligent young man of 23, named David Keillor, a gardener at Bramham Park, was charged at York on Friday with maliciously sending to Edith Barker, on July 1st, a letter threatening to murder her.

The Chief Constable (Mr J. Burrow) said he had the letter in his hand but he did not propose to read it, as he was asking for a remand. It appeared that the defendant had made the acquaintance of a young woman now engaged as a domestic servant in York, and for some reason it appeared that the acquaintanceship had been broken off. That appeared to be the beginning of the trouble, for in the letter the accused clearly said that if he could not have her no one else should. He also said he had been down to Leeds and had got a nice little weapon. The question for the court was whether accused ought to be remanded this to be a threat to murder. When he was brought into custody he told the Superintendent that he really meant it as a practical joke. It was too serious a thing. In the letter he mentioned the name of a young man to whom he had told his intentions, and he (the Chief Constable) wanted him in court, and, in order to do so, applied for a remand until Monday.

Superintendent Henry Woolnough said that in consequence of a complaint from Mr Sydney Leetham, of Elm Bank, that there was a man named Keillor in his house who had threatened to shoot his servant, he went to Driffield Terrace and found accused standing against a wall. On being searched no revolver was found on him. Later witness saw the letter produced to by the Chief Constable, and charged the accused with sending the letter. He replied that it was a practical joke. A servant who went out of the house said the accused had pointed something at her, but he had only a pipe on him.

Accused, who offered no objection to a remand, said it was done as a practical joke.

He was remanded until Monday.

Keillor was charged on Monday with sending a letter to Edith Barker at York threatening to murder her.

The prosecutrix, who is in domestic service at York, was acquainted with a man named Arthur Brown, Birdsall House, Malton, with whom she kept company. Then prisoner came on the scene, and in consequence of what Keillor said about Brown she gave the latter up, and kept company with prisoner. The friendship lasted about nine months, and then Miss Barker broke it off. Subsequently she came to York to a situation, and on the 21st of June prisoner came over and met the prosecutrix without appointment. That day he gave her a watch, which she promised to take to be mended for him. Prisoner next wrote on the 23rd of June, but she destroyed that letter. On the 30th June she received a letter in which prisoner said:—

I should like to come over for my watch on Thursday evening, and have a few words at the same time. . . . I have got a letter to Arthur on Thursday evening which must be the last which must pass between us if we are to remain friends, as we cannot bear the sight of each other.

In reply to that letter Miss Barker wrote stating that she could not see prisoner on the Thursday evening, as she had made other arrangements. She had also thought that it would be far better for them not to meet again.

The prisoner replied on July 2nd, in which it was contended that the principal threat was the following: Bramham Park, July 1st, and in it the prisoner wrote:—

The reason I had for meeting you was to carry out a certain programme in my mind. You said while at Malton if I did not have you no one else should. Well, in the first place, if I had been in your shoes, and had taught one to love me as you have done, I should have kept true, and been happy in the knowledge that I was making another happy.

Instead you have done the reverse, for a man who is by no means worthless, but he is only laughing, and as soon as he thinks I am settled he will be off. But that is not what I am writing about.

Since I received your first letter from John Bank I have been as near insane as it is possible to be, in fact, folks are talking, and if you cannot be mine you shall be no other body's. That is what I wanted to meet you for.

But (I have good reason for saying this) I shall wait patiently for the chance. I shall never give in until I have carried out my threat. I do not care who you show this letter to. I care not who knows, it is all I have to live for—revenge. It is you who has driven me to this, for God knows I meant to make you happy. I do not want you to think too much about this. I did not mean telling you so soon, but as I want it all done tomorrow night (and perhaps it shall be) I wanted to give you time to burn my letter if you have not already done so.

At least I came to York equipped for the work. I have been to Leeds for a handy little weapon. I have already told Arthur what I am going to do. It will bring disgrace to our homes where it might have been happiness, but I cannot help it, it must be done now. You know I shall not want no nearer than from 20 to 25 yards off you, so that there need be no words exchanged.

But I must say goodbye, hoping you will keep as bright as possible.

I am, your late sweetheart,

DAVID.

In the letter to Arthur he wrote:—

She also took my watch to be repaired, so I should be back again. So that is how I am placed with her, but I shall be even with her yet. I shall meet her somewhere on my Knaresborough road then shall wipe out the long-standing score before she gets an chance to talk, for if I wait till then I shall be as a child in her hands. Honour, Arthur, I shall finish her deceitful career before another month is out.

In consequence of the letter which Miss Barker received she became terrified, and would not go out on the Thursday in question. The housemaid had occasion to go out to the post, and the prisoner, who was on the other side of the road, levelled something at her in a shooting fashion.

Their mistress was informed, and the police were sent for, and the prisoner was arrested outside the house. (When searched only a pipe was found on prisoner, and a search was made in the neighbourhood, but no revolver was found.

When taken into custody prisoner said: "It was a practical joke."

He was committed for trial.

ABERFORDIA AMBULANCE LEAGUE.

INSPECTION AT PARLINGTON PARK.

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES BY GENERAL KENNY.

On Saturday afternoon the annual field day and inspection of the Aberfordia Division of the Territorial Branch of the St. John Ambulance Association took place at Parlington Park, Aberford (by permission of Col. and Mrs Gascoigne), and the event was a great success in every way. Surgeon-General T. W. Kenny was the inspecting officer. Considerable interest was manifested in the inspection, and among the ladies and gentlemen present were Lady Plumer and Mrs Mends (York), Mrs Lund (Ikeaa Hall), Miss Gascoigne (Lotherton Park), Mrs H. S. Childe (Potterton Hall), Miss Hawke (Wighill Park), Mrs Wailes Fairbairn (Askham Grange), Rev. B. Shepheard-Walwyn (Aberford), Mrs Prater (Aberford), Mr.G. Bromet (Tadcaster), Mr and Mrs Alvey Darwin, Miss Newcombe, etc.

The men's detachments were inspected in first aid treatment and collection of patients, improvisation and use of ambulance trains and country carts for transport of wounded; improvisation of shelters for patients until for immediate removal; improvisation of stretchers, rest stations, beds, and hospital equipment; the making of incinerators, ablution benches, etc.; water filtration, first field dressings, field cooking, and the laws and customs of war in relation to Voluntary Aid Detachments.

An engagement was supposed to have taken place between the Red Force and a Blue Force in the vicinity of Garforth. The Blue Force were retiring in the direction of Tadcaster, and the Red Force were following them, taking with them all units, including R.A.M.C. (T.) and regimental stretcher bearers, leaving 40 casualties on the field for first aid treatment, collection, and car-ful nursing, for which the Aberfordia Division were responsible. The scene of the action was a field near one of the collieries at Garforth, and here the men's detachments rendered first-aid to about forty "wounded," who were impersonated by Boy Scouts, and the work was closely watched by General Kenny, who was accompanied by Mrs Gascoigne, the head of the Aberfordia organization. The wounded were placed in country carts improvised as red cross ambulances, and in a special train, and they were conveyed to Parlington Hall which had been converted into an hospital. Attached to the train were a number of trucks, several of which had been fitted up to carry stretchers suspended like hammocks. To a large extent this device did away with vibration. It was interesting to watch the patients, wounded in bandages, being carefully hoisted on the train. Those who rode up the private line to Parlington had quite a diverting experience. About half-way the train stopped at a rest station, which was under the management of the Garforth women's detachment. Here field cooking had been done, and the patients were fed and refreshed. After a brief halt the journey was continued to Parlington, where the work of detraining began. The carts arrived shortly after the train, and all the patients were taken across the lawn and into the Temporary hospital. It consisted of four wards, in three of which the patients were put in beds, and in all cases second aid was rendered by the women's detachments. One ward and operating room was in charge of the Tadcaster and Aberford women's detachments, a second ward was looked after by the Barkston Ash detachment, and a third ward by the Whitkirk and Brotherton detachments, while the Barkston members took charge of the non-serious cases.

When the practical work had been completed all ranks formed up in front of Parlington Hall, and General Kenny presented the prizes to the winning teams in the competitions at Garforth and the previous day (reported in our last issue). Colonel Gascoigne's Cup was won by Garforth (No. 1) (Women), and the Barkston Ash Shield by Garforth (No. 1) Men. The other prize winners were:—Women—Aberford (No. 1), Tadcaster (No. 2), Tadcaster (No. 1). Men—Garforth (No. 1), Bowers Allerton.

Mrs Gascoigne, who presided, said that this would be the last visit of General Kenny, who was retiring from the work. She was glad that some progress had been made in the division since the first inspection in 1911. There were then only three detachments, and now they had ten, with a working membership of 273. Though she certainly hoped that there would be no need for active service, she felt confident that many of their members would be efficient enough to go on a campaign if the time came. (Applause).

General Kenny, in presenting the prizes, said that it had given him great pleasure to inspect the Division. His object, as representing the War Office and the St. John Association, was to find out what use those detachments would be in active service, and he was greatly impressed by the work of both the women and the men. He advised the women to get as much practical knowledge of nursing as possible. Nothing could replace them so much.

Certificates were then given by General Kenny to Mrs Gascoigne, for the Lotherton Detachment, and to Dr. T. B. Abbott, for the Aberford Detachment.

On the motion of Colonel A. Abdy, seconded by Mr R. Routledge, jun. (organising secretary of the Division), a hearty vote of thanks was accorded General Kenny.

Brigadier-General H. R. Mends, in thanking Colonel and Mrs Gascoigne on behalf of the company, observed that Mrs Gascoigne was most indefatigable, took the greatest interest in ambulance work, and never spared herself. They greatly appreciated her assistance, and felt very grateful for all that she had done to help on the movement.

Mrs Gascoigne briefly replied.

Tea was afterwards provided for the company in a large marquee erected on the lawn, and the Garforth Brass Band, conducted by Mr E. V. Silberry, discoursed excellent selections of music.

WATER SUPPLIES IN WETHERBY DISTRICT

THORPARCH, MICKLETHWAITE, AND SPOFFORTH.

A lengthy report has been submitted from the Medical Officer of Health to the County Council in reference to the water supply in the Wetherby district. The report states that the question of the inadequate or unsatisfactory water supplies for several parishes in the Wetherby Rural District has from time to time been brought before the Rural District Council, as in the survey report of the district in 1896, and in the annual reports of the local Medical Officer of Health. A great improvement has been effected by the Wetherby District Water Company, which now supply water to 1,509 houses in 14 parishes.

Several of the villages are, however, still in need of proper supplies, particularly Spofforth, Thorparch, and Micklethwaite, and the matter has been before the Rural Council on several occasions but without practical result. Consequently, further inspections have been made, and samples of water obtained, which proved to be bacteriologically and chemically unsatisfactory.

At Spofforth about 140 houses obtain their supply from wells. Samples, fairly representative of the village supplies, were taken from five wells used by 84 householders, and the results of analysis show that the waters cannot be regarded as safe for drinking purposes. Further, the water has in some cases to be carried from 200 to 300 yards.

At Thorparch about 30 houses have the Wetherby Water Company's supply laid on, and about 30 others are supplied with water taken from the River Wharfe, which has received the sewage effluents of Addingham, Ilkley, Menston, Burley, Otley, Wetherby, etc.

At Micklethwaite about 12 of the 16 houses in the parish also obtain their supply from the Wharfe. Bacteriological examinations of the river water supplied at Thorparch and Micklefield have proved the supply to be polluted.

FOOTPATHS AT MIDDLETON.

For some time there has been quite an agitation in the village of Middleton, over the stopping up of certain footpaths there, and it has led to the County Council taking action.

According to a report issued by the Highways Committee of the County Council, complaints have been made of the stopping up of certain footpaths in the parish by the Middleton Estate and Colliery Company, and after strong representations by the Committee to the Hunslet Rural District Council and the Colliery Co., the Company (through the Rural District Council) have given notice of their intention to apply to the Quarter Sessions for an order for the stopping up of the footpaths, and of substituting roads and footpaths which the Justices have since certified will be more commodious to the public.

The Company have also intimated their intention of converting into a cart road the footpath commencing at a point opposite Belle Isle and terminating at the angle of Belle Isle Road on the north side of Windy Hill Farm.

The proposals of the Company, in the opinion of the Committee, reasonably meet the requirements of the public, and the further interposition of the County Council is not called for.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SWILLINGTON CHURCH.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—My attention has been drawn to an announcement in your paper with reference to a fete and sale of work to be held in aid of "Swillington Church expenses." Through the medium of your paper I desire to make it clearly known that this movement has been arranged entirely unknown to me, and without my approval or sanction.

I have always, and shall so continue to set my face against such unordinate methods for obtaining money for sacred uses.—Yours, etc.,

N. BRIGHEM.

Swillington Rectory, near Leeds.
July 6th, 1914.

A TADCASTER MAN AND HIS PENSION.

FALSE REPRESENTATION.

Robert Nelson, groom, Tadcaster, was charged at Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday with making a false representation with regard to an old age pension, and pleaded guilty.

Mr T. G. Gibson, of London, who represented the Commissioners of Excise and Customs, said that defendant was granted a pension of 5s. a week in November, 1912. At that time he had no means of his own, and lived with a son. In March last year he received employment with Mr Riley-Smith at £1 a week as groom. When seen by a pension officer later he told him that his employment was merely casual, and that he was getting 15s. a week. The fact was that defendant had worked for Mr Riley-Smith for twelve months, and his wages had always been £1 a week.

Charles Brownlees, head groom for Mr Riley-Smith, said that he handed defendant his wages, and he was paid £1 per week.

Defendant said he was very sorry, and he had nothing to say against it. He was 72 years of age.

The Chairman: What made you do it?

Defendant: I cannot say. I never thought about what I was doing.

Mr Gibson said he hoped that a conviction would be recorded, so that it might be a warning to others.

The Chairman said that it was a very serious charge, and they were extremely sorry it had come up. It was the first case of the kind in the district, and they hoped it would be the last.

The Bench imposed a penalty of 40s. and costs, which were £2 8s. 6d.

CONCERNING A HAMBLETON ROAD.

RURAL COUNCIL'S ACTION.

A special meeting of the Selby Rural District Council was held on Monday, Mr Harris Anson, Hambleton, presiding, to consider whether any steps should be taken by the Council to repair the piece of road which leads from Hambleton to Brayton, and skirts Brayton Barff.

At the last meeting of the Council a letter was submitted from Mr Joseph Wood, Bradford, the owner of Barff House Farm, to which the road in question leads, calling attention to the need for repair. A letter was also received from Mr H. Andrew Allen, whose son occupies the farm, complaining of the non-completion of the repairs to the road. The Roads Committee recommended that certain repairs be carried out, but the Council at the last meeting refused to accept the recommendation.

It transpired that the surveyor had ordered the levelling of the road by the removal of a hilly part, but in the discussion of June 29th Mr William Armstrong (Brayton) objected to work of that kind being done until it had received the sanction of the Council.

At Monday's meeting a letter was read from Messrs Parker and Parker, solicitors, Selby, stating that they had been consulted by Mr. Andrew Anson concerning the present condition of the Hambleton road, and were instructed to call upon the Council forthwith to put the road into repair otherwise proceedings would be taken in the matter.

The Chairman said he had been over to Wakefield, and found the road in question was an awarded road.

Mr William Armstrong contended that this lane did not need any further repair, having regard to the amount of traffic over it. He moved that no further action be taken.

Mr L. Baxter seconded the resolution.

The resolution was carried by 8 to 2 votes. Five members who were in favour of a compromise remained neutral.

NURSING IN TADCASTER RURAL AREA.

COUNTY SCHEME—CONFERENCE AT TADCASTER.

A conference of representatives of the West Riding County Council, district nursing associations in the Tadcaster area and the Tadcaster Rural District Council was held on Friday in the Board Room of Tadcaster Workhouse to consider the proposals of the West Riding County Council in their combined nursing scheme.

Alderman Ford presided, and there were present Alderman Beigg, Col. Sugden, Mr R. L. Jones (representing solicitors' department, of the County Council), Miss Bethell, Messrs W. Sykes, C.C., J. Wordsworth, J. Nettleton, J. Y. Wheatley, J. W. Dobson, J. H. Ingleby, and G. A. Bromet (representing the Tadcaster Rural District Council), and representatives of nursing associations in the area.

The proceedings were held in private, but it was stated at the close that the Council very thoroughly discussed the advisability of nursing associations combining with the County Council to make more complete their administration under the Notification of Births Act.

Under the new legislation the County Council have the double duties to perform, those incidental to school nursing, and those incidental to the new Act. In the combined nursing scheme it is hoped to enlist the help and support of district nursing associations, it being considered that in many cases the district nursing association's nurse could perform her own duties and those required by the County Council in her sphere.

Should the scheme be adopted a considerable saving will be saved by preventing the waste of overlapping and an unnecessary employment of new officials. Where the nurse is already fully employed, it will be necessary either to extend the area of the nurse, or for the nursing association to appoint an additional nurse. In some cases a partially trained nurse, who would act under the instruction of a fully trained nurse might be provided at a less cost, but this would be a matter for each nursing association to deal with when considering the practicability of performing the services required by the County Council.

It is believed that in many districts, where at present there are no district nurses, it would be possible to raise funds locally towards the maintenance of a district nurse, but yet not sufficient to pay for her whole salary, and where such local circumstances exist the County Council will be prepared to make a contribution and thus encourage local effort to provide further district nurses.

Alderman Ford said he was at present unable to make any definite statement or to disclose the discussion at the conference. Similar conferences, he said, would be held in every area under the administration of the County Council, and before any definite decision was arrived at in the Tadcaster area the district nursing associations would each carefully consider the matter.

The conference was adjourned indefinitly to give various associations the opportunity of fully discussing the proposals of the County Council.

TADCASTER SCHOOL ATTENDANCE CASES.

WARNING TO OTHERS.

On Monday at Tadcaster Petty Sessions—before Ald. Brooksbank and other magistrates—Timothy S. Rooke, greengrocer, Mary Jakeman Hardy, charwoman, Tadcaster, widow, Elizabeth Simpson, widow, and Charles Williams, labourer, all of Tadcaster, were charged with not sending children regularly to school.

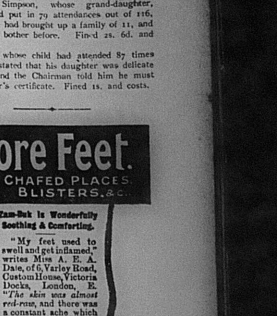
Mr Frank Slater, Clerk to the Education Committee, who prosecuted, said that in several instances the children were nearly 14 years of age, but unless a certificate of exemption certificate it must attend until it was 14, and in none of the cases had the children made sufficient attendances to qualify for a certificate.

In regard to Timothy Rooke, the attendance officer gave evidence, and defendant said the boy was nearly 14 and he admitted he had kept him from school. He would be 14 on July 14th.

A fine of 1s. and costs was imposed.

Mary Jakeman Hardy was charged in respect of her daughter Sarah (11), who, it was stated, had put in 83 attendance out of 116 in three months.

The attendance officer said she had been helping at home.



Defendant said she had kept the girl at home to look after a child, when she went out to work. She had three children.

Fined 1s. and costs.

Mrs Garbutt's daughter, Lily, aged 13, had attended 79 times out of 116, and defendant said she had to go out to work. It was owing to sickness that the girl had been kept at home. Fined 1s. and costs.

Elizabeth Simpson, whose grand-daughter, aged 13, had put in 79 attendances out of 116, said that she had brought up a family of 11, and had had no bother before. Fined 2s. 6d. and costs.

Williams, whose child had attended 87 times out of 116, stated that his daughter was delicate in health, and the Chairman told him he must get a doctor's certificate. Fined 1s. and costs.

ANGLERS PROSECUTED AT TADCASTER.

"CHEAP FISH" THAT WAS DESTROYED.

At Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday Walter Oliver, mechanic, Leeds, was charged with catching fresh water fish during the close season in the river at Tadcaster. He pleaded guilty.

Mr Jones, who prosecuted for the Yorkshire Fishery Board, said that the Leeds Amalgamation, of which the defendant was a member, had a date the fish caught out of season had to be put back into the water. This case had been reported to them, and it was brought as a warning to the members of the Amalgamation. A large bream, and it was a great temptation, but the defendant should have put it back.

A witness from Leeds said that on April 26th he saw defendant with a fine bream.

Defendant said he had always understood he could catch fish for scientific purposes.

The Chairman asked what the scientific purpose was for which he required the fish.

Defendant said it was one of the largest fish caught in Yorkshire waters, and he intended to have it "set up."

Mr Jones said that he was bound to get leave from the Board before he could take one.

The Chairman: What did you do with the fish?

Defendant said he sent it to London to be "set up."

The Chairman said he thought if he was fined 1s. and costs he would have got a cheap fish.

Supt. Slack: The fish has been destroyed.

Defendant said it had been destroyed by the Fishery Board.

Mr Jones said it was not destroyed by them.

Jonathan Bedford and Alfred Johnson, mechanics, of Leeds, were charged with breaches of the fishery bye-laws on June 14th at Appleton Roebuck by using an instrument called a set bank line to catch fish.

Mr Jones said that the bye-law prohibited fishing except by rod and line, and it was passed at the instance of local fishermen to prevent people coming with nets, etc., and taking a large number of fish. In regard to bank lines, a man might set a large number and watch them not.

Charles Young Moses said that he visited Rother on the 14th June, and he saw defendants fishing in Appleton Ings with bank lines.

Defendants, who said they were ignorant they were doing anything wrong, were fined 1s. and costs.

Mrs J. M. Brewins, the President of the Women's Liberal Association at Selby, held a garden fete on Thursday, at which Mr E. H. Foster, M.P., C.C., the prospective Liberal candidate for the Barkston Ash division, who had promised to attend, wired from London wishing success to the proceedings and regretting that he was detained as a witness before a Parliamentary Committee.

The manor and estates of Newton Kyme and Toulston came into the possession of the Fairfaxes in 1604; they were sold to Sir Thomas Barwick in 1641, but they came back later in the 16th century by the marriage of his daughter and heiress, Frances, to Henry, fourth Lord Fairfax. The Toulston estate passed from the Fairfaxes by sale about the year 1775.

To the Selby Abbey assistant clergy fund, Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., has subscribed ten guineas, Mr Wm. Gillinder a like sum, and Mrs Atkinson £5. Towards the new institute and benefice fund, Mr. E. E. Heathcote, York, has given a donation of £5. Mr. Heathcote, of Blackhirth, who has already paid for the carving of capitals in the north choir aisle, is defraying the cost of carving nine capitals in the Lady Chapel.

ASSAULT.—Frank Smith, labourer, Selby, was summoned on Monday for assaulting a neighbour named James Lorkin, who appeared in court with his head bandaged. Lorkin stated that Smith struck him on the head with an enamel tin, causing a wound three inches long. Defendant, who contended that he acted in self-defence, was ordered to pay 10s. and costs.

STRAYING HORSES.—John Henry Harrison, hawker, of no fixed abode, was on Monday at Selby fined 10s. and costs for allowing four horses to stray on the Cambleforth Road, near Selby. Defendant had been camping in the vicinity, and complaints had been received of the obstruction caused by the horses.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c.

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20 ...	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30 ...	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 0
40 ...	1 0	2 0	3 8	6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do.	10d. do.	do.
52 do.	8d. do.	do.

TO LET.

TO Let Good COTTAGE, with Living Room, Scullery, and Three Bedrooms. Rent 4s. clear.—Apply, Chas. Briers, Barwick-in-Elmet. 2 2026

WANTED

DAY GIRL wanted, at once.—Apply, Pearce, 8, Carter Mount, Whitkirk. 1

GOOD GENERAL wanted.—Apply, Mrs. J. Verity, Roseville, Green Lane, Halton, Leeds. 2 1476

GOOD DAY GIRL wanted. Small family.—Mrs. Holliday, The Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 3 2045

WANTED LAD for FARM WORK. Live In. About 16.—Apply, G. Dixon, Swillington. 2

WANTED Strong GIRL, able to wash. Another maid kept.—Apply, Best, Hollyshaw, Whitkirk. 1 1959

WANTED Young Respectable GIRL at once to assist in house. One maid kept.—Apply, Mrs Archbold, Stanks, Crossgates. 1 1992

WANTED Boys and Girls (age about 14) to assist with PHOTOGRAPHIC PRINTING.—Apply, W. Bramley, Stanks, Crossgates. 1

JUNIOR CLERK for Mill Office, alert, accurate at figures. Hours 6 a.m. to 5 p.m.—Apply, The Yorkshire Copper Works, Ltd., Stourton, Leeds.

WANTED HOUSE in CROSSGATES or District by July, August, or September. Rent £17 to £19.—Apply, Box S, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds. 2 2017

LAMPLIGHTER wanted for No. 2 District, Temple Newsam. Average time, 21 hours per week.—Apply to W. B. Pindar, Council Offices, Hunslet, Leeds.

LAMPLIGHTERS wanted for Nos. 2 and 3 Districts, OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD. Average time No. 2 district, 21 hours per week; No. 3 district, 14 hours per week.—Apply to W. B. Pindar, Council Offices, Hunslet, Leeds.

FOR SALE.

YOUNG AIREDALE BITCH for Sale.—Apply, Frank Whitford, Station Road, Kippax. 2

FOR SALE PERAMBULATOR, Boat-Shaped, Green and Black, capital condition, nearly new, 25/-.—School House, Micklefield.

FOR Sale 100 Strong GOSLINGS, various ages. Prices from 3/6 to 5/- each.—Addy, Poultry Breeder, Aberford. 3 1487

FOR Sale, GENT'S CYCLE, good condition, new Tyres, Cheap.—Apply, Mrs Brownsridge, Windsor Terrace, Garforth. 1

FOR Sale PIANOLA. Cost £55. Almost new. £10. Free inspection. Financial trouble.—Address, Box 2203, "Skyrack Courier" Office, 2, Aire Street, Leeds. 2

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also first-class YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandon Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free 2 Stamps.—(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free to 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road. Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
EAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc kept in Stock.

DENTISTRY.

W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 36a, Boar Lane (over Messrs Newby's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s., each.
Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 1s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3515.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

BY Permission of the Hon. E. F. L. WOOD, M.P., parts of the PARK and PLEASURE GROUNDS at TEMPLENEWSAM will be THROWN OPEN to the PUBLIC on SUNDAY AFTERNOONS, July 12th, 19th, and 26th, from 2 to 6 p.m. Entrance by Whitkirk and Halton Moor Roads only.
The Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., relies upon the visitors to observe the printed notices and to see that no damage is done to the trees or shrubs. No bicycles, motor-cycles, conveyances, or dogs will be allowed in the Park.

ST. AIDAN'S, GREAT PRESTON.
A VILLAGE PAGEANT
will be held on
SATURDAY, 18th JULY, 1914.
In SWILLINGTON HOUSE PARK
(kindly lent by Sir Charles Lowther, Bart.).
Fifty Characters in Costume.
To commence at 4 p.m. Admission and Tea, 1/-

KIPPAX HORTICULTURAL & ATHLETIC SOCIETY.
FIFTH ANNUAL SHOW AND SPORTS
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19th, 1914.
Classes for PLANTS, FLOWERS, VEGETABLES, FRUIT, RABBITS, PIGEONS, POULTRY.
Grand Sports (under A.A.A. laws), Splendid Prizes.
Schedules and entry forms now ready.
Please state which schedule required, Fur and Feather, or Flower. Apply,
E. M. LOGG, Secretary,
2 5, Glencoe, S.-t-ra.

SHERBURN-IN-ELMET AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.
The 26th ANNUAL SHOW
will be held on
MONDAY, JULY 13th, 1914.
£125, 3 Silver Cups, in Prizes.
Horses, etc., Poultry. Sports in the Evening.
Schedules ready. Special Railway Rates.
C. Eshelby, Sec.

MONK FRYSTON SHOW & SPORTS
will be held
ON TUESDAY, JULY 28th, 1914
in the
Beautiful Park at Monk Fryston
(By kind permission of Rev. B. Hemsworth, M.A.).
DONKEY RACE, DRAPING, DRIVING IN HARNESS, RUNNING, CYCLING, &c.
ABOUT £140 IN PRIZES.
The Shire Horse Medals and Cups.
Castleford Subscription Prize Band will play selections.
Late trains from Monk Fryston Station to Church Fenton, Burton Salmon, Castleford, Normanton, Pontefract, and Sheffield at 9.30 p.m.
Agricultural Entries close July 25th.
Sports Entries close July 24th, (Morning's post).
For Schedules apply,
J. LONGBOTTOM, Hon. Sec.
Crown Inn.

THE CAR THAT HOLDS THE ROAD IS THE CHARRON.
Sole Leeds and District Agents.
DOCKRAY & CO.,
LEE'S YARD,
MEADOW LANE, LEEDS.
HAVE A TRIAL RUN AND TEST IT.
Tel. 1734

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.
WEEK COMMENCING JULY 13th, 1914.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
STAR PROGRAMMES.
ALL THE LATEST AND BEST OF THE CINEMA ART.
DRAMA, HUMOUR, INSTRUCTION.
Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., and Friday at 7.
Saturday 3, 6.30, and 8.30.
Admission: 2d., 4d., 6d. 6d. Seats may be booked
Children half-price Saturday afternoon.

FOX'S CYCLE STORES,
BRIGGATE, GARFORTH, Near LEEDS.
Agent for
RENOWNED CENTAUR CYCLES
at Popular Prices, from £5 5s. 0d.
See Special Value Guaranteed Cycle, Free Wheel, 2 Rim Brakes, 13 months' Guaranteed Tyres at £3 17s. 6d. cash.
EXPERT ON ALL REPAIRS.
J.E.S. I h.p. Auxiliary Stocked (also Petrol).

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.
EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.
Monday, 13th July, 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton, for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. Tuesday, 14th July, 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield, for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. Wednesday, 15th July, 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Grosmont, for ½ day, and Whitby for ½ to 4 days. 12.30 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. 1.10 p.m. to York and Malton, for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 1.57 p.m. to Goole and Hull. Thursday, 16th July, 12.30 p.m. to York, and Malton, for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 1.57 p.m. (calling at Crossgates only), to Stamford Bridge, Pocklington, Market Weighton, and Driffield, for ½ days. Friday, 17th July, 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Saturday, 18th July, 7.0 a.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby. 12.3 p.m. to York, Coxwold, Ampleforth, Gilling, Helmsley, Kirbymoorside, and Pickering. 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, Grosmont, and Whitby. 12.30 p.m. to Scarborough. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Bridlington. 2.25 p.m. to Goole and Hull.
For further particulars see bills.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

A GARDEN FETE AND SALE OF WORK
will be held at
BROOKFIELD, GARFORTH BRIDGE,
on SATURDAY, AUGUST 1st, 1914,
in aid of the Swillington Church Expenses.
Sports. Competitions. Dancing on the lawn. Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance. Admission 6d. After 6 p.m. 3d. Meat Tea 9d.

CHURCH FENTON BRASS BAND SPORTS
The NINTH ANNUAL SPORTS
will be held
ON SATURDAY, JULY 18th, 1914.
When Prizes to the value of £25 will be competed for, including the following
Open Events:—
LEAPING COMPETITIONS.
MUSICAL CHAIRS on HORSEBACK.
100, 120, and 220 YARDS HANDICAP.
ONE MILE and HALF-MILE BICYCLE RACES, Etc., Etc.,
and Other Events.
Sports to Commence 3 p.m.
Evening Programme, 6 p.m.
The Church Fenton Brass Band will be in attendance.

SALE OF WORK AND FETE,
In the GROUNDS of MONK FRYSTON HALL, in Aid of FOREIGN MISSIONS (S.P.G., &c.).
SATURDAY, JULY 18th.
To be opened at 2.30 by
Mrs. H. L. LYON, HILLAM HALL.
MISSIONARY PLAY, MAYPOLE DANCE, and other attractions.
Addresses by
Rev. W. A. Hewitt, Rector of Castleford.
Rev. Canon Tupper Carey.
Teas 6d. and 9d.
Admission to Grounds from 2 p.m., 3d.
Entertainments 3d. and 1d.

TEMPLENEWSAM HABITATION OF THE PRIMROSE LEAGUE & CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.
GRAND DEMONSTRATION
IN TEMPLENEWSAM PARK,
SATURDAY, JULY 18th, 1914.
Speakers:—
SIR MARK SYKES, Bart., M.P.
G. R. LANE FOX, Esq., M.P.
DARCY B. WILSON, Esq. and others.
Chairman:—
THE HON. E. F. L. WOOD, M.P.
Speeches 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.
Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance.
Refreshments at moderate charges.
Park open 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.
Entrances: North Lodge, Whitkirk, and Halton Moor Road.
Motors, Cycles, and Carriages at Whitkirk North Lodge only.
Admission to Park, 3d.
Tickets may be had from any member of the Committees of the Primrose League and the Conservative Association. 2

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists.
Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
PROPRIETOR: H. BEEFORTH.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE,
(Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT
ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
24½ per month.
£1 to £2 0 0 .. 5d. .. ..
£2 0 0 .. 10d. .. ..
£3 10 0 .. 15 od. .. ..
£5 0 0 .. 1s. 8d. .. ..
£8 0 0 .. 2s. 8d. .. ..
£10 0 0 .. 3s. 4d. .. ..
Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 2, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

Established 37 years.
WM. DENTON & SON,
33, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
ESTATE AGENTS & RENT COLLECTORS.
Rates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Brokers.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
Dental Rooms,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
he Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free. or British and Foreign Patents,. Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2718. HALIFAX 35Y.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

THOS. COOK & SON,
CALL and see US IF YOU WISH FOR ADVICE. NO CHARGE
BOOK PASSAGES or give any information about EMIGRATING to CANADA, AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, AFRICA, AMERICA, &c., &c.
We have our own Offices and staff in each of these Countries.
ESTAB. SINCE 1841.
140 OFFICES in ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.
55, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

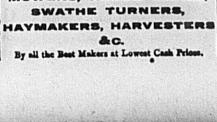
SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART
ON MONDAY NEXT.
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 12 O'CLOCK.
WHITKIRK LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
(Near to Crossgates Station, and within four miles of Leeds).
Messrs HARTLE & SON
Will sell by Auction, in strict accordance with the conditions posted at the Mart—
430 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.:—
75 NEWLY CALVEN and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE BEASTS.
60 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and COWS.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
125 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
150 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
Auctioneers' Offices: Garforth, near Leeds. (Tel. No. 26).

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 6.30 p.m.
SALE OF 16 ACRES OF MEADOW, NEAR GARFORTH BRIDGE.
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Instructed by Mr Wm. Cramby, of Well Green Farm, Swillington, will offer for Sale by Auction on Monday Next, July 13th, 1914—
THE CROP OF MEADOW, now growing in the undermentioned fields, viz.:—
a. r. p.
LOT 1. 7 1 32.—"Tannery Field," situate to the south of and adjoining to the Leeds and Selby highway, near Garforth Bridge.
LOT 2. 9 0 19.—"Thumper Close," situate to the east of and adjoining the Wakefield and Aberford highway, at its junction with Brex Lane.
The after grass on Lot 2 only will be sold separately.
The Sale will commence at the field gate of Lot 1 at 6.30 p.m.

THE AUCTION MART, WHITKIRK.
THE NEXT SALE of HORSES will be held on WEDNESDAY, July 22nd.
Entry forms may be had, post free.
Offices: Garforth. BARTLE & SON, Auctioneers



1, MOOR VIEW, GARFORTH.
MONDAY, JULY 20th, 1914.
SALE OF VALUABLE ANTIQUE AND MODERN FURNITURE, CUTLERY, LINEN, Etc.
Full particulars next week and on sale bills.
T. HARROP SHORT, Auctioneer,
Paradise, Boston Spa, and Tadcaster.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Hotels of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers, and others.
Various Stocks of Pottery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time.
Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs. J. CUNDALL & SON
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS.
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK, and WHARFEDALE AUCTION MART, TADCASTER

— TRY —
SANGFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt,
and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
Medium to High-Class
Suits & Costumes,
From 30/— Upwards
On Easy Terms of Payment.
WRITE TO-DAY FOR PARTICULARS

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

Fine Low Shoes
For SUMMER and the HOLIDAYS
We specialise on low shoes. We offer you shoes at 10/6 that in style, fit and comfort cannot be equalled at anything like the price.
The New Summer Models of
THOR SHOES for MEN
GATORA SHOES for LADIES
are a long way ahead of any other brands, even at shillings more per pair. Don't just accept this statement. Call and see the shoes in our windows—step into the store and ask to examine any that interest you—don't purchase unless you are absolutely satisfied that the shoes are what we represent them to be. In ladies' shoes we have splendid lines at 7/11 which compare favourably with shoes sold at 10/6. The name Southall stands for quality and dependability—you buy with security from Southall.—Note our address, and call the first time in the City.
SOUTHALL & Co.
8, New Station Street
(Opposite Albion Street),
LEEDS.

TO BE CONTENT
With anything but the best in spectacles or eyeglasses is the wisdom of the unwise.
Thoughtful people recognise this fact, and value their eyes too highly to run unnecessary risks by wearing wrong glasses.
It is to such that this appeal is made; and if your eyes are causing you trouble, we ask you to call and talk the matter over with us, when we shall be pleased to advise you.
HEYWOOD,
OPTOLOGIST,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
&
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

ESTABLISHED 1849.
W. T. GRISDALE,
Painter and Decorator,
36, Austhorpe Road,
Crossgates.
Pattern Books sent to any Address.
Estimates Free.

ESTABLISHED 1871.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.
THIS INSTITUTION was ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they may, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in charitable institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character, without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Cornets, or other mechanical or painful appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances, and in isolated positions can have the advantage of Mr. ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is under taken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure, or benefit to the patient.
Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7 on Alternate Saturdays, July 11th and 25th.
Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.
TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION.
ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 12/6
SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.
Special Notice.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, JULY 11th, 1914.

Before any substantial headway is made in the crusade against consumption, which has been prominently brought before the people of Yorkshire this week, an enormous amount of educational work must be done, because folks are either so ignorant or so careless that they will not adopt the simplest precautions to safeguard themselves and those dependent upon them. It is admitted that if sanatorium treatment is to prove effective the disease, but it often happens that cases are not discovered until the sufferers are beyond medical aid, and the tragedy of these incurable cases presents one of the most pathetic features of the national life. Seemingly people are very reluctant, when stricken with the disease, to have themselves medically examined; they have a dread belief that they are suffering from it, but they delude themselves that they may get better without adopting remedial measures, and when they are compelled to give in they find that their proclamation has been fatal. The position of the sufferers is not difficult to understand. No one readily accepts conditions which necessarily mean isolation, and human nature, as a rule, revolts against it. But what does it mean? The stricken person is in a hopeless plight, probably full of remorse because he kept knowledge to himself which should have been shared by others, and it may be that by his action he has sealed his doom. Then, look at the injury such a person does to others. Suppose he is the head of a family, he wilfully allows them to run the risk of being stricken by the disease, because he lives amongst them, and the responsibility resting upon such an one is awful. To put it as bluntly as possible, when human life is destroyed in a quarrel, punishment inevitably follows, but nothing is done to anyone who places the lives of others in jeopardy from disease. Up to a few years ago, when a family of young men and women were swept away by the white scourge, the wise ones would state that it was inevitable—that father or mother died from consumption, and that they had inherited it and could not escape. This fatalistic idea prevailed throughout the country until quite recently, but we now know that while persons may have a predisposition to consumption, there is no reason why they should have it, even if both parents suffered from it. Infection plays havoc in families, and nearly everyone can tell pathetic stories how young people have fallen victims to the disease. And is it any wonder when no precautionary measures are taken? Until persons, on the first symptoms of the disease, isolate themselves and seek means to stop the disease the toll will continue to be a very heavy one. People who suffer in ignorance cannot be placed in precisely the same category, but the effects are equally disastrous. Sentiment plays a great part in human affairs, and indeed life would be poverty-stricken without it, but there comes a time when it must give place to commonsense. Naturally people have a reluctance to parting with dear ones when they know their days are numbered, but if any headway is to be made against the fell destroyer, it is patent that persons in the last stages of the disease must be isolated. In comparatively few houses are the means afforded for carrying out complete isolation, and institutions for the reception of such patients are required. The most economical method of dealing with any disease is to strike at the sources of infection; it may seem expensive at the outset, but if it stamps out the disease who will question its economy?

In another direction authorities have not yet realized their responsibility to the nation, although they are moving slowly in the right direction. The vile housing conditions which exist in many places are productive of the gravest results, and the damp dwellings in the rural districts leave to many of the poor toilers terrible legacies of suffering. Wealth, apart from its capacity to enjoy it, has no value, and human life should be the very first consideration of all concerned. Owners of disease-spreading property have a share of blame to bear, but the local authority who allow such property to be inhabited have infinitely more responsibility. By taking no action, they permit disease to increase, and then they spend money in order to combat it. It is a most extravagant way of dealing with public money, and very often the people who take this line are not above criticising others who would adopt more effective methods because the initial cost would be greater. Rather than put the property-owner to any annoyance or expense, they would use the rates to fight disease which is the result of the conditions they tolerate. When there is a demand from the country, and the scathing reports of some of the medical officers of health on this phase of the question form instructive reading to all interested in the welfare of the people generally. If sunshine and fresh air are essential to combating consumption successfully, local authorities should see to it that all dwellings are properly ventilated and lighted. Many authorities are adopting an enlightened policy on this question, but it requires patience, persistence, and perseverance. The public health, however, is the essential consideration, and if they have this ever before them they will do good work.

SQUARES O' YORKSHIRE.—This is the title of a little book, edited by "Bob Stubbs," the popular dialect writer. A number of entertaining sketches, very suitable for readings at social gatherings, are given, and they are written in "Bob's" best style. The little book may be called "Bob an' Nanny's Summer Comic," and it will cause many a hearty laugh. It is a good three pennorth.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender. Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

MARRIAGES.

Broyles—Newby.—On June 14th, at Sierraville, California, by Justice of the Peace, Fritz Ohland, Joseph Herbert Broyles, to Annie Elizabeth Newby, fourth daughter of Mr. William Tiffany, Rothwell, Yorkshire.

Farrar—Greenwood.—On July 8th, at Ladywood Chapel, Oakwood, Roundhay, by the Rev. Albert Hall, Percy, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramsden Farrar, Chapeltown, to Maud, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs Wm. Greenwood, "Lansdowne," Roundhay. 2033

IN MEMORIAM

Wilkinson—In loving memory of Henry Wilkinson, died 13th July, 1913, aged 75 years.
"A year has gone and still we miss him,
Never shall his memory fade."
From mother and children.
2038

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

Mr T. Hampson, of Rothwell, choirmaster and organist of Lofthouse Church, has secured second prize (silver medal and money), for one of his hymn tunes, out of 38 competitors.

The Late Mrs Alf. Cooke.—The death of Mrs Alf. Cooke, at Parkfield, Paignton, will be received with regret by many people. She was generous in her benefactions to Hunslet district, and every Christmas she made a monetary gift to the inmates of the workhouse and children's homes at Rothwell Haigh.

A Local Case.—The case of Charlesworth v. Charlesworth, which relates to a proposed issue of shares in J. Charlesworth and Co., colliery proprietors, of Lofthouse, was mentioned on Wednesday to Mr Justice Joyce in the Chancery Division. Mr Lodebjp intimated that it would be impossible to take the case these sittings. It could come on on the second day of the Michaelmas term if the parties desired it.

Primitive Methodism.—A "repetition" of the Sunday School anniversary took place at the Primitive Methodist Church on Sunday, but the services were not so largely attended as anticipated. In the morning the Rev. W. G. Sidley was the preacher, and in the afternoon the children, under the guidance of their Sunday School teachers, sang their festival hymns in the neighbourhood of Wood Enclosure. Mr. Ed. Ward was the preacher at the evening service, when a number of children gave recitations.

Marriage.—At Brandon Church, Durham, Mr John Bowling, the late Official Receiver of Leeds, was quietly married to Mrs Newsome, the widow of Mr H. P. Newsome, of the Beeches, Rothwell, by her son-in-law, the Rev. C. P. Hunken, officiating. It will be remembered that some months ago Mr Bowling had a slight seizure which necessitated his retirement from public life. Since then he has been carefully attended by his daughters, and, although not completely restored, he is considerably better in health. It is understood that Mr Bowling will continue to reside at Goathland, whence he has derived so much benefit.

Temperance.—On Monday the ladies of the Rothwell Branch of the Women's Total Abstinence Union held a successful garden party in grounds at Carlton, which were kindly lent for the occasion by Mr Murtland. The party were joined by about thirty others from the Heckmondwike and Liversadge Branch, and an enjoyable time was spent, in spite of the unsettled state of the weather. The tea, which was to have been served in the orchard, was partaken of in a shed which had been specially arranged for the purpose. Afterwards a meeting was held in the grounds, and short addresses were given by various ladies and gentlemen associated with the Union. A couple of glees were rendered by the Rothwell Gipsy Choir.

Angling.—The anglers of the Rothwell Angling Club and the Rothwell Temperance A.C. journeyed with the Charlesworth's excursion party as far as Barkisland, one of the favourite angling resorts, where the management had kindly given their consent for a stop to be made. The anglers numbered about fifty, and a match was arranged in which 36 took part. A three hours' "fish" was made, and the winners were declared as follows:—1, William Denton (R); 2, James Backwith (R.T); 3, W. Wilson (R.T); 4, J Hartley (R); 5, T. Fox (R); 6, W. Priestley (R); 7, C. McWilliams (R); 8, J. J. Stead (R.T); 9, B Butler (R); 10, W Jeffreys (R). W. Denton also won prizes for largest fish caught.

Outing.—On Saturday out 1,500 people, the employees of Messrs J. and J. Charlesworth's Rothwell Haigh Collieries, and their wives, had their annual excursion to Skegness. Arrangements had been made for the trip to leave direct from the Rothwell Haigh Colliery, so that everyone appreciated, as it did away with a long walk after a full day's enjoyment. There were two trains to accommodate the travellers, and though so large a number left Rothwell there were several hundreds who assembled at the station for the purpose of seeing off their friends, and the good wishes which were exchanged were so numerous that one seemed as though the party were going for a long stay instead of one brief day. Everything passed off splendidly, and everyone voted the arrangements perfect. The weather was all that could be desired, and an enjoyable day was spent.

The Late Mr W. Ward.—The funeral took place on Tuesday in the churchyard on Wednesday afternoon of the remains of the late Mr William Abbishaw, of Flockton Villa, Rothwell Haigh. The deceased, who was in his 66th year, was very well-known in the district. Up to the time of his retirement he had been employed as the Finance Committee, he being the chairman of the former committee in 1903. He also held the position of vice-chairman of the Council. He was an active church worker, and was for a great number of years a warden, but perhaps he was best known in his capacity as a bellringer. At the present of fifteen members of the company of ringers at Rothwell, and during his lifetime he rang as many as between 60 and 70 peals. It is said of the latter was rung at the Rothwell Church, when 8,448 changes were rung, the time taken in doing so being five hours. He was a subscribing member of the company 1867 he was appointed secretary of the company of ringers, and in later years held a position on the committee of the Yorkshire Association, of Bob-ringers, and was also a trustee for that body. On Wednesday afternoon the deceased's old colleagues paid their last tribute by ringing two muffled peals, one of which was rung before the interment and the other after. Those taking port in the peal were Messrs J. Whittaker (Hessingley), A. Chapman (Rothwell), J. Abbl- (Rothwell), D. Dobson (Rothwell), G. Shaw (Rothwell), W. Chapman (Rothwell), Abbishaw (Rothwell), W. Chapman (Rothwell), G. W. Steel (Woodlesford), G. Bolland (Rothwell), and S. Stacey (Rothwell). The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. A. G. Scott, vicar of Lofthouse.

CROSSGATES

TRAIN SERVICE.—On Friday night a meeting of railway contract ticket-holders was held at the Brown Cow Inn, Whitkirk—Mr. Thomas Simpson presiding—to consider the question of obtaining better travelling facilities between Crossgates and Leeds. It was pointed out that there was no train between 1.17 p.m. and 2.18 p.m., and to meet the convenience of business men returning to the city after dinner a train that would reach Leeds about two o'clock was needed. It was further stated that the 2.18 train was frequently late, and business men were greatly inconvenienced thereby. The meeting decided to take the question up, and forward a petition, signed by pass-holders, asking the N.E.R. Co. to give a service that will allow of passengers reaching Leeds about two o'clock.

FORESTERS' OUTING.—On Saturday the members of Court Crossgates, No. 7,102, had a most enjoyable outing to Grassington and Buckden. The party, numbering over forty ladies and gentlemen, went by train to Grassington, and after light refreshments had been served at the Wilson's Arms Hotel, the journey was continued, by motor-car, to Buckden by way of Kilnsey Crag, where several of the party ascended to the top, striding the crag with stones thrown from the road. Going on to Kettlewell, a halt was made at the "Racehorses," an old-fashioned inn with many eminent divines, and for none has he had a greater admiration than for Dr. Conder, who ministered at the East Parade Chapel, Leeds, for thirty years. In his fifty-seven years as a preacher, Mr Mosby has delivered nearly two thousand sermons, and he says "I am thankful to know that I have not laboured in vain, or spent my strength for nought."

HALTON

Mr H. Thomas, who won the bowling championship of Barkston Ash, Mr W. Green, of the Halton Bowling Club, have entered the individual merit competition of Leeds and District. Mr T. Booth (Halton Y.) will also compete.

WESLEYAN CHAPEL.—Special services in connection with the opening of the new organ were held on Sunday at Halton Wesleyan Church. The preacher was the Rev. J. W. Ballen, and the organist Mr Walter Walker, A.R.C.O., of Headingley, who played selections on the new organ at both the morning and evening services, the soloist at the latter service being Mr Harry Verity. In the afternoon Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was given by the choir. Mr Bert Wrigley, circuit steward, presided, and there was a good congregation. The choruses were nicely sung, and the soloists were Miss Amy Hullah, Mrs Garner, and Mr Harley Stones. Mr Walker, who presided at the organ, played a special music. The collections realized £8 4s. 6d.

KIPPAX

BROTHERHOOD.—An open-air meeting to advance the cause of the Brotherhood movement was held on Cross Hill on Wednesday evening. The Rev. J. W. Tuffley, of Castleford, who was supported by members of the Primitive Methodist Church, gave an appropriate address.

LANGUAGE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday John Simpson, a miner, of Kippax, was summoned for having used obscene language at Kippax on Sunday, June 28th. P.C. Holmes proved the case, and defendant, who ignored the summons, was ordered to pay a fine of 5s. and costs.

PARISH CHURCH.—The ladies of the sewing meeting in connection with the church had an outing to Ilkley and Bolton Woods on Tuesday. The journey from Kippax, by motor-car, was commenced at 9.30 a.m., and the party arrived at Bolton Woods about 12 noon. The ladies had tea in the Abbey. The weather was fine, and the journey was very pleasant. The party reached home about 9.30 in the evening.

TEMPERANCE.—An open-air meeting in connection with the Bowers Allerton and District Band of Hope Union was held on the Cross Hill on Tuesday evening, and Mr T. G. Walker (representing the Wesleyan Band of Hope Society) presided. Mr A. Crabtree, secretary of the Yorkshire Band of Hope Union, gave an address on Temperance. Mr George Price was the soloist, and he sang "My mother's prayer." Mr G. W. Firth played the accompaniments.

POLICE CHARITIES.—The annual cricket match in connection with the police charities was played on Wednesday between a Kippax team captained by Mr L. Webster and the Skyrick Police. The scoring of the former was rapid, and totalled 99, while the latter scored 77 runs for 7 wickets when rain stopped play. The gala which should have been held in the evening was impossible on account of the heavy showers which fell, and the Kippax Old Band attended the Brigshaw Cricket Field, where the gala was to be held.

LOFTHOUSE

Mr P. Hargreaves, of Lofthouse, was second for Airedale terrier at Deighton Show on Saturday, and he also secured first for any variety over 25lb., and first for any variety, any age or weight.

PROPERTY SALE.—Mr A. Hudson sold at Lofthouse Gate, on Monday, a house and workshop together with six cottages, known as Highfield Cottages, situate in Canal Lane, Stanley, with a net annual rental of £62, to Mr T. Wilson, Stanley, for £875.

A STRANGE LETTER.—Arthur Blanchard, a painter, was charged at Wakefield on Monday with attempting to set fire to a haystack at Outwood, belonging to the Lofthouse Colliery Company. Prisoner pleaded guilty and handed a letter written by him in gaol. In it he stated that he hoped the magistrates would not look upon the fact that the stack was not damaged as an extenuating circumstance, and if he had not been the worse for drink he would have made a sure job of it as he had his eye on three other large stacks further along the road. His only large stacks further along the road. His only object in doing the seemingly wanton act was to save himself from something more horrible. He had been in asylums two or three times, and he was determined not to go again. If they could get him away for a very long time, he would look upon them as real friends, because it might be the means of saving him from his greatest and only enemy—himself. Prisoner was committed to the Assizes.

MICKLEFIELD

Mrs Lucy Wainwright, of Micklefield, left estate valued at £12,137.

PONY DRIVER IN TROUBLE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Herbert Wood, a pony driver, of Micklefield, was summoned for riding a bicycle without a light at Garforth on Sunday, June 21st, at 10.45 p.m. P.C. Eadon spoke to meeting the defendant on the Selby Road. Defendant told him that the light had only just gone out, but the lamp was found to be cold. The officer added that he saw Wood approaching about 100 yards away, and there was no light. A fine of 1s. and costs was imposed.

OULTON

BOWLING.—Leeds and District individual merit competition takes place on Saturday, and the Oulton players entered include Messrs J. Nuttall, F. Ellis, H. Peters, J. W. Hutchinson, W. Hutchinson, jun., T. Brown, J. W. Morley, and J. Graham.

MEDICAL CHARITIES.—Infirmary Sunday was celebrated at Oulton and Woodlesford on Sunday. In the morning a procession, headed by the Oulton Brass Band, paraded various parts of the district, and a collection was taken en route. In the afternoon the parade was resumed, and, after visiting other parts of the district, the workers marched to the Oulton Church, where a service was conducted by the curate, the Rev. H. T. Pattinson. In the evening services were held in the churches of Oulton and Woodlesford, and collections were taken on behalf of the Infirmary funds.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—In connection with the Oulton Wesleyan Church anniversary services were held on Sunday. The special preacher was Mr Moyle, the district evangelist, who addressed good congregations. On Sunday afternoon a service of song, entitled "Billy Bray," was ably rendered by the male voice choir belonging to the church, conducted by Mr H. Choir belonging to the church, conducted by Mr H. Bedford. Mr W. Warrington presided at the organ, and the narrative was read by Mr Lyon. On Monday afternoon a service was held in the chapel, the preacher being the Rev. E. Davidson (connexional evangelist). The Rev. N. W. Thomlinson (superintendent minister, Rothwell). Thomlinson (superintendent minister, Rothwell). took part in the service. A public tea was afterwards held, and this was followed by a meeting in the chapel, presided over by Mr T. Stephenson. Addresses were given by the Rev. M. Moyle, the Rev. E. Davidson, and Mr Moyle. The financial report was read by Mr Lyon.

STOURTON

THE LATE MRS BOSOWORTH.—Stourton Primitive Methodist Chapel is poorer by the loss of one of its best workers—Mrs Bosomworth—who died after a short illness during the week-end. The deceased, prior to coming to Stourton, Leeds, was a member of the Lady Pit Lane Primitive Methodist Church, and her association with the Stourton Chapel dates back for the past three years, and many will regret the loss of her valuable help. She leaves a family of four, two daughters and two sons. A memorial service will be conducted on Sunday night by the minister, the Rev. W. S. Spencer.

ANNIVERSARY.—The Sunday School anniversary services at the Primitive Methodist Chapel were continued on Sunday. The special preacher was Mr B. Warhurst, of Beeston Hill, who gave an interesting address on "Labels" to the children of the Sunday School. Mr Brook, the Sunday School superintendent, presided. The children sang their anniversary hymns, and Master Harry Bell gave a solo. Recitations were also given by the following:—James Crow, who recited, "Golden Rain"; Joe Taylor, "Be as thorough as you can"; and Doris Wheeler, "The Harvest." In the evening the following recited:—Harry Taylor, "The strong and the good courage"; Lilian Walker, "When I have time"; and Ida Wainwright sang "Jesus, tender Shepherd, hear me."

DAMAGE.—The trial of Arthur Farrar (14), Stourton, and Arthur Hunt (14), Hunslet, who were summoned at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions last week for doing wilful damage to rhubarb belonging to Mr Selwyn Wade, Stourton, but owing to the non-appearance of the lads, the case was adjourned, came before the magistrates on Tuesday. Evidence was given that the lads were throwing stones and jumping on the top of rhubarb. The damage done was to the extent of 6s., and the magistrates, in ordering the payment of the latter sum, in each pay 2s. towards the damage, together with the costs of the case, said they did not want to make the lads criminals, but would look to the parents. A warning was given to the lads that if they came before the Court again they would be severely dealt with.

SCHOLES

MR LEO. S. Horneastle, of Scholes, has been successful in passing the final examination of the Institute of Chartered Accountants, held in May last. Mr Horneastle served with Messrs Howard and Maisey, of Leeds, accountants to the Garforth Urban District Council.

CRICKET.—On Saturday a match was played at Scholes between the Scholes team and Armley, and resulted in a tie, each side scoring 47. For Scholes Drake took four wickets for 9, and Armitage 6 for 16. For Armley—Scholes 3, Sykes (not out) 3, Drake 9, Moor 13, Barker 0, Armitage 0, H. Simpson 2, Whitaker 5, Jubb (not out) 3, Alvin 0, Robinson 1, extras 2; total 47. Armley—Lawson 0, Wilkinson 4, E. Wilkinson 15, Johnson 0, Colby 0, McCullah 0, Armitage 1, Isbell 1, Midgley (not out) 7, Braddock 14, extras 4; total 47. In the previous week Scholes played Mr Moorhouse's team at Scholes, and the homesters won by four wickets. Scores:—Mr Moorhouse's Team—Mr Jackson 2, F. Moorhouse 43, E. Barker 0, E. Sugden 1, E. Fox 0, H. Newsome 2, L. Smith 13, T. Catlow 25, Mawson 8, Robertson 12, D. Moorhouse, captain (not out) 13, extras 7; total 147. Scholes—Mr Jefferson 16, Weatherall 22, Armitage 26, Garnett (not out) 47, Crosland 4, Barker 0, H. Simpson 0, J. Simpson (not out) 19, extras 8; total (for 6 wkts), 148.

ARLINGTON

HIS EXCUSE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Henry Crondson, a young clerk, living in Leeds, was summoned for riding a bicycle on the footpath at Swillington on June 27th, he saw the defendant, who was on a bicycle, turn off the road on to the footpath, bicycle, turn off the road on to the footpath, where he rode for a distance of about a quarter of a mile. Witness got his own machine and rode after him and ordered him to stop. Defendant told him he went on to the footpath because he wished to avoid the dust on the road, and he wanted to ask a man the way to Swillington. P.C. Eadon said the dust on the road had been repaired. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

WHITKIRK

Yesterday the choir boys of Whitkirk Church, who were accompanied by the Vicar, had their annual outing to Bridlington.

WOODLESFORD

ANNIVERSARY.—On Sunday in connection with the Wesleyan Sunday School the anniversary services were held. Mr W. Denton, of Rothwell, was the special preacher.

The shoemaker's shop of Mr J. W. Atkinson, in Lidgett Grove, Roundhay, was entered during Friday night and a large quantity of leather stolen. A skeleton key appears to have been used.

WILL OF MR T. H. HEY.—Mr Tom Hough Hey, of Sherburn (President of Sherburn Agricultural Club), left £54,643. Testator leaves £50 to his gardener, Walter Tennant, and £50 to his coachman, Felix Fay, and service; £25 to his housekeeper, Annie March, £100 per annum and £50 per year if in his service; to his housekeeper, Annie March, £100 per annum and £50 (legacy), and the use of his cottage at Barkston Ash for life and contents of her bedroom and Ash for life and contents of her bedroom and large clock if in his service; £400 to Reginald B. Parker; £200 to Chas. Clarke; £50 to Dr. Thirkell; £500 to Thomas Bumby. The residue of his property he leaves to his nephews and nieces equally.

TUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

BOY'S SCHOLARSHIP ABANDONED.

INTERESTING DISCUSSION.

The fortnightly meeting of Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the Union Offices, Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas Slee, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas Slee, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding.

Other members present were Mr J. Gavins (vice-chairman), Mrs E. A. Dickenson, Father T. Cody, Dr. E. Graves, Messrs J. Butterick, W. Schofield, P. S. Marsden, T. G. Conyers, G. Armitage, W. Verity, J. Bennett, J. R. Chappell, J. Bannister, W. A. Appleyard, E. B. Pickering, H. Tullbull, W. Lunn, W. Stead, G. W. Peace, J. W. Verity, and W. Hemingway, with the Clerk (Mr F. W. Mee).

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the House Committee the Clerk reported that the Children's Homes Committee had not seen their way to arrange for parents in the institution to visit their children in the homes every leave day, but requested this committee to see that the women be prevented from interfering with the children on other than visiting days. The committee did not see how it was possible to prevent the women interfering with their children, but decided to consider any individual complaint which the Homes Committee or superintendent might make as the occasion arose.

The sub-committee reported that they had considered the application of the baker and cook for permission to get married and to retain their present appointments, and recommended that on certain assurances and undertakings given them in writing by the officers, the application be acceded to, and that the holiday list for this year be amended so as to enable them to take one week's holiday together. It was resolved that the report and recommendations of the sub-committee be accepted on the conditions referred to.

The Clerk reported the decision of the Children's Homes Committee to allow Herbert Arrowsmith to take up the appointment of pupil-teacher at the institution, and it was resolved that the Board be recommended to appoint the boy, and that he share the assistant master's sitting room and the general officers' mess room, and sleep in the master's house, his office hours to be ordinarily from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. It was also resolved that the Board be recommended to pay Arrowsmith 2s. 6d. per week, together with rations, lodging, and washing.

The minutes were adopted.

CHILDREN'S HOMES.

At a meeting of the Children's Homes Committee letters were received from the West Riding Education Committee with reference to the suggested discontinuance of Herbert Arrowsmith's scholarship, and asking to be informed of the committee's decision in the matter. The committee also had under further consideration the desirability of recommending the boy for the appointment of master's clerk on a reference back from the Board. It was proposed by Mr Bennett and seconded by Mr Butterick that the boy be allowed to complete his studies. The proposition fell to the ground, as there was no other conclusions come to by them at their last meeting. An amendment was proposed and seconded "That the request of Herbert Arrowsmith be allowed to be granted, and that he be appointed to take the appointment of master's clerk at the general institution. It was also proposed by Mr Verity, seconded by Mrs Dickenson, and resolved (by voting in favour and 1 against) that the matter be adjourned until the boy had been seen.

The Clerk reported that he subsequently attended before the committee and expressed a preference for taking the appointment instead of proceeding with his scholarship. Six voted in favour of the lad taking the post, and four against, and it was therefore carried.

The committee had under consideration the advisability of granting their facilities to permits in the general institution for visiting their children in the homes, on a reference from the House Committee, and it was resolved that the committee cannot entertain the proposal, and that the House Committee be requested to prevent inmates interfering with the children on other than proper visiting days.

Mr Chappell moved the minutes of the committee, with the exception of the part relating to the boy Arrowsmith, while Mr Lunn moved an amendment that the minutes be carried as a whole. There was a seconder to each motion, and a discussion ensued.

Mr Bennett, in supporting those memmention, said that the members of the committee who had had to deal with the boy when he first gained the scholarship, and who had rejoiced in the possibility of the lad making a way in the world, it came as a shock when the resolution was defeated, and it was decided the lad be given the post. They were told if the lad accepted the institution until he was about 23 he would get about £45, along with rations, which was nothing compared with what he might reasonably look forward to. He had been surprised at those who had opposed him continuing his scholarship, as they were the people who talked a great deal of the necessity of education. He hoped the Board would support the wishes of the majority of the first meeting who had to do with the lad from the beginning.

Mr Butterick also supported the resolution, and said that at the last meeting of the Board when Father Cody moved that the matter be referred back to the committee, it was mentioned that the resolution that the lad continue his scholarship was only carried by one. That decision had been reversed by a majority of two, the only members who were not at the first meeting. the resolution who were not at the first meeting. Five of those were in favour of the lad continuing at school were still of the same opinion.

Mr Appleyard: Agreed.

Continuing, Mr Butterick said if there was anything in the Poor Law in which he had taken a great interest, it was that particular case. He was of the opinion that it was the bounden duty of the Guardians to let the lad have the full benefits of the scholarship. It was not only his opinion but the opinion of better men who were on the committee. The man who had trained him in the engineering school, if he had been there, would say let the lad go on with his full course. He himself was of the opinion that if the Guardians would let Arrowsmith go through he would make something far superior than they could give him now. They would be told by the opposition that the lad wanted to go, but the lad (Mr Butterick) could tell them why the lad wanted to go. He had, he said, signed more labour certificates than any man in Rothwell, and as soon as the children were thirteen they came and did not lose five minutes. It was the desire to earn money, only a natural desire, too. A lad of fifteen was not in a position to judge as well as adults as to what his future should be. He believed everyone wanted to do the best for the lad. Let him have every advantage, win another scholarship and get to the university if he could. He believed from what he was told that the lad would make a man of himself.

Father Cody said they were empowered to keep the lad on the premises until he was sixteen years of age, but after he was eighteen they were not entitled to spend a penny of the ratepayers' money in keeping up his scholarship. The education side of his life could be looked after by the lad going to night classes.

Mr Schofield also supported the resolution and said the best thing they could do was to let the lad continue with the scholarship. When the lad was 21 years of age and wished to improve his position, that was the time for him to step in, he would want something to show that he had some qualifications, and he contended that he could only gain qualifications for a workhouse master by having a thorough secondary education. That, he thought, was borne out by the Education Committee, as they seemed surprised that the Guardians should be taking the step they were preparing to take. They all knew that "neither wise men nor fools could work without tools," and the boy when he became 21 would have no tools, even if he went to night classes, to take up the position of master.

Mr Lunn, who spoke in support of his amendment, said that the answers given by the lad when before the committee were clear as from an expert. There was not a point missed by him even to rations. He believed the expense referred to by Father Cody would be a serious question to the ratepayer. He was of the opinion that with a generous House Committee they would make a capable man of him. The lad might after the end of his scholarship fall into a blind alley.

Mr Conyers supported the resolution, which on a vote being taken was lost, and the amendment that the whole of the minutes be carried was passed.

The Guardians were entertained to tea by the Chairman (Mr T. Thomas), to which a hearty vote of thanks was accorded, on the motion of Mr J. Gavins, seconded by Mr J. Butterick.

A vote of sympathy with the family of the late Mrs A. Cooke was passed.

A BRAMHAM GARDENER'S 'JOKE'

CASE AT THE SESSIONS.

David Keillor (23), gardener, Bramham Park, was brought up at York Quarter Sessions on Wednesday to answer a charge of having sent a letter threatening to murder Edith Barker, residing in York, on July 1st. The case before the magistrates is reported in another column.

Defendant pleaded guilty.

Mr J. Oddy prosecuted.

The Recorder said that the plea entered was simply one of sending a letter threatening to murder! In fact, as a mere act of bravado. Did Mr Oddy suggest that there was any intention on the part of the defendant to carry out the threat?

Mr Oddy: Looking at the surrounding circumstances, no.

The Recorder: I am glad you have said that. If I had been a juryman trying this case I should have taken that way. In this case it was a practical joke, although a very grim joke.

Mr Oddy: It seems to me that he wished to frighten her. This girl must be protected from the possibility of being put in fear of her life.

The Recorder: It is not an easy matter. There is no question about the man's character previously?

Mr Oddy: There is nothing.

Keillor, when asked if he had anything to say, said that the letter was written on the impulse of the moment. It was never meant to be any more, and was never meant to go further. He had been sorry ever since he wrote the letter.

The Recorder. Are you in employment?

Defendant: Yes.

Can you go back to your employment?—Yes, sir.

The Recorder said he accepted what the defendant said before the magistrates, that the whole thing was a practical joke, and that he never had the slightest belief that he had had a revolver, and if he had had a revolver he would not have pulled the trigger. He was willing to believe that the accused was extremely sorry. Accused had, up to this time, borne a good character and had never been in trouble before. Under the circumstances he did not like the idea of sending him to prison, and he would be bound over in the sum of £10 to be of good behaviour for the next twelve months; he would also have to pay the costs of the prosecution, £5. He trusted that that would be a warning to the defendant as long as he lived, and he hoped he realised that he had done a wrong and wicked act, and was sorry for what he had done.

Defendant was then discharged.

Mr R. E. Hall, stationmaster, Hambleton, has been appointed to be stationmaster at Felling.

POTATO PICKERS AND INSURANCE.—In the House of Commons Mr Lane Fox asked the representative of the First Commissioner of Works whether potato pickers employed in subsidiary employments liable for insurance under the National Insurance Act refers solely to those engaged in the harvesting of the crop, or did it include those who picked the potatoes at the pie with a view to storing and afterwards planting them. The term "potato picker" in the special order applies solely to persons engaged in harvesting the crop, and does not include persons who sort potatoes at the pie.

FIGHTING.—At Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday—before Ald. E. E. Brocklesbank and other magistrates—Bertie Baker, labourer, of North Milford, and James Atkinson, labourer, of Ulleskelf, were charged with a breach of the peace by fighting on June 27th.—P.C. Hardy said that on Saturday, June 27th, he was in the main street at Ulleskelf, and he heard a disturbance. On going down the street he saw defendants on the ground, and they were fighting. He reported them and took their names.—Baker said that he was going home quietly when the other man struck him, and Atkinson alleged that Baker was the aggressor. Defendants were ordered to pay the costs and were bound over to keep the peace for six months.

GARDEN PARTY.—Delightful weather favoured the holding of a garden party on Saturday afternoon and evening in the Leeds Maternity Hospital, in the grounds of The Hull, Roundhay. There were many entertainments for the numerous visitors who were present, dancing display was given by pupils from Madame Beaty's school at Harrogate, the dances having been arranged and taught by Miss Vera Robertes. A number of children, picturesquely garbed for the part, gave a pretty little open-air play, which has been given this summer at other similar functions, entitled "The Goblin Market," produced by Mrs Arnold Smith and Miss Manning. Artistes from the Empire Theatre also gave their services. There were many other amusements in the way of shooting competitions, a tennis tournament, and croquet contests, and the band of the Royal Army Medical Corps played during the afternoon.

AN EXCITING ADVENTURE.

After the war had come to a close I was stationed at Indianapolis to assist in mustering out the Indiana troops. It was in the spring of the year, and, as the regiments came in slowly and at long intervals, business was not very driving. I was glad to cast about us for recreation and time-killing expedients. The most famous one at the time was duck-shooting on the White River.

This river is by no means a majestic body of water; on the contrary, it is scarcely more than a creek at ordinary times, running sluggishly on its way to swell the waters of the Wabash through a flat, swampy country, chiefly remarkable for fever and ague. At this time, however, the melting snow from the northern hills and the spring rains had swollen its waters into quite a respectable torrent, and rendered all the fords impassable. Flocks of migrating ducks hovered over and around the swollen, muddy stream in search of food, affording excellent sport to the most inexperienced marksman. Being something of a shot, I naturally thought I might tag a goodly number. So I borrowed a double-barrelled gun of George Rhodius, laid in a supply of "duck" shot and powder, and started for the scene of action.

I engaged a roomy, leaky skiff, and embarked upon the muddy waves, which were sweeping southward in quite a respectable volume of water. Never had I seen the river so high or so swollen before, and after a fairly humble one its muddy current it suddenly occurred to me that there might be some danger in it. This conviction was increased by a ragged little log floating down the bank, and asking me "if I did not wish to hire him to keep the boat afloat."

A flock of ducks suddenly rising, screaming and quacking, from the water distracted my attention, and, with a true sportsman's ardour, I lost every thought but that of the game before me. I rose to my feet and gave both barrels right and left, but never discovered with what execution, for the concussion, and I found myself floundering in the water. The gun went one way and I went the other, but we both found bottom; I was more fortunate than the gun, for I contrived to rise to the surface, again.

It was in no enviable frame of mind that I surveyed the situation. The water, where I had sounded, was at least 8ft. deep, and I was just as much at sea, as if it had been 50ft. I also made the alarming discovery that I could not swim! out of the current, which was rapidly sweeping me away, and I found if I went under once more I should swallow mud enough to sink me.

There is a trite saying that "it is always darkest just before day," and I have proved with me, when I had become nearly exhausted, and had was under water, as the log swayed and rolled and groaned in the turbulent, muddy water, which I remember I thought at the time the dirtiest I ever had the misfortune to behold.

My only hope of reaching land again was in the floating tree into some bend or against some point; but it pertinaciously kept in the middle of the stream, and was sweeping on. Clinging to it, I would endeavour to see if I could touch bottom with my feet, in the vain hope of escaping by wading ashore; but there was no such luck—the river was into deep to wade, and swimming in such a torrent was entirely out of the question.

When I had about given up hope, what I had long feared for took place—a bend in the river landed me by against the bank, and, something if the condition of a mouse which has fallen into a milk pan, I scrambled ashore.

This exploit was witnessed by two farmers at work in a field close by, who, after listening it for some astonishment to an account of my adventure, informed me that I was fifteen miles from Indiana polis, which I considered the longest voyage on a log on record. They kindly extended their hospitality to me, furnished me with a dry suit of clothes while mine was drying by the fire, a good luncheon, and a generous allowance of corn whiskey. After having thus fortified the inner man, I resumed my corn-cob pipe, they "hitched up" their team and drove me back to Indianapolis, where I arrived about ten o'clock at night.

I strolled into the "House of Lords" to see what I could.

"Hollos!" shouted Captain Murphy, "where did you come from?"

"I've been 'duck-hunting,'" I answered.

"Get any ducks?"

"Only one."

"Only one?"

"Yes; but it was a large-sized duck!"

It was too good to keep, and so I had to tell them. They thought it funny. It took me some time to see the point.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR
ENGAGEMENT RINGS, £5 11s. £3 3s. £5 5s. £10 10s. & £100
DIAMONDS
PENDANTS. EARRINGS, SCARF PINS, & JEWELLERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION
from £1 to £100.
SEE OUR WINDOW EXHIBIT.—ALL PRICES MARKED:
DYSONS
24, 25, 26, (Lower) BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
THE LARGEST STOCK IN THE COUNTY, OF GOLD & SILVER WATCHES from 10/6 to 50 GUINEAS EACH
SPECIAL VALUE GUN-METAL LEVERS :—
The "University" 30s. The "Roughwear," 15s. The "Black Prince" 10/6.
WATCHES
OLD WATCHES, JEWELLERY & SILVER TAKEN IN EXCHANGE. VALUATIONS for PROBATE, &c.
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WANSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH,
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE, LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE. Age Limit, 16-60.
Section | Death | Disablement up to 26 weeks | Premiums: One Week | Two Weeks | One Month
A | 500 | Per Week 20/- | 3/- | 5/- | 10/-
B | 250 | 25/- | 1/6 | 2/6 | 5/-
C | 100 | 10/- | 9d. | 1/- | 2/-
These Insurances do not cover Professional or Trade Risks, or obviously dangerous Adventure.
GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION Ltd., PERTH, SCOTLAND.
Assets nearly £1,000,000. Established 1885

Furniture Delivered ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.
T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST., LEEDS.
N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.
NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

TELEPHONE 1877 CENTRAL.
BUCKTON'S CABS OR TAXIS
"We Never Sleep"
END OF CLAYPIT LANE LEEDS TOP OF COOKRIDGE ST.

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

BARKSTON ASH COMPETITION— SATURDAY'S MATCHES.

On Saturday afternoon nine matches will be played in the Senior League. Tadcaster, the leaders of division one, will if all likely have the record spelt by Saxton, South Milford will also expected to defeat Church Fenton Sycamore, and Cawood have an advantage over Church Fenton —Garforth have a stiff hurdle to negotiate at Halton, and Micklefield may not find it altogether plain sailing at Barwick, but Seacroft should easily defeat Preston. Halton Wes. will be expected to succeed at Whitkirk, and Crossgates at Collingham, but Crossgates Wes., unless they pull themselves together, may find Shadwell a stumbling block.

SENIOR LEAGUE—MICKLEFIELD SURPRISED.

On Saturday afternoon a number of good games were played in the Senior League, but the only surprise was the defeat of Micklefield, on their own ground, by the promising Halton combination. This result allows Seacroft, who had a hard fight at Barwick, to assume the leadership of the division, but in the other two divisions Tadcaster and Halton Wes. are still at the head of affairs, and they will be difficult shift.

Tadcaster had a somewhat easy passage at Cawood. The homesters, who are a very erratic team, nearly effected a draw with their opponents at Tadcaster, but on Saturday the Calcarians simply outplayed the homesters, whose innings realized the small score of 31. Baker's bowling seems to have completely upset them, and his record of six wickets for eight runs was a very fine one. Herbert, although not so successful, trundled well, taking four for 19. This pair bowled throughout the innings. This pair bowled throughout the innings. Tadcaster were not long in placing themselves in a position of safety, winning by no fewer than nine wickets. Mason was again on the warpath, and helped himself to 18 (not out), while Harry Todd had to to his credit

Between Saxton and the Church Fenton clubs a healthy rivalry exists, and Church Fenton having secured a win at Saxton, the Sycamore men thought they had a good chance of obtaining the points on Saturday. The Saxtonians, who are deficient in batting power, had the assistance of E. Stoker, and he proved a very useful help, for, although he was missed early on, he put together even in a total of 48. C. Poulter was captured 4 wickets for 22, and E. Poulter had 4 for 23. The Sycamore were not at a great pass, and they had confidence in their ability to win. They were, however, doomed to disappointment, for Richardson and Sissons were practically unplayable, and three wickets were down without a run on the book. C. Poulter and G. H. Ambler strove hard to stop the "rot," but the bowlers maintained the upper hand, and the innings closed for 23—the lowest score made by the club during the eleven years of its existence. Richardson's five wickets cost only ten runs, and Sissons had three for nine.

Church Fenton, at home, went under to South Milford, and, for once in a way, the home bowlers failed to make any impression on their opponents. Fenton scored 51, and Claughton made 11, Thompson 10, and Mosby 10. Of the Milford bowlers E. Atkinson was the best, his five wickets costing a dozen runs, but Chilton did not do badly with four wickets for 18 runs. South Milford won by eight wickets, A. Atkinson making 22 (not out), A. Lindley 13, and E. Atkinson 12.

Micklefield, after their dashing display against Great Preston, were expected to give Halton the order of the knock, especially as the match was on their own ground, but the unexpected happened. The losers, who were fighting to keep on terms with Seacroft, gave a good batting display, a score of 70 being sent up. Stone contributed 22, Smith 13, and Hobson 10. Dankel, who bowled so well for Halton last season, gave a glimpse of his old form, and accounted for five wickets at a cost of 27 runs, while Benson secured two for 9 runs and Sunter 2 for 30. Halton's score was 77, and Benson distinguished himself by making 27, Haigh having 11. Townend had three of their wickets for 14, Smith 4 for 38, and Stone 2 for 19.

Great Preston proved themselves no match for Garforth, but it must be confessed that the winners got something of a fright at the outset, for Prime, the Glovers, Firth, and Wilson were sent back for a modest 25. When Williamson and Morley got to the wicket, however, the bowling was "collared," and they registered 23 and 23 respectively. G. Reed put on 13 (not out), and the innings realized 97. R. Wiggleworth captured three wickets for 18, and J. Green had four for 28. Preston were not allowed to become accustomed to the bowlers, for Garforth tried the quick change method with success, six trundlers doing duty. The losers were dismissed for 49, and T. Wiggleworth had a creditable 16. T. Ballance was the best bowler on the field, securing four wickets for ten, while Morley had 2 for 11, H. Pickersgill 1 for 5, and W. Glover 1 for 10.

Seacroft discovered that points are not so very easily picked up at Barwick, and had the homesters managed to add an additional 20 to their score there's no saying how the match would have gone. Barwick scored 65, of which Wolton had 18, and Dennis Burton claimed six of their wickets for 27, while Stead had two for ten runs. Seacroft made a fairly good start, Burton making 15, Stead and Thompson 10 each, and Todd 5, and then the scoring slackened. The home bowlers stuck grimly to their work, but visitors were unable to accomplish their purpose, and the 'Crofters won by three wickets. Barwick are to be congratulated on their splendid fight against the leaders, who, of course, were expected to win.

Whitkirk are going ahead again. Collingham were their opponents on Saturday, and the match was on the former's ground. The homesters gave a poor batting display, being sent back for 45, and this must be attributed to the fine bowling of Ingle and Pawson, who trundled throughout the innings. Ingle's six wickets cost 16 and Pawson's four were got for 26. Whitkirk would have made an equally weak show had it not been for Arthur Shepherd, who accounted for 22 in a total of 46 for seven wickets. Emmerson trundled well for Collingham, securing five wickets for 16.

Shadwell had the tables turned on them at Crossgates, whom they rather unexpectedly defeated in the first match. The venue was Crossgates, and the homesters, who had first lease of the wicket, batted well for 92. Goodall was once more top scorer with 23, Burnell made 17, Harvey 17 (not out), and Sykes 10. For Shadwell Wilson was the best bowler, capturing 5 wickets for 33, but Heaton was not far behind with five for 45. Shadwell, after Scott 13 had left, offered no resistance to the Crossgates trundling, and they were out for the miserable total of 30. White and Yeates bowled throughout, and claimed 5 for 15 and 4 for 14 respectively.

Crossgates Wes. have struck a bad patch. It was expected they would give Halton Wes. a good game at Old Manston, but their opponents demonstrated their superiority in every department, and inflicted a crushing defeat on the homesters. Halton, who have every chance of figuring in the semi-finals, gave a great batting display, scoring 202 for seven wickets ere they declared their innings at an end. Kilburn and Don Crosthwaite led off with 57 each, O. Bell made 22, C. Batty 19, J. Popplewell 16, and Stephens 14 (not out). Crossgates tried six bowlers, but none of them met with much success. G. Umpleby was the best, and his two wickets cost 56. Crossgates were equally weak in batting, and it is probable that the long spell of leather hunting had a deteriorating influence on the players. They were dismissed for 46 and D. Umpleby contributed no fewer than 20. O. Bell led their wickets for 3 runs, C. Bell 3 for 13, and Batty 3 for 17.

JUNIOR LEAGUE MATCHES.

The results of several Junior League matches, for the second week in succession, were late in coming to hand. In division 1 Ulleskelf and South Milford A had a keen match, and the points went to the former. Ulleskelf made 78, every member of the team scoring, and W. Lindley 14 for 48 was the only bowler to meet with success. Milford were dismissed for 60 (Hill 33), and Potter took 3 wickets for 14, Stronach 2 for 10, and Bean 3 for 21.—Tadcaster A were too good for Brampham. The winners rattled up 61 (Taylor 19 and Nettleton 14), and Brampham were sent back for 36 (Gibbons 13). Nettleton was the best bowler on the field, capturing four wickets for 6, while Smart had 4 for 13.

Aberford made a good show against Seacroft A, but their opponents were too strong for them. Seacroft's score was 152 (Derwick 39, J. Linley 36, E. Linley 16, not out, and Hepworth 13), and Walton captured six wickets for 29. Aberford replied with 96 (Lupton 26 and Walton 27), and W. Linley had 3 wickets for 21, Ball 2 for 6, and Derwick 2 for 19.—Garforth A put an end to any hope that Halton A might have had of figuring in the semi-final. The match was at Halton, and the homesters were dismissed for 43. W. Ballance capturing five wickets for 15, and A. Hewitt 5 for 17. Garforth put on 45 for a loss of two wickets, J. Kilburn scoring 15 (not out), F. Hancock 15, and F. Kilburn 14. —Preston A made 139 (Hutchinson 40, Haddap 20, and H. Wiggleworth 18), and Micklefield A replied with 111 (Goodman 27, Simpson and Mealkin 20, and Townend 19).

Swillington and Colton played Whitkirk A, and the former won easily. They scored 165 for 3 wickets (Southwick 83 and Dobson 39), and Whitkirk's innings closed for 78 (Cuttle 38). —Crossgates A and Garforth Wes., who were on the same rung of the League ladder, had an interesting game, and the points went to the Wesleyans. Crossgates were dismissed for 48 (H. Holliday 21 and H. Linley 13), and H. Ward had five of their wickets for 18, and F. Gent 5 for 23. The Wesleyans lost six wickets in getting 50, and H. Goodall scored 18 (not out), and Ward 10. H. Linley secured 3 wickets for 18, Walker 1 for 5, and Wilkinson 2 for 17. Crossgates Wes. A got a surprise and no mistake. They played Halton Wes. A, who had lost every match they had played, and they were well beaten. Halton made 76 (Sunter 12, Townend 11, and Bulmer 10 not out). Brook captured 3 wickets for 12, H. Brook 2 for 10, and Selman 3 for 29. Crossgates were trundled out for 48 (A. Brook 20), and Palmer had three of their wickets for 11, Townend 2 for 5, and Hemsworth 2 for 6.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Oulton had a rather easy victory over Kippax on Saturday at Oulton, the game being won by 35 runs. The Oultonians, who have as a rule no previous matches, given a good batting display, found the visitors' trundling a little puzzling, and could only knock up a modest 72. J. B. Butterick was the highest contributor to the total with 17, while P. C. Higgins, with 15 to his credit, was using his bat to good purpose when the last man was bowled. A. E. Wright was credited with 13 not out. One of the best men of the side, H. J. Butler, was soon out with only six runs to his name. Only one member of the Kippax eleven (H. Limberty) reached double figures, stopping short at ten. The total score was 42. B. Walker (Oulton) claimed the bowling honours of the match, capturing seven wickets for twenty-six, and W. Hutchinson took 2 for 13. On the Kippax side A. Crippwell secured 5 for 36, and E. Bickerdike 2 for 8.—Oulton A also pulled off a victory over Kippax A, with a majority of eighteen runs, the scores being 72 and 54. W. Miller and R. V. Higgins were the top scorers for Oulton with 19 and 13, while J. Varley, the not out man for Kippax, made 16, and J. Bickerdike knocked up 11. For Oulton J. Brown took 5 wkts. for 29 runs, and R. Whitworth 3 for 19.

Woodlesford received a crushing defeat on their own ground from Cawood Friends. The winners batted first and scored 114 (Lunn 25, Dixon 21, and White 15), and Woodlesford went under for the paltry total of 24, five players failing to get a single. White captured six wickets for 13, and Pickard had four for 9 runs. On the Woodlesford side Brittlebank had four wickets for 2 and Hemer had 3 for 20. —Woodlesford did even worse than the seniors. Outwood A put on 91, and Woodlesford were trundled out for 9. Whitley had four wickets for one run, and Finnigan secured five for 3 runs.

MIDDLETON PARK GOING AHEAD.

Middleton Park maintain their position at the head of affairs in the Yorkshire Central League. On Saturday their opponents were Kirkstall Educational, and the leaders won easily. Scores:—Middleton Park—Sutcliffe 29, Barraclough 2, Foulthorpe 1, Spink 9, Clarkson 36, J. W. Place 30, T. Place 32, Richardson (not out) 34, Brown 1, Ramsden 10, Morris 0, extras 8, total 184. Kirkstall Educational—Ky (not out) 22, Mitchell 0, Barrett 3, Blundell 1, Stones 0, Hodgson 0, Beatty 0, Pearson 6, Lye 2, Kelly 4, Lee 0, extras 7: total 45.

The Rothwell A team journeyed to Altofts on won with sever wickets to spare. The homesters were soon got rid of for 40, F. Stringer with 4 for 16, J. Hobson, 3 for 2, and J. H. Palmer, 1 for 6, bowling with telling effect. Towards the visitors' 41 runs B. Fozzard made 16 and J. Hobson 10.

SHERBURN V. MANSTON P.C.

On Saturday afternoon Manston P.C. played Sherburn, and the former had the better of a drawn game. Manston made 85 (Robson and Whitehead 15 each, and Morris 12), and Sherburn scored 57 for 9 wickets (Oliver 22 and Osborne 18, not out).

WAKEFIELD AND DISTRICT CUP.

Robin Hood are now out of the running for the Wakefield and District Cup. On Saturday afternoon they opposed Snaefill at Robin Hood in the second round, and the visitors won by seven wickets. Batting first, the homesters made 64. At the commencement matters looked fairly bright for the side, and at the fall of the fifth wicket the board registered 58 runs, but the remaining five batsmen followed each other in quick succession, the wickets falling for an additional six runs. P. Wormald made the best stand with 19 to his credit, while W. Bugg and W. Frost made 11 and 10 respectively. Snotfill had no difficulty in gaining the mastery over their opponents, the game being safe with the falling of the third wicket. F. Saunders made a good stand for his 27, and the two not out men, J. W. Moody and H. Goodall, had each fifteen in their favour. For the visitors F. Bell captured four wickets for 31 runs and T. Hodgson 5 for 20.

Carlton came through the round with flying colours, their opponents being Ossett and eleven, and they won by 173 runs. The success of the match must be attributed to the brilliant efforts of four players—E. Fozzard, W. Sykes, S. Lawrence, and L. Brown, who made scores of 31, 31, 28, and 22 respectively. The other 101, 51, 37, and 22 respectively. The other ten batsmen failed to get more than twenty-three among them, while the extras accounted for a further twenty. The visitors gave a fairly good display before the Carthonians trundling, the sum total of their efforts being 81 runs. For Carlton J. Brooke took 4 wickets for 22 runs, J. Illingworth 3 for 23, and W. Brown 2 for 26.

Rothwell were successful at Crigglestone, winning by 36 runs. Towards their total of 98, W. Botford (26), W. Fox (18), H. Lane (12), and E. Moss (10) were the chief contributors. The opposing team could at their best only raise 62, F. Yeadon and H. Inman each securing fifteen, and J. H. Senior 10. Trundling honours went to C. Tiffany (Rothwell), with 4 wickets for 15 runs, and H. Banks and H. Hemsworth (Rothwell) took 3 for 21, and 2 for 7 respectively. For their opponents J. A. Smith captured 4 for 19, E. Sykes 1 for 0, and E. Chaffer 3 for 34.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	7	6	1	0	12
South Milford	7	5	1	1	11
Saxton	7	3	4	0	6
Cawood	7	3	4	0	6
Church Fenton	6	2	4	0	4
Church Fenton Sycamore	7	1	5	0	3

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft	7	6	1	0	12
Micklefield	7	5	2	0	10
Garforth	7	5	2	0	10
Halton	7	3	3	0	8
Barwick	7	1	5	0	2
Great Preston	7	0	7	0	0

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	7	6	1	0	12
Shadwell	7	4	3	0	8
Crossgates	7	4	3	0	8
Whitkirk	7	3	4	0	6
Crossgates Wesleyans	7	3	4	0	6
Collingham	7	0	7	0	0

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Ulleskelf	8	6	2	0	12
Tadcaster A	8	6	2	0	12
Kirk Deighton	7	4	3	0	8
South Milford A	8	4	4	0	8
Bramham	8	3	5	0	6
Sherburn W.R.	6	3	4	0	4
Barkston Ash	7	1	6	0	2

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft A	8	7	1	0	14
Garforth A.	8	7	1	0	14
Halton A	8	5	3	0	10
Great Preston A.	8	3	5	0	6
Aberford	7	2	6	0	4
Micklefield A.	8	2	6	0	4
Barwick	7	1	6	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wes.	7	5	2	0	10
Swillington and Colton	7	5	2	0	10
Crossgates Wes. A.	7	4	3	0	8
Crossgates A.	7	4	3	0	8
Whitkirk A.	7	2	5	0	4
Halton Wes. A	7	1	6	0	2

Result of Barkston v. Sherburn match not to hand.

E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

SENIOR LEAGUE

Cawood v. Church Fenton. Messrs E. Smith (Ulleskelf) and H. Bell (Saxton).
Tadcaster v. Saxton. Messrs T. Poulter (Church Fenton) and J. Lupton (South Milford).
South Milford v. Church Fenton Sycamore. Messrs T. Crosland (Micklefield) and W. Turner (Todcaster).
Barwick v. Micklefield. Messrs F. Pickersgill (Seacroft) and S. H. Keeble (Crossgates Wesleyans).
Halton v. Garforth. Messrs A. Burton (Seacroft) and H. Johnson (Crossgates).
Seacroft v. Great Preston. Messrs C. Atack (Micklefield) and C. Plews (Halton Wesleyans).
Collingham v. Crossgates. Messrs H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton) and H. Irish (Wetherby).
Whitkirk v. Halton Wesleyans. Messrs. A. Thompson (Great Preston) and J. L. Kitching (Leeds).
Shadwell v. Crossgates Wesleyans. Messrs H. Jackson (Leeds) and T. Blackburn (Great Preston).

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Bramham v. Kirk Deighton. Messrs. J. D. Snow (Wetherby) and W. Crosland (Barwick).
Ulleskelf v. Tadcaster A. Messrs C. Thornton (Barkston Ash) and G. Westerman (Sherburn).
Sherburn White Rose v. South Milford A. Messrs H. Watson (Barkston Ash) and R. Firn (Cawood).
Great Preston A v. Seacroft A. Messrs A. Gascoigne (Kippax) and E. Levitt (Swillington and Colton).
Garforth A v. Aberford. Messrs J. Limbert (Micklefield) and T. Mathers (Great Preston).
Micklefield A v. Barwick A. Messrs A. Baile, (Garforth) and A. Birch (Garforth).
Crossgates A v. Swillington and Colton. Messrs H. Ward (Great Preston) and G. Fox (Bramham).
Halton Wesleyans A v. Whitkirk A. Messrs T. P. Spivey (Crossgates) and J. Fox (Swillington and Colton).
Crossgates Wesleyans A v. Garforth Wesleyans. Messrs. Johnson (Seacroft) and W. Nicholson (Halton).

BARKSTON ASH SENIOR LEAGUE.

MICKLEFIELD V. HALTON.—At Micklefield. Scores :—

Halton—S. Haigh, c Wallis, b Stone, 11; E. Daniel, c Lunn, b Smith, 8; Sunter, run out, 7; W. Smides, b Townend, 7; H. Taylor, c Taylor, b Townend, 0; W. Benson, b A. Smith, 27; F. Heage, b Townend, 2; N. Ball, b Stone, 7; R. M. Shaw, b Smith, 0; Booth, b Smith, 1; T. Nicholson, not out, 1; extras, 6; total, 77.

Micklefield—Wallis, b Sunter, 1; Tomkinson, run out, 2; Smith, b Sunter, 13; E. A. Stone, c Ball, b Benson, 22; F. Hobson, b Benson, 10; J. H. Townend, b Daniel, 3; A. Godber, b Daniel, 1; S. Taylor, not out, 5; Lunn, c Haigh, b Daniel, 2; Hardwick, b Daniel, 5; Walton, b Daniel, 2; extras, 4; total, 70.

COLLINGHAM AND LINTON V. WHITKIRK—At Collingham. Scores :—

Collingham and Linton—R C Gibson, b Ingle, 1; H. Twidale, c Romford, b Pawson, 5; R. Smithson, b Ingle, 0; G. Ferrier, b Pawson, 4; J. E. Smith, b Ingle, 4; W. Emmerson, c Milford, b Ingle, 8; A. Newsome, c Loveday, b Pawson, 0; W. Townend, not out, 7; A. W. Stokes, c and b Ingle, 0; M. Dalby, b Pawson, 0; H. Whitehead, c Milford, b Ingle, 0; extras, 3; total, 45.

Whitkirk—A. R. Milford, c Newsome, b Emmerson, 2; A. Shepherd, c Dalby, b Emmerson, 22; G. Cuttle, b Ferrier, 2; J. Shepherd, b Emmerson, 8; R. J. Moss, b Emmerson, 1; W. E. Taylor, not out, 3; E. Ingle, b Emmerson, 0; F. Loveday, b Smith, 0; W. L. Moss, not out, 1; extras, 7; total (for 7 wkts.), 46.

GARFORTH V. GREAT PRESTON—At Garforth. Scores :—

Garforth—S. Glover, c H. Wiggleworth, b R. Wiggleworth, 2; H. Prime, b J. Green, 7; W. Glover, b R. Wiggleworth, 5; A. Firth, b T. Wiggleworth, 9; J. Wilson, b R. Wiggleworth, 2; H. Williamson, run out, 22; H. Morley, c Cooper, b Watson, 23; H. Gascoigne, b Green, 8; T. Ballance, b Green, 0; G. Reed, not out, 13; H. Pickersgill, c Watson, b Green, 0; extras, 5; total, 97.

Great Preston—H. Watson, lbw, b W. Glover, 3; F. Whatley, b Ballance, 1; T. Wiggleworth, run out, 16; R. Wiggleworth, b Ballance, 0; G. Varley, c S. Glover, b Pickersgill, 8; A. Thompson, b Morley, 8; H. Wiggleworth, run out, 3; P. Firth, b Ballance, 2; J. Cooper, c Pickersgill, b Morley, 1; J. Green, b Ballance, 3; C. Thompson, not out, 1; extras, 3; total, 49.

CHURCH FENTON V. SOUTH MILFORD—At Church Fenton. Scores :—

Church Fenton—W. Dixon, b Lindley, 0; A. Foxton, b E. Atkinson, 2; J. A. Thompson, c and b E. Atkinson, 10; W. Mosby, b E. Atkinson, 10; A. Claughton, b H. Chilton, 5; H. Keates, c Sutton, b E. Atkinson, 3; T. Atha, b H. Chilton, 2; W. Claughton, b E. Atkinson, 11; W. D. Foxton, not out, 0; F Jackson, c and b H. Chilton, 3; Bullock, st R. Sutton, b Chilton, 0; extras, 5; total, 51.

South Milford—A. Atkinson, not out, 22; E. Atkinson, b Dixon, 12; A. Lindley, c Jackson, b A. Claughton, 13; N. Stainburn, not out, 4; extra, 1; total (for 2 wkts.), 52.

CAWOOD V. TADCASTER—At Cawood. Scores : Cawood—C. O. Lund, b Baker, 11; J. Ward, b Baker, 0; S. Lund, b Baker, 4; H. Dobson, b Herbert, 4; G. Stockdale, b Baker, 0; W. Barker, b Baker, 3; H. Lund, b Herbert, 0; C. Jackson, b Herbert, 0; F. Thompson, b Baker, 1; J. Turner, c Grimston, b Herbert, 2; F. Ward, not out, 0; extras, 4; total, 31.

Tadcaster—H. Todd, b C. Lund, 10; J. F. Mason, not out, 18; E. W. Pritchard, not out, 3; extras, 3; total (for 1 wkt.), 34.

CROSSGATES V. SHADWELL—At Crossgates. Scores :—

Crossgates—Burnell, c Freeman, b Wilson, 17; Spivey, b Heaton, 10; Spivey, b Wilson, 3; Goodall, c and b Wilson, 23; White, b Wilson, 5; Craven, b Heaton, 2; Fairclough, st Burnett, b Heaton, 8; J. Brookes, b Heaton, 0; Harvey, not out, 17; Wilson, c Flint, b Heaton, 1; Yeates, c and b Heaton, 4; extras, 2; total, 92.

Shadwell—Scott, c White, b Yeates, 13; Heaton, c Wilson, b White, 2; Metcalf, b Yeates, 0; Freeman, b White, 5; Burnett, c Harvey, b Yeates, 0; Bramley, c Harvey, b White, 0; Flint, not out, 6; Wilson, run out, 0; Wetherall, b White, 1; Mawson, b Yeates, 1; Taylor, b Yeates, 1; extra, 1; total, 30.

CROSSGATES WES. V. HALTON WES.—At Old Manston. Scores :—

Halton Wes.—C. Kilburn, c Binns, b Ella, 57; J. Popplewell, b Clough, 16; J. Ryder, b Scott, 8; Bennett, b Crosthwaite, lbw, b Umpleby, 57; Murtland, b Thompson, 1; C. Batty, c Webster, b Umpleby, 19; O. Bell, c Thompson, b Brooks, 22; Stephens, not out, 14; Powell, not out, 6; extras, 9; total (for 7 wkts.), 202.

Crossgates Wes.—C. Brook, c C. Bell, b Batty, 0; D. Umpleby, lbw, b C. Bell, 20; G. Umpleby, b Batty, 4; E. Webster, b Batty, 0; P. C. Clough, b C. Bell, 0; Ella, b Batty, 0; E. Clough, c Kilburn, b C. Bell, 5; E. Mills, not out, 4; A. Beaumont, lbw, b O. Bell, 11; W. Thompson, b O. Bell, 2; C. Ellis, st Stephens, b O. Bell, 0; extras, 1; total, 46.

SEACROFT V. BARWICK.—At Barwick. Scores : Barwick—F. Lumb, b G. Stead, 8; W. Hartley, b D. Burton, 2; B. Robshaw, c and b Burton, 0; H. Walton, b Burton, 0; G. Brown, lbw, b Stead, 4; D. Childe, at Atack, b Burton, 0; J. Pollard, st Atack, b T. Toft, 8; J. Robshaw, b Burton, 0; B. Bell, c Ellis, st Stephens, b Burton, 0; W. Lovett, not out, 11; V. Robshaw, c H. Toft, b C. Johnson, 3; extras, 9; total, 65.

Seacroft—D. Burton, c and b Hartley, 15; T. Toft, b Bowes, 5; G. Stead, b Hartley, 10; G. Thompson, c Pollard, b B. Robshaw, 10; Atack, run out, 2; C. Johnson, b Hartley, 7; E. Johnson, not out, 4; H. Toft, c and b Hartley, 3; J. W. Pickersgill, not out, 6; extras, 6; total (for 7 wkts.), 68.

CHURCH FENTON SYCAMORE V. SAXTON—At Church Fenton. Scores :—

Saxton—E. Stoker, c Foxton, b E. Poulter, 11; J. Firn, b C. Poulter, 7; T. Richardson, b C. Poulter, 0; J. Firn, b C. Poulter, 0; Sissons, run out, 4; B. Firn, b E. Poulter, 7; Parker, b E. Poulter, 2; J. Marshall, not out, 8; Howdsley, c and b C. Poulter, 0; W. Lawn, b C. Poulter, 5; J. Thirkill, absent, 0; extras, 3; total, 48.

Church Fenton Syc.—A. Moore, b Richardson, 0; Ath. Poulter, run out, 0; J. Harrison, b Richardson, 0; C. Poulter, b Richardson, 7; G. Ambler, b Richardson, 3; C. Whittingham, b Richardson, 0; Geo. H. Ambler, b Sissons, 7; A. Poulter, lbw, b Sissons, 2; A. Holt, c W. Firn, b Richardson, 11; D. Blackburn, run out, 0; E. Poulter, not out, 0; extras, 2; total, 22.

Mr Fred Horne's brother (Rev. C. Silvester Horne), who was not unknown in Barkston Ash, left £8,450.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

SOUTH MILFORD A. V. ULLESKELF—At South Milford. Scores :—Ulleskelf—Potter 9, Bean 9, Wood 3, Stronach 6, Sykes 7, Locy 8, Smith 8, Hall 9, Varey 10, Tresham 2, Wilkinson (not out) 2, extras, 5; total, 78. South Milford A.—Blewitt 2, Hey 0, Crawford 7, Wire 0, Atkinson (not out) 4, Lindley 1, Hill 33, Stainburn 0, W. Lindley 1, Terry (not out) 2, extras 3; total, 60.

TADCASTER A. V. BRAMHAM—At Tadcaster. Scores :—Tadcaster—H. Chatfield 2, A. Smart 5, Shearsmith 10, J. T. Kettlewell 4, E. Nettleton 14, A. Taylor 19, H. Taylor 4, W. Iredale 1, G. Turner 0, J. Taylor 1, G. Iredale (not out) 0, extra, 1; total, 61. Bramham—T. Gibbons 12, J. Cass 3, G. Shaw 2, A. Stockdale 3, J. Dawson 4, G. Eastwood 2, G. Brown 4, J. Bullock 3, H. Shaw 0, T. Kerridge (not out) 3, T. Hebbron 0, total, 36.

SEACROFT A. V. ABERFORD—At Seacroft. Scores :—Seacroft—J. W. Smith 11, Derwick 19, Tresham 3, Wilkinson (not out) 2, extras, 1; total, 61. Aberford—A. Lupton 26, A. Stringer 1, A. Nutton 1, J. Inman 7, F. Nutton 27, G. Connell 3, J. Scott 2, J. Connell 9, J. Addy 0, A Pratt 9, T. W. Linley (not out) 1, extras, 8; total, 96.

HALTON A. V. GARFORTH A.—At Halton. Scores :—Halton A.—J. Longden 1, N. Sunter 5, J. Guest 0, H. Guest 5; H. Dobson 2, H. H. Haigh 7, F. Nicholson 5, E. Weatherill 0, W. Brazil (not out) 4, S. Clarke 1, L. Todd 6, extras, 2; total, 45. Garforth A.—F. Kilburn 14, F. Hancock 15, J. Kilburn (not out) 15, W. Browning (not out) 1; total (for 2 wkts.), 45.

GARFORTH WES. V. CROSSGATES A.—At Garforth. Scores :—Crossgates A.—W. Wilkinson 18, Linley 13, H. Linley 11, H. Ward 0, T. Hague 2, H. Curtis 1, W. Glover 1, W. Turner, 0, W. H. Smith 3, T. Walker 0, A. Brook 0, not out 0; total, 48. Garforth Wes.—F. Gent 0; H. Ward 10, C. Bilton 8, J. Bulmer 0, A. Hewitt 0, H. Goodall (not out) 18, F. Goodall 3, J. Sherry (not out) 1; extras, 4; total (for 6 wkts.), 50.

HALTON WES. A. V. CROSSGATES WES. A.—At Halton. Scores :—Halton A.—J. Hemsworth 3, W. A. Taylor 1, A. Baron 1, S. Clarke 1, S. Sunter 11, H. Sunter 0, total, 48. Palmer 11, Allerby 9, A. W. Taylor 5, L. Townend 11, E. Bulmer (not out) 10, extras, 13; total,76. Crossgates Wes. A.—C. Baildiff 2, H. Brook 0, F. Mills 1, A. Brook 20, E. Hewitt 5, H. Rodgers 6, J. Selman 4, E C White 1, E. Walker (not out) 4, G. Broadbent 1; extras, 4; total, 48.

GREAT PRESTON A. V. MICKLEFIELD A.—At Great Preston. Scores :—Great Preston A.—E. Colley 1, H. Wiggleworth 18, H. Haddaway 20, Hy. Lilley 9, F. Hutchinson 40, W. Thompson 11, Colley 0, Whatley 1, Lilley 1, E. Swales 6, W. Howson (not out) 1, H. Firth 2, extras, 12; total, 130. Micklefield A.—T. Longdon 4, J. Mealkin 21, H. Glover 11, Limbert 1, W. Kilburn 2, T. Walton 2, L. Mealkin 20, W. L. Townend 19, A. Moakes 8, J. Goodman 4, C. Ragan (not out) 0, extras, 6; total, 111.

WHITKIRK A. V. SWILLINGTON AND COLTON—At Whitkirk. Scores :—Swillington and Colton—A. Dobson 39, J. F. Southwick 83, E. Gascoigne 1, G. Farndale (not out) 25, F. Wright (not out) 0, extras, 17; total (for 3 wkts.), 165. Innings declared. Whitkirk A.—H. Stott 3, L. Firth 1, W. Cuttle 38, H. Nowell 5, W. Pogson 5, G. Nowell 3, W. E. White 0, E. Mackay (not out) 6, S. Woodward 12, R. H. Bruce 0, extras, 4, total, 78.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT CRICKET LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood	10	7	2	1	15
Oulton	10	6	3	1	13
Carlton	8	4	2	2	10
Altofts	8	4	3	1	9
Kippax	8	4	3	1	9
Robin Hood	8	3	3	2	8
Rothwell	7	3	4	0	6
Stanley	7	3	4	0	6
Woodlesford	9	1	8	0	2

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood	9	8	1	0	16
Carlton	7	5	2	0	10
Rothwell	7	4	2	1	9
Stanley	7	4	2	1	9
Woodlesford	7	4	5	0	8
Kippax	9	3	5	1	7
Altofts Wesleyan	7	3	4	0	6
Oulton	7	2	5	0	4
Robin Hood	7	1	6	0	2

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

Altofts v. Rothwell. Messrs Tate and Lumb.
Stanley v. Carlton. Messrs Tattersall and Fox.
Outwood v. Robin Hood. Messrs Newton and Pawson.
Kippax v. Woodlesford. Messrs Morley and Holden.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

OULTON V. KIPPAX—At Oulton. Scores :—

Oulton—W. J. Butler, lbw, b Alb. Crippwell, 6; W. Haygarth, c and b Alb. Crippwell, 2; J. B. Butterick, c Bickerdike, b Cripwell, 17; A. E. Wright c Lloyd, b Cripwell, 10; W. Hutchinson, b A. Crippwell, 2; Cliff Higgins, b Bickerdike, 13; P. C. Higgins, b Bickerdike, 15; J. Brown, b Bickerdike, 0; J. Bickerdike, not out, 11; extras, 4; total, 72.

Kippax—S. Edwards, c R. Higgins, b Walker, 0; W. Lloyd, c H. Higgins, b Hutchinson, 0; E. Bickerdike, c R. Higgins, b Walker, 5; A. Cripwell, b Walker, 4; E. Bickerdike, b Walker, 2; G. Plows, c Cliff Higgins, b Hutchinson, 13; S. Booth, b Walker, 0; H. Limbert, b Walker, 10; L. Veitch, b Hutchinson, 0; Alb. Crippwell, b Walker, 6; S. Smart, not out, 7; extras, 3; total, 42.

OUTWOOD FRIENDS V. WOODLESFORD—At Woodlesford. Scores :—

Outwood—H. Dixon, c Denison, b Hamer, 21; W. Pickard, c W. Glover, b Hamer, 0; J. W. Lunn, c Harrison, b Brittlebank, 25; D. White, c Wilkinson, b Brittlebank, 15; J. Jones, c Baxter, b Brittlebank, 0; Bentley, c Denison, b Evans, 1; A. Hargreaves, c Harrison, b Hitchen, 9; P. Carr, c Hitchen, b Brittlebank, 0; E. Pickard, c and b Wilkinson, 7; J. Woolley, c R. Hoyland, b Hamer, 15; extras, 9; total, 114.

Woodlesford—W. Harrison, b White, 7; A. Brittlebank, c and b Pickard, 2; E. Baxter, c Thompson, White, 7; E. Dobson, b Pickard, 0; H. Bennett, b Pickard, 0; Wilkinson, b White, 0; J. Hamer, not out, 1; A. Evans, b Pickard, 0; E. Hitchen, b White, 4; V. Williams, b White, 0; A. Denison, b White, 0; extras, 2; total, 24.

OUTWOOD FRIENDS A. V. WOODLESFORD A.—At Outwood. Scores :—Outw

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

LOVE'S CROSS ROADS.

By MRS. L. T. MEADE

Author of "The Orchid Room," "The Medicine Lady," "From the Hand of the Hunter," "His Masool," "Little Wife Hester," &c.

CHAPTER XXV.

Whether Thomas Oswald would have yielded to sempion or not can never be known, for the simple reason that Silas Luke had got inside the grounds of Comop Grange, and Silas Luke was now Thomas Oswald's worst enemy.

Silas wandered slowly with that soft, sweet sense of being forgiven under the overhanging trees. Presently, he came to the exact spot where he had met the sweet young lady yesterday. It seemed to him that he could see the mark of his own dirty figure as it lay on the soft green sward. Well, he was clean now. He would not contaminate the young grass and the sweet growing things. He took off his hat, he pushed back his hair, and looked into the water. He said to himself:

"I am good, and it's splendid to be good; it's worth miles more than a couple of pounds a week. It's worth more than all the money in the universe. I wonder when she will come. I'll tell her I'll put her on her guard. Maybe, they'll think it right to lock me up, but I don't mind—I don't mind what happens to me now. It is so nice to feel clean and good."

Meanwhile, Pamela, who, little guessing that her dear favoured tramp, Silas, was waiting for her, went into the house. She retired to her own room, where for some time she cried very bitterly. Then Peter came up and tapped at the door. She said, "Come in," and he entered.

"Pamela, my little darling! This must not go on, it really mustn't. You are looking perfectly ghastly. You must come out with me; you must, my dear one. We'll just go for a walk by ourselves. You know that my father would not do what he did without good reason."

"You don't! And I love him, but I can't understand," said poor Pamela. "I do so hate hurting anyone, particularly a solitary, broken-down creature like Silas."

"Oh, at any rate, come for a walk, dearest. We can talk just as well out in the open air as here."

Pamela agreed, and they presently went out through one of the open doors into the lovely sunlit landscape. The soft breeze blew on their glowing cheeks. Pamela was all in white. She took up a white parasol in the hall and held it over her head. Her dark hair was somewhat tumbled, for she had ruffled it in her excess of grief. Her cheeks were flushed, owing to the tears she had shed, but the cool breeze quickly brought them back to their normal condition, and the redness round her eyelids softened until it disappeared. She leant against Peter, and looked up at him, smiling as she did so.

"I am glad you are with me, Peter. I am glad you are so strong—that you are taller than I am—that I shall always be able to look to you to lean against, to love, to be happy with——"

"I say, Pamela!" The young man stopped abruptly. He pointed in a certain direction. "How did he get in, Pam?"

Pamela glanced quickly a step or two away from Peter. The tramp was coming to meet them.

"Pamela, ought we to speak to him?"

"Peter, he is in the grounds, I must speak to him; I will. Oh, this is a great relief. I will tell him that he is to go, and then we will always be kind to him, and that he will hear from us by-and-bye. Oh, that is a great relief. Let us go at once and talk to the poor fellow."

"I will go up to the house, if you like, Pamela, and bring those clothes."

"Will you, darling? Oh, thank you so much. Be as quick as you can, Peter. I'm so much. Be as quick as you can, Peter. I'm so sick of you and all for you."

Paul, busily engaged writing his letters in the study, little knew what was taking place. Pamela was alone with the tramp. Silas looked at her. Suddenly, he went on his knees.

"Be up for our lessons?" he said.

"Yes, Silas; there is no one near."

"I've been awaiting for you. I am glad so you are come."

"Silas," said the girl, bending forward, "what is the matter with you? You look better to-day."

"I am clean—that is it," was his reply.

"Clean?" said Pamela. "Clean? Why, yes, you certainly are clean."

"In more senses nor one," remarked Silas. "May I talk to you, lady? May I speak out what is in my heart?"

"You may, but you must be quick. My father—oh, he doesn't wish you to come here, and I was very much afraid they'd prevent you coming at the lodge, but now you are here I can talk to you. I wish to say, before you say anything to me, that I shall always be your friend, and if you want money I will give you some; but, what is far better than money, my dear Peter and I will teach you to earn it for yourself. You know, Silas, to earn it for yourself. You know, Silas, Peter and I are going to be married very soon. Oh, we are so happy! We are to be husband and wife, and I shall be his happy wife in two years' time. But I'm not goin' to do it; and it was 'cos' o' you, missie—'cos' you're in danger, missie. But I'll tell you what. You be in danger, missie, if you take the money and do the thing that I am going to tell you. You be in danger, missie, if you go to the house of your own you shall have a little tiny house of your own you shall have a little tiny house of your own to live in, and you will get good wages. Then you will be able to dress yourself, and clothe yourself properly, and you will be happy—for those who are befriended by the people who love them must be happy. for they are close to those people."

"Silas," said Silas; "you——"

"Oh, missie, missie!" said Silas; "you are too, too unmerciful. But you won't do it, missie; you couldn't!"

"You will see if I can't do it. I have made up my mind to do it," said the girl. "And up my mind to do it," said the girl. "And now tell me what has changed you, and why you look happier to-day!"

"Because I am clean. Yesterday I was—eh! dirty in body and black dirty in soul, and I had made up my mind to do a deed, wicked, terrible, awful. But I'm not goin' to do it; and it was 'cos' o' you, missie—'cos' you're in danger, missie. But I'll tell you what you be—that I couldn't do it. No; I'll tell yer what. You be in danger, missie, if you were bribed to come here and do the thing that I must not do now. Oh, the man what bribed me knows as I won't do it no more. He'll get someone else. I can't tell you his name, for that I've promised not to; but, missie, you and Mr. Peter—you must go 'way from here—far, far away, 'cause when I was bribed to do was to take the life from you, missie, or the life from him, so that you might never, never marry the one with the other. Now you know. No wonder you're white. Come 'long here, sir; come 'long! The young lady's took bad. Come 'long, sir, quick, quick!"

Silas stood up and raised his voice. Peter, who was coming leisurely across the lawn, began to run. He had a parcel of clothes in his hand. He flung them on the grass and rushed up to Pamela.

"My darling! My treasure! What is it?"

"It's 'cause o' me, sir. I had to tell her I had to warn her. I am—thank Heaven I'm saved in time. It were 'cause of her, sir, as I be so much beautiful, and too—too good because she's too beautiful, and too—too good—better than anybody I've ever come across, so I couldn't do it, and I told him as wanted me to do it that I could not do it, and I'll tell you. You be's a bad 'un, and he won't leave a stone unturned—he don't want you and missie to marry, and he won't leave a stone unturned."

"Oh, Peter, Peter!" said Pamela, looking up now, and stretching out her hands with an imploring gesture to her lover. "Oh! Peter, this poor, miserable man—he must be mad, I think. He says that he has been bribed to kill either you or me!"

"No, I ain't mad," said Silas. "There are folks in the world mad from wickedness, and I were, maybe, mad with hunger and misery and wickedness too—till I met you, sweet, cautiful angel. But I were bribed to do it. were to be a pund a week for all my natural life when once you—you or me, I could choose which—were out of the way."

"But this is awful—perfectly awful!" said Peter. "You come calmly here and tell us that someone has bribed you to kill either this young lady or me!"

"That is it, sir; that is it. I ain't the one, I will say good-bye now. If you want me, I'll leave my soul—you, who I meant to kill. Heaven bless you! Heaven bless you!"

He stumbled to his feet. Tears, almost unknown to them, were warm and sin-defiled eyes, rose now and splashed down on to the girl's little hand. He caught it frantically in his.

"Oh, Heaven bless yer!" he said. Then, before either Peter or Pamela could utter a word, he had turned away from them. The clothes which were to have been given to him lay forgotten on the path. Neither the young people nor the tramp thought about them at that moment.

(To be concluded).

SHORT STORY.

A TERRIBLE FATE.

People often wondered why it was that Cyril Bretherton had never married. He was handsome, rich, of good social position—possessing all that could most commend him to enterprising mammas with ambitious daughters.

Yet at the age of forty he still remained a bachelor, and evinced no desire to change his solitary condition. It was reserved for me, his most intimate friend, to learn from his own lips that sad story which has cast a sombre tint over his life, changing him from a gay, debonair young fellow into a silent, almost morose man. He and I were sitting smoking, one night after dinner, in his luxuriously furnished "den"—half literary, half picture shop, for Bretherton was passionately fond of painting.

"Pearson, old chap," he said suddenly, after a prolonged silence, "are you prepared to listen to a yarn to-night? One that I have never brought myself to tell to anyone before."

"I should like it above all things, and I promise to respect your confidence," I answered, eagerly.

"So long as I live—I do not desire the promise to extend further," said Cyril, moodily. And as he said this I noticed that his dark hair was beginning to show a few silver threads, although the story should longer remain secret.

There was a minute's silence, then Cyril continued:

"I know that my choosing to remain a bachelor has puzzled a good many people, you amongst the number, old fellow. Well, when you have heard my tale I think you will no longer wonder." He lit another cigar, and, between the puffs, resumed:

"You are aware that when I left Oxford I decided to go abroad and study art. I had plenty of money and no home ties, so could go where fancy led me. Though nearly twenty-four, I had never been seriously in love until I met Esmé Carolus. She, too, was a student at the same atelier, and it was there we became acquainted. Her beauty—her goodness— But stay, I will not attempt to describe her. Let me shew you her portrait."

Bretherton rose up and unlocked a cabinet, from which he drew a carefully covered picture. "I cannot bear that any casual eyes should gaze upon her face," he said, in a low voice, as he removed the wrappings. I saw an exquisitely executed water-colour sketch—Bretherton's work, I knew—of a girl's head. Soft tendrils of bronze hair caressed the low, broad forehead, and the glorious dark eyes seemed to look into one's very soul. The face was young, almost childish, and its innocent, appealing expression was very charming.

"Do you wonder that I loved her?" Bretherton asked, as he put the picture down and turned towards the fire.

"Like me, Esmé was practically alone in the world," he resumed, presently. "She was under the guardianship of a half-cousin, who held her small fortune in trust for her until she came of age, in some two years' time.

"There was no love lost between M. Gripois and myself. I always fancied that Esmé was afraid of him. There was certainly something repellent about his sallow face and sinister eyes. I never knew how Monsieur earned his living, but I had a strong suspicion that he existed chiefly on the I terest, if not the capital, of Esmé's dowry. However, I would see her rights settled when we were married.

"I was forgetting this event over in a hurry, but Gripois would not give his consent while she remained under his control. We must have been engaged some six months when I made a rather alarming discovery about Esmé. One day she was absent from the atelier, and I called to inquire about her at their landlord's apartments. The old female who 'did' for them answered my knock. Esmé was unwell; she could not see me, and the ancient dragon was about to close the door in my face.

"'At least she will send me a message,' I persisted, casually displaying a five-franc piece. 'But perhaps I can see Monsieur.' She hesitated. But the money decided her, and presently Monsieur appeared, dirty and dilapidated as to the clothes, and greasy as to the mouth.

"He was unwilling for a moment, then beckoned me mysteriously into the little salon.

"'You shall see Esmé,' he said, 'but she will not recognise you.'

"'Surely she is not so ill!' I exclaimed, alarmed.

"Without answering, he pushed open a door, and I saw that Esmé had an unfortunate habit of biting unspeakable torture, poor child! do you bring unspeakable torture, poor child! do you bring unspeakable torture, poor child! do you bring

A ROTHWELL LADY'S MARRIAGE.

A CEREMONY IN CALIFORNIA.

The wedding was solemnized on Sunday morning, June 14th, in Sierraville, California, at the pretty country home of the bridegroom, of Joseph Herbert Broyles and Annie Elizabeth Newby, by Justice of Peace Fritz Ohland. The bride is the fourth daughter of Mr. William Tiffany, of Rothwell, England, and a native of that place. Mr Broyles is a native of California, U.S.A. The bride went to Winnepeg, Canada, during June, 1913, where she became acquainted with the bridegroom, and after twelve months in Canada she went to California in June, 1914. The bridegroom's eldest daughter and son-in-law, Mrs and Mr H. L. Blatchley, acted as bridesmaid and best man. The bride's dress was of blue cashmere, and a blouse of white shadow lace, and she carried a pretty bouquet. The bridesmaid wore a gown of white lansdown and shadow-lace, and carried a bouquet of white flowers.

As the wedding march was played by Miss Mary H. Blatchley, the bridal party entered the parlour, where the nuptial knot was tied. The room was very prettily decorated with green and white ribbons, and flowers to match. After the ceremony, a lunch was served to the guests by Miss Lottie Broyles, Misses Mary and Irma Blatchley, and Mrs Julia Wiltse, who wore hand embroidered dresses of pink crepe. The bridegroom presented the bride with a ring of pearls and sapphires, and the bride gave the bridegroom a gold tie pin and tie set of gold stones.

Many beautiful gifts were received, among them being:—Wedding cake and too piece dinner set, Mr and Mrs H. L. Blatchley; bride's-cake, Miss Broyles; six silver teaspoons, Miss Nellie Broyles; six silver knives and forks, Miss Echo Broyles; silver thimble, Herbert and Donald Broyles; hand-embroidered bed-spread, Mr and Mrs Wm. Flockton, of Canada; ribbon holder, Rena Flockton, of Canada; glass lemonade set, tea set, and berry set, Mr and Mrs Bert Miller and family; bed-spread, Mr and Mrs L. L. Blatchley and family; two linen guest towels, Misses Knox and Thompson (Canada); set embroidered pillow cases, Mr and Mrs Roy Hull (Canada); cut-glass sugar bowl, Mrs Sherrin (Canada); six dessert knives, Mrs F. Johnson (Canada); pearl butter knife, Mrs H. Johnson (Canada); pair linen sheets, Mr and Mrs Wilson (Canada); linen table cloth, Mr and Mrs Wright (Canada); carving set, Mr and Mrs Heavens (Canada); 12 linen serviettes, Miss Radcliffe (Canada); glass tea set, Mr and Mrs R. E. Yarrington; linen tablecloth, Mr and Mrs W. Nicholson; canary bird, Mr and Mrs F. Wiltse.

SHERBURN PETTY SESSIONS.

KIPPAX AND SOUTH MILFORD CASES.

At Sherburn Petty Sessions yesterday the magistrates present were the Rev. B. Hemsworth (Chairman) and Mr Wm. Crosland.

Applications for one hour's extension were made by N. Copley, Queen's Inn; Alfred Johnson, White Swan Hotel; Ada D. Gibson, Black Bull Inn, South Milford, on the occasion of South Milford Feast and Sports, and they were granted.

C. Dixon, Red Bear Hotel; P. Townend, Oddfellows' Arms; J. Simpson, White Swan Inn, and C. E. Wilstrop, New Inn, were granted an hour's extension for Sherburn Feast and Show.

J. H. Poulter, White Horse Inn, and F. Grayson, Junction Hotel, Church Fenton, were granted an hour's extension for Church Fenton Sports.

John Wood, labourer, South Milford, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 27th ult. at South Milford. Defendant pleaded guilty. Fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

Edward Appleyard, labourer, Sherburn, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 27th in Kirkgate, Sherburn. Fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

Mary Brown, married, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 27th ult. at Kirkgate, Sherburn. Defendant did not appear. Fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

Harry Clabby, labourer, Sherburn, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 27th ult. in High Street, Sherburn. Defendant did not appear, and he was fined 5s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. costs.

John Mosby, miner, Kippax, was charged with stealing a pick blade, the property of John Taylor, miner, of Leeds, on the 25th ult. The complainant stated he went to the pit office at Micklefield for his pick, and it was not there. He afterwards found defendant using it. He asked him for it, and he replied "I don't know whose it is. Someone took my pick, so I took this." He then gave it to witness. On being formally charged, defendant said he was not guilty of stealing the pick. He found the pick in his place, and he had never looked at the numbers. The Bench gave the defendant the benefit of the doubt and dismissed the case.

William Matthewson, joiner, South Milford, was charged with drunkenness on the 28th ult on Doncaster and Tadcaster Road. Mr C. Kemp appeared for defendant and pleaded guilty. The man was very respectable and had never been proceeded against before. He asked them to deal with him under the First Offenders' Act. The Bench dismissed the case on payment of costs, 4s.

OTTER HUNTING AT COLLINGHAM

Mr W. Thompson's otter hounds met on Wednesday at Collingham Bridge, where a big field was assembled, and enjoyed some capital sport. Drawing up stream, hounds spoke to the drag almost at once, and intermittently all through Linton Ings, carefully drawing every bit of cover up to Langwith Wood, until, when nearing the end of this one-time resident's favourite cover, they marked at a rock, and, without any assistance, got their otter away, swimming her down stream for a short distance, when she turned back, and made up stream nearly to Keswick Ox Close, but, not caring to face the shallow there, returned in the vicinity of where she was marked.

Scent was very bad, and, although hounds never lost her, they could never press her, and it seemed long odds on the otter, for several times, when she was viewed and hollowed to, and hounds close on her rudder, they could scarcely own the line. A stickle had been formed at the low end of Langwith Wood to prevent the otter getting down stream into Linton Deeps, but for some time she never attempted coming down so far until some extra drive on the part of hounds hustled her, and she rushed the stickle, but for some unaccountable reason stopped at a rock a few yards below, when she had all Linton Deeps to go at.

For a few minutes hounds did not locate her, but flushed below, and were swimming her wask in midstream, gradually drawing up nearer to her retreat, which she evidently did not think were secure for before hounds reached the rock she carried it, and swam up stream for a hundred yards, landing on the bank, and endeavouring to make up into Langwith Wood. But hounds were close on to her, seizing her on the bank, and pulling her back into the river—a bitch otter of 15lb.

While hounds were breaking up this otter it was reported that another otter had been viewed making up stream. Hounds were cast on at once, and had a drag up to Carthick, but were never able to mark, for scent was so bad as it well could be, the river being exceedingly clear, and full of weed waterings. From Carthick to Harewood Bridge it was palpably a two-dog, and nothing more was done.

BARKSTON ASH FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING—APATHY OF CLUBS

WILL THE COMPETITIONS BE DROPPED?

The annual meeting of Barkston Ash Football Association was held at the Station Hotel, Cross-gates, on Wednesday evening, and those present were Mr J. R. Batty (President), Mr Alf. Johnson (vice-president), Mr Arthur Flowith (hon. treas.), Mr W. A. Osborne (hon. sec.), Mr A. Deighton (Church Fenton), Mr Inman (Austford), Mr Metcalfe (Tadcaster), members of the Executive; and Mr Tankard (Barwick R.S.).

The Hon. Sec., in his report, stated that during the past season there were 18 clubs affiliated to the Association, a similar number to that of the previous season. The various competitions were won by the following clubs, viz.: Deighton Sheaf Cup, South Milford (for the first time); Barkston Ash Cup, Cawood United (for the first time); and the Templenewsam Charity Cup, Gorforth W.R. Owing to the dearth of clubs, it was unfortunately found impossible to offer the Junior Cup and Lane Fox Shield for competition, and these trophies were temporarily withdrawn. The football played during the season created very little enthusiasm, and interest throughout the division was practically nil, and no doubt much of this was caused by the small number of matches played. One exception to the lukewarmness was the Cup final played on the Bowling Green at Selby. It produced one of the best "gates" there had been for some years, and there certainly appeared a prospect of a revival of Association football in Selby and the district. The number of reported players was extremely low; only five came before the Commission during the season, three being from Gorforth W.R., 1 from Barwick United, and 1 from Church Fenton United. In his last report, it was found necessary to mention what was a blot on that season's football, and again last season they had the same two clubs (Gorforth W.R. and South Milford) in bitter conflict. Much unpleasantness was undoubtedly caused by the decisions of the Appeals Board—a committee which the Association would be well advised to discard in the future, and to take all appeals to the full body of the West Riding Association. At the same time, there was no reason why the Gorforth Club should have taken such an unsportsmanlike action as they did in retaining Deighton Shield. This was the first time on record in the Association that any trophy had been withheld by a club. The Executive also came in for much uncalled for abuse, and so far as he was concerned he was anxious to sever his connection with the secretarial work, rather than allow himself to be abused by such unsportsmanlike and disappointed partisans. During the season the Executive had, with one or two exceptions, attended the meetings fairly well, and had always done their best for all clubs, although not giving satisfaction to everyone.

The Hon. Treas. submitted the balance sheet, which had been audited by Mr W. Tate, incorporated accountant, Gorforth. The season was commenced with a sum of £91 12s. 9d. in hand, and including this, the income was £53 15s. 7d. After meeting all expenditure there was a balance left of £14 16s. 1d. Including a balance of £18 3s. 7d. the income of the Templenewsam Charity Cup Competition was £25 5s. 3d., and after giving £10 to Leeds Infirmary, and three guineas in grants to injured players, there remained a balance in the bank of £10 12s. 3d.

The Chairman said that there was an increase of £3 in the bank, and that was not bad considering the season.

Mr Metcalfe proposed the adoption of the report and balance sheet.

Mr Inman seconded, and this was agreed to.

Mr Deighton proposed that the hon. sec. be granted an honorarium of £10. Mr Metcalfe seconded, and this was adopted.

Mr Flowith moved that Mr Batty, who had carried out his duties in an efficient manner, be re-elected to the presidency, and Mr Deighton seconded.

Mr Batty said that he had had 25 years' experience of cricket and football in the district, but after what had occurred last season he could not accept office again.

Mr Deighton asked if it was not advisable to consider what they were to do with the Competitions.

Mr Metcalfe said that if they did not go on with the Competitions they would drop through, as he was disinclined to go on unless more interest was shown by the clubs.

Mr Deighton said that every club had been notified, and the meeting had power to consider the question.

The Hon. Sec. said that the more one did for the Association the more one was abused. The abuse he and the President had had to take was simply disgraceful.

Mr Flowith said the attendance was wretchedly poor for an annual meeting, and they ought to consider the advisability of continuing the Competitions.

Mr Batty said that he thought if they gave the Competitions a rest for a year it would do good.

Mr Inman said the district would be very quiet in the winter without footmall, and he thought they should endeavour to get the Competitions going.

The Hon. Sec. said the only clubs that had joined were Boston Spa and Church Fenton. Barwick R.S. and Wetherby were prepared to join, and he had had a letter from Fairburn about joining one of the Competitions.

Mr Inman said Aberfield would join, the Hon. Sec. said Sherburn would go into the Junior League, and Mr Johnson said South Milford would run two teams.

After further discussion, Mr Deighton suggested that the Competitions be dropped for a year.

Mr Flowith said that was a serious step, but unless clubs showed more interest it was inevitable.

Mr Inman said he was in favour of going on.

Eventually Mr Flowith proposed that the meeting be adjourned until Wednesday, July 22nd, and that if a sufficient number of entries from clubs is not received by the 21st the Competitions be dropped.

Mr Deighton seconded, and this was agreed to.

Mr Osborne was instructed to convey the decision of the meeting to the clubs, who will thus have the responsibility of deciding the question.

GARFORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

NURSING SCHEME—NAMING OF STREETS.

A meeting of the Garforth Urban District Council was held at Garforth on Wednesday evening—Mr J. W. Dobson (Chairman) presiding. The other members present were Mr R. Routledge, senr., Mr E. C. Archer, Mr H. Gascoigne, Mr Goodall, Mr W. W. Hartley, Mr T. S. Slater, and Mr H. Chappel, with the Clerk (Mr A. E. Carr), the Water Inspector (Mr Naylor), and the surveyor (Mr Abbot).

At a meeting of the Water Committee Mr E. J. Silcock's account, amounting to £22 3s. 6d., charges in connection with the financial adjustment with Tadcaster District Council, was passed.

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee the Clerk read a letter from Mr Mark Learoyd, stating that he had got a man to plough the land at the sewage beds, but he had been delayed owing to the wet, and he would plough and harrow it as soon as possible.—A letter was read from Mr Barsell offering to rent the two cottages in the mill yard, and stating that he was endeavouring to abate a nuisance complained of.

At a meeting of the Fire and Lighting Committee it was agreed to get 14 outdoor cups for the use of firemen. An advertisement was ordered to be inserted in the "Courier" for tenders for painting and lettering distance plates from hydrants.

The medical officer of health (Dr. Pickersgill) sent his report for June, and it stated that, according to the Education Committee, whooping-cough, mumps, and measles were bad in the district. Two cases of tuberculosis had been notified, and there were no cases of scarlet fever, and no cases of infectious disease were in the hospital. The sanitary state of the district, wrote the Doctor, was very satisfactory. During the month two deaths had occurred, while eight births—six males and two females—had been notified.

The Clerk explained that Dr. Pickersgill had been very ill and had been ordered away.

Mr Chappel asked when they were to have the medical officer's annual report. They had been expecting it for the past two months.

It was decided that the Clerk write and ask for it as soon as possible.

The water inspector's report showed that the consumption of water for the month ending June 29th (a period of 35 days) was 1,645,000 gallons—an average of 47,000 gallons per day. The total consumption of water for the quarter ending June 29th was 4,108,000 gallons, which was 877,000 gallons less than the previous quarter. During the month three cottages were connected up in Sturton Lane.

A letter was read from the West Riding County Council with reference to the treatment of tuberculous patients from Garforth, and suggesting that the expenses of such patients be defrayed by the sanitary district concerned, paying one half after deducting the contribution of the West Riding Insurance Committee and the Government grant.

The Chairman intimated that they had no option but to enter into such an agreement, and this it was resolved to do, on the motion of Mr Archer, seconded by Mr Routledge.

A motion by Mr Chappel as to the alteration of water charges, so far as they relate to fried fish shops, was seconded by Mr Gascoigne, and carried.

The Clerk reported that some of the business of last Wednesday night would have been to appoint delegates to a conference convened by the West Riding County Council relating to the Combined Nursing Scheme, which was held at Tadcaster on Friday. As Mr Archer and Mr Gascoigne were the only two to attend they thought the matter should be left with the Clerk to arrange with the Chairman to represent the Council.

Mr Dobson said he went over to Tadcaster, and found there representatives from the County Council and representatives from various education committees and nursing associations. The suggestion was that in those places where they had a district nurse, the nurse might carry out the officers, and a grant would be made by the County Council of about £6 per 1000 inhabitants. If they had a nurse, Mr Dobson said, she would want paying for it, and he did not see that they were going to get any profit out of it. A representative of the County Council said it might be wise if a nursing association was formed in the district. That was to say, Garforth combine with Aberford and Barwick, but the places were so far apart that the scheme could not be worked satisfactorily. He himself thought it would be best for the West Riding County Council to provide their own nurse. It was also suggested that if a nurse was appointed she could take over duties under the Public Health Act and that this Council might make a grant towards her pay. He was of the opinion that the nurse should carry out her duty as a district nurse, and that the Council Council appoint a nurse. He advised the Council to take no further steps, but to let the West Riding Authorities appoint a nurse.

This was agreed to.

An application by one of the roadmen for an advance of wages was considered, and a grant of 1s extra 2s. per week was passed.

Mr Chappel raised a question as to the naming of streets and the numbering of the houses.

Mr Dobson said Mr Breed had had the matter in hand, and so far as he knew possessed all the particulars.

Mr Chappel moved that the Clerk write Mr Breed asking for the particulars, so that the matter could be dealt with at the next meeting of the Council.

Mr Archer seconded, and this was carried.

Mr Frank Pullan, of Barwick-in-Elmet, has received the degree of B.A. at the University of Leeds.

BOWLS.—Mr A. W. Westerman, the well-known Tadcaster bowler, who was beaten in the final for the championship of Barkston Ash on Monday by Mr H. Thomas, of Hallam, has entered the Leeds and District individual merit competition, to be played on Saturday.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Etoffs, who were at home, inflicted a crushing defeat on the Leodiensians Scores:—Etoffs—Pickersgill 5, Midgley 16, Foster (not out) 73, Turner 43, Arrowsmith 20, Maltby 0, B. Turner (not out) 26, extras 11; total for 6 wkts. 194 (innings closed). Leodiensians—Lambert 4, Vause 3, Nutt 1, Cooper 28, Rigby 10, Evans 0, Gill 4, Jackson 8, Casson 4, Outram (not out) 2, Ramsden 0, extras 5; total 69.

DISORDER.—Matthew Bilbrough, bricklayer's labourer, and Mary King, house-keeper, Tadcaster, were charged with having been drunk and disorderly at Tadcaster on July 4th.—P.C. Kitwood said he was in Wighill Lane on Saturday night, and he saw defendants, who were drunk and fighting, and they used disgusting language.—Bilbrough said he was not drunk.—P.C. Southern gave corroborative evidence.—The woman, who said that that was the first time she had been in Court, was fined 2s. 6d. and costs, and Bilbrough 5s. and costs.

SMART & SON,

3 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.

SPECIAL LINE OF

TOYS. — DOLLS. — GAMES.

Week-end Hampers, Suit Cases and Basket Ware.

ALL THE LATEST LINES.

For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,

SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY

96 ALBION STREET (Corne. of Guildford Street, LEEDS).

DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.

3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.

3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.

PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.

Telephone No. 253. JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

Telephone No. 1129.

RHODES & SONS,

Posters, Handbills, Circulars, Business Cards, Balance Sheets, Fixture Cards, Catalogues, Ball Programmes and . . Every description of . . General and Commercial Printing.

Commercial and General Printers Lithographers, Bookbinders, &c.

ORDERS BY POST OR TELEPHONE PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Magazines, Periodicals, &c., Bound to any Pattern. . .

"Rothwell Courier and Times" Office,

2, AIRE STREET. LEEDS.

THE WANDER LIFE.

In "Looking for Trouble," by F. Harris Deans (Blackwood), the reader is more likely to find amusement, as exemplified in the following extracts:

"A studious friend of mine, a noble, ambitious young man, who is learning some weird language on a phonetic system, informed me that the only advantage he could see in the Wander Life was the ease with which one was able to acquire a foreign language. To my mind its greatest joy is that it enables you to avoid doing anything of the sort. A squeal and a couple of grunts mean pig in every language in the world. Only squeal enough at a waiter of any nationality and you will get pork in some form or another—any form, from sucking pig to a rasher. Eggs are harder to ask for; you have to draw eggs, otherwise your clucking may result in a couple of roast fowls. Coffee is less easy to ask for than one would think. I remember on one occasion—at the station buffet at Buda-Pesth—throwing my head back, tilting my elbow, and gurgling. And the waiter brought me a couple of liver pills."

"At Suez . . . a stout, almost mountainous porter saved my life. . . . He was a fat porter, and his face—well, it was not so much that it resembled a cocoanut, as that it was also like an orange. For a face it was too ambitious; for it would have been ample. His complexion inclined towards the orange; his features, the play of his emotions, to the cocoanut."

The children attending the St. Mary's Church, Sunday School, Tadcaster, had their annual treat on Wednesday. There was a service in the church, and tea in the schoolroom, the remainder of the day being spent in games in a field.

A QUESTION OF RATES.—The Wetherby Golf Club have been summoned by the Overseers of Linton township for the non-payment of £20 18s. for rates. The defence was that of their original 93 acres of land, the Club have exchanged with the neighbouring farmers and given 60 acres for 19. An appeal has been made to the Assessment Committee, but no alteration has yet been made. The club was ordered to pay the amount claimed, but advised to renew the appeal.

ROTHWELL AND OULTON CEMETERY.

The Bill confirming a provisional order of the Local Government Board forming the Rothwell Joint Cemetery District was on Thursday sent by the Examiners for second reading in the Lords. It has passed the Commons.

The places concerned are the Urban District of Rothwell, and the district comprising the contributory place of Oulton-with-Woodlesford, in the Rural District of Hunslet.

MOTORIST IN TROUBLE.—At Wetherby George William Cooke, East Keswick, was ordered to pay the costs in two cases—one for driving a motor car to the danger of the public, and the other for failing to stop when called upon to do so by a police constable. Defendant had only owned a motor car for three weeks when the incidents happened.

CRICKET.—On Saturday Moortown defeated Leeds St. Clement's at Street Lane rather easily. Scores:—St. Clement's—Walton 7, Langbourne 0, Quinn 18, Murgatroyd 0, Davies 1, Dably 28, Matthewman 3, Wilson 1, Boyce 2, Fowler 9, Hirst 4, extra 1; total 68. Moortown —Wilson (not out) 23, M. Topham 7, France 22, Heywood 9, Pearson (not out) 1, extras 8; total (for 3 wkts.) 70.

CRICKET.—On Saturday, at home, Harewood received a crushing defeat from Roundhay. Scores:—Roundhay—Morris 62, Craven 14, Blackburn 41, Hanmore (not out) 41, Childerson 3, Crosland 25, extras 9; total (for 5 wkts.) 195. (Declared). Harewood—Lacey 2, Harland 4, Brooks 0, Matthews 4, Ironside 3, Wade 0, Brooks (not out) 4, Bryant 0, Ibbotson 0, Stephenson 2, Crowther 8, extras 4; total 33.

A QUICK TURN.—Leslie Drummond, clerk, of Leeds, was fined 10s. and costs, at Selby, on Monday, for driving a motor-cycle to the danger of the public, in Finkle Street, Selby, on Sunday evening, the 28th ult. Defendant drove round the corner of a side street at a fast speed, and people in the street had a narrow escape. Defendant was also ordered to pay 1s. and costs for failing to produce his driver's licence when asked for it.

Annual Clearance Sale.

WATCH OUR WINDOWS DAILY FOR BARGAINS IN

Costumes, Dresses, Skirts, Raincoats, Blouses.

SMITH & PETTY,

MANTLE WAREHOUSE,

44, Lowerhead Row (3 Doors from Briggate,) LEEDS

BEST & BOOTH

Tailors & Costumiers,

119, KIRKGATE, — AND — 143, BRIGGATE (Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.

Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.

Look Out for B. & B.

BARNSBEE'S SUMMER SALE

On Friday, July 10th.

SEE OUR WINDOWS. We now Extend [illegible]

19, Kirkgate to Vicar Lane, Leeds.

E. BARNSBEE & Co., Ld.

Also at KIRKGATE & ARMLEY.

THE CHALLENGE!

Never Beaten

BRAITHWAITE'S

"The Firm with a Reputation."

ARE NOW MAKING A

SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS

In all the LATEST STYLES, for SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.

LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.

5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared

BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Store,

58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.

Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" —their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

ALLPASS & CO., LTD.,
Established over Thirty Years Ago.
HOUSE FURNISHERS,
Cash or Deferred Payments.
BABY CARS & WASHING MACHINERY
A Specialty.
UPPERHEAD ROW, LEEDS.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 81— [Registered as the U.P.O.] NEW SERIES. SATURDAY, JULY 18 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
LIGHTNING PROGRAMME.
THE STAGE ALWAYS OCCUPIED.
MONDAY, JULY 20th, 1914.
London's Terrific Success
"THE HONEYMOON EXPRESS."
A Company of 50 Artistes, including:—George Gregory, William Smythe, Little Keano, Herbert Wellesley, Winnie Murray, and Rosie Pink.
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.
MARIE KAY. VAN DAMMES.
SCOTTISH MEISTERS
LEIPZIG.
The Incomparable Conjurer.
TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY.
AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 3s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.
EVERY ITEM A SPECIAL FEATURE.
NO WAITS.
Booking Office open at Theatre, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily for advance booking of Boxes, Orchestra Stalls, and Grand Circle.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
A New Revue—"WHAT PRICE LONDON."
The Powerful Cast includes:—Frank Esmond, Jack Hood, Henry Deas, Mark Daly, The Six Mascots, Margaret Stuart, The 2 Cures, Kathleen Gray, Rita Everard, and Jack Williams.
MILLER & ST. JUSTE.
BI-BO-BI.
HIPPODROME PICTURES.
SOHO TRIO.
SUTCLIFFE FAMILY.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 2s., 6d., and 4d.

CITY VARIETIES.
BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY
7 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, JULY 20th, 1914.
FIVE TRIPPELLOS.
AMOS HOWARD.
LEIGHTON & MEVILLE.
JACK BARKER
VARIESCOPE.
BESS HOLLAND.
HINSLE assisted by BERTIE REES.
Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate.
Repairs of all Kinds a Specialty.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY.
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Established
SPARKLING HOSFERRADE
TRADE MARK
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
Obtainable from Hotels Restaurants & Dealers
REYNOLDS & BRANSON'S LTD LEEDS.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Hunslet Guardians have, in their wisdom, decided to withdraw a boy in their care from the secondary school he was attending, and give up the scholarship he has won, and they have thus taken the responsibility of making or marring the lad's career. Poor law service may have its attractions, but I must confess that the boy's continued association with the institutions was one of the objections that appealed to me. Of course, the lad might not have won more scholarships, and the Guardians would then have been in a dilemma as to what to do with him, but as he was the first boy in the Homes to win a scholarship, and, as his abilities were highly spoken of, the Guardians might have run the risk. His own decision to become master's clerk must be taken into consideration, and, altogether, the Guardians, I must agree, had a difficult question to decide, but they have agreed on a certain course, and I hope they will not be disappointed.

The Primrose Leaguers are to have a field day at Templenewsam on Saturday, and I daresay they will turn up in battalions at the ancient place. As usual, there will be speech-making, and the principal attraction will be Sir Mark Sykes, M.P., who is making a reputation for himself as a politician, especially interested in foreign affairs. It will be remembered that at a recent demonstration at Leeds Sir Mark had a lively encounter with a number of Irishmen, and he dealt with them in a very good-humoured and tactful manner. The squire of Templenewsam will preside, and, as our advt. columns show, other speakers will include the Member for Barkston Ash and Mr D. B. Wilson, J.P., of Seacroft Hall.

Months ago Garforth Urban Council decided to name the streets and number the houses, and in the course of the christening ceremony "Briggate" became "Main Street," and such old-fashioned names as "The Forties" and "Paradise" disappeared. The work was probably thought at the time to be of prime importance, and the news that the name plates have not been put up no doubt comes as a surprise to outsiders. But it is only Garforth's way. The Council mean well, but they are hampered by an eternal lack of pence, and as they are afraid to increase the rates, work must remain undone until the money is forthcoming. At the present time the Council have several resolutions passed and placed on the minutes, which are still waiting fulfilment, but it looks as if the street names were at last to be put up for public inspection.

In starting a nursing scheme for Garforth it is evident that no help will be forthcoming from the Urban Council, who, for the performance of certain duties, have power to make a grant to a nurse. Certain members, I know, were so disgusted at the apathy displayed by the working-classes, who would alone benefit by the scheme, when it was proposed to form a nursing association, that they determined they would not trouble any more about it. No one seems anxious to take the initiative in this matter, owing to the rebuff received several years ago, and unless the working-classes themselves take it up it is doubtful that an association will be established. Garforth is a most difficult place for social work, owing to various causes, and it would be pleasing to see all sections of the community working for a common purpose.

Barkston Ash farm hands, if they are not a very ungrateful crew, ought to thank Providence every morning for casting their lines in such pleasant places. That is the conclusion an outsider might come to after reading the address on the agricultural labour problem by Mr John Thompson, of East Keswick. Bardsey, who is one of the leading farmers in the district. Mr Thompson, who is a man of ability, has adopted as his hobby the educating of his class on agricultural questions, and being a good speaker, he can, in his bright, breezy way, always get a good audience. No doubt he pleased the Boroughbridge gentlemen, to whom he addressed the other night, mightily, but one wonders what would have been the upshot had some of the statements been made to members of the Workers' Union. The economic question which Mr Thompson dealt with has an interest for people outside the agricultural circle, and it is argued that frequently there is a connection between the price for unskilled labour in towns and the wages paid to workers in agricultural areas.

Although a great many people who live in towns were brought up in the country, and are tolerably well acquainted with agricultural conditions, Mr Thompson has an undisguised contempt for any opinion that may emanate from that quarter, but he may, or may not, believe that that opinion will eventually influence the agricultural problem. By the time a farm hand is thirty, if he remains single, Mr Thompson says he can easily save £200 or £300, and one wonders what the workmen have to say to this. Mr Thompson cites the case of a young man in his own employment—it speaks volumes for Mr Thompson as a master—who left recently with £250 in his pocket—a tidy sum for a farm hand to save, but we are not told how it was done. To save in this way, a man must eschew the joys of matrimony, he must be a tiler, and he must assuredly practice stern self-denial. It is not an alluring prospect when all is said, and as a matter of fact, the farm hand, as a rule, weds the girl of his choice and gets a home of his own.

In regard to wages, they are put at from 17s. to 21s. per week, with house, garden, milk, potatoes, etc., and Mr Thompson asserts that the farm hand is better-off than the man in the town who is receiving 8s. or 10s. more per week. If agricultural labourers are so well off, why are they now agitating for a minimum wage of 22s. per week? Suppose a man's weekly income is all told, was—taking the lowest figure quoted—25s., would he not be regarded as insane if he attempted to barter it away for 22s. in cash? Again, why are so many agricultural labourers anxious to get employment on the railways, where wages are not particularly attractive? Why, too, have so many of the best-paid agricultural workers gone to Canada in the opportunities for advancement in this country are so good? Now, I am not ignorant on the question of wages paid to agricultural labourers, and if Mr Thompson will make inquiries in the country around Leeds, where wages should be highest, he will find good men working for £1 per week and less.

Now it is clear that if farm labourers are to have an improved position it must be done either by combination or legislation, but Mr Thompson does not like either. But what is good for agriculturists cannot be bad for the men, and among farmers there is no more strenuous advocate of organization and combination that Mr Thompson himself. All organization aims at one thing—betterment, and farmers, in combining by means of chambers of clubs, and unions, are doing their best to help themselves, so why should the labourer be blamed if he joins a trade union? In regard to a minimum wage, no one will assert that the sum now given farm workers in the worst-paid counties in England is adequate, and I believe members of the two larger political parties have schemes for improving the workers' lot. If agriculturists would see it, it is unfair to themselves that labour should be so cheap in one part of the country, because it gives the farmers employing it an unfair advantage in competing with farmers in districts where better wages are paid. In other trades this works out to the hurt of employers, and cases could be cited where masters are beaten on their own ground by men who pay lower wages to their workmen. Lord Salisbury gave the wages for labourers in a number of counties, and he said "The highest (16s.) was a very low figure on which to maintain a wife and family. To that must be added the fact that prices had risen to such an extent that those wages were not so valuable as they used to be." This is a recognition of the fact that labourers have a grievance, and how is it to be remedied?

While on the labour problem, a may say that complaint was made at Sherburn Show of a scarcity of good men. This is owing to activity in other industries in the district, but it shows, at any rate, that men are ready to leave the land when they get the opportunity. It was stated by one farmer that men were not to be depended on, but they are probably not so bad as the farm hand near Tadcaster, who laid himself down to rest behind a hedge when he should have been at work. This sort of thing is contrary to all notions of fair-play—it is not "playing the game," and the man who engages him is not only robbing his employer, but he is not true to himself. With the labourer who is poorly paid I have every sympathy, but the man who is ready to take advantage of his employer deserves condemnation.

Sherburn Show was unfortunate in that a combination of circumstances tended to interfere somewhat with its success. Haymaking demanded the attention of many farmers in the district, and they were consequently unable to put in an appearance on the showground early in the day, and a number of them failed to send in the stock they had entered for competition. In some of the horse classes there was practically no competition, and in at least two classes exhibitors had simply to trot animals round the ring and lift the prizes. There were well-known prize-winning animals in the ring—in one class a horse that won at Belfast was forward—and I daresay local farmers did not care about competing in classes in which they were entered. It seems to me that more attention must be given to heavy horse classes, which are popular with local agriculturists, to cattle and poultry, but it is of little use offering valuable prizes if the light horse classes produce only two. The committee are very enthusiastic, and so long as they manifest the spirit shown on Monday Sherburn Show will continue to be a success.

How disease is caused! The County Council are on the track of Wetherby Rural District Council, part of whose area is without an adequate water supply. At Thorparch and Micklethwaite, it is stated, a number of houses obtain their supply of water for domestic purposes from the river, which receives the sewage effluents of Addingham, Ilkley, Menston, Burley, Otley, and Wetherby. Bacteriological examinations of the water have proved it to be polluted. Yet people wonder how typhoid fever is caused. Some years ago an epidemic occurred in a village in Tadcaster district, and it was caused by polluted well water. At Spofforth, near Wetherby, water from the sewage effluent of householders has been analysed, and it, too, has been condemned. It is evident that the Wetherby Rural Council must be up and doing, or the County Council will have something to say to them.

When is the Whitkirk recreation field to be open to the children? The Templenewsam Council, who have assumed responsibility for the management of the ground, received a form of agreement, but, at the last meeting, they did not sign it, nor was anyone empowered to sign it. The question being apparently adjourned until a deputation waited upon Mr Wood's agent with respect to a permanent entrance to the field. Now, would it not have been better to have signed the agreement and had the ground opened to public use, leaving the question of the entrance to be settled afterwards, instead of causing so much delay? The squire has been generous, and the Council should, surely, have been expeditious.

"Surplus money on the dissolution of the Kippax Non-Political Ratepayers' Association, per Jacob Green, 15s." This interesting obituary notice of what was at one time a particularly vigorous organization appeared in a newspaper the other day, and if in life it accomplished little, it has in death done good, for its surplus cash has gone to Leeds Infirmary funds. Garforth once had a Ratepayers' Association, too—I don't mean the W.M. Association—but it was so active that, like the Kippax organization, it soon expended itself, and all that is left of it is a memory. Ratepayers' Associations are, however, greatly needed in these days, when there is so much apathy towards administrative work, and they can be made valuable educational agencies, but they are of no value whatever if their only function is to badger and torment public men.

Parsons are not always so straight as the spiritual director of the residents of Roundhay, who is not without humour. In connection with St John's Church a fete is to be held, and, in his magazine, the Vicar asks for a large attendance of the parishioners. Most clergymen would be content to leave it at that, but not so the outspoken Vicar, who evidently has a full knowledge of the frailties of his flock. "We also venture to hope," he says, "that washing day being passed for that week, as much as possible of that well-known but little appreciated brand of starch 'The Roundhay Social Starch,' may be left at home for the afternoon." But it is not so long since the residents of another part of Roundhay were explaining that they did not know the meaning of snobbery.

Will the Tadcaster District Council follow the example of West Ham Guardians if the Local Government Board decline to pass the expenditure for a water supply to a trough on the Tadcaster Road? The Guardians aforesaid have decided to go on strike so far as the administration of outrelief is concerned, as "a protest against the district auditor's interference with their discretion in granting such relief." Tadcaster District Council have, as already stated, determined to risk a surcharge, and it is possible that the members will sign the cheque may have to find the money themselves. It all depends on the humour of the auditor, who is apparently a law unto himself. As an instance of this, it may be stated that public bodies have no power to provide seats by the roadsides, yet Kippax Council erected seats and got the account passed without so much as a murmur.

Seeing the Tadcaster District Council are in such a generous mood, one would not be surprised were they to receive applications from a number of officials and workmen for increased remuneration, and who would blame them? The Council should be model employers, giving all workmen a living wage, but it is doubtful that all the rewards for this class of labour are adequate for the service rendered. Members will probably state that men are paid all that they are worth, but what are they worth? Extravagant wages, I know, are given by none of the local road authorities, and none of them, like the New York administrators, present scavengers with medals for worthy service and give them a fortnight's holiday annually. Probably the local road-makers would think the world was coming to an end were the authorities to launch out in that way.

Will all who have seats allotted to them in the church kindly bear in mind—that quite apart from the dictates of courtesy—they have no shadow of a right to look out of the wrong corner of their eye at anyone who sits in any seat which was unoccupied when the choir entered the church." Thus writes the Vicar of Roundhay to his flock. It appears that pew rents are charged at St. John's Church, but I had simply to say that it was decided, with the full consent of the pew-holders, that when the choir enters the church all seats unoccupied become free for the use of strangers. I have known people actually remove strangers from seats in which they themselves had been accustomed to sit, and to which they had no legal right whatever.

The road surveyor for Tadcaster rural area will be inclined to "cock his beaver." "It is surprising what a good surface many of the by-roads have," says a writer in a contemporary. "There is a road, for example, leading from Barwick-in-Elmet to Garforth, which in point of surface, will stand comparison with the best of the main roads, and it is a pretty road, too, were it not that half-way along it one comes in sight of the ugly colliery winding gear which marks out the neighbourhood of Garforth as a sweet place spoiled." It is evident that Mr Scott, the surveyor, has made a good job of this road, and the unsolicited testimonial he has received should be an encouragement to him. It is very unfortunate that Garforth is "a sweet place spoiled," but it would be unwise to limit industry, which means bread and butter for a great many people, in order to please casual visitors.

Kathleen E. Walker, of Cawood, has won a West Riding scholarship for intending teacher.

Oswald Hare, Elliott Lund, John Mills, and W. W. Smith, of Cawood, have won county minor scholarships.

RETIRED.—Surgeon-General W. W. Kenny, Honorary Surgeon to the King, who has lately finished his term at York, where he was the last principal medical officer and the first deputy-director of medical services, retired from the Army on pension on Wednesday. He would have completed 37 years' service next month. He inspected the Aberfordia Ambulance League a fortnight ago.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE.

At the Empire this week there is an excellent programme. There are several turns that are clever or grotesque, and one or two that have those characteristics in combination. "Potts in Pert" is a revival sketch with Herbert Darnley as the chief comedian. It is extremely farcical and well performed. The "Four Readings" make an exceptionally good show as acrobats, and their performance would be none the worse if the track of projecting one blindfolded man to be caught by another were eliminated, as involving a quite needless risk. Trovato gives an eccentric exhibition on the violin, and Rebla indulges in some clever jugglery. Smart stepdancing is done by Hamlin and Mack, and the comedians include Rowlands and Ford, Harry Bedford, who illustrates the "first ragtime melody," and Johnson and Best, comedians of the acrobatic order.

"The Honeymoon Express," described by its author as "a new musical joy-ride in eight stops" (direct from the Oxford Music Hall), will be the principal attraction at the Leeds Empire next week. The brilliant success of this really bright and up-to-date production, which, by the way, had to be withdrawn in the zenith of its success, in order to make room for previously arranged shows, has resulted in its being booked for the Empire first-hand by Mr Frank Allen, the managing director. An idea of its quality may be guaged when it is announced that such artistes as George Gregory (principal comedian with Mr George Edwardes); William Smythe, Stanley Lupino (from Drury Lane), Rosie Pink, the well-known musical comedy artiste, and Herbert Wellesley, a well-known character comedian, are appearing in the principal roles. Other city artistes take part in this production, a particularly novel feature of the chorus being the exquisitely gowned girls. The book and lyrics are by George Arthurs, while the music has been composed by the famous "rag-time king," Louis Hirsch. The whole production is staged by Ned Wayburn, the producer of "Hullo, Tango!" at the London Hippodrome. Other additions include the Van Dammes, Dutch acrobats; Leipzig, the incomparable conjurer, the Scottish Meisters; Marie Kay, comedienne; and the American bioscope.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

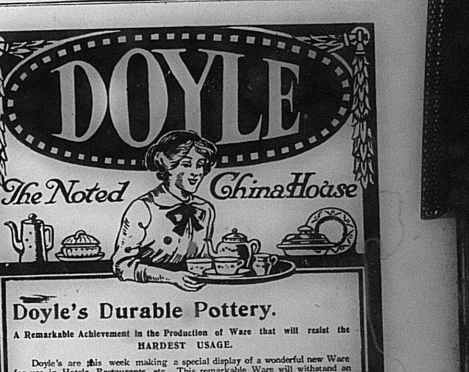
At the Hippodrome this week Miss Clarice Mayne has had a fine reception. Chic and charming as ever, she sings several delightful songs in her own dainty way, most of them new. No mention of this fascinating artiste, of course, can be allowed to pass without a reference to "That," who at the piano contributes his quota of quaint accompaniment and humorous comment. La Maze Trio, American eccentric acrobats, tumble about the stage in the most startling and amusing style; one trick gives the audience a positive thrill, which, however, quickly turns to boisterous laughter. Whatever music can be extracted from the xylophone Murfayne succeeds in extracting, in the form of operatic selections, cleverly executed; Foreman and Fannan engage in their usual cross-talk; R. A. Speedwell, "the wizard smoker," is not so much an artiste as a performer of tricks on the easel; others on the bill are Kisbey, the callboy; the Harmers, vocal duo; and the Sisters Jerome, duettists and dancers.

Next week at the Hippodrome a new revue, entitled "What Price London," will be the principal attraction, and the cast includes Jack Williams, Frank Esmond, Jack Hood, Henry Deas, Mark Daly, the Six Mascots, Margaret Stuart, the Two Cures, Kathleen Gray, Rita Everard, etc. There are three scenes, viz., on the Bridge at Westminster, Charing Cross Station, and Theatrical Garden Fete. Others billed to appear are Miller and St. Juste, two boys and a piano; Bi-Bo-Bi, the Sousa of the bells; Soho Trio, in song and dance; and the Sutcliffe family, Scotland's most versatile and popular entertainers. In addition, Hippodrome moving pictures will be shown.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES.

At the City Varieties this week the chief turn is decidedly novel. It is supplied by Jack Shires, who as P.C. Green, of Pudsey, gets some harmless fun out of the eccentricities of the lazy policeman and unenthusiastic fireman. Pastor and Rose combine rag-time and acrobatism effectively, though the burlesque conducting of the orchestra is a bit out-of-date; the Three Max Boothers likewise fall into the ragtime craze, though here it takes the form of dancing on wooden shoes and on ball-bearing roller skates; Sydney E. Brandon gives quite a dramatic sketch as a tramp, but wastes too much time in making-up in sight of the audience; Nestah does some clever juggling feats, with comic accessories; and Anetta Campbell sings ballads that please the audience.

Next week at the City Varieties the artistes will include the Five Trippellos, musicians and vocalists; Amos Howard, described as "the droll dancing darkie"; Leighton and Meville, Anglo-French comedy artistes, in a novel act; Jack Barker, entertainer in song, sketch, and burlesque; Bess Holland, in a sensational herculean equilibristic novelty; and Hinsle, the genial comedy illusionist, assisted by Girtie Rees. Pictures, dramatic and humorous, will be depicted by the variescope.



Gladys M. Barker, of Burton Salmon, has won a West Riding scholarship for intending teacher.

Mr Frank Allison, of Selby, won first prize of £20 at the Highland Society's Show at Hawick in the jumping competition for horse or pony.

Mr R. L. Powell, of Askham Bryan, won first prize for agricultural foal, colt or filly, open to farmers farming not more than 100 acres, at Copmanthope Show on Wednesday.

On Wednesday a cricket match was played between Shadwell and Leeds Police (D. Division), and the villagers won easily by 128 to 35. Heaton secured 9 wickets for 20 runs.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

Doyle's Durable Pottery.
A Remarkable Achievement in the Production of Ware that will resist the HARDEST USAGE.
Doyle's are this week making a special display of a wonderful new Ware for use in Hotels, Restaurants, etc. This remarkable Ware will withstand an enormous amount of hard usage, and will be the means of cutting down the breakage cost considerably. It is "tough as Adamantine." Call and let us give you a demonstration of its capabilities without obligation to purchase.
SPECIAL WINDOW DISPLAY THIS WEEK.
59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.
DOYLE'S, LTD.

EVERY HOLIDAY NEED for LADIES and CHILDREN will be found in rare abundance at Reductions which mean Big Bargains at Stephenson's Sale.
Now in Full Progress. So come. We promise to give you the Biggest Bargains that ever you got.

A FEW EXAMPLES:—
50 Ladies' SERGE SPORTS COATS, in Tan and Emerald, 4/11 each; usually 7/11. Another lot, usual price 12/11, for 8/11, in Saxe, Cherry, and Purple.
Ladies' FLEECY SPORTS COATS, Saxe only, 2/11½ usually 4/11.
Self-Coloured Delaine Blouses, Lace Yokes. Usually 3/11. Now 1/11½ each.
60 MAIDS' DRESS ROBES, in all colours, new models, in Cashmere and Wool Coating, at 3/11 each; were 6/11 to 12/11 each.
75 LADIES' DRESS ROBES, in all colours, new models, in Wool, Cashmere, and Coatings. Now 5/11. Usual price 8/11 to 12/11.
150 Ladies' All-Wool NAVY DRESS ROBES. Usual price 16/11 to 25/6. Now 9/11 each.
BLOUSE BARGAINS.
Ladies' Blouses in White Muslin, Cotton Pique, and Crepe Cloths, all at 1/0½. Usually 1/11½.
A Smart Lot of Ladies' Blouses, Low Collar, Half-Sleeves, in good quality Sponge Cloth, smartly trimmed. Usual price 3/11. Now 1/11½ each.
60 Ladies White MUSLIN ROBES, 3 designs. Usually 4/11. Now 2/11½.
250 DRESS SKIRTS, all latest models, in various Cloths, Serges, and Tweeds, 1/11½ each. Worth 3/11 and 4/11 each.
500 pairs LADIES' COLOURED LISLE HOSE, Saxe and Grey. Now 3½d. pair. Worth 6½d.
Another lot LACE LISLE, in Saxe and Grey, 4½d. pair. Half-price.
LADIES' FINE LISLE GLOVES, 3½d. pair. Usual price 6½d. to 1/0½ pair.
See our Extensive Window Display of the Most Genuine Bargains ever offered in Dress Fabrics, Silks, Ladies' and Children's Millinery, Underclothing, Corsets, Hosiery, Gloves, Ribbons, Feather Ruffles, Underskirts, Children's Costumes, Overalls, Dresses, &c. Our HOUSEHOLD DRAPERY SECTION is simply overflowing with Bargains in Bed Linen, Table Linen, Casement and Muslin Curtains, Washing Fabrics, &c. &c.
MAKE YOUR CALL TO-DAY AT
STEPHENSON'S, The Drapery Market
The Cross Arcade,
Extending from King Edward St. to Queen Victoria St. LEEDS.
(50 yards down either from Briggate)

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/9 and 2/6.
Or the Makers, Telephone 87 Central.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

The month of July is a busy time in the garden. Summer bedding and the potting of chrysanthemums, take up so much of the gardener's time during the previous month, that it is almost impossible to avoid allowing other garden work to get into arrears. The work is apt to get irksome at this time of the year, but personal inclinations will have to be put on one side, and an extra effort made to once more catch up with the work. There are numerous duties always calling for attention. In the flower garden the plants are just commencing to make satisfactory headway, and with the object of showing them off to the best advantage special points should be taken to keep everything trim and neat.

It is really surprising how great an improvement can be effected by keeping the grass edges closely cropped. Lawns may be mown without using the machine box. Staking and tying will claim some attention, and privet, thorn, and beech hedges may be clipped.

Beds and borders should have the surface soil frequently stirred with the hoe. This keeps weeds down, gives a neat appearance, and prevents the soil from drying rapidly. Remove decaying leaves and spent flowers from plants in the beds and borders.

POT PLANTS.

The work in this department will be varied just at present. Young plants in variety may require potting on, whilst others, such as seedling calceolarias and cinerarias may be pricked into boxes. Gardeners differ in opinion as to the wisdom of placing these seedlings in boxes. Some contend that better results are obtained by placing them in small pots straight away. Experience is the best teacher, and growers will do well to adopt such measures as have given most satisfaction to them in the past. Seeds of the two subjects mentioned, also primulas in variety, may still be sown. Young plants of fuchsias, balsams, petunias, geraniums, coleus, etc., should be potted on before they get root bound. Older plants that are commencing to bloom should be fed with farmyard manure water twice a week. Liliums developing flower buds should also receive regular supplies of liquid food. After flowering they should be stood outdoor in partial shade.

Greenhouses are now commencing to flower. They require less heat when the blooms begin to open. Liquid feeding may be continued until the first few flowers open. Special varieties may be increased by striking the leaves. They root freely if placed in sandy compost in a warm house.

THE VINERY.

The main crop of grapes should now be colouring nicely, and much less syringing and moisture will be required. The thermometer should not be allowed to drop below 60, and 10 degrees higher is the maximum to be aimed at. During hot sunny days it is impossible to prevent this by the best ventilating, up many degrees above 70. When this occurs plenty of top and side ventilation should be given, and a little extra damping down may be practised. Lateral growths must be removed before they attain a large size. In removing laterals it is advisable to leave one joint of the current shoot. Mid-season Court Pendu Plat vines grow very much subject to cracking of the fruit just before it is ripe. In this case it is advisable not to remove the lateral growths after the fruit commences to colour.

FIGS.

Figs are not nearly so popular as they deserve to be. The flavour of the newly ripened fruit is splendid. Years ago they were used to cloth the back walls of vineries and were of course badly shaded by the vines. This prevented them from fruiting satisfactorily, with the result that they have gained a reputation for being difficult to manage. As a matter of fact they are easy to grow providing a suitable position is found for them. They require plenty of sun and air, and the shoots may be stopped at the third leaf.

POT ROSES.

The main object of growing roses in pots is to obtain blooms when outdoor roses are out of season. One of the most important points in rose culture is to get the wood thoroughly ripened when growth is completed. Plants in the open ground do not get properly ripened if the autumn is damp and dull, but pot-grown plants may be ripened without much trouble. They may now be plunged in ashes in a sunny position outdoor. During dry weather regular attention must be paid to watering, but water should not be given until it is really needed. Allow the soil to get nearly dry, then give a good soaking. This is done with the object of giving the plants a partial rest, and thereby hastening the time when almost total cessation of growth will occur. They should never be allowed to get so dry as to cause the wood to shrivel, and if the leaves droop during the day apply water forcibly with a syringe in the evening. Plants that shed their leaves early should be separated from the remainder. They may be taken indoors a few weeks before the main batch, and will usually give a supply of very early blooms. In other cases that alter the plants are stood outdoor they are severely attacked by greenfly. When this occurs every effort should be made to cleanse them. If this is neglected it may seriously hamper the chances of success later on.

HOUSE PLANTS.

A Morley reader asks for advice concerning the treatment of several kinds of house plants, and confesses that plant cultivation is not a success as house plants which are totally unfit for the purpose. To some extent the complaint is a reasonable one, but on the other hand, much depends upon the house, and the treatment the plants receive. A pot plant requires moisture at the root, pure air, and light. Atmospheric moisture is a great help to growing plants, but this can scarcely be provided in a living room house. Foliage plants receive a certain amount of benefit from being stood outdoor during summer, weather if the temperature is not too low. Frequent sponging with soft water will materially assist them to keep fresh and healthy. One of the greatest drawbacks to the cultivation of plants in dwelling-houses are the fumes from burning gas. Much may be done towards minimising the trouble by removing the plants to another room whenever the gas is lighted. Another mistake, which ruins thousands of house plants, is allowing them to stand in water in fancy pots or in saucers. When water is needed it should be given in the usual way, and after surplus which passes through the pot bottom should be emptied out. An exception to this rule is the spirea. This plant takes up so much moisture that it is quite safe to stand it in a saucer of water. Readers who possess a greenhouse should change their house plants at least once a week.

LAYERING STRAWBERRIES.

In preparing strawberry runners for early fruiting the chief point is to get the plants moving in good time. Before autumn sets in they should be well rooted, and the crowns should be plump and firm. The best method of obtaining young plants is to root the runners in small pots. Fill the requisite number of 3-inch pots with ordinary compost, to which has been added about a quarter of its bulk of old mushroom bed. It is advisable to plunge the pots in the beds as this prevents them getting moist, and reduces the necessity of giving water. In selecting the runners to be propagated only those which form first on the string should be used. Beyond this the runners should be retained. In layering, fix them firmly in the middle of each pot, taking it to the soil by means of a hooked wire. Attend to watering daily for about three weeks, when the young plants should have developed sufficient roots to maintain them independently. Examine them carefully, and if they have rooted to the pot bottom they may be severed from the parent plants, and stood fairly close together in a partially-shaded position. Attend to watering, and a fortnight later stand them out in full sun. Select the strongest plants for early forcing and pot on into six-inch pots when the small pots are filled with roots.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Not much doing. Wheat still firm at 35s. to 36s.; oats 20s. 6d. to 22s., and rye 23s. per qr.

PROVISION.

SELBY, Monday—Eggs 11 and 12 for 1s., butter 11d. to 1s. per lb., potatoes 1st per sack; chickens 5s. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—New potatoes fetched £4 5s to £5 per ton. There was a fairly good supply considering that the crops have been put back by frosts. Retail price 4s. per hamper of six pounds. Next week it is likely there will be a lot on offer. For the few old potatoes left the prices were 60s. to 65s. per ton.

CATTLE.

WHITSIDE AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Bardle and Son offered 83 dairy and store cattle, 51 fat beasts, 68 sheep, 72 pigs, and 10 calves. The attendance was very much reduced by haymaking. A large show of milk cows, trade dragging, except for the very best class of cattle, and these sold up to £25 5s 6d, medium and useful kinds £18 7s. 6d. to £22, present calvers to £22 17s. 6d., October calvers to £22 10s. 6d., forward calvers useful to £20, and secondary kinds £17 10s. to 7fd., and cows 6½d. per lb. Sheep met a dear trade, small useful shortwools 45s. each, fat ewes 5½d. to 6½d. per lb. Pigs were cheaper, small porkers 7s. 6d., bonier weights 7s. per stone (14lb.), young store pigs 12s. 6d. to 20s. each, calves £1 9s. to £2 1s. each.

SELBY, Monday.—Messrs Richardson and Son disposed of 64 beasts, 37 sheep, 21 pigs. The usual attendance of butchers and dealers. Owing to hay harvest only a light supply of stock. Best quality beef sold readily at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d. per stone. A slow trade for stores, best quality invariably realising full demand. A brisk trade for sheep, making 9d. and lambs to 10½d. per lb. No quotable change in pigs. Prices as follow:—For bullocks up to £23 5s. 6d., fat heifers £20 17s. 6d., fat cows £18, store cattle £13, cows in calf £16 10s., heifers in calf £18 5s. 6d., cows with a fair amount of stock, £17 7s. 6d., fat lambs £1 19s. 6d., pork pigs £4 15s., store pigs (small) 13s.

WETHERBY, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had a good show of choice stock in all classes, which met a fair demand, at a shade less money on the week, owing possibly to the continued hot sultry weather. The attendance of butchers and dealers was about an average. Beef for choice medium weights maintained late prices, but strong bullocks had to be sold at 8s. 6d. to 8s. 9d. per stone, which sold for £23 2s. 6d., £21, £20 7s. 6d., £20 10s.; from Mr J. Oxley, four grand bullocks for £23 10s., £22 10s., £20 15s., £19 10s.; from Mr R. Machin sent eight good beef bullocks which sold for £20 12s. 6d., £20 10s., £20 2s. 6d., £19 15s., £19 10s., £19, four good bullocks from Mr J. W. Atkinson, sold for £22 10s., £20 7s. 6d., £19 15s., £19 5s.; from Mr Wm. Dunnington, two grand heifers, which sold for £23, £20 7s. 6d.; Mr J. H. Hall sent seven good beasts for £21 15s., £22 2s. 6d., £21 2s. 6d., £21, £20 12s. 6d., £20 15s., £19 10s.; from Mr H. Elvidge, two grand bullocks, £20 15s., £21; from Mr Kendall to £20 17s. 6d., £18 2s. 6d.; from Mr T. T. Dearlove £19, four bullocks, £17, etc.; from Mr R. Joy, two grand heifers £18 17s. 6d., £17 2s. 6d.; from Mr R. Beilby to £19 2s. 6d.; from Mr Jas. Simpson to £19 5s.; from Mr J. Norfolk, to £20 2s. 6d.; prime calves from Mr A. Kendall to 55s.; from Mrs Jerome to 56s. 6d.; Mr H. Hall sent a splendid lamb which sold for 62s.; prime lambs from Mr W. Dunnington to 45s. 6d.; Mr Myers to 43s.; Mr Wilkinson, Leeds, to 42s.; J. Simpson to 43s. 6d.; Mr Lister to 39s. 6d.; J. Britton 46s.; Mr Eyres to 46s.; Mr B. Dunnington to 42s. 6d.; prime fat sheep from Mr W. Walker made to 70s.; from Mr Machin to 65s. 6d.; Mr Dutton 62s.; Mr Joy 62s.; Mr R Beilby 63s. 6d.; Mr Kendall to 59s. 6d.; Mr J. Beilby 59s.; Mr Belberby to 51s. 6d.; Mr R. Machin, jun., to 48s.; Mr Blaken to 51s. 6d.; Mr Beech 57s. 6d.; Mr S. Barker to 65s., etc.

LADIES
BLANCHARD'S PILLS

Are unrivalled for all irregularities, &c., they speedily effect relief and serve to establish all sufferers. They supersede Pennyroyal, Pil Cochia, Bitter Apple, &c. BLANCHARD'S are the Genuine and only Pills that Succeed. Sold in boxes, 1/1½ by Boots' Branches, Taylor's Drug Co. Stores, and all Chemists, or post free from Sole Proprietor, LESLIE MARTIN, Ltd. Chemists, 36, DALSTON LANE, LONDON. Free Sample and Valuable Booklet, ment free, 1d. Stamp.

HUNSLET GUARDIANS AS CRICKETERS.

WHERE WERE THE HOUSE COMMITTEE?

The members of the House Committee of the Hunslet Board of Guardians made a poor response to the challenge which was issued by the members of the Homes Committee to meet them in a cricket match, after the meeting of the Homes Committee, on Monday afternoon. The weather was ideal, but for all that only three members of the House Committee (Mr T. G. Conyers, the genial chairman, Mr W. A. Appleyard, who also serves on the Homes Committee, and Mr Wright Stead), put in an appearance. It was fortunate for this that the House Committee were in a generous mood, for they allowed several of their members to help the Homes Committee mainly through the efforts of those who were performing an act of kindness in making up the side. Mr T. G. Conyers was the only member of the House Committee to bat, and he made a capital stand for 13 before a tricky ball from Mr J. R. Chappell hit his wickets.

The Homes Committee had their innings first, and against the bowling of Mr W. A. Appleyard, who upset them out of the six wickets, and that of Mr E. B. Pickersgill, the side were got out for 61. Mr W. Schofield made 22 runs, while Mr J. Butterick, whose complaint of rheumatism seemed a matter of bluff, and the superintendent of the Hunslet Mr C. P. Wardly, obtained 15 each. Mr J. R. Chappell, whose forte is bowling, was sent back by Mr Appleyard for a duck. Mr T. G. Conyers, who was the only member of the House Committee to bat, made 13, while Mr Pickersgill was still scoring fours, when the game was stopped. His total was 56. Scores:—

Homes Committee.
J. R. Chappell, b W. A. Appleyard	0
T. Bennett, b W. A. Appleyard	4
J. Butterick, b W. A. Appleyard	15
W. Schofield, c and b E B Pickersgill	22
C. P. Ward, not out	15
J. W. Verity, b E. B. Pickersgill	5
Total	61
House Committee
T. G. Conyers, b J. R. Chappell	*13
J. Guyne, not out	6
E. B. Pickersgill, not out	—
Total	75

During an interval tea was served to the teams. At the conclusion of the match a vote of thanks to Mr Chappell and the Homes Committee was moved by Mr T. G. Conyers. As Chairman of the House Committee, he had very great pleasure in moving a vote of thanks to the Chairman and the Homes Committee for the kindly way they had received them. It hoped that when they played the return match the House Committee would be equally successful. To him it had been a remarkable and unexpected pleasure. He was for several years on the Committee, and it was a great pleasure to meet old colleagues of the Homes.

Mr W. Appleyard seconded, and the vote was carried.

In reply, Mr Chappell, on behalf of the Homes Committee, said they had been delighted to meet a fragment of the House Committee. (Laughter). If it had not been for the presence of the Homes Committee the House Committee would have fared very badly, indeed. (Laughter). He was extremely disappointed from two standpoints. Firstly, there was a poor turn up from the House Committee, and a poor turn up on the part of the ladies. He had hoped that they also as a day for the ladies. He hoped that when the return match was played the ladies would be present, and that they would have as pleasant a day as they had had.

A STOURTON MAN AND INSURANCE BENEFITS.

WINNER OF £10 PRIZE.

Mr George Inman, of 98, Queen Street, Stourton, has won a prize of £10 offered by the "Evening News" for the best stories of benefits received under the National Insurance Act. Another prize-winner is Mr A. Fish, Kitchener Road, Selby. Mr Inman's winning paper was as follows:—

I developed consumption in the later part of 1912, and applied to the Insurance Commissioners for sanatorium benefit and was admitted in January, 1913, to Cardigan Sanatorium, where I stayed for twelve weeks. I was treated by both doctors and other officials in the best manner possible, every effort being made for the comfort and welfare of the patients. I received benefit from the Government, and was able to resume work. However, after working a few weeks, I contracted pneumonia, and was attended by my panel doctor, who called in the Tuberculosis Officer, and he recommended me to the Insurance Commissioners for extra nourishment. This benefit consisted of an order on a local tradesman for a supply of milk and eggs to the value of 5s. per week. During the thirteen weeks I was confined to bed my panel doctor visited me four and five times a week, with occasional visits from the tuberculosis officer and nurses.

My weekly sick pay of 10s. per week was paid regularly by a representative from my approved society.

The benefits I have received under the Act are as follows:—

Twelve weeks in a sanatorium;
Free sanatorium benefit every 3;
Five shillings per week extra nourishment (milk and eggs to the value);
Free medical attention;
Free medicines.

I am a working man, and should never have been able to get the treatment I have received had it not been for the Insurance Act, and I am sure that I received treatment from my doctor and chemist equal to what I should have received had I been a patient with private means.

In conclusion I may say that I have been treated with every kindness by those gentlemen who are administering the Insurance Act—doctors, sick visitors, the Insurance Commissioners, etc.—besides having received much benefit, which I am not so but for the help of the Insurance Act.

SELBY.

Two steel screw trawlers were launched from the shipyard of Messrs Cochrane and Sons, Ltd., at Selby on Saturday. The vessels were named "Orlanda" and "Marmo."

EVERY WOMAN Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means, Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD, Clarewont House, Dalston Lane, London.

KIPPAX VICARAGE LANDS.

MINERAL RIGHTS.

In the Court of Appeal, on Friday, the hearing was concluded of the case of Smith and another v. Medhurst and others upon the appeal by the defendants from a judgment of Mr Justice Warrington in the Chancery Division.

The plaintiffs in the action were the Rev. Ernill Broughton Smith (Vicar of Kippax) and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and the defendants were Mr Arthur Francis Hastings Medhurst and others who are now entitled to the manor of Kippax.

The case arose out of the construction of an enclosure Act passed in the reign of George III. in 1761, and the Act related to the Common of Hollings, which lay within the manor and township of Kippax.

Under the Act certain lands were awarded to the Vicar in lieu of tithes, and the question for decision was whether the vicar of the parish or the lord of the manor was entitled to the minerals under a portion of the glebe belonging to the vicarage that was allotted as glebe land under the award.

Mr Justice Warrington held that the minerals passed to and were the property of the vicar for the time being.

Mr Terrell, K.C., for the respondent vicar, argued that Mr Justice Warrington was right in holding that the minerals under the glebe allotted to the vicar belonged to the vicar of the parish for the time being. The clause for the protection of the vicar provided that "nothing herein contained shall be construed to extend to give rights to the Lord of the Manor of the said Soul, mines, and other minerals within the glebe lands now belonging, or allotted, or to be allotted to the vicarage at this time."

Their Lordships reserved judgment.

ROUNDHAY RESIDENT CHARGED WITH DRUNKENNESS.

DEFENDANT DISCHARGED.

Mr Arthur Cunningham, cinema theatre managing director, of Roundhay, appeared before Mr C. M. Atkinson (Stipendiary Magistrate), at Leeds, on Friday, on a charge of being drunk while having a motor car under his charge, in Briggate, Leeds, on Thursday night. Mr Arthur W. Willey defended.

About 11.30 p.m., it was alleged, the defendant backed his motor-car down Briggate, and into the front of a tramcar. Very little damage was done, but the defendant refused to give his name and address, or to produce his licence when asked to do so by a policeman. The officer said he found that defendant was drunk, and when a crowd gathered and two more policemen came on the scene, he was asked to leave the car. He refused, but a friend, Mr A. E. Whiteman, got off a tramcar and drove the motor to the Millgarth Police Station.

Superintendent Bulmer: What are your grounds for saying he was drunk?

The witness: He seemed very strongly, could not walk straight, and he was not very clear in his speech. The defendant, the witness added, asked for two doctors, whom he named, to be sent for from the police station, but neither of them attended.

In cross-examination, the officer said that no damage was done by the collision.

Mr Willey: Can you tell me a single thing that was not the observation of a sober man? Did he say anything uncivil?—The witness: No.

Do you say he was very drunk?—Well, he was not fit to drive.

Would he have been fit to take charge of a donkey and cart?—No, sir. (Laughter).

The Magistrates: If this man had walked past you and said "Good night, captain," you would not have arrested him? (Laughter).—No, sir.

But if he had said "Get along, you old fool," you would have arrested him?—Yes. (Laughter).

Ernest Morris, driver of the first tramsar, said that he could tell that the defendant was drunk. A police-sergeant from the Millgarth Station said that the defendant was asleep ten minutes after he was placed in a cell.

Mr Willey: What would you expect him to do? You told him he wouldn't be released until three o'clock.—The witness: Yes.

The defendant, in evidence, said that he had been on business until eleven o'clock, and had four bottles of beer. He was not drunk, but quite capable. He reversed his car out of a difficult garage yard, and was backing into Commercial Street when the car and the tram collided.

Mr J. C. Whiteman, of the Pack Horse Hotel, said that he saw what occurred from the top of a tram, and the tram was moving when the collision took place. Mr Cunningham was certainly not drunk.

Mr A. E. Whiteman, who drove the car to the police station, said that he saw the defendant both before and after the collision, and he was quite sober.

The Magistrate said that the defendant had been obstinate and very unwise in his general conduct, but he did not think he was drunk, and he would be discharged.

ULCERATED LEG CURED AT 70 YEARS OF AGE.

(Copy). 9, Alcton Road, Castleford.

Dear Mr. Crosswaite,

I feel it a duty upon me to acknowledge to you the benefit I have received from using your valuable remedy. I am 70 years of age and have suffered with Ulcerated Legs for the last six years and have spent many pounds in medicine, salve, ointments, lotions, &c., but all to no avail. At last, when I had almost lost hope of ever being cured, I was induced to try your treatment, with the happy result that I am thereby able to tender you my most sincere thanks for my perfect cure. You are at liberty to make whatever use you like of this acknowledgment, and you may rest assured I shall recommend your treatment to anyone I hear of similarly afflicted to what I was. Again thanking you for the benefit received at your hands, allow me to remain,—Yours thankfully,

JOHN WILSDON.

SKIN SPECIALISTS
MEDICAL HERBALISTS
PROF. CROSSWAITE
54, KIRKSTALL ROAD, LEEDS.
HOURS OF ATTENDANCE:
Morning: 10 to 12. Afternoon: 3 to 4. Evening: 5 to 8.
WEDNESDAY (Evenings only) 6.30 to 8.
No Attendance on Sundays.
COMFORTABLE WAITING ROOM.
PRIVATE CONSULTING ROOM

A CROSSGATES MAN'S FAILURE.

STARTED BUSINESS WITH £5 CAPITAL.

James Luther Thorpe, formerly a hardware and crockery dealer at the Arcade, Crossgates, underwent his public examination at the Leeds Bankruptcy Court, on Tuesday. His liabilities were given at £222, and there was a deficiency of £158.

The debtor ascribed his failure to competition, County Court costs, interest on borrowed money, and lack of capital for trading.

In reply to the Official Receiver Mr H. Clifford Bowling), the debtor said that he began business as a cycle dealer in 1905, with a capital of about £5. He later incorporated the business of hardware and crockery dealer. The competition referred principally to the cycle business. For the first two or three years he did fairly well, but in 1909 he borrowed money from a man who had since become a professional money-lender. He paid interest at the rate of 5 per cent., on monthly accounts.

The Official Receiver: That is about 60 per cent, per annum.

The Debtor: Yes, but I paid them pretty regularly.

How did you expect to do business without capital?—Well, for a time, up to 1907, I did well, and things were getting better. The debtor's wife kept the books.

You cannot do a credit trade without capital. —Yes, I found that out.

The Official Receiver: You had no reasonable expectation of being able to pay those debts incurred within the last twelve months.

Debtor said he was hoping to do better as time went on.

You were hoping against hope?—Perhaps so.

The examination was closed.

OTTER HUNTING AT HAREWOOD

MASK PRESENTED TO MR BROTHERTON.

Mr W. Thompson's otter hounds met on Friday at Harewood Bridge, and the master had a pack of twenty couples for Harewood dam in a deep, heavy water. Drawing up stream they were no signs of game at the mouth of the runner from the Park lake, and beyond a few stale touches there was nothing doing in the dam.

Rougemont was passed, and it was some distance round the big bend towards Arthington Nunnery, when hounds opened on a steady drag which gradually strengthened, until half-way through Arthington Pastures they were able to mark at a root on the Weeton side of the river. It took a few minutes with the aid of a terrier to bolt her, but she moved to another favourite rest a short distance below, and when hounds moved her out of that she returned to her first one, and continued these tactics for some time before electing to leave, when she made a bold dash down stream, swimming strongly through the lower stickle, hounds swimming after her with a fine cry, whilst gave hope of a decent stretch, a racing on the Harrogate line ensued.

After a quarter of a mile swim, hounds flashed over her, but cast themselves back and refound her in the willows, and for over an hour kept her moving backwards and forwards, but she went gradually falling ad the time, until, although they could always swim she wash, they could not speak to it.

Once they swam the wash a long way down stream, past the Nunnery, a very pretty piece of hound work, casting themselves back, and on their return, the foiled hounds flashed over her, and they again went up stream, when she took refuge in the original root, where she was found, but hounds were full of drive, and after quitting and returning to the same root they swam nearly as far as Arthington Hall, turned and swam down again for some little distance, landed on the bank, and made for a runner, which flows from above Riffa Wood, and canes into the river below Wescoe Hill.

In th's runner was the entrance of a long stone drain, and there she took refuge. It was nearly full of water, but one of the hunt terriers succeeded in bolting her—a bitch otter, 16lb. Time from finding to marking to ground, 4 hours.

The mask was presented by the Master to Mr E. A. Brotherton, the Lord Mayor of Leeds, who is a member and follower of Mr Thompson's hunt.

MR LANE FOX'S SUGGESTION TO THE CHANCELLOR.

In the discussion on the Finance Bill in the House of Commons on Monday, Mr Lloyd George moved an amendment to Clause 3, providing, with the object of stimulating home supply, tax of 10½d. on every £1 of income in repairs, insurance, and management should be able to deduct the full amount of his legitimate expenditure. Up to the present the limit had been 25 per cent.

Mr Prettyman desired on behalf of the agricultural interest generally to thank the Chancellor of the Exchequer for this concession. (Laughter). The huge expenditure of some landlords had amounted to far more than 25 per cent.; and he gratefully welcomed a concession which would have the effect of charging these landowners on Schedule D. (Hear, hear).

Mr Lane Fox suggested that the five years' average expenditure required for working out a claim for deduction was hardly necessary. It involved a great deal of clerical work, and involved an enormous amount of trouble in the cases of estates which did not possess elaborate and well-organised estate offices. It was a great hardship on many small estates to produce a great mass of literature over so many years. It meant long and expensive accounts for particular work on the estate. For instance, the amount of nails, lime, and tiles used in the maintenance of cottages would be required to be shown separately from the amount of similar materials used in respect of other portions of the estate. Small landowners and tenants were becoming more accustomed to that kind of work, but at the same time he hoped the Chancellor of the Exchequer would see his way to reduce the average required of five years and make the process of claiming reduction as easy as possible, because it was in the case of the smaller estates which found it most difficult to make the return, that the relief was most needed. (Hear, hear).

Mr Montague said the five years was the result of a compromise. The original proposal affected the Land Values Duties. He thought the five years' average had worked well.

The amendment was agreed to.

SELBY

A NARROW ESCAPE.—John Wm. Grace, aged 8, whose mother lives at No. 5, Shipyard, Selby, was rescued from fire and drowning in the Canal near his home on Sunday. The boy was playing with a boat which he was drawing with a rope, but it pulled him into the water. He sank, and was in imminent danger of drowning. Several people near tried to effect a rescue, diving into the water several times, but were unsuccessful. After being some minutes in the water the boy was secured by a young man named Tom Steele, an expert swimmer, who brought him to the bank.

Telegrams Scott, Selby. Telephone 194.

IF YOU REQUIRE

GENUINE RAW PERUVIAN GUANO, FISH GUANO, SULPHATE of AMMONIA, NITRATE of SODA, RAPE NUTS and DUST, CAKE MEAL PURE DISSOLVED BONES, PURE BONE MEAL and FLOUR, SUPER, PHOSPHATE of LIME (50 per cent.), BASIC SLAG, SULPHATE of POTASH, MURIATE of POTASH, GENUINE KAINIT, LAND SALT (in Truck Loads), ETC., ETC.

We shall be pleased to quote Prices for any quantity.

QUALITY and GOOD CONDITION of the above GUARANTEED. PROMPT DELIVERY can be given either at Works here or at Buyer's Station.

M. SCOTT & Co
OIL MILLS, SELBY.

TEASDALE'S
Thousands of People Praise
Teasdale's Chlorodyne
—the old and trusted medicine that has stood the test of 70 years—as the best remedy known for COUGHS, COLDS, COLIC, CRAMP.
STOMACH ACHE. BOWEL PAINS. DIARRHŒA.
Mr. Bramham, Kirkhamgate, Wakefield, says:—"For sixteen years Teasdale's Chlorodyne has been our family medicine for Coughs, Colds, Diarrhœa, Sleepless Nights, and all kinds of complaints. We have had other Chlorodynes, but find none half so good as Teasdale's. Teasdale's Chlorodyne should always be kept in the house as handy family medicine. It saves doctors' bills."
Trial Bottle, only 7½d., Larger Sizes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d. Can be had of Chemists; also Boot's and Taylor's Drug Stores, and Goodall, Backhouse, & Co.
ASK FOR
TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.
Refuse others recommended to be as good. Insist on having "TEASDALE'S."

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.
Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

The hot, dry weather always causes trouble of some kind or other in most poultry yards, but the extent of this trouble is in a large measure governed by the owner of the birds. The wise poultry-keeper will have taken time by the forelock and have everything in readiness for a spell of bright sunshine. The necessary shelters for the birds will be up, the houses, &c., freshly creosoted or lime-washed in fact, everything done that will further the comfort of the birds. Shelter from the hot sun is necessary to poultry, both young and old, as is shelter from rain, and neglect to furnish this will cause much trouble, if not heavy losses. Birds that are forced to stand about in the sun all day long are not improved in health by such treatment, and they are quite likely to be seized with apoplexy or vertigo, and whilst the latter may often be cured, the former almost always ends fatally within a few hours. Provide the birds with adequate shelter is Rule No. 1 for the hot weather.

Rule No. 2 is: keep the houses, runs, feeding utensils, &c., scrupulously clean and clean. Fleas and other members of this lively little family thrive splendid during the bright days of summer; in fact, the hotter it is the better they like it, and they enjoy existence accordingly. I have a great hot fowlhouse that was cleaned out about six months ago. In such, and given a high temperature, I guarantee that you will soon have a prosperous colony of fleas, lice, and co., unlimited.

The object of my readings, hower, is poultry-keeping and not flea-keeping, therefore you must be up and doing, unless you have a desire to see your birds suffering from the master hand—a thing they very soon will do, unless you thwart them in time. Clean out the roosts daily, and don't be stingy with the creosote or lime-wash, but put it on with a free and easy hand, not forgetting those little cracks and crevices, as these are, to the mother fleas' minds, ideal nurseries. Frequently renew the nesting material, burning the old and not carelessly throwing it about.

Rule No. 3 relates to the feeding. Don't mix the soft mash up about a week before you want it, as by so doing it is quite sour when fed to the birds, and causes diarrhœa and similar maladies.

Mix it up as it is wanted; no, not even in the morning for use during the day, as in hot weather moist meal rapidly ferments. As the mealtimes arrive so must you mix up the food. It may be a little extra bother, but it is better to endure this than to see your most promising birds turning their toes towards the sky after weeks of careful tending. Again, don't make the mash too sloppy, as this is uncomfortable then they are by stuffing them with heat-forming food like maize. Maize should be entirely dropped during the summer months, and good plump white oats substituted. A soft mash made up of Sussex ground oats dried off, with sharps or biscuit meal, similarly dried off, may be given first thing, although many discontinue soft feeding during the warm weather, giving whole oats instead. Green food is always an important item in the menu, but its importance is greatly enlarged during the hot weather. It is to the fowls a blood-cooling medicine, and it must be given regularly and liberally.

Fresh drinking water is another highly important thing, and must have particular attention. It must be frequently renewed, and the fountains stood in a cool, shady place. Tepid, stagnant water is highly injurious. Flint grit and animal food must not be overlooked.

(To be continued).

(Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer direct, or those sending specimens for examination, must remit half-crown postal order).

ONE THING AND ANOTHER.

NOSE-RUBBING.

Maori women of New Zealand know nothing about kissing. Nose-rubbing is their form of salutation, and when two friends meet they hold each other's hands, bend their heads, and rub their noses touch, and then rub them gently from side to side. This form of greeting is not confined to the women, but they seldom meet without rubbing noses. In times of lamentation they throw dust on their heads, and their noses touching and mourn for the loss of some chief whom they have in all probability never seen.

EVOLUTION OF THE PENCIL.

When the Egyptians, Romans, and other ancient races wrote on papyrus, or parchment, their instrument was a pointed reed. When they used wooden tablets or wax they made their letters with a sharp stylus of bone or bronze. It is true that a bronze nib was found at Pompeii, and that silver pens were sometimes used in the Middle Ages, but they were merely the curiosities of princes and great men, and until the nineteenth century the quill was the only pen in common use among Western peoples. The pencil as we now know it was an even later invention, says the Graphic. The earliest black lead pencil known in history was mentioned in a book printed at Zurich in 1565, but it was not until the seventeenth century that a little stick of graphite enclosed in wood became familiar to all classes of society, as manufactured from the Borrowdale plumbago mines in Cumberland.

THE NUPTIAL RING.

Few brides in these days have any idea why the fourth finger of the left hand is chosen for the wedding-ring, except that it is more convenient than others for a reason common for all alike. The fact is that the Romans, with whom the wedding-ring originated, selected this finger because they believed that a nerve went from it direct to the heart.

LOOSENING GLASS STOPPERS.

There are several ways of loosening the glass stoppers of decanters and bottles. One is to stand the bottle in hot water, another is to drop a little oil with a feather between the stopper and the decanter and stand it near the fire. After a time tap the stopper gently with a piece of wood on all sides, and if it does not move repeat the process. A strip of flannel may be wound round the neck of the bottle and smartly pulled backward and forward to produce friction will sometimes loosen stoppers.

FOR TOWN or COUNTRY.
For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.

THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
AT
Fabor 45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

A HEARSON INCUBATOR for 5/- a year!
A 60-Egg Hearson costs £5 5 0 complete and carriage paid, and will hatch every fertile egg for upwards of 12 years, therefore the initial outlay works out at less than 5/- per annum. This is the poultry rearer's most profitable investment. "Hints on Rearing and Feeding Chicks" and "How to Sex Fowls," which is published at 1/-, Free to Purchasers of Hearson Incubators.
Prospectus from the Sole Manufacturers, 24-25, Fenchurch St., London, E.C.

FINAL REDUCTION FOR SITTINGS
4/- There is still time to set eggs from light breeds, 4/- per sitting of 15 eggs, carriage paid. Strain of White Leghorn, Buff Rock or Buff Orpington. Eggs from Pure Bred Utility Stock, Black and Buff Orpingtons, Silver Wyandottes, White Rock and Rouen Ducks, 5/- per sitting.
Pure-bred Ingoldmells Chicks of above breeds, 12/- dozen.
RALPH R. ALLEN, SAWBRIDGEWORTH, HERTS.

ALLEN'S CHOLERA CURE. Price 2/3, post paid.
A positive Cure for Cholera, Bowel Trouble, Indigestion, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, &c. Used occasionally, it is a Preventive of Disease. Used as directed it will effectually prevent Diseases of the Digestive Organs.
ALLEN'S GAPE CURE. Price 2/3, post paid.
Will surely rid your birds of this dangerous disease. Free on receipt of Postcard. Full instructions with every Box.
ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES. Price 1/6 per Box of 36, post paid.
The Poultry Friend. Immediately a bird is noticed off-colour, give a Capsule, and watch the result. Will prevent and correct liver troubles, and will keep a bird in condition. Also a cheap and speedy cure for Roup. Give a drake or two before and after shows they are invaluable.
ALLEN'S VERMIN DESTROYER. Price 1/2 per Large Tin, post paid.
The whole flock should be dusted occasionally. Free on receipt of Postcard. Full instructions with every Packet. Sufficient for a dusting of 6 fowls.
RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

SHERBURN-IN-ELMET SHOW.

GOOD AGRICULTURAL HORSE DISPLAY.

A SUCCESSFUL DAY.

THE PRIZE-WINNERS.

The twenty-sixth show of the Sherburn-in-Elmet Agricultural Society was held on Monday at Sherburn under ideal conditions, and, although hay-making kept a good many people away from the show field, there was a good attendance of spectators during the afternoon and evening, when selections of music were discoursed by Milford Junction N.E.R. Silver Band.

A falling-off in the number of entries in horse classes has been a common experience of show committees this season, and it was no surprise to find a slight drop at Sherburn; but those entries were clean about ten, but cattle and sheep were up to the average, although some stock entered was not forward owing to farmers being busy in the hayfield. There was an excellent little show of poultry, and this feature of the meeting could easily be developed if the people in the district would display a keener interest in it.

Mr F. Hey is chairman of the Society, Mr C. W. Helm vice-chairman, Mr C. Esbelby the courteous and energetic secretary, Mr F. Bramley the hon. treasurer, and the members of the committee are:—Messrs J. Atkinson, G. H. Ambler, J. Bramley, T. Bumby, C. Cawthorn, G. D. Cliff, C. Dixon, H. Firn, W. Hawley, H. Hawley, G. Hill, H. Hare, A. Johnson, T. Jones, R. Lamb, C. Longfield, J. Marshall, T. Marshall, J. G. Parkin, T. Richardson, W. Smith, E. Stoker, E. Sykes, T. Tomlinson, A. Thompson, W. H. Thompson, W. Wainwright, C. Welburn, C. Whitehead, A. Witter, E. Witter, C. E. Wilstrop, and Dr. Oglesby. Poultry Sub-Committee—Messrs G. H. Ambler, A. Johnson, C. Cawthorn, H. Hawley, and G. D. Cliff. Sports Sub-Committee—Messrs A. Johnson, E. Stoker, W. H. Thompson, H. Firn, E. Hill, C. Cawthorn, and T. Richardson, and Dr. Oglesby.

The Society has a balance at the bank of £111 10s. 9d., and the committee offered a sum of £115 in prizes, and several silver cups. In some of the horse classes the entry was good, but in others it was very discouraging. Some excellent animals, however, were forward, a number having won prizes at larger shows.

The judges were as follows:—Agricultural classes—Mr A. Whinnerah, Warton Hall, Carnforth; and Mr F. Faulkner, Sykehouse, Snaith, R.S.O. Hunters and hackney classes—Mr J. Lodley, Stockwell Stud, Kirkby Grange, Tadmaster; and Mr W. Bramley, Park Place, North Duffield, Selby. Cattle, sheep, and sheep—Mr W. Dunn, Catfoss House, Sigglesthorne, Hull; Mr H. Knowles, Hunsingore, Wetherby. Butter, eggs, and bread—Mrs A. McNeil, Thorgarsby Lodge, York; Mrs W. Bramley, Park House, North Duffield, Selby. Poultry—Mr R. Stainthorp, Darlington. The awards were:—

HORSES.

Agricultural Foal—1, E. Lawson, Biggin; 2, C. W. Helm, Rest Park; 3, J. Turner, Monk Fryston.

Agricultural Filly Foal—1, G. H. Collins, Hillam; 2, E. Stoker, Hagg House, Hambleton; 3, C. Bailey, Saxton.

Colt or Filly Foal, by any of the Bramhope Stud horses—1, G. Hill, Croft Farm, Sherburn.

Colt or Filly Foal, by any of the horses at Mr E. Parkes' Ledsham—1, C. W. Helm, Rest Park; 2, W. H. Welburn and Son, Huddleston Hall.

Colt or Filly Foal by any of the horses of R. Lamb, Fenton—1, E. Lawson, Biggin; 2, H. Jagger, Biggin; 3, C. Parker, Carleton Green.

Colt or Filly Foal by any of Mr J. R. Beattie's horses—1, H. Pullan, Sherburn; 2, J. Turner, Monk Fryston; 3, G. Beevors, Church Fenton.

Agricultural Yearling Colt, Gelding or Filly—1, E. T. Parker, Ledsham; 2, W. H. Welburn and Son.

Agricultural Two-year-old Gelding or Filly—1 and Shire Horse Society's silver medal, J. Sherrard, Bank; 2, R. Thompson and Son, Scruff Hall, Selby; 3, J. W. and A. Pollard, Moor Allerton Hill, Leeds; reserve, C. W. Helm; h.c., E. T. Parker.

Three-year-old Gelding or Filly—1, W. Clough, jun., Flaxby Lodge, Selby.

Agricultural Brood Mare, which has been bred, or owned for one year previous to the show, and is the property of bona fide tenant farmers in South Milford, Lotherton, Aberford, Parlington, Barwick-in-Elmet, Barkston, Saxton-cum-Scarthingwell, Scarthingwell, Sherburn-Elmet, Scarthingwell, Sherburn-Elmet, Scarthingwell, Sherburn-Elmet

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20 ...	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 3
30 ...	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 5
40 ...	1 0	2 0	3 6	6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do.	10d. do.	do.
52 do.	8d. do.	do.

TO LET.

TO Let Good COTTAGE, with Living Room, Scullery, and Three Bedrooms. Rent 4s. clear.—Apply, Chas. Briers, Barwick-in-Elmet. 1 2026

WANTED

GOOD GENERAL wanted.—Apply, Mrs Verity, Roseville, Green Lane, Whitkirk, Leeds. 1 1470

WANTED Good, Capable GENERAL. No washing.—Apply, Mrs. Pickering, Garforth.

GOOD DAY GIRL wanted. Small family.—Mrs Holliday, The Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 2 2045

WANTED LAD for FARM WORK. Live in. About. 16.—Apply, G. Dixon, Swillington.

WANTED for country near Ilkley, GENERAL SERVANT. References required.—Apply, Ring, Wharfedale Grange, Ben Rhydding. 3

WANTED Strong, Smart BOY, about 14 years.—Apply, after 6 p.m., John Peacock, Plumber, Station Road, Crossgates.

WANTED Respectable YOUNG GIRL. Four in family. No children. Good home.—Mrs Wilkinson, 5, Talbot Grove, Street Lane, Roundhay.

WANTED HOUSE in CROSSGATES or District by July, August, or September. Rent £17 to £19.—Apply, Box S, "Skyrack Courier" Office, Leeds. 1 2017

LAMPLIGHTER wanted for No. 2 District, TEMPLENEWSAM. Average time, 21 hours per week.—Apply to W. B. Pindar, Council Offices, Hunslet, Leeds.

LAMPLIGHTERS wanted for Nos. 2 and 3 Districts, OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD. Average time No. 2 district, 21 hours per week; No. 3 district, 14 hours per week.—Apply to W. B. Pindar, Council Offices, Hunslet, Leeds.

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale Small DRAPERY BUSINESS.—Apply, Wm. Green, Kippax.

YOUNG AIREDALE BITCH for Sale.—Apply, Frank Whitford, Station Road, Kippax. 1

FOR Sale 100 Strong GOSLINGS, various ages. Prices from 3/6 to 5/- each.—Andoy, Poultry Breeder, Aberford. 2 1487

FOR Sale 3½ h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR-CYCLE and SIDECAR, in good condition. Cheap.—Dockray, Harelroyde, Green Lane, Whitkirk.

FOR Sale PIANOLA. Cost £55. Almost new. £10. Free inspection. Financial trouble.—Address, Box 2203, "Skyrack Courier" Office, 2, Aire Street, Leeds. 1

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also first-class YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandon Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free 2 Stamps.—(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road. Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs Wood, Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.
Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist. 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrapper, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address:—Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc. kept in Stock

DENTISTRY.
W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 36a. Boar Lane (over Messrs Newby's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s., each. Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 1s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3617C.

Established 37 years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
99, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
ESTATE AGENTS & RENT COLLECTORS.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc., Insurance Brokers.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

BY Permission of the Hon. E. F. L. WOOD, M.P., parts of the PARK and PLEASURE GROUNDS at TEMPLENEWSAM will be THROWN OPEN to the PUBLIC on SUNDAY AFTERNOONS, July 19th and 26th, from 2 to 6 p.m. Entrance by Whitkirk and Halton Moor Roads only.
The Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., relies upon the visitors to observe the printed notices and to see that no damage is done to the trees or shrubs. No bicycles, motor-cycles, conveyances, or dogs will be allowed in the Park.

TEMPLENEWSAM HABITATION OF THE PRIMROSE LEAGUE & CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATION.

GRAND DEMONSTRATION
IN TEMPLENEWSAM PARK,
SATURDAY, July 18th, 1914.
Speakers:—
SIR MARK SYKES, Bart., M.P.
*G. R. LANE FOX, Esq., M.P.
DARCY R. WILSON, Esq. and others.
Chairman:—
THE HON. E. F. L. WOOD, M.P.
Speeches 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.
Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance.
Refreshments at moderate charges.
Park open 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.
Entrances: North Lodge, Whitkirk, and Halton Moor Road.
Motors, Cycles, and Carriages at Whitkirk North Lodge only.
Admission to Park, 3d.
Tickets may be had from any member of the Committees of the Primrose League and the Conservative Association.

CROSSGATES & DISTRICT SWEET PEA SOCIETY.
A GRAND EXHIBITION OF SWEET PEAS and ROSES
will be held in the
CROSSGATES WESLEY SUNDAY SCHOOLROOM,
SATURDAY, JULY 25th, 1914.
To be opened at 3 p.m., and closed at 7.45.
Open to the Public.
Entries close Tuesday, July 21st.
GEORGE TUCKER, Hon. Sec.
Roseville Terrace,
Crossgates, Leeds.

GARFORTH MEDICAL CHARITIES.
ANNUAL CARNIVAL AND SPORTS.
will be held
On SATURDAY, JULY 25th.
FRANCIS PRATT, Hon. Sec.

SEACROFT.
SALE OF WORK.
in the
VICARAGE GARDEN
ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 29th, 1914.
Please Note Alteration of Date.
2153

Under the Patronage of the Right Rev. The Bishop of Knaresborough.
GARDEN FETE AND SALE OF WORK
will be held at
BROOKFIELD, GARFORTH BRIDGE,
on SATURDAY, AUGUST 1st, 1914,
Commencing at 3 o'clock.
In aid of the Swillington Church Expenses.
Sale of Work, Small Stall, Flower Stall, Sweet and Sample Stall, Ice Creams, Gamos, Competitions, Cocoanut Shies, Slow Bicycle Race, Sack Race, Donkey Rides, Brown and Polson's Cake Making Competition, Dramatic Entertainment.
Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance. Dancing on the Lawn, commencing at 6.30.
Admission 6d.; After 6 p.m., 3d.
Meat Tea in the Garden, 1s. 6d.; Tea in the House, 1s.

CLIFFORD VILLAGE SPORTS.
MONDAY (Bank Holiday), AUG. 3rd, 1914
Commence 1 p.m. Admission 6d.
Open Events:—440 Yds. Hurdle Race (Handicap), Prizes—20s., 10s., 5s. 100 Yards Handicap, Prizes—50s., 20s., 10s. One Mile Bicycle Race (Handicap). Prizes—30s., 15s., 7s. 6d. Obstacle Race, Prizes—20s. 10s., 5s.
Entry Fee 1s. each event; close July 28th.
There will also be events for Residents in the village.
Prizes for Open Events will be given in Cash.
For Entry Forms apply to THOS. SMITH, Hon. Sec., 11, St. Edward's Terrace, Clifford, Boston Spa.

FOX'S CYCLE STORES,
BRIGGATE, GARFORTH, Near LEEDS.
Agent for
RENOWNED CENTAUR CYCLES
at Popular Prices, from £5 5s. 0d.
See Special Value Guaranteed Cycle, Free Wheel, 2 Rim Brakes, 13 months' Guaranteed Tyres at £3 17s. 6d. cash.
EXPERT ON ALL REPAIRS.
J.E.S. 1 h.p. Auxiliary Stocked (also Petrol).

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
VICAR LANE,
96 (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 for 2½d. per month.
£1 0 0 ,, 5d. ,, ,,
£2 0 0 ,, 10d. ,, ,,
£3 10 0 ,, 1od. ,, ,,
£3 0 0 ,, 15. 0d. ,, ,,
£5 0 0 ,, 1s. 3d. ,, ,,
£8 0 0 ,, 2s. 8d. ,, ,,
£10 0 0 ,, 3s. 4d. ,, ,,
Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
96 OLD ADDRESS
VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE. Age Limit, 16-65!

Section	Death	Total Disablement up to 26 weeks	Per Week	One Week	Two Weeks	One Month
	£	£
A	500	60	3/-	5/-	10/-
B	250	25	1/6	2/6	5/-
C	100	10	9d.	1/-	2/-

These insurances do not cover Professional or Trade Risks, or obviously dangerous adventure.
GENERAL
ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD., PERTH, SCOTLAND.
Assets nearly £7,000,000. Established 1885

PUBLIC NOTICES.

SALE OF WORK AND FETE,
In the GROUNDS of MONK FRYSTON HALL, in Aid of FOREIGN MISSIONS (S.P.G., &c.).
SATURDAY, JULY 18th.
To be opened at 2.30 by
Mrs. H. L. LYON, HILLAM HALL.
MISSIONARY PLAY, MAYPOLE DANCE, and other attractions.
Addresses by
Rev. W. A. HEWETT, Rector of Castleford.
Rev. CANON TUPPER CAREY.
Teas 6d. and 9d.
Admission to Grounds from 2 p.m., 3d.
Entertainments 3d. and 1d.

MONK FRYSTON SHOW & SPORTS
will be held
ON TUESDAY, JULY 28th, 1914
in the
Beautiful Park at Monk Fryston
(By kind permission of Rev. B. Hemsworth, M.A.).
DONKEY RACE, LEAPING, DRIVING IN HARNESS, RUNNING, CYCLING, &c.
ABOUT £140 IN PRIZES.
The Shire Horse Medals and Cups.
Castleford Subscription Prize Band will play selections.
Late trains from Monk Fryston Station to Church Fenton, York, Burton Salmon, Castleford, Normanton, Pontefract, and Sheffield at 9.30 p.m.
Agricultural Entries close July 25th.
Sports Entries close July 24th, (Morging's post).
For Schedules apply,
J. LONGBOTTOM, Hon. Sec.
Crown Inn.

PRELIMINARY ANNOUNCEMENT.
In Aid of the Funds of the West Riding Nursing Association.
ROSE and SWEET PEA FETE,
in the grounds of
MONK FRYSTON HALL.
Under Distinguished Patronage.
SATURDAY, AUGUST 29th, 1914.
EXHIBITION of NATURAL and ARTIFICIAL (PAPER) ROSES, and SWEET PEAS, and CHILDREN'S DRAWINGS of FLOWERS.
Write for Schedule of Prizes to Mrs Hoswarth, Monk Fryston Hall, South Milford, Yorkshire, enclosing addressed and stamped envelope for return.
CONCERTS in the Tapestried Ballroom, under the direction of Cassandra, Countess of Rosse.
EXHIBITION of WATER-COLOURS by Amateur Artists in the neighbourhood.
STALLS of FLOWERS, SWEETS, PLAIN WORK, TOYS, FANCY ARTICLES.
Popular Prices. Further particulars later.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.
WEEK COMMENCING JULY 20th 1914.
STAR PROGRAMMES.
ALL THE LATEST AND BEST OF THE CINEMA ART.
DRAMA, HUMOUR, INSTRUCTION.
Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., and Friday at 7. Saturday 3, 6.30, and 8.30.
Admission: 2d., 4d., 6d. 6d. Seats may be booked
Children half-price Saturday afternoon.

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists.
Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
PROPRIETOR: H. BEEFORTH.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions—Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
Is Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free, on British and Foreign Patents,. Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 35Y.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for

THOS. COOK & SON,

CALL and see us IF YOU WISH FOR ADVICE	BOOK PASSAGES or give any information about EMIGRATING to CANADA, AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, AFRICA, AMERICA, &c., &c.	ESTABLISHED 1841.
NO CHARGE	We have our own Offices and staff in each of these Countries.	140 OFFICES in PARTS OF THE WORLD.

55, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 120 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

NEXT WEDNESDAY AT 12 O'CLOCK.
THE AUCTION MART, WHITKIRK.
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will hold their Monthly Horse Sale on Wednesday, July 22nd, when they will offer
60 VALUABLE HORSES, CARRIAGES, HARNESS, &c.
Further entries should reach the Auctioneers, Garforth, not later than noon on Tuesday next.

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 10.30 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART.
25 to 30 PRIME CAKE-FED BULLOCKS and HEIFERS.
100 FAT SHEEP and LAMBS.
25 PORK and STORE PIGS.
11 FAT DUCKS.
WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

6, SALISBURY TERRACE, GARFORTH.
On MONDAY, JULY 27th, at 11.30 O'CLOCK.
Mr WILLIAM ASH.
Will Sell by Auction
THE WELL-MADE CABINET FURNITURE and EFFECTS, including:—
WALNUT DINING-ROOM SUITE, in figured crimson plush. Screw-frame DINING TABLE, extending to 15ft. by 4ft. 3in. A 5-ft. 6-in. Solid SPANISH MAHOGANY ENCLOSED SIDEBOARD, Walnut and Gilt OVERMANTELS, Mahogany BOOKCASE, Knee-hole WRITING TABLE, Singer's Hand SEWING MACHINE, Chairs and other Timber pieces, WALNUT HALL STAND with mirror and Glove Box, Pair Hall Chairs, AXMINSTER, BRUSSELS, and TAPESTRY ROOM and STAIRS CARPETS, Hearthrugs.
A few ELECTRO-PLATED ITEMS, China and Glass Ornaments, Several Water-Colours, Engravings and Drawings, Quantity of Books, Solid Brass and Brass and Iron BEDSTEADS, with wire spring mattresses; HAIR and WOOL MATTRESSES, Blankets, Sheets, Curtains, Cushions, etc.
A 6-ft. SPANISH MAHOGANY WARDROBE, MAHOGANY TOILET TABLE and WASHSTAND, Toilet Services, Bedroom Chairs, and genuine old Mahogany Chest of Drawers.
THE FITTINGS OF THE KITCHEN, "THE GEM" PATENT WASHER, Bastow's Filter, Knife Cleaner, Meat Safe, and other Useful Culinary Effects.
ON VIEW MORNING OF SALE.

ON MONDAY NEXT, 20th JULY, 1914.
AT ONE O'CLOCK P.M.
1, MOORLAND VIEW, GARFORTH.
Mr. T. HARROP SHORT
(Succeeded to Mr. HENRY NOBLE)
Is favoured with instructions from Mr Charles Backhouse, to Sell by Auction his valuable Antique and Modern HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, CHINA, GLASS-WARE, CUTLERY, LINEN, Etc., comprising:—
Antique Solid Oak 5-height Chest of Drawers, 2 Mahogany Swing Mirrors, Antique Inlaid Overmantel, Stained Dressing Table and Washstand, Night Commode, Two Sets Brass and Iron Bedsteads, Straw Palliasses, 2 Feather Beds, Bolsters, and Pillows, Birch-framed Swing Mirror, Ebonised Folding Chair, 7 Bedroom Chairs, Wicker Upholstered Chair, Brussels Carpet, 5yds. by 3yds.; Ditto, 6yds. by 5yds.; Hearthrug, Carpet Strips, Mahogany Pedestal Table, Antique Mahogany 4-heights Chest of Drawers, Mahogany-framed Tapestry Fender, Fire-Brasses, Circular Mahogany Marble-topped Washstand, Mahogany-framed Hair-Seated Suite, Rocking Couch, 2 Easy and 3 Single Chairs; Handsome Mahogany Revolving Pedestal Table, Carpet, 5yds. by 4yds.; Walnut Whatnot, Pictures, Mirrors, Antique Pictures and Ornaments, Walnut-framed seven octave Upright Pianoforte; Antique Inlaid Mirror, Mahogany Hall Stand, Walnut China Cabinet, Kitchen Table, Antique Birch Arm-Chair and 5 Single ditto; Copper Kettle, Brass Preserve Pan, Meat Jack, and various Culinary Utensils, Wringing Machine, Blinds and Curtains, Tea Services, Breakfast Service, Dinnerware, Cut Glasses, Decanters, Dishes, Antique Ivory and Bone Handled Knives and Forks, and other Cutlery; also the Excellent Table and Bed Linen, Towels, Blankets, etc.
ON VIEW MORNING OF SALE.
Auctioneer's Address:—
Paradise, Boston Spa, and Tadcaster.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and Others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View Public Inspection Invited

Messrs. J. CUNDALL & SON
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS.
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK, and WHARFEDALE AUCTION MART, TADCASTER.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
Medium to High-Class Suits & Costumes,
From 30/- Upwards
On Easy Terms of Payment.
WRITE TO-DAY FOR PARTICULARS

THE CAR THAT HOLDS THE ROAD IS THE CHARRON.
Sole Leeds and District Agents.
DOCKRAY & CO.,
LEE'S YARD,
MEADOW LANE, LEEDS.
HAVE A TRIAL RUN AND TEST IT.
Tel. 1734

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.
EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.
Monday, 20th July, 6.20 a.m. to York, Malton, and Pickering for 1 day, and Scarborough and Whitby for 1 to 4 days (calling at Crossgates only). 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. (Monday, 22nd July, 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Grosmont for ½ day and Malton for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. 1.32 p.m. to Selby and Hull. Thursday, 23rd July, 12.30 p.m., to York and Malton for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. Saturday, 25th July, 7.0 a.m. to York, Malton, Scarborough, Pickering, and Whitby. 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Selby, Pickering, Goathland, Grosmont, and Whitby. 12.30 p.m. to Scarborough. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Bridlington.
For further particulars see bills.

Fine Low Shoes
For SUMMER and the HOLIDAYS
We specialise on low shoes. We offer you shoes at that in style, fit and comfort cannot be equalled at anything like the price. 10/6
The New Summer Models of
THOR SHOES for MEN
GATORA SHOES for LADIES
are a long way ahead of any other brands, even at shillings more per pair. Don't just accept this statement. Call and see the shoes in our window—step into the store and ask to examine any that interest you—don't purchase unless you are absolutely satisfied that the shoes are what we represent them to be. In ladies' shoes we have splendid lines at 7/11 which compare favourably with shoes sold at 10/6. The name Southall stands for quality and dependability—you buy with security from Southall.—Note our address, and call the first time in the City.
SOUTHALL & Co.
8, New Station Street
(Opposite Albion Street),
LEEDS.

TO BE CONTENT
With anything but the best in spectacles or eyeglasses is the wisdom of the unwise.
Thoughtful people recognise this fact, and value their eyes too highly to run unnecessary risks by wearing wrong glasses.
It is to such that this appeal is made; and if your eyes are causing you trouble, we ask you to call and talk the matter over with us, when we shall be pleased to advise you.
HEYWOOD,
OPTOLOGIST,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

Established 1871.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.
THIS INSTITUTION was ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they may, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in Charitable Institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character, without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Cornets, or anything else of a painful appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances, and in isolated positions can have the advantage of Mr. ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure, or benefit to the patient.
Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7
On Alternate Saturdays, July 25 and August 8.
Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.
TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION.
ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s.
SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.
Special Notice.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.
FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
Tel. 1604.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, JULY 18th, 1914.

— TRY —
SANCFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt, and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & CO., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

Enormous waste goes on every day whilst thousands of people go hungry. "This would be a much healthier country," says a doctor, "if English people ate fruit at the beginning of a meal instead of at the end. As it is, nearly all the best fruit sold at Covent Garden is eventually thrown away in the dustbin. Served after dinner in the best houses, the guests, having already dined well, never eat it. Even the servants turn up their noses at it. Half the hostesses of London buy expensive fruit just to decorate their dinner tables with." Take another case. Broad beans—amongst the best of vegetables—are, we read, so plentiful this year in Surrey that they are not to be gathered, but "ploughed into the ground." And people in the towns hungry for the lack of them! Whence this dislocation of things? Plenty means cheapness, and cheapness seems to be deadly not only to the farmer, but to the fitter feelings of the greengrocer.

Marriage, it is stated, is declining in popularity year by year, and women are being saddled with the blame for this. Economic conditions are changing, and, as more women than ever are engaged in business, professional, and industrial pursuits, it is said that they are anxious to postpone marriage as long as possible, either because their position as independent wage-earners is more to their liking, or because they prefer the comparative freedom of business life to the restrictions of matrimony. In 1912 the marriage-rate was above the average for the previous ten years, but the proportion of marriages to marriageable persons showed a substantial decrease. The changed views in regard to matrimony is reflected in the birth-rate, which in 1912 was the lowest on record, and this is easily understood, because the postponement of marriage for a number of years means a corresponding diminishing of fertility. The wives of thirty years ago, in proportion to their numbers, brought into the world half as many children again as those of the present day. A feature of the Tadcaster rural area is evidently peculiar to other districts. The highest birth-rates obtained are in the mining villages, and the lowest in the agricultural parishes. Why this should be the dwellers in rural areas must themselves explain, but it is not improbable that agricultural labourers, with their limited resources, are not inclined to have families larger than they can bring up with some degree of comfort. If that is the solution, it is remarkable that such a change has come about, because hitherto the country has drawn all its supplies of the best blood and muscle from the country districts. The heaviest infantile mortality, too, is recorded in mining districts, but, in spite of this wastage, the number of survivors at one year of age is far above the average for the working-classes. Textile workers have the smallest families, and they return the lowest birth-rate. And what is the reason for this? "If it may be assumed that the custom of married female labour in the mills provides special economic inducements to this class to restrict its birth-rate," says the official report, "the fact that this is so low, in comparison with other workers of similar standing, is strongly suggestive of purposeful avoidance as the cause of the difference. Indeed, it seems difficult to account otherwise for the contrast between miners and mill hands, two classes very similarly situated in most respects other than the employment of their womenfolk." The effect of the employment of women is well brought out in the Registrar General's report but the exploiters of cheap labour are not likely, whatever the national results, to discourage the invasion by women of spheres of work hitherto the undisputed domain of men. Another peculiar development in recent years is the increase in the number of civil marriages in the country. This may not mean that people have no distinct views on the question, but simply that they adopt the plan which appeals to them as being the least costly and troublesome.

In the old days practically every village had its "characters," and its "half-wits," and they managed to exist somehow. The great majority of them were harmless and inoffensive, and they were just as much a part of the village life as the officials who received their authority from the vestry meeting, and their disappearance would have caused a sensation in the community. How they lived was the concern of no one in particular and it is probable that many of them underwent hardships of the worst kind. As more enlightened views made themselves felt, the disappearance from the villages of the mentally deficient was inevitable, and they are now housed in workhouses and other institutions up and down the country. The passing of the Mental Deficiency Act recently has opened another chapter in the history of the treatment of these unfortunate people, and Boards of Guardians, who give shelter to many of them, have had under consideration the question of dealing with them. It is generally recognised that if the unwise to house "mentally deficients" along with ordinary poor people who come under the care of Poor Law authorities, and in large institutions, where the numbers justify the appointment of a special staff, and the allocation of special quarters, no difficulty is experienced in making provision for this class of inmate, but in small institutions, such as those at Tadcaster, Wetherby, Otley, Ouseburn, and Selby, it is practically impossible, owing to the prohibitive cost, to work along similar lines. At one institution in the West Riding it was stated that there was only one man mentally deficient, and the notion of his being sent to a special place was resented, because, as it was stated, "he was the most useful man about the place." In this case, he was apparently "wake i' t'head and strong i' t'back," and the Guardians were taking full advantage of his weakness. For obvious reasons, it is advisable that these poor people should be housed by themselves; they should be put into institutions specially adapted for them; and they should be taken out of danger's way. Their presence in workhouses is frequently a cause of uneasiness, and scandal sometimes is the result of their mixing with other inmates. At last meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians it was suggested that a conference, with a view to forming a combination of Unions, should be convened, and it is potent that if Guardians do not themselves take the initiative and make their own plans, a county scheme will be carried out. Enterprise often brings its own reward, and if Guardians wish to have control of their patients it is clear that they must be up and doing. It is suggested that a large workhouse in one Union, where there are few poor, might be made a special institution for the treatment of the mentally deficient, but before this could be done the consent of both the Board of Guardians concerned and the Local Government Board would have to be obtained. Probably the Whitkirk Guardians would offer no objection, because they have in past years given encouragement to the adoption of the principle of co-operation among Guardians with a view to economy and efficiency. First of all, the Guardians, in the event of a scheme being favoured, would have to ascertain whether or not a sufficiently large combination could be formed as would make the scheme economically sound, because if the number of poor available was comparatively small it might be cheaper to join a county combination rather than set up an institution of their own with a staff of officials. This is a new problem that requires the earnest consideration of Guardians, many of whom, it must be confessed, have no interest whatever in it, and if a scheme can be devised which will meet all requirements, it should be adopted and carried out.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

IN MEMORIAM.

BRAMLEY—In loving memory of our dear son, John Wm. Bramley, of Garforth, who fell asleep, July 17th, in his 17th year.
"I often think of you, dear one,
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only friend,
The heart can call its own."
—Ever remembered by mother and brother.

WHITEHEAD—In loving remembrance of our dear son, Joseph Forrest Whitehead, Oulton, who died July 17th, 1912.
"In a near and silent graveyard, where the trees their branches wave, Lies a loving son and brother, in his cold and silent grave."
We think of him in silence, and his name we often call;
Though there's nothing left to answer, but his photo on the wall."
From father, mother, and brothers.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

Albert Smith, of Rothwell, has won a West Riding scholarship for intending teacher.

A sum of £3 6s. from the company of the Angel Inn, Rothwell Haigh, has been sent to Leeds Infirmary.

Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr J. W. Morkill (in the chair), Col. J. M. Sugden-Wayne, M.P., M. Lupton, Mr E. H. Foster, Mr J. R. Cross, Mr E. Parkin, and Mr Evans.
Husband and Wife.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, Thomas Fox, miner, of Rothwell, was summoned by his wife, Betsy Priestley, for maintenance arrears amounting to £6 10s. on an order made by the Court for 10s. a week. Defendant said he could pay the complaint 30s. then—an offer which was accepted by the woman, after being advised to do so by the magistrates, who also adjourned the summons for a month to see how defendant would go on.
Flower Services.—The annual flower services were held at the Rothwell Wesleyan Chapel on Sunday. The services, which were well attended, were especially interesting because of the part two old scholars, the Rev. G. H. Armitage and Mr Albert Yorley, played in them. The Rev. G. W. Armitage, who is a minister in the Dewsbury circuit was the special preacher, and his bright and instructive discourses were greatly appreciated. In the afternoon the children's service was held, when Mr E. P. Lobley, of Dewsbury, presided, and an address was given by the Rev. G. H. Armitage. Several of the scholars brought bunches, which were used during the services for ornamental purposes, and afterwards taken for the benefit of the inmates of the hospital and the workhouse. Mr Albert Yorley, who has come on a visit from Chicago, sang a solo which was much appreciated. He also sang at the evening service.
Views of the M.P. for Normanton.—Mr Fred Hall, M.P., attended a meeting of miners and others at Normanton, Rothwell, on Sunday, and spoke on the claim made by the West Riding Education Committee for payment of the cost of meals served to school children during the recent coal strike. Recently claims for payment were served on about 900 parents in the area covered by the local Sub-Committee and of the West Riding Education Committee, and on the advice of the local Trades and Labour Council their parents refused to pay. Similar claims have been made by 16 County Committees in other districts that were affected by the strike and have met with a like reply without protest. Mr Fred Hall said according to the Education (Provision of Meals) Act, 1906, it was perfectly clear that the West Riding Authority were not the people to deal in the matter, but that the Sub-Committee should deal with it, and the best policy for the parents was to appoint a deputation to approach the local Sub-Committee, who had done so much for the parents up to the present, but the West Riding Committee had gone over their heads and made claims on about 900 persons, without consulting them. The meeting resolved to appoint a deputation to approach local Sub-Committee.

Mr William Stephenson, of Rothwell, is one of the local representatives at the Wesleyan Conference.

Stanley Askew, Joseph Parker, and Henry W. Martin, of Rothwell, have won county minor scholarships.

NEW STORY.—"The Double Chance" is the title of the new story which we have obtained for the "Courier," and it is an exciting tale of colliery life. It should appeal especially to the mining population. It is rarely one comes across a plot so carefully thought out and so full of dramatic situations. The baffling mystery is unfolded with much literary ability, and the the reader is introduced to many of those character sketches for which the famous author (Mr J. S. Fletcher) is so well-known.

FARMERS AND THEIR CROPS.—At a meeting of the West Riding Standing Joint Committee at Wakefield, on Wednesday a letter was read from the Yorkshire Farmers' Union stating that at the last meeting of the central committee it was unanimously resolved to draw the attention of the Standing Joint Committee to the serious and wanton damage done to farm crops by trespassers, and asking that the police be instructed to protect farmers against this damage to their crops. The Chief Constable said he had attended to the matter

ANGLER'S SUCCESS.—Mr William Trueman, of the Marsh, Rothwell, is the lucky possessor of a twelve guinea clock, a gold medal and cup won in the annual fishing match promoted by the Leeds Robin Hood Club, which took place at Fulford, York, on Sunday. This is Mr Trueman's first season with the club, and Sunday was the first "fish" he had ever caught with its members, although as an angler Mr Trueman has an experience of about thirty years. The Leeds Robin Hood Club, which is one of the biggest in the county, is the only club with which Mr Trueman has been associated. The match, which lasted over a period of five hours, was taken part in by many well-known anglers who have in their time made notable catches. Mr Trueman's luck came all within the last hour of the match, and at the conclusion he was declared the winner with the biggest catch of 15¾ ozs.

INQUEST.—An inquest was held at the Dunsett Workhouse, Rothwell Haigh, on Tuesday night on William Dixon, an inmate, who died on the previous day. A son, who identified the body, said he believed his father to be about 69 years of age. Mr Soloman, the workhouse master, said the deceased had been an inmate of the institution on and off for the past nineteen years. On Boxing Day, December 26th, 1913, he got permission for a day's leave to visit some relatives. While in Hunslet he fell on the causeway, but in what part of Hunslet he (witness) was unable to say. The deceased was put into a cab by an unknown man, who sent him back to the workhouse. Witness saw him soon after his admission, and thought it advisable to send for Dr. Buck, who came and examined the deceased, who had fractured his right thigh. Since the accident he had been practically confined to his bed, only being able to get up for an hour or so each day. Dr. J. Buck said that death was due to heart failure, and senile decay, probably accelerated by the accident. A verdict in accordance with the medical testimony was returned.

ALLERTON BYWATER

Ronald E. C. Brown, of Allerton Bywater, has won a county minor scholarship.

AN AMBITIOUS YOUTH.—Charles Frobisher (19), draughtsman at Allerton Colliery, was charged at Castleford on Wednesday with stealing valuable surveying instruments belonging to his employers, value £27. A letter from the manager, Mr Smithson, was read in court, and the police superintendent said that the lad ought to be thankful that his employers had given him such a character. The lad was ambitious, and not seeing money as quickly as he liked, the instruments having suffered to the temptation and appropriated them. The youth was bound over for 12 months and ordered to pay the costs, £1 8s.

CARLTON

Ephraim Oakes, of Carlton, has won a county minor scholarship.

CROSSGATES

Among the local representatives at the Wesleyan Conference are the Rev. and Mrs Owen Jones.

On Saturday afternoon Crossgates Recreation had a bowling League match with Garforth, and the latter were defeated by 177 to 173.

A match was played between Crossgates bowlers and Tadcaster in the Barkston Ash League on Saturday, and Crossgates won by 186 to 138.

SWEET PEA SOCIETY.—On Saturday, July 25th, a grand show of sweet peas and roses will be held under the auspices of Crossgates and District Sweet Pea Society in the Wesleyan School-room, and it should be noticed (see advt.) that entries close on Tuesday, July 21st, to Mr George Tucker, hon. sec., Roseville Terrace, Crossgates.

UNIVERSITY TUTORIAL CLASS.—A meeting in connection with the University Tutorial Class for Crossgates district was held on Friday evening—Mr Robert Mackay presiding. The subject for the session was discussed, and as the voting was about equal for each the Workers' Educational Association. It was decided to have the lectures on Thursday nights, and arrangements are to be made about securing a suitable room.

CRICKET.—On Saturday a Junior League match was played between Swillington and Colton and Crossgates A on the ground of the latter, and the homesters won by seven wickets. Scores:—Swillington—A. Hobson 1, J. F. Southwick 21, E. Gascoigne 0, J. W. Wainwright 0, G. Farndale 19, J. Hunt 4, F. Wright 0, W. Wainwright 0, G. Barraclough 0, G. W. Gascoigne 2, G. Mosby —, extras 6—total 53. Crossgates A—W. Wilkinson 11, H. Linley 22 (not out), H. Holliday 1, H. Glover 15, T. Hague 1 (not out), extras —total (for three wickets) 54. For the winners Linley captured 5 wickets for 22, and Walker had 5 for 25.

FAIRBURN.

Alfred G. Bramley, of Fairburn, has won a county minor scholarship.

MR T. E. Makin, of Fairburn, was one of the principal prize-winners of the horse-leaping contest at Copmanthorpe Show on Wednesday.

GARFORTH

Anne H. Teale and Elsie Ramsey, of Garforth, have won county minor scholarships.

Raymond W. Elston, of Garforth, has won a West Riding scholarship for intending teachers.

On Saturday afternoon Garforth W.M.C. bowlers had a League match with Halton Travellers, and the Garforthians won by 189 to 126.

During the present year Garforth division has had the highest school attendance of all the divisions in the West Riding three times, and it was once second, and once third.

GARDEN FETE.—On Saturday, August 1st, a garden fete and sale of work, under the patronage of the Bishop of Knaresborough, will be held at Brookfield, Garforth, Bridge, in aid of Swillington Church expenses. Particulars in advt.

GARFORTH GOLF COURSE.—The formal opening of the Garforth golf course will take place on Saturday, when Abe Mitchell, the famous examateur, and Tom Williamson, of the Notts. County Club, will play a single in the morning and a foursome in the afternoon in company with the Garforth professional, B. Williamson, and a leading amateur. Mitchell, when an amateur, accomplished a great performance in the amateur championship in 1911, and was runner-up to John Ball, who won the final, Mitchell taking him to the 37th hole. Mitchell, who is now a professional at Sonning-on-Thames, also figured prominently in their year's open championship. Williamson is one of the leading professionals in the Midlands and is a brother of the Garforth professional.

HALTON

HUSBAND AND WIFE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Thomas Goldthorpe, miner, of Halton, was summoned by his wife Amelia Goldthorpe, for maintenance arrears amounting to £1 10s. 6d. A sentence of one month's imprisonment was suspended to give defendant an opportunity of paying.

SKYRACK POLICE AND CHARITY.—On Wednesday afternoon the annual cricket match promoted by the Skyrack Police for the benefit of the charities was held in the Recreation Ground, Halton, and it was well patronized. Unfortunately, owing to the men being on special duty, the police were unable to put their usual team in the field, and several outsiders were called in to make up the side in the game against Halton tradesmen. An excellent match was seen, and the police won by nine runs. Scores:—Skyrack Police—P.C. Higgins, not out, 33; Walker, Schofield, b O. Bell, 5; C. Higgins, c Bell, b Wainwright, 8 J. Fallow, c Smith, b Wood, 1; A. Stimpson, c Kitson, b Bell, 6; S. Haigh, b Bell, 0; R. Bruce, b Bell, 5; A. Guest, c Bell, b Wainwright, 13; Wright, st. Walker, b Bell, 0; J. Baldwin, b Wainwright, 5; Hankinson, b Wainwright, 13; extras, 23; total, 91. Halton Tradesmen—G. Bell, c Walker, b Bruce, 16; Wood, b Walker, 2; T. Cowell, c Higgins, b Bruce, 12; A. Rennard, st Haigh, b Walker, 2; H. Schofield, run out, 3; J. Walker, c

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

LANE FOX CUP—SECOND ROUND.

On Saturday afternoon four matches will be played in the second round of the Lane Fox Cup Competition, and it is very difficult to forecast with any certainty the results of the games. Garforth Wes., who defeated Collingham, will play Crossgates, and, although the Wesleyans have advantage of ground, they will create a surprise if they defeat their opponents. Tadcaster and Garforth should provide one of the best matches of the day if both teams exhibit their best form. The Calcarians have a peculiar regard for this trophy, which they have won three times since 1910, and the other team to win it within the period alluded to were Garforth. Both teams, I believe, are representative of the best in Barkston Ash cricket, and if the Garforthians have not done so well in the League as they anticipated they have their own fielding to blame. Scearcroft have certainly an advantage in playing on the Green, but the Halton Wes. lexans have been doing so well lately that it would be unwise to be cocksure as to the outcome of the encounter. Micklefield will entertain South Milford, and this should prove another great tussle. Both teams are playing well, but they are, like other teams, playing in different divisions of the League, it is not possible to compare them with any degree of accuracy.

SENIOR LEAGUE MATCHES.

On Saturday afternoon Saxton did not put in an appearance at Tadcaster, and I presume they were unable to raise a team consequent upon a number of players being engaged hay-making. Of course, the failure to fulfil the engagement caused disappointment to Tadcaster, and they have, in accordance with the rules, made a claim for the points and a guinea. Rule 13 states that "any club failing to fulfil a fixture shall be fined £1 1s., such sum to be awarded to their opponents."

Church Fenton journeyed to Cawood, and the game with the homesters was not of a remunerative character for the visitors. Fenton seem to have several good bowlers, but their batting is weak, and before any headway is made it is obvious that an improvement in this department must take place. Practice is the only means by which this may be achieved. Cawood trundled them out for 32, and F. Jackson, with nine (not out) to his credit, was top scorer. C. Land bowled well, taking 3 wickets for 9, while Dobson secured 2 for 5 and C. Jackson 2 for 16. The homesters registered 38 for a loss of three wickets, and Dobson scored 16 (not out) and Ward 14. A. Claughton secured two wickets for 21, and Mosley had one for six.

Garforth had a fine victory over the Halton team on the Primrose Valley ground. The winners were in splendid batting form, and they scored the huge total of 178. S. Glover contributed 48, Williamson 36, Morley 24, W. Glover 18, G. Reed 15 (not out), and A. Firth 14. Sunter had the bowling honours for Halton, taking four wickets for 29, and C. Sunter obtained 2 for 32 runs. Ballance and W. Pickersgill trundled the Halton side out for 98, the former making 15, and Benson 14. Ballance's six wickets cost 20 runs, and Pickersgill's four were got for 32.

Scearcroft maintain their position at the head of affairs in division 2. Great Preston, who have not done so well this season as one expected they would, and their opponents at the Lodge, and the homesters inflicted a crushing defeat. Batting first, the Crofters opened splendidly, and D. Burton led off with 24, Tom Toft 29, and G. Stead 21, and by the way, has had a remarkably successful season, and has proved himself one of the best all-round players in the district. G. Thompson put on 22 for the 7th wicket, Johnson 14, and Fryer 10, and when 171 runs had been scored for a loss of 8 wickets the innings was declared at an end. C. Wright, who had 3 wickets for 24, was the only Preston bowler to meet with success, eight having a turn with the ball. Probably Preston's long spell of leather-hunting, and the hopelessness of their task, affected the batting display, for the team were dismissed for 47, and of this H. Watson made 29 (not out). Dennis Burton trundled with marked success, his six wickets costing only 14 runs, while Stead had one to his one. C. Johnson 2 for 11, and Fryer 1 for 9.

Barwick did not do themselves justice when opposed to Micklefield, and, after their recent displays, they were expected to give a better batting exhibition. Thirty-three, even against the Micklefield bowling, is a small score, and I daresay the batsmen are cognisant of the fact without my telling them. The highest individual scores were got by H. Walton (9) and J. Rolshaw (8). Townend had the bowling honours for Micklefield, securing six wickets for 19 runs, and Alf. Smith obtained four for thirteen runs. Micklefield won easily by seven wickets, and Stone batted well for 21 (not out), while Wallis contributed a useful 20. Micklefield have to play Scearcroft and Garforth yet, and they will prove stiff matches. Much depends on the result of these games, and if Micklefield could drow level with Scearcroft an interesting state of affairs would be brought about.

Although Halton Wes. managed to defeat Whitkirk, they had to fight very hard for the points, and at one period of the game it looked as if they were to be beaten. Whitkirk had first knock of the wicket, and they were dismissed for 56. Arthur Shepherd again distinguished himself by compiling 25 by good cricket, and the homesters would have made a better show had adequate assistance been rendered him. O. Bell and Wilson were the best of the Halton bowlers. The Wesleyans made 57 for a loss of eight wickets, and, with the exception of Kilburn, who had a valuable 24 to his credit, none of the usual hitters of the team came off. Stephens did excellent by scoring 10 (not out), and at critical period of the game, and his stand was a very timely one. J. Shepherd displayed good bowling form, taking 5 wickets for 14, and E. Pawson secured 3 for 14.

Crossgates Wes. do not appear to have got over their unexpected defeat by Tadcaster in the cup-ties. Up to then the team were doing well, and with every promise of improvement, and it is difficult to account for their falling-off. They went to Shadwell with only nine men, on Saturday, and this does not show much enthusiasm on the part of a club with a large membership. It was the way to court defeat, and they got it. They were sent back for 44, and no fewer than three players were run out. Withy scored 14 (not out), and Robin Hood replied with 92 runs. Shadwell won by three wickets, and Heaton scored 20 (not out) and Scott 11. The Crossgates Withy captured two wickets for five runs and George Umpleby had 3 for 17 runs.

Collingham, too, are doing badly, and their batting exhibition against Crossgates on Saturday was one of the weakest they have given this season. The match was at Collingham, and Crossgates, batting first, ran up the respectable score of 82, and Oliver Goodall was again the chief contributor with 31. The veteran, Burnell, made 10, and Fairburn helped himself to 13. Emmerson is the most useful bowler on the Collingham side, and again he had the honours, taking five wickets for 28, while Twidale had 2 for 15, and Dolby 2 for 27. Collingham's total was 24, and Twidale contributed 10 and Smithson 7, so that there was not much for the others to get. Burnell and Yeates shared the bowling, and each had five wickets for a dozen runs.

JUNIOR LEAGUE MATCHES.

Ulleskelf, who have been doing well in the Junior League, were defeated by Tadcaster A on Saturday afternoon, and the Calcarians are now leaders of division 1 by two points. Smart (5 for 14) and Taylor (5 for 17) trundled so well that Ulleskelf were sent back for 33 (Holt 11), and Tadcaster replied with 35 for a loss of 3 wickets, Chatfield scoring 18 (not out) and Nettleton 14—Kirk Deighton and Bramham had a keen game, and the former won by a dozen runs. The winners scored 42, and Stockdale secured 4 wickets for 4 runs, Cass 3 for 18, and Shaw 2 for 13. Bramham's total was 30, and no player on either side got two figures. Linfoot trundled with great effect, capturing 7 wickets for 12, while Jackson had 2 for 5 runs.

Scearcroft A and Garforth A are running a neck-and-neck race for the championship of division 2. On Saturday the Crofters went to Preston, and they were 9 to the good. The homesters' score was 40 (Hy. Lilley 11, W. Hobson 11, not out, and D. Lilley 10), and J. and W. Linley had 3 wickets each for 18 runs. Scearcroft made 113 for one wicket (J. Linley 70, not out, and Stenson 13, not out).—Garforth's opponents were Aberford, and the Garforthians won by seven wickets. Aberford knocked up 65 (Walton 21, Coggin 14, and Inman 10, not out), and Stead claimed six of their wickets for eight runs. Garforth responded with 67 for 3 wickets, and F. Hancock scored 35 (not out). W. Browning 14, and C. Pickersgill 11.—Micklefield A defeated Barwick A rather easily by 58 runs. Micklefield's total was 90 (Goodman 34, Hopps 12, and (Garforth 11), and Marlhem was the best of the Barwick crunders, with 3 wickets for 22. Barwick's score was 32 (Backhouse and T. H. Rolshaw 11 each), and Moakes secured six wickets for 20, and Goodman 3 for 7 runs.

Owing to the defeat of Swillington and Colton, Garforth Wes. are once more in the undisputed leadership of division 3. Their opponents on Saturday were Crossgates Wes. A., who were sent back for 38 (H. Brook 17 and A. Brook 10), and Garforth got the runs for the loss of one wicket (V. Sherry 20 not out, and F. Sherry 10). For the winners H. Ward claimed 6 wickets for 15, R. Brownridge had 2 for 3, and Gent 2 for 20.—Crossgates A defeated Swillington and Colton by seven wickets. The homesters made 53, and Crossgates scored 54 for 3 wickets.

MONK FRYSTON V. SWILLINGTON PARK.

These teams met at Monk Fryston Park, and an excellently-contested game resulted in a win for Swillington Park by four runs. Monk Fryston batted first, and rattled up 111, Harrison scoring 42, Laycock 13, and J. Foster 10 (not out). Swillington made a splendid response, and only two runs were required for victory when the last man went to the wickets. The finish was very exciting, but Swillington managed to get the runs required. Hodgkinson took seven wickets for 49 runs, and Mac-Fryston batted first, and Rothwell and Micklefield Athletic Sports.

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Kirk Deighton v. Ulleskelf. Messrs H. Irish (Werkerby) and G. Fox (Bramham).

Sherburn White Rose v. Tadcaster A. Messrs H. Boston (South Milford) and T. Poulter (Church Fenton).

South Milford A v. Barkston Ash. Messrs T. Carroll (Tadcaster) and T. Ambler (Church Fenton).

Aberford v. Halton A. Messrs J. Fox (Swillington) and Colton) and A. Bailey (Garforth).

Barwick A v. Micklefield A. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and G. C. Earnshaw (Sherburn).

Garforth A v. Micklefield. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and E. Levitt (Swillington and Colton).

BARKSTON ASH BOWLING ASSOCIATION

League Table, including Saturday, July 11th.	P.	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Crossgates	7	3	4	1079	1175	6
Crossgates Recreation	7	4	3	1253	1232	8
Garforth	10	6	4	1731	1523	8
Garforth Conservatives	7	4	3	1223	1175	8
Garforth W. Men's	6	5	1	1155	795	10
Halton	6	4	2	1032	965	8
Halton Travellers	9	1	8	1240	1730	0
Tadcaster	9	4	5	1519	1429	4

Executive meeting at Station Hotel, Crossgates, on Tuesday next, at 7-15 p.m.

WALTER GREEN, Hon. Sec

E. GREEN AND SONS V. OULTON.—At Wakefield. Scores:—E. Green and Sons—F. Stead, b Walker, 16; F. Dey, b Knight, 6; W. Ough, b Hutchinson, 5; G. Milsom, b Walker, 28; J. Eddison made 19, but four of the side failed to score a single run among them, while the efforts of the other six amounted to 15. Six of the wickets fell to E. Hitchin for nine runs, and H. Hamer secured the other four at a cost of 25 runs. The same player made 23 (not out) for his side, A. Dennison being the second best with 17 unfinished. In the Junior League Woodlesford A met with a reverse, when they entertained Kippax A, the latter winning by six wickets. The homesters were got out for 25, not one of the players making double figures. The visitors' response was 26 for four wickets, and T. Booth contributed 12.

Carlton had a match at Stanley, and they won decisively by 100 runs. Batting first, they registered the fine score of 169, and L. Brown contributed 30, E. Fozzard 27, S. Lawrence 23, Robb 18, and W. Brown 13 (not out). Newton handled the ball to his profit. Stanley were dismissed for 92, and Dickinson claimed 39 and Littlewood 14. Carlton A were also on the winning side. They went to Stanley back for 27, Ashton and Ellis bowling very well, and then they got the necessary runs for a loss of 3 wickets.

Robin Hood inflicted a crushing defeat on Outwood Friends, who had choice of ground. The home men's score was 97 (Thompson 31 and Wheeler 15, not out), and Robin Hood replied with 92 for a loss of three wickets, P. Wormald making 36, W. Frost 24, L. Armitage 16 (not out), and E. Giles 14.—Robin Hood A won, too. They compiled 79 (F. Wormald 28 and Booth 14), and Outwood had to be content with 51.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	7	6	0	1	12
South Milford	7	5	1	1	11
Saxton	7	3	4	0	6
Cawood	7	3	4	0	6
Church Fenton	7	2	5	0	4
Church Fenton Sycamore	7	1	5	0	2

Division 2.	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Scearcroft	8	7	1	0	14
Micklefield	8	6	2	0	12
Garforth	8	6	2	0	12
Halton	8	4	4	0	8
Barwick	8	3	5	0	6
Great Preston	8	0	8	0	0

Division 3.	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	8	7	1	0	14
Shadwell	8	5	3	0	10
Crossgates	8	5	3	0	10
Whitkirk	8	4	4	0	8
Crossgates Wesleyans	8	3	5	0	6
Collingham	8	0	8	0	0

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A	9	7	2	0	14
Ulleskelf	9	6	3	0	12
Kirk Deighton	8	5	2	0	10
South Milford A.	8	4	4	0	8
Bramham	8	2	6	0	4
Sherburn W.R.	7	3	4	0	6
Barkston Ash	8	1	7	0	2

Division 2.	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wes.	8	6	2	0	12
Swillington and Colton	8	5	3	0	10
Crossgates A.	8	5	3	0	10
Crossgates Wes. A.	8	3	5	0	6
Whitkirk A.	8	2	6	0	4
Halton Wes. A.	8	2	6	0	4

Results of several matches have not come to hand.

E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

LANE FOX CUP.

Garforth Wesleyans v. Crossgates. Messrs T. (Methers (Great Preston)—and T. Crosland (Micklefield).

Tadcaster v. Garforth. Messrs R. Firn (Cawood) and J. Snow (Wetherby).

Micklefield v. South Milford. Messrs H. Jackson (Leeds) and W. Crosland (Barwick).

Scearcroft v. Halton Wesleyans. Messrs J. Kitching (Leeds) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Kirk Deighton v. Ulleskelf. Messrs H. Irish (Werkerby) and G. Fox (Bramham).

Sherburn White Rose v. Tadcaster A. Messrs H. Boston (South Milford) and T. Poulter (Church Fenton).

South Milford A v. Barkston Ash. Messrs T. Carroll (Tadcaster) and T. Ambler (Church Fenton).

Aberford v. Halton A. Messrs J. Fox (Swillington and Colton) and A. Bailey (Garforth).

Barwick A v. Micklefield A. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and G. C. Earnshaw (Sherburn).

Garforth A v. Micklefield. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and E. Levitt (Swillington and Colton).

BARKSTON ASH SENIOR LEAGUE.

COLLINGHAM V. CROSSGATES—At Collingham Scores:—

Crossgates—Burnell, c and b Emmerson, 16; White, b A Dalby, 3; Goodall, c Dalby, b Twidale, 31; Spivey, b Emmerson, 0; Craven, lbw, b Twidale, 2; F. Brooks, b Emmerson, 6; Fairburn, c Graydon, b Emmerson, 13; J. Brooks, run out, 0; Harper, c Emmerson, 0; Wilson, b Emmerson, 7; Yeates, not out, 0; extras, 4; total, 82.

Collingham and Linton—F. Whitehead, b Yeates, 2; H. Twidale, b Burnell, 10; A. Dalby, c Wilson, b Burnell, 0; R. Smithson, b Burnell, 7; R. Graydon, b Burnell, 1; A. Newsome, b Burnell, 0; A. E. Smith, not out, 1; A. Young, b Yeates, 2; R. Smith, b Yeates, 0; R. Whitelock, b Yeates, 0; W. Emmerson, c Wilson, b Yeates, 1; total, 24.

SHADWELL UNITED V. CROSSGATES WES.—At Shadwell. Scores:—

Crossgates Wes.—C. Brook, c Scott, b Heaton, 0; D. Umpleby, c Flint, b Heaton, 12; G. Umpleby, c Flint, b Heaton, 0; E. Clough, b Heaton, 9; A. Withy, run out, 13; Beaumont, run out, 7; Fidgett, run out, 0; Vitty, b Wilson, 1; Wynne, not out, 2; total, 44.

Shadwell—P. Scott, c D. Umpleby, b Clough, 11; Heaton, not out, 20; Metcalfe, b G. Umpleby, 1; Freeman, not out, 0; G. Smith, c Wynne, b G. Umpleby, 0; J. W. Burnett, b G Umpleby, 1; R. Flint, b Withy, 4; Fawcett, c Beaumont, b Withy, 0; Wilson, not out, 6; extras, 3; total (for 7 wkts.), 46.

WHITKIRK V. HALTON WES.—At Whitkirk. Scores:—

Whitkirk—A. Shepherd, c Murtland, b Powell, 25; A. R. Milford, b H. Wilson, 5; J. W. Pepper, b Murtland, 0; T. Pickersgill, b H. Wilson, 9; W. E. Taylor, c Murtland, b Bell, 3; F. Wainwright, c Batty, b H. Wilson, 1; F. Loveday, c and b Bell, 7; W. L. Moss, b Bell, 1; E. Ingle, c Popplewell, b Powell, 1; C. V. Romford, b Bell, 0; E. D. Pawson, not out, 0; extras, 1; total, 56.

Halton Wes.—C. Kilburn, b Pawson, 24; J. Popplewell, b J. Shepherd, 9; G. D. Crosthwaite, b Pawson, 0; C. Batty, b J. Shepherd, 0; O. Bell, c Milford, b Pawson, 3; Murtland, b Shepherd, 4; H. Stephens, not out, 10; J. A. Popplewell, lbw, b J. Shepherd, 1; A. Powell, b Pawson, 0; H. Wilson, b Shepherd, 0; extras, 6; total (for 8 wkts.), 57.

MICKLEFIELD V. BARWICK—At Barwick. Scores:—

Barwick—J. Pollard, c Wallis, b Townend, 4; F. Lumb, b Townend, 4; H. Walton, b Smith, 9; G. Bowes, b Townend, 2; J. Rolshaw, b Smith, 8; W. Lovett, c Tompkinson, b Townend, 1; T. Rolshaw, b Smith, 11; M. Lumb, c Wallis, b Smith, 2; W. Hartley, not out, 0; V. Rolshaw, b Townend, 1; M. Wilkinson, b Townend, 0; extras, 1; total, 33.

Micklefield—Tompkinson, b V Rolshaw, 2; Wallis, c J Rolshaw, b Bowes, 12; Smith, c Hartley, b V. Rolshaw, 1; Stone, not out, 21; Hobson, not out, 1; total (for 3 wkts.), 37.

SCEARCROFT V. GREAT PRESTON—At Scearcroft. Scores:—

Scearcroft—D. Burton, c Wheatley, b Wiggleworth, 24; T. Toft, c Vorley, b Wright, 29; G. Stead, b Brookes, 53; H. Attack, run out, 2; C. Johnson, b Watson, 13; G. Thompson, c Brookes, b Thompson, 24; H. Fryer, b Wright, 10; E. Johnson, not out, 14; H. Toft, b Wright, 0; extras, 2; total (for 8 wkts.), 171. Innings declared.

Great Preston—T. Wiggleworth, st Attack, b D Burton, 1; H. Watson, not out, 29; J. Green, b D Burton, 1; J. Brookes, c Attack, b D. Burton, 1; J. Vorley, c G Thompson, b I. Fryer, 6; A. Thompson, b C. Johnson, 1; A. Wheatley, c Sub, b C. Johnson, 0; C. Wright, b D. Toft, 0; D. Burton, b C. Wright, b D. Burton, 0; J. Cooper, c C. Johnson b D. Burton, 0; C. Thompson, c J. Pickersgill b Stead, 0; extras, 2; total, 47.

CAWOOD V. CHURCH FENTON—At Cawood. Scores:—

Church Fenton—W. D. Foxton, run out, 3; A. Foxton, b C. O. Lund, 4; W. Mosby, b Jackson, 0; C. O. Lund, run out, 4; A. Claughton, b C. O. Lund, 7; W. Claughton, c Lund, b Jackson, 2; H. Kestes, c Stockdale, b Jackson, 0; H. Johnson, not out, 9; M. Thompson, b Dobson, 0; W. Fawcett, b Dobson, 0; H. Mosby, b R. Lupton, 2; extras, 5; total (for 9 wkts.), 40.

Cawood—C. Lund, b Mosby, 8; J. Claughton, 8; F. Ward, b W. Mosby, 14; W. Barker, b A. Claughton, 0; H. Dodson, not out, 16; C. O. Lund, not out, 0; total (for 6 wkts.), 38.

HALTON V. GARFORTH—At Halton. Scores:—Halton—H. Fryer, b Sunter, 3; S Glover, c Taylor, b Dobson, 48; W. Glover, c Benson, b Sunter, 18; A. Firth, lbw, b Smales, 14; J. Williamson, b Longden, 36; H. Morley, b Longden, 24; G. Reed, not out, 15; J. Kilburn, c Haigh, b Longden, 4; J. Wilson, c Dobson, b Longden, 4; W. Pickersgill, run out, 5; Ballance, c Sunter, b Benson, 3; extras, 6; total, 178.

Hulton—S. Haigh, b Pickersgill, 0; H. Cowell, c Glover, b Ballance, 15; W. Smales, b Pickersgill, 0; H. Taylor, c Firth, b Pickersgill, 0; C. Sunter, c Kilburn, b Pickersgill, 6; W. Benson, b Ballance, 14; J. Longden, lbw, b Ballance, 3; H. Dobson, b Ballance, 0; W. Sunter, b Ballance, 0; R. Hudson, c Williamson, b Ballance, 6; R. W. Shaw, b Ballance, 0; extras, 6; total, 58.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

ULLESKELF V. TADCASTER A.—At Ulleskelf. Scores:—Ulleskelf—J. Sykes o, W. Bean o, F Stronach 2, N Ward 7, F. Holt 11, H. Varey 8, Richardson 11, H. Bean 0, Bennett 0, Wilkinson 7, W Wilkinson 1, T. Tristram (not out) 2, extras 2, total 33. Tadcaster A.—A. Aldous c F. Richardson 11, H. Chatfield 18, Sol. E Nettleton 14, extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 35.

CROSSGATES WES. A. V. GARFORTH WES.—At Old Manston. Scores:—Crossgates Wes. A.—H. Brook 17; C. Holliday 2, F. Hewitt 2, A. Denton, c R. Higgins, b Sellens, 0; H. Brook 3, F. W. B. Willans 1, E. C. White 2, G. Broadbent 2, A. Morris (not out) 0; total, 38. Garforth—V. Sherry, c Sherry, b F. Gent (not out) 8, V. Sibery (not out), 20; extras, 2; total (for 1 wkt.), 40.

MICKLEFIELD A. V. BARWICK A.—At Micklefield. Scores:—Micklefield A.—T. Longden 1; Hall, b Firth, 5; J. Hudson, c Walsh, b H. Garforth 11, T. Walton 9, W. Kilburn 5, C. Ragan 6, J. Goodman 34, W. Hopps 12, A. Moakes (not out) 0; Backhouse 11, Sol. Barlow A.—Backhouse 11, Ingham o, Drake o, A. Rolshaw o, G. Brown, jun., 3, T. H. Rolshaw 11, Woodcock, c Markham o; Scarcliff 1, Poole not out 1, A. Bramley 3, extras, 2; total, 32.

GARFORTH A. V. ABERFORD—At Garforth. Scores:—Aberford—J. Blakey o, J. Coggin 14, G. Connell 6, F. Walton 21, O. Griffin 7, J. Inman (not out) 10, A. Stringer 0, Nutton 0, G. Pickles 0, Mr. Connell 4, extras, 3; total, 65. Garforth A.—F. Hancock (not out) 35, T. Kilburn 4, W. Browning 14, A. Pickersgill 11, extras, 3; total (for 3 wkts.), 67.

GREAT PRESTON V. SCARCROFT A.—At Great Preston. Scores:—Great Preston—G. Wiggleworth 2, A. Wiggleworth 1, E. Colley o, Hr. Lilley o, W. Thompson o, W. Hobson (not out) 11, Hy. Lilley 14, E. Swales 1, W. Oldham 1, D. Lilley 10, G. Hambleton 1, extras, 2; total, 40. Scearcroft—F. Derwick o, A. Benson (not out) 13, J. Linley (not out) 30, total (for 1 wkt.), 43.

BRAMHAM V. KIRK DEIGHTON—At Bramham. Scores:—Kirk Deighton—F. Linfoot 8, T. Beasley 2, J. Beasley 2, G. Jackson 9, G. Firth 3, F. Nicholson 4, H. Oxley 4, G. White 0, A. Swann 5, B. Nicholson (not out) 1, C. Oxley 0, extras, 4; total, 32. Bramham—J. Whittaker 6, J. Cass 1, G. Shaw 8, Tindall, lbws, 5, A. Stockdale 1, H. Shaw o, G. Eastwood 0, F. Bullock (not out) 5, R. Eastwood 1, G. Brown o, D. Kerridge o, extras, 3; total, 30.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

ROTHWELL V. ALTOFTS UNITED—At Altofts. Scores:—

Altofts—Alf. Bednall, b Banks, 4; J. Dolan, b Bedford, 4; W. Hall, b Banks, o; R. Phillips, c Bedford, b Banks, 2; Art. Bednall, b Banks, 1; W. Knowles, b Banks, o; J. Bednall, lbw, b Banks, 5; B. Kirk, b Banks, 2; E. Adams, c Fox, b Banks, 2; J. Hampson, not out, 2; J. Glaze, b Banks, 1; extras, 11; total, 34.

Rothwell—C. Tiffany, c Glaze, b Art. Bednall, 2; H. Hodgkinson, b Bednall, 4; W. Fox, lbw, b Alf. Bednall, 2; H. Hemsworth, c Kirk, b Art. Bednall, 7; E. Tiffany, c Hall, b Alf. Bednall, o; E. Moss, b Alf. Bednall, o; A. Clark, c Knowles, b Alf. Bednall, 1; W. Bedford, at Hall, b Art. Bednall, 15; H. Lane, not out, 1; extras, 3; total, (for 8 wkts.), 35.

KIPPAX V. WOODLESFORD—At Kippax. Scores:—

Kippax—H. Limbert, c Dobson, b Hitchin, o; E. Bickerdike, b Hitchin, 3; B. Eddison, lbw, b Hitchin, 10; A. Cripwell, b Hamer, 2; L. Webster, c Baxter, b Hitchin, 5; L. Veitch, b Hitchin, 1; A. Hardy, b Hamer, o; T. Lowe, b Hitchin, 4; J. Rider, not out, o; A. Varley, c Harr, b Hamer, o; S. Hodgson, c Baxter, b Hamer, 2; extras, 6; total, 40.

Woodlesford—H. Hamer, not out, 23; W. Harrison, lbw, b Cripwell, 1; O. Wilkinson, b Bickerdike, 1; A. Dennison, not out, 14; extras, 8; total (for 2 wkts.), 47.

ROBIN HOOD V. OUTWOOD FRIENDS—At Outwood. Scores:—

Outwood—H. Dixon, b Frost, 4; W. Pickard, b Giles, 4; J. W. Lunn, b Frost, o; D. White, b Hawden, 13; R. Hoyland, b Giles, 2; E. Thompson, c and b Hawden, 31; P. Carr, b Kirkby, 3; J. Jones, run out, 1; J. Colley, c Wormald, b Lamb, 6; A. Hargreaves, b Hawden, 2; M. Wheeler, not out, 15; extras, 12; total, 91.

Robin Hood—E. Giles, b Pickard, 14; W. Frost, run out, 14; P. Wormald, b Colley, b Jones, 26; L. Armitage, not out, 16; J. H. Lamb, not out, 1; extras, 12; total (for 3 wkts.), 92.

STANLEY CHURCH V. CARLTON—At Stanley. Scores:—

Carlton—J. Illingworth, c Bulmer, b Nolan, 2; L. Brown, b Bulmer, 30; E. Fozzard, c Dobson, b Cawthorne, 27; H. Corrie, c Dobson, b Cawthorne, 10; C. Butterworth, b Cawthorne, o; S. Lawrence, c Butterfield, b Cawthorne, 23; W. Sykes, b P. Hargreaves, 1; J. Brooks, b Dickinson, 18; W. Brown, not out, 15; W. Holroyd, b Cawthorne, 1; Newton, c Davison, b Dobson, 35; extras, 7; total, 169.

Stanley—J. Holmes, b Illingworth, 5; H. Littlewood, b Sykes, 14; J. Cawthorne, b Sykes, o; J. Bulmer, b Sykes, o; J. Nolan, b Sykes, 9; A. Davison, b Sykes, 6; L. Hargreaves, c and b Illingworth, 5; E. Butterfield, c Butterworth, b Illingworth, o; C. Dickinson, b Brown, 39; J. Dobson, c Brooke, b Newton, 7; J. Nolan, not out, o; extras, 3; total, 92.

ROTHWELL JUNIOR LEAGUE.

ROTHWELL A. V. ALTOFTS WES.—At Rothwell. Scores:—Rothwell—A. Tiffany 55, B. Fozzard 6, J. Hobson 26, W. Nelson o, W. Ingleby (not out) 31, F. Stringer, o, extras, 5; total (for 5 wkts.), 142. Innings declared. Altofts Wes.—J. Brown 56, J. Hollis o, A. Richards o, C. Hampson o, W. H. Brown o, A. Plant 9, T. Brown 14, W. Carter o, T. Hopson (not out) 11, J. Holdsworth o, M. Brown o, extras, o; total, 91.

KIPPAX A. V. WOODLESFORD A.—At Woodlesford. Scores:—Kippax—H. Limbert, c and b Morton 9, J. Holmes o, J. Hamer 3, T. Collin 1, H. Williams 9, L. Taylor o, F. Baxter o, L. Hopkinson 2, A. Bulmer, b Sykes, o; J. Kenton, 1; total, 25. Kippax—J. Varley 3, R. Stoker o, T. Booth 12, A. Ballance 1, L. Willliams (not out) 4, O. Lilley (not out) o, extras, 6; total (for 4 wkts.), 26.

CARLTON V. STANLEY A.—At Carlton. Scores:—Stanley—C. Poole o, Wm. Colley o, E. Dobson 2, P. Hargreaves 4, W. Colley 4, S. Smith o, J. Hartley 8, J. Turner 2, J. Bulmer 1, J. Brown 2, A. Holroyd (not out) 3, total, 27. Carlton A.—A. Austin 2, H. Hardwick 7, E. Sefton o, W. Ashton 4, W. Fox (not out) 8, A. Turner (not out) 8, extra, 1; total (for 4 wkts.), 30.

ROBIN HOOD A. V. OUTWOOD FRIENDS A.—At Robin Hood. Scores:—Robin Hood—B. Booth 14, E. Wormald 8, J. Holroyd 2, F. Wormald 28, H. Fenton o, Jim Walker o, G. Brown 9, C. Featherstone o, J. Walker (not out) 3, H. Blackburn o, B. Kirkby o, extras, 14; total, 79. Outwood—H. Lees, 4, W. F. Jones 3, J. Whiteley 4, F. Tattersall 1, W. Ashton 3, W. Finnigan o, I. Land 1, G. Richardson 5, J. Whittaker 10, Bedford o, J. Norton (not out) 1, extras, 2; total, 51.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT CRICKET LEAGUE.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

Kippax v. Altofts. Messrs Britton and Briggs, Rothwell v. Carlton. Messrs Lumb and Booth, Woodlesford v. Stanley. Messrs Tattersall and Newton.

FARMERS AND POTATO PICKERS.

A meeting of the Yorkshire Farmers' Union was held at the Queen Hotel, Doncaster, on Saturday, Mr P. Harrison presiding. A letter was read from Mr J. G. Butcher, M.P., with reference to the potato picker question and the Insurance Act. According to the reply of Mr Wedgwood Benn, on behalf of the Insurance Commissioners, in the Board of Commerce, the term "potato picker," included in the list of subsidiary employments liable for insurance under the Insurance Act, meant persons engaged in harvesting the crop, and does not include persons who sort potatoes at the pie. According to an answer given to Mr. Butcher (Wakefield) ago, he thought that both were exempted; but it would appear, according to Mr Wedgwood Benn, that sorters were not.

Mr W. Armstrong (Selby) said he considered that both—those dealing with the harvest and those working at the pie—should be exempted. In casual women workers on farms should be exempted. If they got an order for 10 tons of potatoes in the middle of the week they required 12 women only one day, they had got to stamp these women's cards at the cost of 5d. each. That was a charge of 5s. upon every waggon of potatoes they sent out. No other class of business men would stand what the British farmers were standing to-day.

It was decided to communicate with members of Parliament who support the Union, and point out the farmers' grievances in regard to the Act, and ask them to bring the matter before the House of Commons at the earliest possible moment.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

Telephone No. 1129.
RHODES & SONS,
GENERAL PRINTERS,
2 AIRE STREET,
LEEDS.

A SINGLE-WICKET CRICKET STORY.

A very droll description of a single-wicket cricket match between Bob Grimston and Fred Micklethwaite is given by the late Sir Edward Chandos Leigh, K.C.B., K.C., in "Bar, Bat, and Bit: Recollections and Experiences" (John Murray). In this match "no-balls" were to be allowed:

Micklethwaite went in first and got seventeen. He was a portly, middle-aged man, weighing nearly sixteen stone, and trundled a very round-paced ball underhand. He kept coming over the crease, and when Bob had got fourteen runs, he ran up to within three yards of the wicket and bowled him clean out. Naturally Bob was furious, and this the great Mr. Warde, who was referee and sat in a bath-chair, on being appealed to, answered, 'Grimston was out, but it wasn't cricket on the part of Micklethwaite!' So a return match took place. I should add that in the first match each of these veterans was allowed a ground boy to field for him, but in the return match the boys were barred.

"Bob went in first, and when he made a hit Micklethwaite would say, 'You needn't run, Bob; I give you one for that!' Presently Bob made a much bigger hit. 'I give you one for that,' said Micklethwaite. 'No, you don't,' said Bob, 'it's worth more,' and started to run.

"One of the boys who had fielded in the first match happened to be sitting on a bench, and Micklethwaite sang out to him to run after the ball. The boy did so, and Bob, seeing this, ran after the boy, who dropped the ball. Micklethwaite picked it up, and ran Bob out! Again furious, he appealed to Mr. Warde, who again replied, 'Grimston was out, but it wasn't cricket on the part of Micklethwaite!' Whereupon Bob said, 'If I'm out, I'll kill that boy!'

"Now, in the old days behind the old pavilion there were some deep holes for rubbish. All present joined in the chase. The boy jumped into one of these holes, where Bob kept vainly prodding at him with his bat. At last he was pulled off, and after his rage had subsided, with his usual generosity he gave the boy half-a-crown.

"There was a funny sequel. I challenged Grimston, and he got very much annoyed with me, but as Micklethwaite was standing by he had to accept, and we each found a sovereign to Micklethwaite as stakeholder. The next day, under the direction of the late Lord Beasborough, our wicket was duly prepared. I turned up, but there was no Bob, so I claimed the stakes."

INSANITOUS EXCUSES.

"Even at the best of times the district superintendents were always at loggerheads with Oriental ideas of punctuality; it was nothing uncommon to have half a dozen engines in steam with only a couple of crews ready to go out. A conscientious native doctor would give a driver a medical certificate for a bad toe; another would have married a wife—and the Mohammedan's matrimonial

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
MILLER'S NORTH ST LEEDS
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

LOVE'S CROSS ROADS.

By MRS. L. T. MEADE

Author of "The Orchid Room," "The Medicine Lady," "From the Hand of the Hunter," "His Masonic," "Little Wife Hester," &c.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Miss Patricia arrived back at the Grange by the dinner train. A carriage had been sent to the village to meet her, but neither Paul Colthurst nor any of his family accompanied it. The servant who stood in the station hewed gravely to the lady as she alighted from her third-class carriage. He conducted her at once to the grand carriage in waiting, and she was bowled swiftly away, the soft summer breeze blowing on her heated cheeks, in the direction of Colmere Grange.

There was a dull sort of feeling all over Miss Patricia that she was very, very near the heart and essence of the mystery of her life. She felt certain of it. Things had come to such a pass that they could not stay in that happy manner. She did not notice the fact that none of those she loved had come to meet her. Had she had time to think of it, she would have been more pleased than ever.

By-and-bye the carriage rolled up the well-gravelled avenue, and stopped in the grand sweep before the front door. A servant hastily descended the steps. Miss Patricia alighted.

"What is the hour?" she said.

"The dressing-gong has just sounded, ma'am," was the reply.

"Oh, then I shall be in plenty of time," she made answer.

She went up at once to her room. She did not take long in changing her dress. She put on a black silk one which she had generally worn in the evenings since she had come to Connop Grange. As a rule, Mrs. Colthurst would send a maid to help her, and there was always a little glass of milk, a dressing-table, a sweet bouquet of fresh flowers which she was expected to wear at dinner-time. On this occasion, however, the milk was not put in an appearance, and there were no flowers ready.

"I have been busy on their account all day," thought Miss Patricia, "but they have forgotten this dear little service which I love so well."

She put on her dress unaided, and arranged her hair as well as she could. Mrs. Colthurst's maid managed to make a good job of it, and Miss Patricia's wintry locks. They did not look so bright and well ordered and becoming as usual to-night. Having done so, she went downstairs. She had a queer sort of feeling running through her mind, as though she were haunted by two distinct voices, the one of which was widely divergent from the other. One thought belonged to Paul, and Peter, and Thomas Oswald, and the coming parting. The other thought reverted to that region of a woman's mind where it is said that the best of us, if we are worth our salt, are occasionally to stray. She was thinking how soon she might purchase a ready-made dress, and what colour it should be, and how it could be made to look suitable to her present happy position, at the same time not having her look younger than her years.

"For if I hate anything in all the world, I hate that sort of thing," thought Miss Patricia, as she entered the drawing-room.

Pamela was not present, but Mrs. Colthurst was. She was there alone. Miss Patricia looked round the room.

"I am afraid I am late," she said.

"No, you are not at all late. You and I, Miss Hermione, are going to dine alone to-night."

"But why is that?"

"You will know everything after dinner," replied Mrs. Colthurst. "Ah! there's the gong. Will you take my arm? Let me conduct you to the dining-room."

Miss Patricia certainly forgot her dress then. She could not make out what strange turn events could have taken. Dinner was served with due solemnity and all regard to the proprieties. There were a vast number of courses—at one was omitted—although Miss Patricia began to feel so weary from her day's occupation, and so nervous, that she had hardly appetite enough to eat anything. Mrs. Colthurst talked in a sort of surface-manner which was extremely trying to the agitated guest. She addressed Miss Patricia as she would the merest stranger. She spoke of the best pictures of the year in the Academy, the best piece at present to be seen on the stage. She reverted to a little village gossip. She seemed to be talking against time. Her face, generally so smooth and dignified, had some freshly drawn wrinkles on it, which added to her appearance. She was evidently keeping herself in; she was also making a tremendous effort to do so. She was just as finding the task extremely difficult. At last the sweet meal came to an end, and the ladies retired to the drawing-room.

"Now, what is the meaning of this?" said Miss Patricia. "What is it? I can't bear it! Something has happened while I was away!"

"Indeed, yes," said Mrs. Colthurst; "a great deal has happened. Will you come with me? My husband asked me to bring you to him to the study as soon as ever dinner was over. He has asked me to come too. He wants to be present."

"I will go at once."

"Yes, didn't I say so? Don't ask me questions. You will soon know the best and the worst."

Miss Patricia made no remark. Mrs. Colthurst led the way to her husband's study. She tapped at the door. Paul Colthurst's voice called out, "Come in," and the two ladies entered. The latter found Paul seated in a big armchair, with his back plainly to the fireplace and his face turned towards the window. Both windows were shut, however, which fact struck Miss Patricia as strange and unaccountable on this lovely warm summer's evening. Peter and Pamela were also in the room. Pamela's face was deadly white, and the tears were still on her cheeks. Her beauty was marred by the tears she had been shedding. She sat in a somewhat shadowy part of the room in the background, and she was holding Peter's hand.

"Whatever is the matter?" exclaimed Miss Patricia. "What are we here in the dark for? Why are the windows shut, and why do the young people sit back there where they do?"

"I will tell you in a moment, Patricia," replied Paul. "My dear"—he turned to his wife—"this, I think, is your place."

He removed to Mrs. Colthurst to sit by him. When she did so he slipped his arm round her waist. She leant back against his strong arm.

"Please explain," said Miss Patricia.

"Yes, I will tell you everything. Sit here, will you?"

"But why?"

"Because I wish you to." He motioned to a chair not far from Peter and Pamela.

Pamela bent towards Miss Patricia and tried to smile, but her tears welled forth afresh, and, bowing forward, she buried her head on Peter's breast.

"Yes, you too will be safer here," said Paul Colthurst.

"Oh, please tell me what you mean!"

"What I say. Peter is in danger; Pamela is in danger, and you, as a mere matter of revenge, may also come within the aim of one whose object it is to destroy life. But no harm of that sort can happen to my wife and therefore we sit here facing the window. I have kept the windows shut on purpose because of this said danger."

"But, Paul, Paul, I was coming to you with my story. I went to town on purpose. I was coming to you with the knowledge which is now a certainty."

"Patricia, we may all thank you for having come here to-day, but your going to town to-day was doubtless an excellent thing; and I took your advice, and prevented, if I did not prevent, Pamela's having any interview of course with that poor tramp."

"Silas Lake!" interrupted Miss Patricia.

"Yes, I know all about him."

"Well, dear, your goodness, your courage, have just come too late. I will tell you why."

"Please, do. I don't understand."

"There is such a thing," continued Paul, "as a wicked conspiracy. Of such a ways and forsaking them and turning round and being coming, through the mercy of Heaven, good seen again. Patricia, of such a change, such a marvellous change can take place in the case of a poor, forsaken, lonely, starving tramp, surely it can take place in a greater degree with larger issues at stake, in the case of another. Before I say anything further, I will ask Pamela to explain to you what happened this morning."

"Yes, I like this, Auntie Patricia," said Pamela's clear voice. "Peter and I were out in the grounds. You had said something to father, and he did not wish me to talk to the poor tramp, and I—yes, I was angry. Father said I mustn't see the tramp again. As things turned out, it was a very good thing for me that I did see him. We—Peter and I—were walking in the grounds, and we met him, for father forgot to send a message to the lodge that he was not to be admitted. The tramp came alone and asked to see me, not put in an appearance, and there were no flowers ready.

"No wonder, you poor, poor child!"

"But he would not do it," continued Pamela. "He said he couldn't. He said I wouldn't let him—just as if I could prevent him coming to the grounds, and having to see and kissed my hand, and asked Heaven to bless me, and then rushed away; and he said there was only the mansion he cared to be wanted to have him arrested. But I don't think father does want to have him arrested. He's very kind."

"It could do no good," said Paul. "Patricia, please listen. Pamela and Peter came to me with their terrible, their convincing, story, and I sent my darling child upstairs, and I told Peter he was to stay with her as long as I could, and then—"

Paul's voice dropped. He did not speak for a full five minutes. Patricia felt her heart going out to him.

"Do you remember a day," he continued, "when I proposed to you and asked you to give up the most precious thing you possessed in all the world?"

"Did I forget?" said Miss Patricia.

"It was the memory of that day that came to me when I heard how I was to act. I resolved to tell my wife and Peter and Pamela exactly what happened. I will then propose something to them, anybody. If the tramp is great, I trust that I can be greater."

"Oh, but—Paul—Paul, must you?"

"Poor Patricia, you know what I have got to say."

"I know—I do know—but must you say it all?"

"Patricia, I must. In no other way can I save my soul alive. My dear, listen to me." He kissed his wife. He took her hand. "Now I have a story to tell you; I will tell it in a very few minutes, and many ago, dear, for you, I married. You have heard of my first marriage?"

"Of course I have, dear Paul. You married Peter's mother."

"That is true. I did marry Peter's mother. But what you do not know is this—that although Anna was my dear wife, and was the mother of Peter, I was not Peter's father."

"What?" cried Miss Colthurst.

"I was not Peter's father. When my wife died, on her deathbed I told her that I had already been married; she had married and had a child. Her husband died from a street accident in London, and the child was given to her husband's sister, Patricia Ransome, to care for. Poor Anna went back to be with the children's cousin, Thomas Oswald, but on her deathbed she implored of me to adopt the child. She built up as my own. I promised her. So far, no harm, you will say. But listen. I went to Patricia, and I took her aside from her. I felt that I was breaking her heart; but I had promised my wife, and my wife had written to her, and Patricia was willing. She gave up the child, and I took him to my home, and the people whom I knew thought that he was my boy and Anna's, whereas all the time he was only Anna's boy and not mine at all. Then my cousin, old Mr. Colthurst, sent for me, and he asked me if the boy was my son, and I—I said yes."

Mrs. Colthurst half rose to her feet. Then she sat down again.

"The boy was brought up as my boy, and after a time I married you, and you and Pamela and Peter and I lived together, and by the terms of the will Peter was to inherit the property on the day that he married. Well, he isn't my son. He has no claim to the Colthurst estate. Thomas Oswald is my heir. On my death, is the heir."

A dead silence fell over the room. Presently, Peter got up, crossed the room, and knelt down by Mrs. Colthurst's shoulder.

"It must have been very hard for you to tell us that," she was his remark.

"Yes, terribly hard."

"It was quite splendid of you," said Pamela, rising also from her seat and coming towards Miss Patricia.

"Children," he said, "do you really feel like that?"

"I love you better than I ever did," said Pamela.

"And you are in very truth my father in all that a man can be a father to his son," said the boy.

"Now I have something to propose. Thank you, my children, thank you. This place belongs to me for my lifetime, and so does Brabazon Hall, and so does the rest of the enormous property which was left to me for life. I want you, Pamela, and you, Peter, to be married at once in town by special licence, and then I want us all to emigrate to Australia. I will give directions about these places to my solicitors, and will have them sold. Even so, that my large income may be increased thereby, and by that means I can, with what I have already saved, give you each, my children, not the great fortune that would have been yours, had you, Peter, really been my son, but what ought to mean, in a new land, considerable riches. Thomas Oswald's intended crime is only too plain, but who am I to cast a stone at him? My act caused his temptation. Nevertheless, we will circumvent him. It was necessary for me to tell you. It is unnecessary for him to know. He will know in the future when I am no more. Wife, do you agree with me?"

"I am absolutely puzzled, Paul," replied poor Mrs. Colthurst. "I suppose in time I shall get reconciled to this new and strange state of things. The property is yours for your life. Why should we go away from all that we love?"

"For the sake of the children, dearest, and because of my sin. Darling, that is my punishment."

"Oh, mother, mother!" exclaimed Pamela. "Whatever happens, let us all stay together!"

"And I would love to live in a new country," added Peter.

"Well," said Mrs. Colthurst, "where you are is, of course, my home, and I don't mind. I never thought Paul—Paul of all people—would yield to temptation, but it is true that we are not of us perfect."

"Oh, mother, mother!" cried poor Pamela. "I love him more than ever because he has sinned and has repented."

"Pamela, I shall always love my dear husband," said Mrs. Colthurst, speaking with dignity. Tears rose to her eyes. She wiped them away. Miss Patricia was about to leave the room, when Peter put his hand on her shoulder.

"If anyone in all the world is in this matter, you are in it. Whatever happens, you must stay with us."

"Yes, you must, Patricia," said Paul. "I want these children to be married as soon as possible. If we go to town to-morrow, they can be married after the morning service by special licence. Then we will all go to Australia. Oswald may suspect, but he can never guess the kernel of the truth which lies in the fact that Peter is not my son."

"Pam, will you marry me, though I am not Peter Colthurst?" said the young man.

"Of course I will, Peter. It is you I am marrying, not your name."

"Now I have something to say," remarked Miss Patricia. "Peter's name is, in reality, Peter Ransome, but I mean him to keep the name which you, dear Paul, have given him, and which his own mother wished him to have. I mean him to be Peter Colthurst. I want him always to appear before the world as your son."

"That can be arranged," said Paul, "and we can keep our secret until my death."

"Then I feel just as happy as ever I did," said Pamela. "And now I am going away with Peter, for if we are to be married so soon, and if we are to leave here to-morrow, we have a great deal to do to-night."

"And as my head is in a perfect muddle, I am going to my room," said Mrs. Colthurst. "I suppose I shall get better later. Patricia and Paul found themselves alone. Patricia looked into Paul's face.

"No more mystery," she said.

"A strange sense of peace," was his reply.

"Then I forget?" said Miss Patricia.

"It was the memory of that day that came to me when I heard how I was to act. I resolved to tell my wife and Peter and Pamela exactly what happened. I will then propose something to them, anybody. If the tramp is great, I trust that I can be greater."

"Oh, but—Paul—Paul, must you?"

"Poor Patricia, you know what I have got to say."

"I know—I do know—but must you say it all?"

"Patricia, I must. In no other way can I save my soul alive. My dear, listen to me." He kissed his wife. He took her hand. "Now I have a story to tell you; I will tell it in a very few minutes, and many ago, dear, for you, I married. You have heard of my first marriage?"

"Of course I have, dear Paul. You married Peter's mother."

"That is true. I did marry Peter's mother. But what you do not know is this—that although Anna was my dear wife, and was the mother of Peter, I was not Peter's father."

"What?" cried Miss Colthurst.

"I was not Peter's father. When my wife died, on her deathbed I told her that I had already been married; she had married and had a child. Her husband died from a street accident in London, and the child was given to her husband's sister, Patricia Ransome, to care for. Poor Anna went back to be with the children's cousin, Thomas Oswald, but on her deathbed she implored of me to adopt the child. She built up as my own. I promised her. So far, no harm, you will say. But listen. I went to Patricia, and I took her aside from her. I felt that I was breaking her heart; but I had promised my wife, and my wife had written to her, and Patricia was willing. She gave up the child, and I took him to my home, and the people whom I knew thought that he was my boy and Anna's, whereas all the time he was only Anna's boy and not mine at all. Then my cousin, old Mr. Colthurst, sent for me, and he asked me if the boy was my son, and I—I said yes."

Mrs. Colthurst half rose to her feet. Then she sat down again.

"The boy was brought up as my boy, and after a time I married you, and you and Pamela and Peter and I lived together, and by the terms of the will Peter was to inherit the property on the day that he married. Pamela. Well, he isn't my son. He has no claim to the Colthurst estate. Thomas Oswald is my heir. On my death, is the heir."

A dead silence fell over the room. Presently, Peter got up, crossed the room, and knelt down by Mrs. Colthurst's shoulder.

"It must have been very hard for you to tell us that," she was his remark.

"Yes, terribly hard."

"It was quite splendid of you," said Pamela, rising also from her seat and coming towards Miss Patricia.

"Children," he said, "do you really feel like that?"

"I love you better than I ever did," said Pamela.

"And you are in very truth my father in all that a man can be a father to his son," said the boy.

"Now I have something to propose. Thank you, my children, thank you. This place belongs to me for my lifetime, and so does Brabazon Hall, and so does the rest of the enormous property which was left to me for life. I want you, Pamela, and you, Peter, to be married at once in town by special licence, and then I want us all to emigrate to Australia. I will give directions about these places to my solicitors, and will have them sold. Even so, that my large income may be increased thereby, and by that means I can, with what I have already saved, give you each, my children, not the great fortune that would have been yours, had you, Peter, really been my son, but what ought to mean, in a new land, considerable riches. Thomas Oswald's intended crime is only too plain, but who am I to cast a stone at him? My act caused his temptation. Nevertheless, we will circumvent him. It was necessary for me to tell you. It is unnecessary for him to know. He will know in the future when I am no more. Wife, do you agree with me?"

"I am absolutely puzzled, Paul," replied poor Mrs. Colthurst. "I suppose in time I shall get reconciled to this new and strange state of things. The property is yours for your life. Why should we go away from all that we love?"

"For the sake of the children, dearest, and because of my sin. Darling, that is my punishment."

"Oh, mother, mother!" exclaimed Pamela. "Whatever happens, let us all stay together!"

"And I would love to live in a new country," added Peter.

"Well," said Mrs. Colthurst, "where you are is, of course, my home, and I don't mind. I never thought Paul—Paul of all people—would yield to temptation, but it is true that we are not of us perfect."

"Oh, mother, mother!" cried poor Pamela. "I love him more than ever because he has sinned and has repented."

"Pamela, I shall always love my dear husband," said Mrs. Colthurst, speaking with dignity. Tears rose to her eyes. She wiped them away. Miss Patricia was about to leave the room, when Peter put his hand on her shoulder.

"If anyone in all the world is in this matter, you are in it. Whatever happens, you must stay with us."

"Yes, you must, Patricia," said Paul. "I want these children to be married as soon as possible. If we go to town to-morrow, they can be married after the morning service by special licence. Then we will all go to Australia. Oswald may suspect, but he can never guess the kernel of the truth which lies in the fact that Peter is not my son."

"Pam, will you marry me, though I am not Peter Colthurst?" said the young man.

"Of course I will, Peter. It is you I am marrying, not your name."

"Now I have something to say," remarked Miss Patricia. "Peter's name is, in reality, Peter Ransome, but I mean him to keep the name which you, dear Paul, have given him, and which his own mother wished him to have. I mean him to be Peter Colthurst. I want him always to appear before the world as your son."

"That can be arranged," said Paul, "and we can keep our secret until my death."

"Then I feel just as happy as ever I did," said Pamela. "And now I am going away with Peter, for if we are to be married so soon, and if we are to leave here to-morrow, we have a great deal to do to-night."

"And as my head is in a perfect muddle, I am going to my room," said Mrs. Colthurst. "I suppose I shall get better later. Patricia and Paul found themselves alone. Patricia looked into Paul's face.

"No more mystery," she said.

"A strange sense of peace," was his reply.

"Then I forget?" said Miss Patricia.

"Will you stay with us? You came to us as our good angel; you will come with us to the land of promise?"

"I will," she replied.

The next day the Colthurst family and Miss Patricia and Pamela Lennox went to town. By this time, Thomas Oswald had very nearly collected the thousand pounds necessary to secure the fatal capsules from Reuben Jakes. He was in a state of wild excitement. He joked and laughed. His tenants had forsaken him. He was even prepared to do the horrible deed himself. He fraternised with the labourers, who, of their hearts, loved him like him at all. He tried to make himself most agreeable to Mrs. Lucks; and Mrs. Lucks's good-looking niece, he said to her mother that if the Oswalds did not go soon, they would really have to shut up house.

Two days after this, Thomas Oswald was standing in the breakfast-room at No. 10, Jamesstreet, when a telegram was put into his hand. He opened it, and read the few words. They were to this effect:

Married to-day at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, by special licence, by the Rev. Hubert Colthurst, cousin to the bridegroom, Peter Colthurst, son of Paul Colthurst, of Connop Grange, and Pamela Lennox. The happy pair leave immediately for the Continent.

"There I am done!" said Oswald, and he let the flimsy sheet of paper flutter to the ground.

Miss Hattie who presently took it up. "What is the matter with you, Mr. Oswald?" she said.

"Read it," he replied.

She read. "Why, dear, dear, she exclaimed, "there's nothing sad in this. It's a wedding. How perfectly delightful! And a wedding by special licence. I always love that sort. As sure as a person is married by special licence, there's a story behind. What should put you out about this, Mr. Oswald? Why, here's Peter Colthurst—Paul's son—those two were the dear young people who had ten here a short time ago. Oh, I'm glad this is delightful! I must fly to mother and tell her."

Years have passed by. Peter and his wife are as happy as any two people can be in this world, which is a strange mingling of happiness and pain, of tears and sorrow, of smiles and tears. And Paul is also happy, for he has confessed his sin, and Heaven has forgiven him.

"I owe it to a poor tramp," he says.

It is wonderful how great deeps in this story were owed to that same poor tramp.

Thomas Oswald, it is grievous to say, notwithstanding the fact that there only stood one life between him and great possessions, never lived to enjoy them. He died three or four years later, a confirmed drunkard. His aunt Thomas quickly followed in his father's footsteps. When, by-and-bye, the time came to redistribute their great property in Laura, who was always gentle and sweet and kind, will be found to be the sole heiress.

There was one thing which Peter and Pamela could not rest until they accomplished. They got Silas out to Australia. They found him invaluable. He lived for them. He was changed in every way that a man could be changed.

Sybil met the clerk at the outer door of the office, and thanking him, said: "I found what I wanted after all," and then hurried downstairs.

After spending three hours in deep and anxious thought, until her mind was in such a ferment of restlessness that sober reflection was no longer possible, she decided to send a telegram in her employer's name, agreeing to accept the contract at 12s. 4d. a ton. Even when her decision might prove disastrous, after all, to Arthur Fermor's interest; but at length she screwed up her courage and despatched the fateful message. As she retreated homeward through the fast gathering darkness her eyes grew moist with tears, for the anxiety and suspense had proved too much for her.

On arriving at the office on the following morning, she found Mr. Fermor pacing about his room, looking very downcast and gloomy.

"How unfortunate it was, Miss Bennett, that I should have been absent when that telegram arrived!" he said, referring to the message which was lying on his desk.

"But I replied to it," she said, striving to appear calm and collected.

"replied to it!" he exclaimed in amazement.

"Yes," and then in a few words she told him all that had transpired during his absence.

As she was on the point of finishing her statement a telegram arrived from Riga worded as follows: "Congratulations. You have secured contract."

Arthur Fermor sprang forward and grasped her hand, with tears—yes, positively tears of joy and gratitude in his eyes.

"Sybil Bennett," he said in a voice broken with emotion, "you have saved me from bankruptcy and ruin. More than that, you have put £25,000 in my pocket. How can I thank you for what you have done for me?"

"I am glad—" And then Sybil paused and nent her eyes to the floor, too agitated to utter another word.

"Sybil," he resumed, in a low and tender tone, "I may tell you frankly now that from the first moment you came here I admired you—nay, loved you, and desired to make you my wife. I know I have been a brute to you, but, believe me, sweetest, I always felt sorry afterwards—always, Sybil." After a pause, he added: "Come, darling, consent to be my wife, and make me the happiest man in London to-day."

Sybil, smiling through her tears, raised her face to his, and their lips met tremblingly in a kiss of deep and abiding love.

M. L. RAMEY.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

BUTTER AS FOOD.

Unless eaten raw, butter is one of the most wholesome foods. Children that are kept well supplied with butter do not require to be doctored with cod-liver oil, which is well, as the butter is the cheaper. Consumptive people and diabetics should be supplied with as much butter as they can digest without giving rise to biliousness.

TO TREAT A BURN.

The best treatment for a burn is to cover it at once with several layers of borie gauze. Large burns on any parts of the limbs, and even small burns on the body itself, should be seen to by a doctor at the earliest opportunity, but until that is possible the burn should be kept covered with borie gauze. The worst feature of a severe burn is the shock to the system. The patient appears to be cold and shivering. The best treatment is to cover the patient well with blankets, adding a covered hot water-bottle, and keeping a constant vessel of boiling water on the range, or, if the skin is pale and the lips blue, giving a little hot brandy and water.

POLITENESS IN THE HOME.

It is significant to observe how some men fail to know how to treat their wives and sisters when they meet them. It seems to them quite unnecessary to lift their hats, or to give their nearest and dearest the courtesy they would freely render to a fellow woman outside of the domestic circle. This should not be, and the sooner a stop is put to it the better for all concerned. The ablest and most persuasive treatise on the etiquette of the home will not be able to make it a thing of beauty, although it would be helpful towards that end. What is needed is the right training of boys and girls. Politeness should everywhere be enforced by parents in the same way as other good qualities are taught.

DIET FOR THE INVALID.

When the doctor orders a patient to be kept on a light and nourishing diet, he does not mean, as many people think, that he should live chiefly on beef-tea, jellies, custards, and sponge cakes, grapes, and jelly.

These are the things which in novels you will generally find sick people consuming by the order of their physicians, but in real life such will very quickly have the effect of murdering them.

Beef-tea—the ideal food for the sick, of the ignorant—is, as a matter of fact, not a food at all. One well-known doctor maintained that all Napoleon's wars had not occasioned so much loss of life as meat-eaters' ideas as to the food value of beef-tea.

It is a stimulant, and in illness a stimulant is often of great value, but no one can live on stimulants. In its place as a whisper-up of energy beef-tea will do good, just as poking the fire will make it burn more brightly; but it will not make the fire—or the body—burn on for long. For this reason it has been compared, as a food for the sick, to an ass in a lion's skin.

If, however, it be mixed with a beaten-up egg, milk, and seasoning of salt and pepper, and made into a custard, it will be nourishing, with these real foods, make an excellent form of light, nutritious diet, for beef-tea imparts a flavour to the insipid egg and milk, and many people will find a savoury custard of this kind much more acceptable than beef-tea.

Sponge cakes, which one so often sees on a plate by a sick person's bedside, are bad. They are, or ought to be, largely composed of eggs, and, as far as that goes, are nourishing enough, but they contain far too much sugar. A really good home-made sponge cake is a delicious and indigestible thing.

Its richness in sugar causes it to be a fertile maker of acidity, and this, of course, gives it exceptional unsuitability, anything but desirable for a person under doctor's orders in the matter of food. Grapes are undoubtedly useful to the sick. I do not wish to be understood to say that doctors order them for patients who they are not suitable for sick people, not at all. They are very refreshing, and of a certain amount of value as food, but on account of the sugar they contain; but this very property—their excess of sugar—renders them unfit for some persons.

In any case they can only be considered as adjuncts to a nourishing diet.

Milk and eggs are the basis of all "light and nourishing" diets, for in a beefless imparts of light, nutritious diet, for beef-tea imparts a flavour to the insipid egg and milk, and many people will find a savoury custard of this kind much more acceptable than beef-tea.

Sponge cakes, which one so often sees on a plate by a sick person's bedside, are bad. They are, or ought to be, largely composed of eggs, and, as far as that goes, are nourishing enough, but they contain far too much sugar. A really good home-made sponge cake is a delicious and indigestible thing.

Its richness in sugar causes it to be a fertile maker of acidity, and this, of course, gives it exceptional unsuitability, anything but desirable for a person under doctor's orders in the matter of food. Grapes are undoubtedly useful to the sick. I do not wish to be understood to say that doctors order them for patients who they are not suitable for sick people, not at all. They are very refreshing, and of a certain amount of value as food, but on account of the sugar they contain; but this very property—their excess of sugar—renders them unfit for some persons.

In any case they can only be considered as adjuncts to a nourishing diet.

Milk and eggs are the basis of all "light and nourishing" diets, for in a beefless imparts of light, nutritious diet, for beef-tea imparts a flavour to the insipid egg and milk, and many people will find a savoury custard of this kind much more acceptable than beef-tea.

All solid foods should be of a kind to be very easily digested. This is what a doctor means when he orders the sick to live on "light and nourishing" food, such as beef, pork, goose, salmon, &c., should be carefully eschewed, and only tender meats—such as fresh-cut veal, chickens, game, and rabbit—allowed.

Hare is shunned by invalids, as a rule, it is too rich for them, because it has to be cooked with a great deal of fat to prevent it from burning. Fish, as a rule, is very digestible, but it comes into the category of a "light and nourishing" food only when it is delicate fish, such as salmon. White fish is the only kind permitted. For very delicate people it is better to avoid fish altogether.

All and every kind of milk pudding is, of course, included in such a dietary, but do not pin your faith to jelly. This is a great stand by of the sick in fiction, but not in fact.

Jelly contains very little nourishment, but it is pleasant and refreshing as an occasional change. Custards, however, if properly made, the place of milk and eggs it will form a dietetically light, but as certainly not nourishing.

Curds-and-whey and junkets are far too little used in the feeding of invalids. They are both invaluable, for they present milk in a digestible and appetising form, and therefore often tempt people to take it when they have grown weary of it in puddings.

Milk soup is also far too seldom seen on the tables of those for whom is ordered a diet "light and nourishing."—The Table.

DISTRICT BREVITIES.

Mr Lane Fox, M.P., is interesting himself in the housing question.

• • •

Egg-taking, it is said, is not unknown at local shows. It should be put a stop to.

• • •

A flower show is to be promoted at Roundhay. Why not be content with Crossgates Show?

• • •

Optimistic! A Crossgates man stated in the Bankruptcy Court he started business with £5 capital.

• • •

Garforth had a clean sheet of health, so far as infectious diseases are concerned, for the month of June.

• • •

The youth at Garforth who sold a gold ring for a "tanner" had little idea of values. In his new home he may learn.

• • •

The Rev. J. Warren Milward succeeds the Rev. Lewis Thomas as superintendent minister in the Tadcaster Wesleyan Circuit.

• • •

Mr F. Lockwood, of Thornton-le-Clay, who won the prize for fat bullock at Sherburn Show, says the feeder of "Pat the Giant."

• • •

To use the words of one of the Councillors, "Garforth keeps adding to the stock." Last month there were two deaths and eight births.

• • •

Hullo! South Milford and Sherburn have now a telephone service. Church Fenton has not received the 'phone yet, and it thinks it is slighted.

• • •

Harrogate folks are protesting against flying-men taking possession of the place. Why should not Wetherby give them an invitation to use the race-course?

• • •

Is the dangerous corner at Pinfold Gate, Halton, to be removed? The Council might make another attempt to arrange terms with the owner of the land.

• • •

As showing how dependent agricultural societies are on a subscription list, Sherburn Show in 1913 had £161 5s. in subscriptions and £44 2s. in gate money.

• • •

Kippax can run a flower and poultry show successfully. Garforth cannot get residents to work for one. It is long since the Garforth Flower Show fizzled out.

• • •

"There is no pleasanter outing," says a writer, "than a pother about the by-roads near Sicklinghall and Kirkby Overblow, or by Kirk Deighton and Spofforth."

• • •

The "joke" of the Bramham young man, who sent a threatening letter to a girl, was rather expensive, inasmuch as he had costs amounting to £5 to pay.

• • •

How many of the local farmers' sons take advantage of the agricultural education provided by the County Council? Reference was made to this at Sherburn Show.

• • •

A number of local scholars—Garforth, Micklefield, Oulton, and Rothwell—have won county minor scholarships. Female scholars have gained scholarships for intending teachers.

• • •

Were the members of the House Committee of the Hunslet Guardians afraid of a good beating from the Homes Committee that they did not turn up at the cricket match on Monday.

• • •

Mr Andrew Cochrane, the Selby shipbuilder, says he has been for 40 years a teetotaler, and he advocates total abstinence, but in his old age he takes a "little" in a medicinal way.

• • •

Why has the horticultural show become unpopular in the district? At one time there were numerous exhibitions, but now such shows are held only at Crossgates, Thorner, Tadcaster, and Kippax.

• • •

In celebration of his golden wedding Mr Andrew Cochrane, the Selby shipbuilder, presented each of his employees—740—with a new crown piece. He says his workmen are the best in the country.

• • •

Events for to-morrow (Saturday). Primrose League demonstration at Templenewsam, pageant at Swillington Park, Fete at Monk Fryston, and Church Fenton Sports. Now make your choice.

• • •

Do postmen deliver letters properly? At Rothwell the other week a postman on the morning round, being unable to get an answer at the front door at the back door of a house, left a letter with a newspaper on the top on the garden wall.

• • •

Monk Fryston Show takes place shortly, and the committee are expecting a larger gathering than ever. The show ground is in the Park, which is itself a great attraction, and good weather is all that is required to make the meeting a success.

• • •

The main street of Halton has plenty of traffic just now, and it is a wonder accidents don't occur, owing to the speed which motorists go at. What will be state of the road when the tramcars have brought up to Swarcliffe? The street is not nearly wide enough.

• • •

It was at a luncheon table and a Yorkshireman, not in the first flush of early youth, was complaining about his teeth or his digestion—we are not sure which. "It's a rum thing," he said, "but when I wor young I could ate owt, but could get nowt, but now that I can get owt I can ate nowt."

• • •

Mr Ladley, of Kirkby Wharfe, who was a judge at Sherburn Show, says that at Irish shows there are 15 to 20 horses in the class. Why cannot we do it, he asks. Irishmen said that Englishmen could not break horses when they got them, but he thinks they can manage that. His view is that farmers have not time to breed horses.

• • •

At the end of this month there will be an interesting wedding, for Baroness Beaumont and Mr Bernard Howard have decided to be married at the bride's home, Carlton Towers, near Selby, where the Stapleton family have been "seated" for many centuries. At the ceremony, which will be performed with the full rites of the Roman Catholic Church, Father Bernard Vaughan is to officiate, and there will be a large house party staying at Carlton Towers.

• • •

Will it come off? The Squire of Templenewsam predicts an election for next month.

• • •

Wetherby Orpheus Choir have been visiting villages in the neighbourhood and showing the natives what they can do.

• • •

Now that the ratepayers' association has gone to the wall, it is said the most powerful organization in Kippax is one of the clubs.

• • •

In a quarry at Wetherby there is a very large thistle, which has 33 branches, and the residents have been flocking to see it.

• • •

Mr C. W. Helm, of Rest Park, won more prizes at Sherburn Show than any other competitor. His enterprise deserved its reward.

• • •

The Skyrack magistrates inflicted deserved punishment on a Rothwell man, whom they described as a "cruel and unnatural" parent.

• • •

Oulton bowlers had a large representation in the Leeds merit competition, and several of them did well, Mr Peters probably best. They must try again.

• • •

More generous! At two performances by a crack band at Roundhay on Monday £80 was collected, £62 of which was given by the evening crowd.

• • •

Not so much interest is shown in the cricket matches between the members of the House and Horses Committees of the Hunslet Guardians as in past years. Why is it?

• • •

The County Council have the oversight of Tadcaster District Council's work, and it was rather funny the District Council condemning County Council property at Barkston.

• • •

More complaints about Roundhay tram service. A correspondent says that on Monday night there were not sufficient trams to take the people home, and hundreds had to walk. Not good enough.

• • •

Wetherby's latest! In aid of the funds of the Wetherby Boy Scouts, an open-air whist drive and dance were held on Friday evening in Wetherby Grange Park, kindly lent by Mrs Riley-Smith.

• • •

Crossgates golfers have twice been defeated by South Leeds, and now Crossgates Ladies, who made a draw with South Leeds Ladies at Rothwell Haigh, are inclined to crow over the male exponents.

• • •

Halton Wesleyans would not have Andrew Carnegie's assistance in buying a pipe organ, but the Barwick Wesleyans were not so particular; then they have had some of the millionaire's money, like Seacroft, and why not?

• • •

It is a lot of use leaving the bedroom windows open at night time, says a Rothwell resident, when the Council persist in leaving open at night out the ashpits, leaving the rubbish outside. Why can't the filth be put into a cart at once?

• • •

County Councillor Sykes, of Tadcaster, who has the management of one of the biggest business concerns in the county, having worked his way up the ladder, thinks that young folks are not keen enough nowadays. They must be up and doing.

• • •

Cochrane's Ltd., shipbuilders, Selby, employ a number of men who, although the oldest employee presented Mr and Mrs A. Cochrane with a beautiful gold loving cup on the occasion of their golden wedding. The relations between employers and employed are excellent.

• • •

Although it is hotter now than at midsummer nature's procession out of doors has begun to slacken down, and the tide of seasonal life has reached high-water mark, and will soon be slowly ebbing, and there is an unmistakable restfulness on the face of the country, a mood characteristic of the sultry "dog-days" in July.

• • •

Will there be any green sweetpeas at Crossgates? At the Bath Show the Mayor, who is a doctor, having stated he had hooked in vain for a green sweet pea, poured a few drops of a preparation into a glass vase, selected some white blooms, the stems of which he immersed. To the astonishment of the audience, the white blooms assumed a rich green tint. The trick was accomplished with sal volatile.

• • •

The new register of Parliamentary and local government electors is now in process of preparation. The Parliamentary register will come into force with the beginning of January, and will, in the ordinary course of events, be that on which the next General Election will be fought. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that all who are entitled to be voters should take every precaution to ensure that their names are correctly inserted.

• • •

In the opinion of some of the postmen at Rothwell letter-boxes in the front doors of houses are merely placed there for ornamental purposes, and not for their convenience (says a correspondent). Consequently made time is wasted by the men on the rounds, (especially in the morning) in going to the back doors of the houses; the time taken in knocking at one back door is sufficient to enable him to cover the greater part of a row.

• • •

"The huge brow of Kilnsey Crag overhanging the road near the two inns," says a writer in a novel, "was littered with strong stones at the crag, which is a good deal farther off than it looks, is forbidden. And besides, all the stones in those parts have been immersed. The Wharfe, which is a contemporary, but he has made a mistake, for on the occasion of their visit the Crossgates Foresters found stones to throw, and they hit the Crag, too.

• • •

Hope of Barkston Ash!—In regard to the Leeds merit bowling tournament, a writer in a contemporary says that "prominent among the sixteen prize-winners is H. Thomas, the Halton player, who has a rare tussle with W. P. Peters, of Oulton, their game being voted the best of those played at the Gipton. It was practically level pegging until Hall-way through the game, when Thomas began to show superiority, and eventually won by four chalks. The winner hopes to also have won the Barkston Ash medal. Well, I'm sure I wish him success, but I fear that the conclusion of the above paragraph will be fulfilled. Peters, by the way, defeated the veteran Tom Swallow, the champion of 1901 and 1909."

SALE OF WORK AT LITTLE PRESTON HALL.

VALUE OF TRAINED NURSES.

Yesterday afternoon a sale of work promoted by Mrs A. Lowther, was held at Little Preston Hall. It had been arranged for the sale to have taken place out of doors in the beautiful garden, but at the eleventh hour this idea had to be abandoned owing to rain, and the goods for sale were carried into one of the rooms. Mrs Mylchreest, of Elbolts, Thornes, performed the opening ceremony. The proceeds of the sale are to be shared between the Ladies' Home Mission and the West Riding Nurses. Among those present were Mrs Childe, of Potterton Hall (President of the Ladies' Home Mission Society of the Whitkirk Deanery), Miss Laverack (Oulton), and Mrs Townsley (secretaries), Mrs Wheeler (Ledston Hall), Miss Walker (Leeds), the Rev. E. B. Smith (vicar of Kippax), and the Rev. J. Gregory (curate-in-charge of Great Preston).

Mrs Mylchreest was introduced by the Rev. E. B. Smith, who explained the objects of the sale. The money which was given to the Home Mission went to the Assistant Clergy Fund, which, he believed, assisted about 1,400 small parishes throughout England and Wales. With regard to the West Riding Nurses Association, he did not profess to know a great deal, but Mrs Lowther, who took a great interest in it, would read a letter to them.

Mrs Mylchreest, in declaring the sale open, said she hoped it would be a great success, so that a substantial sum could be handed over to enable them to carry out such excellent work.

Mrs Lowther read the following letter from Mrs Sheepshanks, of Arthington Hall, the secretary of the West Riding Nurses Association:—

"The objects of the W.R.N.A. are to supply properly trained nurses and midwives throughout the county, to co-operate with other nursing associations in helping on this work, and to form local affiliated associations in districts where no adequate nursing provision already exists. The Association has a house in Leeds where women are trained as nurses and midwives; they learn their work in the district—in the homes of the poor—and so are taught to make use of any appliances which are at hand. The house supplies emergency nurses when an affiliated association needs them, and also holiday nurses. The nurses sent out are inspected by the fully trained superintendent three or four times a year. The fees for one year's training in district and midwifery work are £30, and this includes board, lodgings and the necessary lectures. To a pupil who will bind herself to nurse for the Association for 2 years the fees are reduced to £20. The County Council give scholarships to the amount of £20. The work of the Association is rapidly increasing. Last year £98 was taken at the Leeds house for maternity booking fees against £39 for the year before. The new colliery districts are supply ing for nurses, and now the rules as in school nurses, registration of births, etc., come into force, there will be more and more demand for nurses. The Association is anxious for more women to train; it is a great opening for young women with a promise of work and regular salary. The Association badly needs more support, which it probably would have if better known."

A vote of thanks to Mrs Mylchreest was also proposed by the Rev. E. B. Smith, and seconded by the Rev. J. Gregory, and heartily carried.

AIRING CLOTHES.

There are few servants who have any conception of how to air clothes, and also a lamentably small percentage of mistresses who have any sort of knowledge in this branch of laundry work. The clothing of many families is carefully ironed, but folded and put away so damp that it produces a chill when put on, and doubtless sometimes consequent rheumatism. It is imperative that freshly-laundried clothes be thoroughly aired either by the fire or in the warm sunshine. In cold weather the final airing by the fire is always necessary. A good test of a freshly-laundried garment is to touch one's face with it. If it be long as there is a suspicion of dampness it is not fit to put away or to wear

Mr J. H. Ingleby, J.P., of Firecroft, Tadcaster, was on the Grand Jury at Leeds Assizes.

Ivy E. Clay, of Wetherby, has won a West Riding scholarship for intending teacher.

GOLF.—A match was played between Wetherby Ladies and Howley Hall on the links of the latter, and Wetherby won by 4 to 3. Details. (Wetherby names first):—Mrs Nickols 0 v. Miss Sheard 1, Miss S. Metcalfe 0 v. Mrs Fox 1, Miss Dawson 1 v. Miss Lee 1, Mrs Birkmyre 1 v. Mrs Parker 0, Hon. Mrs Jackson 1 v. Mrs H. Parker 0, Mrs Sykes 1 v. Miss Caunt 0, Miss M. Metcalfe 1 v. Mrs Blackburn 0.

PATENTS.—Patent List compiled by John E. Walsh, Chartered Patent Agent, 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Application—Edward Courtwield, improvements in pockets for uniform coats and like garments. Application completed —Bonnet, Thorman, and Wood, Tadcaster, centrifugal separators for sewage, &c. (patent of addition). Patent sealed—Richard Earnshaw Goode, automatic outlet valves for ships' lifeboats.

LORD HAWKE AND CRICKET.—At a cricket gathering in London on Monday Lord Hawke said with regard to the game of cricket that he did not think there was much the matter with it. County elevens to-day were composed much more largely of professionals than they were some years ago, and he hoped that the professionals would always remember that, although they could not take the same risks as the amateur, the public demanded bright and attractive cricket. He would more gladly pay talent money to the professional who played a bright innings of fifty than a stodgy seventy-five.

MR. C. F. RYDER'S VIEWS.—Mr C. F. Ryder, of Scarcroft, in a letter to the "Post," says:—"The Liberal man devoteth Liberal things, and the Conservative owner payeth for them."—such was the new version of an old text which came into my head on Wednesday after reading a leaflet headed "Land and Housing Reform." The little pamphlet is cleverly and attractively compounded, and reeks of Mr Lloyd George. In fact, when reading it, one can fancy the Tempter taking a party of hardheaded voters up into some lofty church tower, and, after showing them parks, and farms, and cottage, saying, "All these things shall be yours if you will keep me in power and power and prosperity by giving me your votes." The Ten Commandments are still read in our churches, and chapels, and, therefore, presumably, their teaching is in the main accepted, and two out of the ten are directed to enforce respect for private ownership. Until lately every one agreed that if you took a man's property you ought to pay for it, but to-day all this is to be changed, and the crystallisation of covetousness into oppressive and spoliatory legislation is to be encouraged in every possible way

MR LANE FOX AND HOUSING.

QUESTIONING MR RUNCIMAN.

On Wednesday in the House of Commons Mr Lane Fox asked the President of the Board of Agriculture whether, since local authorities who were carrying out building schemes in rural districts to replace condemned cottages were not to be assisted under the Government Housing Bill, a similar concession to that already granted under the Housing and Town Planning Act, involving the application of the Housing Bill, and whether the Government would give a preference to areas in which the local authority had made genuine efforts to use its powers under the Housing and Town Planning Act.

Mr Runciman: The number of local authorities carrying out building schemes in agricultural districts is extremely small. In selecting the districts in which cottages are to be built under the provisions of the Housing Bill the Board will have regard to the urgency of the demand and to the practicability of obtaining land at a reasonable price. I am prepared to consider any representations which may be made to me on behalf of local authorities, but the Board cannot bind itself to refrain from exercising its powers in any particular district merely on the ground that the local authority has or has not taken action under the Housing and Town Planning Act.

Mr Lane Fox asked if the President of the Board of Agriculture would state on what principle the societies for building cottages would be selected under the Government Housing Bill, and when he would be able to announce to the House the name of such societies

Mr Runciman: The Board will be prepared to consider an application made by or on behalf of any society which conforms with the definition of Clause 4 of the Bill. Several societies of the kind which the Government have in view have already been successfully promoted by the Rural Housing Organisation Society, and with the increased financial assistance which will be possible under the provisions of the Bill I hope that many more will come into being. After the Bill has been passed into law I shall be prepared to announce to the House from time to time the names of any societies which have been approved.

The Prime Minister told Mr Bathurst that the Government hoped to carry their Housing Bill into law this session if it were treated as a non-contentious measure; if it proved to be highly contentious it would be difficult to pass.

WESLEYAN MINISTER'S REMARKABLE ADDRESS.

Rev. E. J. B. Kirtlan, B.A., B.D., Wesleyan minister, of Scarborough, at an open-air meeting, said he stood there as a Socialist. He would explain what Socialism meant in the course of his address. He stood there as a Socialist because he believed that the ideals for which Socialism stood were identical, absolutely identical with the great ethical principles laid down by Jesus Christ, whom he professed to serve. He did not mean by that that everyone who professed to honour Christ and had not been converted to Socialism was a humbug. He did not reflect in the slightest degree on any Christian who was not a Socialist. He had his own opinions as to the reasons that would explain the fact that many Christians were not Socialists. One reason was that most of them were in the dark while he was in the light. He was 50 years in front and they were 50 years behind. (A voice: I won't have that). "Well, I am 500 years in front." Christ had said "If any man will follow me let him take up his cross." He assured the audience he had had to bear his cross because of his loyalty to principle—he ventured to say unflinching loyalty to the principles he had adopted during the last 15 years. He had lived in West Ham, that most sordid and infernal region of the great city known as Greater London. It was there that his eyes were opened for the first time to the reality of the conditions under which the people lived. From the sordid misery of the East End he went to the Royal Borough of Kensington, the residential area of West London. In the West they had an enormous amount of wealth and magnificent buildings. At the outer end there stood the most sordid slums and most infamous conditions.

Proceeding, the rev. gentleman said so far they had not used the pulpit for the proclamation of Socialism. What they did was to proclaim the doctrines of Jesus Christ. They had done so on the platform. He was prepared to lecture in Queen Street any day if the trustees had sufficient enlightenment to ask him. The Labour movement, he went on, was like Liberalism. It meant progress, but they did not quite know where. They must never forget the magnanimous Government that gave old age pensions—but, they had a jolly long time to wait for them. It was only the thin end of the wedge. They had to ram it home. It should be a principle that every British workman should have fair wages. He must take a part in National Insurance. Every person unable to work must immediately enjoy the old age pension without the stigma of poverty. He thought the Labour party generally had not yet got sight of that city of God, that ideal social democracy, where they would have plenty of food, spacious dwellings, garden cities, and leisure to enjoy life. They must abolish private property—not their shirt, for they would always have their shirt, he hoped. Surely no one thought for one moment that they were so utterly foolish as to suggest that they would no longer have their own wives. Because some Socialists had preached free love they were charged with the most infamous charge ever made. Under Socialism there would be much less immorality than there was at present.

A WETHERBY RACE TALE.—A prisoner at Leeds Assizes yesterday told a curious story when indicted on a charge of having in his possession moulds used for the purpose of making counterfeit coins. He was Joseph Hardwick (50), moulder, of 10, Burton Street, Holbeck, Leeds. Examined by his counsel, Mr Charles Mellor, prisoner said he did a little bookmaking, and at Whitsuntide he went to Wetherby Races. There one of the "bookies" was wearing a number of medals and spurious coins for the purpose of advertisement, but he could not pay out after a race and the crowd set upon him. They beat him and tore his coat and medals, etc., away. He (prisoner) saw the struggle, and later found a coin which was made to represent a florin. With the idea of seeing if he could make a coin of a similar character, he made a mould by means of which he made a base florin. It was such a bad imitation, though, that he broke the mould in disgust. Prisoner was found guilty. The judge, in passing sentence of four months' hard labour, said he believed it was Hardwick's first attempt to make counterfeit coin, "and let it be your last," added the judge.

SELBY BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

Mr R. L. Walker presided at the meeting of Selby Guardians on Monday.

The Chairman (Mr R. L. Walker) reported that the conference with the County Committee at Wakefield with reference to the provision to be made for mental defectives proved premature, as the county authority was not prepared with a statement as to their proposals. The Guardians' representatives were to meet again at the County Hall, Wakefield, and formulate a scheme, and it was hoped that a mutual arrangement would be arrived at.

The number of cases in the West Riding is 1,800.

In the Selby Union there are nine cases to be dealt with.

The Rev. R. J. Dunford thought it unfair that the Guardians had no representation on the Board of Control appointed under the Act.

The Chairman replied that the Board was appointed by the Government, and superseded the Commissioners in Lunacy.

Mr W. Daniel: If the Boards of Guardians' had shown less apathy they would not have had control of the working of the Act, which will now be worked by the County Councils.

Mr H. Mason said the Board of Control were really paid officials.

Mr Daniel remarked that this Act, like all modern legislation, was accompanied by officialism.

In reply to a question, the Chairman said that defectives who had attained a certain age would not be taken for institutional treatment, as those were cases in which there was no possibility of improvement.

The Rev. R. J. Dunford: They may take us if we are not careful. (Laughter).

Some amusement ensued when it was explained that one of the aged male inmates in the workhouse, who had been in the Askern baths, had made the acquaintance of a rich man who had invited him to spend three weeks at his house at Bramley, Leeds. Both took the waters every year at Askern, and had become acquainted.

The Rev. R. J. Dunford: I don't think the invitation will be returned. (Laughter).

It was agreed to sanction the visit, and pay the railway fare.

TO MAKE SAUCES.

In making sauces, writes "Pepita," care should be taken that the flour is cooked, and not raw. When cooked with butter, less time is required, but when added dissolved in water, at least ten minutes' cooking will not be too much.

WHITE SAUCE.—Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, and when it bubbles add one tablespoonful of flour, stirring smooth. Then add very gradually, still stirring smooth and free from lumps, a cupful of hot milk. Add salt and pepper to taste. This is an excellent sauce for potatoes, greenedly, beets, peas, cauliflower, onions, macaroni, chicken, eggs, &c.

BROWN SAUCE.—This is made similarly to the white sauce, only the butter is allowed to brown before the flour is added; then the flour is cooked to brown, and instead of milk add gradually a cupful of hot stock, and stir until smooth and free from lumps. This is excellent served with beef.

BREAD SAUCE.—Boil together until smooth a cupful of grated breadcrumbs and a cupful of milk. Add a teaspoonful of butter and salt and pepper to taste, stirring well. If desired, an onion can be cooked with the same, and then removed; also a little mace or a bay leaf. This sauce is nice for grouse or other game.

TOMATO SAUCE.—One tablespoonful each of butter and flour; cook as for white sauce, and add gradually a cupful of hot, strained tomatoes, stirring smooth and free from lumps. This is served with lamb, veal, or macaroni.

DRAWN BUTTER SAUCE.—Melt two or three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, and add one tablespoonful of flour, stirring smooth; then add a cupful of hot water or hot stock, still stirring smooth and free from lumps. Add salt and pepper to taste. This is better made in a double boiler, in order that the liquid may not boil. This sauce can be varied by the addition of other ingredients, as, for instance, one or two tablespoonfuls of parsley, lemon juice, mushroom, and shrimp, the name to be covered by the principal ingredient added.—Mark Lane Express.

Mr W. F. Wailes-Fairbairn, of Askham Grange; Mrs Fletcher and Sons, Angram, and Mr G. Westaby, of Colton, were prize-winners in the horse classes at Copmanthorpe Show.

ASKERTON.—The children attending the Church Sunday School were on Saturday entertained by Mrs E. O. Simpson, at Hazlewood Castle. Tea was provided, and all had a very enjoyable time. Waggons were provided to convey the children both ways.

A RIVETTER INJURED.—A rivetter named Winn, who is engaged on the new Ardol factory, and who resides at Olympia Cottages, fell several feet while at work at the factory on Friday evening. He was conveyed to the Selby Cottage Hospital for treatment. It is feared that his injuries are serious.

MOTOR AND COW.—An accident, fortunately not attended with very serious consequences, occurred on the Wetherby and York Road, near to Long Marston, on Wednesday. Mr Fred Snape, Wetherby, was driving a party of six persons for a day's outing at Bridlington, in a motor landaulette, when he met another car, and pulled to the left-hand side of the road to allow the two to pass. On the grass, on the left-hand side of the road, a cow was grazing, and just as Mr Snape's car reached it the cow turned to cross the road. Mr Snape swerved to the right to avoid a collision, but could not do so, with the result that the car was overturned. One of the front wheels was smashed to pieces, and other damage was done to the car. Mr Snape himself sprained his ankle badly, but the party inside the car, beyond being cut by broken glass, sustained little injury. The cow walked away for a distance of about 25 yards, and then fell down dead.

Furniture Delivered
ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.

T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST.
LEEDS.

N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.

NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten.
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW MAKING A
SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS
In all the LATEST STYLES, for
SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.
LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.
5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared
BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Stores,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.
96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.
Telephone No. 253. JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

SMART & SON,
3 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.
SPECIAL LINE OF
TOYS. DOLLS. GAMES.
Week-end Hampers, Suit Cases and Basket Ware.
ALL THE LATEST LINES.
For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,
SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

We can Furnish your Home as it should be Furnished.
People who appreciate home life strive to make their home not only a comfortable residence, but also a picture of elegance and refinement—a house that shall be in keeping with the true spirit of happy home life from attic to basement.
It costs no more to achieve this result than it does to furnish in the commonplace style.
It is an Easy Plan to furnish on our system of Deferred Payments.
Our System is just another way of saving money—you lay aside what you can spare each month, and you have the use of what that money will buy all the time.
COME AND SEE OUR STOCK OF FINE FURNITURE.

£ s. d.		s. d.
5 0 0	Worth of Goods,	1 3	Weekly.
7 10 0	do	1 9	"
12 0 0	do.	2 0	"
17 10 0	do	2 6	"
25 0 0	do	3 6	"
35 0 0	do	4 0	"
50 0 0	do	5 0	"

LARGE STOCK OF PIANOS FROM 2/- per Week
We pride ourselves on offering lower terms than any other firm in Leeds. If there's any article of Furniture in our large stock that you take a fancy to, and the payments are rather more than you can conveniently afford, don't hesitate, but come inside and we can arrange special terms to meet your case.
Sharp & Thornton,
CASH OR CREDIT HOUSE
— FURNISHERS, —
97 VICAR LANE, LEEDS 99
Mind you get to the RIGHT SHOP.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Huddersfield: " 1609.
Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
—AND AT—
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

Annual Clearance Sale.
WATCH OUR WINDOWS DAILY FOR BARGAINS IN
Costumes, Dresses, Skirts, Raincoats, Blouses.
SMITH & PETTY,
MANTLE WAREHOUSE,
44, Lowerhead Row (3 Doors from Briggate,) LEEDS

EXCITING COLLIERY STORY!
DO NOT MISS THE OPENING CHAPTERS OF
"The Double Chance"
By J. S FLETCHER, the well-known Novelist,
IN THE
"Rothwell Courier and Times."

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291. CROSSGATES 6.
DOBSON & CO.,
— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —
Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,
SEACROFT, AND
70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.
Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.
PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

ALLPASS & CO., LTD.,
Established over Thirty Years Ago.
HOUSE FURNISHERS,
Cash or Deferred Payments.
BABY CARS & WASHING MACHINERY
A Specialty.
UPPERHEAD ROW, LEEDS.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 82—[Registered at the G.P.O.] as a Newspaper NEW SERIES. SATURDAY, JULY 25 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
LIGHTNING PROGRAMME.
THE STAGE ALWAYS OCCUPIED.

MONDAY, JULY 27th, 1914.
G. H. ELLIOTT.
The Chocolate Coloured Coon.
In New Songs.
KING & BENSON. HORACE HUNTER & Co.
BARTON & ASHLEY. HAROLD BAKER.
LLOYD MORGAN. GLADYS MAVIUS.
3 PRESTONS. AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.
3 MEERS, Comedy Wire Performers.

TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY.
AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.
EVERY ITEM A SPECIAL FEATURE.
NO WAITS.
Booking Office open at Theatre, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily for advance booking of Boxes, Orchestra Stalls, and Grand Circle.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
WILKIE BARD.
EMELIE HAYES.
DAISY STRATTON.
BILLY FRENCH.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
ALBERT REES.
JAN RUDENYI.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 2s., 6d., and 4d.

CITY VARIETIES, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY 7 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, JULY 27, 1914.
KINGSLEY LARK TRIO.
JACK MACK.
VARIESCOPE.
NELL WYNNE.
TOM B. WHEATLEY.
DAISY HICKS.
ZAKAREE ERMAKOV.
Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Specialty.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY.
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Established 1835
SPARKLING HOSFERRIDGE
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
OBTAINABLE AT THE PRINCIPAL RESTAURANTS & STALLS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

At Templenewsam the primrose Leaguers of the district, along with the members of the St. Robert's Habitation, Wecton, travelled in seven motor chars-à-banc, gathered in force on Saturday, and the meeting was held in the quadrangle, which, however, was the scene of a larger gathering some years ago when the young squires brought home his bride. Sir Mark Sykes, M.P., who is making a name for himself as a politician and as a student of foreign affairs, was the principal speaker, and the audience were greatly pleased with his address. He is no orator, but he is an attractive platform speaker, who draws upon a well-stored mind. He apparently had good practice before he entered Parliament, because he stated that his summers were spent going to club feasts, and there he had an opportunity of developing his gifts as a speaker. In Barlston Ash club feasts are still held, although they have decreased in number, and the usual plan is for the members to parade the district, and then go to church and listen to a sermon on the duty of helping one another. Afterwards dinner is served at one of the inns, and speech-making follows. Some of these club feasts have provided me with a few hours' work, so I know something about them.

Kippax has, I think, made a good bargain with the Rivers Board, and the ratepayers' burden will not be any heavier for the next two or three years. For some considerable time the Board have been pressing the District Council to undertake a scheme of extension of the sewage works, and plans have actually been prepared by a firm of engineers. The site of the sewage works, however, is subsiding owing to the colliery workings, and it was thought inadvisable to proceed with the scheme until the land was in such a condition as would warrant the Council building upon it. For this purpose a deputation waited on the Rivers Board, and they have agreed to the work being deferred on condition that the Council began it in 1916. The Council will, therefore, have a couple of years' grace. Kippax sewage disposal has cost more than that of any township in the area, and it has been entirely owing to the adoption of a penny-wise policy, giving preference to petty fogging schemes, instead of putting their money into one comprehensive and efficient scheme. The ratepayers are now paying for the mistakes their representatives made several years ago.

Aberford, one of the prettiest places in the district, has, like Garforth, a decreasing school population, and to many people this will come as a surprise, seeing that only a year or two have elapsed since the schools were enlarged. At the Education Committee meeting the other day some remarks were made on the comparative growth of Garforth and Aberford, the latter including Lotherton and Parlington, and it seems that Aberford has been practically at a standstill since 1801. In that year it had a population of 659, Lotherton 323, and Parlington 180—total, 1,153, and the figures for the 1911 census were 593-465, and 100—1,218, an increase of 55. Aberford and Parlington have fewer inhabitants, and Lotherton 142 more. The high-water mark for Aberford was reached in 1841, when the population was 782, and Parlington's best figures (229) were got in 1821, while Lotherton had 597 inhabitants in 1851. It is difficult to account for these fluctuations, but there were no doubt reasons for them. At one time Aberford had the pinning industry, and coal-mining has been carried on in the district for centuries, but, as no complete history of the place has, to my knowledge, been written, it is idle to hazard an opinion in regard to the ups and downs of population, which was greatest in 1841, being 1,558.

Garforth, however, has made steady progress. Aberford, which was of some importance in the old coaching days, was a large village when Garforth was a mere hamlet. In 1801 Aberford and Lotherton had 973 inhabitants and Garforth only 234! At that time the urban area was probably depending on agriculture, but a remarkable advance was seen in the next decade, when the population advanced to 610, and this may have been brought about by the development of the mining industry, which, however, had been carried on by the Gascoigne family in the district for several centuries. Between 1831 and 1841 the population increased from 782 to 1,195, and between 1871 and 1881 it went from 1,679 to 2,213, in 1891 the figures were 2,454, in 1901 3,222, and in 1911 3,986. The transformation of Garforth from an insignificant village to an urban district is due entirely to the development of the coal industry, and the making of the railway had an effect on both Garforth and Aberford, the population of the latter going gradually back after 1841.

It must not, however, be assumed that Garforth is not as old as Aberford. An evidence of its antiquity was the existence of a church there when the Doomsday Book was written, but it does not appear to have been the residence of any landowner, and this may account for the silence of the historian in regard to it. Aberford, on the other hand, was the residence of its antiquity, and at one time it had a castle, while it is said to have had a monastery in the seventh century. Owners of Parlington have played their part in the affairs of State in the stormy days when the sword was more powerful than it is now, and at Lotherton an ancient chapel—a little gem in its way—exists, which was built many centuries ago. Were it not for what has been written about the churches and the old families we should know very little about the history of the district, and practically all the ancient families have disappeared.

The Brooksbanks of Healaugh, who seem to be a long-lived race, have a remarkable record in connection with the magistracy. At the present time three generations of the family are associated with the Tadcaster bench—Mr E. Brooksbank, Mr E. C. Brooksbank, and Mr S. Brooksbank—and Mr E. C. Brooksbank, who is Chairman of Tadcaster District Council and of Barkston Ash Conservative Association, has the honour of being a county alderman. Few families have grandfather, father, and son serving as magistrates at one and the same time, but the Brooksbanks have an even prouder record than that. Mr E. Brooksbank is the senior magistrate of the West Riding, and his father and grandfather—the grandfather and great grandfather of Ald. E. C. Brooksbank—lived long enough to occupy a similar position. Thus three generations of one family associated with the Tadcaster Bench have had the honour of seniority in the magistracy in the Riding.

These interesting facts came out on Monday, at Tadcaster Court, when C. H. E. Brooksbank is, owing to advancing years, rarely seen nowadays. Mr Green, the Clerk to the Magistrates, then stated that he had been associated with four generations of Brooksbanks as magistrates. When he was introduced to the Court Ald. E. C. Brooksbank's grandfather was chairman, his father followed as presiding magistrate, and now the chairmanship is occupied by himself (Ald. Brooksbank), whose son (Mr S. Brooksbank) is also on the Bench. This statement drew from Ald. Brooksbank the sincere hope that they would continue to be associated with Mr Green for many years.

Not a single case was on the charge sheet at Tadcaster on Monday—in fact, it was what is known as a maiden sessions—and to mark such an occasion a pair of white gloves is usually presented to the presiding magistrate. It is not long since, however, that such a ceremony was performed at Tadcaster, and, as business has gone down at Tadcaster—a very good sign—the Clerk would have to set up a draper's shop were he to comply with old-established customs to the letter.

Houses are so scarce at Tadcaster that a young man informed the magistrates that it was impossible for him to obtain one in either the town or district. Certain members of the District Council would have us believe that things are not so bad as some would try to make out, but here is a case—a pathetic case—which proves that the housing accommodation does not meet with the demands of the working-classes. Plans have been passed for the erection of a number of cottages by a business firm in the town, and their enterprise will, I hope, have its reward, but the District Council have not, in my view, done all they could in this matter. Naturally, they are averse to building, as the 5-8ths rate is the limit, but the blends with the airiest of stage dancing and deportment. In fact, his work is the essence of grace and artistry. A striking playlet will be produced by Horace Hunter and Co., entitled "The Years Between." This is a sequel to the thrilling playlet "Under Suspicion," which was so successful wherever it was played. "The Years Between," in addition to Horace Hunter, will be played by a very strong company, including Miss Lily Hammersley. Direct from their successful Australian tour, Barton and Ashley will appear in their latest comedy idea, "Money Talks"; the Three Meers, comedy wire performers; Harold Baker, comedian; Gladys Mavius, the Canadian girl; the Three Prestons, in a comedy interlude, "The Village of Shifters"; Lloyd Morgan, light comedian; and a new series of pictures on the bioscope, are some of the attractions, but a most refreshing one is that of King and Benson, in a new duologue, entitled "The Messenger Boy's Courtship."

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week "What Price London" is a collicking revue which occupies the greater portion of the programme. It differs greatly from the majority of the revues seen in Leeds before, and there is one long sequence of delightful music, excellent singing, and clever dancing. There are three scenes, and a company of forty artistes. Miss Rita Everad, Miss Kathleen Gray, and Miss Margaret Stuart are three of the leading ladies, and the singing of Miss Stuart is one of the happiest features of the evening. There is plenty of wholesome fun, and comedians worth of mention are Jack Williams, Henry Deas, Jock Hood, Frank Esmond, and Mark Daly. There are also two little dots who "make good," and last, but not least, there are the Six Mascots, a troupe of high-spirited young ladies. The Sutcliffe Family of Scottish entertainers present a novel turn, which embraces bagpipe playing, sword-dancing, and clever acrobatics. Miller and St. Juste, in their vocal turn, give an excellent show; and Bi-Bo-Bi plays tunes on various instruments with a good deal of dash. Then there is the Soba Trio in song and dance—altogether a good all round programme.

The principal attraction at the Hippodrome next week will be Wilkie Bard, in new songs and old favourites; Jan Rudenyi, the actor-juggler, supported by Hilda Stewart and Drew Mackintosh, will appear in "The Violin Makers of Cremona," and others in the bill are Emelie Hayes, vocal comedienne; Daisy Stratton, comedienne and dancer; Billy French, light comedian and dancer; Albert Rees, drawing-room entertainer; and pictures.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES.

At the City Varieties this week the Five Tripellos, musicians and vocalists, give a fine musical treat, and on Monday night they were accorded a hearty reception. Hinsle, assisted by Girtie Rees, is a smart comedy illusionist with some novel ideas; and Jack Barker, comedian, displays great versatility. Leighton and Melville have some good comedy; and others appearing are Amo Howard, "the droll dancing darkie," and the Brothers Holland, in an equilibristic novelty.

Next week The Kingsley Lark Trio, composed of Miss Raymonde Amy (soprano, late of the Moody Manners Opera Co.), Mr Henry O'Dempsey (a popular Irish tenor), and Mr Kingsley Lark (Australian basso, late principal bass of the O'Mara Opera Co.), will appear in their successful operatic scena from the "Bohemian Girl." Others in the bill are Zakaree Ermakov, in his brilliant display with firearms, keen-edged war weapons, etc.; Jack Mack, comedian and animal mimic; Nell Wynne, comedienne; Tom B. Wheatley, "the railway ventriloquist," and Daisy Hicks, versatile chorus comedienne.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week an hour and a quarter of the time is absorbed by the "eight stops" of Messrs Conrad and Zeitlin's "The Honeymoon Express," aptly described as "a musical joy-ride on new lines," in which Mr George Gregory and Little Keeno supply most of the fun. It is a rollicking business from first to last, with plenty of farcical situations, and a host of pretty girls in frequent changes of airy fantastic costumes to accentuate the life and colour. There is some singing, too, especially for Miss Rosie Park and Mr William Symbe, in one or two number being quite catchy, the work of Mr Louis A. Hirsch; also much sprightly dancing. The show is distinctly bright and amusing, and the ingenious mounting helps to make the various scenes highly effective as well as diverting. Among others in the bill are the Scottish Meisters, whose good-humoured singing is excellent; Leipzig, the dexterous card manipulator; and the Van Dammes, Dutch comedy acrobats.

Of all the coons, and there are many, there is probably not one so popular as G. H. Elliott, "the chocolate-coloured coon." He will be the principal attraction at the Empire Palace, Leeds, on Monday next, and will be seen in a series of his delightful studies of coloured life in southern America. Elliott has a most engaging voice, and this he blends with the airiest of stage dancing and deportment. In fact, his work is the essence of grace and artistry. A striking playlet will be produced by Horace Hunter and Co., entitled "The Years Between." This is a sequel to the thrilling playlet "Under Suspicion," which was so successful wherever it was played. "The Years Between," in addition to Horace Hunter, will be played by a very strong company, including Miss Lily Hammersley. Direct from their successful Australian tour, Barton and Ashley will appear in their latest comedy idea, "Money Talks"; the Three Meers, comedy wire performers; Harold Baker, comedian; Gladys Mavius, the Canadian girl; the Three Prestons, in a comedy interlude, "The Village of Shifters"; Lloyd Morgan, light comedian; and a new series of pictures on the bioscope, are some of the attractions, but a most refreshing one is that of King and Benson, in a new duologue, entitled "The Messenger Boy's Courtship."

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week "What Price London" is a collicking revue which occupies the greater portion of the programme. It differs greatly from the majority of the revues seen in Leeds before, and there is one long sequence of delightful music, excellent singing, and clever dancing. There are three scenes, and a company of forty artistes. Miss Rita Everad, Miss Kathleen Gray, and Miss Margaret Stuart are three of the leading ladies, and the singing of Miss Stuart is one of the happiest features of the evening. There is plenty of wholesome fun, and comedians worth of mention are Jack Williams, Henry Deas, Jock Hood, Frank Esmond, and Mark Daly. There are also two little dots who "make good," and last, but not least, there are the Six Mascots, a troupe of high-spirited young ladies. The Sutcliffe Family of Scottish entertainers present a novel turn, which embraces bagpipe playing, sword-dancing, and clever acrobatics. Miller and St. Juste, in their vocal turn, give an excellent show; and Bi-Bo-Bi plays tunes on various instruments with a good deal of dash. Then there is the Soba Trio in song and dance—altogether a good all round programme.

The principal attraction at the Hippodrome next week will be Wilkie Bard, in new songs and old favourites; Jan Rudenyi, the actor-juggler, supported by Hilda Stewart and Drew Mackintosh, will appear in "The Violin Makers of Cremona," and others in the bill are Emelie Hayes, vocal comedienne; Daisy Stratton, comedienne and dancer; Billy French, light comedian and dancer; Albert Rees, drawing-room entertainer; and pictures.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES.

At the City Varieties this week the Five Tripellos, musicians and vocalists, give a fine musical treat, and on Monday night they were accorded a hearty reception. Hinsle, assisted by Girtie Rees, is a smart comedy illusionist with some novel ideas; and Jack Barker, comedian, displays great versatility. Leighton and Melville have some good comedy; and others appearing are Amo Howard, "the droll dancing darkie," and the Brothers Holland, in an equilibristic

SHERBURN PETTY SESSIONS.

HILLAM, FENTON, AND FAIRBURN CASES.

At Sherburn Petty Sessions yesterday the magistrates present were the Rev. B. Hemsworth (Chairman) and Mr Walter Crosland.

Albert Hodgson, labourer, of Hillam, was charged with being drunk and disorderly on the 10th inst at Lumby Lane.—Asked if he had any explanation to offer, defendant said "I've much do you want?" (Laughter). Fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

Frederick Hodgson, farmer, of Little Fenton, was charged with removing swine without a licence on the 10th inst. P.C. Wildblood stated the defendant told him he waited at Pontefract Auction Mart, but could see no one to give him a licence. Fined 1s. and 7s. 6d. costs.

Albert Braithwaite, New Fryston, and Wm. Carr, and Arthur Speight, of Castleford, miners, were charged with being drunk and disorderly at Fairburn on the 12th inst. Braithwaite appeared and pleaded not guilty. The others did not appear. Braithwaite told the Bench he was assisting to keep the peace, and he denied being drunk. Braithwaite was fined 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs, Carr 5s. 6d. and 5s. 6d., and Speight 10s. and 5s. 6d. costs.

Mr M. Rayner, of Manor House, Whinmoor, on first prize for cow for dairy purposes, in calf, to be matured before October 1st, at the Yorkshire Show yesterday.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Moortown were at home to a Leeds Cricket Club team. Scores:—Leeds—Reynolds, 0; Hargate 2, Merry 2, Horsey 28, N. Edwards 8, King 4, Brown 5, Smith 5, Mills 1, Hall 2, G. P. Edwards (not out) 0; extras, 3; total 59. Moortown—Wilson 2, M. Topham 0, Frazer 3, Haywood 0, A. Topham (not out) 13, Layton 0, Little 5, Boothman 0, Pearson 0, Johnson 4, Emmonson 0, extra, 1; total, 32.

OUTING.—A children's outing, promoted by the Yorkshire and District Federation of Commercial Travellers, took place on Saturday, when a large number of young folk were entertained at The Hall, Roundhay, by permission of the Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr E. A. Brotherton). During the afternoon a programme of sports was gone through, the Lady Mayoress of Leeds (Mrs Charles Ratcliffe) and the Lord Mayor distributing the prizes at the close.

SPORTS.—The annual athletic sports of Shadwell Industrial School, took place on Saturday afternoon on the sports ground of the school in the presence of a large body of spectators. A novel and interesting feature in the programme was what was described as a "V.C. Race," in which two boys act as a horse, with a third boy as rider, and each team had to "rescue" a disabled comrade a hundred yards out, and return with him to the starting point. The Shoemakers' team were successful, and also gained second place in the relay race, in which the Farmers' team were the winners. The Farmers' team also won the tug-of-war. H. Douglas was first home in the half-mile, and the 220 yards race for the school championship was won by E. A. Clayton.

LORD HAWKE AND CRICKET.—In the columns of the "Daily Telegraph" Lord Hawke, in an article, entitled "Cricket Memories," says, "It seems a fair cry back to Hawtrey's preparatory school at Slough, where I made my first real acquaintance with the game, and to that red letter day at Eton (I believe it was in 1876) when as a Lower Boy I fell so deeply in love with "Miss Cricket," as the result of making 172 out of 191. But my affection is still as ardent and sincere. It is true I have flirted with hunting and big-game shooting. Indeed, I must reluctantly confess that there was once a danger of me jilting my first love. This was in 1892, when with some friends I went on a shooting expedition in Nepal. The neighbouring rajahs treated us in the most hospitable manner. They lent us forty-two elephants and twenty camels to carry our luggage. I managed to bag thirteen tigers that trip, and had such an enjoyable time between shooting, fishing, and camping out, that I thought of the time I should not be averse from repeating the trip every year. But the call of cricket was too strong, and I remained faithful to my first love."

SALE OF WORK AND FETE.—On Saturday a sale of work and fete were held in the grounds of Monk Fryston Hall, in aid of foreign missions. The opening ceremony was performed by Mrs H. L. Lyon, of Hillam Hall. Unfortunately, owing to counter attractions in the district, the attendance throughout the day was disappointing. Stalls were arranged in the Concert Hall, and were in charge of members of the Monk Fryston Missionary Working Party and the Girls' Friendly Society. There were various attractions including two performances of a missionary play entitled "The Great Musician" by the "King's Messengers." The maypole dances was performed twice in "Bonnie Scotland," and there was an exhibition by the Monk Fryston troop of Boy Scouts. The gardens and zoo were open to the public. Addresses on missionary work were also given in the afternoon and evening by the Rev. W. A. Hewett, rector of Castleford, and the Rev. Canon Tupper-Carey, of York. Teas were served in the Alpine Hall. It is understood that there will be a satisfactory balance on the day's proceedings. The arrangements were ably carried out by Miss Clarke, of Monk Fryston Vicarage.

Yorkshire Penny Bank
LIMITED.

Authorised Capital	£1,250,000
Paid-up Capital	£750,000
Reserve Fund	£750,000
Uncalled Capital	£500,000

DIRECTORS.

The Right Hon. THE VISCOUNT ST. ALDWYN, Director of the London Joint Stock Bank Ltd. (Chairman).
The Hon. RUPERT E. BECKETT, Messrs. Beckett and Co.
JOHN CARNE, Director of the Union of London and Smiths Bank Ltd.
Sir EDWARD R. HOLDEN, Bart., Chairman and Managing Director of the London City and Midland Bank Ltd.
Sir THOMAS JACKSON, Bart., Director of the London County and Westminster Bank Ltd.
The Right Hon. THE LORD ROTHERHAM, Director of the London City and Midland Bank Ltd.
HUGH E. BERESFORD, Esq., Director of Barclay and Co. Ltd.
A. A. G. TULLOCH, Esq., Manager, Director of the Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Co. Ltd.
R. Y. YARSLEY-SMITH, Esq., Chairman of Lloyds Bank Ltd.
JOHN CARNE, } Joint General Managers.
F. POLLOCK, }

Report of the Directors to the 30th June, 1914.

To be submitted to the Shareholders at the ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING, to be held at 26, Kingstreet, E.C., on Wednesday, 15th July, 1914.

The Directors report that the deposits on the 30th June, 1914, amounted to £27,723,000 (or, 1d., to exceed £14,200,102 11s. 9d. on the 29th August, 1913; the date when the new Bank commenced business, showed an increase in deposits of £13,522,897 9s. 4d. The cash in hand, at Bank of England, and in London, and bankers' bills on the 30th June, 1913, amounted to £4,044,564, and on the 30th June, 1914, amounted to £4,703,586.

The Directors have made investments, at Bank of England, at short notice, and hold £10,000 to the deposits in December, 1911, was 11.5 per cent.; in June, 1912, 12.4 per cent.; in June, 1913, 12.4 per cent.; and June, 1914, 12.55 per cent. The Securities on the 30th June, 1913, were £11,672,361 10s. 8d., and on the 30th June, 1914, were £11,672,361 10s. 8d. These securities are all written down to market value, and on the 30th June, 1914, were £1,453,000 11s. 6d., and on the 30th June, 1913, were £1,453,000 11s. 6d.

The Directors have made arrangements with the London Joint City and Midland Bank Ltd. for the transfer of the business of the Bank, which has been completed, and the Directors desire to place on record their great appreciation of the services which have rendered to the Bank.

The auditors, Messrs. J. W. Clegg and R. A. Smithson, chartered accountants, of Leeds, now retire, and offer themselves for re-election.

By order of the Board.
67, ALDWYN, Chairman.
R. E. BECKETT, E. H. HOLDEN, HUGH E. BERESFORD, A. A. G. TULLOCH, R. Y. YARSLEY-SMITH, } Directors.
JOHN CARNE, } Joint
F. POLLOCK, } General Managers.

Dr. Balance-Sheet, 30th June, 1914. Cr.

LIABILITIES.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.	ASSETS.	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
To Share Capital— 250,000 Shares of £5 each, £3 Paid.			By Cash in hand, at Bank of England, and at Short Notice,	43,706,587 10 11
" Capital Paid-up,	750,000 0 0		Bankers' Bills,	1,836,656 10 2
" Reserve Fund	750,000 0 0	1,500,000 0 0			4,963,244 1 1
" Amount due to Depositors and other Accounts	20,720,689 0 1		Consols	873,750 0 0
Uncalled Capital, £500,000.			" Local Loans Stock	16,903 0 0
			Other Securities	10,781,711 10 8
					11,672,361 10 8
			Loans on Security and other Accounts	16,635,645 11 7
			Bank Premises	4,539,621 16 8
			Other Assets	445,421 9 8
					445,421 9 8
	£22,220,689 0 1				£22,220,689 0 1

67, ALDWYN, Chairman; R. E. BECKETT, E. H. HOLDEN, HUGH E. BERESFORD, A. A. G. TULLOCH, R. Y. YARSLEY-SMITH, } Directors.
JOHN CARNE, } Joint
F. POLLOCK, } General Managers.

AUDITORS' CERTIFICATE.

In accordance with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidated) Act, 1908, we certify that all our requirements as Auditors have been complied with, and that in our report had we been examined the Books and Accounts of the Bank and the above Balance Sheet is, in our opinion, a full and fair balance sheet, and is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the Bank's affairs according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us and as shown by the Books. We have seen the Mortgages and other Securities for certified the Registered Stocks, and compared the Balance Sheet with the entries in the Books. We have obtained from Bankers. We have periodically checked the Cash at Head Office and principal Branches. The Bank's Officers have the Directors and Officers of the Bank all the information and explanations we have required.

J. W. CLEGG, R. A. SMITHSON, } Chartered Accountants, Auditors.

July 14th, 1914.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEED 3.

EVERY HOLIDAY NEED for LADIES and CHILDREN will be found in rare abundance at Reductions which mean Big Bargains at Stephenson's Summer Sale.
Now in Full Progress. So come. We promise to give you the Biggest Bargains that ever you got.

A FEW EXAMPLES:—
50 Ladies' SERGE SPORTS COATS, in Tan and Emerald, 4/11 each; usually 7/11
Another lot, usual price 12/11, for 8/11, in Saxe, Cherry, and Purple.
Ladies' FLEECY SPORTS COATS, Saxe only, 2/11½; usually 4/11.
Self-Coloured Delaine Blouses, Lace Yokes. Usually 3/11. Now 1/11½ each.
60 MAIDS' DRESS ROBES, in all colours, new models, in Cashmere and Wool Coating, at 3/11 each; were 6/11 to 12/11 each.
75 LADIES' DRESS ROBES, in all colours, new models, in Wool, Cashmere, and Coatings. Now 5/11. Usual price 8/11 to 12/11.
150 Ladies' All-Wool NAVY DRESS ROBES. Usual price 16/11 to 25/6. Now 9/11 each.
BLOUSE BARGAINS.
Ladies' Blouses in White Muslin, Cotton Piqué, and Crepe Cloths, all at 1/04. Usually 1/11½.
250 DRESS SKIRTS, all latest models, in various Cloths, Serges, and Tweeds, 1/11½ each. Worth 3/11 and 4/11 each.
600 pairs LADIES' COLOURED LISLE HOSE, Saxe and Grey. Now 3½d. pair. Worth 6½d.
Another lot LACE LISLE, in Saxe and Grey, 4½d. pair. Half-price.
LADIES' FINE LISLE GLOVES, 3½d. pair. Usual price 6½d. to 1/04 pair.
See our Extensive Window Display of the Most Genuine Bargains ever offered in Dress Fabrics, Silks, Ladies' and Children's Millinery, Underclothing, Corsets, Hosiery, Gloves, Fabrics, Silks, Ladies' and Children's Millinery, Underclothing, Corsets, Hosiery, Gloves, Ribbons, Feather Ruffles, Underskirts, Children's Costumes, Overalls, Dresses, &c. Our HOUSEHOLD DRAPERY SECTION is simply overflowing with Bargains in Bed Linen, Table Linen, Casement and Muslin Curtains, Washing Fabrics, &c. &c.
MAKE YOUR CALL TO-DAY AT
STEPHENSON'S, The Drapery Market
The Cross Arcade,
Extending from King Edward St. to Queen Victoria St. LEEDS.
(50 yards down either from Briggate)

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN

WEEDS

Weeds and insect pests cause a tremendous amount of work and worry in almost every garden. Very little neglect in regard to keeping weeds in check will result in disaster. Chickweed, shepherd's purse, groundsel, and wild grasses increase at a tremendous rate. In closely-planted beds and borders hand-picking must be resorted to, and although this is a tedious task, it is perhaps the most effective method of keeping the weeds down. During dry weather much good may be done by frequent use of the hoe. Specially made hoes with a very narrow blade, may be obtained from any nurseryman. These are extremely useful for hoeing between ordinary bedding plants such as geraniums, calceolarias, etc. The work should be done early in the day, as a few hours' sunshine will shrivel up the weeds that have been hoed off. Weed killer is very effective when applied judiciously to walks and carriage drives. It must not be used amongst growing plants as it is destructive to all kinds of plant life. How often one sees a badly-kept or little used entrance almost covered with weeds? Their unsightliness is not their only drawback, as the seed is almost certain to get blown about in all directions as it ripens. One thorough application with a good weed killer would clear the weed infested area, and give a neat appearance at little cost. Apply when the grass is in a moist condition. A weedy lawn detracts very much from the beauty of a garden. Large weeds such as dandelions and plantains are best removed by hand. An old knife may be used to grub them out. Cut through the root at the depth of an inch or so, and drop a pinch of common salt into the hole immediately the top of the weed is lifted out. Daisies are difficult to get out by hand and are best dealt with by giving a dressing of sulphate of ammonia. This must be applied carefully or the grass will get severely scorched. Break the sulphate of ammonia into a powder and mix it with three times its bulk of fine dust. Apply through an ordinary flour dredger, giving a dressing that will just cover the leaves. The grass will probably turn brown for a few days, but will soon recover and grow away stronger than ever. Unlike the weed killer usually applied to garden paths, that the lawn should be applied whilst the ground is dry. If wet weather follows immediately after applying it, very probably the result will not prove satisfactory and a second application will have to be made. Wild woodkeine, quick grass, and similar weeds that develop long, spreading roots from the smallest piece of root must be carefully forked out. It is only by persistent efforts that they can be cleared out. No amount of hoeing or hand-pulling will destroy them.

MICHAELMAS DAISIES

These are few hardy autumn-flowering perennials to compare with the asters for producing a mass of bloom. They are very fine even when grown under natural conditions, but to get the best results it becomes necessary to thin out the shoots. The very weak ones must be pulled out by the roots, and the remainder thinned out sufficiently to allow the full benefit of light and air to reach those that are retained for flowering. Suitable stakes should be provided in good time but should be so arranged as not to become an eyesore when the plants are in bloom. An occasional watering with soot water or liquid animal manure will improve the quality of the flowers.

CELERY

Market growers of celery are fully alive to the advantages of having an early supply. It is admitted by all that the quality is not nearly so good during August as it is later in the year, but that does not alter the fact that better prices can be obtained during August than at any other time. The moisture-loving nature of the plant makes it important that special care must be taken to avoid allowing the roots to get dry. The surface soil about the plants should be frequently earthed up. The earliest additions of soil are given more with the object of conserving the moisture than of blanching the stalks. It is a mistake to pile a quantity of soil around the plants until they have reached a height of 12 or 18 inches. They may then be earthed up to the base of the leaves, and further additions may be made as the plants grow. We have not noticed any maggot-infested leaves up to now, but it is not too late for the pest to make its appearance. Spraying overhead with soot water or quassia water will usually prevent an attack. Late varieties should be transplanted into watered immediately after planting. This will help them to get established. The ridges between the rows may be used for raising young plants of lettuce for transplanting in other parts of the garden as early cabbages, etc., mature and are taken off.

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS

For conservatory decoration there are few superior plants to the tuberous-rooted begonia. Under suitable conditions they continue to bear flowers for five or six months. They are gross feeders, and must have ample rooting space provided. A common error is to allow them to flower in small pots. They produce a quantity of roots and if these are confined to the restricted area of a small pot, the growth hardens and soon becomes crippled. Liquid feeding must have regular attention when the pots fill with roots, and seed pods should be removed before they have had time to tax the energy of the plants. The double varieties will produce larger and finer blooms if disbudded to one flower on a stem. The side blooms are almost invariably single.

TOMATOES

The houses in which tomatoes are growing require plenty of ventilation. No fire heat is necessary at this time of the year, providing the plants are growing freely. Late batches that have not yet established themselves may be assisted with a little fire heat in the evening. Plants that are in full bearing may be topdressed occasionally with some rich compost, and twice a week liquid manure may be given. Remove all lateral growths, but preserve all foliage on the main stem with the excepting of any that is shading the fruit. Dryness at the root is extremely bad for tomatoes, and as they are thirsty plants constant attention must be paid that is shading the fruit. Dryness at the root is extremely bad for tomatoes, and as they are thirsty plants constant attention must be paid to supplies in demand seed may now be sown. It is often said that winter tomatoes are almost flavourless. This is entirely wrong. There is no reason why a tomato should not be almost as full flavoured in winter as it is in summer. The misconception has probably arisen through the custom of cutting the fruit whilst it is green, and ripening it off in a dry room. To obtain a full-flavoured fruit in winter the ripening process should be completed on the plants, and in a heated greenhouse that is well-ventilated. Raise the seedlings in a warm house and then grow on in a cold frame until the end of August. By this time the plants should be blossoming freely and may be potted into six-inch pots and stood in their fruiting quarters.

"Grower" (Bramley) writes to say he has experienced a lot of trouble during the last few weeks with his tomatoes. He is growing several varieties in one house, and one of them named Champion has given more trouble than any other. The leaves, he says, first commence to look pale and sickly, then they droop badly, and finally the plant dies. He has been careful in regard to ventilating and watering, and is at a loss to understand why his plants act in this erratic manner. It may be some little consolation to "Grower" to know that he is probably not to blame. His plants are affected by the "sleeping" disease, a constitutional weakness that is very infectious and all infected plants should be carefully removed and burnt at once. Before commencing operations another year he should remove all the soil, gravel, or any other loose material in the house, and give it a thorough cleansing with carbolic soap. He should also take care to obtain his seed from uninfected plants. The Board of Agriculture have published a leaflet which gives the following hint. "If the disease appears in a greenhouse every part of the house should be washed with a solution of carbolic acid and water (one part of acid to 20 of water), after the soil has been removed."

GARFORTH GOLF COURSE.

FORMAL OPENING

On Saturday the golf course at Garforth, which has been in existence about fifteen months, was formally opened. It was only last Christmas that the laying out of the course on the present lines was undertaken by Dr Mitchell-Leaney, whose efforts so far have been directed to the making of new undulating greens and the rearrangement of the holes. As opened by the playing of a match between Abe Mitchell and Tom Williamson, the course is arranged in the fashion of a double loop, which brings the ninth, as well as the eighteenth, hole close to the club-house. But much remains to be done before the way of bunkering, for the tree hazards and the old colliery surface heaps—relics of the mining that went on in the locality a century ago —are not sufficient for modern golf requirements. With a subscription list of over 280 members, however, the club is on the high road to prosperity, and within a year or two there is every prospect that Garforth will be known as one of the best golf courses in the Leeds district. At present the greens and the rough approaches impose difficulties which even experienced players like Mitchell and Williamson could not overcome. The club possesses one big advantage in the fact that the historic Cock Beck winds through its territory. From this beck with its single tributary no fewer than twelve of the greens can easily be fed with water by means of a short hose pipe and a petrol motor pump.

The individual reputations of Abe Mitchell, as the picturesque exemplar, and of Tom Williamson, as the best of the Midland professionals, were sufficient to attract a considerable following for their match. Both men played good if not brilliant golf. Mitchell drove a very long ball. Though not possessed of Williamson's physical advantage in the matter of weight, he could drive his opponent almost invariably by twenty or thirty yards, though in the doing of it he not infrequently found himself in the rough with all his fine driving Mitchell found that it availed him nothing. He was out-played in every other respect, but more particularly in his putting. The ex-amateur seemed as if he could not gauge the distance in his approaches, and in his putting failed to appreciate the value of the adage "never up, never in." He missed no fewer than four putts of well under a yard in length, and these he threw away almost every hole which he appeared to have "up his sleeve." In the end he lost by six down and four to play, and though Mitchell has seldom sustained such a severe beating as this, he can not perhaps be surprising on this occasion, as he had not previously seen the course, while his opponent had had the advantage of having two practice rounds over it. Williamson, with his knowledge of the distances gained from his practice rounds on Friday, was very accurate in his pitches, his mashie play being well-nigh perfect. The scores were:—Williamson 71, Mitchell 79.

In the afternoon a four-ball match between Mitchell and C. W. Collier (the well-known Leeds amateur) and Tom Williamson and E. Williamson (professional at Garforth) was played Mitchell and Collier winning by 2 and 1.

TADCASTER

POISONED WHARFE—Anglers who visited the Wharfe between Tadcaster and Ulleskelf yesterday, (Thursday) week were met with a grievous sight on reaching the river, for, floating on their backs and hung up in the weeds, were scores and scores of dead fish, killed apparently by some poisonous matter which had entered the stream immediately below Tadcaster. There were salmon, roach, dace, chub, barbel, and bream, all of which had suffered from the same cause. Particularly fine were the bream, which measured about two feet in length, must have weighed over 2lb. This is a serious matter for the Leeds and District Amalgamated Society of Anglers, who spend large sums of money in re-stocking the river annually, and who pay heavy rentals for the fishing rights.

EVERY WOMAN
Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing Valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or recovered by simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, as the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never Fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.
Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,
Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.
Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

A SUCCESSFUL BREEDING SEASON.
(Continued).

(Readers are particularly requested to note that this series of articles commenced with the first issue in January. In order to obtain their full value, the earlier articles should be read in conjunction with the current one).

The exceptional heat we have been experiencing necessitated prompt consideration of the series of articles—"A Successful Breeding Season"—in order that I might draw your attention to what I described as hot weather treatment of poultry, but we can now return to the old subject.

"Dietary for Week-old Chickens" was the subject under discussion. I have already told you that I do not believe in strict adherence to the "Cry-baby" system. Youngsters continually fed on small or broken grain do not mature rapidly, and rarely or never attain full development. Extremes are invariably bad. Alternate feeds of soft food and hard grain, are, in my opinion, the best; but even with this accepted rule, intelligent application of it is necessary to ensure success.

A little and often is one excellent rule. Never permit the young chicks to eat to repletion, excepting at the last meal at night. Your aim is to keep them active, and an over-fed chick, like an over-fed person, rarely displays activity. Activity, I have often written, is the keynote to health.

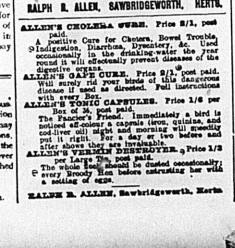
Ring the changes frequently in your dietary is another maxim to bear in mind. It will stimulate their appetites, they will relish the change, Spratt's Chicken Meal and Chicko are splendid preparations, and excellent food for growing stock. Variety can be obtained by giving an occasional feed of oatmeal moistened with milk or made into porridge—a feed of this about twice a week, particularly during hot weather—while the scraps from the house can always be utilised.

Green food is a necessity, but should never be given in such quantities as to permit it to wither. Just a sufficiency that will be eagerly eaten up, and whilst they are young it must be cut up for them into suitable pieces.

Sharp grit of a size suitable for chickens should always be before them. Without it they cannot possibly digest their food, and bad digestion is the forerunner of diarrhœa, a disease particularly fatal to young chickens, especially in the warmer weather.

Pure clean drinking water that has not been exposed to the rays of the sun is another necessity. Do not think me wearisome when I keep harping against the water being exposed to the sun. Some hundreds of dead chicks are sent to me annually for post-mortem examination, and sunburnt water is too frequently the cause of inflammation which has resulted fatally.

Reverting to the question of green food, I have always been a great believer in giving a choppel onion to young stock occasionally. Quite recently my attention has been drawn to a letter which appeared in "Egypt," in which the writer —a Mr Chappelet—ardently advocates an onion meal every day. His letter is as interesting as it is convincing, I therefore reproduce a portion of same for your guidance:—



"It may interest you to know that I have found chopped raw onions of the greatest benefit to summer chicks. I know of them for bronze turkey poults, but had not hitherto tried them for baby chicks. Now, I consider them a first-rate preventive of, and antidote to, white diarrhœa, and from their appearance at this season should not be afraid to undertake the raising of a very large percentage of summer chicks from average stock.

"About the middle of May, after very trying weather for chicks, I had two broods of fifty baby chicks, and one brood of two months old, badly out of sorts and ill with diarrhœa.

"After treating them for their symptoms perfunctorily with quinine, it was up to me to discover something that they could and would eat and digest. It was then that I tried feeding them with onions (no wholemeal barley, liberally mixed) with raw chopped onions. The chicks, one and all, ate it with delight, picking out the onions raw though they were plump. At once the diarrhœa left them and they almost all recovered, the older ones feathering in three or four days' time. Since then, working with the same pens, the cultivators, and brooders, I have not had a single case of diarrhœa, and hardly one sick chicken, through the impossible weather we have been enduring."

(To be continued).

(Any enquiries concerning poultry keeping addressed to our expert, Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, provided those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown postal fee. The name of the writer must in all cases be given).

FINAL REDUCTION FOR SITTINGS

4/- There is still time to set eggs from light breeds, and we can offer Special Reduced Prices for Sittings of White Leghorns, 10 Eggs in the sitting, as under. Carriage Paid. Guaranteed Pure-bred Stock. Silver Cup Winners. 4/-

Pure-bred Day-old Chicks all breeds, 12/- dozen.

RALPH R. ALLEN, SAWBRIDGEWORTH, HERTS.

ALLEN'S CHOLERA SYRUP. Price 8/1, post paid.
A positive Cure for Cholera, Bowel Trouble, Indigestion, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, &c. Used occasionally in drinking-water the poor ailing person is will effectually prevent diseases of the digestive organs.
ALLEN'S GAPE CURE. Price 8/3 post paid.
Best and Quickest Cure of this dangerous Worm Disease. Easily and quickly given. Full instructions with every box.
ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES. Price 1/6 per box.
Per Large Tin, post paid.
The whole body should be dosed occasionally. Every Broody Hen before entrusting her with a setting of EGGS.
RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

CONSERVATIVE DEMONSTRATION AT TEMPLENEWSAM.

HON. E. L. WOOD'S BOXING SIMILE.

SIR M. SYKES' SPEECH—DEMAGOGUE'S PARADISE.

CRITICISM OF MR LLOYD GEORGE.

MR LANE FOX, M.P., AND THE GOVERNMENT.

Under the auspices of the Templenewsam Primrose League and Conservative Association a demonstration was held in Templenewsam (by the kind permission of the Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., and Lady Dorothy Wood) on Saturday afternoon, and the weather conditions being ideal, the visitors to the ancient place had a very enjoyable time. In addition to a large number of residents of Temple-newsam, Gregg-ates Seacroft, Barkstick, Leeds and Garforth, the members of the St. Robert Habitation, Weetson and Bramhall, turned out in strength. They were welcomed by Mr Wood, in whose constituency they reside. The pleasure grounds and gardens were thrown open, and prior to the speech-making, which took place in the quadrangle, the people had an opportunity of viewing the grounds. Selections of music were discoursed by the Garforth Band.

The Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., presided over the meeting, and he was supported by Lady Dorothy Wood, Sir Mark Sykes, M.P., Mr Lane Fox, M.P., Mr Darcy H. Wilson, J.P. (Seacroft Hall), Dr Wilson (Kirkby Overblow), Mr P. S. Marsden (Whitkirk), Mr J. H. Tomlinson (Colton), etc.

HON. E. L. WOOD'S SIMILE

The Chairman said there was a time not very long ago when their opponents were inclined to minimise, to laugh at, and to attempt to ignore the grave Irish danger, upon which their thoughts and minds were now centred. That time had gone by. There was re very few people now who thought it was an idle dream of party politicians. The whole great—because the danger was seen to be too hideous and it was seen there was too great a chance of the nightmare coming true. It would be unpardonable of anybody to do or say anything at that moment, at that week-end of all week-ends, that would in any degree whatever have an adverse influence upon a settlement, when at the last moment of the 11th hour there was a possibility of peace. He would content himself with saying down one condition that must be found in whatever proposals for settlement the House of Commons would be asked to consider. As Unionists their opposition to Home Rule was not at that moment under discussion. They remained a Unionist party, but when they stood at that particular moment, on the very crisis of civil war, was that they said with perfect frankness it was an idle thing for any Government at this point of danger to make any proposals that would not discharge the first object of their making—to satisfy the reasonable demands of Ulster. (Applause). Referring to the famous boxing match, he said it was decided by the referee owing to a foul stroke. That foul stroke by Gunboat Smith was, he believed, accidental, but the foul stroke by which as he conceived it the Government was trying to ruin Ulster was no accident, but was premeditated, and was the result of a long four years' of rascality. (Applause). There was one other difference, that whereas it was possible in that match for the referee at the first apparent foul stroke to step in and stop it, here the referee—the people —did no power to step in and perhaps the harm was done. Let them be sure of one fact, that when the great referee, the nation, had an opportunity of announcing its verdict it would condemn—as the referee in the case done at Olympia on the foul stroke that had been perpetrated, unless wiser counsels prevailed, the foul stroke of a tyrannical Government upon a loyal people. (Applause).

SIR M. SYKES AND SOCIAL REFORM

Sir Mark Sykes, who had an excellent reception, said that if one had asked oneself what a Labour candidate would have said at last election, and the election before that, as to what his policy, and that of his party was, he presumed he would have honestly answered and avowed that the object of the Liberal Party, if returned to power, would be to promote certain social reforms, reform the Constitution, and settle the Irish question. He took it that that was what the Government set out to do. Let them first consider the question of social reform. To hear the Chancellor of the Exchequer and Mr Masterman speak, they would imagine that until they were well up the political ladder no one ever before, Liberal or Conservative, had had the welfare of the people at heart, or the intelligence or humanity to do anything at all, and that they were the first people ever to try to do anything in the way of social reform. As a matter of fact, that was not the case. They would find that they began various schemes of social reform somewhere about the time of Queen Elizabeth. Let them take it for granted these two gentlemen were not the first social reformers, and likewise that there had been social reforms promoted by both sides in politics before that. Many measures had been passed by Unionist Governments, and he desired to know his opinion of these the objects and aims of social reform. Let them take Lord Salisbury's County Councils' and Education Acts, Disraeli's Masters' and Servants' Act, or Mr Chamberlain's Compensation Act, and they would find running through these certain definite objects—to develop existing institutions, to enable the people to progress in peace and develop ideas, and the enlarging of classes together, so that there would be comradeship between rich and poor, and between employer and employed. (Applause).

DEMAGOGUE'S PARADISE

Social reforms of the kind he (the speaker) had mentioned—and he could mention a good many Liberal reforms as well—had the benefit of those not immediately concerned only, but the whole country at heart, and the object was to produce unity and a prosperous people, doing their work with more efficiency than in the past. Radical social reform had brought in class hatred. Mr Lloyd George, addressing the bankers in London the previous night, said it was an awful thing to know there was industrial unrest. Who was responsible for it if he was not? (Applause). Class hatred had been Mr Lloyd George's stand-by in good and other times, but that particular stand-by had not stood by him very well lately. Take the Insurance Act—a yelling in idea—and see the wreckage that followed in its train, particularly the large number of small societies, with memberships between 100 and 200, and when there was excellent feeling, which had ceased to exist. He stated that at one time he used to go to club feasts, where he found the farm labourer, farmer, and visitor at a common board, and trying to pull together to make these societies go. An ill-considered scheme had sent them into the general wreckage. (Hear, hear). What the demagogue wanted was not a contented and happy people. He would not do any business there. (Laughter). What he wanted was a discontented and unhappy people. That was a demagogue's paradise. (Laughter). The demagogue's office was the offering of bribes, and when he had none to offer he wanted the people to be at war with one another, so that he could appeal to class and hatred, which Mr Lloyd George had never failed to do.

WELSH CHURCH QUESTION

In regard to the Welsh Church question, he said he could speak upon it in an unbiassed way, because he was a Roman Catholic. That Church was one of the links in the chain of social progress. The Government had passed the Bill, and it was only the prelude to attacking the Church of England in England itself. That they could not deny. When they had attacked the Church of England in England did the member of any religious organization imagine that their funds or policy would be safe from their clutches? What was it he he result in Wales? The Church in Wales was disestablished, and certain clergymen would cease to have livings. Sooner or later children would be born, who might not be baptised for want of one to come to do it. Some people might die, and would want consolation, and there would be no one to administer it. People would marry without going to any church, and who would be content with the registrar's office. These might seem small, petty things, but they were a blow at the vitality of the whole country (—hear, hear)—and the beginning of setting-up a godless and demoralized people. (Applause). It was the beginning of the end of the Christian religion. If religion was attacked in one form then all religion must suffer. (Applause). And where religion suffered the heart was eaten out of the country, and they would not be able to produce such men as they had produced in the past. In attacking the Welsh Church, although it might be the Church of a minority, the Government had done in this country what it dared not do to a Mohammedan mosque in Egypt, or a pagan temple in India. (Applause).

THE IRISH QUESTION

He said no one could deny that this country had had a Constitution which had known 230 years of peace and progress and constant change. Without any civil commotion England had changed more than any country in the world, and he would say that France, in spite of all the revolutions, was to-day more like the France of Louis XIV. than England was like the England of George II. From a petty agricultural state England had become a world-wide empire. They had changed and changed, and they had had a Constitution which had enabled the people to be consulted and enabled the people to have their way sooner or later, and not enabled one man, a caucus, or clique to force upon the majority of the people what they did not want. (Applause). What had the Government to put in the place of the House of Lords? Not the people. Take the case in General Election of Manchester. (Laughter). With regard to the Irish question, he ventured to say he spoke on it with different sentiments to many people. He had the good fortune to be private secretary to the late Mr George Wyndham, and was one of those who worked with him in Ireland in the beginning of the first decade of the 20th century. In the Edwardian days he was a friend of Nationalism that never was there before, because Ireland, which for 200 years had been the scene of revolution, intimidation, famine, and vice, and the creation of various secret societies,—the scene of horrible political crimes, and the place where men's lives were made a hell on earth to them because they did not agree with others, and where had been religious and racial hatred and wrongs committed by both sides—that Ireland with her woes behind her, stricken by emigration and poverty and political and religious strife—they worked with enthusiasm and hope, because Mr Wyndham was busy with his land scheme, Landowner and tenant, Protestant and Catholic, were brought together, and prosperity came to the country side, and the evil things of the past were dying down. Much of the work that Mr Wyndham did nothing could undo. The Irish were making the land pay, and prosperity came to them, and the funds of the Nationalist Party began to decrease. All that work had been stopped and the country had been thrown back into the pit of misery and desolation.

"THEIR OWN SILLY STORY."

It required something more than good-will in order to take up the appalling difficulty, the appalling situation which the Government had deliberately walked into, and if revolution came they had brought it on themselves, and if civil war took place in Ireland, he would not say that it would not spread into this land, and if Ireland was hurled into chaos and ruin, this country and perhaps the Empire would fall. The Government had requisitioned and said it was nothing. They passed the Parliament Act, and went on with their work. They were now face to face with a situation that they could not cope with, and with a situation which arose chiefly out of their own dishonesty. If they had believed that they had the electorate behind them why did they not go before the Electorate? Simply because they did not believe their own silly story. (Applause). What had been the total result of this Government's policy? It was the division in Ulster, a broken constitution, a constitution that in effect was a farce, law and order forgotten—because when law was not sanctioned where was order?—the law sinking, the constitution going, revolution looming in front of us, and to-day the whole social structure in this country was supported by one thing only, and that was that we were in an era of peace and prosperity. It was only in times of peril and booms, and they all knew that prosperity was only transitory. If they put the present political situation to the test of disaster and calamity in this country they would come down like a pack of cards. (Applause).

SPEECH BY MR LANE FOX.

Mr Lane Fox, who was very cordially received, gave a brief address, and, referring to the Irish question, said that the Government had got frequent warnings as to what would happen in Ireland, but they had all been received with scoffs and jeers. It made things so sometimes when he read some of the things he saw in Liberal newspapers, and there were still people who believed all they saw there. He should be the last person to attack the Press, but looking at the statements made about Ireland, and realizing how utterly deluding they were, it made one realize the responsibility of those who were deliberately misleading their fellow-countrymen. On one placard he read "Belfast Fiasco." It meant that Sir Edward Carson had given deliberate warning that at present he had run out, and the Provisional Government had practically come into existence. Because there were 60 fire and bloodshed one paper described it as the "Belfast Fiasco." Had they been honest they would have warned their fellow-countrymen that they had brought the country to the brink of civil war. That was no matter to jest about. Ulster people were determined to keep what they had and the Government would never take it from them.

Telegrams Scott, Selby. Telephone 194.

IF YOU REQUIRE

GENUINE RAW PERUVIAN GUANO, FISH GUANO, SULPHATE of AMMONIA, NITRATE of SODA, RAPE NUTS and DUST, RAPE MEAL PURE DISSOLVED BONES, PURE BONE MEAL and FLOUR, SUPERPHOSPHATE (16 per cent.), BASIC SLAG, SULPHATE of POTASH, MURIATE of POTASH, GENUINE KAINIT, LAND SALT (in Truck Loads), ETC. ETC.

We shall be pleased to quote Prices for any quantity.

QUALITY and GOOD CONDITION of the above GUARANTEED. PROMPT DELIVERY can be given either at Works here or at Buyer's Station.

M. SCOTT & Co
OIL MILLS, SELBY.

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW THE VALUE OF
TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE
Read what Mr S. Leigh, Hessle Road, Hull, says:—"I have had the diarrhœa very acutely, and nothing would do me any good. I saw an advertisement of TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE, and decided to try it, and after only one dose of 20 drops I had immediate relief. If people only knew how soon they could be cured I am sure they would not hesitate to pay £1 a drop.
Try what you will there is no finer cure for Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and Bowel Complaint than the grand old remedy,
TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.
It has cured thousands, and will cure you. Hass Teasdale's Chlorodyne in the house in case of sudden attacks.
Trial Bottle only 7½d., Double size 13½d., and Family Bottles 2s. 6d.
Can be had of PURDY, Crossgates; RENNARD, Halton, and other Chemists; GOODALL, Backhouse & Co., and TAYLOR'S Drug Stores.
ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.
CHLORODYNE

We can Furnish your Home as it should be Furnished.

People who appreciate home life strive to make their home not only a comfortable residence, but also a picture of elegance and refinement—a house that shall be in keeping with the true spirit of happy home life from attic to basement.
It costs no more to achieve this result than it does to furnish in the commonplace style.
It is an Easy Plan to furnish on our system of Deferred Payments.
Our System is just another way of saving money—you lay aside what you can spare each month, and you have the use of what that money will buy all the time.

COME AND SEE OUR STOCK OF FINE FURNITURE.

TERMS:

£ s. d.
5 0 0	Worth of Goods ...	1 3 Weekly.
7 10 0	do ...	1 8 do.
12 0 0	do ...	2 0 do.
17 10 0	do ...	2 6 do.
25 0 0	do ...	3 6 do.
35 0 0	do ...	4 0 do.
50 0 0	do ...	5 0 do.

LARGE STOCK OF PIANOS FROM 2/- per Week
We pride ourselves on offering long terms on our large stock that you take a fancy to, If there's any article at Purchase Tax you can conveniently afford, don't hesitate, but come inside and we can arrange special terms to meet your case.

Sharp & Thornton,
CASH OR CREDIT HOUSE
— FURNISHERS,
97 VICAR LANE, LEEDS 99
Mind you get to the RIGHT SHOP.

What they asked for and were determined to A WISTOW FARMER SAVES A BOY.—On Saturhold Englishmen were taught to protect. Minis- day Leonard Parrot, aged 7, son of a shopkeeper, ters, he said, should go to Ireland and see things of New Lane, Selby, who was at the canal bank of New England and Ireland and see things of New Lane, Selby, who was at the canal bank for themselves. Mr Birrell only went there to for themselves. Mr Birrell only went there to slipped into the water come away again. (Laughter). He saw a and sank. One of his companions ran a short statement the other day in a Radical newspaper distance to the roadway and attracted the atdistance to the roadway and attracted the attention of Peter Lister, a bricklayer's constructor, tention of Peter Lister, a bricklayer's constructor, of Wistow, who that at last a great movement was set up which tention of Mr J. Peddington, of Wistow, who would pacify, and have a great effect on the at once hastened to the canal, and, guided by would pacify, and have a great effect on the at once hastened to the canal, and, guided by the motion of the water, managed to seize the Shannon refused to do trade with Belfast, be- drowning boy and pull him to the bank. The cause it would not accept Home Rule. He knew boy was unconscious, and Mr Peddington, Carrick-on-Shannon, which was a small country after applying artificial respiration for a short town, and the effect of a boycott of Belfast time, conveyed him to Dr. G. D. Todd's surgery, trade would be like Crossgates refusing to trade where Mrs Todd, who was the only one at home with Leeds—(laughter)—except that Crossgates at the time, attended to the boy and restored was more important than Carrick-on-Shannon, him to consciousness.
and in the future would be more so. They had a Government which did not hesitate to rob a Church, which did not hesitate to risk civil war, and which did not hesitate to delude poor labourers throughout the country, promising a new heaven and a new earth, and new cottages brought by no one knew whom—(laughter)—and promising 9d. for 4d.—(laughter)—and what was the object? They saw a General Election like a Niagara in front of them, and they knew they had got to face it or get round it somehow, and their only object was to secure a sufficient majority of votes to take care that otherwise they saw to be a great disaster coming upon them. If they could only get the Plural Voting Bill they would sacrifice everything else, and he thought the object? They saw a General Election like a Niagara in front of them, and they knew they had got to face it or get round it somehow, and their only object was to secure a sufficient majority of votes to take care that otherwise they saw to be a great disaster coming upon them. If they could only get the Plural Voting Bill they would sacrifice everything else, and he thought every party which voted upon conditions of that kind no longer deserved the confidence of the electors of the country. (Applause).

Mr D. B. Wilson proposed a vote of thanks to Mr and Lady Dorothy Wood, and the speakers. He said that when an election came it would be the duty of the rank and file to work their hardest. He was sure the members of the Primrose League would do so. (Applause).

Dr Wilson, on behalf of St. Robert's Habitation, seconded.

The resolution was passed, and Sir Mark Sykes replied.

Tea was afterwards served in a large marquee, erected near the north front of the house.

At Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday Mr D. Hill, of the Fox and Hounds, was granted an occasional licence for the show.

FOR TOWN or COUNTRY.
FOR BUSINESS or PLEASURE.

THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
IS AT 11

Fabor 45/-

Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.

24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

KIPPAX, SHERBURN, BARWICK, AND TADCASTER AFFAIRS.

The fortnightly meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held in the Board Room at Tadcaster on Monday—Alt. E. C. Brooksbank, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. Other members present were Mrs. Bethell (Newton Kyme), Rev. Canon Greenwood (Grimston), Messrs E Parker (Ledsham), C. Ellis (Micklefield), Walter Crosland, J.P., and A. Johnson (South Milford). W. P. Birkinshaw (Ledston), J. Wordsworth and E. H. Lowe (Great Preston), T. Hey and J. E. Cawthorn (Sherburn), R. Wright (Barwick), J. Lailey (Kirkby Wharfe), W. Y. K. Young (Aberford), E. Parkin, J.P., and J. Harding (Kippax). F. Myers (Bilbrough), J. Nettleton and J. H. Ingleby, J.P. (Tadcaster), F. Phillips and Pearson (Allerton Bywater). T. H. Prater (Parlington), J. Y. Wheatley (Appleton Roebuck), J. H. Schofield (Oxton), G. Webster (Huddleston-Lumby), and T. P. Fawcett (Austhorpe), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Bousfield).

The treasurer was reported to have a balance in hand of £3,837.

THE HOUSE

The master's report showed that during the fortnight there had been five admissions to the workhouse, one birth, 5 discharges, and 3 deaths. The inmates numbered 84 in the house and 17 in the children's home—an increase of 11 on the corresponding date last year. Tee tramps relieved during the two weeks were 14 and 10 against 8 and 13 on the same weeks last year.

Mr Wordsworth said that the Relief Committee had had very few cases before them, and they had granted no fresh relief.

The House Committee minutes showed that with regard to the alterations at the workhouse the Local Government Board's architect was to visit Tadcaster, and a committee was appointed to meet him. The half-yearly reports from the medical officer and master were received, and they were satisfactory.

At a meeting of Bilbrough Home Committee it was stated that the master and matron could not manage without assistance, and it was decided that help be given on two days a week.

Mr Prater, on behalf of the Finance Committee, reported that a number of parishes were in arrears with calls, and the question was left in the hands of the Clerk.

REPRESENTATIVES TO CONFERENCES

A meeting of representatives of Assessment Committees is to be held in London to consider a proposed new system of valuation, and the Board were asked to appoint representatives.—Canon Greenwood proposed that the Chairman, Mr Prater, and the Clerk represent the Board. It was a most important matter, and he thought they should be represented.—The vote was agreed to.

A letter was read from the Land Union in regard to grants to local authorities from the imperial exchequer, and it was referred to the Finance Committee.

It was agreed that, owing to the Bank Holiday, the next meeting should be held that day month.

The Clerk reported that he had received a letter from the Wharfedale Union asking a conference on Oxley in reference to the treatment of the mentally defective. It was agreed that Canon Greenwood and Mr Wordsworth should represent the Board at the conference.

DISTRICT COUNCIL

At the meeting of the District Council the officers present were Mr Scott, surveyor; Mr Driver, and Mr Wood, sanitary inspectors.

It was reported that the treasurer had a balance in hand of £8,953. The cost of the district roads during the fortnight was reported to be £68 14s. 8d.

At a meeting of the Highways Committee it was reported that the census in connection with the classification of main roads was to be taken on August 5th, and it was suggested that a census of the district roads should be taken on the same date. It was agreed that Mr Scott arrange to have a census of the district roads taken.—In regard to a road improvement at Bilbrough, it was agreed the Council should pay half the cost. Permission was granted for the erection of poles for overhead telegraph at Barwick. Permission was given to temporary the roads from Sherburn to Sherburn Station, and from Barkston to Church Fenton Station. Permission was given to open roads at Kippax and Askham Bryan for the laying of gas and sewer pipes. East Tadcaster Council were stating that the footpath at Hillside was now satisfactory.—A conference is to be held at Wakefield anent the classification of roads, and the Chairman, Clerk, and surveyor were appointed to attend.—It was reported that a road was being damaged by surface water and it was stated to arise owing to the Micklefield Coal Company having no surface drains on their property, and they were to be asked to attend to the matter. A sum of £4 15s. was passed for a road improvement at Kippax.

The Chairman said he could not attend the conference at Wakefield, and no other member seemed disposed to go.

THE WATER TROUGH

In regard to the much discussed water trough on the Tadcaster and York Road, a tender was submitted for the erection of a brick chamber, and putting in a meter, and it was accepted.—Mr Scott asked if he would be in order to put up a notice board warning engine men against taking the water?—The Chairman: Yes, certainly.—It was agreed in addition to the erection of the board that a lock be put on the trough.

Various parishes were reported to be in arrears with calls, and the Clerk was left to take action in regard to them.

SANITARY COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee plans for the erection of a new house at the "White Swan," Kippax, were passed, and also were plans for a house in Brigshaw Lane, All-erton Bywater.—An extension of sewer at Aberford is to be carried out, and tenders are to be obtained.—In regard to a deposit of night-soil in a lane at Barwick, it was reported that the person concerned would spread it on the land as soon as he could, and he would allow no more to be deposited there. Tenders for the erection of a fence at Lock Lane sewage works were received, and it was decided the Council purchase the material, and that the work be done by the man engaged at the works.—A sewer at Askham Bryan was reported to be blocked, and the inspector was instructed to do what was necessary in the case.—Tenders for a pump at South Milford sewage works were submitted, and one is to be purchased.—The question of a pump, etc., at Tadcaster sewage works was referred to the local committee.—A drain at Sherburn was reported to be blocked, and it is to be cleaned out. Plans for a building for Mr S. Smith, Tadcaster, were passed.—The County Council wrote offering to sell half-an-acre of land at Barkston, and the inspector was instructed to survey the land and ascertain how many houses would be built on it.—It was reported that the Rivers Board agreed to the improvement of the Kippax sewage works being deferred on an undertaking being given that plans would be sent to the Local Government Board before next June, and arrangements made to start the work in spring, 1916. It was decided to give the undertaking required.—The Local Government Board wrote sanctioning a loan of £400 for making connections to the houses at Lock Lane, and two of £100 each, and it was agreed to apply to the Loans Board for the money.—A letter was read from the Local Government Board in regard to the prevention of disease during the hot weather.

A NUISANCE AT TADCASTER

Mr Ingleby stated that at last meeting notice was served on Mr Samuel Smith to remove some rubbish in Cinder Lane, Tadcaster. It had been deposited there by the tenants of the allotment gardens, and Mr Smith said they ought to apply to them. That was rather a big order. He asked what were the best steps to take in the matter, because there was no doubt it was a nuisance. After discussion, it was agreed that the Clerk should write to the tenants.

PAGEANT AT SWILLINGTON PARK.

FOR GREAT PRESTON CHURCH FUNDS

Many strangely clad figures might have been seen flitting to and fro in the grounds of Swillington Park on Saturday afternoon. They were merry-makers, who were taking part in a "Village Pageant," with a view to raising funds for the building of a boundary wall round St. Aidan's Church, Great Preston. Numerous characters were represented, and the costumes worn by the ladies and gentlemen, who had been busy for several weeks preparing for the event, made a picturesque display. The grounds were an ideal spot for such a scene, and the company were lucky in being favoured with such fine weather.

The pageant was under the direction of Mr O. B. Milnes, headmaster of the Bowers Allerton National School, who, in the bright dress of a herald, looked as if he had walked out of a gaily-coloured picture book. His good lady, attired in a crinoline, which made a striking contrast to the hobble skirt, represented a lady of 1850.

The Queen of the Pageant was Mrs Jubb, who was attended by six maids of honour. Other characters were:—"Bellman" Mr J. Hughes, "Britannia" Mrs. Oubridge, "England" Mrs Naylor, "Wales" Mrs Gregory, who sang in Welsh the national song; "Scotland" Miss Gregory, "Ireland" Mrs Ponder, "Country Squire" Mr N. Firth, "Spring" Miss H. Spurden, "Summer" Miss A. Sharp, "Autumn" Miss J. Ponder, "Winter" Miss F. Stephenson, "Robin Hood" Mr F. Milner, "Monk" Mr H. Smith, "Dick Whittington" Miss Lily Rye, "Cicely" and his wife" Mr and Mrs Barrs, "Sandwich man" Mr J. Smith, "Scotch Fisher Girl" Mrs Smith, "Lord Hawke" Mr H. Milner, "Red Cross Nurse" Mrs Hamers, "Old watchman" Mr B. Hollyhead, "Mother Shipton" Mrs N. Firth, "English yeoman-time of Cromwell" Mr B. Ledbury, "Indian lady" Mrs Leigh, "Pierrot" Miss Noble, "Jester" Mr A. Cooper, "Millennial" Mrs A. Parker, "Nigger" Mr J. Sharpe, "Spanish dancer" Miss Cawood, "Chinaman" Mr D. Cooper, "Hope" Miss L. Swales, "Italian dancer" Miss M. Hughes, "Undergraduate" Mr Tooth, "Harvest girl" Mrs Smart, "Japanese lady" Miss G. Longbottom, "Pierrette" Miss Hughes, "Knight" Miss Bell, "Pierrot" Mrs Hollyhead "Swiss girl" Miss Cawood, "Sailor" Mrs Hollyhead "Swiss girl" Miss Haddlaway, "Japanese lady" Miss Ponder, "Indian squaw" Miss Douglas, "Herald" Mr O. B. Milnes. The following girls represented flowers:—"Marguerite" Miss Milnes, "Dorothy Perkins," Connie Oubridge; "Crimson rambler," Edna Hollyhead; "Hiawatha," Elsie Wyllie; "Rose," Misses Oswin, A. Hughes, G. Smith, G. Steinsby, M. Bower, C. Lavery, L. Smith; "Chrysonthemum," Ivy Smart; "Carnation," Amy Ledbury; "Cornflower," Olive Fawcett; "Poppy," Ivy Goodall; "Marguerite," Misses A. Stephenson and R. Bockhouse; "Sunflower," Eva Jubb; "Sweet Pea," H. Wilson.

After the presentation of the characters to the Queen, a short sketch, entitled "Bold Robin and the Babes," was given by the children of St. Aidan's Band of Hope, who played their parts well, under the conductorship of the Rev. J. Gregory, curate-in-charge. A display of scout training by the Great Preston Troupe, under Scoutmaster Oubridge, and the South Leeds Troupe, was an interesting feature. A clever exhibition of Morris dancing, under the supervision of Mr Nowell, was also given. During the afternoon and evening the Oulton Band rendered an excellent programme of music.

ALLEGED BURGLARY AT MONK FRYSTON.

GROCER'S SHOP BROKEN INTO.

Arthur Sheard, labourer, of Manchester, was charged at Selby on Saturday on remand with burglariously entering the dwelling-house of Mr Joseph Laycock, grocer, at Monk Fryston, during the night of the 14th inst, and stealing therefrom a quantity of beef and other eatables, etc., etc.

Evidence was given that the house had been securely locked up, but in the morning the pantry window was found broken. The woodwork had been smashed, and the glass broken. An entrance had been effected through the window, the larder being ransacked, a quantity of pie from a barrel had been consumed, and various eatables such as bananas, beef, and a spice loaf were missing.

Mrs Dodgson, a widow, of Hillam, who was passing on a bicycle, said she saw the accused leave the back of the premises about 3 o'clock in the morning; he staggered as if he was the worse for drink, and went towards Hambleton.

P.C. Holliday said that on receiving a report of the occurrence he went in search of the accused, and was accompanied by Mrs Dodgson, who pointed out the man. Accused was found lying on the roadside near Hambleton, and was arrested after a slight scuffle, in which the constable received a puncture in the right hand from a knitting needle, which the accused held in his hand. A sharpened file in his possession corresponded with marks on the window, and he was also in possession of the missing spice loaf.

Accused was committed for trial at the next Assizes.

Superintendent Stafford stated that the accused had a bad record, and was known by several aliases. He had been sentenced at Leeds Assizes for burglary and housebreaking, and at the same court two sentences of three years each were recorded against him for sacrilege. At York Assizes he had also been sentenced to three years' penal servitude for sacrilege. Supt. Stafford added that he would hand accused over to the Leeds West Riding Police on another charge of breaking into Swillington Church.

The Rev. B. Hemsworth commended the constable and Mrs Dodgson for the prompt way they had acted in the case before the court.

A GARFORTH ASSAULT CASE.

COLLIERY EMPLOYES' DIFFERENCES.

Some time was spent by the magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday in hearing a case of assault which was said to be the outcome of an alleged tampering with the winding gear of the Garforth Colliery. The complainant was William Wilson, Leeds, pit winding engineman, and the defendant was Thomas William Benn, Garforth, also a pit winding engine man.

Mr A. Willey appeared for the complainant, and Mr A. Masser for the defendant.

The complainant said he had been employed at the Garforth Colliery about six months—He was the winding engine man on the night shift and the defendant did the same duty on the day shift. He complained of the way in which the defendant left the winding gear for him. On Thursday, June 25th, about 9.30 p.m., he was going on duty, and was speaking to a man called Joyce, when the defendant came up and said: "What about the —— brakes?" Wilson said "Come in the engine-man who saw you do it." He went on to say that he found the brakes of the winding gear very bad at times, tied up at one side and eased off on the other, and had to adjust them before he could do anything. Going back to the time of the incident in question, Wilson said defendant struck him three blows with his fist in the face. He was knocked down and while on the ground he was kicked on the arm, and he was rendered unable to work for about ten days.

Mr Masser: You make the statement that this man deliberately tampered with the brakes.—Witness: Yes.

And that by so doing he placed the lives of several men in jeopardy?—Yes.

Have you ever made this complaint to Mr Routledge?—Yes.

Have you referred Mr Routledge to the charge man?—Yes.

In spite of this complaint Mr Routledge still continues to employ the defendant, and values his services?—Yes.

Mr Willey: And he employs my client, too.

Mr Masser: Have you made a complaint about the defendant's father?—Witness: Yes.

Complainant, answering other questions, said he never raised his fists to the defendant.

Mr Willey (to Wilson): You have not received a counter-summons from this man for assault, like a guy fitz assaulted him.

Wilson: No.

Harry Johnson, a bye-workman at the colliery, said that on the night in question about 10.20 p.m. he saw the complainant on a seat at the pit. He seemed to be in pain. His arm was black and swollen.

The defendant, in the witness box, said he had worked at the Garforth Colliery for seventeen years. Never before had he had any trouble with anyone at the pit. His father worked there also as winding engineman. Soon after the complainant came to work at the pit he (defendant) heard that he was making allegations about him and his father. There was no truth in the allegations, which had only been made at others and not to him direct. Mr Routledge had never spoken to him about it. On the night in question he (defendant) was coming over the bridge when he heard the complainant's voice. He was talking to Joyce, and using abusive language about him and his father with regard to slacking the brakes of the gear, and making it dangerous for men to go down. The complainant was the first to put on his fists. Witness did not know he was going to strike him. After falling to the ground complainant got up and ran away towards the manager's office.

Mr Willey: Did you never make any complaint to the manager with reference to the allegations?—Witness: No, I always try to fight my own battles with words.

But your story is that you did not fight your own battle; you never struck a blow, and that the man was injured through a fall and through no fault of yours.—Witness: Yes.

George Mallinson, lamp-keeper at the colliery, corroborated the statement of Benn as to the assault.

After a short deliberation, the magistrates found the case proved, and defendant was fined 20s. and costs.

SACRILEGE AT SWILLINGTON CHURCH.

A "DEAF" PRISONER WHO KNEW NOTHING ABOUT IT.

There was a sequel to the breaking into Swillington Church, at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, when Arthur Sheard, described as a shoemaker, was charged by the Rev. Nathaniel Bergheim, the Rector of Swillington, with sacrilege.

Supt. Symonds said that the charge was of breaking and entering the church, and afterransacking it, taking three small keys and a towel. When prisoner was arrested at Selby on July 16th, on a charge of burglary, the articles were found in his possession.

Prisoner, who denied any knowledge of the affair, stated that he was very hard of hearing, although several police officers who had had dealings with him stated that his hearing was quite good. The evidence, he said, he could not hear, and the Clerk had to let him read his notes, although on one occasion, when a certain statement was made in the court he replied quite readily.

Evidence was given by William Bell, the sexton of Swillington Church, that about 2.10 p.m.—on Monday, July 13th, he locked up the church and left by the south door. The following morning about nine o'clock he visited the church, and found that it had been entered during the night. The west window had been tampered with, and a quantity of glass taken out. Nothing was missing when he entered the church, and a cupboard had been broken open and a safe in the west porch had also been tampered with. In the vestry another safe had been interfered with. A drawer had also been broken open and the contents had been strewn about the floor. Three keys and a cloth were missing. These witness identified as belonging to the Sunday morning. Certain marks on the window might have been made with a file which was found upon the prisoner.

Prisoner said he knew nothing about it. He found the things on the roadside.

Harry Ramsay, miner, of Garforth, stated that about 11 p.m. on Monday, July 13th, he was returning home from the pit at Methley. About thirty yards before he got to the church he passed a man, and he had a good look at him. He now identified the prisoner as the man.

The gardener to the Rector of Swillington stated that about eight o'clock on Tuesday morning he was sent by the Rector to the church on business, and found that the place had been entered.

P.C. Holiday, Monk Fryston, said he arrested the prisoner at Hambleton on Thursday, July 16th, on a charge of burglary. The articles mentioned were found upon him.

Inspector Ramsey, of Garforth, said the aperture in the west window of the church was about half-a-yard square.

Prisoner was committed to take his trial at the next Assizes.

WELL-KNOWN CAWOOD MAN FINED.

EVIDENCE BY A SHERBURN WITNESS.

On Tuesday at Selby—before the Rev. H. Hemsworth, Mr T. Liversidge, and Dr Todd—four summonses were heard against Samuel Walford, of Cawood, who is well-known among Barkston Ash cricketers, for giving certificates relating to deaths, those certificates purporting to be signed by a registered medical practitioner.

Mr Harold Harker (London) prosecuted on behalf of the Director of Public Prosecutions, and Mr C. H. March, Selby, defended.

Mr Harker said that the defendant, who was unregistered, had attended a number of cases in Cawood. He was charged with forging a certificate relating to the death of a child named Annie Ibbetson, in December, 1912. The second information related to the death of a child named Hannah Denny in February of the present year. The Registrar-General supplied printed forms, but it was not a necessity that the certificate should be on a printed form. In this case they were not, and the reason the defendant had not been supplied with ordinary printed forms was because he was not on the register as a medical practitioner. Each of the certificates given by the defendant was signed, "S. Walford, pro. E. W. H. Pilcher, surgeon." The defendant had given these certificates in the name of Mr Pilcher, surgeon, without having any authority for using that name. Neither the name of Pilcher nor the defendant's name appeared in the Medical Register for 1913. The information the prosecution had was that Mr Pilcher had been dead some ten years. About thirty-five years ago Walford was assistant to a doctor resident at Cawood, but the business changed hands, and Dr. Pilcher, no doubt a registered practitioner, came on the scene. He remained at Cawood six or nine months, and left. His name did not appear in the Medical Register after 1886. From inquiries made a certain Edward Wm. Pilcher died in the Islington Infirmary in 1903, and the widow would be called as a witness.

Dr Todd, one of the Justices, pointed out that no medical practitioner could authorise anyone else to sign a certificate on his behalf.

Mrs Georgina Pilcher, of London, said she was a widow. Her husband died in 1903. She was married to him the year before. He was sixty-seven years old, and told her that he was well connected with doctors, but never said he was a doctor. He was a solicitor's clerk for twenty-two years. He was given to drink before she knew him.

Mr March, for the defence: We say this is not the man who was at Cawood.

In answer to questions by Mr March, the witness said her husband never showed any knowledge of medicine during her married life, and never talked to her of being in Cawood. She was rather surprised to find out that her late husband was a doctor.

Richard Gill, of Sherburn, said that over thirty years ago Dr Pilcher lodged with him at Sherburn. He had never seen or heard of him since. He would be a man about fifty years of age. He was a very quiet man, but had a thirst.

The Clerk: Quiet, but dry. Was he addicted to drink?

Witness: Yes, he was. The witness added that he could not say that the photograph produced was the doctor's. It might be.

Evidence was given of the granting of the certificates by the defendant, and to inquests being held because the certificates were not accepted.

Mr March submitted that no one had been deceived or defrauded by the defendant, whom everybody knew at Cawood was an unqualified man, and they went to him with their eyes open. It was for the prosecution to prove that Dr Pilcher was dead, and that the name had been forged. The defendant did not hold himself up to be a registered medical practitioner, and there was no evidence that he had ever done so.

The prosecution withdrew the forgery charge, and the Bench, after retiring, found the defendant guilty of issuing two false certificates. They fined him 10s. and costs in each case.

A WITNESSED MOTHER'S LAPSE.—On a promise of reform by the defendant, the Wakefield West Riding magistrates on Friday adjourned for a week, a summons against Mary Ellen Worth, of East Ardsley, formerly of Middleton, for neglect of her three children, Ernest (11), Ada (9), and Fanny (12 months). It was stated that the woman was left a widow four years ago, and for some time got on comfortably and respectably with the help of friends at Middleton. During the last few years, however, she had lapsed. Her moral character was not of the best, and the conditions in which the children had to live were abominable.

IMPORTANT TO BARKSTON ASH FARMERS.

INSURANCE PROBLEM—POTATO PICKERS.

At Selby Petty Sessions on Monday Mr George Edward Hides, farmer, of Drax Abbey, was charged with failing to pay, in six cases, contributions under the National Insurance Act in respect of field workers.

Mr L. G. Dawson, solicitor, London, appeared on behalf of the National Insurance Commissioners, and Mr C. H. March, solicitor, Selby, defended.

The case for the Commissioners was that the defendant employed women workers at the potato pie, hoeing, and other work in the fields, but had failed to pay contributions in respect of them. The inspector who visited the farm had done his best to induce the defendant to make the payments, but without success. At first he said the women had no cards, but when they did present them he contended that the Subsidiary Employment Order was wide enough to cover all classes of field work. It was submitted that the merits or demerits of the Act were entirely outside the scope of the proceedings.

One of the witnesses caused some amusement by stating that at first she was receiving 1s. 3d. per day, but went on strike and got 1s. 9d. per day, which was considered good pay.

Mr E. L. Grice, inspector under the Act, gave evidence that when he visited the farm he saw women hoeing. He explained to Mr Hides that he had official instructions that potato picking came under the Subsidiary Employment Order at the annual gathering of potatoes.

Mr Marsh contended that the workers were engaged in the excepted class of subsidiary employment under the head of potato pickers, and immediately before employment they were not insured persons.

Four of the six summonses taken out related to dates in July last year, and the remaining two cases had reference to dates in April this year.

One or two of the married women employed stated that they took the casual work for pocket money.

Mr Hides, who was called to give evidence for the defence, said that he farmed 360 acres in Yorkshire and 800 acres in Lincolnshire. He had 300 acres of potatoes this year. He considered that the sorting and planting of potatoes could not be made into separate employments.

After the Bench had retired for a short time to consider their decision,

The Chairman announced that they had unanimously come to the conclusion that the women employed were potato pickers, and they dismissed all the cases. They also found that the women engaged were not, prior to the dates mentioned, insured persons.

Mr Dawson asked for a case to be stated, and also asked the Bench to say whether the class of work the women were actually doing was known as potato picking.

The Chairman said the Bench could not add anything to what had been said. It was difficult to separate one employment from the other. The Bench also said the case would go before the Divisional Court.

SPORTS AT CHURCH FENTON.

THE PRIZE-WINNERS

On Saturday the athletic sports promoted by Church Fenton Brass Band took place, and aroused considerable interest. The results were:

100 Yards Flat Handicap.—Heat winners:—J. Birdsall, Tadcaster, 10 yards start; T. Hargrave, York, 10; C. Hill, Tadcaster, 9; W. Smith, York, 8.—Final—1, R. Birdsall; 2, W. Smith; 3, C. Hill.

220 Yards Flat Handicap—Heat winners—H. Mortimer, Brotherton, 30; C. Mortimer, Garforth, 65; F. Moore, Brotherton, 60; R. Goodall, Garforth, 50. Final—1, F. Moore; 2, A. Milner; 3, C. Mortimer.

220 Yards Flat Handicap—Heat winners—H. Clements, Scarthingwell, 22; J. Burton, Askern, 18; J. Cromack, Sherburn, 21; C. Eastwood, Kippax, 22. Final—1, C. Eastwood; 2, J. Burton; 3, J. Cromack.

One Mile Cycle Handicap—Heat winners—C. Goodyear, Marston, 100; J. Downes, Kippax, 140; M. Gill, Sherburn, (150); F. Moore, Brotherton, 115. Final—1, C. Goodyear; 2, J. Downes, 3, F. Moore.

120 Yards Flat Handicap—Heat winners—R. Birdsall, Tadcaster, 12; J. Burton, Askern, 11; G. Martin, Kippax, 11½; C. Eastwood, Kippax, 13. Final—1, R. Birdsall; 2, G. Martin; 3, C. Eastwood.

ROTHWELL EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

SICKNESS IN THE DISTRICT.

The monthly meeting of the Rothwell District Education Sub-Committee was held at the Carlton Lane, Council School on Friday evening, Mr J. Butterfield (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Mrs Stoner, Mr J. Hirst, Mr T. Thomas, Mr T. Ellis, Mr R. McCullough, Mr J. Walton, Mr S. R. Chadwick, with the Clerk (Mr A. Angus), and the attendance officer (Mr W. Steel).

The Clerk reported that owing to an epidemic of measles, the Carlton Lane Infants' School, Rothwell, had been closed until after the midsummer holiday. Sixty-two cases were reported within ten days.

The attendance at most of the schools was affected by sickness. The Lofthouse National infants' departments, which, had to be closed owing to whooping cough, dropped its percentage from 81.56 (for five days) in May to 43.18, and from 81.81 (children under five) to 14.28. The percentage for the whole district for the month was 88.38 as compared with 88.36 in May.

The percentage for the various schools was as follows.—Rothwell Council (mixed) 90.9; Rothwell Council (infants), over five 87.36, under five 87.03; Stourton Council (mixed) 91.83; Stourton Council (infants), over five 87.58, under five 82.5; Robin Hood Council (mixed) 94.14; Robin Hood Council (infants) over five 82.23, under five 85.33; Carlton Council (mixed) 90.4; Carlton Council (infants) over five 90, under five 68.96; Thorpe Council (mixed) 87.59; Thorpe Council (infants) over five 84.61, under five 66.66; Wood Lane Infants (Rothwell) over five 91.23, under five 86.66 Rothwell National (mixed) 88.69; Rothwell National (infants) over five 87.34; under five 75.55; Lofthouse National (mixed) 87.91; Lofthouse National (infants) over five 43.18, under five 14.28; Middleton National (mixed) 94.17; Middleton National (infants) over five 85.71, under five 66.66.

A POTATO-COOKERY HINT.

Though the superior flavour of potatoes boiled in their skins is generally acknowledged, the practice is often avoided because of the trouble of removing them when cooked. The advantage may be, however, secured without paying the price by a very simple method. For if, after washing them clean, a narrow paring is taken off entirely round the centre of each, potatoes boiled or steamed in the ordinary way are easily skinned from outside before being served.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Wheat, which is scarce, was quoted at 35s. to 36s., oats firm at 20s. to 22s.; rye 24s. to 25s. per qr. Only about an average attendance.

PROVISIONS

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 10 and 11 for 1s.; butter 1s. to 1s. 1d. per lb.; chickens 5s. to 5s. 6d. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—Plenty of new potatoes brought in, the prices being from 2s. 6d. to 3s. per hamper of four score. The prices of old potatoes still on hand were unchanged.

CATTLE

SELBY, Monday.—Messrs. Richardson and Son disposed of 78 beasts, 17 sheep, and 51 pigs. The usual attendance of buyers, but only a light show of stock. Best beef made fully 9d. per stone. Heavy cows a slow trade, plainer ones. Good demand for calving heifers of quality. Sheep unchanged. Pork pigs slightly dearer. Prices as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £23 7s. 6d., fat heifers to £21, fat cows to £19 10s., store cattle to £13, cows in calf to £18 15s., cows in milk to £16 5s., fat sheep to £12 10s 6d, pork pigs to £6, gilts in pig to £13 12s., and store pigs to £1 8s. each.

GARFORTH AUCTION MART, Monday.—Mr William Ash sold 20 prime bullocks and heifers, 85 fat sheep and lambs, 2 calves, and 5 pigs. A good number of buyers were present. Beef made fully late rates, the best quality realizing 7¾d. to 8d. per lb, and good beef and cows, 6¾d. to 7¾d. per lb. Fat cows and young lambs met a very good demand, small shearlings making 9¾d. to 10d., heavier ditto 9d., fat north ewes 7¾d. to 8d., Scotch ewes 8d., choice fat lambs 10¾d., and others sold to 10d. per lb. Mr W. Crowther had three heifers, making £17 17s. 6d. to £19 7s. 6d.; two bullocks from Mr H. Revis made £17 12s. 6d. and £20 12s. 6d.; nine choice bullocks from Mr Wm. Wilkinson realized from £17 12s. 6d. to £22; and choice heifers from Mr C. Bentley, made £18 15s. to £19 12s. 6d. Several pens of good number of buyers were present. Beef made fully late rates, the best quality realizing 7¾d. to 8d. per lb, and good beef and cows, 6¾d. to 7¾d. per lb. Fat cows and young lambs met a very good demand, small shearlings making 9¾d. to 10d., heavier ditto 9d., fat north ewes 7¾d. to 8d., Scotch ewes 8d., choice fat lambs 10¾d., and others sold to 10d. per lb. Mr W. Crowther had three heifers, making £17 17s. 6d. to £19 7s. 6d.; two bullocks from Mr H. Revis made £17 12s. 6d. and £20 12s. 6d.; nine choice bullocks from Mr Wm. Wilkinson realized from £17 12s. 6d. to £22; and choice heifers from Mr C. Bentley, made £18 15s. to £19 12s. 6d. Several pens of shearlings from Mr T. L. Lake made 50s. 6d. to 58s. 6d. each; Messrs Winter and Sons' shearlings 53s. 6d. to 58s. 6d.; useful shearlings from Mr Kenneth Wilson realized from 52s. 6d. to 60s. 6d. each; Mr W. P. Nicholson's north ewes made 47s. and 49s., and his lambs to 36s.; Scotch ewes from Mr R. H. Scott reached 38s. Fat lambs from Mr F. Sperling made up to 43s. each. Mr S. Lumb had some good lambs, making up to 44s 6d. each other lambs made 27s to 32s. Breeding calves realized to 33s. each, and small store pigs to 18s. each.

TADCASTER, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a good show of prime fat stock. The trade for best beef was in advance of a week ago, the best quality bullocks making 8s 6d to 9s per stone; cows, etc., from 8s. to 8s 6d. per stone. Sheep met a very dear trade, making from 8½d. to 9d. per lb.; lambs from 9d. to 10d. per lb. Pork pigs made from 6s. 6d. per stone; store pigs less money. Cows in calf in good demand, making to £25 5s. each; fat bullocks to £27 10s. Numbers sold—48 beasts, 161 sheep and lambs, and 70 pigs. Two bullocks from Mr J. Highall, Wighill, made £23 12s. 6d. and £21 15s.; two grand bullocks from Messrs T. Richardson and Son, Healaugh, made £24 7s. 6d. and £23 5s.; two from Mr J. Birdsall, Tadcaster, to £22 17s. 6d.; from Mr G Wintor, Pallathorpe, made £24 10s. and £20 5s.; from Mr J. W. Watson, Wighill Manor, two good bullocks, £23 5s. and £22; from Mr J. Highall, Healaugh, made £20 17s. 6d. and £19 17s. 6d.; from Mr C. Gypson, Grimston Grange, £23 7s. 6d., £20 17s. 6d., and £20 17s.; from Mr Jackson, Catterton, £22 10s.; from Mr W. Thomlinson's executors, Sandwith Lodge, £21 15s.; from Mr J. Bullocks fed by the auctioneers made £27 10s., £27 2s. 6d., £27, £25 15s., £25 15s., and £24 12s. 6d.; from Mr G. Barnett, to £25 6d.; from Mr E. Horner, Colton, to £25. Prime fat lambs from Mr B. Blacker, made to 46s. 6d.; from Mr J. Swailes, to 45s.; Mr J. W. Watson, to 44s. 6d.; Mr E. Jackson, to 40s. 6d.; Mr Dalby, to 46s.; Mr W. Robinson, to 41s.; Mr E. Parker, to 36s. 6d.; Mr T. B. Watson, to 38s. 6d.; Mr S. Elridge, to 38s.; Mr E. Fawcett, to 37s. 6d. Prime fat ewes from Tadcaster Union made to 35s. each, etc.

ANOTHER REMARKABLE CURE.

672, North Hall Street,
Kirkstall Road, Leeds,
(Copy).

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in adding my testimonial to the many already in your possession as to your valuable treatment of my case. When I came to you some weeks ago, I had undergone an operation at the Infirmary for a fistula, situated at the back of my neck, having been in there three weeks.

Since I commenced to use your Herbal Ointment I have gradually improved, and I have no hesitation in saying it is entirely that, and the Medicine you gave me that has enabled me to return to my work.

I am very grateful for the kind attention you showed to me, and moderate charges, and shall be pleased to recommend my friends to come to you for advice.—I remain, yours truly,

JOHN GILFOYLE.

SKIN SPECIALIST
HERBAL HERBALIST
PROF. CROSSWAITE
84, KIRKSTALL ROAD
Moderate Charges
HOURS OF ATTENDANCE:
Morning: 10 to 12. Afternoon: 4 to 4. Evening: 5 to 8.
WEDNESDAY (Evenings only) 6.30 to 8.
No Attendance on Sundays.
COMFORTABLE WAITING ROOM.
PRIVATE CONSULTING ROOM.

LOOK HERE!
We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.
Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.
Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,
T. B. SMITH & SON,
SUPPLY STORES,
GARFORTH.
Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks	6 weeks.	13 weeks
1 to 20	0 6	1 0	1 6	3
30	0 9	1 6	2 0	5 0
40	1 0	2 0	3 0	5 6
50	1 3	2 6	3 8	6 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s per inch	per insertion.
26 do.	2nd. do.	do.
52 do.	3d. do.	do.

TO LET.

TO Let in the Halton Allotments, PLOT OF GROUND, about 3 roods, well stocked with herbaceous plants, vegetable crops, etc. Small glass structure, piggeries, etc. Could also let a house.—For valuation and other particulars apply Hy. Gells, Garforth Nurseries, Leeds.

WANTED

WANTED Well-educated Youth as APPRENTICE.—Purdy, Chemist, Crossgates. 3

GOOD DAY GIRL wanted Small family.—Mrs Holliday, The Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 1 2045

WANTED for country near Ilkley, GENERAL SERVANT. References required.—Apply, King, Wharfedale Grange, Ben Rhydding. 2

WANTED Strong, Smart BOY, about 14 years.—Apply, after 6 p.m., John Peacock, Plumber, Station Road, Crossgates.

WANTED, near Ledsham, on South Milford side, ROOMS for 2 Ladies for August. Farmhouse preferred.—Byron, Ledsham, South Milford. 2038

WANTED GENERAL, over 30, trustworthy, competent. Three in family. No children. Good home.—15, Ernest Terrace, Crossgates. 3 2753

WANTED at once Respectable YOUNG GIRL. Good home. Good wages to a suitable girl. No family.—Write Mrs Derrick, Lilycroft Hotel, Manningham, Bradford. 3 2004

LAMPLIGHTERS wanted for Nos. 2 and 3 Districts, OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD. Average time No. 2 district, 21 hours per week. No. 3 district, 14 hours per week.—Apply to W. B. Pindar, Council Offices, Hunslet, Leeds.

FEVER HOSPITAL, GARFORTH.

WANTED Good GENERAL. Another kept. Wages £18 with uniform.—Apply, Miss Scaife, Matron.

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale 100 Strong GOSLINGS, various ages. Prices from 3/6 to 5/- each.—Andy, Poultry Breeder, Aberford. 1 1487

FOR Sale Pure-Bred WHITE WYANDOTTE HEN and 12 CHICKENS, hatched 21st. Price 7s.—R. Booth, Aberford. 1 1529

FOR Sale 3½ h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR-CYCLE and SIDECAR, in good condition. Cheap.—Dockray, Hazelroyde, Green Lane, Whitkirk.

FOR Sale large, well-made FIREGUARD, also HANDSOME BRASS CURB AND BRASSES.—Apply, Mrs Woon, 28, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also first-class YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandon Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

FOR Sale perfectly new Jones' HAND SEWING MACHINE, £2 12s., worth double; also SILVER PLATED AFTERNOON TEA SET, very pretty and perfectly new, value 30s. Will accept £2s, or nearest offer for either. 30s.—Apply, 22, Westfield Crescent, Leeds. 3 2065

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free 2 Stamps.—(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £5 00 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road. Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist. 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 of
LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc. kept in Stock

DENTISTRY.

W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 36a, Boar Lane (over Messrs Newby's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s., each. Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 1s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3617.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing,

Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

Established 37 years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
18, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
ESTATE AGENTS & RENT COLLECTORS
valuers Industry Managers. Terms on application
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc., Insurance Brokers.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

BY Permission of the Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., Lessee of the PARK and PLEASURE GROUNDS at TEMPLENEWSAM will be THROWN OPEN to the PUBLIC on SUNDAY AFTERNOON, JULY 26th, from 2 to 6 p.m. Entrance by Whitkirk and Halton Moor Roads only.
The Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., relies upon the visitors to observe the printed notices and to see that no damage is done to the trees or shrubs. No bicycles, motor-cycles, conveyances, or dogs will be allowed in the Park.

BRAMHAM PARK AND GARDENS will be OPEN to the PUBLIC on WEDNESDAY, the 5th AUGUST, and WEDNESDAY, the 12th AUGUST, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., for the benefit of the Local Charities.
Admission: One Shilling.

CROSSGATES & DISTRICT SWEET PEA SOCIETY.
A GRAND EXHIBITION OF SWEET PEAS and ROSES
will be held in the
CROSSGATES WESLEYAN SCHOOLROOM, SATURDAY, JULY 25th, 1914.
To be opened at 3 p.m., and closed at 7.45.
Open Classes provided.
GEORGE TUCKER, Hon. Sec.
Roseville Terrace,
Crossgates, Leeds.

PATRONAL FESTIVAL OF MANSTON PARISH CHURCH,
SATURDAY, JULY 25th (St. JAMES' DAY).
In connection with the Celebration of the Festival members of the St. James' Guild will give two performances of "A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM,"
at 3 p.m. and at 7 p.m., in the VICARAGE GARDEN.
Admission to the Garden, 6d. Tea at 5 p.m., 6d. Children Half-price at the Afternoon Performance.

SEACROFT.
SALE OF WORK
and
GARDEN FETE
ON WEDNESDAY, JULY 29th, 1914.
IN THE VICARAGE GARDEN.
To be Opened at 3 p.m.
In aid of Fund for Cleaning and Decorating the Church.
Admission 4d. Teas 6d. and 9d.

Under the Patronage of the Right Rev. The Bishop of Knaresborough.
A GARDEN FETE AND SALE OF WORK will be held at
BROOKFIELD, GARFORTH BRIDGE,
on SATURDAY, AUGUST 1st, 1914
Commencing at 3 o'clock.
in aid of the Swillington Church Expenses.
Plain and Fancy Work Stall, Flower Stall, Sweet and Sample Stall, Ice Creams, Games, Competitions, Cocoanut Shies, Slow Bicycle Race, Sack Race, Donkey Rides, Brown and Polson's Cake Making Competition. Dramatic Entertainment.
Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance.
Dancing on the Lawn commencing at 6.30.
Admission 6d.; After 6 p.m., 3d.
Meat Tea in the Garden, 9d.; Tea in the House, 1s.

CLIFFORD VILLAGE SPORTS.
MONDAY (Bank Holiday), AUG. 3rd, 1914
Commence 1 p.m. Admission 6d.
Open Events:—440 Yds. Hurdle Race (Handicap), Prizes—20s., 10s., 5s. 100 Yards Handicap, Prizes—50s., 20s., 10s. One Mile Bicycle Race (Handicap), Prizes—30s., 15s., 7s. 6d. Obstacle Race, Prizes—20s., 10s., 5s.
Entry Fee 1s. each event; close July 28th. There will also be events for Residents in the Village.
Prizes for Open Events will be given in Cash.
For Entry Forms apply to THOS. SMITH, Hon. Sec., 11, St. Edward's Terrace, Clifford, Boston Spa.

FOX'S CYCLE STORES,

BRIGGATE, GARFORTH, Near LEEDS.
Agent for
RENOWNED CENTAUR CYCLES
at Popular Prices, from £5 5s. 0d.
See Special Value Guaranteed Cycle, Free Wheel, 2 Rim Brakes, 13 months' Guaranteed Tyres at £3 17s. 6d. cash.
EXPERT ON ALL REPAIRS.
J.E.S. I h.p. Auxiliary Stocked (also Petrol).

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE, (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0 10 0	for	2½d.	per month.
£1 0 0	"	5d.	"
£2 0 0	"	10d.	"
£5 0 0	"	1s. 0d.	"
£3 0 0	"	1s. 6d.	"
£5 0 0	"	2s. 6d.	"
£8 0 0	"	3s. 6d.	"
£10 0 0	"	3s. 4d.	"

Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT FRIENDLY SOCIETIES' & TRADES' UNION COUNCIL.
A DEMONSTRATION.
will be held on
SUNDAY, JULY 26th, 1914.
when the
Affiliated Societies and Branches will join in Procession; consisting of Adult Male and Female and Juvenile Members of the following:—Independent Order of Rechabites, Ancient Order of Romans, Equalised Order of Druids, Grand United Order of Oddfellows, White Rose Friendly Society, and Loyal Duke of Lancaster Lodge, headed by
ROTHWELL TEMPERANCE BAND
The beautiful banners of the various Societies will be displayed. The Societies and Branches will assemble at the COUNCIL OFFICES at 1.30 p.m.
PROCESSION WILL START at 2 p.m.
A PUBLIC MEETING will be held in the COUNCIL'S RECREATION GROUND, CARLTON LANE, to be Addressed by the following:—Bro. Ismay Robinson, P.D.C.R., I.O.R., Leeds District; Bro. G. E. Lamott, P.M.E.C., A.O.R., Leeds District; Bro. J. Drabble, P.D.C.R., I.O.R., Sheffield District; and others. Chair to be taken by Councillor J. Hirst, J.P., Chairman of the Rothwell Urban District Council.
Collection will be taken on route and at Entrance to Ground in Aid of Charities.
A. Blackburn, President. J. Wade, Secretary.

GARFORTH MEDICAL CHARITIES.
CARNIVAL, SPORTS & GALA,
SATURDAY NEXT, JULY 25th.
GRAND SACRED CONCERT
SUNDAY AFTERNOON AT 3 P.M.
ADDRESSES by the
Rev. T. E. R. Welford, M.A.
E. H. Foster, Esq., J.P., C.C., and
A. T. Aubrey, Esq.
GARFORTH ST. MARY'S CHOIR WILL RENDER SELECTIONS OF SACRED MUSIC.—Conductor: Mr Walter Burnley; Accompanist: Mr A. Browning, A.L.C.M.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.
WEEK COMMENCING JULY 27th, 1914.
STAR PROGRAMMES.
ALL THE LATEST AND BEST OF THE CINEMA ART.
DRAMA, HUMOUR, INSTRUCTION.
Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., and Friday at 7. Saturday 5, 6.30, and 8.30.
Admission: 2d., 4d., 6d. Seats may be booked
Children half-price Saturday afternoon.

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners,
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists.
Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
PROPRIETOR: H. BEEFORTH.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DIXWORTH'S
Dental Rooms,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TER RACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, (CHARTERED PATENT AGENT.)
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
he Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free. or British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 35Y.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR, GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

TENDERS

TADCASTER RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL.
SEWER EXTENSION AT ABERFORD.
THE Council invite TENDERS for the CONSTRUCTION of about 160 YARDS of 6 INCH SEWER, with MANHOLES, etc., at Aberford. Plans may be seen and specifications and any information obtained from Mr H. M. Driver, Surveyor, Garforth, near Leeds. Sealed tenders endorsed "Sewer Extension, Aberford," to be sent to me not later than Friday, 14th August, 1914.
GEO A. BROMET,
Clerk to the Council.
Tadcaster, 20th July, 1914.

PUBLIC NOTICES

LEEDS HOSPITAL GALA AND SPORTS, ROUNDHAY PARK.
MONDAY and TUESDAY, AUGUST 3rd and 4th, 1914.
ATHLETIC SPORTS. (Under A.A.A. Laws and N.C.U. Rules).
OVER £100 IN PRIZES.

	MONDAY.						Entry Fees
	1st.		2nd.		3rd.
1. 100 Yds. Flat Handicap	£ 5	s. d. 5 0	£ 2	s. d. 2 0	£ 1	s. d. 1 0	1 6
2. 220 Yds. Flat Handicap	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
3. ½-Mile Cycle Handicap	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
4. Mile Cycle Handicap	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
5. 100 Yards Novice Flat Handicap (for boys under 16 years of age ...	2	2 0	1	1 0	0	10 6	0 6
6. 100 Yards Sack Race Handicap (over hurdles 15 in. high) ...	3	3 0	1	1 0	0	10 6	1 0
	TUESDAY.
7. ½-Mile Cycle Handicap	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
8. Mile Cycle Handicap	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
9. 100 Yds. Leeds Schoolboys' Flat...	2	2 0	1	1 0	0	10 6	0 6
10. Mile Flat Handicap	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
11. 120 Yds. Local Flat Handicap (6 miles radius)	Challenge Cup and
	5	5 0	2	2 0	1	1 0	1 6
12. 100 Yards Sack Race Handicap (over hurdles 15 in. high)	3	3 0	1	1 0	0	10 6	1 0

GREAT FLYING DISPLAY, Etc.
ENTRIES CLOSE SATURDAY, JULY 25th.
Entry Forms and all particulars from WALTER WORMALD, Secretary,
3, PARK SQUARE, LEEDS.

SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART
ON MONDAY NEXT.
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 12 O'CLOCK.
WHITKIRK LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART (Near to Crossgates Station and within four miles of Leeds).
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will sell by Auction, in strict accordance with the conditions posted at the Mart—
430 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.:—
75 NEWLY CALVEN and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE BEASTS.
60 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and COWS.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
125 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
150 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
Auctioneers' Offices: Garforth, near Leeds. (Tel. No. 26).

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 11.30 O'CLOCK.
6, SALISBURY TERRACE, GARFORTH (Two minutes' walk from the Railway Station).
Mr WILLIAM ASH.
Will Sell by Auction the whole of
THE WELL-MADE CABINET FURNITURE, and Effects, including, briefly:—
A 3-ft. WALNUT HALL STAND with mirror, two Hall Chairs, Linoleum in entrance, Brussels Stairs Carpets, Brass Stair Rods, Brass and Metal Kerb Fenders, Brass Fire-irons, Light Oak Coal Cabinet.
AN EXPENSIVE GILDED OVERMANTEL, Four-tier Walnut Canterbury, Music Stool, Walnut Dining Room Suite of 9 pieces in figured Grecian cloth, Wicker Easy Chair, Mahogany Knee-hole WRITING TABLE.
A SPLENDID 5-ft. 6-in. SOLID MAHOGANY ENCLOSED SIDEBOARD, with silvered glass backs, Walnut Overmantel.
SCREW-FRAME MAHOGANY DINING TABLE, extending to 15-ft. by 4-ft., Writing Table, a 4-ft. 2-in. Mahogany Enclosed BOOKCASE, an Excellent AXMINSTER CARPET, 12-ft. by 10-ft. 6-in., Brussels and other Carpets, Skin, Wool, and Tapestry Hearthrugs; Table Covers, Feather Cushions, two Four-fold Screens, Singer's Hand SEWING MACHINE, Marble Timepiece.
SEVERAL WATER-COLOURS, engravings, Drawings, and other Pictures; numerous items of Silver-plate, Doulton China, Cut Glass Vases, Flower Stands, and a large assortment of Ornaments, Carvers and Fish Servers in cases.
A 6-ft. SPANISH MAHOGANY WARDROBE, having mirror in centre, hanging closet, trays, and drawers; A 4-ft. 6-in. all Brass French Bedstead, pair of Mahogany Toilet Tables, Antique Mahogany 2/8 Chest of Drawers, six 3-ft. 3-in. 6-in., and 4-ft. 6-in. French Bedsteads, Wire Spring Mattresses, Hair Mattresses, Feather Bolsters and Pillows, Blankets, Eiderdown, and other Bedroom Furnishings.
THE FITTINGS OF THE KITCHEN, and a large assortment of Culinary Utensils. "THE GEM" PATENT WASHER, and other Washing-Tub Effects, Bastow's Water Filter, Meat Safe, The Whole of the Gas Fittings and Blinds through the House.
ON VIEW MORNING OF SALE.
Auctioneer's Office, Garforth, (Tel. 15), near Leeds.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time.
Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited

Messrs. J. CUNDALL & SON
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R. YORK, and
WHARFEDALE AUCTION MART, TADCASTER

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.
EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.
Monday, 27th July, 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. Tuesday, 28th July, 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. Wednesday, 29th July, 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Grosmont for ½ day, and Whitby for ½ to 4 days. 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. 12.57 p.m. (calling at Crossgates only) to Wetherby, Thorparch, and Tadcaster (Show). 1.32 p.m. to Goole and Hull. Thursday, 30th July, 12.3 p.m. to Pocklington, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day, and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. For further particulars see bills.

Fine Low Shoes
For SUMMER and the HOLIDAYS
We specialise on low shoes. We offer you shoes at that in style, fit and comfort cannot be equalled at anything like the price. 10/6
The New Summer Models of
THOR SHOES for MEN
GATORA SHOES for LADIES
are a long way ahead of any other brands, even at shillings more per pair. Don't just accept this statement. Call and see the shoes in our windows—then into the store and ask to examine any that interest you—don't purchase unless you are absolutely satisfied that the shoes are what we represent them to be. In ladies' shoes we have splendid lines at 7/11 which compare favourably with shoes sold at 10/6. The name Southall stands for quality and dependability—you buy with confidence at Southall.—Note our address, and call the first time in the City.
SOUTHALL & Co.
8, New Station Street
(Opposite Albion Street),
LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this:—

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.
There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.
Recommended by the Medical Faculty.
A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.
CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.
HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists, and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET, LEEDS.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALF LANE, LEEDS
See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge,
Easy Terms £2 2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-
OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

THOS. COOK & SON,

CALL and see us or us IF YOU WISH FOR ADVICE NO CHARGE	BOOK PASSAGES or give any information about EMIGRATING to CANADA, AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, AFRICA, AMERICA, &c., &c. We have our own Offices and Staff in each of these Countries.	ESTAB. SINCE 1841. 140 OFFICES In ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

55, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

— TRY —
SANGFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt,
and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANGFORD & Co., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

TELEPHONE 1877 CENTRAL.
BUCKTON'S CABS OR TAXIS
"We Never Sleep"
KEEP OF CLAPHAM LANE LEEDS TOP OF COOKRIDGE ST
J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

ESTABLISHED 1871.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.
THIS INSTITUTION was ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they can, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in charitable institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character, without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Cornets or other mechanical or painful appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances, and in isolated positions can have the advantage of Mr. ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure, or benefit to the patient.
Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7
On Alternate Saturdays, July 25 and August 8.
Hours 10 to 2; other days by appointment.
TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION, ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s. SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.
Special Notice.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, JULY 25th, 1914.

A great many people would be pleased were the tied-house system swept away, and had the decision of the Liverpool Stipendiary Magistrate, given several months ago, been allowed to stand, it would have effected a revolution in the licensing system. Messrs James Mellor, the well-known Liverpool brewers, were summoned for selling liquor without a licence, and it was argued that the licence for the public-house in question was in the name of a manager, who was merely a dummy, inasmuch as he was neither the owner nor the tenant of the premises, but merely the servant of a company, who themselves did not hold a magistrates' licence, though they were the actual sellers of the liquor. The magistrate decided to convict, his decision amounting to a declaration that the whole system of public-house managership was illegal, and that the person holding the licence must be either the owner or the actual tenant of the premises. In appealing against this decision, the contentions were urged that the whole situation was well known to the Licensing Magistrates, that the practice had been recognised for something like thirty years, and that the brewery company were sufficiently protected by the fact that the liquor was sold by a manager who had been judged by the Justices to be a fit and proper person. In the end this view has been up held by the Divisional Court. Had the appeal been dismissed it would have compelled the great brewery companies to have changed their policy, but it would not have ended the tied-house system, although it might have brought some modification. So far as the public are concerned, the decision is not perhaps of much importance, because it does not affect the supply of liquor, but it shows the position in which the licensing system is now placed. Instead of the monopoly being in many hands it is gradually going into fewer—the great brewing companies, whose chief concern is not the supplying of refreshment to the public, but the earning of dividends. Whether the manager-publican system is worse than the old system is open to argument; it may or may not result in better conducted houses, but it is obvious that if a man knows his living depends on his ability to conduct a business on proper lines he will be careful. Had the appeal not been sustained brewery companies would have been compelled to get tenants for their houses, which would still have been tied, and there is no doubt that the temptation of the tied-house tenant "to push business," for the sake of his own pocket, is great.

Mr H. Kirby, of Haddlesey Lodge, holds the record this year in the Selby district as the first to commence harvesting operations which were begun on Wednesday afternoon in a field of winter oats off the Selby and Doncaster road.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be inscribed by the clergyman and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each
In Memoriam Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines

MARRIAGE.

Webb—McCormack.—On 6th July, 1914, at Christ Church, Vancouver, B.C., by the Rev. R. B. Day, Rector, Vincent Dean, second son of Mr and Mrs L. Webb, of New Marston, Crossgates, to Mabel, only daughter of Mr Fred and the late Mrs Susan McCormack, of Crossgates, Leeds.

DEATHS.

Briers.—July 17th, at Carr Field House, Barwick-in-Elmet, aged 70 years, Charles Briers.
Sparling.—July 15th, at Shadwell, John Sparling, in his 90th year.
Sharpes.—July 22nd, at Mount Pleasant, Kippax, after illness borne with patience, Hannah, beloved wife of Samuel Sharpes, formerly of Ferrensby Lodge, near Knaresborough.

IN MEMORIAM.

Pratt.—In ever loving memory of a dear husband and father, Allan Pratt, of Garforth, who died July 23rd, 1912.
"God will bind the broken chain Closer when we most again."
"Earthly loss, eternal gain."
—From wife and daughter.

Pratt.—In ever loving memory of our dear son, Allan Pratt, of Garforth, who died July 23rd, 1912.
"Dear is the spot where our loved one is laid,
Dear is the memory that never shall fade;
Sweet is the hope that again we shall meet,
Kneeling together at Jesus's feet."
—From father, mother, and brothers.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS

ROTHWELL

Miss E. A. Morton, of Rothwell, has passed the examination of Associate of the London College of Music for pianoforte playing and theory.

Two excellent sermons were preached at the Wesleyan Church on Sunday by the Rev. T. A. Turney, of the Liverpool Mission, one of the Conference ministers.

At the London College of Music examination held in Leeds on the 15th inst., Frank Hartley, of Lofthouse, who is under the tuition of Mr T. A. Idle, L.L.C.M., Rothwell, was successful in passing in the advanced intermediate section.—Advt.

Homing.—On Saturday seventeen members of Rothwell Homing Society sent 220 birds to compete in the race from Ambergate (47 miles). Results:—G. Brown 1,401 yds, W. Dobson 1,396, J. Crossley 1,389 A. Hodgkinson 1,381, G. Ward 1,279, J Armitage 1,267, E H Parker 1,233, G 1,360, Keitel 1,354, J. Crossley 1,348, Keitel 1,332, G. Brown 1,330, James Armitage 1,328. Mr Keitel wins old bird average cup, Ambergate to Rennes, 1,003.

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax. Applications completed—J M Cobb, East Ardsley, improvements in cove pedestals; Bromet, Thorman and Wood, Tadcaster, improvements in centrifugal separators; and Edward Court, Wakefield, improvements in or relating to the propulsion of ships. Patents renewed—William Pattle, York, improvements in tents; and H. J. Haddan and A. E. Miller, Leeds, improvements in casting reels.

Fete.—The annual church fete was held in the Vicarage grounds on Saturday afternoon. The proceedings commenced with a cycle gymkhana in which prizes were given for the best decorated bicycles. Headed by the Rothwell Old Band, the competitors made a circuit of the town, and thence to the Vicarage. In addition to the above there were various entertainments provided, and a cricket match between the ladies and the gentlemen. In the evening a display of ambulance work was given by the members of the Rothwell Detachment of the Aberfordia Division of the St. John Association. The proceeds were in aid of the Church funds.

Salvation Army.—Saturday and Sunday were two great days for the local corps of the Salvation Army, a visit being paid by the bandsmen of the Doncaster corps. The band, which number thirty, are well trained musicians, and rendered delightful programmes of music. On Saturday evening a special concert was given at the Salvation Army Hall—Councillor F. H. McCullough and W. Robinson presiding. On Sunday the band conducted an open air service at Woodlesford, and in the afternoon the Mechanics' Hall, which had been engaged for the occasion, was well filled. The Rev. N. W. Thomlinson (the Wesleyan minister) presided. In the evening the usual service was held, and it was conducted by the band.

Friendly Societies' Council.—A meeting of the Rothwell and District Friendly Societies' Council was held at Rothwell on Saturday, Mr A. Blackburn presiding. Others present were Mr. Wright (vice-president), Messrs Smith, Wade, Watson, and Knight (committee), and delegates Bro. F. Johnson (Rechabites) Bros. J. Brook and J. Trueman (Romans), and Bros. H. Lunn and W. Hardey (Oddfellows). A draw was made for the order of procession in the demonstration on Sunday, and resulted as follows:—1, Romans; 2, Druids; 3, Rechabites; 4, Oddfellows; 5, White Rose Lodge (Oulton); 6, The Royal Duke of Lancaster (Woodlesford). It was agreed to hold the annual meeting of the Council on September 10th. A long discussion arose over the medical benefits for the Sunday School being carried in the procession. A service was held in the church, and tea was afterwards provided at the school. Tea over, the vicarage grounds were visited, and games and sports were indulged in. It is estimated that about seven hundred children took part in the treat, while later in the evening over a thousand people adjourned to the field. The results of the races for boys were as follows:—Flat Race (Juniors)—1, J. Wilkshire; 2, W. Rollinson. Dress Race—R. Brown; 2, J. Wilkshire. 100 Yards Flat Race—H. Ely; 2, A. Bulmer. 80 Yards Race—E. Ward; 2, J. Cripps. Quarter-mile Race—F. Bridges; 2 (dead heat), H. Arrowsmith and H. Barton. Games were also arranged for the girls. Mr A. Denton acted as handicapper, and the officials included Messrs J. H. Rawlings, J. Harrison, H. Dacre, W. Elliott, F. Field, and W. Rodley.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Skyrack Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr J. W. Morkill (Chairman), Col. A. M. Sagar Musgrave, Ald. W. Braithwaite, Mr J. Hirst, Mr J. R. Cross, Hon. R. D. Kitson, and Ald. F. M. Lupton.

CRICKET.—The Rothwell W.M. Cricket Club got a severe drubbing at the hands of the Beeston W.M. C.C. on Saturday. The match took place at Rothwell, the homesters were dismissed for a total of sixteen. Scores:—Rothwell W.M.—J. Parker 2, S. Pritchard 6, H. Brown 0, J. Atack 0, J. H. Fox 0, J. Thurwell 0, L. Simpson 1, J. Balmer 2, A. Thurwell (not out) 0, R. Dawson 0, J. Seanor 1, extras, 5; total, 16. Beeston W.M.—Leonard (not out) 8, Setter (not out) 8, extra, 1; total, 17.

ALLERTON BYWATER

VICAR'S MARRIAGE.—The marriage took place at Hale, Cheshire, of the Rev. Arthur Llewellyn Cerry, vicar of Allerton Bywater, fourth son of the late Mr George Curry, of Tynemouth, to Miss Jane Lilian Everett, only child of the late Mr Edmund T. Everett, of Poynton, and Mrs Everett, of Richmond House, Hale. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin charmeuse, with full Court train. The bridesmaids were the Misses Gertrude Platt, Dora White, Josephine Bright, and Eveline Bright. The Rev. T. E. R. Wilford, rector of Garforth, was the best man. The honeymoon is being spent in Germany.

CROSSGATES

PATRONAL FESTIVAL.—The patronal festival of Manston Church will be celebrated on Saturday, and the members of St. James' Guild will give performances afternoon and evening of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in the Vicarage Garden. For particulars see advert.

SHOW.—On Saturday the show of sweet peas and roses promoted by the Crossgates and District Sweet Pea Society, will be held in the Wesleyan Schoolroom. Splendid entries have been received, and there is every indication that the exhibition will be a great success. See advert.

HORSE.—In the Leeds Federation race from Ambergate on Saturday, Mr J. Middleton, of Crossgates,' owns a bird, which covered the 51 miles at a speed of 1,415 yards, per minute. Mr Hornby was second with 1,370, and Mr E. Linley (both Crossgates) was third with 1,350.—Eleven members of Crossgates Club sent 128 birds. J. Middleton 1,415 (wins special and first pool), Hornby 2, E. Linley 1,350 (wins second pool), Fox Lee and Ingle 1,326, Middleton 1,322, 1,293, Fox 1,267, Barber and Limbert 1,263, Birch 1,259.

GOLF COMPETITIONS.—On Saturday at Crossgates links the following competitions were decided:—Mixed Foursomes—Mrs J. Simpson and J. A. Townsend, 81 net. Ladies' Approaching and Putting—Mrs J. M. Wade. Ladies' Driving—Mrs Gray. Gentlemen's Approaching and Putting—Mr Spedding. Gentlemen's Driving—G. P. Poyser. The prizes were given by Messrs Harry Rhodes and J. H. Thomas, and presented by the President (Mr Hedley Hurst). In the return match between Crossgates Ladies and South Leeds Ladies on Thursday at Crossgates, the former won by six to two. Details (Crossgates names first):—Miss E. Dawson 1 v. Mrs Drake 0, Miss A. Rhodes ½ v. Mrs Green ½, Mrs H. Rhodes 0 v. Miss Spencer 1, Mrs Thewlis ½ v. Mrs Pratt ½, Mrs Wade 1 v. Miss Calder 0, Mrs Simpson 1 v. Miss Bolton 0, Mrs McCallum 1 v. Miss Stuart 0, Mrs Poyser 1 v. Miss Wheelhouse 0.

BOWLING.—On Saturday a League match was played between Crossgates and Leeds at the green of the former, and Crossgates won by 165 to 159. Details (Crossgates names first):—F. Hardcastle 16 v. H. Thomas 21, H. Whitfield 15 v. T. Harrison 21, H. Bamforth 21 v. A. Caine 21, F. W. Jubb 21 v. R. Pinder 18, J. Connor 12 v. F. Vince 21, G. Danby 9 v. W. Green 21, L. Semper 21 v. H. Lamb 8, C. E. Spendley 12 v. Dr. Holiday 21, T. Holiday 21 v. T. Bedford 5, and A. Hughes 21 v. W. Scott 4. On Monday Crossgates played Halton Travellers at Halton, and Crossgates won by 178 to 151. Details (Crossgates names first):—E. Spendley 21 v. A. Calvert 15, J. Crossley 11 v. Chapman 21, H. Whitfield 21 v. W. Calverley 13, G. Danby 21 v. B. Smith 6, J. Mac-Leod 9 v. J. Hebden 21, Dr. Holiday 21 v. H. Barnett 21 v. Archdale 10, J. A. Rymer 21 v. J. Haigh 13, L. Semper 21 v. B. Dickenson 19, and A. Hughes 13 v. W. Adams 21.

MARRIAGE.—On July 9th the marriage was solemnised at Christ Church, Vancouver, B.C., of Mr Vincent D. Webb, second son of Mr and Mrs I. Webb, of New Manston, Crossgates, and Miss Mabel McCormack, only daughter of Mr Fred and the late Mrs Susan McCormack, of Crossgates. The Rev. R. B. Day, the rector, was the officiating clergyman. Both bride and bridegroom are members of well-known Crossgates families, who have been prominently identified with the district for a good many years. Mr Webb, who has been absent for a number of years, returned on a visit about eighteen months ago, and he has now made his home in Vancouver, where he is going in for fruit farming. Few persons are better known in Crossgates than Mrs Webb. She was a considerable time she was a greatly appreciated teacher in the infants' department of Manston School, and afterwards she successfully carried on a private school in Crossgates. She was an enthusiastic church-worker, she was for a number of years a teacher in Manston Church Sunday School, and being an accomplished musician, she acted as deputy organist at the parish. Before leaving for her new home the children attending her school presented her with a beautiful fruit dish, the Sunday school teachers at Manston gave her a Bible, and the members of Seacroft ambulance class presented her with a pair of silver sugar tongs. She received a large number of presents from friends.

GARFORTH

A MENDICANT.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday William Sees, a moulder, of no fixed abode, was sent to prison for one month on a charge of begging at Garforth on Sunday.

CARNIVAL.—On Saturday the annual carnival for the medical charities will take place at Garforth, and numerous attractions will be provided. A good entry has been obtained for the ambulance competition and the firemen's competition, and a scouts' display will be an interesting feature of the proceedings. The Rigsaw fire engine, about which much has been said, will figure in the procession. On Sunday the usual festival will be held, and particulars are given in our advert columns.

CRICKET.—The annual match between Garforth Co-operative Stores and Stanton was played at Saxton on Monday. Scores:—Garforth Co-op.—R. Goodall, c Johnson, b Lawn, 26; A. Pickersgill, b b Parker, 6; J. Wade, b A E Parker, 5; H. Hudson, b A E Parker, 5; H. Preston, b H Parker, 1; H. Young, c and b A Parker, 0; C. Preston, b A E Parker, 0; P. Scott, b A E Parker, 4; J. Shipton, b Lawn, 0; C. Kirk run out, 3; A. Dickinson, not out, 1; extras, 9; total, 56. Saxton—A. Parker, c C Preston, b Goodall, 8; J. Shipton, c C Preston, b Hudson, 0; H. Parker, b Waite, 5; C. Lawn, b Waite, 0; A. E. Parker, b Young, 29; W. Lawn, b Young, 4; A. Johnson, b Pickersgill, 0; A. Firn, b Pickersgill, 1; N. Strangeway, c Goodall, b Pickersgill, 0; R. Simpson, not out, 1; L. Parker, b Young, 0; extras, 3; total, 51.

ALLOWED TO GO.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Francis Riley, a fireman, and Harry Huggins, a driller, both of no fixed abode, were charged with sleeping out at Garforth on Monday. P.C. Davies said that while examining farm property on the Leeds and Selby Road he found the two prisoners lying in a hayshock. Riley said he was on his way to Hull to join a ship, but having no money, he was compelled to walk. He had turned into the field for a rest. Huggins said he was in search of work. Both men were allowed to go.

BOWLING.—Garforth W.M. had their return League match with Todcaster on Saturday, and won by 207 to 127. Details (Garforth names first):—J. Whitley 20 v. A. W. Westerman 23, T. Whitley 21 v. J. H. Schofield 4, G. Hill 21 v. G. Berwick 2, T. Cockerham 19 v. C. Mowerson 16, M. Morritt 21 v. J. H. Hull 11, J. Backhouse 21 v. C. Walker 16, and W. H. Meeks 21 v. W. Wilcock 18. A. Cockrem has won first prize in the W.M. Club handicap. Final—A. Cockrem (owes 9 points) 31, and T. Cockerham (owes 3) 19.

DRUNK.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday four Garforth miners named Richard Parry, William Wilson, John Brownridge, and Thomas Dixon were summoned for having been drunk and disorderly. P.C. Beever stated that about 11.30 p.m. on July 10th he was on the Leeds and Selby Road at Garforth, when he saw the four defendants lying on the footpath shouting and singing at the top of their voices, and making use of abusive language. He spoke to them, and they went home. Parry, Wilson, and Brownridge were fined 5s. and costs, and Dixon, who did not appear, was fined 7s. 6d. and costs.

HALTON

Mr H. Thomas, of Hilton, playing for Leeds and district against Huddersfield and district in a bowling match on Wednesday, defeated Mr H. Brunton (Springwood) by three points. Mr P. Vince (Halton), however, was defeated by Mr Milner (Paddock) by seven.

THE "DOG AND GUN."—On Friday at Leeds permission was asked by the Home Counties Trust (Ltd.) to make certain alterations to the Dog and Gun Inn, in York Road. It was stated that the nearest houses of the same kind conducted by the company were in Notts. The Chairman said it was the unanimous wish of the magistrates that the Dog and Gun should be pulled down and rebuilt. The applicants said his clients wanted to see how the scheme developed. Mr Woodhouse granted the application, but said the justices regretted the applicants were not going "to make a bigger job of it."

KIPPAX

Mr G. Longbottom, of Kippax, was a prize-winner at Roundhay Flower Show on Saturday.

MUSICAL SUCCESSES.—At the recent musical examination for pianoforte playing, held in Leeds on the 13th inst., Miss Mabel Rowley (Kippax) passed with honours in the intermediate section, gaining 87 marks, and Miss Gladys Hiscock passed in the primary section, gaining 94 marks.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHURCH.—The members of the Christian Endeavour in connection with this church held a meeting on Wednesday evening, and an excellent address was given by the Rev. E. Clements, the newly-appointed minister to the Castleford circuit. The solo "Harvest field" was contributed by Mr G. Prince. The meeting was presided over by Mr Hebden.

FREE GARDENERS' LODGE.—The juveniles in connection with this Lodge were given an outing to Bridlington on Saturday. There were about 60 juvenile members, and they were in charge of Mr Vince. They marched in procession from headquarters to the Kippax Station, where they joined the train. The children thoroughly enjoyed themselves at the seaside. The return journey was completed about 12.45 on Sunday morning.

KIPPAX SEWAGE SCHEME.—On Friday at a meeting of the West Riding Rivers Board, in accordance with the minutes of the Domestic Sewage Committee, it was resolved to consent to the improvement of Kippax sewage works, belonging to the Todcaster Rural District Council, on their giving an undertaking that before June 30th next the plans and scheme shall be prepared and submitted to the Local Government Board, and arrangements made so to commence the construction of the works in the spring of 1916.

LOFTHOUSE

HOMING.—On Saturday seven members of Lofthouse Homing Society sent birds to take part in the race from Ambergate (46 miles). Results:—W. Ramsden 1,752, H. Clarkson 1,321 (two birds). W. Ramsden 1,317, J. Hebden 1,317, W. Chappell 1,302, T. Ward 1,296, W. Ramsden 1,279, J. Armitage 1,267, E. H. Parker 1,233, G. P. Balme 1,210, D. Brooke 1,210, F. Stacey 1,204, A. Calvert 1,169.

COAL UNDER A RESERVOIR.—In the Chancery Division on Friday Mr Justice Astbury allowed a notice of motion in the action of the Wakefield Corporation v. the Lofthouse Colliery Co., Ltd., for an injunction restraining the defendants from working coal under a reservoir belonging to plaintiffs to stand over the hearing of the action. Mr Ashton Cross, for the Corporation, said the defendants had asked for another week in order to answer evidence.

LEDSHAM

Mr E. T. Parker, of Ledsham, received a "commended" for his exhibit in the shire stud class at the Yorkshire Show, and he was second for yearling shire colt.

Wednesday was a "red letter" day in the history of modern Castleford, its Church life especially, the occasion being the visit of her Highness Princess Marie Louise, of Schleswig-Holstein, whose object was to open a bazaar and sale of work in connection with the parish church. Fete at Red Hill, presided over by the parish church. The Princess was the guest of Mr G. C. H. Wheler, M.P., of Ledston Hall.

OULTON

On Wednesday in the bowling match between Leeds and Huddersfield Mr J. W. Morley (Oulton) was defeated by 1 points and Mr W. P. Rivers (Oulton) by nine.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—In connection with the Chapel anniversary services at the Oulton Wesleyan Chapel the special preacher on Sunday morning was the Rev. W. Humphrey, one of the Conference ministers. In the evening the service was conducted by the Rev. S. R. Willcin, who is also taking part in the Conference.

TREAT.—The annual treat in connection with St John's Church School took place on Wednesday, under pleasant weather conditions. About 250 scholars took part in the procession, which, being formed at the Institute, made a round of the whole village, headed by the Boy Scouts' Band. Afterwards a service was held in the Church, and a short address was given by the Rev. H. T. Pattinson (curate). Tea was provided at four o'clock, the children subsequently visiting Oulton Park, where games and sports were arranged by the teachers. Hoop-la and Aunt Sally stalls formed an attraction, and out of these alone a sum of about £7 was raised. The effort was in aid of the new scheme inaugurated by the Sunday School teachers, and it is estimated that the whole of the cost of the working of the Sunday School for the year, apart from the £10 which is guaranteed by the church, will be defrayed. The secretarial duties were ably carried out by Miss A. Bell and Mr R. V. Higgins.

ROBIN HOOD

GARDEN PARTY.—A successful garden party was held in the grounds of Ebor House, the residence of Mr G. Armitage, on Wednesday afternoon, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the United Methodist Church.

STOURTON

P.S.A.—On Sunday afternoon the P.S.A. service at the Primitive Methodist Church was addressed by the Rev. W. S. Spencer. Mr J. Collinson presided over a large gathering.

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—In connection with the pulpit arrangements during the Wesleyan Conference at Leeds, the preacher on Sunday at the Stourton Primitive Methodist Church was Mr. Killingbeck, of the Hunslet Wesleyan Church.

LANGUAGE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Frederick Pearce, navvy, of Stourton, was summoned by Elizabeth Jowett for having used abusive language. The prosecutrix stated that the defendant had been lodging at her house and on Saturday, July 11th, about 11.10 p.m., he came home the worse for drink and commenced using abusive language when she ordered him out. Eventually she had to call in the police. P.C. Wright spoke to being called to the house, and corroborated the last witness's evidence. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

SWILLINGTON

BEGGING.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday William Driscoll, a fireman, of no fixed abode, was sent to prison for fourteen days on a charge of begging at Swillington on Monday.

WOODLESFORD

HOMING.—On Saturday seven members of Woodlesford Homing Society sent 43 birds to take part in the race from Ambergate. Details:—J. Hagins 1,348, A. Bayliss 1,207 (2 birds), A. Carter 1,235, A. Jackson 1,207, W. Maundrill 1,092, J. Bowman 1,081.

FESTIVAL.—In connection with Woodlesford All Saints' Church the children's annual festival and flower service were held on Sunday. In the morning there was the sung Eucharist and sermon, and in the afternoon the flower service took place. The sermon was preached by the Rev H. T. Pattinson (curate of Oulton). After the singing of the "Magnificat," a solemn procession took place round the church, in which all the members of the congregation joined. The flowers, which had been brought by the children for the service, were subsequently sent to the Children's Homes, Rothwell Haigh. The annual school treat took place on Wednesday afternoon and evening. Tea was served at four o'clock in the Council Schools, after which the children were taken to Eshold Park, which was kindly lent for the occasion by Mr Dennis Hargreaves, and there games were played and sports arranged for the elder children.

YORKSHIRE PENNY BANK.

The report submitted to the shareholders at the ordinary general meeting, held at 28, King Street, London, stated that the deposits on the 30th June, 1914, amounted to £20,720,689 0s. 1d., as against £18,200,102 11s. 9d. on the 29th August, 1911, the date when the new bank commenced business, showing an increase in deposits of £2,520,586 8s. 4d. The cash in hand, at Bank of England, at short notice and bankers' balances, on the 30th June, 1913, amounted to £4,064,362, and on the 30th June, 1914, amounted to £4,963,284. The percentage of cash in hand, at Bank of England, and bankers' balances, to deposits in deposits in December, 1911, was 13.8 per cent., in June, 1912, 15.4 per cent., in June, 1913, 20.4 per cent., and June, 1914, is 23.95 per cent. The Stock Exchange securities on the 30th June, 1913, were £11,222,426 0s. 9d., and on the 30th June, 1914, £11,672,361 10s. 8d. These securities are all written down to the market value. The loans on securities and other accounts on the 30th June, 1913, were £4,923,800 11s. 6d., and on the 30th June, 1914, were £4,539,621 18s. 8d. All bad debts have been written off and provision made for doubtful debts. It is with deep regret the directors record the death of their general manager, Mr H. B. Sellers, after a faithful service to the bank of 25 years. They have appointed Mr John Carnes, the secretary, and Mr T. F. Pollock, the assistant general manager, to be joint general managers, and Messrs W. H. Horsey, H. J. Jackson, A. P. Nicholson, J. S. Taylor, and G. E. Thackeray to be district managers. The directors have made arrangements with the local committee whereby their services will be continued until the expiration of the period for which they were elected, and the directors record their great appreciation of the services which they have rendered to the bank.

Mr W. Greenwood, of Roundhay, and 92, Briggate, Leeds, won second prize for foal, produce of hackney brood mare, at the Yorkshire Show yesterday.

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Arthington and Elfolfts met at Arthington. Scores:—Arthington—H. Marshall 2, J. Marshall 11, Wood 1, Mycock 2, A. Sharper 2, Child 10, S. Sharper 2, J. Sharper 0, G. Procter 4, Clapham 0, J. W. Proctor 0, extra, 1; total, 41. Elfolfts—Pickersgill (not out) 16, Midgley 4, Foster 0, Thornley (not out) 23, extras, 2; total (for 2 wkts.), 45.

NO HOUSES.—On Monday at Todcaster Petty Sessions an application for an ejectment order was made by Jane Bolland against James Foster, painter, Todcaster. On the Chairman asking why he had not got out of the house, the defendant said that he was unable to get another house in Todcaster and district. The Chairman said they had no option in granting an order for ejectment. You will have to get out in 21 days. Defendant: What if I cannot get a house. I have two small children. Supt. Slack said that he would have to get out.

FETE.—The annual fete and sports in connection with the West Riding Police Orphanage took place on Wednesday afternoon in the spacious grounds of Elfolfts, Thorner, kindly lent by Mr T. S. Pickersgill. For once the weather was favourable, and an enjoyable afternoon was spent. The attractions included a cricket match, sports, a band, and calculating the absolute weight of a sheep. In the match between Elfolfts and the Police the scores were:—Elfolfts—T G Mylchreest, b Marples, 4; R. Pickersgill, lbw, b Goodall, 44; A. Midgley, b Atkinson, 19; W. Arrowsmith, run out, 6; E. Turner, b Atkinson, 17; R Silversides, b Marples, 14; E. Bratton, b Atkinson, 10; H. Higgs, not out, 10; F. Fatkin, b Atkinson, 2; J. Handasley, b Atkinson, 0; H. H. Stabler, c Otter, b Marples, 6; extras, 4; total, 136. West Riding Police—Lockett, c Hardisty, b Stabler, 6; Bowen, b Turner, 1; Marples, b Stabler, 0; Goodall, c Pickersgill, b Stabler, 10; Matthews, c Pickersgill, b Turner, 1; Atkinson, b Turner, 2; Beaumont, lbw, b Turner, 3; Bennett, b Turner, 0; Askam, b Turner, 0; Otter, not out, 2; Tate, b Stabler, 0; extras, 3; total, 28.

ROTHWELL URBAN COUNCIL.

The monthly meeting of the Rothwell Urban District Council was held at the Council Offices, Rothwell, on Monday night, Mr J. Hirst (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs. C. Chadwick, J. Armitage, T. P. Wade, W. Wade, H. Kirkby, S. Dobson, H. Cordon, J. Horner, T. Ellis, R. McCullough, W. Robinson, and W. Speak, with the Clerk (Mr W. Dodgson), the medical officer of health (Dr. H. Stevenson), the surveyor (Mr J. Southward), and the sanitary inspector (Mr E. F. Moorhouse).

HIGHWAYS COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Highways Committee it was decided that the Council accept the original proposal made on behalf of Major Calverley in purchase the frontage land for widening in Whitehall Field as it is sold to purchasers at 4s. a yard, or alternately offer £300 for the frontage if continued to the bottom of Gillet Lane, so as to have a 45 feet road. It was also resolved that Major Calverley and Mr Hindle be asked to make an amended offer in regard to the improvement of Windmill Lane. The Committee were unable to see their way to increase the offer in regard to Mrs Nother's property. The surveyor was instructed to see the owner of cottages in Church Street, and ask him to remedy the danger from flooding. It was resolved that Mr England be asked to meet the committee as to tramway fares. It was resolved that the surveyor type and circulate a copy of his report on the paving of yards, and that he notify the owners and occupiers of the state of Matty Lane and Middleton Lane, and ask for immediate repairs. It was resolved that Messrs J. and J. Charlesworth be notified of the dangerous siding opposite Spurr's Row, and asked if they can put in additional runaway points.

"DEATH TRAP" AT ROBIN HOOD

The minutes were moved by Mr J. Horner, in the absence of the Chairman (Mr W. Lunn).

Mr Chadwick, in referring to the minute relating to Matty Lane, and Middleton Lane, said he thought it unfair that the owners should be called upon to repair the roadway, as it was the duty of the Council. He also referred to the crossing at the Half-Way House at Robin Hood, and described the corner as the "death trap of the district." One man had been killed at this particular spot, while accidents happened there every week. He was of the opinion that notice boards ought to be placed, say, about fifty yards down the Thorpe Road, and the road coming from Rothwell, warning drivers of vehicles and cyclists not to exceed a speed of three or four miles an hour. The crossing the Council had not done their duty in that respect.

The Chairman: Don't you think we ought to ask the Motor Union to put up notices.

Mr Chadwick: The triangles and boards denoting "school" are taken little notice of.

Mr Armitage: There was another accident between a motor car and motor cycle there only on Saturday, and it was a wonder there was no fatality. But a short while ago three accidents occurred in one week. I do not know how they are going to be avoided if people will go at such break-neck speeds. Notice boards might be of some use.

Mr Dobson: If boards are only put down the Thorpe Road and the street from Rothwell, the people on the highway are left to do as they like. I suggest that notice boards be placed the same distance down the Wakefield Road at the Half-Way House, Rothwell.

Mr Chadwick: The man on the Wakefield Road has a straight view of the road. It is the man coming from Rothwell and Thorpe; he is hedged in going to the buildings at the corner, and he runs straight into the trap. Mr Chadwick added that he did not desire the Council to be censured by a coroner's jury.

Mr Horner: Highways Committee have the matter in hand and it has been deferred until the next meeting.

Mr Speak: Another danger is the stopping places, where cars stand together.

The Chairman said he agreed.

Mr W. Wade said he would second Mr Chadwick's motion.

In reply to the discussion, Mr Horner said the Committee had the matter in reference to the crossing at Robin Hood in hand, and they were determined to deal with it. They knew all about the accidents. The dangerous part of the crossing was the road coming from Rothwell. He thought the matter ought to be left to the Committee, and when they made any alteration it would be a great improvement to the crossing. He also said that the Committee had received a letter from Mr England, the manager of the Wakefield Tramways Co., but he was vague that they had asked for an interview at the next meeting.

On a vote being taken Mr Chadwick's motion was carried, and the minutes were passed.

VOTE OF CONDOLENCE

A vote of condolence with the family of the late Mr William Ashcroft was moved by Mr Chadwick. The deceased, he said, had during his time on the Council, tried to serve the ratepayers well.

Mr Armitage seconded, and said whatever the deceased's faults in the past, he was always sincere.

The Chairman endorsed the remarks, and the motion was carried by all standing.

SANITARY COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Sanitary Committee it was resolved that the County Council be asked to abide by their original offer to pay £50 towards the salary of £100 for the combined appointment of public health visitor and school nurse. It was also resolved that a bicycle be got for Miss Stoney. A petition was received from Thorpe with 125 signatures, and a certificate from Dr Ewing, that a nuisance which causes the Council trouble about the dwelling houses, particularly in Back Colville Terrace and Oakley Street, and that the stench in the summer time is sufficient to lower the vitality of individuals residing there. A deputation attended the committee meeting and stated that every tenant buy about six, between the club and the bridge, were in favour of their petition, which was the Council to bring about the abolition of the privy middens. The deputation stated that there are 142 privies in the area, and the tenants are in a helpless position, as it is impossible for them to find other houses elsewhere. One member of the deputation, a railwayman, obliged to live in the district, had to wait from February to September before he could get a house. They stated that the average rental of the houses is 5s. 9d. a week, and the rents have been raised once or twice within a comparatively short period. They asked the Council to condemn the privies in Back Oakley Street, an exceptionally narrow street, with 65 houses in it. The Committee decided to visit Thorpe.

The application from the County Council in regard to the cost of treating tubercular cases was considered, and it was decided to leave the matter over until a reply was received from the Local Government Board as to their sanction to the shelters at the Joint Hospital. It was agreed that closing orders be served on the owners of the following houses:—No. 3, Main Street, Carlton, and No. 6, Naylor's Yard, Rothwell.

The inspector reported that the Local Government Board had called for particulars of all houses in the district, on which closing orders and notices to repair had been served, and what action had been taken by the landowners and the Council, and that full particulars had been supplied. The Board also asked the Council to state the number of new houses and the nature of accommodation which should be provided in the district for persons of the working classes. The inspector asked for the Committee's instructions, and the Committee referred the matter to the Council. It was resolved that statutory notices be served in accordance with the inspector's list dated the 13th July, 1914.

Mr Lambert, of Thistle Garth, was lodged a claim for damage by flood. The Council denied liability and offered to pay 7s. 6d., the cost of cleaning out the premises. It was resolved that the land required for the Lofthouse Burial Ground be purchased without investigation of title. A letter from Messrs Bromet and Sons in regard to the demolition of the tiled houses, and in regard to the Thatch Cottage at Stourton, was referred to the Council. The Clerk reported that the Local Government Board had sanctioned the adoption by the Council of the Notification of Births Act, and the same would be in force from the 18th July.

Mr Robinson asked what provision was being made by the Council for those persons who were turned out of their houses.

Mr Chadwick said the matter would come up afterwards in committee.

Mr Kirkby asked if it was not a bad precedent in giving money to compensate for the damage done by the recent storm.

Mr Chadwick said the amount they were giving was only a portion of the claim. There was a precedent.

Mr Horner moved an amendment that the minutes be passed with the exception of the minute referring to the claim.

Mr W. Wade said it was either a case of sending down two women from Rothwell to do the work or letting the people engage help themselves. The claim was for work done.

Mr Horner said that, after hearing the explanation, he would withdraw his amendment, and the minutes were passed.

HEALTH OF THE DISTRICT

Dr Stevenson presented his report for the past month, which showed that during the period twenty-seven cases of scarlet fever, nine cases of diphtheria, and one case of phthisis had been notified. Twenty-seven cases were removed to the hospital. During the four weeks twenty-three births, seven males and sixteen females, were notified, while the deaths numbered twenty-two.

Asked if there was any decrease in the cases of scarlet fever, Dr Stevenson replied that he thought there was towards the end of the month. Diphtheria seemed to be at an end. One case of typhoid fever was reported from Lofthouse.

BUILDINGS

At a meeting of the Building Committee the following plans were dealt with:—Plan for 2 houses, Middleton Avenue, Hunslet, for Mr J. Mitchell, referred back; plan for 13 houses, Middleton Avenue, Hunslet, Mitchell, referred back; plan for Gardeners' houses, Middleton Avenue, Hunslet, for Mr J. Harrison

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

BARKSTON ASH COMPETITION—SAGAR-MUSGRAVE CUP.

The League season is rapidly drawing to a close, and in another week the clubs entitled to figure in the semi-finals will have made themselves known. Tadcaster, who are one point ahead of Milford, should beat Church Fenton on Saturday, and Milford will be expected to account for Saxton. In division two Seacroft are a couple of points ahead of Micklefield and Garforth, and the meeting of these Crofters and Micklefield on the village green will arouse great interest. The homesters have, I think, the better chance of obtaining the points. Garforth are stronger than Barwick, and Halton will get a surprise if they go down at Preston. Halton Wesleyans have made their position practically secure, having a four points' lead over Crossgates and Shadwell, and they must lose both games and Shadwell, and they must lose both of the remaining matches to jeopardise their chances. They should manage to overcome Shadwell on their own ground, and Crossgates Wes. will be expected to succeed against Collingham at Old Manston, while Whitkirk, at home, will have to give an improved display if they are to beat Crossgates.

CARFORTH V. TADCASTER.

Tadcaster, who have won the Lane Fox Cup more times than any club in the Division, are again serious competitors for the trophy, and their surprise victory over Crossgates Wes., followed by their decisive win over Garforth on Saturday, stamps them as a team of undoubted merit. Not for a long time have the Garforthians given such a wretched batting exhibition, and, as every Tadcaster will therefore dwell must be strictly confined wholly to the remarkably fine bowling of their opponents—a fact which the losers will ungrudgingly admit. Disaster met them at the outset, S. Glover and H. Prime, as usual, opened the batting, and, after Baker had sent down a maiden over, Prime was got rid of with Herbert's first ball, and with the second ball he clean bowled W. Glover. Two wickets for no run-t Williamson assisted S. Glover to lift the score to 8, and then the former was bowled by Herbert. Wilson followed, and, without the addition of a single, he was cleverly caught in the slips by Todd, off Herbert. Thus four of the best wickets were down for eight. Kilburn then partnered S. Glover, who gave a sterling exhibition, and the score was taken to 28 ere Kilburn departed, caught by West, off Baker. Morley was caught by Roper off Baker, and Glover was dismissed by the same bowler. Glover was accredited the "hat" trick, and then sent back Reed and Firth with successive balls. When eight wickets were down West followed Herbert, and he bowled Pickersgill, relieved Herbert, and S. Glover scored Thirty-five runs were got, and S. Glover scored 22. Herbert captured four wickets for 13, Baker 5 for 20, and West 1 for nil. Garforth, with the exception of S. Glover, were unable to play the bowling, and there was not a boundary hit in the score. Mason and Todd opened for Tadcaster, who were given a task surprisingly easy, and the runs were on the board before Todd was bowled by Ballance, Hebden followed, and, with the score at 18, Mason was out to a good catch. Freer was caught by Morley, off W. Glover, when the total was 25, and then Garbutt joined Hebden, and they bit off the runs, each having a huge drive. The Calcarians have only to maintain this form in order to secure the trophy again.

MICKLEFIELD V SOUTH MILFORD.

Micklefield and South Milford had an exciting contest one day, and at the finish a single run only divided the scores. The losers somehow failed to benefit by the fine opportunity Micklefield offered them, and they are now probably sorry that it was done. Milford's score was 47, and not a single player had double figures, but Chilton, Osborne, and Hesselgrave registered 0 each. Stone, trundled with great success, took five wickets for 18, and Smith five wickets for 11, and Townend 2 for 14. Micklefield were expected to easily top their opponents' score, and Smith, who made 11 before he was run out, and Tomlinson (0) opened well, and while Stone, Lunn, Hobson, and Walton contributed five or six each, four players were speedily got rid of, and, amid severe excitement, better 3 were closed for 46. It was another triumph for Chilton, who secured 6 wickets for 28 runs, and Lindley claimed 2 for 17.

CROSSGATES V. GARFORTH WES.

Crossgates, in a low scoring match at Garforth, defeated the Wesleyans, who, it will be remembered, overcame Collingham in the previous round, but there is no doubt the winners got a fright. Crossgates, trundled with great success by Wilkinson, who took five wickets for 18, and Smith five wickets for 11, and Townend 2 for 14. Micklefield were expected to easily top their opponents' score, and Smith, who made 11 before he was run out, and Tomlinson (0) opened well, and while Stone, Lunn, Hobson, and Walton contributed five or six each, four players were speedily got rid of, and, amid severe excitement, better 3 were closed for 46. It was another triumph for Chilton, who secured 6 wickets for 28 runs, and Lindley claimed 2 for 17.

CROSSGATES V. GARFORTH WES.

Crossgates, in a low scoring match at Garforth, defeated the Wesleyans, who, it will be remembered, overcame Collingham in the previous round, but there is no doubt the winners got a fright. Crossgates trundled with great success by Wilkinson, who took five wickets for 18, and Smith five wickets for 11, and Townend 2 for 14. Micklefield were expected to easily top their opponents' score, and Smith, who made 11 before he was run out, and Tomlinson (0) opened well, and while Stone, Lunn, Hobson, and Walton contributed five or six each, four players were speedily got rid of, and, amid severe excitement, better 3 were closed for 46. It was another triumph for Chilton, who secured 6 wickets for 28 runs, and Lindley claimed 2 for 17.

SEACROFT V. HALTON WES.

Although Halton Wes. made a very creditable appearance at the green, they had to admit that the Crofters were slightly the better combination. Seacroft, who put on 157, made the highest score obtained in the tournament on Saturday, and Tomlinson made 33. Fryer 31, Stead 17, Burton 15, C. Johnson 13, and F. Taylor 12. On Halton going in the wicket of J. Popplewell was soon lost, both he and Crosthwaite not having a single, and, as O. Bell had only 3, three good wickets were got rid of cheaply. This was calculated to disheart the team, but they played pluckily, and S. Botty (42) had the best innings of the match. Kilburn's contribution was 13, and C. Batty claimed 14. F. Taylor was the best of the Seacroft bowlers, having 3 wickets for 13, while C. Johnson had 2 for 4, T. Toft 2 for 9, and D. Burton 1 for 20.

ALLERTON BYWATER AND THE HEPWORTH CUP.

On Saturday afternoon at Roundhay Allerton Bywater met North Leeds in the semi-final for the Hepworth Cup. There was an excellent attendance when Dooley and Allen opened the batting for the visitors. Baron and Collier were first called upon in the attack, and with no up Clark palpably missed Dooley at point, the batsman showing his appreciation by twice prettily glancing Baron to the leg boundary. Allen also got 2 fours in the same direction, and this punishment brought on James with the score at 35. The fifty was hoisted after 40 minutes' play, both batsmen having shaped well, but immediately afterwards Allen was dismissed by an excellent catch at the wicket for a well-played innings of 30. Simpson took the vacant position, and got a nice boundary from each bowler, while Dooley off-drive Collier in great style for another four. At 55 Noble went on for Collier, and another wicket quickly fell, Dooley being run out as a result of a brilliant throw-in by Gillespie. With James was superseded by G. Fenwick. Simpson forced the game well, and sent up the hundred with a fine boundary. The separation came at 118, Gillespie holding a catch offered by Nicholls at cover-point off Fenwick's bowling. Simpson's dashing innings was closed at 124, his 37 including seven boundaries. Carter made 10, and Burton followed with 21. Stones and Wall did not get two figures, but Smithson played well for 21, and the innings realised 210. North Leeds started promisingly, and when play ceased they had 115 runs for four wickets. The game was finished on Monday evening, and the remaining players were soon got rid of, the total being 144. Allerton will now meet Hunslet in the final.

MIDDLETON PARK OUSTED.

Middleton Park played Hunslet in the semi-final for the Hepworth Cup at Parkside, and the home side won easily by seven wickets. R. Sutcliffe (10) and W. Barraclough (17) opened for Middleton, and had it not been for them the side would have made a poor show. H. Speake made 2, S. Goulthorpe 11, A. Spink 9, G. H. Place 6, J. W. Place 3, J. W. Clarkson 2, W. Richardson 3, J. Ramsden 4 (not out), and Miller 0. There were 9 extras, and the total was 76. For a loss of three wickets Hunslet put on 77, and Gill registered 31 and Place 34.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE—BARWICK'S SCORE

An interesting tussle is going on between Ulleskelf and Tadcaster A. for supremacy in division one. The Calcarians, who are two points ahead, played the White Rose team at Sherburn, and the homesters were beaten by five wickets. Sherburn's score was 30 (Cooke 19), and Smart secured five wickets for 12, and Chatfield two for no runs. For a loss of five wickets Tadcaster had 34, and Kettlewell scored 13 (not out). B. Hey got two wickets for 13, and Cawthorne had 2 for 10.—Ulleskelf went to Kirk Deighton, and they had a four wickets' victory. The losers made 41 (H. Bateman 10, not out, and G. White 20), and Sykes claimed 3 wickets for 10, Stramach 4 for 18, and Lacy 2 for 4. Towards Ulleskelf's score of 45 for six wickets, D. Varey contributed 17 (not out) and F. Holt 11. For the losers H. Oxley captured 4 wickets for 19.—South Milford A. were superior to Barkston Ash A., the winners scored 67 (Stainburn 31, not out), and Barkston 37 (Hills 17 and Batley 10). Greenwood (Barkston) had the best bowling record, with 4 for 13, while Hills had 3 for 10, and Smith 3 for 13. For Milford Lindley secured 4 wickets for 16, Stainburn had 2 for 4, and Hill 2 for 9.

Garforth A., who have played a match more than Seacroft A., are now leaders of division 2. Their opponents on Saturday were Micklefield A. —a greatly improved team—and they registered 78 (Goodman 21, Townend 18, and Hilbert 11, not out). W. Pickersgill got two of their wickets for 7, and Hewitt 2 for 8. Garforth A. won by three wickets, F. Hancock making 17 and W. Bowering 23. J. Moakes (Micklefield) secured five wickets for 38 runs.—Aberford defeated Halton A. by three wickets. The Haltonians scored 46 (Guest 12), and J. Inman claimed four of their wickets for four, while G. Connell had 4 for 18. Aberford registered 48 for 7 loss of seven wickets (Blakeley 23 and Walton 14). Sunter secured three wickets for nothing, and Longden had 3 for 22.

A remarkable score! Barwick A. made 2 against Preston A. on Saturday, and only one was a run! The match was at Barwick, and Preston were got rid of for 39 (Hy. Lilley 20, not out). T. H. Robshaw obtained 5 wickets for 15 and Markham 5 for 24. Then Barwick had their innings, and only Woodhead scored a single. A Barwick man said they "gave a very poor batting display." He was a humorist and no mistake. A Wigglesworth will never bowl better in his life, for he took six wickets for one run, and Oldham had four for no runs.

WAKEFIELD CUP—CARLTON'S DEFEAT

Carlton discovered that they were not good enough for Lofthouse, who won handsomely by 5 wickets and 38 runs. Carlton show their best form, and Parkin, who captured nine wickets, soon had them out for 57, of which Brown had 18. Lawrence 10, and Butterworth 10. Lofthouse's response was 95 for 5, and Carr made 33, Stott 11, and Chadwick 12.

Rothwell had a fine win over Stanley. The game was at Rothwell, and the visitors put on 134 (Cawthorne 47, Littlewood 20, L. Hargreaves 13, and T. Hargreaves 13). Bedford was the most successful Rothwell trundler, with 5 wickets for 24, and Banks came next with 4 for 42. Rothwell, who were easily on the top, gave a great batting display, and the first five men practically made the game safe. Hodgkinson scored 40 (not out), Fox 26, Tiffany 23, and Newton 18.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Kippax had hard lines on Saturday, being defeated by Altofts United by the narrow margin of three runs. Altofts, who had only ten men, scored 72, and Kippax responded with 68. A. Cripwell was top scorer of the match with 25, and Lowe had a useful 10.—Woodlesford A. were defeated by Stanley A. by eight wickets. Stanley scored 87 (Bedford 14), and Stanley replied with 42 for 2 wickets.—Outwood A. overcame Altofts Wes. by 94 to 62.

CROSSGATES WES. V. GREAT PRESTON.

On Saturday afternoon Crossgates Wes. had a match with Great Preston at Garforth. Manston, and the homesters won. Preston scored 40 (T. Wiggleworth 13), and Broadbent secured 3 wickets for nothing, and Brook had 4 for 13 for a loss of five wickets Crossgates made 41, and T. Yeadon was top scorer with 19.

OULTON V. LEEDS POLICE.

On Saturday Oulton entertained the Leeds Police, and an interesting match was witnessed. The proceeds were for the Leeds Infirmary. The men in blue rattled up 85, T. Kendrew 34 and S. Walker 15. Oulton made a feeble response with 37, P. N. Butler being the top scorer with 13. B. Walker (Oulton) captured nine wickets for 41, and S. Knight one for 12. For the visitors, B. Walker secured four wickets for ten runs, and J. W. Thornton five for 25.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	8	7	1	0	14
South Milford	8	6	1	1	13
Cawood	7	3	2	2	6
Saxton	8	3	5	0	6
Church Fenton	8	2	5	1	5
Church Fenton Sycamore	8	1	6	1	3

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft	8	7	1	0	14
Garforth	8	6	2	0	12
Micklefield	8	6	2	0	12
Halton	8	4	4	0	8
Barwick	8	1	7	0	2
Great Preston	8	0	8	0	0

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	8	7	1	0	14
Crossgates	8	5	3	0	10
Shadwell	8	5	3	0	10
Whitkirk	8	4	4	0	8
Crossgreet Wesleyans	8	3	5	0	6
Collingham	8	0	8	0	0

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A	10	8	2	0	16
Ulleskelf	10	7	3	0	14
South Milford A	10	6	4	0	12
Kirk Deighton	9	5	4	0	10
Brantham	9	3	6	0	6
Sherburn White Rose	9	3	6	0	6
Barkston Ash	10	2	8	0	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth A	10	9	1	0	18
Seacroft A	9	8	1	0	16
Halton A	9	5	4	0	10
Great Preston A	9	4	5	0	8
Aberford	9	3	6	0	6
Micklefield A	10	3	7	0	6
Barwick A	9	1	8	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wesleyans	8	6	2	0	12
Crossgates A	8	5	3	0	10
Swillington and Colton	8	5	3	0	10
Crossgates Wesleyans A	8	4	4	0	8
Halton Wesleyans A	8	2	6	0	4
Whitkirk A	8	2	6	0	4

E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Church Fenton Sycamore v. Cawood. Messrs H. Bell (Saxton) and J. Lupton (South Milford).

Saxton v. South Milford. Messrs J. Limbert (Micklefield) and T. Carroll (Tadcaster).

Tadcaster v. Church Fenton. Messrs H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton) and H. Boston (South Milford).

Garforth v. Barwick. Messrs H. Johnson (Crossgates) and J. L. Kitching (Leeds).

Seacroft v. Micklefield. Messrs T. Mathers (Great Preston) and W. Goodall (Barwick).

Great Preston v. Halton. Messrs H. Jackson (Seacroft) and F. Pickersgill (Seacroft).

Crossgates Wesleyans v. Collingham. Messrs A. Burton (Seacroft) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

Halton Wesleyans v. Shadwell. Messrs J. Johnson (Seacroft) and A. Thompson (Great Preston).

Whitkirk v. Crossgates. Messrs C. Atack (Micklefield) and C. Plews (Halton Wesleyans).

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Sherburn White Rose v. Kirk Deighton. Messrs H. Watson (Barkston Ash) and E. Smith (Ulleskelf).

Ulleskelf v. Brantham. Messrs R. Firn (Cawood) and C. Thornton (Barkston Ash).

Barkston Ash v. Tadcaster A. Messrs T. Ambler (Church Fenton Sycamore) and G. Fox (Saxton).

Halton A v. Seacroft A. Messrs S. H. Keeble (Crossgates Wesleyans) and T. Goodall (Garforth Wesleyans).

Aberford v. Great Preston A. Messrs J. Fox (Swillington and Colton) and F. Hebden (Garforth).

Barwick A v. Garforth A. Messrs E. Levitt (Swillington and Colton) and T. P. Spivey (Crossgates).

Swillington and Colton v. Crossgates Wesleyans A. Messrs A. Bailey (Garforth) and W. Nicholson (Halton).

Garforth Wesleyans v. Halton Wesleyans A. Messrs T. Crosland (Micklefield) and A. Gascoigne (Kippax).

Crossgates A v. Whitkirk A. Messrs A. Birch (Garforth) and G. C. Earnshaw (Oulton).

LANE FOX CUP.

TADCASTER V. GARFORTH.—At Tadcaster. Scores:—

Garforth—S. Glover, c Hebden, b Baker, 22; H. Williamson, b Herbert, 2; W. Glover, b Herbert, 0; H. Williamson, b Herbert, 2; J. Wilson, c Todd, b Herbert, 0; J. Kilburn, c West, b Baker, 4; H. Morley, c Roper, b Baker, 12; H. Reed, b Baker, 4; T. Ballance, not out, 0; H. Pickersgill, b West, 0; extras, 2; total, 35.

Tadcaster—H. Todd, b Ballance, 7; J. F. Mason, c W. Glover, b Ballance, 8; J. F. Hebden, not out, 9; G. Freer, c Morley, b W. Glover, 0; J. W. Garbutt, not out, 9; extras, 3; total, 36.

MICKLEFIELD V. SOUTH MILFORD.—At Micklefield.

South Milford—R. Sutton, b Stone, 6; A. Atkinson, b Townend, 3; R. Tindell, lbw, b Stone, 1; Hutchcroft, b Townend, 5; H. Chilton, b Stone, 9; W. Osborne, b Stone, 0; Stainburn, c and b Stone, 0; Hesselgrave, st Taylor, b Smith, 9; A. Limley, run out, 1; C. Sutton, b Smith, 0; A. Atkinson, not out, 0; extras, 4; total, 47.

Micklefield—Wallis, not out, 2; Tomkinson, lbw, b Chilton, 0; Smith, run out, 11; Stone, c Atkinson, b Chilton, 5; Townend, run out, 1; Taylor, c Lindley, b Chilton, 0; Hobson, b Chilton, 6; Lunn, st Sutton, b Chilton, 6; Walton, c Atkinson, b Chilton, 0; Harwick, b Lindley, 0; Walton, b Lindley, 5; extra, 1; total, 46.

GARFORTH WES. V. CROSSGATES.—At Garforth. Scores:—

Crossgates—I. Burnell, b Ward, 0; W. Sykes, c Gent, b Ward, 14; A. Fairburn, c Goodall, b Gent, 7; O. Goodall, c Brownridge, b Gent, 0; C. Johnson, b Ward, 0; J. Burnell, c Spivey, c Johnson, b Gent, 2; B. Craven, c Johnson, b Ward, 0; F. Brook, b Gent, 7; J. Harvey, c Johnson, b Gent, 3; W. Turner, not out, 13; Wigglesworth, b Ward, 0; extras, 2; total, 57.

Garforth Wes.—F. Siberry, lbw, b Burnell, 1; H. Ward, c Brook, b Burnell, 7; F. Gent, b Brook, 12; J. Hbt. Siberry, c Harvey, b Yates, 1; H. Goodall, b Yates, 0; R. Brownridge, run out, 0; J. Spivey, not out, 13; W. Bulmer, b Yates, 0; J. Hbt. Siberry, c Harvey, b Yates, 14; A. Hewitt, c Fairburn, b Burnell, 1; H. Siberry, not out, 0; extra, 1; total, 30.

SEACROFT V. HALTON WESLEYANS.—At Seacroft. Scores:—

Seacroft—D. Burton, c Crosthwaite, b O. Bell, 15; T. Toft, b O. Bell, 0; G. Stead, st Stephens, b O. Bell, 17; H. Atack, b O. Bell, 9; C. Thompson, c C. Batty, b Powell, 33; C. Johnson, b O. Bell, 13; I. Fryer, b H. Wilson, 31; E. Johnson, c Popplewell, b C. Batty, 9; F. Taylor, c S. Batty, b Powell, 10; J. W. Pickersgill, c J. Popplewell, b O. Bell, 4; H. Toft, not out, 1; extras, 4; total, 187.

Halton Wesleyans—C. M. Kilburn, c J. W. Pickersgill, b C. Johnson, 13; J. Popplewell, b D. Burton, 0; S. Batty, b F. Taylor, 42; D. Crosthwaite, b C. Johnson, 0; O. Bell, c T. Toft, b G. Stead, 3; J. A. Popplewell, b E. Johnson, 5; C. Batty, b F. Taylor, 14; L. Stephens, not out, 8; A. Powell, b F. Taylor, 1; H. Murtland, c F. Taylor, b T. Toft, 5; H. Wilson, b T. Toft, 0; extras, 8; total, 103.

HEPWORTH CUP.

ALLERTON BYWATER V. NORTH LEEDS.—At Roundhay. Scores:—

Allerton Bywater—D. Dooley, run out, 35; L. Allen, c A. Fenwick, b James, 30; A. Simpson, c Clark, b Noble, 37; A. Nichols, c Gillespie, b G. Fenwick, 7; T. Carter, st A. Fenwick, b Noble, 19; W. Buxton, c Gillespie, b Noble, 21; B. Wall, b G. Fenwick, 11; H. Stones, st A. Fenwick, b Noble, 2; H. Wall, b Baron, 7; H. H. Smithson, c James, b Baron, 21; T. Pointon, not out, 4; extras, 16; total, 210.

North Leeds—A. Fenwick, c Pointon, b Buxton, 40; G. Noble, b Buxton, 9; D. Halloran, b Milner, 23; F. W. Gillespie, b Buxton, 24; J. Clark, b Buxton, 18; G. Fenwick, run out, 9; W. Baron, c Pointon, b Carter, 0; T. James, not out, 5; H. Briggs, b Buxton, 8; J. W. Collier, b Noble, 1; G. A. Carr, absent, 0; extras, 7; total, 144.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

KIPPAX V. ALTOFTS UNITED.—At Kippax. Scores:—

Altofts United—A. Brown, b Cripwell, 9; R. Phillips, b Smart, 11; B. Kirk, b Smart, 0; H. Frith, b Smart, 5; W. Knowles, c Roberts, b Lowe, 0; A. Bednulls, b Lloyd, 10; W. Hall, c and b Cripwell, 11; J. Hampson, b Lloyd, 0; J. Holmes, c Plows, b Cripwell, 1; W. Dean, not out, 5; extras, 13; total, 71. Only 10 men played.

Kippax—W. Lloyd, b Bednall, 0; T. Edwards, b Phillips, 8; B. Edison, c Frith, b Brown, 4; H. Limbert, b Bednall, 4; A. Lowe, run out, 10; E. Plows, lbw, b Phillips, 1; A. Cripwell, c Phillips, b Kirk, 25; A. Brookes, b Knowles, 5; S. T. Roberts, c Frith, b Kirk, 1; A. Rider, c and b Kirk, 0; T. Smart, not out, 1; extras, 10; total, 68.

ROTHWELL JUNIOR LEAGUE.

STANLEY A V. WOODLESFORD A.—At Stanley. Scores:—Woodlesford A.—T. Morton, b W. Colley, 3; J. Baxter, b J. Hartley, 0; L. Taylor, c Gledhill, b Hartley, 0; L. Abbey, b W. Colley, 0; J. Brown, c Woolford, b W. Colley, 14; J. Holmes, b J. Hartley, 0; T. Wilkinson, b W. Colley, 2; W. Williams, b Willie Colley, 4; T. Collin, b W. Colley, 0; G. Morton, not out, 6; B. Parkinson, b Willie Colley, 5; extras, 4; total, 38. Stanley A—G. Kirkham, not out, 17; J. Hartley, c Williams, b Baxter, 7; Wall, b Colley, c Morton, b Collin, 7; C. Poole, not out, 14; total (for 2 wkts.), 42.

WAKEFIELD AND DISTRICT CUP.

CARLTON V. LOFTHOUSE.—Played on Saturday. Scores:—

Carlton—Illingworth, b S. Parkin, 0; Brown, b S. Parkin, 18; Fozzard, c Wrigley, b Parkin, 2; Stones, b Parkin, 0; Lawrence, b Parkin, 10; Sykes, c Longley, b Parkin, 4; Butterworth, c Kner, b Parkin, 10; Newton, lbw, b Longley, 0; W. Brown, c Kellett, b Parkin, 0; G. Brown, not out, 0; J. Brook, c Wrigley, b Parkin, 0; extras, 13; total, 57.

Lofthouse—Kellett, b Illingworth, 6; Carr, c Butterworth, b Sykes, 13; Stott, b Illingworth, 11; S. Parkin, c Sykes, b Illingworth, 3; Wrigley, b W. Brown, 1; Chadwick, not out, 12; T. Parkin, not out, 4; extras, 6; total (for 5 wkts.), 58.

ROTHWELL V. STANLEY.—At Rothwell. Scores:—

Rothwell—J. Holmes, b H. Banks, 6; H. Littlewood, b H. Hemsworth, 20; H. Robinson, b H. Banks, 0; L. Cawthorne, c Tiffany, b H. Banks, 0; J. Heaton, b H. Banks, 12; P. Hargreaves, b H. Bedford, 13; C. Dickenson, b W. Bedford, 2; C. Butterfield, b W. Bedford, 1; L. Hargreaves, b W. Bedford, 17; J. Dobson, not out, 2; J. Bulmer, lbw, b W. Bedford, 1; extras, 12; total, 134.

Rothwell—J. Newton, b C. Dickenson, 18; C. Tiffany, c J. Bulmer, b L. Hargreaves, 23; W. Fox, c J. Bulmer, b L. Hargreaves, 26; H. Hemsworth, c A. Clark, c P. Hargreaves, b C. Dickenson, 12; H. Hemsworth, c J. Heaton, b C. Dickenson, 2; E. Hall, run out, 4; E. Moss, not out, 7; extras, 4; total (for 6 wkts.), 136.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

SHERBURN WHITE ROSE V. TADCASTER A.—At Sherburn. Scores:—Sherburn White Rose—J. E. Eliff 0, J. Gill 1, H. Cawthorne 0, C. Cooke 19, L. Hesselgrave 0, W. Eglin 0, Townend 2, J. Smith 3, B. Hey 1, R. Yeoman 0, T. Popplewell 0, extras 4; total 30. Tadcaster A.—R. Johnson 5, A. Mason 0, Chatfield 5, Kettlewell (not out) 13, A. Taylor 3, Nettleton 1, Smart (not out) 1; total (for 5 wkts.), 34.

KIRK DEIGHTON V. ULLESKELF.—At Kirk Deighton. Scores:—Kirk Deighton—F. Nicholson 4, E. Linfoot 1, R. Nicholson 0, H. Oxley 4, T. Beasley 1, J. Beasley 0, H. Bateman (not out) 10, W. Wrightson 0, A. Swann 2, G. White 10, C. Oxley 1, extras 3; total 41. Ulleskelf—J. Lacey 0, W. Ward 0, F. Holt 11, G. Lacey 0, J. Robinson 0, F. Stronach 5, F. Smith 4, D. Varey (not out) 17, extras 6; total (for 6 wkts.), 45.

SOUTH MILFORD A V. BARKSTON ASH.—At South Milford. Scores:—South Milford A.—Hill 3, Butcher 0, Bissett 0, Brown 10, Lindley 3, Stainburn (not out) 31, Wynne 4, Jerry 1, Chilton 9, Wilson 0, extras 1; total, 67. Barkston Ash—G. Liddle 1, J. Liddle 0, Thornton 2, Hills 17, White 1, Greenwood 0, E. Bailey 0, R. Bailey 0, Smith 0, Wood 0, Bateson (not out) 0, extras 3; total 37.

GARFORTH A V. MICKLEFIELD A.—At Garforth. Scores:—Micklefield A—T. Longden 3, H. Goodman 21, J. Simpson 5, L. Meakin 4, W. Townend 18, C. Shilito 1, H. Hilbert 11, J. Goodman 1, W. Kilburn (not out) 11, T. Limbert 3, A. Moakes 0, extras 5; total 78. Garforth A—H. Hancock 2, W. Bowering 23, W. Pickersgill 0, G. V. Fordham 5, W. Kilburn 7, R. Taylor 8, A. Hewitt (not out) 4, W. Ballance (not out) 0, extras 3; total for (7 wkts.), 52.

ABERFORD V. HALTON A.—At Aberford. Scores:—Halton A.—W. Hudson 0, C. Clark 4, J. Guest 2, Longdon 6, H. Guest 12, F. Nicholson 1, H. Dawson 4, H. Haigh (not out) 0, T. Nicholson 0, E. Wetherell 0, S. Clark 4, J. Inman 0, A. Aberford—J. Blakley 23, H. Abbot 0, A. Lupton 3, J. Inman 2, A. Inman 2, F. Walton 14, G. Connell (not out) 3, H. Markham 0, A. Stringer (not out) 1; total (for 7 wkts.), 48.

GREAT PRESTON A V. BARWICK A.—At Barwick. Scores:—Great Preston A—G. Wrigglesworth 2, W. Howson 0, H. Wrigglesworth 2, H. Firth 0, H. Collett 0, W. Thompson 2, W. Oldham 8, A. Wrigglesworth 0, Hy. Lilley (not out 20, Harry Lilley 3, E. Swales 3; total 39. Barwick A—W. Ingham 0, A. Robshaw 0, E. Backhouse 0, W. Woodhead 1, J. H. Robshaw 0, G. Brown 0, G. Coulthard 0, J. Drake 0, W. Markham (not out) 0, H. Poulter 0, W. A. Bramley 0, extra 1; total, 2.

LADIES
BLANCHARD'S PILLS
are warranted for all complaints peculiar to the female constitution. Any chemist can obtain them from the wholesale agents if not in stock. Beware of worthless imitations. Ask for BLANCHARD'S and take no other. Of all Chemists, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box. Free Sample and Pamphlet sent Free, Mention this paper. LESLIE BLANCHARD, Chemist, Scarborough.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

TADCASTER, MICKLEFIELD, CAWOOD, AND SAXTON AFFAIRS.

LANE FOX CUP SEMI-FINALS.

A meeting of the Executive of Barkston Ash Cricket Competition was held at the Hotel Metropole, Leeds, on Tuesday evening—Mr E. W. Herbert presiding. Other members present were Messrs E. D. Pawson (hon. sec.), A. Deighton (Church Fenton), K. Ward (Great Preston), E. Taylor (Shadwell), A. Flowith (Seacroft), J. Popplewell (Halton Wes.), W. H. Smith (Crossgates), J. H. Townend (Micklefield), and Alf. Johnson (South Milford).

Application was made by Swillington and Colton for permission to play a match for the benefit of W. Gascoigne, who had met with an accident.—Mr Flowith proposed that permission be given.—Mr Ward said that he was in favour of the application, but he remembered that a similar application he made for a man was refused.—Mr Flowith said that permission had been granted in similar cases.—The Chairman said that application should be made in each case, and there should be certain reasons why a benefit match should be played.—Mr Ward seconded, and this was agreed to.

Micklefield applied for permission to play a match for the benefit of J. Munro, who had been ill and off work.—Mr Johnson proposed that permission be granted.—Mr Flowith seconded, and this was agreed to.

It was reported that Saxton failed to turn up at Tadcaster, on July 11th, and they sent no notification. Tadcaster claimed the points, and a guinea fine.—Mr Ward: We have no option. It is according to rule.—Mr Pawson said he was told a number of the Saxton men were haymaking. The Chairman said that if Saxton had sent Tadcaster word in the morning they were not going to fulfil the engagement it would have saved them a lot of unnecessary work.—Mr Pawson said he hoped Tadcaster would do the best they could for Saxton.—The Chairman said he did not think Tadcaster would be hard on them.

A singular incident in the Cawood v Micklefield match on June 20th was then dealt with. The Hon. Sec. said that the scores he got were the same, and as nothing no umpire had reported anything, he wrote to Mr Hardcastle, of Church Fenton, who was one of the umpires, about it. He received the following letter from Mr Hardcastle:—

The reason why you have not received a report from me is entirely owing to the assignment of our representative (Mr G. H. Amber). I saw him after the match, and suggested that I should make a report to you. I told him all about the match, and he said that would be quite sufficient, and that when the matter came before the committee he would tell them what I had related to him. Now as to the match. Cawood batted first and scored, I think, 66 runs. Micklefield followed on, and scored 66 runs. The scores, however, by an error, shouted to the batsmen to leave the wicket, as they had won. On arrival at the tent the scores were added up again, and it was found to be a tie. Both teams came out again, but on arrival at the wicket (before another ball had been bowled) the scorers called out, "It's all right, come back." Micklefield had won. The players walked to the tent a second time. At this juncture I looked down the wicket, and found that the stumps at the other end had been drawn, and I pulled the stumps up at my end. I naturally thought that Mr Carroll (the other umpire) had pulled up the stumps at his end, but it appears that he had not done so, but that Land (the Cawood captain) had pulled them up. When the play had reached the tent the second time it was again found that the scores were level. The two captains and the umpires and also the representatives from Cawood (Mr R. Firn) and Micklefield had a consultation, and both Mr Carroll and myself said that the match would have to be continued according to rule, which says that the drawing time shall be 7.30—it was only 5.30 then—and longer if necessary. The Micklefield captain distinctly asked the Cawood captain to play on, but the Cawood captain refused. The Cawood captain held that as the stumps were drawn the match was over. I should like to say, in justice to the Cawood representative (Mr Firn), that he pressed Cawood to go on with the match, but the Cawood captain refused.

The Hon. Sec. explained that he did not think it advisable to call a meeting to deal with this matter, and after consulting with the President, he notified the clubs that the match should stand as a win for Micklefield.

The Chairman said this was the second case of the kind that had arisen this season.

Mr Smith proposed that the hon. sec.'s action be confirmed, Mr Flowith seconded, and this was agreed to.

The semi-finals for the Lane Fox Cup will be played on August 8th. Crossgates and Tadcaster will meet at Church Fenton, and Seacroft and South Milford will play at Garforth.

The Chairman said that hitherto the runners-up in the Senior League had got a prize of £5 but there would, owing to the three divisions, be three clubs in the semi-finals, and he thought they should decide how the prizes should be allocated.—Mr Smith suggested that the runners-up in the final should receive £2, and the runners-up in the semi-finals £1. The Hon. Sec. suggested that a better arrangement would be to give the two clubs 30s. each.—Mr Ward agreed, and said they did not want more expense.—Mr Taylor proposed that each club get 30s., and Mr Townend seconded.—Mr Smith proposed a resolution on the lines of his suggestion, and it was seconded, but it was agreed to give 30s. each to the runners-up.

A sum of £1 10s. has been given to the runners-up in the Junior League, and as there are two teams to consider this season, it was decided to give each 15s.

Fines were imposed on the following teams for not sending results of matches according to rule:—Barkston Ash (Senior), Saxton, Kirk Deighton, Micklefield A., Halton Wes. A., and Sherburn W.R.

R. HOYLAND, Secretary.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY

Carlton v. Kippax. Messrs Fox and Morley.

Outwood v. Oulton. Messrs Lumb and Tate.

Robin Hood v. Rothwell. Messrs Tattersall and Whitehead.

Woodlesford v. Stanley. Messrs Holden and Newsome.

R. HOYLAND, Secretary.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

EXCITING COLLIERY STORY!
DO NOT MISS THE OPENING
CHAPTERS OF
"The Double Chance"
By J. S FLETCHER, the well-known Novelist

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE DOUBLE CHANCE.

By J. S. FLETCHER

Author of "The Threshing Floor," "When Caesar Died," "The King," "Daniel Quayne," "The Pinfold," &c.

CHAPTER I.

On a certain evening of early spring, just about the time when the last glimmer of twilight is about to fade into the final darkness of dusk, a woman opened the door of a lowly cottage which stood in the midst of a bleak, treeless high shore a dozen valley, and, standing on the doorstep, looked at the lights which had already begun to twinkle far below. From force of habit, contracted long before and practised through many years, she shaded her eyes with her right hand, although the need had then been done a good half-hour; an observer would have thought she was peering anxiously through the gloom—as she was listening for the sound of a heavy step on the rocky path which came upwards from the stream at the foot of the bank. It was her custom to listen for this footstep every night, and because the sun also directed on the path at that hour and at that hour she had contracted the custom of shielding her eyes.

All familiar aspects of the landscape were still plainly visible to this solitary watcher. On the opposite side of the valley she saw the quiet old castle in which a Saxon king had his state, and near it the old church, square-towered, grey-walled, scarcely visible except the picturesque inn, with its thatched roof and timbered gables; an old farmhouse or two; cottages, whose ages were counted by generations instead of by years. Near by was a complete contrast in, a hotel, a row of red brick cottages, built on regular and mathematical lines, not one brick of which had been there in her girlhood—no, nor for years after she was wife and mother. There was always some resentment in her as she looked at these evidences of modernity—she resented that where the new village now lay there were fields which were famous for their mushrooms, and coppices where she and her mates used to gather nuts, and where her companions had played. And beneath this new village of industry and the river rose the outward evidence of the underground force which had made this change—those old and picturesque outer works of a colossal, the gigantic shaftings, the mighty scaffoldings, the great wheels, the ugly engine-houses, machinery-houses, the mountainous banks of slag—all of which had sprung into being since that day when a scientific man with a long nose and blue spectacles who was stopping at the Castle told Sir Robert Mannersley that his ancient estate lay over a coal seam which might prove to be worth millions.

Margaret Britten turned from this scene full of a wistful longing. She had the instinct of folk who are born and bred on the soil, and change was hard to bear. She had first seen the light in that cottage; she and her man had lived in it when her own father and mother died in it when her own father and mother died; she had borne her own children. All connected with her had earned their living on the land in the old, healthful ways—as labourers, gamekeepers, woodmen. Now there was only one man of her family left—her son—and instead of following the plough over the broad uplands behind the cottage, or assuming the keeper's dark coat, he, too, had chosen another calling. King Coal, and earned his money—good money, as she knew—as checkweighman at the colliery.

As she turned to glance within the cottage doorway Margaret heard Jim's step on the rock-strewn pathway far below, and a look of pleasure flashed across her face. She ran within and opened the door of the oven a few inches, and took a peep at something which was undergoing some process inside, and thereby suffered a savoury odour to escape which reached the nostrils of Jim Britten twenty yards away.

"That smells good, mother!" he exclaimed a minute later, as he came bustling into the cottage, and seizing Margaret by her ample waist hugged her cheekily. "Now, what are you about over at Mannersley! What is it this time?"

"It's liver and bacon, with an onion for flavour, and a gravy that you could stand a spoon in, my lad," replied Margaret, as she began to bustle about. "So get your cleaning-up done and fall to while it's hot."

"No second invitation needed, mother," responded Jim, with alacrity, and plunged into the back-place of the cottage, where he was presently making a great noise with soap and water, and from whence he quickly emerged with shining face and damp hair. "I'm sharper set than ever to-night, mother," he remarked, as he drew a chair to the table and looked approvingly at the smoking dish which Margaret set before him.

"Then lay knife aboard, lad," counselled his mother.

Now that her immediate duties were done she sat down in her easy-chair by the hearth and watched her son eat, a smile of keen enjoyment overspreading her broad, good-humoured countenance. She was one of those old-fashioned women who delight in seeing their menfolk do full justice to their victuals, and who believe—and rightly —that exercise and hard work are the surest sign of sound health. Margaret Britten, in short, was happiest when she was busy, and at the close of his day's labours proving himself a mighty trencherman, and it was her great pride to study his appetite and to tickle his palate. And it was worth it, she said to herself as she sat watching him—a fine, handsome lad of five-and-twenty, straight as a rush, and, with clear grey eyes and direct look, and a head of thick brown hair which still curled as obstinately as when he was a baby in arms. No properer young man in all that countryside, thought Margaret; nor one, other folk might have said, that was more modest, considering that he was all that was left to a mother who had consecrated her heart to him.

"Any news to-day, Jim?" asked Margaret, when the young man had taken off the final edge of his appetite. "Aught happened?"

"Well, I have heard some news, mother," replied Jim, thoughtfully regarding the inroads which he had made on the supper-dish, and then helping himself again. "It's little more than a rumour, but I believe there is a bit of truth in it. Sir Robert's thinking of starting a grand sort of club for the men."

"Some of them men'll get till they don't know what ails 'em," said Margaret, with a sniff. "Why can't they hide at home same as you do?"

Jim laughed, and gave her a wink. "Most of 'em have got a good deal more than I have, mother," he said. "A place like that would do a lot of good."

"I guess that'll be one of Miss Phillipa's ideas," said Margaret. She's always full of plans for doing grand things for them colliers. Nobody did nought for farm-labourers in my time."

"We live in different times, mother," said Jim.

"Aye, marry, and see some different goings-on!" sighed Margaret. She rose and poured fresh tea into her son's cup. "I see that new manager to-day," she said. "I went down the lane to see how poor Sarah Dickinson is and he came by, riding his horse, when I was standing at their garden gate talking to Jane Dickinson. I don't wonder the men don't like him. Jim—there's no doubt he's a handsome young fellow, but I never saw such eyes in all my born days! He fair made me dither—his eyes is that black and fierce."

"I don't know how it is that Mr. Quinton isn't liked," said Jim, thoughtfully. "And as to calling him a new manager, mother—why, he's been here nearly two years! Time to prove him, that. I expect it's because he's very firm, and notices a bit sharp and nearer to it or gear manner known that you were back and had got across again with Sir Robert—it would."

"Why, Jim?"

"Why, sir, because all the men, to every man and lad, believed you innocent, and that there was some secret matter," answered Jim. "On that point to this day, sir, it wouldn't take much to raise a riot."

Clinton stared at him almost incredulously. "You know, sir, what a favourite you were," continued Jim, "and how used to talk to them about racing, and give them tips, and——"

He paused, and seemed to be inviting Clinton to speak.

"Well," said Clinton, "what then, Jim?"

Jim bent forward and spoke in an earnest whisper. "There's Miss Phillipa to be considered, Mr. Clinton," he said. "Hasn't she been through enough already?"

Clinton jumped to his feet in an agitation which he could not conceal.

"Been through enough?" he said, hoarsely "I should think she has been through enough —we've both been through enough Jim, I must see Phillipa—now! Jim, be quick, my uncle refuses to do what he can do, I want her——"

"Well, sir?"

"I want her to follow me out there, and we'll start a new life in a new land!" said Clinton, clenching his hands. "We're engaged, after all, and his first duty's to me!"

Jim had risen and, as he stood staring at his foster-brother,

"Nay, sir, nay!" he said. "Get yourself down at once. You've made a mistake, I'm sure old Miss Phillipa I should tell you so. You couldn't have broken away from there, sir, if there wasn't. You'd ha' stop; I would soon have passed, and you'd have been a free man. Now you're not free. Listen, Mr. Clinton. I'll arrange for you to see Miss Phillipa to-morrow night, and you must see what she says about seeing her father. But if you'll take my advice, sir, when that's done you'll go back and give yourself up. And——"

But Clinton, standing in the room overhead made them both start.

"That's mother," said Jim, "I shall have to tell her you're here, sir. You don't mind, sir?"

"Mind!" exclaimed Clinton. "If you'd seen a few kind faces here this last year or two you'd be glad to see one you could trust, Jim!"

The moment later Margaret, clad in a medley of nondescript garments and a mighty nightcap, burst into the room and threw her arms round her foster-son's neck.

Had the three people thus reunited only known it, at that very hour Colonel Clinton Mannersley through the woods, and had watched him and Jim Britten through the coffin window, now safely away and made off towards the village, meditating on the secret he had discovered.

(To be continued.)

SHORT STORY.

THE PEACHES.

The first time that I saw my old friend and fellow-student, Vital Herbelot, after our graduation, he was twenty-five years old. I was then held by our class in the halls of our Alma Mater. I was not a little surprised to find my friend a Vital Herbelot very different from the young student with whom I used to get my Livy. In our college days he was a shy, tall, thin youth; now I saw before me a solid, well-built, jolly fellow, with a voice of that high, frank tone which indicates that a man accustomed to speak without weighing his words. Certainly his whole appearance was out of keeping with that of a lawyer.

"Well, well!" exclaimed with surprise as soon as I had seen him, "what has happened to you? Have you thrown up law?"

"Oh, yes," he replied. "I gave that up years ago, —and all on account of two peaches."

"You know," said Vital, after we had entered the train, "you know that my father was a politician and a deputy, and that he had destined me to the same career. Well, after studying a year or two with him, I became attached to the Bureau of Administration.

"About this time I married. Everybody said that I had acted like a fool, for neither of us had any money; but she was young and pretty, and we were very much in love.

"My Director-General was a wealthy man. He loved to make a display, and flattered himself that I might be considered a prominent figure in the world. He gave frequent dinners and receptions, and not long after my marriage he honoured my wife and myself by sending us an invitation to a dancing party. At the last moment my wife was taken ill.

"Just as I was about to set out, my wife said, as she smoothed out my neck-tie: 'I suppose everything is ready, dear, and that you can discover everything. I shall want to know what the ladies wore, and what they had for supper, and—and everything.'

"We had heard that there were to be elaborate refreshments. Good things, it had been rumoured, had been ordered from Paris; and peaches, which cost two francs apiece, had been spoken of. As my wife was ill, I resolved to get her some.

"'Oh, yes; the peaches! Do you know, my dear, I must have one of those peaches! If you——'

"I cried out in surprise. I had to shew her how impossible it was for a man wearing an evening suit to smuggle a peach out of the house. But the more I objected, the more she insisted.

"'There's a fashion in peaches, as in all else,' she crowned, no one will notice you. You can take one as though you wanted it yourself, and then you can easily hide it. Don't shrug your shoulders like that. Since I have been ill I have learned how to be cunning. I have been dying to have one. Promise me, dear, to bring me one.'

"What could I do but promise?

"I left the house, the sight of which filled me with despair. As yet I had had no opportunity to pilfer any of the coveted fruit. As I rose, however, I remembered that there were to be elaborate refreshments at the dinner-table, and that remaining on the sideboard would be the most gracefully did the honours.

"At midnight, supper was announced, and the guests passed into the dining-room. As I entered, I glanced rapidly around me. In the centre, giving forth a delicate, delicious odour and presenting a most ravishing lustre to the eye, were the peaches! Oh! they were magnificent!

"Everyone, as he passed, gave the guests to leave the room

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS

The fortnightly meeting of the Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the Guardians' Offices, Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Dr. E. Groves, Messrs T. G. Conyers, W. Schofield, D. O. Hargreaves, G. Armitage, J. Butterfield, T. Bennett, E. B. Pickersgill, W. Stead, J. W. Verity, G. W. Peace, and W. Hemingway, with the Clerk (Mr F. W. Mee).

At a meeting of the Children's Homes Committee, the sub-committee reported a further interview with the Rothwell Urban District Council's Water Committee with regard to the terms and conditions of the Homes water supply, and that the Committee refused to grant such a supply by rent as required, but ultimately expressed their willingness to allow 5 per cent. off the meter charges of 6s per 1,000 gallons. A letter was received from the Rothwell Council repeating the offer made at such further interview, and asking the Guardians' decision thereon; and stating that no question was raised as to correctness of the meter reading to 30th September last, and requesting that the account be paid as it stands. The Clerk reported he had written other Unions enquiring their consumption of and payment for water for their cottage homes, and so far had only received replies from Bradford, Bramley, and Dewsbury stating that they had an unlimited supply by rent. It was resolved that the matter be adjourned for the replies to the enquiries of other Unions to come to hand.

A letter was received from the Clerk to the Leeds Education Committee with reference to the proposal of the Guardians to take Herbert Arrowsmith away from school, stating that he feels sure they disagree with the proposal, but that he will write further after a decision has been come to. It was resolved that the matter be adjourned to the next meeting.

The minutes were passed.

At a meeting of the House Committee the Workhouse master reported that seven deaths had occurred in the institution during the fortnight. One birth was also reported. It was resolved that the Homes Committee be invited to play a return cricket match on August 26th.

The minutes were passed.

A letter was read from the Local Government Board sanctioning the appointment of Mr G. W. Steel as relieving officer to the number three district of the Union at an annual salary of £120, rising by £5 each year until the maximum of £150 has been reached.

Quite a stir was caused in the Board room when one of the members descried one of the aeroplanes flying between Leeds and Bradford in connection with the Yorkshire Show, and there was a suspension of business for a few moments owing to the members dashing to the windows and watching the machine

Roundhay Flower Show.

At the Roundhay Flower Show, which was opened at Roundhay Park by the Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr E. A. Brotherton) on Saturday, the predominant features of the exhibits were the displays of roses and sweet peas. The most notable exhibit in the open classes was the display of 24 distinct varieties of cut roses grown by Mr H. Drew, of Longworth, Berkshire. This exhibit gained the "Brotherton Challenge Trophy," a 25-guinea cup presented by the Lord Mayor to the Roundhay and District Horticultural Society for annual competition.

At the opening ceremony the Lord Mayor, who was accompanied by the Lady Mayoress (Mrs C. Ratcliffe), was supported by Major Dent, Mr T. S. Barber (chairman of the Roundhay Horticultural Society), Mr J. F. Walker, and Mr L. Owen (chairman of the Parks Committee of the Leeds Corporation). The Lord Mayor said all credit was due to the chairman and the committee for the ungrudging effort which they had made. They had done every thing that they could have done and it rested with the public to make the show a success.

The principal results were as follows:—

OPEN

Cut Roses, 24 blooms, distinct varieties.—H. Drew, Berks.; 2, G. and W. H. Burch.

Cut Roses, 12 blooms, tea and hybrid teas—R. Harkness and Co.; 2, H. Drew; 3, G. and W. H. Burch.

Cut Roses, 12 blooms in 4 varieties—H. Drew; 2, W. J. Brown and Co.; 3, R. Harkness and Co.

Cut Roses, 12 vases, teas and hybrid teas—H. Drew; 2, R. Harkness and Co.; 3, W. J. Bewan and Co.

Sweet Peas, distinct varieties—C. E. Taylor, Orer Kellett; 2, A. Wormald.

Sweet Peas, 12 distinct varieties—C. E. Taylor; 2, S. Shackleton; 3, A. Wormald.

Summer Bedding—W. Allsopp; 2, F. W. Aldis and Co.

Cut Roses, 12 blooms, distinct varieties—J. W. Merrall; 2, D. G. Law; 3, W. Boyes. Teas and hybrid teas—J. W. Merrall; 2, W. Boyes; 3, D. G. Law.

Sweet Peas, distinct varieties—C. E. Taylor; 2, S. Shackleton; 3, A. Wormald. Six bunches —J. Barrett; 2, S. Shackleton.

AMATEURS

Cut Roses, 12 blooms, 8 varieties—J. E. Fryer; 2, W. W. Brearey; 3, H. Harrop. 6 blooms, distinct varieties—W. W. Brearey; 2, F. J. Issott; 3, H. Harrop.

Sweet Peas, distinct varieties—H. Harrop; 2, W. Baldwin; 3, G. E. Longbottom. Six bunches—H. Harrop; Issott; 2, W. Baldwin; 3, G. E. Longbottom.

Hardy Perennials—E. Bell; 3, E. J. Bulmer.

Violas, distinct varieties—E. Bell; 2, H. Chapman; 3, E. Waters

Dining Table Decoration (special class for ladies)—Mrs. W. Robertson; 2, Mrs J. E. Fryer; 3, Mrs R. Bacon; 4, Mrs Ben Day.

Basket of Roses for Table—Mrs B. Day; 2, Mrs E. Macpherson; 3, Mrs H. Harrop.

Sweet Peas, distinct varieties—W. W. Richardson; 2, E. Macpherson. Three bunches—W. W. Richerison; 2, C. Walker; 3, Mrs Hudson.

Violas, distinct varieties—1, E. Macpherson; 2, C. Walker; 3, Mrs Hudson.

Collection of Vegetables—Mrs Hudson; 2, S. Oddy; 23, H. Shann.

Baskets of Hardy Flowers (Ladies Only)—Mrs E. Macpherson; 2, Mrs J. E. Fryer; 3, Mrs E. J. Bulmer.

Cut Roses, three varieties—F. J. Issott; 2, E. Waters; 3, E. Bacon. Three blooms, distinct varieties—F. J. Issott; 2, J. P. Burrow; 3, J. Dodd. Three blooms, light variety—F J Issott; 2, J. P. Burrow.

Sweet Peas, four bunches, distinct varieties—C. Walker; 2, S. Oddy; 3, J. Jones.

Vase of Sweet Peas—S. Oddy; 2, F. T. Chadwick; 3, J. E. Fryer.

Violas, four vases, distinct varieties—J. E. Dunley; 2, J. E. Fryer; 3, J. P. Burrow.

North of England Horticultural Society's Medals:—Gold medals—W. Alloop, Leeds (decorative group of roses); Dobbie and Co., Edinburgh (sweet peas); J. Peeds and Sons, (calienthums); W. and J. H. Brown, Peterborough (roses); P. Ghiloni, Leeds (decorative exhibit).

Silver Medals—W. Lawrenson, Yarm-on-Tees (carnations); Ker and Sons, Liverpool (miscellaneous collection); P. Ghiloni, Leeds (decorative exhibits); Sam Dean and Sons, Bradford (violas); F. C. Edwards and Sons, Leeds (carnations).

Silver-gilt Medals—G. Gibson (herbaceous collection); G. W. Millar (herbaceous collection); W. Arundel and Son (violas); Rev. C. Gallacher (gloxinias).

Bronze Medal—J. Firth and Sons (geraniums).

BARKSTON ASH FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING—COMPETITION FORMED

GARFORTH AND MILFORD TROUBLES AGAIN

The adjourned annual meeting of Barkston Ash Football Association was held at the Station Hotel, Crossgates, on Wednesday night—Mr J. R. Batty (President) in the chair. Others present were Messrs A. Deighton (Church Fenton), Allison (Monk Fryston), J. H. Clay (Wetherby), Irish (Wetherby Con.), H. Metcalfe and F. Hesp (Tadcaster), H. Tankard (Barwick), T. S. Slater (Garforth), W. L. Moss (Whitkirk), F. Inman (Aberford), W. A. Osborne (hon. sec.), and A. Flowith (hon. treas.).

Mr Inman proposed that a competition be formed, Mr Hesp seconded, and this was agreed to.

Several gentlemen intimated their intention of retiring from office, and Mr J. H. Clay (Wetherby) was appointed President, Messrs A. Flowith (Crossgates) and F. Inman (Aberford) vice-(Crossgates) and F. Inman (Aberford) vice-presidents, and Mr H. Metcalfe (Tadcaster) hon. sec. and treasurer. Messrs A. Deighton (Church Fenton), G. E. Barker (Selby), and H. Tankard (Barwick) were elected members of the Executive, and Messrs Clay and Flowith were appointed members of Barkston Ash Commission. Mr W. Tate, incorporated accountant, was elected hon. auditor, and a vote of thanks was passed to him for his past services.

Mr Slater said he wanted to say something about certain remarks in the hon. sec.'s report at last meeting concerning Garforth. He understood that at a meeting of the West Riding Association they were told to bury the hatchet, and he was sorry that Mr Osborne had opened the case about Garforth Club not being sportsmen. Garforth had not been treated fairly, and when they laid an objection against South Milford it was treated as frivolous. Was that sportsmanlike.

The Chairman said that was outside the business of the meeting.

Mr Slater: The remark was that we were not sportsmen. And it was said we retained the shield. That I deny.

The Chairman: Did you return it, according to rule?

Mr Slater: There is no rule to that effect.

The Chairman: There is.

Mr Slater: Did Micklefield return it?

Mr Osborne: Two wrongs don't make a right.

Mr Slater: Mr Osborne asked me to fetch it from Micklefield, and the year following when we won the shield again—

Mr Osborne: That has nothing to do with my remarks.

Mr Slater: Not even a match was arranged for it to be prevented. We were asked last season to take the shield to Tadcaster, and I said they could fetch it.

Mr Metcalfe said he considered Mr Osborne's report an excellent and truthful one.

Mr Slater: I don't think so, because we did not retain the shield.

Mr Osborne said he was expected to give an annual report and he gave it. He did not say Garforth were not sportsmen, but he said it was not a sportsmanlike action. With regard to fetching the shield from Micklefield, Mr Slater offered to do it, and the reason was that Garforth had a match, and it was to be presented.

Mr Clay: A lo' of this trouble has arisen between the Garforth and South Milford clubs. It has been going on for two years, and I am sorry to see it.

Mr Osborne: As explained in my report.

Mr Clay: We have had bother with other clubs, but we do not carry it from season to season. We are prepared to meet them as sportsmen and friends.

Mr Slater said that South Milford had arranged to play Garforth a charity match, but they did not turn up, and the Executive did nothing to them. Was not that showing spite to Garforth?

Mr Osborne: Certainly not. I have nothing to do with Milford.

Mr Slater said that all the bother arose over a Milford full-back fouling a little lad.

Mr Metcalfe said the difficulty had been that if things did not go as Garforth desired they thought everybody's hand was against them.

There was more talk, and then it was decided to proceed with the business.

It was reported that the following clubs would join a Senior League were one formed:—Micklefield, White Star, Wetherby, South Milford, Aberford, and Tadcaster.

The following clubs applied for membership of the Junior League:—Barwick United, Barwick Rising Sun, Monk Fryston, Wetherby Corinthians, Church Fenton United, Boston Spa, Whitkirk, Sherburn, Aberford A., and Micklefield White Star A.

Mr Clay said that Wetherby Cor. were willing to join the Deighton Shield Competition if there were no Junior League, but they preferred the latter. They could not run a Senior League with five clubs.

The Chairman said that the difficulty of putting all the clubs in one League, and playing in one division was expense.

Mr Moss said that Whitkirk, who were a young team, would not join the Deighton Shield Competition.

Mr Slater suggested that the question should be adjourned, and clubs asked their opinion as to joining the Senior League.

Eventually Mr Deighton moved that only one League be formed, and Mr Tankard seconded.

Mr Flowith proposed that two Leagues be formed, and Mr Allison, who seconded, said it would be a farce Monk Fryston playing against senior teams.

It was decided, by five votes to four, to have only one competition, and that the Deighton Shield be played for.

Mr Flowith proposed a vote of thanks to Mr Batty and Mr Osborne for their services to the Association. He paid a tribute to the excellent work they had done on behalf of local football.

Mr Inman, who seconded, said he was sorry they were retiring.

Mr Clay supported, and proposed a vote of thanks to Mr Flowith for his services, and Mr Irish seconding, this was adopted.

Mr Osborne proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs Ryder, and to the "Skyrack Courier," Mr Metcalfe seconded, and this was adopted.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TADCASTER GUARDIANS—A CONTRAST.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Some few weeks ago I read in your interesting paper that the Tadcaster Board of Guardians could not see their way to support a resolution from some other Union to increase the old-age pension from 5s. to 7s. 6d. per week. The Tadcaster Guardians apparently deem the present amount ample, or are studying the ratepayers' pockets, although I have read that the old-age pension has reduced pauperism considerably and consequently saved the ratepayers' pockets.

The comparison I wish to draw is from the last meeting of the Guardians, when it was decided to increase the salary of their Clerk (who was already receiving over £400 per year) by a further £135. The veterans of industry are expected to live on a pension of 5s. per week, but the Clerk requires over £500 per year. With the prospect of a handsome pension of perhaps £200 to £300 per year if he serves the Guardians faithfully and well.

I am not criticising the gentleman's work, nor the importance of it, but I do find fault with these Guardians of the "poor" when the working classes are being considered. They woefully uphold the old proverb "Unto him that hath," etc. In time the working classes will probably have sense enough to send their own class to control their own affairs, but until that time they will have to put up with the present uneven state of affairs.—Yours, etc.,

OBSERVER.

TADCASTER COUNTY COUNCILLOR AND KEENNESS.

To the Editor.

Sir,—In your issue last week I was interested in reading a speech by Mr Sykes, C.C., at the Sherburn Agricultural Show, a comment in your very interesting "Flowings" drawing my attention to it. Mr Sykes is reported to have said that the young men of to-day lacked keenness and ambition, and, although he was speaking to agriculturists, I assume his remarks applied generally. Farmers, as a whole, do not lack keenness, and as for the farm worker he is showing his keenness and ambition by organising and demanding improved conditions all over the country, but I am afraid it is not appreciated by the employer who has, and yet considers that these qualities should be utilised solely for his benefit.

As to other industries, and particularly the one Mr Sykes is interested in, I venture to say that the men are just as ambitious and as keen as ever, and every bit as clever, but the fact is they are not seen, or if so, unrecognised. The condition of the workers in the brewery was not, by any stretch of imagination, good until they organised and demanded improved wages, which now are little enough when one considers the huge profits made.

In other departments it is well known that the avenues to the higher and better paid posts are closed to the ordinary individual. Unless influence is at work there is neither encouragement nor hope for the ordinary worker, and, judging by the miserable wages paid, he is of very poor value, indeed.

Amongst the clerical staff in the brewery discontent is rife, and the wages paid in that department are not a credit to any firm which poses as modern, many of the lower paid being in receipt of wages which a scavenger, roadman, or labourer would scorn. As a class they are long-suffering and patient, but eventually they will be bound to recognise that combination and concerted action are the only remedy for an impossible state. There are slackers in every body of men, but to one who is familiar with the wages and conditions it is surprising to find so many honest and conscientious workers, especially when one considers the smallness of the profits they receive, but are helping to create. It is all very well to take a pride in the rapid and immense growth of the concern Mr Sykes is head of, but I cannot imagine much credit for those who are pocketing the profits and paying the miserable wages which are given. The success of any firm is not due to the energy of a chosen few, but to the workers as a whole employed in that particular industry. Several firms do recognise this fact to a certain extent, and where this is so labour troubles and dissatisfaction are not heard of. A satisfied worker is worth six dissatisfied ones and that fact must reveal itself eventually. Thanking you for space, and also for your most interesting and unbiassed paper.—Yours, etc.,

HOPEFUL.

Selby Show and Gala.

The annual flower show and gala at Selby were held on Saturday. The gala scarcely possesses the prestige of former days, when with fewer counter attractions a large contingent of visitors was won, to flock into the Abbey town from neighbouring villages and places. From time to time there has been an attempt to secure new features in the programme which would attract the public, but this is not always easy to accomplish. The evening's programme, however, still brings together a large assembly of people, including many visitors from the country districts.

For many years the event was held on the Thursday, but since the revival of the show Saturday has been selected in the hope of securing extended patronage. The alteration, however, loses the attendance of the tradespeople, who are unable to leave their shops and places of business on Saturday. Cheap excursions and the pleasures of motoring and cycling have brought about vast changes and the hospital gala now competes strongly with the time-honoured local fete.

In the flower tents there was a considerable number of choice exhibits, the groups of plants being splendid. There was also a creditable display of fruits and vegetables. Athletic sports, horse leaping, and gymnastic displays by noted performers, combined to make an excellent programme.

Mrs H. Connell acted as chairman of the committee, and Mr George Foster as vice-chairman. The duties of secretary were carried out by Mr James Kentall.

The attendance in the afternoon was very small, there being a drop in the receipts compared with the last show of about £20. In the evening, however, the gathering was up to the average. The programmes of music contributed by the Olympia Military Band were very much appreciated. The fete was brought to a close by a display of fireworks

A SELBY COW STORY.

A remarkable case of an animal's affection for her offspring is reported from Selby. At the Live Stock Auction Mart on Monday, a cow and calf were disposed of, and were parted, each to go to different owners, but on the following day the cow turned up at the mart in search of her calf.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
Huddersfield: " 1609.

William GREENWOOD.
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.

— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
TELEPHONE BY CENTRAL.
OR THE MAKERS,
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

Doyle's Durable Pottery.
A Remarkable Achievement in the Production of Ware that will resist the HARDEST USAGE.
Doyle's are this week making a special display of a wonderful new Ware for use in Hotels, Restaurants, etc. This remarkable Ware will withstand an enormous amount of hard usage, and will be the means of cutting down the breakage cost considerably. It is as "tough as Rawhide." Call and let us give you a demonstration of its capabilities without obligation to purchase.
SPECIAL WINDOW DISPLAY THIS WEEK.
59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.
DOYLE'S, LTD.

SMART & SON,
3 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.
SPECIAL LINE OF
TOYS. — DOLLS. — GAMES.
Week-end Hampers, Suit Cases and Basket Ware.
ALL THE LATEST LINES.
For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,
SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

FLUIDS WITH MEALS.

There is a good deal to be said in favour of the argument that the moderate taking of fluids at meals is not without benefit, says a writer in Health, but the importance of the thorough mastication of food before it is presented to the stomach must never be overlooked. If this is interfered with in any way by the use of liquids we must promptly prohibit their indulgence. The saliva is the best lubricator for the food while it is in the mouth, both because of its starch-digesting powers and because its alkalinity serves to stimulate a copious flow of the acid secretions of the stomach. Any habit, therefore, which permits the entrance of food into the stomach before it is thoroughly incorporated with saliva must be pronounced pernicious in the extreme. If we cannot afford the time necessary for masticating our food properly and incorporating it thoroughly with saliva, it would be better to take nothing but broths and similar foods. The use of water and other liquids as lubricators is not to be tolerated.

PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday were Ald. E. C. Brooksbank (Chairman), Mr C. B. Lamb, Mr E. M. Lawson Smith, Mr J. H. Ingleby, Mr F. Wailes Fairburn, and Mr G. T. Fairfax.

A PRIZE-WINNER.—At Roundhay Show on Saturday much interest was taken in the table decorations—competition limited to ladies—and good taste and judgment were shown in most cases in the arrangement of flowers and delicate foliage. Mrs William Robertson, of Roundhay, received the first prize, a silver rose bowl, given by Mr F. W. Spruce

Mr G. Gunter, of Wetherby, and Mr R. J. Foster, Stockeld Park, were exhibitors in the horse classes at the Yorkshire Show.

GOLF.—In the ladies' competition at Wetherby for the Hon. Eleanor Hawke's prize the results were:—Mrs Dalby, all square; Miss Metcalfe, 3 down; Miss Hilda Buxton, 4 down; Mrs Mallinson, 5 down; Mrs Sykes, 6 down.

BEE-KEEPING.—On Saturday at Roundhay Show one of the tents contained an interesting exhibit of run honey, section honey, and working bees sent by the Yorkshire Beekeepers' Association, and outside useful demonstrations were given by Mr W. E. Richardson, of Whitkirk, the beekeepers' expert, in transferring bees out of the old-fashioned straw skep into the more scientific and economical bar-framed hive. Visitors were much interested in hearing lucid explanations of the life of the bee and its great mission in the fertilisation of fruit and flowers.

WETHERBY GOLF CLUB.—The competition for the Mykhreest Challenge Bowl (presented by Mr T. G. Mykhreest, Elvetis, Thorner) took place on the Wetherby links on Saturday, 32 cards being taken out. The following returned the best cards:—W. H. Platts, 80, 4, 76; N. Graydon, 85, 8, 77; R. Smithson, 89, 12, 77; T. Bath, 90, 12, 78; E. R. Wawn, 81, 3, 78; G. F. Parkinson, 86, 6, 80; E. R. Wilson, 88, 8, 80; P. Pulleyne, 91, 11, 80; H. G. Gilbert, 96, 15, 81; Dr W. F. Steele, 91, 9, 82; J. Pearson, 93, 11, 82. The members were entertained to tea by the President, and the bowl was presented to Mr Platts by Mrs Mykhreest.

Annual Clearance Sale.

WATCH OUR WINDOWS DAILY FOR BARGAINS IN
Costumes, Dresses, Skirts, Raincoats, Blouses.

SMITH & PETTY,
MANTLE WAREHOUSE,
44, Lowerhead Row (3 Doors from Briggate,) LEEDS

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291.
" CROSSGATES 6.
DOBSON & CO.,
— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —
Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,
SEACROFT, AND
70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.
Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.
PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.
96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.
Telephone No. 253. JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary

THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW MAKING A
SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS
In all the LATEST STYLES, for
SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.
LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.
5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared
BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Stores,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Alex Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

ALLPASS & CO., LTD.,
Established over Thirty Years Ago.
HOUSE FURNISHERS,
Cash or Deferred Payments.
BABY CARS & WASHING MACHINERY
A Speciality.
UPPERHEAD ROW, LEEDS.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 83— [Registered at the G.P.O.] as a Newspaper. NEW SERIES. SATURDAY, AUGUST 1 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
LIGHTNING PROGRAMME.
THE STAGE ALWAYS OCCUPIED.
MONDAY, AUGUST 3rd, 1914.
HEDGES BROS. & JACOBSON,
The Pioneers of Ragtime, with New Numbers.
JACK PLEASANTS. The Shy Comedian.
CHAS. STEVENS. AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.
DAISY SLOAN. DOWNES & LANGFORD.
DORANE SISTERS AND WOOD.
THE MARTINEKS, in "The Rag Doll."
ALVARETTO REGO & STOPIT.
Comedy Acrobats. "I Can't Shut My Mouth."
TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY,
AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.
EVERY ITEM A SPECIAL FEATURE.
NO WAITS.
Booking Office open at Theatre, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily for advance booking of Boxes, Orchestra Stalls, and Grand Circle.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
THIS WEEK.
WILKIE BARD.
EMELIE HAYES.
DAISY STRATTON.
BILLY FRENCH.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
ALBERT REES.
JAN RUDENYI.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 2s., 6d., and 4d.

CITY VARIETIES, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY AT 7 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, AUGUST 3rd, 1914.
JACKSON FAMILY.
HANA TRIO.
GEORGE LEAVERN.
BIOSCOPE.
PERRY AND PERRY.
RENE.
DARTY AND PARTNER.
Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate).
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY.
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Established 1868
SPARKLING HOSFERADE
AN EMULSIFYING & REFRESHING BEVERAGE.
OBTAINABLE IN ALL BOTTLE RESTAURANTS & HALLES
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd LEEDS.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

It is evident that Garforth is not paying its way, although it may not be so badly placed as some villages that could be mentioned. Last year the cost of Garforth cases to Leeds Infirmary was £311, and the Medical Charities Society contributed £30, while I believe about £70 was sent from the colliery. Collections are made at the churches and various individuals subscribe to the funds direct, but when all is totalled it will be found that Garforth is indebted to the Infirmary. Last year the deficiency on the working at the Infirmary was nearly £14,000—think of that—and in order to pay their way the governors had to sell stock, thus reducing both the reserve fund and the income. It is obvious that this cannot go on for very long, and it would be a calamity were the activities of the institution in anywise curtailed. Thousands of the people would suffer in consequence. The Infirmary is being extended at the present time, and £30,000 is required to meet the cost. Where is it to come from? Then when the extension is completed and the new wards occupied additional income will be required. It is evident that the governors have faith, otherwise would they would not go ahead. And they are quite right, too. The Infirmary is just as necessary as our isolation hospitals, which are maintained by the ratepayers, and it may be taken for granted that if the people will not support the Infirmary voluntarily they will eventually be compelled to do so. That, I'm afraid, is what it is coming to.

Cases sent for trial from Tadcaster and the Skyrack Courts have been thrown out by grand juries, and I believe local magistrates favour the grand jury system. That wonderfully sagacious man, the Recorder of Pontefract, however, has a different opinion. The other day he said "he regarded it as an absurdity of the first degree that business men should be called away from their occupations to say whether the magistrates had done right in committing two prisoners to take their trial, particularly when it was remembered that they who were asked to say that were men who had not risen to the rank of magistrates."

In less than two years it is possible that the people of Halton will have a tramway service. The Corporation, whose bill has been passed by Parliament, have, for reasons best known to themselves—let not Hunslet residents think that the primary consideration is to benefit them—decided to extend the tram track from the York Road terminus to the Halton Institute, and already preparations are being made in connection with the work, which must, according to the agreement with Hunslet District Council, be carried out within two years. Traffic has increased enormously at Halton in recent years, and, although only a single track may be laid along the main street, it will greatly increase the danger to pedestrians and others. In my opinion, the road at certain points is too narrow, and the corner at the top of Halton Hill should be opened out.

Crossgates has demonstrated that it can grow the best sweet peas in the district. The Sweet Pea Society, which was established about a couple of years ago by a few enthusiasts, seems to have a promising future, and the show on Saturday, despite the fact that numerous would-be exhibitors had their blooms destroyed by the high winds, was a decided advance on the previous exhibitions. As a matter of fact, had all the persons who had notified their intention of entering flowers sent exhibits it would have been impossible to have staged them properly in the room, owing to lack of space. That spells progress. Many beautiful blooms were forward, but the judge had no hesitation whatever in awarding the premier prize to sweet peas grown in a Crossgates garden, and they undoubtedly were the best staged. These exhibitions in no wise interfere with the bigger shows—in fact, they may be a great help to them—and other villages may follow the excellent example set by Crossgates. Men and women must benefit by the cultivation of flowers.

When house-holders begin an agitation for the abolition of privy-middens there is hope for the community. People residents who are within the jurisdiction of the Rothwell Urban Council, condemn the middens as a nuisance, and they say that "the stench in the summer-time is sufficient to lower the vitality of the individuals residing there." This is apparently the opinion, too, of a medical man. Judging by this, Thorpe, which, by the way, was the original home of the Ingrams of Temple Newsam, is in a state of discontent, and the Council have a difficult job presented to them. Middens have been condemned again and again as being the source of disease, and if the conditions are as bad as they are represented to be, the Council must actively pursue a policy of improvement which will give satisfaction to the residents.

Will the Rothwell Urban Council dispense with the services of the Man of the Moon, whose vagaries have given so much dissatisfaction in past years? They are not satisfied, at any rate, with the present arrangements, and they have given instructions for the cost of all-night lighting of the principal streets to be got out. Does this mean that the streets are to be lighted on those nights when the Man of the Moon is billed to appear? He has not always fulfilled his engagements in the past, and consequently the people have had to find their way about in the darkness on certain nights. The report of the Lighting Committee will be awaited with interest.

Like the Tadcaster District Council, the rulers of Rothwell have the Local Government Board on their track. Houses are so scarce in the district that young people are compelled to put off their marriages until they can get dwellings, and the marriage market is thus controlled, not by the number of people desirous of entering the bonds of wedlock, but by the number of houses available in the district. A deputation from Thorpe stated that it was impossible to get houses in the area, and one man had to wait from February to September before he could get a cottage. The Council discussed the question in committee after their last meeting, following the reception of a communication from the Local Government Board, and it is evident that unless private enterprise relieves the Council of responsibility, they will have to undertake the building of cottages, as the Urban Council at Selby have done.

The Barkston Ash Football Association has had its ups and downs. At one time it was one of the most popular organizations in the county, but interest in the game was then exceedingly worse than they were last year. There was a prospect of the Association being wound up, but the threatened disruption has been staved off, and it is now up to footballers to infuse more interest into the competitions and give wholehearted support to the officials.

Between Garforth and South Milford a very bitter feeling exists, and one cannot understand why sport should bring about such a reprehensible state of affairs. It is useless going into the genesis of the trouble, and allocating blame, but it is really time that the hatchet was buried. Many years ago a similar feeling existed between Halton, and Seacroft, and old people have told me that stone-throwing by the villagers frequently took place in the Primrose Valley; but the 'Crofters and Haltonfans are now good friends. Evidence has been furnished that the illfeeling between Milford and Garforth is not confined to footballers, and any attempt to penalize either place, in consequence of the foolishness of certain people, should be dealt with by a firm hand. We do not live in the Middle Ages, and something better is expected of folks now-a-days.

The champion bowler of Barkston Ash—Harry Thomas, of Halton—has won the individual merit competition of Leeds and district, and I congratulate him on his success. A writer in a Leeds paper says:—"Thomas well deserved the honour he gained, and that he was rightly entitled to take it was the unanimous verdict of every one of the large number of spectators present. I read some time ago that a certain player in the Yorkshire Merit Competition was imperturbable. Knowing the player then referred to, I quite accepted what was written as correct, but if the writer was present on Saturday to witness Thomas's method of doing business, he would have to admit that in the matter of imperturbability the Yorkshire Merit competitor was but the 'grandson' of this year's Leeds and district player. The bowlers highly looking he never gets flurried. The bowlers in the Barkston Ash final when he played A. W. Westerman, and when he is seen to stand in the Barkston Ash final when he played A. W. Westerman, and when he is seen to

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

ANTIRRHINUMS.

The tall varieties of antirrhinums require the support of a neat stake. This should be supplied in good time or the plants are apt to topple over, and when this occurs they soon grow unshapely, and it is impossible to train them back into a natural position again. Plants that are now in bloom may be encouraged to continue flowering by removing all seed pods as they appear. This is an important point that is often overlooked. The newer varieties are well worth special attention, and feeding, tying, and hoeing around the plants will give improved results.

CANTERBURY BELLS, ETC.

The Canterbury Bell is another plant that has been much improved during recent years. The colours, size of bloom, and habit of plant all show up to better advantage. Strictly speaking the Canterbury Bell is a hardy biennial, but it is also largely used for conservatory decoration. Seedlings should now be ready for planting into nursery beds, and should be accommodated in a sheltered corner, where the soil is rich and light if possible. Careless lifting from the seed bed is an-wvrable for many weakened plants. They produce a quantity of roots while quite small, and if these are damaged in lifting they are a long time before they recover. Give a thorough soaking of water immediately after planting, and spray overhead daily until free growth is made. Sweet Williams and wallflowers may also be transferred to nursery beds as soon as they are large enough to handle conveniently. This class of plant usually grows so freely that it does not get a fair share of attention. If a plant is worth growing at all, it is worth growing well, and to grow Sweet Williams and Canterbury Bells to the best advantage they must be planted firmly, and receive such little attentions as keeping them free from weeds, stirring the surface soil occasionally, and spraying overhead during hot, dry weather.

HEDGES

If not already done, all privet, thorn, and similar hedges should be clipped at once. It is a mistake to postpone the work with the object of making one clipping suffice. If the growth is allowed to get too long before being clipped, a yellow, sickly appearance is created when clipping takes place. A well-trimmed hedge is very pleasing to the eye, but a badly clipped one will interfere with the neatness of its surroundings. A level top may be obtained by using a tightly strung line as a guide, and the same method may be adopted in straightening the sides. Hedges trimmed now will remain neat until the summer is well advanced.

STOCK, BEAUTY OF NICE

This useful stock is now blooming freely, and is once more proving its value as a useful garden flower. Autumn sown plants commenced blooming in May in our district, and at the present time of writing they look as if they would bloom continuously until the end of the year. Their wonderful habit of continually producing side shoots, which when run to flower makes them among the portative that they should be provided with suitable supports. Where this is done the plants remain in good health, and bloom splendidly, but if they are allowed to topple over they soon assume an untidy and neglected appearance.

FRUIT GARDEN

Apple and pear trees may now be summer pruned. This operation is but indifferently understood by many gardeners, nor is its true value often recognised. The main, or leading shoot on each branch should be allowed to grow away unchecked. The side shoots should be pinched or cut back to about 5 leaves. The fruit should be fully exposed to sun and air, and where large leaves are shading it they should either be removed or threaded away from it.

Raspberry canes that have finished fruiting should be cut away. The young basal growths will probably require thinning. Four or five of the strongest may be left to each plant.

THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Sow turnip rooted radish, lettuce, spinach, white turnip, parsley, and onions for main successive. Cos lettuce is best for present sowing.

There is no better time than the present for planting swelling parsley in cold frames to provide winter supplies. It is not necessary to cover with sashes at present, except for an hour or two at mid-day, when shade should be provided. Spray overhead morning and evening to ch ck drooping.

Gather peas and beans as soon as they are ready. If allowed to remain on the plants they soon get strong in flavour, and the peas lose their sweetness.

Make free use of the hoe amongst growing crops. It will keep weeds in check, and increase the yield to a remarkable degree.

PLANTS IN POTS

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

The early-flowering varieties are now showing flower buds, and must have some assistance in the usage of liquid manure. It should be understood that chrysanthemums are greedy, and will assimilate more manure than the majority of plants. By this we do not mean that extremely strong doses should be given. To do this would be to court failure. An over-strong dose of liquid would probably burn the roots. Weak and often should be the rule in feeding, and rather stronger doses may be given when the plants are approaching maturity. On no account should liquid manure be applied if the soil is in a dry state.

The large-flowered and buds varieties will, in most cases, be benefited by an occasional watering with liquid manure. A simple method of preparing the feed is to mix two buckets of cow manure with one bucket of soot. Stir well together and place in a coarse canvas bag. Plunge the bag in a 50 gallon cask of water and stir frequently. It is not advisable to use the liquid immediately it is prepared, but allow it to settle for a few hours. Refill the cask each time after using the liquid. The manure and soot may be replaced as often as it appears to be losing its strength.

BEGONIA GLOBE DE LORRAINE

These beautiful winter flowering plants are now so popular that it is almost safe to assume they are grown in every garden where a hothouse is available. The young plants should now be growing freely, and should be kept under observation so that they can be repotted as occasion arises. They should not be allowed to get rootbound, but should be transferred to larger pots as soon as the roots commence to run freely around the pot sides. They delight in a rich but open compost. Fibrous loam, clean leaf mould, rough peat, charcoal, mortar rubbish, silver sand, and old manure are all acceptable to them. The pots should be well drained, and the compost should not be pressed too firmly into the pots. This last entails extreme care being paid to watering, as dryness at the root would seriously affect the chances of success. Maintain a moist atmosphere and shade in bright sun. Thrip is one of the worst enemies these plants have to contend with. Syringing with aired water will do much towards keeping the plants free from insects. Stake the plants out neatly as they grow, and pick off all flower buds until the beginning of October. Cuttings inserted now in a propagating case will make charming little plants to flower from Christmas onwards. Three-inch pots are large enough to flower them in. The original Globe de Lorraine is still one of the best, but Agatha, Cinderella, Baroness Rothschild, and Turnford Hall are all well worth growing.

QUESTION

I should esteem it a great favour if you would advise me through your gardening column how to deal with rose trees that have been a failure. They have been planted in a sunny position for two years, and plenty of good manure and good pick soil. They have been mulched during winter with a dressing of good, old manure, and they have had plenty of water this dry spring. The result has been plenty of foliage and also any amount of flower buds, which, on opening, have nearly always burst out at the sides and then began to rot and die away, never in one instance developing into a perfect rose.—A. B.

It is very unusual for roses to act as you describe except during a spell of wet weather. Certain varieties do make a very large, tightly packed bud, have failed to open with us, but we have discarded them in favour of free-flowering varieties. If yours are free-flowering varieties, and have failed to open their flowers during warm, dry weather we should advise you to lift them in the autumn, prune the strongest roots, and replant without adding more manure to the soil.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Prices remained practically unchanged, there being only a fair attendance in consequence of the summer work on the farms. Wheat 35s. to 36s., oats 20s. to 22s. per qr. The carting of crops of wheat and barley is now being between Prince's Avenue and Old Park Road, Roundhay. That land, however, belonged to the Corporation, and a large part of it was occupied as a cricket field. There was also some land that was leased to a golf club, and it was unnecessary to town plan it.

Mr. Charles Lupton, Chairman of the Leeds City Improvements Committee, said there would be no detriment to the Hunslet Rural District Council so long as their sewage was provided for by the Corporation. It the view of the Council the best approach to Halton would be by the road going through the sewage works, as the present road was very steep. The Town Clerk had met the Hunslet Rural District Council with regard to the construction of such a road and the City Council made the offer to take over the sewage, but this the Rural Council had declined. It was the view of the Committee that such generous treatment ought to have been accepted. One reason why it should be accepted was because there was no alternative road that had been suggested. He pointed out that the sewage works formed an objection to surrounding land. As to the non-inclusion of Seacroft, he said the owners principally concerned had no intention of developing his land. Besides, there must be a limit somewhere. There would be quite time to get another scheme for this' district when the necessity arose.

In reply to the Inspector, Alderman Lupton said the Corporation would be quite prepared to by the outside authorities themselves develop the farms lying between.

In answer to questions put by Mr Pindar, Mr Lupton admitted that one of the principal objects in including the site of the Halton sewage works in the scheme was for the purpose of making a road through the land. It was possible, however, to make a road through land situated at the south of the area without going through the sewage works. The principal consideration in constructing a road would be the best direction for the main traffic. He could not say what the "generous offer" was.

The Inspector remarked that the use to be made of the site would be matter for consideration at the next inquiry, if it were decided to include the site now.

Mr Charles Lupton asked several questions bearing upon the non-inclusion of the land at Seacroft, and the land at Roundhay belonging to the Corporation.

Did not the Corporation, he asked, buy part opinion, or the Corporation answer?

Mr Charles Lupton: I don't think it is necessary to answer that.

Mr C. Lupton: So that the Corporation as in a position to building speculators?

Alderman Lupton: Am I to give my own opinions or the Corporation's answer?

Mr Charles Lupton: I don't think it is necessary.

As to possible developments in Seacroft, the Alderman said he did not think it would come in the near future—" unless the landlords either die or become bankrupt."—(Laughter.)

Mr J. R. Ford said that as regards his clients they merely wanted certain assurances as to sewering. As, however, these were not forthcoming he must be taken as objecting to the scheme.

Mr W. T. Lancashire, the City Engineer, gave evidence, and, in answer to the Town Clerk, said he thought it desirable that the Halton sewage works should be included in the scheme for the construction of the road.

Mr Pindar, on behalf of the Hunslet Rural District Council, said that body opposed the scheme not altogether, but merely as it affected the small portion of land upon which their sewage works stood. Firstly, that small area was not necessary for the proper town planning scheme; and secondly, if at any time it should be thought desirable to deal with the land under a town-planning scheme, the Leeds Corporation was not the proper authority.

Mr Farrar, J.P., said he could see no reason why the Leeds City Council should take the land out of the Rural District Council's hands. With regard to the sewage works forming an objection to the development of surrounding land, the land adjoining the site was not suitable for cultivation or development. He did not think the works had affected the value of the land.

The Inspector: You don't mean to say that the new go works have added to the value of the land. (Laughter).

Mr Farrar said he did not infer that.

Mr Atkinson said he also supported the Hunslet Rural District Council.

On the understanding that the Tadcaster Council would have a free hand in the development of their little area in the scheme, Mr Bennet and Mr Procter intimated that they did not oppose the present application.

Mr Charles Lupton spoke for the Roundhay owners, saying they merely wanted the Corporation to be put on the same basis as themselves.

The Inspector (to the Town Clerk): In the event of the Corporation selling their land for building, would it not be possible to do so upon the same conditions as those imposed on adjoining owners?

The Town Clerk: That is my opinion, but I cannot bind myself or the Corporation.

The inquiry was then closed.

CROSSGATES AND ROUNDHAY TOWN-PLANNING SCHEME.

WHY SEACROFT IS EXCLUDED.

OPPOSITION TO INCLUSION OF HALTON SEWAGE WORKS.

A Local Government Board inquiry into the application of the Leeds Corporation to prepare town-planning schemes of Harehills, Roundhay, Crossgates, and Osmondthorpe, was held at the Leeds Town Hall on Monday morning before Mr Thomas Adams.

The Town Clerk of Leeds (Sir R. E. Fox) presented the case for the Corporation, and the Hunslet Rural District Council and Tadcaster Council were represented by counsel.

Mr W. B. Pindar (Clerk to the Hunslet Rural District Council), Mr J. C. Atkinson (for Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., Temperley Manor), Mr L. A. Brown (Clerk to the Tadcaster Rural District Council), Mr Jones (West Riding County Council), Mr T. H. Prater (agent for Col. Gascoigne), Mr Farrar (agent for Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P.), Mr Charles Lupton and Mr J. R. Ford (property-owners in Roundhay).

The Town Clerk said that the inquiry was a preliminary one, and if the Local Government Board sanctioned the present application another scheme would be introduced. Owners of property affected by the scheme would be consulted and would be dealt with by the Corporation in a manner which he hoped would prove to the mutual benefit of the general public and the owners. The Harehills, Roundhay, and Crossgates area was 2,278 acres in extent and the Osmondthorpe area 895 acres. There was a certain amount of opposition to the scheme. The general objects the Corporation had in view were to obtain the control of the future development of the city, the regulation of building extensions, and the limitation of the number of houses per acre. It was also desired to provide proper main roads and open spaces where necessary. He then went on to deal with the various objections. With regard to that of the Hunslet Rural District Council, he explained that there was a small portion of the Council's area included in the scheme, but the Corporation had allowed the Rural Council to include a small portion of the Leeds City Council's land in their own scheme. Further, the Rural Council objected to the formation of a road through their sewage works—a road which was necessary in the interests of good communication with Leeds. The City Council had made an offer to take over the sewage works, but the Rural Council had declined that offer. Another objection was from the property owners in relation to the non-inclusion of land lying between Prince's Avenue and Old Park Road, Roundhay. That land, however, belonged to the Corporation, and a large part of it was occupied as a cricket field. There was also some land that was leased to a golf club, and it was unnecessary to town plan it.

Mr Charles Lupton, Chairman of the Leeds City Improvements Committee, said there would be no detriment to the Hunslet Rural District Council so long as their sewage was provided for by the Corporation. It the view of the Council the best approach to Halton would be by the road going through the sewage works, as the present road was very steep. The Town Clerk had met the Hunslet Rural District Council with regard to the construction of such a road and the City Council made the offer to take over the sewage, but this the Rural Council had declined. It was the view of the Committee that such generous treatment ought to have been accepted. One reason why it should be accepted was because there was no alternative road that had been suggested. He pointed out that the sewage works formed an objection to surrounding land. As to the non-inclusion of Seacroft, he said the owners principally concerned had no intention of developing his land. Besides, there must be a limit somewhere. There would be quite time to get another scheme for this' district when the necessity arose.

In reply to the Inspector, Alderman Lupton said the Corporation would be quite prepared to by the outside authorities themselves develop the farms lying between.

In answer to questions put by Mr Pindar, Mr Lupton admitted that one of the principal objects in including the site of the Halton sewage works in the scheme was for the purpose of making a road through the land. It was possible, however, to make a road through land situated at the south of the area without going through the sewage works. The principal consideration in constructing a road would be the best direction for the main traffic. He could not say what the "generous offer" was.

The Inspector remarked that the use to be made of the site would be matter for consideration at the next inquiry, if it were decided to include the site now.

Mr Charles Lupton asked several questions bearing upon the non-inclusion of the land at Seacroft, and the land at Roundhay belonging to the Corporation.

Did not the Corporation, he asked, buy part opinion, or the Corporation answer?

Mr Charles Lupton: I don't think it is necessary to answer that.

Mr C. Lupton: So that the Corporation as in a position to building speculators?

Alderman Lupton: Am I to give my own opinions or the Corporation answer?

Mr Charles Lupton: I don't think it is necessary.

As to possible developments in Seacroft, the Alderman said he did not think it would come in the near future—" unless the landlords either die or become bankrupt."—(Laughter.)

Mr J. R. Ford said that as regards his clients they merely wanted certain assurances as to sewering. As, however, these were not forthcoming he must be taken as objecting to the scheme.

Mr W. T. Lancashire, the City Engineer, gave evidence, and, in answer to the Town Clerk, said he thought it desirable that the Halton sewage works should be included in the scheme for the construction of the road.

Mr Pindar, on behalf of the Hunslet Rural District Council, said that body opposed the scheme not altogether, but merely as it affected the small portion of land upon which their sewage works stood. Firstly, that small area was not necessary for the proper town planning scheme; and secondly, if at any time it should be thought desirable to deal with the land under a town-

ULLESKELF LAND SALE.

THE PURCHASERS.

Mr R. Stephenson, of the firm of Messrs. Stephenson and Sons, auctioneers, Leeds, offered for sale at the Royal Station Hotel, York, yesterday (Thursday) week, on the instructions of the trustees of the late Mr Charles Shann, Tadcaster, a large amount of freehold and copyhold property, consisting of small holdings, farmhouses, buildings, and grass and arable land, in the parish of Ulleskelf. The property, which is situated close to the North Eastern Railway, covers an area of about 186.428 acres.

Lot 1, which consisted of a dwelling house, farm buildings, and cottage, with garth and orchard, covering an area of 63.259 acres, in the occupation of Mr John Pick, at an apportioned rent of £110 14s., was knocked down to Mr J. T. Dixon, of Ulleskelf, at £2,000.

Lot 2 consisted of a close of arable land, of close ing 6.242 acres, also in the occupation of Mr John Pick, at an apportioned rent of £12 10s. This was bought by Mr H. F. Cundall, solicitor, of York, for £350.

Lot 3 was also a close of arable land, of about 5.802 acres in extent. This land, which is also in the occupation of Mr John Pick, at an apportioned rent of £8 12s. 6d., was sold to Mr Nottingham for £200.

Lot 4 comprised a dwelling-house, farm building and garden, in the occupation of Mr Stephenson Wox, and about 40.260 acres of grass and arable land in the occupation of Mr John Pick, at an apportioned rent of £70 15s., was knocked down to Mr T. Dixon, of Ulleskelf, at £2,000.

Lot 5, consisting of 1 acre 6 perches of meadow land, in the occupation of Mr John Pick, at an apportioned rent of £2, was also knocked down to Mr Thomlinson for £40.

Lot 6 comprised a dwelling-house, farm buildings, and gardens in the occupation of Mr Wm. Hague, and an area of about 64.463 acres of arable and grass land, in the occupation of Messrs. Hague and Mr John Pick, at a total apportioned rent of £10. This was sold to Mr J. Fielden, Grimston Park, for £2,000.

Lot 8 comprised a dwelling-house, joiners' shop, outbuildings, and garden, in the occupation of Mr John Pick, at a yearly rent of £12. This was sold to Mr T. Varey, of Ulleskelf, for £210.

The total amount realised was £4,960.

A WETHERBY GROOM KILLED AT BRADFORD.

KICKED BY A MARE.

One of the principal features of the Yorkshire Show on Friday was the parade of all the stock in the large ring. Unfortunately the forenoon parade was marred by a fatal accident. One of the chief attractions was the pedigree brood mares with foal at foot, and as usual they left their stalls one after the other and made their way to the collecting ring prior to passing into the large ring. A groom was leading a mare, and as the foals got rather fractious, and as the result of its capers one of the mares, a big black, belonging to a Leeds gentleman, lunged out, striking the groom. When with sucking foals mare are always at a high tension, and the very slightest thing upsets them. They have often been seen letting out with their hind feet at other horses. Fortunately when the mare struck out on Friday a man named Herbert Wood, aged 32, and a groom in the employment of Mr George Gunter, Wetherby, was close behind leading another mare, the property of Mr Gunter. He was struck on the head just over the right temple, and rendered unconscious. He was attended to by Private Shaw, of the Bradford Section of the St. John Ambulance Association, on the showground, and afterwards removed to the ambulance station. He was examined there by Dr Booth, who found the man was suffering from a fractured skull, and on his advice he was removed to the Bradford Infirmary. He was then in an unconscious and critical condition. His relations and friends were summoned, but he never regained consciousness, and died in the course of the afternoon.

RIVER POLLUTION AT TADCASTER AND ULLESKELF.

WHAT A CORRESPONDENT SAYS.

The reported poisoning of the river Wharfe at either Tadcaster or Ulleskelf does not appear to be so serious as was first reported (says a correspondent). It is true that a considerable number of dead fish were seen to come down the river, and at Ryther from sixty to eighty were counted on the 28th of June behind the New Inn. They consisted of roach, bream, barbel, and salmon. Strange to say, they were all good fish and there was not a single small one amongst them. I paid a visit to this part of the Wharfe with the idea of seeing them, but unfortunately a fresh had come in during the night and swept them all away, though I saw others floating down the river dead. Even in the face of these facts I do not think the damage is anything like what was reported, for on Saturday Mr J. Harrison had a catch of 3lb. of roach and dace, and a club that turned the scale at 3lb., and also a chub and 2lb. of dace from the drain end of Mr Fiddian's waters. On Sunday Mr H. Lutty had 7lb. of dace from Ulleskelf, and at the present time the waters have left a Tadcaster and Ulleskelf are teeming with good big fish. In mentioning these catches as a proof of my belief, I do not intend by any means to condone the offence or belittle the damage that has—perhaps unthinkingly—been done to this fishery. That it has been wantonly done I cannot think is possible, for nobody with any sense at all, knowing what many of the Tadcaster and District Amalgamation anglers have expended to keep up the head of fish in this water, and the harvest that the villages reap from the continual visits of anglers, would allow any deleterious matter to enter the river. In an almost rainless spring and summer such as we have had, disinfectants of all kinds are freely used in private houses and h tels, and where there is not a sufficient flow of water to clear this stuff away, it tends to sink to the bottom of cesspools and accumulate in drain pipes. Then, when a thunderstorm comes along, all this dreadful mixture is shot on to filter beds, that are for the time being overworked, and the result is that much of it is discharged in a very crude condition, to kill the fish in the river. Finally, anglers, hearing of these continued pollutions, will not visit the district; the owner of the fishery finds that his tenants will not pay the same rent as when the fishery was in good order, and so everyone suffers.

A ROUNDHAY RESIDENT SUED

JURY DISAGREE

At Leeds Assizes on Friday an action was heard in which Mrs Agnes Ambler, the widow of William Edward Ambler, of Harehills, Leeds, claimed damages under Lord Campbell's Act against Arthur Michael Lupton, of Springwood, Roundhay, in respect of the loss of her husband through a collision between a motor-cycle that he was driving and a motor-car driven by the defendant. Mr E. Tindal Atkinson, K.C., and Mr Harold Newsom appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr E. A. Mitchell-Innes, K.C., and Mr H. T. Waddy were for the defence.

Mr Atkinson said that the action was brought by the widow of the deceased, who was aged 31 and 8. Mr Ambler was 32 years of age, and at the time of his death was acting as a manager and traveller for his father, at a weekly wage of £3 15s. The jury would not be asked to assess damages, since in the event of liability for the accident being proved, it had been agreed that a sum of £750 should be paid. The accident happened about half-past eight on the evening of May 7th. Mr Ambler was travelling up Roundhay Road towards the Park on a motor-cycle, which he was driving in the usual way, when he reached a side-car, in which a young lady named Miss Hetty Robinson was riding. One of Mr Ambler's sons was sitting on the carrier. It was his duty, after lighting up had not arrived just before Gipton Wood the road sharply curved. Round that curve came a motor car driven by the defendant. It was travelling at a considerable speed and the lamps were lit. The car was first seen by Miss Robinson when about 20 or 30 yards away. It was then travelling in the middle of the road, with plenty of room to pass to the off-side of the cycle. According to the evidence, the car suddenly swerved to the wrong side of the road, and smashed into the motor cycle. Mr Ambler was instantly killed, and the other two occupants of the cycle were thrown. After the accident the cycle was found between the tram lines on the near side going to Roundhay and the causeway. Mr Ambler was picked up near to the causeway, and he died without having spoken to himself. The motor car was close to the cycle, and had its bonnet pointed to the direction from which the car had been driven.

Miss Robinson, who was a passenger in the side-car, said that the cycle was travelling between the causeway and the tram lines. The wheel of the cycle was between the tram lines, and the wheel of the side-car was between the tram lines and the causeway. There was no other traffic about. So far as she could tell the cycle was travelling at the speed of a tramcar. The witness saw the motor car coming down in the middle of the road. When about twelve yards away it altered its position to the right. She cried to Mr Ambler, "Mind, Willie, they're into us."

Cross-examined: She did not know that the whole of the damage to the motor cycle was on the left-hand side. She was emphatic that the speed was no greater than that of a tramcar.

Evidence was given by Mr and Mrs Moorhouse, the latter a sister of the dead man, to the effect that the cycle was between the up tram lines. The lights on the car suddenly switched on, and there was a smash. The witnesses were about 100 yards away from the scene of the accident.

Mr. Mitchell-Innes, for the defence, expressed the sympathy of the defendant with the relatives of the late Mr Ambler. Counsel commented on the distance which Mr and Mrs Moorhouse were from the scene of the accident. The cycle was carrying no lights. Although it was true that the latest legal time for the lighting of lamps had not arrived by a minute or so, it might have been that the occupants of the cycle were a little lax in their contributed to the darkness, and thus the absence of lights would constitute negligence. The damage to the motor cycle sidecar, which pointed out, was on the off-hand side, and the front and bottom of the sidecar were broken away. If the car had collided, as Miss Robinson suggested, the whole of the damage would have been on the near side. Mr Lupton's story was that he was driving at about 15 or 18 miles an hour. His right-hand wheel was just within the tram lines, and the wheel on the other side on the edge of the macadam. Suddenly the cycle came out of the dark. Mr Lupton jammed on his brakes, and the collision took place. In wet or dry weather, counsel remarked, the sudden appearance of a cycle in front of a sliding the car to the right. There were reasons as to why the cycles should be travelling on the right hand side of the road. A macadam streets was safer, as it would be more comfortable to ride on it than on granite setts

The defendant in the witness box described the accident. He never saw the cycle until the latter was close in front of the car and crossing head on. When the collision happened the motor car, he thought, was swung round by the cycle. It was elicited from experts in court that the car weighed about 25 cwt. and the cycle 3½cwt.

Cross-examined by Mr Tindal Atkinson, the defendant admitted that there was a large space on the left-hand side of the road. The car was about 6ft. wide, and that left about 14ft. or 15ft. of macadam.

Mr Atkinson: Why were you not travelling nearer to your own side? What made you go out into the middle of the road ?—It is the custom of the road.

LADIES' BLANCHARD'S PILLS

are unrivalled for all Irregularities, &c. Sure, safe, and effectual. Of all Chemists, 12 stamps. Ladies should ask for BLANCHARD'S Pamphlet. Each of the 12 Pills Sold in boxes, 1/1½, by Boots' Branches, Taylor's Drug Co., Timothy Whites, and all Chemists, or post free, same price, from LESLIE MARTIN, 113, Cheshire St., BALSTON LANE, LONDON. Free Sample and valuable Booklet, sent Free, 1d. Stamp.

Telegrams Scott, Selby. Telephone 194.

IF YOU REQUIRE

GENUINE RAW PERUVIAN GUANO, FISH GUANO, SULPHATE of AMMONIA, NITRATE of SODA, RAPE NUTS and DUST, RAPE MEAL, PURE DISSOLVED BONES, PURE BONE MEAL and FLOUR, SUPER-PHOSPHATE (26 per cent.), BASIC SLAG, SULPHATE of POTASH, MURIATE of POTASH, GENUINE RAINIT, LAND SALT (in Truck Loads), ETC., ETC.

We shall be pleased to quote Prices for any quantity.

QUALITY and GOOD CONDITION of the above GUARANTEED. PROMPT DELIVERY can be given either at Works here or at Buyer's Station.

M. SCOTT & Co

OIL MILLS, SELBY.

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW THE VALUE OF

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE

Read what Mr S. Leigh, Hessle Road, Hull, says :—" I have had the diarrhœa very acutely, and nothing would do me any good. I saw an advertisement of TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE, and decided to try it, and after only one dose of 20 drops I had immediate relief. It puts me only keen how soon they could be cured I am sure they would not hesitate to pay £1 a drop.

Try what you will there is no finer cure for Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and Bowel Complaint than the grand old remedy,

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

It has cured thousands, and will cure you. Have Teasdale's Chlorodyne in the house in case of sudden attacks.

Trial Bottle only 7½d., Double size 13½d., and Family Bottles 2s. 6d.

Can be had of PURDY, Cross Gates; REINARD, Halton, and other Chemists; GODDALL, BACKHOUSE & CO., and TAYLOR'S Drug Stores.

ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE

Is the macloam a bit out of order?—It isn't very good.

And you preferred to get on the setts if you could?—Yes. It is the custom of the road to go down on the setts.

In reply to the Judge, the witness said it was quite dark. He could have pulled up within ten yards.

Mr Atkinson: Not only could you have stopped within ten yards, but you had 15 or 16 feet of macadam on your left-hand side?—Yes.

All you had got to do was to shift your wheel and go clear?—The witness agreed.

Then why did not you do it?—No answer.

Further evidence for the defence was given. Walter Potter said that the motor cycle swerved to the right just before the smash. This witness admitted having told a young lady that the defendant was to blame. Fred Parkinson told Mr Atkinson, K.C., that the accident to the cycle happened before the defendant had been on the right side of the road. Other witnesses deposed that the motor cycle was travelling fast.

Mr Langton, a veterinary surgeon, described the injuries to the cycle, and said his theory was that the car struck the cycle at an angle "like 25 minutes to 12." (Laughter).

The jury retired, and after an absence of an hour returned to ask the Judge three questions relating to the evidence.

His Lordship replied that questions of evidence were for the jury to decide.

At 8.25 the jury again returned, and intimated that they could not agree. They were discharged.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

HINTS FOR AUGUST.

Reference must be made to the fact that the moulting season was about to commence, and by this time it should be in full swing. Possibly it will be profitable to consider for a moment this annual change that a fowl passes through. Once every twelve months adult fowls completely cast their feathers, these being replaced by an entirely new set, and this period is termed the moult. Although it cannot be correctly stated that the birds are ill during this time, nevertheless it is a somewhat trying period, and neglect may have disastrous consequences. A common cause of indifferent winter laying is that the hens have been improperly looked after while they were casting their feathers, making them backward and unable to withstand the trying conditions of winter.

This moulting season is the natural time for adult fowls to moult, but it is asserted that by good management the process can be hastened, and thus permit its completion in ample time to allow for winter laying.

The good management referred to consists of sheltering the albuminoid ration in their feed, and confining them to warm quarters. In a few days birds adopted in this manner will get rid gradually begin to shed their feathers, and then the building up for new feather and for winter egg-production begins.

Bear in mind the suggestions given last month regarding moulting. The intelligent poultry-keeper, by careful observation, can gather much practical information during this period. All hens that lay well into the month, which means birds which are casting their feathers as well as contributing to the egg basket, are excellent layers, and can profitably be retained for next year's breeding pens. Again, watch the length of time occupied in moulting; some birds take much longer then others. Select only those who come through rapidly for your breeding stock, and by so doing you are assisting to eliminate "bad strains."

Keep on the look out for lice. Their ravages tend to prolong the moulting season, as well as being responsible for many other evils already enumerated.

Sexes should be separated during the moulting period, and any bird that you do not intend retaining should be sold or potted before the period commences.

The introduction of a little boiled linseed in the morning mash will help the feathering, whilst Colman's Poultry Mustard may now be profitably recommended. Remember its action is not brutal, but it is a stimulant, and is valuable indirectly by its pungency increasing the flow from the salivary glands.

Keep on calling your growing stock, never lose an opportunity of impressing their mind on the truth inst. grouse shooting begins, and down goes the price of chickens. Markets before then if you desire a return for your efforts.

August is a capital month for picking up next season's breeding stock at bargain prices. There are always careless poultry-keepers who have failed to arrange their plans to bring in a constant renewal of pullets for feeding the shop pinch, and they must realise. But in buying from strangers always be careful to isolate the birds for a few days, and adopt the dipped system. Such trifles prevent small details prevents both loss and annoyance.

Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown postal order. The name of the writer must in all cases be given).

CROSSGATES, ROTHWELL, AND CARLTON.

THE HOMING PIGEON.

The Leeds Federation Clubs were not favoured on Saturday with ideal conditions for the race from Ashby, although a fair number of the contestants made well over 200 yards per minute. The liberation took place at 9.45 a.m. The best return received was that of the Crossgates Club, in which Mr Middleton made 953 yards. Mr J. Charlesworth Carlton, had two birds, which covered 1½ miles at a speed of 952 yards per minute.

Crossgates H.S. (72 miles).—Eleven members sent 127 birds. Middleton 953 (twins special and first pool), 879, Haddlesey 945, 940.00 (2nd pool), H. Linley 942, Hornby 940.06, 928, Fox 894, E. Linley 890.

Carlton H.S. (68 miles).—Nine members sent 108 birds. J. Charlesworth 952 (2 birds), 930, 921, 919, A. Nunns 932, 915, 908, Mottershaw and Harland 923, E. Nunns 915, 913.

Rothwell H.S. (69 miles).—Nineteen members sent 227 birds. A. Hodgkinson 946, 944, T. Nunns 944.3, W. Dobson 941.5, 930, E. Bedford 940, G. Brown 933, 927, G. Ward 932, J. Crossley 925.

A HEARSON INCUBATOR for 5/- a year!

A 60-Egg Hearson costs £5 8 0 complete and carriage paid, and will hatch every fertile egg for 5/- per annum; that is the poultry rearer's most profitable investment.

May we send a prospectus of "The Poultry Farm Solved," which is published at 1/- ? Proprietors: STAFFA PATENT LTD., 24-25, Fenchurch St., London, E.C.

FINAL REDUCTION FOR SITTINGS

4/- There is still time to set some Hens Night Invoke a Sittings of Hens from the Celebrated Strains of Whelan Leyton, 10 Eggs in the Sittings, carriage paid, 4/-. Cash with Order.

RALPH R. ALLEN, SAWBRIDGEWORTH, HERTS.

Pure-bred Pigeon Chicks of above breeds, 10/- dozen.

ALLEN'S CHOLERA CURE. Price 2/1, post paid.

A positive Cure for Cholera, Bowel Trouble, Indigestion, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, &c. Used annually during the Summer months over the year round it will effectually prevent disease of this description among your birds.

ALLEN'S GAME FOOD. Price 2/1, post paid. Will make your birds of this dangerous disease if used as directed. Full instructions with each box.

ALLEN'S TONIC CAPSULES. Price 1/6 per box.

The Breeder's Friend. Immediately a bird is noticed off colour a capsule three, guinea, and cock-liver oil night and morning will speedily put it right. In a day or two after the bird is off its food. Two capsules will be sufficient.

ALLEN'S VERMIFUGE POWDERS. Price 1/3 per Large Tin, post paid.

The whole flock should be dusted occasionally every Broody Hen before entrusting her with a sitting of eggs.

RALPH R. ALLEN, Sawbridgeworth, Herts.

Fabor

45/-

Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.

LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-

COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.

Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.

24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

FOR TOWN or COUNTRY.

For BUSINESS or PLEASURE.

THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT

IT AT IT

GARFORTH MEDICAL CHARITIES FESTIVAL.

ADDRESSES BY THE RECTOR AND MR E. H. FOSTER, J.P.

POSITION OF LEEDS INFIRMARY—WHAT PEOPLE SHOULD NOTE.

On Sunday afternoon the annual festival in connection with the medical charities was held in the Carnival Field at Garforth, and it was very largely attended. Councillor E. R. Archer presided, and he was supported by the Rev. T. E. R. Willford (rector of Garforth), Mr E. H. Foster, J.P., C.C., Councillor W. W. Hartley, and Mr Braham.

The Committee were fortunate in securing the services of St. Mary's Church choir—an efficient body of singers, who contributed very materially to the success of the festival—and under the conductorship of Mr Walter Burnley, they sang with excellent style the anthems "Send out Thy light" (Gounod), and "In humble faith and holy love" (G. M. Garrett), besides leading the singing of the hymns "O worship the King" and "Thou Church, its saviour and guide, and who, as a member of the Leeds Infirmary Committee, was the principal supporter of the festival, and who had taken a prominent part in the church life of Manston for over two decades, and on his retirement from active work some time ago, he left the parish, and now resides at Scarborough.

The presentation was made by the Vicar, who, in a happy, little speech said they desired to show some acknowledgment of Mr White's long service to the parish. Nothing would be easier than to make a long speech about his virtues and his long service, but that would be unkind to Mr White, who had been a churchwarden for nearly years, although not consecutively, and when he was not a warden he was on the Church Council. He was also a valued colleague, and, although the Church Council was an elective body, they desired Mr White to consider himself a life-member, and when he cared to attend the meetings he had an arm chair would be there for him. What they had done had been done in the fullness of their affection for Mr White, and in the fulness of their appreciation of his work, and they knew Mr White would appreciate it.

Mr White very briefly returned thanks for the beautiful gift.

The performance of the play was greatly enjoyed. A delightful sylvan dell had been improvised, with waving grasses and ferns and tall forest trees, as a background, and this served admirably as a stage. Here, in strong contrast with the garish lights and artificial surroundings of the theatre, the impish gambolling of Puck for once appeared quite natural, while the romantic love dalliance of Lysander and Demetrius and Hermia and Helena and Hermia in which the fairies and Bottom took a way which added wonderfully to the effects of the players. One might have been pardoned for supposing a forest glade at Arden; we certainly had "tongues in trees," for a secret wind rustled incessantly through the branches of the elms and beeches forming the wings, and for the most part the voices of the leaves were more distinct than those of the "mortal players" beneath.

The following were the performers:—Theseus, Duke of Athens, Mr F. Alkanson; Egeus, father of Hermia, Mr R. Walker; Lysander, Mr A. Peat; Demetrius, Mr T. Walton; Quince, a Peat; Demetrius, Mr T. Walton; Quince, a carpenter, Mr S. Richardson; Snug, a joiner, Mr R. Wood; Bottom, a weaver, Mr J. Allanson; Flute, a bellows mender, Mr H. Clough; Snout, a tinker, Mr H. Davis; Starveling, a tailor, Mr J. Umpleby; Hippolyta, Queen of Amazons, betrothed to Theseus, Miss P. Chadwick; Hermia, daughter of Egeus, in love with Lysander, Miss C. Umpleby; Helena, in love with Demetrius, Miss D. Grimshaw; Oberon, king of the fairies, Miss L. Clough; Titania, queen of the fairies, Miss M. Walton; Puck, Miss E. Allanson; fairies, Misses L. Dearnley, D. Hepworth, V. Taylor, and E. Grimshaw.

Messrs N. Peat and F. Walton—the latter made a fine figure—displayed marked ability, and their representation of their respective roles gave great satisfaction. The ladies—Miss D. Grimshaw and Miss C. Umpleby—however, were outstanding, and the finest bit of acting in the play was undoubtedly the scene of jealousy between Hermia and Helena. Both parts were somewhat trying for inexperienced players, but Misses Grimshaw and Umpleby acquitted themselves admirably. Not less successful was Miss E. Allanson, who was brightness and mischief personified as Puck, and her interpretation of the role was highly meritorious. Miss L. Clough, as "Oberon," and Miss M. Walton, as "Titania," performed pleasingly, and the fairies made a pretty picture. Mr F. Allanson spoke the prologue well, and Mr R. Walker and Miss Chadwick adequately filled their parts. "Quince's" company, with "Bottom" outstanding, caused no little amusement. Altogether the members were great credit for themselves, and the large audiences thoroughly enjoyed their efforts.

The Vicar proposed a vote of thanks to those who had taken part in the performance and to Messrs Mather, Mann, Harland, and Ford for their services, and it was cordially passed.

The proceeds were for the New Church Fund.

SWEET PEA AND ROSE SHOW AT CROSSGATES.

TADCASTER, KIPPAX, AND CROSSGATES WINNERS.

The third annual show of Crossgates and District Sweet Pea Society—the only organization of the kind in the district—was held on Saturday afternoon in the Wesleyan Schoolroom, Crossgates, and the increased interest in the was evinced by a considerably larger attendance of the public. Hitherto the Society has appealed to only a limited circle, but the Committee, recognising the possibilities of their show, decided this year to cater for a wider constituency, and open classes were introduced. This step was fully justified by the results, and entries were received from as far afield as Tadcaster. Twenty-four entries were received last year as compared with about seventy on Saturday, and had all the entries been forward it would probably have been difficult to stage them owing to lack of room. The weather, however, has an important bearing on such shows, and the high winds of the previous two days played such havoc in gardens that no fewer than twenty-seven persons who had entered failed to send exhibits, owing simply to their flowers having been destroyed by the gale.

The show of sweet peas, as the judge—Mr Shaw, gardener at Towerhurst, Roundhay—aptly stated, was remarkably fine, and no better blooms could be seen by nurserymen—have been exhibited at any show in a wide district. An outstanding feature was the quality of the local exhibits, being better than those in the open classes, and the silver medal for the best bunch of sweet peas was won by Mr Hewitt, of Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.

The name of the winning flowers, which were pink in colour, was Hercules, and on each of the strong stems, were four blooms. Roses, although not so good as the sweet peas, made a nice show.

The officials of the society are:—President, Mr Albert Whitfield; vice-presidents, Messrs H. F. Cooper, F. Parkinson, H. Schroeder, and W. Smith; management committee—Messrs G. S. Hargreaves, J. Harland, H. Mann, G. Tucker, A. Whitfield, and H. Woffinden; and hon. treas., Mr H. Mann. The duties of hon. secretary were efficiently carried out by Mr G. Tucker, who exhibited some excellent sweet peas which were not for competition.

OPEN CLASSES

Six vases sweet peas, distinct varieties, with own foliage only, and not to consist of 8 specimens.—1, E. Longbottom, Kippax; 2, S. T. Batley, Austhorpe Lodge (gardener, F. Noble).

One vase of sweet peas, not less than 4 varieties, with own foliage only, the vase to contain a set of 12 spikes.—1, G. Metcalfe, Tadcaster; 2, J. Jones, Shadwell Lane, Moortown.

Cut roses, six blooms.—1, G. E. Longbottom, Kippax; 2, Mrs. Childs, Ribston Hall.

Cut roses, three blooms.—1, G. Metcalfe, Tadcaster.

OPEN TO MEMBERS

Four vases of sweet peas, distinct varieties, with own foliage only, one vase to consist of 12 spikes.—1, W. Heath, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates; 2, Miss Hesseldine, Manston.

Two vases of sweet peas, with own foliage only, each vase to consist of 12 spikes, equally divided in three varieties, but 6 varieties in all—1, J. Harland, Roseville Terrace, Manston; 2, H. Stephenson, Lazencroft.

One vase of sweet peas, not less than four varieties, with own foliage only, 12 spikes in the vase—Wilfred Spink, Manston Terrace, Crossgates.

Cut roses, four blooms—1, Mrs Hargreaves; 2, Scaresbrick; 2, B. Mitchell, Oak Terrace, Manston.

Cut roses, two blooms—W. Hewitt, Crossgates; 2, H. Mann, Crossgates.

A bowl or any suitable stand of sweet peas, arranged for decorative effect, any number of spikes, and whatever foliage desired may be used (open to ladies only)—1, Miss G. Godson, Manston; 2, Mrs Longbottom, Kippax.

Silver medal for best bunch of sweet peas in the show—W. Hewitt, Crossgates.

A woman, asked in Court if a young fellow was any relation to her, said "No, he is my son!"

CARNIVAL AT GARFORTH.

FIREMEN'S AND AMBULANCE COMPETITIONS.

SPORTS—DANCING—FLOWER SHOW.

The eleventh annual carnival, sports, and gala in aid of Garforth Medical Charities took place in the Carnival Field at Garforth on Saturday, and, despite the unfavourable weather conditions, for a cold wind blew the whole of the day, the public support was quite up to that of the previous year. There were numerous attractions to interest the spectators, and it was unfortunate that two or three events and competitions were being gone through at the same time, so that the interest was somewhat divided. There were two new features on the programme—the contests for ambulance work and fire practice, and both aroused keen competition.

The usual procession, which was rather small, through the streets, attracted attention, and the principal feature of it was the turn out of firemen. As many could be accommodated, were used for the much-discussed Kippax fire-engine, which still proclaims to the world that it has at one time been a possession of the Scarborough Council. The firemen looked a smart lot in their uniforms and helmets, and with hatchets and lifelines fastened at their sides. There was also a muster of members of the corps of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, while the collectors, attired in comic and character dress, did a good business en route. The Garforth Brass Band were again in attendance.

On arrival at the ground the dresses of the collectors were judged. The winners of the best character dress were Mrs Cook and Mr H. Dickenson. Mrs Oxtoby and Mr H. Bromley won the prizes for the best comic dress, while the honours for the collecting of the largest amount fell to Mrs Oxtoby and Mrs Cook. Great interest was taken in the maypole dancing, which was gracefully performed by the children of the Garforth Parochial School, under the supervision of Miss Goulden, while the competitors in the firemen's and ambulance contests got to work. The judging of the latter lasted until well on in the evening. Six teams had entered for the firemen's competition as follows:—Garforth No. 1, and 2, and 3, C.W.S. (Pontefract), and Springfield Mills (Forsley). The work was of an interesting character. Each team had, at a given signal, to button on their coats and fasten their helmets and belts, dash off with the fire apparatus and connect up the hose to the hydrants as though an actual fire had occurred. Those who got through the work in the quickest time and to the satisfaction of the judges, were counted the winners. The Garforth No. 2 and 3 teams, along with the Springfield Mills (Forsley), were disqualified, and at the end of the work, the C.W.S. (Pontefract) team were declared the winners, having completed their task in one minute and eight and two-fifths seconds. The Garforth team were second, their time being one minute and twenty seconds. There was also a one man drill for those taking part in the above. The task was to don helmet and axe, attach the stand-pipe to the hydrant, roll out the hose and to effect a supposed rescue. In many cases the unsatisfactory hydrant for the fixing of the stand-pipe proved the competitor's pitfall, for as soon as he dashed off with the hose the stand pipe, which had to all appearances been firmly attached, toppled over. The winners of this section were again Forsley Springfield Mills, time 1-5 secs., G. Clayton (Farsley Council), 6 1-5 secs. The judge of the work was Mr W. E. Marsh, of the tinsmekeper Mr F. Whitehead, both of Farsley.

Seven teams competed in the ambulance section. The work was judged by Sergt. H. Smithson, R.A.M.C., who declared the Newsmarket Silestone Colliery team the winners with 1213 marks. The team from the Glass Houghton Colliery were second with 1181. The Garforth ambulance men were excluded.

Races were run by the boys, the results being as follows:—

100 Yards Handicap (boys under 14)—T. Littlemore, 1; Smith (3 yards).

100 Yards Handicap (boys under 11)—Heat winners—O. C. Smith (6 yards); C. T. Gibson; J. Jones. Final—1, Jones; 2, C. Gibson.

60 Yards Handicap (boys under 8)—Heat winners—J. Roberts (8 yards), G. W. Winter (3), and A. Monks (3). Final—1, Winter; 2, Monks.

Half-mile Handicap (youths under 21, and residents in the Barkston Ash Division)—1, H. E. Dickenson (100 yards); 2, T. Littlemore (140).

The judges were Messrs J. Beevors, J. Prime, T. S. Slater, and E. Archer. Starter, Mr W. Smith.

In the competition for flowers and vegetables the following were the results:—

Six vases of sweet peas (dissimilar)—1, F. Greenwood; 2, J. Beevors.

Six best roses (dissimilar)—1, F. Greenwood.

Six best stocks (dissimilar)—1, E. Pickering; 2, T. Brown.

Six best pansies (dissimilar)—1, P. Haigh; 2, E. Pickering.

Best white cabbage—1, T. Brown; 2, I. Wheatley.

Best six potatoes (kidney)—1, E. Pickering; 2, I. Wheatley.

Best twelve pods of peas—1, J. Goodall; 2, E. Walton.

Largest potato—1, J. Beevors.

Mr D. Heslewood (head gardener at Parlington) and Mr T. S. Slater (Garforth) were the judges.

BARKSTON ASH AND OSGOLDCROSS CONSERVATISM.

DEMONSTRATION AT CARLTON TOWERS

SPEECHES BY MR LANE FOX, M.P., AND MR. CAMPBELL JOHNSTON.

Under the auspices of the Barkston Ash and Osgoldcross Conservative and Unionist Associations a demonstration was held on Saturday in the grounds of Carlton Towers, Carlton. Although the weather was somewhat unfavourable the event was distinctly successful. Ald. E. C. Brooksbank, J.P., C.C. (chairman of the Barkston Ash Conservative and Unionist Association) presided over a large attendance, which included Lady Beaumont, Baroness Beaumont, the Hon. Bernard Fitzalan-Howard, the Hon. Mrs G. R. Lane Fox, Colonel and Mrs Hawdon, the Rev. and Mrs C. F. Hughes, Mr F. S. Hatchard, J.P. (prospective Unionist candidate for the Leigh Division), Mrs. F. S. Hatchard, Mr and Mrs C. Weddall, etc.

The Chairman opened the proceedings by saying they could not do better than begin by thanking Lady Beaumont for her extreme kindness in allowing them the use of her beautiful grounds in which to hold the demonstration. He would also like to take that opportunity of most heartily congratulating Baroness Beaumont on her approaching marriage. (Applause). They all wished her every possible happiness in her future life. (Applause).

Mr A. Stanley Wilson, M.P., was the first speaker.

GENERAL ELECTION

Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., who was cordially received, declared that the only possible solution and the only possible way of making a move in the present deadlock was a general election, and that the Radical party, for reasons obvious to everybody, profoundly and strongly deprecated and wished to avoid. They were terrified at the idea of a general election. The Unionist party were crying out for it because they knew they would be given the opportunity of arresting the course of things going on now, and they were anxious to have that chance as soon as possible. Mr Wilson had suggested the horrible possibility —more than that, the horrible certainty—that the first thing they would have to do would be to clear up the mess the Radical would leave behind them. They would have to clear up a mess such as no other political party had ever left behind them. It was the most extraordinary thing instead of allowing local authorities to look after their own needs. The whole campaign was the greatest piece of impudence that had ever been brought before this country. They made all these promises, when what they had actually done was to make the lot of the people worse than it was. (Applause). Mr. Fox concluded by asking the gathering to assist at the next general election, not only to reduce the Coalition majority in the House, but to wipe it out altogether.

THE BUDGET.

Mr W. Campbell Johnston was very brief in his remarks, humorously commencing upon Viscount Haldane's reading of the latest budget. When Lord Haldane delivered an address on "The Lord Haldane delivered an address on "The true inwardness of the Budget," he said—"There are serious problems before us. The birthrate is diminishing. The people are not healthy, for it means more sickness and fewer improvident marriages. But it is impossible to diminish the death-rate. The infant mortality is enormous, and the Budget does not propose to deal with this problem in any other." (Laughter). Budgets had failed in many purposes, said the speaker, but he had never before heard of a Budget for the purpose of increasing the birth-rate and decreasing infantile mortality. (Laughter). He did not think even Mr Lloyd George, with the able exposition of the Lord Chancellor to help him, could induce the country to put into a Radical Government in order to carry out the purpose of his Budget. (Laughter, and hear, hear). Mr Campbell Johnston then proceeded to criticise the proposals of the Conservative party to meet a General Election. They were thoroughly prepared, and, more than that, could go to the country with one voice. The Conservative party was a party of progress, and the democratic party. (Applause).

The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the speakers, proposed by Mr Hawdon, and seconded by Mr J. F. Gretller. A similar compliment was paid the chairman on the motion of Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., after which the gathering dispersed and engaged in the various amusements provided for them. The Rawcliffe Band, under the conductorship of Mr H. Perritt, was in attendance, and played for dancing, which was indulged in with pleasure. The beautiful grounds of Carlton Towers were thrown open by Lady Beaumont, and a large number of the guests availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect them.

Rothwell Friendly Societies' Demonstration.

STATE MEDICAL SERVICE DEMANDED.

MR ISMAY ROBINSON AND TADCASTER INSURANCE COMMITTEE

The officers of the Rothwell and District Friendly Societies' and Trades' Union Council are to be congratulated upon the success of their demonstration, which took place at Rothwell on Sunday, and which is likely to become an annual event.

They proceeded to the recreation field at the back of the Council School had a bright touch of colour, lent by the banners of the affiliated societies. It was a happy idea of the Temperance Band to make a circuit of the town, a collection being taken en route for charities. The societies taking part lined up in the following order:—Ancient Order of Foresters, Equalised Rechabites, Grand United Order of Oddfellows, White Rose Friendly Society (Oulton), and the Loyal Prince of Lancaster (Woodlesford).

Mr J. Hirst (Chairman of the Rothwell Urban District Council) presided, and the speakers were Bro. Ismay Robinson, D.P.D.G.M., Grand Leeds District; and Bros. G. R. Leggott, T.M.E.C., A.O.R., Leeds District, Bro. J. Drabble, P.D.C.R., I.O.R., Sheffield District, who was unable to be present owing to illness, but whose address was introduced by Mr A. Blackburn, president of the Rothwell and District Friendly Societies' Council.

Mr Hirst said that he would do all he could to further the interests of friendly societies in the district. Although he was not a friendly society man, he was pleased to say that he was the son of an old treasurer of a friendly society, and perhaps it was going a bit better to say that he had a son who was a member of a society. He was told that they had thirteen societies in the Rothwell district, including Oulton and Woodlesford. When he looked round and saw the splendid gathering he came to the conclusion that thirteen was not quite a lucky number. He supposed that afternoon that they would have to consider the work of the friendly societies with relation to National Health Insurance Act. To his mind the passing of the Old Age Pension Act, the Insurance Act was the most important Act that had been passed in recent years. It was an Act which affected every worker from 16 to 70, with very few exceptions. He affected practically every employer of labour. He believed it was the first Act passed which caused female workers to join friendly societies. He was not in favour of it was not given the vote. (Laughter). He was told that before the Insurance Act was passed there were about six million members of friendly societies in this country; today that number was nearly fourteen millions. He believed in the principles of the Insurance Act. They were told that the Act gave them nine pence for fourpence. He was fully afraid that all of them could make such investments. (Laughter). Roughly speaking it was 125 per cent.

Mr Blackburn proposed the following resolution:—"That this mass meeting of friendly societies and trade union members think that the time is opportune for the medical part of the State Insurance Act to be amended on the lines of a State Medical Service, because, under the present system, adequate treatment cannot be provided by those members of the profession who are compelled to give treatment to, and no medical scheme can be satisfactory unless it provides medical treatment to the members' children as well. Therefore we, assembled here, bring forward the following resolution, which provides for the employment of the services of fully qualified and registered practitioners and dispensers, so that treatment can be obtained for the families of members who come within the range of the National Insurance Act." He said the work of friendly societies was being done in many cases by those who were less able to help themselves, and it was this class of person who had to suffer through the medical service of the Insurance Act not being made the best possible. They were all proud of their friendly societies in general and had been the means of doing a great amount of work. During the twelve months of the working of the Insurance Act they found the medical men receiving a few thousand pounds out of the whole amount of the sickness benefit. If that was so then instead of being a national Act it was a doctor's Act. The Act had been brought into operation for a purpose, and that purpose was to help those who were not in a friendly society. The Act did provide for sanatorium treatment, but it did not provide for a man's family. He said that the friendly societies in Rothwell amalgamated about twelve months ago. Those who did not believe in amalgamation were behind the times. Whatever society they belonged to they were there for one purpose—the strong to help the weak. They must strengthen their organization and strike as with one accord. (Applause).

Mr J. Wade seconded, and said that when the Act came into being they had a difficulty with the doctors. If there was an Act of Parliament which had been a benefit to a particular class of individual, it was the National Insurance Act, which had been so to them, and they could not deny it. He was surprised to hear the way the figures worked out; they worked out to an average of about £24½ per quarter each doctor. They had also had a difficulty over the uninsured. When the Act came into force they had a conference with the medical men of the district, and one of them said "This Act has been thrust upon us. He was glad when he heard one of the deputation say "To your advantage, sir." The Act said "Adequate medical attention and treatment." He took it that it meant adequate to the needs. What they wanted was a medical man who was considered competent to go to an institution or elsewhere to give an operation performed without having to pay for it. It was said when the Act went through the House that they had a committee to see where the requirements of all, but it had failed. (Applause).

The resolution was carried.

Bro. Ismay Robinson said he was there as one interested in friendly society work. He was a great believer in the National Health Insurance Act, which was one of the best Acts of Parliament ever passed for the working classes. He was prepared to admit, however, that it was full of difficulties, but the Act was the production of a fertile mind. It was introduced by Mr Lloyd George because of the mismanagement of friendly societies of bygone days. He (the speaker) was of opinion that the rate of insurance benefit, 50s. for a young man of 21, was not overpaid. Speaking when first the Act came into operation, contributor to the Act ought to be altered, say from 10 to 18, when they should receive full benefit. Then benefit should be paid from the date the claim was certified by the doctor. The medical benefits were not sufficient to meet the needs of the working class to-day. To his mind one of the greatest difficulties was owing to the fact that the doctors were taking too many patients on their panels. Some doctors had between two and three thousand patients, and it was only likely under this state of things that doctors showed an inclination to drop off. Every doctor ought to be restricted to about 1000 or 1200 members. Insurance Committees ought to have more power. He was a member of the Tadcaster Insurance Committee, and when he had to attend those meetings he had, after getting home from work, to devote some sixteen miles, as he could not get to Tadcaster by train. He knew that there everything was "cut and dried," and if they wanted to say anything about the doctors they had to see to it by another Committee—the West Riding County Committee. These committees were a farce, and until they, as friendly societies, made themselves heard, they would always have to put up with it.

Bro. G. R. Leggott reviewed the causes for the National Insurance Act, and said that one most important question was why had they so many friendly societies in their midst. They had dwellings in their midst, but they had no dwelling for a doctor, and he said that they had more sickness in Rothwell than in Leeds. The houses in Rothwell, some thought, were not fit for children to be in. He was one of the pessimist Radicals who made a circuit of the town, a collection being taken en route for charities. The societies taking part lined up in the following order:—Ancient Order of Foresters, Equalised Rechabites, Grand United Order of Oddfellows, White Rose Friendly Society (Oulton), and the Loyal Prince of Lancaster (Woodlesford).

Mr J. Hirst (Chairman of the Rothwell Urban District Council) presided, and the speakers were Bro. Ismay Robinson, P.D.G.M., Grand Leeds District; and Bros. G. R. Leggott, T.M.E.C., A.O.R., Leeds District, Bro. J. Drabble, P.D.C.R., I.O.R., Sheffield District, who was unable to be present owing to illness, but whose address was introduced by Mr A. Blackburn, president of the Rothwell and District Friendly Societies' Council.

Mr Hirst said that he would do all he could to further the interests of friendly societies in the district. Although he was not a friendly society man, he was pleased to say that he was the son of an old treasurer of a friendly society, and perhaps it was going a bit better to say that he had a son who was a member of a society. He was told that they had thirteen societies in the Rothwell district, including Oulton and Woodlesford. When he looked round and saw the splendid gathering he came to the conclusion that thirteen was not quite a lucky number. He supposed that afternoon that they would have to consider the work of the friendly societies with relation to National Health Insurance Act. To his mind the passing of the Old Age Pension Act, the Insurance Act was the most important Act that had been passed in recent years. It was an Act which affected every worker from 16 to 70, with very few exceptions. He affected practically every employer of labour. He believed it was the first Act passed which caused female workers to join friendly societies. He was not in favour of it was not given the vote. (Laughter). He was told that before the Insurance Act was passed there were about six million members of friendly societies in this country; today that number was nearly fourteen millions. He believed in the principles of the Insurance Act. They were told that the Act gave them nine pence for fourpence. He was fully afraid that all of them could make such investments. (Laughter). Roughly speaking it was 125 per cent.

Mr Blackburn proposed the following resolution:—"That this mass meeting of friendly societies and trade union members think that the time is opportune for the medical part of the State Insurance Act to be amended on the lines of a State Medical Service, because, under the present system, adequate treatment cannot be provided by those members of the profession who are compelled to give treatment to, and no medical scheme can be satisfactory unless it provides medical treatment to the members' children as well. Therefore we, assembled here, bring forward the following resolution, which provides for the employment of the services of fully qualified and registered practitioners and dispensers, so that treatment can be obtained for the families of members who come within the range of the National Insurance Act." He said the work of friendly societies was being done in many cases by those who were less able to help themselves, and it was this class of person who had to suffer through the medical service of the Insurance Act not being made the best possible. They were all proud of their friendly societies in general and had been the means of doing a great amount of work. During the twelve months of the working of the Insurance Act they found the medical men receiving a few thousand pounds out of the whole amount of the sickness benefit. If that was so then instead of being a national Act it was a doctor's Act. The Act had been brought into operation for a purpose, and that purpose was to help those who were not in a of houses had dropped from an average of 80,000 to 40,000. It was a little better now, but still very much below the average maintained before that Budget was introduced. But the worst of the tale of the campaign was that the whole of the time and energies of the Liberal party in the House of Commons, and Liberal Government business was going to be managed from London instead of allowing local authorities to look after their own needs. The whole campaign was the greatest piece of impudence that had ever been brought before this country. They made all these promises, when what they had actually done was to make the lot of the people worse than it was. (Applause). Mr. Fox concluded by asking the gathering to assist at the next general election, not only to reduce the Coalition majority in the House, but to wipe it out altogether.

THE BUDGET.

Mr W. Campbell Johnston was very brief in his remarks, humorously commenting upon Viscount Haldane's reading of the latest budget. When Lord Haldane delivered an address on "The true inwardness of the Budget," he said—"There are serious problems before us. The birthrate is diminishing. The people are not healthy, for it means more sickness and fewer improvident marriages. But it is impossible to diminish the death-rate. The infant mortality is enormous, and the Budget does not propose to deal with this problem in any other." (Laughter). Budgets had failed in many purposes, said the speaker, but he had never before heard of a Budget for the purpose of increasing the birth-rate and decreasing infantile mortality. (Laughter). He did not think even Mr Lloyd George, with the able exposition of the Lord Chancellor to help him, could induce the country to put into a Radical Government in order to carry out the purpose of his Budget. (Laughter, and hear, hear). Mr Campbell Johnston then proceeded to criticise the proposals of the Conservative party to meet a General Election. They were thoroughly prepared, and, more than that, could go to the country with one voice. The Conservative party was a party of progress, and the democratic party. (Applause).

The meeting closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the speakers, proposed by Mr Hawdon, and seconded by Mr J. F. Gretller. A similar compliment was paid the chairman on the motion of Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., after which the gathering dispersed and engaged in the various amusements provided for them. The Rawcliffe Band, under the conductorship of Mr H. Perritt, was in attendance, and played for dancing, which was indulged in with pleasure. The beautiful grounds of Carlton Towers were thrown open by Lady Beaumont, and a large number of the guests availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect them.

Rothwell Friendly Societies' Demonstration.

STATE MEDICAL SERVICE DEMANDED.

MR ISMAY ROBINSON AND TADCASTER INSURANCE COMMITTEE

The officers of the Rothwell and District Friendly Societies' and Trades' Union Council are to be congratulated upon the success of their demonstration, which took place at Rothwell on Sunday, and which is likely to become an annual event.

They proceeded to the recreation field at the back of the Council School had a bright touch of colour, lent by the banners of the affiliated societies. It was a happy idea of the Temperance Band to make a circuit of the town, a collection being taken en route for charities. The societies taking part lined up in the following order:—Ancient Order of Foresters, Equalised Rechabites, Grand United Order of Oddfellows, White Rose Friendly Society (Oulton), and the Loyal Prince of Lancaster (Woodlesford).

Mr J. Hirst (Chairman of the Rothwell Urban District Council) presided, and the speakers were Bro. Ismay Robinson, P.D.G.M., Grand Leeds District; and Bros. G. R. Leggott, T.M.E.C., A.O.R., Leeds District, Bro. J. Drabble, P.D.C.R., I.O.R., Sheffield District, who was unable to be present owing to illness, but whose address was introduced by Mr A. Blackburn, president of the Rothwell and District Friendly Societies' Council.

Mr Hirst said that he would do all he could to further the interests of friendly societies in the district. Although he was not a friendly society man, he was pleased to say that he was the son of an old treasurer of a friendly society, and perhaps it was going a bit better to say that he had a son who was a member of a society. He was told that they had thirteen societies in the Rothwell district, including Oulton and Woodlesford. When he looked round and saw the splendid gathering he came to the conclusion that thirteen was not quite a lucky number. He supposed that afternoon that they would have to consider the work of the friendly societies with relation to National Health Insurance Act. To his mind the passing of the Old Age Pension Act, the Insurance Act was the most important Act that had been passed in recent years. It was an Act which affected every worker from 16 to 70, with very few exceptions. He affected practically every employer of labour. He believed it was the first Act passed which caused female workers to join friendly societies. He was not in favour of it was not given the vote. (Laughter). He was told that before the Insurance Act was passed there were about six million members of friendly societies in this country; today that number was nearly fourteen millions. He believed in the principles of the Insurance Act. They were told that the Act gave them nine pence for fourpence. He was fully afraid that all of them could make such investments. (Laughter). Roughly speaking it was 125 per cent.

Mr Blackburn proposed the following resolution:—"That this mass meeting of friendly societies and trade union members think that the time is opportune for the medical part of the State Insurance Act to be amended on the lines of a State Medical Service, because, under the present system, adequate treatment cannot be provided by those members of the profession who are compelled to give treatment to, and no medical scheme can be satisfactory unless it provides medical treatment to the members' children as well. Therefore we, assembled here, bring forward the following resolution, which provides for the employment of the services of fully qualified and registered practitioners and dispensers, so that treatment can be obtained for the families of members who come within the range of the National Insurance Act." He said the work of friendly societies was being done in many cases by those who were less able to help themselves, and it was this class of person who had to suffer through the medical service of the Insurance Act not being made the best possible. They were all proud of their friendly societies in general and had been the means of doing a great amount of work. During the twelve months of the working of the Insurance Act they found the medical men receiving a few thousand pounds out of the whole amount of the sickness benefit. If that was so then instead of being a national Act it was a doctor's Act. The Act had been brought into operation for a purpose, and that purpose was to help those who were not in a

A WHITKIRK RESIDENT AND BEE-KEEPING.

FERTILIZATION OF FRUIT.

Mr W. E. Richardson, of Whitkirk, who is the secretary, stated at the annual meeting of the Yorkshire Beekeepers' Association, that they started the year with a balance of £5. 6d., it finished with a balance of £1 os. 3d. He might say that as the society was not in a flourishing condition he had paid out of his own pocket letters, and so show that all the expenditure had not passed through the books. He had received a large handbag filled with correspondence which he had had to reply to during the year.

The report was adopted, the Chairman remarking that it was a very handsome act on the part of the secretary to pay for all the postages. (Hear, hear).

Mr Richardson submitted the annual report, in the course of which he stated that in his parambulations through Yorkshire he found that the interest in bee-keeping was growing and that the interest in bee-keeping was growing. Among the societies which were now affiliated were York, Market Weighton, and Sheffield. During the year the membership had increased by 18. Many people were taking an interest in bee-keeping on account of the fertilization of fruit trees, and fruit growers were beginning to understand that if it were not for the bees there would be little fruit in the country. People had done their best to do away with the insects that did harm to the fruit, but they had done little to help the bee, which had done so much good. Many people were keeping one hive of bees for the sake of the fruit, and not for the sake of the honey. Members had approached Lord Allerton with regard to the society co-operating for the purpose of appliances, and he wished the Association to consider the matter. The Association was grateful to the secretaries of the various societies for their labour of love in the interests of bee-keeping. He would like to see that there was a similar association for pure Yorkshire bees in Scarborough, Bridlington, etc., while bees in Leeds and Bradford were so numerous and they did not produce half the amount they might.

The report was adopted.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON, SUPPLY STORES, GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

EVERY WOMAN

Should send two stamps for our 32 page Illustrated Book, containing valuable Information how all Irregularities and Suppressions may be entirely avoided or removed by simple means. Recommended by eminent Physicians, and the only Safe, Sure, and Genuine Remedy. Never fails. Thousands of Testimonials. Established 1862.

Mr PAUL BLANCHARD,

Claremont House, Dalston Lane, London.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	2 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20 ...	0 6 ...	1 0 ...	1 10 ...	3 3
30 ...	0 9 ...	1 6 ...	2 9 ...	5 0
40 ...	1 0 ...	1 9 ...	3 0 ...	6 6

Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s.	per inch	per insertion.
26 do.	10d.	do.	do.
52 do.	8d.	do.	do.

TENDERS

TADCASTER RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL

SCAVENGING CONTRACTS.

THE Council invite TENDERS for EMPTYING the ASHPITS in the following Townships, viz.:—ALLERTON BYWATER (3 Districts), KIPPAX (2 Districts), and BARWICK-IN-ELMET (2 Districts). Also for EMPTYING the CESSPOOLS in ABERFORD, LOTHERTON, and PARLINGTON. The Contract in each case will be from Sir Quarter last, 1914, to August 31st, 1915, except Barwick-in-Elmet, which will be until August 31st, 1916.

Any further information, together with forms of Tender, may be obtained from Mr. H. M. Driver, Sanitary Inspector, Garforth, near Leeds.

Also TENDERS for CLEANSING CESSPOOLS in SHERBURN and SCAVENGING of SOUTH MILFORD and NEWTHORPE for the year ending 31st August, 1915. For further information apply to Mr. H. C. Wood, Sanitary Inspector, Tadcaster.

Sealed Tenders, endorsed "Tenders for Scavenging," to be sent to me not later than Saturday, the 15th August, 1914.

GEO. A. BROMET,
Clerk to the Council.

Tadcaster, 20th July, 1914.

TO LET.

TO Let Good COTTAGE, with living-room, scullery, and three bedrooms. Rent 4s. weekly clear.—Mrs. Briers, Barwick-in-Elmet.

WANTED

WANTED Well-educated Youth as APPRENTICE.—Purdy, Chemist, Crossgates. 2

GOOD DAY GIRL wanted Small family.—Mrs Holliday, The Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 1 2045

WANTED for country near Ilkley, GENERAL SERVANT. References required.—Apply, King, Wharfedale Grange, Ben Rhydding. 1

WANTED Strong, Smart BOY, about 14 years.—Apply, after 6 p.m., John Peacock, Plumber, Station Road, Crossgates.

WANTED GENERAL, over 30, trustworthy, and competent. Three in family. No children. Good home.—15, Elmet Terrace, Crossgates. 2 2055

WANTED at once Respectable YOUNG GIRL. Good home. Good wages to a suitable girl. No family.—Write Mrs. Dimmick, Lilycroft Hotel, Manningham, Bradford. 2 2064

FEVER HOSPITAL, GARFORTH.

WANTED Good GENERAL. Another kept. Wages £18 with uniform.—Apply, Miss Scaife, Matron.

WANTED Smart GIRLS to LEARN BLOUSE-MAKING.

Apply, personally, after August 10th, at THE MILL, CLIFFORD. 25

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale BOAT-SHAPED PRAM., in good condition.—Apply, 17, Marshall Street, Crossgates.

FOR Sale 7 ACRES PLUMAGE BARLEY, growing near Scholes Station.—Apply, Wm. Prevat, Barwick-in-Elmet. 2

FOR Sale 3½ h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR CYCLE and SIDECAR, in good condition. Cheap.—Dockray, Hazelroyde, Green Lane, Whitkirk.

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also few pure-bred YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandon Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

FOR Sale perfectly new Jones's HAND SEWING MACHINE, £2 12s., worth double; also SILVER PLATED AFTERNOON TEA SET, very pretty and perfectly new, value 30s. Will accept 24s., or nearest offer for either.—Apply, 22, Westfield Crescent, Leeds. 2 2065

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free 2 Stamps. —(S) Davies & Co., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road, Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
KAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

TO-MORROW (SATURDAY), AUGUST 1st.

GARDEN FETE and SALE OF WORK at BROOKFIELD, GARFORTH BRIDGE, in aid of SWILLINGTON CHURCH EXPENSES,
Commencing at 3 o'clock

ON SATURDAY, AUGUST 8th.

POTTERTON HALL, BARWICK-IN-ELMET.

Mr and Mrs. CHILDE will be pleased to receive the members of the BARWICK-IN-ELMET AND SCHOLES CONSERVATIVE ASSOCIATIONS to a
RECEPTION and GARDEN PARTY at 2-30 p.m.

CRICKET MATCH between POTTERTON HALL XI. and BARWICK-IN-ELMET CONSERVATIVE CLUB XI.
Speakers:—
Mr. G. R. Lane Fox, M.P.
Hon. F. S. Jackson.
Mr. E. O. Simpson.
Mr. Councillor Pemberton, etc., etc.
Tea 4 p.m.
The Garforth Brass Band will be in attendance. 2

LEEDS HOSPITAL GALA AND SPORTS.
ROUNDHAY PARK
(By permission of the Lord Mayor and Corporation).
BANK HOLIDAY (MONDAY and TUESDAY, August 3 and 4, 1914.

GREAT FLYING DISPLAY
BY WONDERFUL
"LOOPING THE LOOP,"
AND OTHER EXHIBITION FLIGHTS
Each Day, Afternoon and Evening (weather permitting), by
Mr. REGINALD H. CARR
(The First and Only Aviator to Loop in the Dark), of GRAHAME WHITE AVIATION CO., LTD.

FIRST-CLASS VARIETY ENTERTAINMENTS
SIX BANDS OF MUSIC.

FOOT AND BICYCLE RACES.

BOATING ON THE LAKES.

BALLOON ASCENTS AND PARACHUTE DESCENTS by CAPTAIN SPENCER.

GRAND DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS EACH EVENING.

FINEST GALA AND FINEST PARK IN THE COUNTRY

Gates open at 11 o'clock.
Performances to begin at 1 o'clock.
ADMISSION SIXPENCE.
Children under 12 years of age—Threepence.
WALTER WORMALD, Secretary,
3, PARK SQUARE, LEEDS

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

WEEK COMMENCING AUGUST 3rd, 1914.

STAR PROGRAMMES.

ALL THE LATEST AND BEST OF THE CINEMA ART.

DRAMA, HUMOUR, INSTRUCTION.

Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., and Friday at 7. Saturday 3, 6.30, and 8.30.

Admission: 2d., 4d., 6d. 6d. Seats may be booked
Children half-price Saturday afternoon.

JAMES BRAMLEY, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that all CREDITORS and other persons having any CLAIMS or DEMANDS against the estate of JAMES BRAMLEY, late of GATELAND HOUSE, SHADWELL, Leeds, in the County of York, deceased (who died on the 23rd day of April, 1914, and whose will was proved in the Wakefield District Registry of the Probate Division of His Majesty's High Court of Justice on the 20th day of June, 1914, by Louisa Bramley and Tom Sherwood, the surviving executors therein named), are hereby required to send the particulars in writing of their CLAIMS or DEMANDS so us, the undersigned, the Solicitors for the said executors, on or before the 6th day of September next, after which date the said executors will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased amongst the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims and demands of which they shall then have had notice.

Dated this 23rd day of July, 1914.
HARLAND & PLACKETT,
14, East Parade, Leeds,
Solicitors for the said Executors.

Established 37 years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
52, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
ESTATE AGENTS & RENT COLLECTORS.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Insurance Brokers.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 for 2½d. per month.
£1 0 0 ,, 5d. ,,
£2 0 0 ,, 10d. ,,
£5 10 0 ,, 1od. ,,
£10 0 0 ,, 1s. 8d. ,,
£25 0 0 ,, 2s. 8d. ,,
£50 0 0 ,, 3s. 4d. ,,
£100 0 0 ,, 5s. 4d. ,,
Sums above £100 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 2, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

Mr. & Mrs. Turner,
7, Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited. Highest Price Given.
'Phone Nos.: Leeds 21881; Bradford, 2413.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

REGISTER! REGISTER!! REGISTER!!!

NORMANTON DIVISION LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.

TO OCCUPATION ELECTORS.

A FULL LIST OF PERSONS ENTITLED to be REGISTERED as VOTERS will be found on the doors of Places of Worship, Post Offices, etc., on August 1st. You are earnestly requested to examine such lists, and see whether your name appears thereon, and if not to communicate at once with Mr J. STEAD, (Sub-Registration Agent), Commercial Street, Rothwell.

The qualifying period of occupation is from 15th July, 1913, to 15th July, 1914.

62,290 (18th July, 1914).

Investing Rural District Council with Urban Powers: Determining Special Expenses.

HUNSLET RURAL DISTRICT.

CONTRIBUTORY PLACE OF TEMPLE-NEWSAM.

To the Rural District Council of Hunslet:—
And to all others whom it may concern.

WHEREAS by virtue of an Order dated the 31st day of January, 1874, and issued by Us, the Local Government Board, certain of the provisions of Section 169 of the Public Health Act, 1875, are in force in the contributory place of Templenewsam, in the Rural District of Hunslet; and whereas We have received and duly considered an application from the Rural District Council of Hunslet under Section 276 of the Public Health Act, 1875, for the issue of an Order putting in force in the said contributory place certain provisions of that Act;

NOW THEREFORE, in pursuance of the powers given to Us by the Statutes in that behalf, We hereby Declare and Order as follows—

Article I.—Until We by Order otherwise Direct, such of the provisions of Section 169 of the Public Health Act, 1875, as are not already in force shall be in force in the said contributory place, and the said Rural District Council shall accordingly be invested with all the powers, rights, duties, capacities, liabilities, and obligations of an Urban District Council, under those provisions, in the said contributory place.

Article II.—The expenses incurred or payable by the said Rural District Council in the execution of the powers conferred upon them by Article I. of this Order, except so far as those expenses may relate to their Establishment and Officers, shall be Special Expenses within the meaning of the Public Health Act, 1875, chargeable upon the said contributory place.

Article III.—This Order shall come into operation on the Tenth day of August, One thousand nine hundred and fourteen, and the said Rural District Council shall cause it to be published once in some newspaper circulated within their District before that date.

Given under the Seal of Office of the Local Government Board, this Eighteenth day of July, in the year One thousand nine hundred and fourteen.

HERBERT SAMUEL,
President.

L.S.
WALTER T. JERRED,
Assistant Secretary.

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality. Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists. Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
PROPRIETOR: H. BEEFORTH.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TER. RACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
he Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free. or British and Foreign Patents,, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 35Y.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

DENTISTRY.
W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 38a, Boar Lane (over Messrs Newby's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s., each. Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 2s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 2617.

THOS. COOK & SON,

CALL and see us IF YOU WISH FOR ADVICE	BOOK PASSAGES or give any information about EMIGRATING to CANADA, AUSTRALIA, NEW ZEALAND, AFRICA, AMERICA, &c., &c.	ESTAB. SINCE 1851.
NO CHARGE	We have our own Offices and staff in each of these Countries.	140 OFFICES in ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

55, Boar Lane, LEEDS.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY NEXT.
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers

ON MONDAY NEXT, AT II O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART.
20 CHOICE BULLOCKS AND HEIFERS.
80 FAT LAMBS, SHEARLINGS, and EWES
PORK AND STORE PIGS.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoe Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand and may be purchased privately at any time Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited

Messrs. J. CUNDALL & SON
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK, and
WHARFEDALE AUCTION MART, TADCASTER

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY.
EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CALLING AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.
Bank Holiday Monday, 3rd Aug., 6.10 a.m. to York and Malton for 1 day; and Scarborough for 1 to 5 days. 6.25 a.m. to Selby and Market Weighton for 1 day, and Bridlington and Filey for 1 to 5 days. 7.55 a.m. to Pickering and Goathland for 1 day, and Whitby for 1 to 4 days; Tuesday, 4th Aug., 7 a.m. to York, Malton, and Pickering for 1 day and Scarborough and Whitby for 1 to 4 days. 7.7 a.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for 1 day, and Bridlington and Filey for 1 to 4 days. 11.30 a.m. to Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Whitby. 12.3 p.m. to York, Coxwold, Ampleforth, Gilling, Helmsley, Kirbymoorside, and Pickering. 12.35 p.m. to Bridlington, Flamborough, Hunmanby, and Filey. 2.15 p.m. (calling at Crossgates only) to Wetherby, Thorparch, and Tadcaster. Wednesday, 5th Aug., 7 a.m. to York, Malton, and Pickering for 1 day, and Scarborough and Whitby for 1 to 4 days. 12.3 p.m. to York, Coxwold, Ampleforth, Gilling, Helmsley, Kirbymoorside, and Pickering. 12.13 p.m. to Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Whitby. 12.45 p.m. to Selby and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington and Filey for ½ to 4 days. Thursday, 6th Aug., 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, and Grosmont for ½ day and Whitby for ½ to 4 days. 12.30 p.m. to York and Malton for ½ day and Scarborough for ½ to 4 days. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, and Driffield for ½ day, and Bridlington for ½ to 4 days. 1.32 p.m. to Selby and Howden for ½ day, and Hull for ½ days. Friday, 7th Aug., 12.30 p.m. to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Saturday, 8th Aug., 12.13 p.m. to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, Grosmont, and Whitby. 12.30 p.m. to Scarborough. 12.45 p.m. to Selby, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Bridlington.
For further particulars see bills.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge,
Easy Terms £2 2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-
OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE.
Age Limit, 16-60!

Section	Death	Total Disablement up to 26 weeks	PREMIUMS One Week	Two Weeks	One Month
	£	Per Week
A	500	50/-	3/-	5/-	10/-
B	250	25/-	1/6	2/6	5/-
C	100	10/-	9d.	1/-	3/-

These Insurances do not cover Professional or Trade Risks, or obviously dangerous ventures.
ROYAL
ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION Ltd., PERTH, SCOTLAND.
Assets nearly £7,000,000. Established 1825

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &C.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing, Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

Fine Low Shoes
For SUMMER and the HOLIDAYS
We specialise on low shoes. We offer you shoes at that in style, fit and comfort cannot be equalled at anything like the price. 10/6
The New Summer Models of
THOR SHOES for MEN
GATORA SHOES for LADIES
are a long way ahead of any other brands, even at shillings more per pair. Don't just accept this statement. Call and see the shoes in our window—step into the store and ask to examine any that interest you—don't purchase unless you are absolutely satisfied that the shoes are what we represent them to be. In ladies' shoes we have splendid lines at 7/11 which compare favourably with shoes sold at 10/6. The name Southall stands for quality and dependability—you buy with security from Southall.—Note our address, and call the first time in the City.
SOUTHALL & Co.
8, New Station Street
(Opposite Albion Street),
LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this:-
The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.
There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.
Recommended by the Medical Faculty.
A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.
CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.
HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists, and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET, LEEDS.

— TRY —
SANCFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt, and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd., LEEDS.

ESTABLISHED 1849.
W. T. GRISDALE,
Painter and Decorator,
36, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates.
Pattern Books sent to any Address. Estimates Free.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

TELEPHONE 1877 CENTRAL.
BUCKTONS
CABS OR TAXIS
"We never Stop"
LEEDS
END OF CLAYPIT LANE, TOP OF COOKRIDGE ST.

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, AUGUST 1st, 1914.

Although the death-rate throughout the country is falling, and the average period of life is longer than it was, it is somewhat disquieting to know that certain diseases are claiming an increased toll. One of the most mysterious and deadly of these is cancer. Its cause is unknown, and there are half-a-dozen theories, equally probable and equally unsubstantiated, to account for it. In searching for a cause several have suggested that the increased consumption of tinned food has something to do with it, but investigation has not furnished evidence that danger lies in that quarter. Another theory is that cancer is transmitted from one person to another by old houses and old furniture, and attempts have been made to prove that certain rooms and beds have been associated with fatal cancer cases. If this were found to be true, the eradication of the disease would not be a difficult matter, but, unfortunately, little hope of success is presented from this line of investigation. The report of the Cancer Research Fund for the first year states that statistics have been carefully examined in order to test the validity of this opinion, and the result has not suggested that the cause of the disease has been more closely approached. One point that goes directly against the theory is that while the number of old houses is decreasing, the incidence of cancer is getting greater and greater. The advent of radium upon the stage of science was quickly followed by demonstrations of its power in arresting the growth of the malady, but the promise of the experiments in their early stage was not fulfilled. Eminent surgeons have stated that the only way of dealing with malignant growths is by operation, but, to be successful, the surgeon's aid must be requisitioned in the early stages of the disease, and it is remarked that people, rather than complain, allow cancer to grow until at length it puts them beyond the hope of cure. The progress made in the knowledge and prevention of the disease is very slow, indeed, but the medical profession is actively engaged in the work of investigation, and, sooner or later, something will be done to check the ravages of the malady and mitigate the sufferings of humanity.

An interesting discussion on the decline in the membership of the Wesleyan Methodist Church is going on just now in the newspapers, and many reasons are given for the decrease, the poor parson, as usual, coming in for a substantial share of blame. While spiritual guides here and there may neglect their flocks, the ministers, as a whole, are earnest and diligent in their work, and the multitudinous duties devolving on a man having the oversight of a number of chapels precludes the possibility of his having a great deal of leisure. Captious critics do not always consider the claims the minister has made upon him, otherwise they would be more generous, and if in pastoral visitation, he does not meet their requirements, they should remember that his "parish" is a wide one and that his people are of many congregations. One way of increasing the efficiency of the ministry in regard to visitation would be to multiply the numbers, but that could not be done without augmented funds, which the laity might or might not be willing to give. In regard to the decreased membership, it may be assumed that Methodism is suffering from the effect of its own rules. For years an agitation has been going on for the adoption of some other means than the class meeting as a test of membership, but the Conference has not made any concession to this opinion, and it is probable that many people have fallen away in consequence. Every organization must have laws for its efficient government, and if the class meeting has produced a strong and vigorous type of Methodist, there is reason for the reluctance to give way to the clamour of a few, because a new system, with few personal responsibilities, might bring out a type of member wholly out of accord with the traditions of Methodism. What the Church requires is the living interest of men and women, and something more than mere attendance at a service on Sunday is demanded of them. One cause of leakage, as referred to at the Conference, is evident in almost every town and village; for religious or social reasons people join other religious bodies and the Church of England no doubt gains considerably in this way. Complaint is made, too, about the work at suburban churches, and this is a real question affecting not one denomination only. When people living in towns decide to remove to suburbs or villages they do not always count the cost, and repentance sometimes follows when too late. They have their religious and social associations in the district in which they live, and, in going to a new place, these are uprooted, and an attempt must be made to form new associations. This is not so easily done, and families of young men and women drift away from organizations which have exercised an influence on their lives. Not a few parents have realized the responsibility that such changes bring about, and they have remained at the old chapel for the sake of their families. The chief cause of the decreased membership of churches, however, is the indifference of the people generally. It is often said that agnosticism is exerting a baneful influence on the population, but there is no evidence that it is making headway, and people have their own religious beliefs, although they do not care to ally themselves with any church. A greater responsibility is carried with church membership than many seem to think; it must stand for something, and no amount of argument will convince anyone that it has no obligations. People are, however, wrong in judging a religion by those who profess it; hypocrites are as prolific in the church as they are in society; and it is, therefore, a mistake to pass condemnation on any body because of the faults of its members. In the old days the Church exercised considerable disciplinary powers over its members, but were any return to this system suggested there would be a revolt. Compulsory attendance at church was not calculated to produce improvement, any more than attendance at worship through mere custom, and indifference is just as rife in the church as outside. A great field in the residential quarters as well as in the slums, lies ready for the workers, but the responsibility rests with the members, and not entirely with the parsons, who, it must be remembered, have their human limitations.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines

DEATHS.

ATKINSON.—July 23rd, at The Cedars, Lidgett Lane, Moor Allerton, in her 80th year, Margaret, widow of Richard Marshall Atkinson.

BAXTER—July 25th, at William the Fourth, Barwick-in-Elmet, William, the beloved husband of Minnie Baxter, aged 54 years.

PULLAN.—July 27th, at Chapel Lane, Barwick-in-Elmet, Henry Pullan, aged 71.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

DRINK.—At a special court on Saturday, before Mr J. R. Cross, Joe Ledger, of Rothwell Haigh, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly in Mayrell Avenue, Rothwell, on the previous night at about 10 p.m. P.C. Leahy proved the case, and Ledger was fined 5s. and costs.

EDUCATION.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday John Atack, a minor, of Rothwell, was summoned for not sending his child to school. The mother of the child said it was not fit to send to school. It was stated that the child had been excluded from school by the medical inspector. A fine of 2s. 6d. was imposed.

GOLF.—On Saturday a match was played between South Leeds and Ossett. Scores:—South Leeds, singles 7, foursomes 4: Ossett, singles 1, foursomes 0. Details of singles (Ossett names first)—O. Myers o v. F. G. Brown 3; J. S. Pollitt 1 v. J. Pratt o; N. White o v. F. Ellison 1; G. W. Rhodes o v. W. Brown 3; J. H. Glover o v. A. Drake 1, F. Ellis o v. W. H. Turner 1, H. Myers o v. J. Clark 1, A. F. Glover 0 v. W. Pratt 1.

CRICKET.—On Saturday the Rothwell W.M.C. had a match with the East Leeds W.M.C. on the latter's ground. Scores:—Rothwell—J. Lord o, H. Sanderson 1, J. Parker 9, J. Fox 1, S. Nunns 7, L. Atack 18, J. Barnett o, J. Parminter (not out) 1, extra, 1; total, 38. East Leeds—J. Green 9, J. Walker 5, M. Jowett 1, C. Waterhouse (not out) 1, Dent 8, Hall (not out) 2, extras, 11; total (for 3 wkts.), 40.

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Applications—John Varley, Leeds, improvements for cleaning the taller gills of drawing and roving frames, etc.; and V. L. Tomasso, Leeds, improvements, in ice-cream freezers. Patents accepted—J. R. Foggett, Harrogate, improvements in show pens for animals; and Edward Court, Wakefield, improvements in postal letter boxes

NEW ORGAN.—The work of preparation for the reception of the new organ has begun in earnest at the Primitive Methodist Church. On Sunday worshippers found that the old instrument which had led the singing had mysteriously disappeared, leaving quite a bare space behind the choir seats. For the next few weeks various alterations to this part of the chapel will be effected, in order that the Durham firm, who have the contract on hand, may commence their work. The new instrument will cost about £1,200, half of which sum has been raised by local effort, while £600 has been received from the Carnegie Trust Fund. It is anticipated that the opening ceremony will take place on October 10th.

ASLEEP.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Walter Crossley, a carrier, of Rothwell Haigh, was summoned for having been asleep while in charge of a horse and vehicle. P.S. Metcalfe stated that about 4.10 p.m. on Monday, July 20th, he was on the Wakefield Road, Oulton, when he saw the defendant, who was in charge of a horse, seated at the back of the cart, and he was asleep. He awoke him, and, in reply to the officer's questions, he said he had only just dozed off. The road, said the officer, was very busy at the time. Defendant said he had had very little sleep at nights, as his child was ill with bronchitis. The Chairman said the excuse was reasonable, and they would take a lenient view of the offence. A fine of 2s. and costs was imposed.

A Patriotic Memorandum in aid of the circuit funds of the Primitive Methodist Church, a successful picnic party was held in the grounds of Chatham House, the residence of Mr J. Hirst, on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the hitherto cold weather the idea of having tea in the open had to be abandoned, and an adjournment was made to the Sunday School at the tea hour. During the afternoon an interesting cricket match was played between the ladies and the gentlemen. Each team consisted of sixteen players, the umpires being Messrs J. W. Thurwell and T. Chatham. The match was won by the gentlemen, who scored 99 to the ladies' 33. A prize of half-a-crown was awarded to the highest scorer on either side, and the prizes were carried off by Mrs Tiffany and Mr L. Bedford. Among those who distinguished themselves in bowling were Mrs Tiffany, Miss Burton, and Messrs A. Naylor, J. Ward, and E. Ward. At the kind invitation of Mr Hirst, the gardens were inspected, and before the party broke up the Rev. W. G. Softley tendered the thanks of all to Mr Hirst.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr J. W. Morkill (in the chair), Col. A. M. Sagar Musgrave, Mr E. Parkin, and Mr A. Evans. The Chairman intimated that the court would not sit until that day (fortnight, on account of the holidays.

OLD BAND SPORTS—The annual sports and gala of the Rothwell Old Band were held on Saturday before a good attendance of spectators. The results of the events were as follows:—Boys' Race (10 to 14)—1, Goldthorp; 2, Elliott; 3, Fox. Boys' Race (8 to 10)—1, Taylor; 2, Goldthorp; 3, Walker. Boys' Race (under 8)—1, Ely; 2, Goldthorp; 3, Bridgw. Men's (open race)—1, Ely; 2, Butler; 3, Barton. Parish Church A.F.C. Race—1, Taylor; 2, Gibson; 3, Bending. Bands Race—1, Darlington; 2, Copley; 3, Daare. Married Women's Race—1, Mrs Fox; 2, Mrs Ward; 3, Mrs Redley. Bowling at Wicket—1, Taylor; 2, L. Stringer; 3, J. Connor. Married J. Taylor; 2, L. Stringer; 3, J. Connor. Married Women's Hand Handicap—1, Mrs H. Copley. Dart Handicap (men)—1, Bennett; 2, Wood. Mr W. Hamill officiated as judge, and Mr J. Weither was the starter.

RESURRECTION—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Herbert Digby, a miner, of Holbeck, was summoned for having travelled on the N.E.R. without having previously paid his fare. Mr W. T. Bainbridge prosecuted for the Railway Company. George Henry Myers, a ticket collector in the Marsh Lane Station, said that when he was taking tickets at the station on July 4th the defendant gave him one the date of which had been scratched off. Sydney Rhodes, booking clerk at the Leeds New Station, proved that the ticket in question had been issued on June 15th. Defendant said that he had, when he got on the train, two tickets in his possession, one for the day in question, and the other an old one. On the way he threw one of the tickets away, thinking it was the old one. The Chairman said the excuse was but a thin one, and asked defendant if he could account for the date having been scratched out. Defendant said he could not. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

ALLERTON BYWATER.

BETTING AT ALLERTON SPORTS.—Charges of loitering for betting purposes at Allerton sports on Saturday were preferred, at Castleford, on Wednesday, against Harry Josephs and Hyman Frieze, tailors, of Leeds, and Joseph Lister, a Leeds bookmaker. Dealing with the case of Josephs and Frieze, Police-constable Herman said he saw the prisoners receiving money and making bets. Josephs was shouting, "Two to one on the field; even money on Dobson." Frieze, on the other hand, was offering "Two to one on Dobson." Josephs was arrested. Josephs stated that the bets he offered were to his own friends, with whom he had come from Leeds. Frieze pleaded guilty. The case against Josephs was dismissed, and Frieze was fined 10s., while also similar fine was inflicted on Lister, who also pleaded guilty.

CROSSGATES.

On Saturday afternoon Crossgates R.H. bowlers defeated Garforth W.M. by 178 to 156.

A report of Crossgates Sweet Pea Society's show is given elsewhere. We are informed that a local gentleman has offered a gold medal for competition next year.

PRESENTATION.—Mr J. W. Gillott, who has been in charge of Leeds Labour Exchange since May, 1912, is to be transferred to Brighton next month. In connection with his departure an informal gathering took place at the Clarion Cafe on Monday night, when a presentation was made to Mr Gillott from members of his staff. In the unavoidable absence of Mr G. C. Venn, the assistant divisional officer, Mr C. P. Kesteven, the deputy-manager, presided, and Mr J. J. Regan made the presentation on behalf of the staff. Mr Gillott resided for several years at Marshall Avenue, Potternewton, and he was a member of the Wesleyan Church choir.

BOWLING.—A friendly match was played on the greens of the Roundhay Bohemians on Wednesday evening between the Crossgates and Roundhay Bohemians, and resulted in a win for the Bohemians, and resulted in a win for the visitors by 4 points. The scores were 154 and 158. Details (Crossgates names first):—J. Firth 14, Details (Crossgates names first):—J. Firth 14, 15 v. J. H. Armitage 8, J. Crossley 15, C. Crabtree 15, Hartley, sen. 15, G. Danby 15, S. Crabtree 15, Hartley, sen. 15, G. Danby 15, S. Crabtree 15, W. H. Morton 15 v. H. Chadwick 9, G. W. Burch 10 v. E. Fogden 15, H. Bennett 15 v. H. Donnally 10, J. A. Rymer 15 v. E. Bennett 13, W. Holdsworth 12 v. J. W. Wilson Bacon 13, W. Holdsworth 12 v. J. W. Wilson Bacon 13, W. H. Herbert 13 v. J. L. Taylor 15, J. Connor 15, J. W. H. Herbert 13 v. J. L. Taylor 15, J. Connor 15 v. W. H. Wilson 7, I. Semper 15 v. L. Hartley, jun. 11, and A. Hughes 9 v. J. W. Pickles 15.

GUARDIANS AND CLERK'S SALARY.—The Leeds Board of Guardians on Wednesday decided to increase the salary of the Clerk, Mr J. H. Ford, from £600 to £800 a year. The increase was recommended by a Special Committee that had enquired into Mr Ford's application, and the Chairman, Mr T. Moore, in moving the adoption of the report, said Mr Ford had been in the service of the Board for thirty-five years, during seventeen of which he had been Clerk. It was twelve years ago that he last had an advance, and in the meantime the work had very much increased. Moreover, in comparison with the salaries paid to the clerks of other big unions, Mr Ford was not well remunerated. He was an able officer, the office was worked economically, and as the settlement negotiations Mr Ford had been the means of saving the rates a large sum of money. Mr A. Edmanson seconded the motion, declaring that Mr Ford had not been well paid for the work he did. He quoted a remark by Mr John Burns that Mr Ford was one of the smartest Poor Law Clerks in the country. (Hear, hear). Mr A. Lee (Crossgates) moved an amendment that the increase should be £135. Mr W. E. Hickman seconded, saying this figure would bring up the total emoluments to £1,000. Mr Ford being also Clerk to the Assessment Committee. The Chairman: We are not dealing with that, but with Mr Ford's salary as Clerk to the Board, which is £600 a year. Mr R. M. Sagar-Musgrave (Shadwell) supported the advance. He spoke of Mr Ford's knowledge and ability, and said it was unfair that he should be under-paid. Mr H. France said the emoluments of the office ought to be taken into consideration. Corporation officials stood on a different footing, for they were not entitled to a pension. In five years' time Mr Ford would be entitled to a pension of £580 a year, in addition to £60 which he was receiving from the Insurance Corporation as compensation for the loss of his office as Clerk to the Roundhay District Council. The Chairman: The Clerk has had to pay 3 per cent. of his salary towards the pension, and he cannot claim the pension until he is 65. Mr J. T. Backton elicited the information that if the Assessment Committee were to be abolished Mr Ford would not be compensated for the loss of office. Mr W. Pitts opposed the increase, and put in a word for the clerks of the office, who, he said, were underpaid. Mr T. Rushton took the same view. The Chairman said it was the Board's fault if the clerks were not well paid, and for his part, he thought their pay ought also to be raised. On a vote, the amendment was defeated by 17 votes to 10, and the increase of £200 was carried by 18 votes to 7. Six members were neutral.

FRYSTON

HOLDING A POLICEMAN.—For obstructing the police in the execution of their duty, John Johnson and Joseph Cooper, two Fryston miners, were fined 20s. each at Castleford on Wednesday. P.C. Lofthouse was arresting a woman in Fryston on Sunday night when the defendants held him until the man got away.

ASSAULT.—E. Smith and J. Brown, both Fryston miners, were charged at Castleford on Monday with a violent assault on Police-constable Lofthouse on Sunday. The two men were outside the Milnes' Arms, at Fryston, the worse for drink, and Brown was seen to strike the constable with a bottle. The defendants were fined 10s. each for drunk and disorderly, Brown was fined 40s. and Smith £3 0s. 6d. for the assault on the constable, and £1 0s. 9d. for a further assault on P.C. Stone, a Fryston miner.

GARFORTH

To-morrow (Saturday) a garden fete and sale of work will take place at Brookfield, Garforth Bridge, and numerous attractions will be provided—free advert.

GARDEN FETE.—On Wednesday a fete was held in the Rectory grounds, and it was largely attended. A flower stall, sweet stall, etc., were provided, and tea was served to the guests on the lawn. Numerous amusements made up an interesting programme, and the candle lighting hat trimming, and other competitions aroused considerable interest. Maypole dancing by the children of the Parochial School was prettily done, and a firemen's display, an ambulance demonstration, conjuring entertainments, etc., were outstanding attractions.

A CLAIM.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Edward Smith, a byeworkman, of Garforth, was summoned in connection with a claim for a debt of £3 11s. by Mr H. W. Powell, the Clerk to the Garforth District Education Sub-Committee. The claim, it was stated, was on an agreement with the County Council in respect of the maintenance of his stepson, who was in an institution for deaf children. Defendant said he did not see why he should pay the amount as he still did not belong to him. The Chairman pointed out that he had signed an agreement to pay for the child's keep. An order was made for payment.

HALTON

Halton bowlers defeated Garforth W.M. on Saturday by 176 to 163.

On Wednesday at a garden fete at Harrogate Lady Dorothy Wood opened a sale of work in aid of the local branch of the Y.M.C.A.

IN DARKNESS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Christopher Scott, a farmer, of Colton, was summoned for driving a vehicle without a light. P.C. Eadon stated that about 11 p.m. on Monday, the 13th inst., he was on the Wakefield Road at Garforth where he stopped the defendant because he had no light. Scott replied that the lamp had only just gone out, but the lamp was cold. When told he would be reported, defendant said to the officer: "You want putting in a bag and shaking up." Defendant, in defence, said he had not gone 100 yards without a light. A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

MINER'S WIFE'S LAMENT.—The wife of a miner at the Waterloo Main Colliery, who summoned her husband for persistent cruelty in the Leeds Police Court on Monday, alleged that since her child was born two months ago, her husband only saw him seven or eight black eyes. "He works when he likes, sir. He generally has a day off on his own." added the wife. Mr A. Walker (Leeds) said: Even the policeman gets off one day in the week. (Laughter). The wife asserted that when the "knocker-up" called in the morning her husband used to get up, open the window, and then go back to bed again. (Laughter). She denied that she was addicted to drink, but said that her husband was happier paying for drink for her than food. An order for 10s. a week was made.

ALLOTMENT HOLDERS AND WATER.—In compliance with a request, the Templenewsam Parish Council got out a scheme of water supply for the allotments in Moor Lane, and they were prepared to carry it out provided the tenants would guarantee to pay all charges. Of the thirty-six allotment-holders only a quarter replied, all-but-seven of whom signed a deputation, consisting of and on Monday Mr Lambert, Ackroyd, and Bower, attended a meeting at which Councillors J. Firth were present, J. Ouvrid, J. A. Hall, and Mr Lambert also were present. The Lambert stated that what the allotment-holders wanted was not a pipe running down the field, but simply the conveyance of the water inside the field, and they would fetch it from that gate. The question was discussed at some length, and an assurance was given by a deputation that the Council would be willing to carry out Mr Lambert's suggestion provided the allotment-holders in the field would give a written guarantee that they would meet the cost. The sub-letting of allotments was also brought up, and it will be discussed at next meeting of the Council.

KIPPAX

Harvesting was commenced at Kippax Common, on Saturday, when a fine crop of oats was cut.

LEAGUE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Samuel Thompson, a miner, of Kippax, was summoned for having used obscene language to Police-constable Preston about 10 o'clock on Saturday, the 18th inst. P.C. Eadon proved the case, and defendant, who did not regarded the summons, was fined 20s. and costs.

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH.—Special services were held in this church on Sunday to augment the finances. Mr Walter Blackburn, of Audby, was the preacher for the day. A flower service took place in the afternoon, when the choir, under the direction of Mr J. Ratcliffe, gave a creditable rendering of the service of song "That hymn of old." The solos were efficiently sung by Miss Halliday (soprano), Miss Goodall (contralto), and Mr J. Farrant (bass), while the duet was sung by Miss E. Smith (soprano) and Miss D. Ratcliffe (contralto). The organ accompaniments were played by Mr W. Hall. Mr G. Plows presided. A public tea was provided in the church on Monday, and the following ladies served at the tea-tables:—Mrs Dent, Mrs Mallinson, Miss Halliday, and Miss Snowden. The proceeds of the tea and Sunday collections were fairly satisfactory.

MINERALS AT KIPPAX.—In the Court of Appeal on Wednesday delivered judgment in the case of Lord Mexborough and Medhurst and others upon the appeal of Mr Arthur Francis Medhurst from a judgment of Mr Justice Warrington in an action brought against him by the Rev. Emil Broughton Smith (vicar of Kippax) and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The question in dispute was as to whether certain minerals in the glebe of the vicar of Kippax belonged to the vicar and his successors or to Mr Medhurst as the Lord of the Manor of Kippax. Mr Justice Warrington made a declaration that the minerals under lands allotted to the vicar which were now glebe lands passed to and were the property of the vicar for the time being. The fact were not in dispute, and the question in the case turned on the construction of an Enclosure Act passed in 1791, which was followed by an enclosure award. The Court by a majority (the Master of the Rolls dissenting) allowed the appeal, holding that the mines and minerals in question remained vested in Mr Medhurst and his heirs and assigns. The Master of the Rolls agreed with the judgment of Mr Justice Warrington. The appeal was accordingly allowed, with costs.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE.—The monthly meeting of Kippax Education Committee was held on Wednesday—Mr E. Parkin, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. Other members present were Mr J. W. Blackburn (vice-chairman), Mr J. Cripwell, Mr W. Mellor, Mr J. Farrant, Mr R. Lowther, wood, Mr Isaac Robinson, and Mrs Lowther, with the Clerk (Mr Powell). Holidays in connection with the Swillington Common School were being taken earlier than anticipated. Members reported on cases where parents whose children were suffering from adenoids or defective vision. It was stated that some of the parents were inclined to the belief that they rather than the medical officer should decide in the case of their children, what should be done, and other parents, it was stated, were concerned about their children's welfare, and would do what they could in regard to carrying out the doctor's recommendation in these cases. The question of a combined nursing scheme, a meeting for the consideration of which was held at Tadcaster recently, was stated by the Clerk to be waiting for details in regard to the possibilities of working it in co-operation with the Great and Little Preston Nursing Association. Another nursing would be necessary before any definite decision could be reached. The salary of Miss Webb, head teacher in the Kippax Council School, was raised from £115 to £125. Miss Mosby resigned her position as assistant teacher in the Kippax Council School. The Clerk stated that he had received another communication as that he had received another communication as to dealing with teachers' salaries in committee. The committee decided to take no action in the matter. A public meeting is recommended to rouse, if possible, the interest of the young men at Bowers Allerton in regard to the evening classes, which may be held there during the coming winter.

LOFTHOUSE

CRICKET.—On Saturday a match was played between Lofthouse and Upper Batley. Scores:—Lofthouse—S. Parkin 11, Carr 2, Wrigley 68, Thatcher 4, Lee 0, Longley 39, W. Parkin 25, Scott 0, Knee (not out) 19, R. Longley (not out) 30, extras, 9; total (for 7 wkts.), 213. Declared. Upper Batley—E. D. Taylor 14, Bentley 0, J. A. Taylor 33, Hepworth 0, Blackburn 5, J. R. Taylor (not out) 0, L. Taylor (not out) 1, extras, 10; total (for 5 wkts.), 63.

COAL UNDER A RESERVOIR.—In the Chancery Division on Friday, before Mr Justice Astbury, Mr Micklem, K.C., mentioned a notice of motion in the action of the Wakefield Corporation v. the Lofthouse Colliery Co., Ltd., to restrain the defendants from working minerals under one of the plaintiff's reservoirs. Counsel said that it had now been arranged that the motion should stand over generally, the undertaking given by the defendants not to work being accepted as an agreed point being continued. His Lordship assented, and gave liberty for the notice of motion to be restored on two days' notice at any time.

METHLEY

HOMING.—On Saturday six members of Methley Homing Society sent 52 birds to take part in the race from Ashton-under-Lyne (Lancs.) to Armitage Lane (66 pool), Palmer 991, Gallagher 986 (2 birds, £1 pool), Armitage 977, Simpson 975, 966.

MIDDLETON

EDUCATION.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Ernest Booker, a labourer, of Middleton, was summoned for not sending his child to school. Mr G. W. Scott, the attendance officer, stated that out of a possible 128 attendances the child, who was seven years of age, had only been to school 91 times. An order was made for the child to attend school.

CLIFTON

MOTOR FATALITY.—On Thursday night a motorist discovered, lying in the roadway near Oulton, in an unconscious condition, Mr Thomas Benjamin Harris, son of the Chief Constable of Wakefield. Close by was a damaged motor bicycle.

Dr Seville, of Oulton, was summoned, and he ordered the injured man's removal to the Leeds Infirmary, to which he was conveyed by the Wakefield police ambulance. He was found to be suffering from a fracture of the base of the skull, a broken arm, and fractured thigh. Exactly how the accident occurred is doubtful, but the conditions under which Mr Harris was discovered seem to point to a collision with another vehicle. Mr Harris succumbed to his terrible injuries.

ROUNDHAY

CRICKET.—On Saturday Roundhay played Leeds Springfield at Headingley. Scores:—Roundhay—Cruven 4, Morris 17, Blackburn 1, Bentley 39, Childerson 24, R. Brown 53, Watson 4, Tong 0, C. Brown (not out) 18, Blenkinsop 4, Oliver 1, extras, 12; total, 176. Leeds Springfield—Greaves 44, Gaunt 4, Townend 7, Barrett 15, Sanders 0, Whiteley 13, Armistead (not out) 34, Fletcher (not out) 53, extras, 5; total (for 6 wkts.), 174.

LIVING CHESS AT ROUNDHAY.—By permission of Mrs Hawthorn Kitson, a performance of "living chess" was given on Saturday afternoon, in the grounds of Scarcroft Hall, Roundhay, in aid of China medical missions. The cold and gusty weather somewhat interfered with the attendance of visitors, but those who were present thoroughly enjoyed the picturesque contest between the whites and the reds. Led by a small herald, who blew merry blasts on a bugle, the players emerged one by two from the shadow of the trees, and took their places with stately decorum on the chequered lawn. The costumes were charming, and were generally admired. When the opening move to "checkmate" the game was played smoothly, with only one or two slips, and at the close there was hearty applause from the onlookers. The white chessmen were led on the announcements of the mate the white queen and white queen joined hands, while all the members of their court approached them and made obeisance. The players then retired to a pergola and tripped gracefully away. A procession and tripped gracefully away. A procession of visitors and players afterwards had tea at the house.

ROUNDHAY MAN'S KINDLY ACTION.—On Tuesday morning Miss Sykes was taking a class of nearly fifty girls from the Primrose Hill Council School, off Beckett Street, to visit Kirkstall Abbey. The tram ride from the city was enlivened by the girls singing a number of songs, all on the subject of school—"Sylvia," "Drink to me only," and "Jockey to the Fair"—and a couple of gentlemen, sitting at the back of the car, evinced a lively interest in the youngsters, entering into conversation with one or two of the girls and questioning them on the morning's procedure. Many of the children come from poor homes, and although they were especially so many happy youngsters evidently had a real heart, and one of the men, and when he learned that all the money they had was a penny to pay their return fare he slipped half a sovereign into the teacher's hand for the little ones. He insisted on the teacher accepting the money, and when asked for his name replied "Oh, Roundhay." As he and his friend left the car they saluted the kiddies and bowed gracefully. Both Miss Churchill, the headmistress, and Miss Sykes are delighted at the act of kindness, and more particularly with the manner in which it was carried out, and they feel that they would like the gentleman to know of their appreciation. The tram was divided among the girls, each receiving 2½d., and fifteen children who were too poor to afford the car fare, and who, consequently, did not enjoy the outing, also participated in the bounty, the headmistress first obtaining the willing sanction of the more fortunate girls.

SWILLINGTON

MORE BEGGING.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Thomas Thompson and Patrick Dolan, labourers, of no fixed abode, were charged with begging at Swillington, on the 22nd July. P.C. Eadon proved the case, and both men, who said they were making their way to Selby in search of work, were allowed to go. Another mendicant named Charles Thompson, who was also charged with begging at the same time at Swillington, was sent to prison for fourteen days owing to his behaviour when taken into custody. All three, it was stated, had visited the constable's station.

STOURTON

P.S.A.—The Rev. W. S. Spencer was the speaker at the P.S.A. service held at the Stourton Primitive Methodist Chapel on Sunday afternoon. Mr J. Dobson presided.

WOODLESFORD

DRINK.—At the Leeds west Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Abraham Wood, a miner, of Woodlesford, was summoned for having been drunk and disorderly at Woodlesford on Sunday, the 19th inst. P.C. Coldwell proved the case, saying he found the defendant in a drunken condition on the Aberford Road. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

THE GALA AT ROUNDHAY PARK.

On Monday and Tuesday of next week the popular August Bank Holiday gala and sports of the Leeds Workpeople's Hospital Fund will be held in Roundhay Park. The preparations made for this annual event, now in its 28th consecutive year, show their customary thoroughness, and the prospects of hearty and sustained entertainment are quite promising.

As showing the uniform success which has attended the gala, total profits amounting to £15,757 have accrued to date, and these, of course, have been applied towards the advancement of the beneficial objects for which the fund was formed.

The comprehensive and inviting programme of attractions is headed by Mr R. H. Carr, one of the most consistent and skilful airmen that the country has ever produced. He is to give a display of flying in the afternoon and evening of each day, which will include looping the loop. For this purpose he will bring the 50-h.p. Grahame-White "looping" biplane, whose name, "Lizzie," is already widely known among flying men. Looping in a biplane will be new to Leeds, and therefore additionally interesting. Mr Carr has captured several aerial honours. He was second to the American, Brock, in the Air Derby recently, and secured a second prize in the race from London to Manchester.

The old method of ascending into the heavens has not been discarded. Captain Spencer will be present with his balloon, from which he will execute thrilling parachute descents. There will be numerous side-shows, while for the sports, which are always an important feature of the affair, a good entry has been received. Six bands have been engaged to brighten the gala with music, and each evening fireworks will provide a spectacular finish to an enjoyable day. It is expected the average attendance of 50,000 on each first day and of 40,000 on Tuesday will be drawn to the expansive Park.

SPORTS AT MONK FRYSTON.

Monk Fryston Agricultural Show sports were held on Tuesday, under A.A.A. and N.C.U. Rules, in Monk Fryston Hall Park, before about 1,000 spectators. Mrs Hemsworth, Monk Fryston Hall, and Mrs H. Lyon, Hillam Hall, distributed the prizes. Results:—

100 Yards Flat Race (open)—Final—1, J. J. Prest, York (61); 2, H. Beldon, York (21); 3, T. Limbert, York (10). Won by a yard; same. Time 10 1-5s.

Half-mile Bicycle Race (open)—Final—1, W. H. Bowen, Pontefract (88); 2, A. E. Hartley, Leeds (39); 3, W. Bell, Castleford (61). Won by two yards; same. Time, 1 min. 10 1-5s.

220 Yards Flat Race (open)—Final—1, J. J. Prest, York (14); 2, A. Aisbeth, York (18); 3, T. Limbert, York (10). Won by two yards; same. Time 23 2-5s.

One Mile Bicycle Race (open)—Final—1, R. Bell, Castleford (103); 2, A. Harland, Dewsbury (103); 3, F. W. Bolton, Clifton, York (98). Won by three lengths; a bad third. Time 2m. 57 4-5s.

440 Yards Flat Race (open)—Final—1, D. R. Bullough, Alderton Bywater (34); 2, T. Smith, Leeds (33); 3, E. Brook, Leeds (30). Won by two yards; five yards. Time, 51s.

Half-mile Flat Race (open)—1, A. Gutheridge, Leeds (39); 2, W. Jackson, Hull Sparrah Harriers (70); 3, A. E. Bowell, Leeds (62). Won by a yard; ten yards. Time 2m. 1-5s.

The Rev. Charles E. Cook will be the new resident minister of the Wesleyan Church at South Milford.

The new Wesleyan minister at Tadcaster is the Rev. J. Warren Milward. The Rev. Lewis Thomas goes to the Boroughbridge circuit.

A prisoner at Crewe was in such a filthy condition that the magistrate ordered a charge against him in a cell at the back of the Court-house.

GOLF.—On Saturday the monthly competition at Wetherby took place, and the results were:—C. E. Whitaker 2 down, G. Foster 4 down, S. F. Parkinson 6 down, E. Pulleyne 9 down, M. Hesp 10 down.

AN OFFENCE.—At York, on Monday, the Tadcaster Tower Brewery Company were fined half-a-crown and costs for an offence under the Licensing Act. It was stated that a boy of 16, having begun work at seven in the morning, should not have remained at work after seven in the evening, but on July 9th he was found to be at work at 9.45 p.m.

SALE OF WISTOW FARM LANDS.—Messrs Bentley and Sons held a sale of agricultural lands and houses situated at Wistow, at the George and Dragon, Selby, on Monday. Lots were sold as follows:—Close of arable land 6a. 3r. 2p., to Mr Geo. Neville, Wistow Lordship, for £590; arable land in Bush Close, 7a. 1r. 29p., to Mr Neville for £680; grass land in Burn Lane, 5a. 3r. 28p., to Mr Robt. J. Pocklington, Wistow, for £180; arable land, Sherburn Road, 6a. 1r. 39p., to Mr Thos. Jackson, Cawood Hagg, for £190; three closes of grass and arable land, Burn Lane, 16a. 3r. 30p., to Mr Wm. Jackson, Croft House, Wistow, for £735; two cottages to Mr G. Gray, Selby, for £240.

OULTON AND WOODLESFORD NURSING SCHEME.

PUBLIC MEETING

HOW THE SCHEME COULD BE WORKED

Very little interest was taken in the public meeting held in the Harold Hall, Oulton, on Wednesday evening to consider the possibility of forming a nursing association in the district. There were only about a dozen persons present, including Mr H. W. Powell (Clerk to the Outton Education Sub-Committee), and a speaker from Normanton.

Mr Walter Hargreaves, C.C., was to have presided but was unable to be present, and in his place Mr Dennis W. Hargreaves was appointed chairman.

Mr Hargreaves said they had met that evening following a vote of the Parish Council annual meeting asking for a nursing association to be formed. A telegram was read from Mr Walter Hargreaves stating that he regretted being unable to be present on account of a minimum wage meeting in Leeds. He also promised the support of his firm if an association was formed. A letter was also read from Mr J. Farrer, J.P., in which he said "Might I suggest that any action which is taken as regards a nursing association should not in any way interfere with the present nursing association at Oulton and Woodlesford and Swillington, as these nurses are doing remarkably good work, and are most useful in the district."

Mr Hargreaves then introduced Mr F. Blakeley, of Normanton, who described how the association there had been formed. He said there was no need to argue the question of the need of a nurse, especially in industrial districts. In many places the usefulness of nurses had been recognised, and they had been working for something over twelve years. At Normanton Common they had had their nurse twelve years. The idea was formed when an epidemic of typhoid fever broke out, and Mr Briggs sent a trained nurse to deal with the cases, owing to the fact that several had terminated fatally. After the nurse had got to work they had not one fatal case. That demonstrated that skilled nursing had saved many human lives. The only things to consider in forming an association were the ways and means; how to financially support one and how to work it. They at Normanton had a long struggle owing to the lack of "big" support, and the task of raising £90 or £100 was a very exacting one. However, they got a grant from Mr Briggs and Messrs Pope and Pearson, and the Hospital Committee, while two guineas each was subscribed by the Pontefract and Wakefield Board of Guardians. This formed a basis of about £55, which was always certain, and the balance was an easy task. The workmen had made them a grant, which had now grown to about £34. Unless they could get something like a good working basis from the start they had no power to give, they would find that they had a big struggle to raise money. They had at first tried one penny a week, or a fixed sum of 4s. per year, from the persons receiving indoor relief. It compulsory, but this scheme was unsatisfactory, because they had cases where people offered the necessary sum and refused to do so. The question to recognise the necessity of the association. Times of trouble came, and when they wanted the services of a skilled nurse they could not say no owing to their being non-contributors. It placed them in a very awkward position. Where, however, the nurse had done work the association received a sort of thank-offering. If he was in a place like Woodlesford he would not join with the County Council, but would start a district like that they would have no time, and besides, the County Council were very exacting. They would, he said, get more out of Friday morning's money by running a society of their own. Mr Hargreaves was a good friend to them at the Council, and it was likely that Messrs Briggs would give them a fairly good start, while the Board of Guardians had the power to give them a grant. If they got as fund of about £40 or £50, they would have no difficulty in raising the balance. He found that the hardest task of collecting was the easiest tasks they had. The secretary told him that he never had a refusal, and each time his books showed that they received 1,000 collections. The liability before people They had to demand payment was a very small one. The recognition of value, but if they got it going for twelve months they would soon become used to places like Woodlesford a new nurse would be not readily taken from them. They got enthusiastic friendly to work they would be all right.

Answering questions, Mr Blakeley said that a nurse cost about £85 per annum, and she provided her own uniform and lodgings. Small collections usually realised £20. The association was not affiliated with the West Riding Nursing Association in Leeds.

Mr Boothroyd said he hoped they would bear in mind what Mr Farrer had said in his letter.

Mr Ridyard said it was made perfectly clear at the parish meeting when the matter was first broached, that anything done was done to supplement what was already being done, and it was far from the intention of any of them to upset any arrangements already in operation, but they felt they would rather have a nursing scheme of their own.

Mr Hargreaves said the matter was brought up at the Hunslet Rural District Council, and he wanted to bring in the Swillington nurses, but the County Council would not accept these nurses as qualified.

Mr Powell said he had seen Mrs Lowther that evening, and he had been told the nurses were receiving a better training now.

Mr Ridyard, who spoke in favour of the nurse taking up the work of the County Council, said his reason for not supporting the motion to form an association that the nurse would often be called upon to look after cases from the school, and they would not be getting any benefit for it. They might as well get the grant of the County Council. It was stated that, according to the County Council grant of £6 13s. 4d. per thousand, the district would receive about £24.

The meeting was then asked to vote for the following resolutions, viz.:—(1) That the nurse take up the work of the County Council, which includes the school work; and (2) That a voluntary nursing association be formed. The first was a proposition of Mr J. W. Ridyard, Mr W. Jopling seconding. The second resolution was moved by Mr Grant, and seconded by Mr Williams. Grant voted for Ridyard's proposition, and five for that of Mr Grant.

It was, however, decided that in view of the non-representative character of the meeting, the matter be left over for about two months.

An unknown cyclist has died as the result of an accident at Pannal.

CRICKET.—On Saturday Eltofts, at home, had a fine victory over Headingley Grove. Scores:—Headingley Grove—A. S. Dworonzy, 29, Denham 3, Petty 80, McEwan 34, Rhodes 2, C. Dewsbury 1, Illingworth 8, Thrippleton 2, Cowpe 3, Spruce 0, Butterworth (not out) 0, Neville for £680; grass land in Burn Lane, 5a. Extras, 6; total, 169. Eltofts—Pickersgill 35, Midgley 13, Foster 9, Hudson (not out) 39, Arrowsmith 17, Turner (not out) 13, extras, 14; total (for 4 wkts.), 170.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR
ENGAGEMENT RINGS, £1:1: £3:3: £5:5: £10:10: to £100 etc.
DIAMONDS
PENDANTS, EARRINGS, SCARF PINS, & JEWELLERY, OF EVERY DESCRIPTION, from £1: to £100.
SEE OUR WINDOW EXHIBIT.—ALL PRICES MARKED:
DYSONS
24, 25, 26, (LOWER) BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
THE LARGEST STOCK IN THE COUNTY, OF GOLD & SILVER WATCHES from 10/6 to 50 GUINEAS EACH
SPECIAL VALUE GUN-METAL LEVERS :—
"The University" 30s. The "Roughwear," 15s. The "Black Prince" 10/6.
WATCHES
OLD WATCHES, JEWELLERY & SILVER TAKEN in EXCHANGE VALUATIONS for PROBATE, &C.
MOST RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS

HUNSLET RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL.

HEALTH OF THE DISTRICT.

OVERCROWDING AT WOODLESFORD

OULTON AND WOODLESFORD NURSING SCHEME

The monthly meeting of the Hunslet Rural District Council was held at the Council Offices, Leek Street, Hunslet, yesterday afternoon—Mr T. Thomas (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Mr P. S. Marsden (vice-chairman), Messrs D. W. Hargreaves, W. Verity, and J. Flanagan, with the Clerk (Mr W. B. Pindar), the medical officer of health (Dr J. Buck), the sanitary inspectors (Messrs W. Whitehead and P. C. Higgins), and the surveyor (Mr J. Nuttall).

The medical officer's report for the past four weeks showed that thirteen births had been registered in the district—three in Oulton and Woodlesford, three in Templenewsam, and five in Middleton. During the same period there had been four deaths, all in Oulton and Woodlesford. Three cases of infectious disease, all scarlet fever, had been notified—two in Oulton and Woodlesford and one in Templenewsam.

The Clerk read a letter from Mr T. H. Killingbeck, Woodlesford, enclosing the following resolution which was unanimously passed at a public meeting held at Woodlesford on Sunday, July 19th:—

"That this meeting of ratepayers of Oulton and Woodlesford protest most strongly against the indifference shown by the Hunslet Rural District Council towards the question of building houses suitable for the workers in the district, and requests them to at once take the necessary steps for erecting a number, and that copy of this be sent by the Council, we approach the Local Government Board, asking them to hold an enquiry into the housing conditions in Oulton and Woodlesford."

The Chairman asked if there had been any application from anyone in that district, who was in need of a house.

The Clerk said they had a statement by the medical officer in his annual report that there was a scarcity of houses in the district. The Council, as a result, considered the matter, and instructed their Clerk to write to the colliery companies asking if there was any prospect of houses being built by the company, and since that time nothing further had been done. He believed the Colliery Company had built a few houses, but not many. He could not say, from his own personal knowledge, whether the accommodity still existed or not. He thought the Council should endeavour to find out.

Mr Hargreaves said they had 300 men who came from a distance and would not live in Woodlesford even if there were houses.

The Chairman suggested that the matter be left to the representatives of Oulton and Woodlesford to enquire and to report.

Mr Hargreaves said it seemed funny that the ratepayers never heard of these Sunday morning meetings.

The Clerk intimated that no matter who had brought the question to their notice, what the Council wanted to do was to ascertain what were the real facts. If any man in the district came to them and said he wanted a house, and he could get one, and that he was willing to pay for one, that was something to go on, but mere statement that houses were scarce was not sufficient.

It was suggested that a deputation of the ratepayers concerned meet the Council, and this was proposed by Mr Hargreaves, and seconded by Mr Marsden, and unanimously carried.

The Clerk reported that he had attended the conference at the County Hall with reference to the Combined Nursing Scheme. With regard to Oulton and Woodlesford, no action was taken, as it was reported that there was a difficulty in the way of a voluntary scheme being formed. It was proposed that Middleton be linked up with East and West Ardsley for the working of the Notification of Births Act and the Education Act.

Mr Hargreaves reported on a meeting held at Oulton on Wednesday evening in regard to the forming of a nursing association for Oulton and Woodlesford. He said the meeting had been adjourned.

The Clerk said he would attend the next meeting.

Mr Whitehead, in his report, mentioned a case of overcrowding in Kitchener Street, Woodlesford. The house contained two rooms downstairs, and two bedrooms. There was a family of a man and his wife and six sons—two sons over twelve years of age, and four under twelve. The man had taken in another family—a man and his wife, with five sons and a daughter. Here they had a house, said the Clerk, with two bedrooms occupied by sixteen people.

Mr Whitehead said they used the sitting rooms. The inspector added that the people were leaving that night and going into Hunslet.

The Medical Officer: Is there any overcrowding when they leave?

Mr Whitehead: No.

Mr Hargreaves: Have you many cases of overcrowding.

The Inspector: A fairish number—people with big families.

It was stated that the long chimney at Middleton which was reported as being unsafe after having been struck by lightning, had been demolished.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WARSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street, LEEDS.
ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

At New Zealand, Aberford, on Sunday, the members of the Seacroft and Crossgates Cycling Club were entertained by Mr and Mrs Young. This annual fixture of the club is eagerly looked for, and some 60 members and their lady friends took advantage of the opportunity.

TRAWLERS LAUNCHED.—In blustery weather, on Saturday morning, there were launched from Messrs Cochrane and Son's shipyard, at Selby, two steel trawlers, which had been built to the order of the Humber Steam Trawling Co., Ltd., Hull. They were respectively named Sea Searcher and Sea Ranger by Mrs H Webber and Mrs Butterell.

ACCIDENT.—As the 9.41 a.m. train from Hull to Leeds was leaving the station on Friday morning at South Milford, the couplings snapped between the seventh carriage from the engine, belonging to the second carriage from the guard, and fell upon the permanent way. The mishap was not found out in time, and the carriage shunted into a siding. There was a delay of about forty minutes, but on Saturday afternoon a match was played at Hillam between the local team and Monk Fryston, and the latter team won easily. Scores:—Hillam—W. Park—Walker 16, Foster 18, H. Laycock (not out) 4, A. Laycock 2, J. Long 0, Heptonstall 1, Robinson 0, Hunter 8, Bramley 24;

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

BARKSTON ASH COMPETITION.

All the clubs in Barkston Ash are not in the Competition, but I hope that next season the present number will be considerably augmented. Now is the time to make application for membership, and, according to the rules, all entries are due on August 1st. New clubs desirous of joining should at once communicate with Mr R. D. Pawson, the hon. secs., Halton.

SENIOR LEAGUE MATCHES FOR SATURDAY.

The Senior League programme will be completed on Saturday, and then the semi-finals will be played. In one division the semi-finalists are Halton Wes.—they have made their position secure—and in the other two divisions they will likely be Tadcaster and Seacroft, but there is just a possibility of an upset in these divisions. South Milford are only a point behind the Cawoodians, and if in the match to-morrow Tadcaster effect a draw they will tie, but if they lose Milford will be the semi-finalists. Tadcaster, I think, will succeed. Church Fenton and Church Fenton Sycamore have their return match, and Cawood will entertain Saxton, who are not shaping as well as they promised. Seacroft's opponents are Halton, and the match is on the Primrose Valley ground. Although they are a smart side, Halton will create a surprise if they snatch a couple of points from their opponents. Micklefield and Garforth should provide a well-contested game, and Barwick are given a chance of obtaining two points at the expense of Great Preston. Crossgates, at home, expect to defeat Crossgates Wes., who are not going as well as in the early part of the season, and at Collingham it is expected Halton Wes. will secure the points, while Shadwell will give Whitkirk the order of the knock unless there is a substantial improvement in their play.

LEAGUE GAMES ON SATURDAY.

Tadcaster administered a crushing defeat to Church Fenton, who, however, have the consolation that they scored more runs than Garforth against the same bowling. The Calcarians started their innings inauspiciously, for Todd (5) and Mason (0) were quickly got rid of, but Hebden (30) and Peter (30, not out) completely mastered the bowling, and the men in the field had a merry time leather-hunting. Freer's score was the best he has got this season. Herbert was then got rid of cheaply, but Baker rattled up 19 (not out), and when the score stood at 148 for four wickets the innings was declared at an end. Mosby was the best of the Church Fenton trundlers, his two wickets costing 30, while Claughton had 1 for 35, and Dixon 1 for 41. Church Fenton's innings had a disastrous opening, the five first men securing only two runs among them, but Atha (16) and W. Claughton (9) offered a stout defence to the deliveries of Herbert and Baker, who trundled unchanged throughout the two innings. Four of the others, however, gave much help, and the score totalled 38. Baker's five wickets cost 18, and Herbert's four were got for 16.

Cawood and Church Fenton Sycamore played a drawn game at Church Fenton. The visitors' score of 90 for seven wickets—registering on declaration—and C. Jackson made 26 and C. O. Lund 22. C. Poulter trundled well, taking 5 wickets for 22, and E. Poulter had 2 for 25. Church Fenton had two innings in which to get the runs, and play must have been slow, for the total secured was 51 for seven wickets. Of course, the bowling was somewhat collared, and the home batsmen, naturally, inclined to take no risks. A. Foxton made 13 and Holt 10. Dobson's four wickets cost 12, and O. Lund had 2 for 13.

Garforth had an easy win over Barwick in a low scoring match. Batting first, the Barwick men found difficulty in playing the bowling of W. Glover and Hallance, and they were dismissed for 39. Walton contributed 13 and Hartley 9. Glover trundled with remarkable effect, capturing four wickets for six, while Hallance got five wickets for 15 runs. Garforth lost two of their best batsmen—S. Glover and H. Prime—without a run on the board, and it was left for them that W. Glover, who batted admirably for 24 (not out), made a stand, as the next three men did not stay long at the wickets. When five wickets had fallen the total was 41. D. Clarke had two wickets for 26, and Bowes had 2 for 24.

Halton had a substantial win over Great Preston, on whose ground the match was played. The homesters scored 59, and F. Wheatley distinguished himself by making 29. Sunter captured four wickets for 17 runs, and Benson had four for 20. Halton scored 88, and Sunter made 21, Ball 13, Heaps 11, and Benson 10. Green was the most successful of the Preston trundlers, his six wickets costing 40, and Thompson had 3 for 26.

Micklefield went to Seacroft determined to handle their rivals, but they failed, although it must be conceded that they made a very good attempt. A singular feature of the match was that D. Burton, T. Toft, and G. Stead—three of the leading batsmen in the home—failed to make anything of a score, and then the bowling was severely trounced, all the other players, with one exception, making two figures. Attack made 100, Fryer 80, Johnson 31, Hartley 9, Robinson 8, E. Taylor 22, Pickersgill 25, and Thompson 16. The total was 198. M. Smith captured 4 wickets for 43, Shaw had 3 for 55, and Fryer and Kinson 2 for 24. Micklefield had a formidable task on any fair wicket, but they tackled it in the proper spirit, and, although it was obvious from the outset that they would not get the best of the opposition, they run up the big score of 150. Hobson claimed the honours of the match with 57, and Godber scored 26. S. Taylor 15, and Goodman 12. Seacroft trundlers were in fine right bowling form, and had the best figures—5 for 38, while E. Johnson got two wickets for 14, G. Stead 1 for 8, and C. Johnson 1 for 17.

Collingham must be congratulated on at last securing a couple of points. Their opponents were Crossgates, and for once in a way Collingham gave a glimpse of their best form. They scored two runs, and the principal contributors were Foster 18, Graydon 15, A. Dalby 12, and Whitehead 12. For the losers, Fox and Thompson secured five wickets for 14, R. Coultas had 2 for 14, A. Beaumont 1 for 8, E. Webster 1 for 17, and E. Clough 1 for 19. Crossgates did not fulfil their usual form as well as was expected, but they got to within seven of their opponents' figures, and at one time it looked as if the lead men at the wickets were to rub the runs for off. It was an excellent finish, and Collingham from have every reason to be satisfied with their 24 runs victory. Towards Crossgates' score of 93, Coultas made 26, and E. Webster scored 12. Graydon's six wickets were got for 37, and by C. Dalby claimed 4 for 36.

Whitkirk, with a good team in the field, gave a sorry display against Crossgates, and they were defeated by no fewer than seven wickets. The losers, batting first, were unable to negotiate the bowling of Yates and White, who were in great form, and the innings closed for 30, Pawson being top scorer with 9. Yates had five wickets for 12 runs, and White's four for six runs. The Wesleyans, who have won their division and will appear in the semi-finals, rattled up 166, and S. Batty compiled 41, Crosthwaite 40, O. Bell 28, C. Kilburn 18, C. Bell 17. Scott was the best of the Shadwell trundlers, taking 5 wickets for 38, while Heaton secured 4 for 75. Shadwell, after their long spell of leather hunting, were given a task that was beyond them, but although they gave a good display, they were sent back for 72, of which Burnett had 16, Metcalfe 14, and Umpleby 11. C. Bell's five wickets cost five runs, O. Bell's three were got for 25, and Wilson's 2 for 20.

The result of one Senior League match has not come to hand, but I understand Milford defeated Saxton by 9 wickets.

JUNIOR LEAGUE MATCHES.

Ulleskelf are making a good fight in division 1, and if they don't finish ahead of Tadcaster it will not be from want of trying. Their opponents on Saturday were Bramham, and so deadly was the bowling that Bramham went under for 16. Potter claimed six wickets for five runs, and Bean had four for 6 runs, For a loss of five wickets Ulleskelf got the runs necessary for victory. Cass capturing three wickets for 6.—Tadcaster A. and Barkston had a splendidly contested game, and at the finish there was only a runs difference in the scores. Tadcaster made 70 (Shearsmith 16, not out, and Aldous 13), and Barkston got 68 (Bailey 13, Lezenby and Liddle 11 each, and Rhodes 10). For Tadcaster Taylor had three wickets for 14, and Kettlewell 3 for 20. On the other side Woods secured 5 wickets for 31 and Rhodes had 3 for 20.—Kirk Deighton proved superior to Sherburn White Rose, the match being won by seven wickets. The homesters scored 35 (Smith 13). Oxley bowled finely, taking 4 wickets for 5 runs, and Linton went one better by securing three for two runs. For a loss of five wickets Kirk Deighton scored 37, and R. Hey had two of their wickets for 12.

Aberford were defeated on their own ground by Great Preston A. The losers compiled 38 (Blakley 22), and Collett obtained five of their wickets for 18, while Oldham had 4 for 13. For a loss of three wickets Preston put on 42, and Hutchinson made 22 (not out). J. Inman trundled with great success, hitting the stumps three times, and a single was scored off his bowling.—Garforth A. defeated Barwick A. without losing a wicket. The match was at Barwick, and the homesters were dismissed for 21, Garforth A. obtained six wickets for four runs, and A. Hewitt had 3 for 4 runs Kilburn and Baldwin, not out, 5 extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 37.

Halton v. Seacroft. Messrs T. Goodall (Garforth) and J. Dobson (Great Preston).

Crossgates v. Collingham. Messrs A. Eastergone (Kippax) and A. Thompson (Great Preston).

Collingham v. Halton. Wes. Messrs E. Smith (Bickershaw) and J. D. Snow (Wetherby).

Shadwell v. Whitkirk. Messrs F. Pickersgill (Seacroft) and H. Johnson (Crossgates).

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Kirk Deighton v. Barkston Ash. Messrs H. Irish (Wetherby) and G. Fox (Bramham).

Bramham v. Sherburn. W.R. Messrs H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton) and J. W. Falkingham (Leeds).

Tadcaster A. v. South Milford A. Messrs P. Hardcastle (Church Fenton Syc.) and H. Watson (Barkston Ash).

Seacroft A. v. Micklefield A. Messrs T. P. Spivey (Crossgates) and J. Dobson (Garforth).

Aberford v. Barwick A. Messrs A. Bailey (Garforth) and E. Lewis (Swillington and Colton)

Great Preston A. v. Halton A. Messrs A. Birch (Garforth) and G. C. Earnshaw (Oulton).

Halton Wes. v. Swillington and Colton. Messrs H. Burton (Seacroft) and F. Hebden (Garforth).

Crossgates Wes. A. v. Crossgates A. Messrs J. Fox (Swillington and Colton) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

Whitkirk A. v. Garforth Wes. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and T. Blackburn (Great Preston).

BARKSTON ASH CHAMPION BOWLER'S SUCCESS.

HALTON PLAYER WINS LEEDS MERIT.

The concluding rounds of the eighteenth annual Individual Merit Competition for the Championship of the Leeds and District Amateur Association was decided on Saturday at the Chapeltown (Meanwood) Club's green, the honours being secured at his first essay by H. Thomas (Halton), who recently won the championship of the Barkston Ash Association. A record entry of 239 competitors had been narrowed down to sixteen, all of whom participated in the valuable prize-list, and entered the fifth stage with which play was resumed.

In the fifth round Thomas had a hard fight against Archer (Armley), winning by two only, and in the next round he met Barkston Ash champion and had a stern struggle with W. Walker, winner of the 1908 competition. The game was called level on two occasions, and eventually stood at 19-18 in favour of the Halton player, who, with two singles went to game.

In the semi-finals S. Slomon (New Leeds) scored ten chalks before Rubin got in a single, and the pair scored at four ends—7 chalks in all. J. Speight (Municipal Officers) was well beaten by Thomas in the long lengths. The latter led 14-7, and though Speight then registered six chalks in nine ends, he lost by 7 points.

Slomon entered his third final with a total margin of 36 points for the three rounds as against a majority for Thomas of 12 chalks. The Barkston Ash champion, however, going from corner to corner of the green, was six in front at the ninth chalk. Slomon later scored four singles in twice as many ends, but at the sixteenth end the game was 14-6. The issue was never in doubt thereafter. Thomas gaining his second honour this season by 12 points. Details:—

Fifth round—H. Thomas (Halton) 21 v. J. Becker (Armley) 10. Sixth round—H. Thomas 21 v. W. Walker (Holbeck) 18. Semi-finals—H. Thomas 21 v. J. Speight (Leeds Municipal) 14. S Slomon (New Leeds C) 21 v. J E Rubin (Morley) 7. Final—Thomas 21 v. S. Slomon 9.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	9	8	1	0	16
South Milford	9	7	1	1	15
Cawood	9	5	3	1	11
Saxton	9	3	6	0	6
Church Fenton	8	2	6	0	4
Church Fenton Sycamore	9	1	6	2	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft	9	8	1	0	16
Garforth	9	7	2	0	14
Micklefield	9	6	3	0	12
Halton	9	4	5	0	8
Barwick	9	1	8	0	2
Great Preston	9	0	9	0	0

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	9	8	1	0	16
Crossgates	9	6	3	0	12
Shadwell	9	5	4	0	10
Whitkirk	9	4	5	0	8
Crossgates Wesleyans	9	3	6	0	6
Collingham	9	2	5	2	6

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A	11	9	2	0	18
Ulleskelf	11	8	3	0	16
South Milford A	10	6	4	0	12
Kirk Deighton	10	6	4	0	12
Bramham	10	3	7	0	6
Sherburn White Rose	10	3	7	0	6
Barkston Ash	10	1	9	0	2

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth A	11	10	1	0	20
Seacroft A	11	9	2	0	18
Halton A	10	5	5	0	10
Great Preston A	11	5	6	0	10
Aberford	10	3	7	0	6
Micklefield A	10	3	7	0	6
Barwick A	10	1	9	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wesleyans	9	7	2	0	14
Swillington and Colton	9	6	3	0	12
Crossgates A	9	5	4	0	10
Crossgates Wesleyans A	9	4	5	0	8
Whitkirk A	9	3	6	0	6
Halton Wesleyans A	9	2	7	0	4

E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Cawood v. Saxton. Messrs T. Crosland (Micklefield) and T. Mathers (Great Preston).

Church Fenton v. Church Fenton Syc. Messrs W. Turner (Tadcaster) and R Firn (Cawood)

South Milford v. Tadcaster. Messrs W. Crosland (Barwick) and H. Jackson (Leeds).

Barwick v. Great Preston. Messrs C. Plews (Halton Wes.) and S. H. Keeble (Crossgates Wes.).

Micklefield v. Garforth. Messrs J. Johnson (Seacroft) and H. Bell (Saxton).

Halton v. Seacroft. Messrs T. Goodall (Garforth) v. C. Atack (Micklefield).

Crossgates v. Crossgates Wes. Messrs A. Eastergone (Kippax) and A. Thompson (Great Preston).

Collingham v. Halton. Wes. Messrs E. Smith (Bickershaw) and J. D. Snow (Wetherby).

Shadwell v. Whitkirk. Messrs F. Pickersgill (Seacroft) and H. Johnson (Crossgates).

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Kirk Deighton v. Barkston Ash. Messrs H. Irish (Wetherby) and G. Fox (Bramham).

Bramham v. Sherburn. W.R. Messrs H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton) and J. W. Falkingham (Leeds).

Tadcaster A. v. South Milford A. Messrs P. Hardcastle (Church Fenton Syc.) and H. Watson (Barkston Ash).

Seacroft A. v. Micklefield A. Messrs T. P. Spivey (Crossgates) and J. Dobson (Garforth).

Aberford v. Barwick A. Messrs A. Bailey (Garforth) and E. Lewis (Swillington and Colton)

Great Preston A. v. Halton A. Messrs A. Birch (Garforth) and G. C. Earnshaw (Oulton).

Halton Wes. v. Swillington and Colton. Messrs H. Burton (Seacroft) and F. Hebden (Garforth).

Crossgates Wes. A. v. Crossgates A. Messrs J. Fox (Swillington and Colton) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

Whitkirk A. v. Garforth Wes. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and T. Blackburn (Great Preston).

MIDDLETON PARK DEFEATED.

Middleton Park, playing at home in the Yorkshire Central League, were caught napping on Saturday afternoon, and Bramley gave them a sound drubbing. The scores were:—Bramley—Green 5, Hinchcliffe 38, Haigh 10, Cooper 11, Walker (not out) 26, Wood 0, Mallory 0, J. Walker (not out) 62, W. Walker 4, Barnett 0, Waterhouse 14, Lilley 4, extras, 13; total, 207. Middleton Park—Sutcliffe 23, Barraclough 18, J. W. Place 0, Speeks 3, Goodhouse 0, Smith 4, H. Place 0, Clarkson 15, Richardson 12, Ramsden 29, Butler (not out) 6, extras, 27; total, 149.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Rothwell gave a wretched batting exhibition when opposed to Robin Hood on Saturday afternoon, and the match did not last long. So well did Fryer and Hedley bowl that the side was out for 24, and half of them failed to score. For a loss of six wickets Robin Hood knocked off the necessary runs in exactly sixteen overs, but an easy win. Robin Hood A. however, Wornald 24 and C. Fearnley 17), and without losing a wicket Rothwell knocked up 63. A. Tiffany having 34 and B. Fozzard 19.

Woodlesford proved too strong for Stanley, who were well beaten. The victors, who had choice of the scoring, put up 164, and Barker contributed 39, John Hitchen 28, and Wilkinson 13. Stanley replied with 56, of which Heaton claimed 18 and Davison 11.

Kippax and Carlton tried conclusions, and the honours went to the latter. Carlton batted splendidly, sending up 153, and J. Brooks and L. Butterworth 17. Fozzard 16, J. Brown 15, Illingworth 13, and Sykes 12. Kippax made a creditable reply, but they fizzled nearly 70 runs behind. Towards a total of 86, Eddison had 32, and Plaws 16. The meeting of the A. teams at Kippax produced a good struggle, and the homesters won by six wickets. Kippax scored 149 (Hallowell 40, Booth 11 not), and Ashton secured five wickets for 39, and Ellis had 3 for 25. Carlton were dismissed for 43 (Ashton 12), and A. Crippwell took five for 20, while G. Crippwell had five for 29.

Oulton were completely outplayed at Outwood by the Friendly team. Batting first, the losers were non-plussed by the deliveries of White and Pickard, and they were all out for the meagre score of 30, of which P. Higgins (not out) claimed 11. Pickard obtained 6 wickets for 21, and White 4 for 9. Outwood scored 88 for seven wickets—in a high scoring match Oulton A. overcame Outwood A. by three runs. Oulton led off with 117 (Lockwood 34, not out, C. Batterick 22, and Nettleton 13), and Outwood responded with 114.

BARKSTON ASH SENIOR LEAGUE.

CHURCH FENTON SYCAMORE v. CAWOOD.—At Church Fenton. Scores:—

Cawood—F. Thompson, c J. Harrison, b C. Poulter, 21; C. O. Lund, c G. H. Ambler, b C. Poulter, 22; H. Lund, b C. Poulter, 0; S. Lund, b E. Poulter, 2; H. Dobson, b E. Poulter, 0; W. Harker, b C. Poulter, 2; C. Jackson, c F. Poulter, b C. Poulter, 26; J. Turner, b J. Harrison, 7; T. Barkle, c Holt, b E. Poulter, 8; A. Clifford, c and b E. Poulter, 4; Preston, not out, 3; extras, 12; total, 90.

Church Fenton Sycamore—A. Poulter, b O. Lund, 2; C. Poulter, b Jackson, 0; G. Foxton, b Dobson, 13; A. Holt, b Dobson, 10; G. H. Ambler, c Turner, b Dobson, 8; E. Poulter, 0; O. Lund, 2; A. Moore, not out, 3; J. Harrison, c O. Lund, b Dobson, 3; extras, 5; total (7 wkts.), 51.

TADCASTER V. CHURCH FENTON.—At Tadcaster. Scores:—

Tadcaster—H. Todd, c Thompson, b Claughton, 5; J. F. Mason, b Dixon, 0; J. T. Hebden, c Hodgkinson, b Mosby, 36; G. Freer, b Claughton, 7; C. Herbert, b Mosby, 0; R. T. Baker, not out, 19; extras, 9; total (for 4 wkts.), 118.

Church Fenton—W. D. Foxton, b Herbert, 0; A. Foxton, c Hebden, b Herbert, 0; A. Claughton, b Baker, 22; J. A. Thompson, b Herbert, 0; W. Dixon, b Baker, 0; T. Atha, c Grimston, b Baker, 16; W. Claughton, lbw, b Baker, 9; W. Mosby, c Roger, b Baker, 3; F. Jackson, run out, 3; H. Deighton, b Herbert, 0; A. B. Hodgreaves, not out, 1; extras, 4; total, 38.

GARFORTH V. BARWICK.—At Garforth. Scores:—

Barwick—G. Bowes, b Pickersgill, 2; F. Lamb, b Ballance, 2; H. Walton, c Ballance, b W. Glover, 13; J. Pollard, b Ballance, 1; W. Hartley, c S. Glover, b Ballance, 0; J. Robshaw, c S. Glover, b W. Glover, 0; W. Lovatt, b Ballance, 2; D. Childe, b W. Glover, 1; W. Armitage, b Ballance, 2; V. Robshaw, c Ballance, b Glover, 2; W. Brown, not out, 0; extras, 5; total, 30.

Garforth—S. Glover, c Lovatt, b Bowes, 0; H. Prime, b Childe, 0; W. Glover, not out, 24; H. Williamson, run out, 2; T. Ballance, b Childe, 5; H. Morley, c and b Childe, 0; J. Bowes, 1; J. Wilson, not out, 8; extra, 1; total (for 5 wkts.), 41.

SEACROFT V. MICKLEFIELD.—At Seacroft. Scores:—

Seacroft—D. Burton, b H. Smith, 0; T. Toft, c Wallis, b Stones, 23; G. Thompson, c Townend, b A. Smith, 16; G. Stead, c Hardwick, b Stones, 3; H. Attack, b Tompkinson, 36; I. Fryer, c Tompkinson, b Smith, 21; C. Johnson, lbw, b Smith, 32; E. Johnson, run out, 27; F. Taylor, c Lunn, b Tompkinson, 22; J. W. Pickersgill, b Stone, 25; H. Toft, not out, 2; extras, 7; total, 198.

Micklefield—Godber, c Thompson, b G. Johnson, 29; Tompkinson, run out, 1; A. Smith, b I. Fryer, 0; A. Stone, c Atack, b Fryer, 4; F. Hobson, c Pickersgill, b Fryer, 57; J. Wallis, c Taylor, b Fryer, 3; H. Goodson, b G. C. Stead, 12; W. Lunn, b I. Fryer, 0; S. Taylor, b E. Johnson, 15; Hardwick, not out, 1; J. H. Townend, lbw, b E. Johnson, 0; extras, 25; total, 150.

CROSSGATES WESLEYANS V. COLLINGHAM.—At Old Manston. Scores:—

Collingham—F. Whitehead, b Clough, 12; H. Priddle, b Burton, 0; F. Foster, lbw, b Coultas, 8; H. Graydon, c Coultas, b Webster, 15; G. Foster, b Thompson, 18; A. Dalby, b Coultas, 12; C. Dalby, b Webster, 0; E. Thompson, 4; F. Whitelock, b Thompson, 2; Stokes, not out, 8; H. Whitehead, lbw, b Thompson, 0; Beaumont, b Coultas, 1; extras, 14; total, 106.

Crossgates Wesleyans—C. Brook, b Priddle, 1; H. Graydon, c and b Graydon, 0; E. Webster, c Whitehead, b Dalby, 12; E. Holliday, c Foster, b Graydon, 7; E. Clough, c Twidale, b Graydon, 2; R. Coultas, c Twidale, b Dalby, 26; C. H. Walker, b Graydon, 0; A. Beaumont, b Graydon, 1; V. Thompson, c Foster, b Graydon, 0; H. Wynne, not out, 7; H. Fidgett, c and b Dalby, 2; extras, 12; total, 93.

WHITKIRK V. CROSSGATES.—At Whitkirk. Scores:—

Whitkirk—A. R. Milford, b White, 7; A. Shepherd, b White, 2; T. Pickersgill, b Yates, 4; J. Pawson, b Yates, 9; C. R. J. Mosforth, b Yates, 0; Loveday, c and b Yates, 0; W. E. Taylor, not out, 2; W. L. Moss, c Craven, b Yates, 3; C. Rowland, c Fairburn, b White, 0; C. Batty, c Brookes, b Yates, 0; E. D. Pawson, c Burnell, b Yates, 0; extras, 4; total, 36.

Crossgates—J. Bedford, b S. Shepherd, 7; I. Burnell, not out, 17; A. Fairburn, c Romford, b J. Shepherd, 6; G. Goodall, b Ingle, 0; H. Brookes, not out, 5; extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 37.

HALTON WESLEYANS V. SHADWELL.—At Halton. Scores:—

Halton Wesleyans—C. M. Kilburn, c Heaton, b Scott, 5; T. Popplewell, b Burnett, 0; Heaton, b 2; S. Batty, c and b Scott, 41; L. Stephens, lbw, b Heaton, 0; J. A. Popplewell, lbw, b Heaton, 5; C. O. Bell, b Heaton, 0; C. Batty, b Burnett, 0; Burnett, b Scott, 40; C. E. Batty, b Scott, 1; C. Bell, c Burnett, b Scott, 17; A. Powell, b Heaton, 2; H. Wilson, not out, 2; extras, 10; total, 166.

Shadwell—Burnett, c Crosthwaite, b O. Bell, 8; Heaton, b Wilson, 8; Scott, c C. Batty, b Wilson, 5; Metcalfe, run out, 14; Freeman, c and b O. Bell, 2; Smith, b O. Bell, 0; Burnett, b C. Bell, 16; Hall, b Wilson, 0; Umpleby, c and b O. Bell, b C. Bell, 11; Weatherill, not out, 1; Mawson, run out, 1; extras, 6; total, 72.

GREAT PRESTON V. HALTON.—At Great Preston. Scores:—

Halton—Cowell, b Green, 0; Haigh, run out, 0; Sunter, c Wigglesworth, b Thompson, 21; Dodsworth, lbw, b Thompson, 4; Taylor, b Green, 12; Benson, c Thompson, b Green, 1; Green, 10; Ball, b Green, 13; Sunter, run out, 14; Guest, not out, 7; Shaw, b Green, 3; extras, 4; total, 88.

Great Preston—T Wigglesworth, c Haigh, b Sunter, 0; H. Wigglesworth, c Sunter, b Taylor, 5; R. Wigglesworth, run out, 2; G. Varley, c and b Sunter, 0; A. Moore, not out, 21; J. Harrison, c Haigh, b Benson, 8; W. Varley, b Benson, 0; H. Firth, b Benson, 0; J. Green, c Guest, b Taylor, 0; C. Thompson, c Guest, b Sunter, 1; J. Cooper, c Guest, b Sunter, 3; extras, 9; total, 59.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

BARKSTON ASH V. TADCASTER A.—At Barkston Ash. Scores:—Tadcaster A—Kettlewell 7, E. Smart, b B. Johnson, 3; Shearsmith, not out, 16; Aldous, 15; A. Taylor 7, Ireland 7, Shearsmith (not out) 16, Whitfield 2, Taylor 4, Swan 0, extras 2; total 70.

Barkston Ash — P. Rhodes 10, G. Liddle 0, A. Lezenby 11, D. Atkinson 6, W. Woods 8, Bailey 13, T. Hills 0, Liddle 11, W. White 0, J. White (not out) 4. A. Smith 0, extras 5; total 68.

SHERBURN WHITE ROSE V. KIRK DEIGHTON.—At Sherburn. Scores:—Sherburn White Rose—J. Elliff 2, E. Peteh 4, C. Cooke 0, H. Cawthorne 0, J. Gill 2, G. Hey 0, W. Lunn 0, E. Townend 11, H. Hickman 0, B. Hey (not out) 0, extras 3; total 35. Kirk Deighton—Linfoot 9, Nicholson 5, Raine 1, Oxley 2, T. Bleasby (not out) 6, Swann 0, J. Bleasby (not out) 2, extras 3; total (for 5 wkts), 37.

ULLESKELF V. BRAMHAM.—At Ulleskelf. Scores:—Bramham—J. Dawson 3, J. Cass 0, G. Shaw 0, F. Shaw 0, J. Bullock 5, A. Stockdale 0, G. Brown 1, G. Eastwood 1, D. Kerridge 0, P. Hebron (not out) 1, T. Hebron 0, extras 5; total 16. Ulleskelf—N. Ward 1, J. Sykes (capt.) 4, R. Dean 2, J. Porter 0, W. Bean (not out) 1, F. Hall 0, D. Varley (not out) 4, extras 6; total (for 5 wkts.), 18.

ABERFORD V. GREAT PRESTON A.—At Aberford. Scores:—Aberford—J. Blakeley 22, F. Walton 1, E. Copper 0, J. Connell 2, G. Connell 3, H. Abbott 0, A. Stringford 1, Furman 1, T. Lindley (not out) 0, W. Dickinson 1, A. Inman 1, extras 7; total 38. Great Preston A.—F. Hutchinson (not out) 22; H. Wrigglesworth 8, G. Wrigglesworth 0, Collett 1, Lilley (not out) 2, extras, 9; total (for 3 wkts.), 42.

BARWICK A V. GARFORTH A.—At Barwick. Scores:—Barwick A.—M. Lumb 4, E. Bielo house 1, G. Stringford 1, Parkin 8, T. H. Robshaw 1, W. Markham 0, W. Booth 0, J. Wilson 0, B. Howeroft 0, F. Scargill 1, J. Drake (not out) 1, extras 5; total 21. Garforth A.—W. Ballance (not out) 9, W. Kilburn (not out) 8, extras 5; total, 22.

HALTON A V. SEACROFT A.—At Halton. Scores:—Seacroft A.—J. W. Smith 15, J. Liley 31, E. Bielo house 1, G. Stringford 0, T. Linley 1, Hardy 8, S. Ball (not out) 2, J. Hepworth 0, A. Bateman 14, W. Linley 3, extras 17; total 148. Halton A.—A. White, G. S. Clarke 0, D. Sunter 1, H. Haigh 2, L. Todd 1, H. Dobson 8, E. Weatherill 4, W. Benzil 13, T. Bond 1, G. Dunbar 0, J. Bradley (not out) 5, extras 3; total, 46.

GARFORTH WESLEYANS V. HALTON WESLEYANS A.—At Garforth. Scores:—Halton Wesleyans A.—H. Batty 3, J. Hemsworth 2, S. Clark 27, A. Baran 2, W. Taylor 0, H. Schofield 1, G. Palmer 5, S. Sunter 2, Kilberly 2, L. Townend 7, G. Goodall (not out) 1, extras 5; total 66. Garforth Wesleyans—F. Sibory 3, F. Gent 6, H. Ward 6, H. Sibory 8, R. Brownridge (not out) 37, H. Goodall (not out) 11; extras, 4; total, 69.

SWILLINGTON AND COLTON V. CROSSGATES WES. A.—At Colton. Scores:—Crossgates Wes. A.—H. Brook 2, H. Thompson 8, G. Willans 4, J. Brook 2, C. Bulliday 1, J. Selman 0, E. C. White 0, E. Beaumont 2, H. Rodgers 22, J. Stephenson 3, H. English (not out) 0, extras 3; total 56. Swillington and Colton—A. Dobson 5, J. F. Southwick (not out) 18, G. Earndale 1, J. Hunt 0, E. Gascoigne (not out) 0, extras 3; total (for 3 wkts.), 27.

CROSSGATES A V. WHITKIRK A.—At Crossgates. Scores:—Crossgates A.—Williamson 6, Linley 1, Holliday 2, H. Glover 4, Whiting 1, Smith 9, Hague 5, W. Glover, 0, A. Curtis 10, Walker 0, Turner (not out) 7, extras 10; total, 46. Whitkirk A.—Coultas 16, E. Nowell 2, H. Nowell 3, W. Cuttle 4, Woodward (not out) 10, Webb 5, White (not out) 2, extras 5; total (for 6 wkts.), 47.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT CRICKET LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood Adults	12	8	3	1	17
Carlton	10	6	2	2	14
Oulton	11	6	4	1	13
Robin Hood	10	5	3	2	12
Altofts United	10	5	3	2	12
Kippax	10	4	5	1	9
Rothwell	9	4	5	0	8
Woodlesford	12	3	9	0	6
Stanley Church	9	1	6	2	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood Adults A.	12	9	3	0	18
Rothwell A.	10	7	3	0	14
Stanley Church A.	10	6	3	1	13
Carlton A.	9	6	3	0	12
Kippax A.	11	5	5	1	11
Woodlesford A.	12	5	6	1	11
Oulton A.	11	3	7	1	7
Altofts Wesleyan	10	3	7	0	6
Robin Hood A.	9	2	7	0	4

R. HOYLAND, Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

Oulton v. Altofts. Messrs Tattersall and Booth.
Carlton v. Robin Hood. Messrs Beiggs and Lamb.
Kippax v. Stanley Church. Messrs Earnshaw and Tate.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

KIPPAX V. CARLTON.—At Carlton. Scores:—Carlton—J. Brown, b Lowe, 15; J. Brooke, c Lowe, b Lloyd, 21; R. Butterworth, c Lambert, b Lowe, 17; E. Fozzard, b Lloyd, 16; W. Brown, b Lloyd, 5; H. Corns, b Bickerdike, 7; C. Sykes, run out, 12; L. Brown, lbw, b Lowe, 21; S. Lascarone, b Lloyd, 9; T. Illingworth, c Elder, b Lloyd, 13; W. Newton, not out, 4; extras 14; total, 153.

Kippax—B. Eddison, b Newton, 30; W. Lloyd, b Illingworth, 0; E. Bickerdike, b Newton, 5; H. Lambert, retired hurt, 0; A. Brooke, c Brown, b Illingworth, 1; C. Butler, b White, 2; A. Wright, b Illingworth, 8; E. Plows, b Brown, 16; T. Roberts, b Brown, 8; T. Smart, b Brown, 1; A. Varley, b Brown, 0; A. Rider, not out, 0; extras, 14; total, 86.

OULTON V. OUTWOOD FRIENDS.—At Outwood. Scores:—

Oulton—H. Butler, b Pickard, 0; R. Higgins, b Pickard, 1; C. Butler, b White, 1; A. Wright, c Lunn, b Pickard, 3; S. Knight, c Hoyland, b White, 0; J. Butterick, b White, 2; B. Chappell, c Colby, b White, 4; C. Higgins, not out, 4; J. Hutchinson, b Pickard, 2; R. Bell, b White, 0; Pickard, 4; R. V. Higgins, c White, b Pickard, 0; extra, 11; total, 36.

Outwood Friends—H. Dixon, b Walker, 10; P. Carr, not out, 5; J. W. Lunn, not out, 20; extras, 3; total (for 1 wkt.), 38

ROBIN HOOD V. ROTHWELL.—At Robin Hood. Scores:—

Rothwell—C. Tiffany, c Howden, b Holroyd, 11; J. Newton, c sub, b Frost, 1; W. Fox, b Frost, 0; H. Hodgkinson, c Kirkby, b Holroyd, 1; A. Tiffany, b Frost, 0; H. Hoyland, c Holroyd, 0; E. Tiffany, c and b Frost, 0; E. Moss, not out, 4; W. Bedford, c Giles, b Holroyd, 6; H. Lane, b Frost, 0; H. Banks, b Frost, 6; extra, 1; total, 30.

Robin Hood—W. Frost, b Moss, 5; E. Smith, c Tiffany, b Bedford, 52; P. Wormald, b Bedford, 24; Giles, b Moss, 0; L. Holroyd, b Moss, 0; L. Armitage, not

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
MILLER'S NORTH OF LEEDS
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE DOUBLE CHANCE

By J. S. FLETCHER

Author of "The Threshing Floor," "When Charles I. Was King," "Daniel Quayne," "The Pinfold," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF OPENING CHAPTERS: Clinton Mannersley had been accused and convicted of forgery by his uncle, Sir Robert Mannersley. He had protested his innocence, but the evidence was strong against him. Now, when a term of imprisonment had nearly expired, he has escaped from Dartmoor. Secretly he sends a letter to Sir Robert's daughter, Phillipa, whom he loves. In this he makes known his escape, and again protests his innocence. Phillipa never believed him guilty, but now the wild tone of his letter alarms her, and she makes known its contents to a sturdy miner, Jim Britten, Clinton's foster-brother. Jim feels sure that Clinton will come straight to him, and his expectations are fulfilled the same night. Unknown to either, the meeting is witnessed by a man, who steals silently away into the darkness.

CHAPTER III.

Sir Robert Mannersley, seventeenth of his line in the proud order of the Baronetage, had been a poor man until coal was found on his estate, and he was glad, for the sake of his family, to develop the enormous mineral wealth which lay all around him. He would have liked to preserve some of the old simplicity and dignity of life in the immediate vicinity of the Castle, but all that was left of old times was the Castle itself, which was really an old house, picturesque and romantic enough now that Time had mellowed it, that had been built out of the ruins of the ancient fortress a hundred years after the latter had been destroyed. Within its time-mellowed chambers Sir Robert found his great recreation. The responsibilities of the colliery had transformed him into a business man, because he was a conscientious man, and he made a point of attending at his offices with punctuality and assiduity; but he was never so happy as when under his own roof-tree and by his own hearth, talking to his friends or showing them some of his treasures.

On the evening of the day following Phillipa Mannersley's visit to the checkweighman's cottage on the opposite side of the valley three people sat round the hearth in the elder man glanced at him, set down the tray of coins, and quietly took his own chair. "Go on, Quinton," he said, not unkindly. "I had an idea that you wanted to speak to me."

"Yes," said Quinton—yes. The fact is, I think I ought to go away. I am not the sort of man to beat about the bush, especially with you, and—I am in love with your daughter."

The old man nodded his head several times. "Aye," he said, "so I thought, Quinton—so I thought. Well, I see no harm in that. Your family is of equal rank with mine, and I have the greatest opinion of you in every way."

"Then you would——" cried Quinton, moved out of his usual calmness.

"Give her to you?" interposed Sir Robert, with a smile. "Aye, very likely I would. But, Quinton, I fear it's no use. Sit down. You know the terrible stain on our recent history?" he went on, when the younger man had taken a seat. "You have heard of what happened to my nephew just before you came here?"

Quinton bowed his head without speaking.

"They were always fond of each other as boy and girl," continued Sir Robert; "and, despite all that has happened, I believe she still cares for that graceless young scoundrel, Quinton, I tremble to think of what may happen when—when he is free again!"

Quinton sat in silence for some time. At last he looked the old man earnestly in the face. "Sir Robert!" he said. "Do you really believe your nephew was guilty?"

Sir Robert passed his hand over his forehead. "I wish I could think else!" he answered. "But—I can't!"

Quinton rose. "I'll go now," he said. "You—you'll understand. And you'll let me speak to you some other time, sir?"

He pressed the hand which the old man gave him, and, leaving the study, got his hat and coat and let himself out by a side door into the grounds. He wanted to be alone—wanted to think.

"Still cares for that graceless young scoundrel!" he said, bitterly.

If that were true, what hope was there for him!

CHAPTER IV.

The place which Clinton Mannersley had selected as a suitable rendezvous was one well known to Phillipa and himself; it was a lonely cave, which centuries earlier had been transformed into a rude oratory by a hermit whose ghost was said to haunt it, and Clinton accordingly fixed upon it as the most likely place wherein to meet his cousin, free man then. Well, then, all we've got to do is to make you dead safe until after tomorrow night. But how and where? Let's think. I have it, sir—Moses Pogmore's!"

Clinton started perceptibly. "What, Black Moses!" he exclaimed. "Why there particularly?"

"Why, sir, because, first of all, Black Moses lives all by himself—he can't abide women and won't have 'em near his place; secondly, his cottage is as lonely as ours is; and thirdly, you were always a favourite of his because you went in for horses and dogs his because you went in for horses and dogs like," said Jim. "Black Moses'll let nobody enter while you're there. Come along, Mr. Clinton, we'll go and see him."

Turning away from the footbridge, near which they had lingered during this conversation, Jim led the way along various paths and through a disused brickfield, in until they came to a disused brickfield, in which a light shone from a cottage window. He posted him in the lee of one of the tumbledown brick-kilns.

"Stop there, Mr. Clinton, while I prepare Moses for your coming," he said. "I've no Moses for your coming," he said. "I've no doubt about your reception, but he might just chance to have some of his mates with him, and I don't want anybody but him to know about you."

Clinton waited under the kiln while Jim went warily up to the cottage. There was a chilly wind, and he was tired; also he was not feeling particularly happy. He meant to keep his promise to Phillipa, but the thought of giving himself up and completing the term of his sentence was not attractive to him, especially after that taste of much-desired freedom. He was feeling very bitter and very wrathful against the whole chain of circumstances which had led his life to this point, when Jim Britten reappeared.

"Come on, sir," said Jim. "There's no one there but Moses. I've told him, and he'll see you're all right."

Gaining the cottage door in such a fashion that no one could see them cross the lighted window, Jim gently opened it and pushed Clinton in before him. The refuge entered, blinking at the light.

"Well, Moses," he said, with an attempt at cheerfulness, "you didn't expect to see me, I'll bet!"

An enormous man, who had scrupulously cleansed himself of the coal-dust and grime of the pit before taking his evening rest, but who was so dark of hair and complexion as fully to justify his mates in calling him Black Moses, rose from a chair on the hearth, and seizing Clinton's hand wrung it with great heartiness.

"Master Clinton, sir!" he said. "Proud to see ye, sir, proud—and glad—to see ye. No, the laws in the land, sir!" he said. "Jim, my lad, I don't like a man to come under my roof without suppin'. I'll make thee a sup o' tea or coffee, like—which, now?"

"I'll have a drink of that milk, Moses," said Jim, pointing to a measure which stood on the table. "Here's your good health," he continued, as Moses pushed the milk towards him. "And now I'll go—I know Mr. Clinton's in safe hands."

"As safe as if he were a babby and in his cradle," said Moses. "I'll see to him, Jim, my lad."

He saw to his charge that night as if he had been entertaining a king, and next morning, in spite of all that Clinton could urge, insisted on "playing," saying that the loss of a day's work was no more to him than naught, and that he was going to stand by his guest until night. And so the day went by uneventfully, but in safety, and at the time suggested by Phillipa, Clinton, after a hearty farewell from Moses Pogmore, set out in the dusk for the Castle.

He was conscious as he went along, making his way from one point to another like a hunted thing that dreads even the light of day, that he was feeling heart-sick and despondent. He knew very well that he had been a fool of himself in his boyhood and young manhood, that there was no wonder that his uncle had become sick and wearied of his folly and his wild goings-on. But he was also conscious of his own entire innocence in the shrubbery near the windows of Sir Robert's study that he could see into the room. But in his eagerness to see his uncle and pour out his woes and his entreaties he had arrived too early; he could see that the room was empty. Then a servant appeared in the study and drew down all the blinds; after that he could see no more.

After waiting what seemed an age Clinton at last moved out of the shrubbery and crept to the side-door, to which Phillipa had provided him with a key. That door opened directly into the study, as he knew well. He inserted the key in the lock—it turned without a sound. In another second he was inside the room. A high screen stood between him and the centre of the study, hiding his view of the desk whereat Sir Robert usually worked at night. He moved softly round it, expecting to find the room empty. Everything was Sherburn, and was second in the open class to the gelding. Mr Richard Parker was third with a five-year-old bay mare. Mr Sellers' Pontefract winner led the aged mare class (radius), followed by Mr Helm's brown mare and Mr Jos. Sherrard's mare. The aged gelding class was led by Mr Helm, who continued his triumphs of the day by taking the first two places. His brown gelding secured premier honours, and the big chestnut came second. Mr Parker, Burton Common, provided the winning brood mare and foal, his couple being given preference over Mr Collins'. Mr Helm won the pairs class with his brown mare and brown gelding, and the mare also won the Shire Horse Society's medal, her only opponent being Mr Collins' filly foal.

HUNTERS.

The hunter classes were not very strong in numbers, but there was some of the best quality in the ring. The brood mares were a particularly prominent class, and were led by a nine-year-old grey mare, Grizzle, belonging to Major-General Baldock, of Monk Fryston—a big mare with plenty of bone, and showing good quality. Major-General Baldock also supplied the winning foal, which was by the winning brood mare, got by King's Proctor. It is eleven weeks old, and shows every promise of becoming a useful hunter. Both the yearling and two-year-old classes fell to Mr Walter Lofthouse, Hall Cotheriye.

The open riding class for Mr H. L. Lyon's silver cup brought out four competitors, and the competition was keen between a gelding shown by Messrs. Snowden, Starbeck, and Mr H. H. Rose's, Cosmanthorpe, gelding. Between the two the verdict went to the former at Sherburn, but Mr Foster reversed this decision, and gave the verdict to Mr Rose's gelding.

THE AWARDS.

Dairy cow (open)—1, G. Elliott, Knottingley; 2, R. Mollett, Birkin. Agricultural colt or filly foal (open)—1, H. Collins, Hillam; 2, A. McCloy, Birkin; 3, Mrs E. Stoker, Hambleton. Hunter colt or filly foal (open)—1, Major-General Baldock, Monk Fryston Lodge; 2, E. Ingle and Son, Knottingley; 3, A. Foxton, Roall Manor. Agricultural colt or filly foal (three miles radius)—1, H. Collins, Hillam; 2, A. McCloy; 3, Mrs E. Stoker. Agricultural colt or filly foal sired by any of Mr J. C. Jackson's horses—1, A. McCloy; 2, R. Parker, Barton Common; 3, Jos. South, Poole. Agricultural colt or filly foal sired by any of Mr E. T. Parker's horses—1, C. W. Helm, Rose Park; 2, S. Longbottom, Hillam. Agricultural gelding or filly, yearling (open)—1, A. McCloy; 2, R. Ward, Womersley; 3, W. Dickinson, Ferrybridge. Hunter gelding or filly, yearling—1, W. Lofthouse, Bishopthorpe; 2, Welburn Bros., Huddleston Hall; 3, J. Todd, Birkin. Agricultural gelding or filly, two years old (five miles radius)—1, C. W. Helm; 2, J. Sherrard, Beal; 3, E. T. Parker. Hunter, gelding or filly, 2 years (up-to)—1, W. Lofthouse; 2, Welburn Bros.; 3, F. Dorley, West Haddlesey. Agricultural gelding or filly, 3 years (open)—1, F. Sellers, Knottingley; 2, W. Clough, Selby; 3, W. Dickinson. Family group (agricultural) (five miles radius)—1, A. McCloy; 2, H. Collins; 3, J. Todd. Hunter brood mare, any age—1, Major-General Baldock; 2, A. Foxton; 3, G. Tankard, Thorganby. Agricultural gelding or mare, 4 years and upwards (open)—1, 2, and special (C. W. Helm); 3, R. Parker. Hunter, gelding or mare, 4 years and upwards (open)—1, H. Rose, Copmanthorpe; 2, L. Snowden and Son, Starbeck; 3, Dr Morrison, Escrick. Novice

DISTRICT BREVITIES.

The annual puppy walk takes place at Bramham Park on August 7th.

• • •

Apparently the land owners object to the proposed planning of Seacroft. Why?

• • •

Wetherby's water carnival next month will make Knaresborough look to its laurels.

• • •

Sherburn magistrates had an easy day at last Court. Three charges constituted the "sheet."

• • •

Bath Tadcaster and Richmond Hill Wesleyan circuits have new superintendent ministers this year.

• • •

It is suggested the Territorials should sing when on the march. Why not the Aberfordia ambulance men?

• • •

"Harvesting" was started in Wetherby district last week-end, Mr J. A. Field, of Sandbeck, having cut a field of oats.

• • •

The fete at Brookfield, Garforth Bridge, on Saturday, should be a successful one. Many attractions will be provided.

• • •

The Skyrack magistrates had comparatively little business to transact on Tuesday. Nine cases comprised the "sheet."

• • •

Hunslet Guardians are to have a return cricket match at Rothwell on August 26th. Why don't they challenge the Leeds or Tadcaster Boards?

• • •

Poor "Bobby!" "You want putting in a bag and sticking up," said a local farmer to a Garforth policeman, who told him he would be reported for an offence.

• • •

No date has yet been fixed for the marriage of the Hon. Bernard Howard and Baroness Beaumont, of Carlton Towers, Selby. The wedding will take place in November.

• • •

Roundhay people found that running a flower show is not an easy business. The entries did not come up to expectations. The next big flower show is at Crossgates.

• • •

The four principal golf clubs in the district—Wetherby, Garforth, Selby, and Crossgates—are going ahead and no mistake. The membership of Crossgates club has been closed.

• • •

Templenewsam allotment-holders are difficult to deal with, and, for some reason, there is antagonism between them and the Council, although the latter try to meet every reasonable demand.

• • •

Templenewsam Council had a meeting on Monday night, and it had to be adjourned, owing to there not being a quorum. This is the first time such a thing has occurred in the history of the Council.

• • •

Owing to the holidays the Skyrack magistrates will hold no court next week.

• • •

The latest! A football meeting was held at Rothwell on Sunday afternoon.

• • •

Who said there was no demand for land? The Ulleskelf property has sold well.

• • •

Barkston Ash bowlers have their return match with the Airedale Association on August 4th.

• • •

A farce! Tadcaster District Insurance Committee, according to a friendly society worker, is a farce.

• • •

Mrs. Hoste, of Ripon Park, performed the opening ceremony on the second day at Castleford Church bazaar.

• • •

The subject for the first session of the Crossgates University class is literature, and Prof. Masterman has been appointed lecturer.

• • •

What have the doctors to say? A member of Oulton Education Committee says it is stingy and most of the doctors to charge sixpence for medical certificates for children.

• • •

The Skyrack police are keen workers for the charities, and in order to raise money they have fancy fetes at Garforth, Thorner, Ripon, Rothwell, Halton, and Horsforth.

• • •

Why not compromise? The Hunslet Guardians and Rothwell Council are still squabbling about the price of water supplied to the children's homes at Rothwell Haigh.

• • •

Saltfington seems to be the happy hunting ground for the mendicant. During the past few weeks at the Skyrack Court the police have brought several beggars before the magistrates.

• • •

The Rev. Crusshaw Hargreaves (43 years' service) and the Rev. John Harries (38 years' service), who have been superintendents of local circuits, have retired from the Wesleyan Church ministry.

• • •

Mr Michael Rayner, of Whitmoor, won first prize with a cow of capital dairy quality at the Yorkshire Show. It was her first time out this season, but last year she had several wins, including a first at Otley.

• • •

"If you come here with that you had better clear out," was the answer of the Chairman to an allotment-holder, who appeared before the Templenewsam Council and complained about how an official discharged his duties.

• • •

Bad for flying! A perfect hurricane was blowing at Roundhay on Friday morning, and so powerful were the gusts of wind that two large marquees were blown down, while one or two others were very much tattered and torn.

• • •

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

Barkston Ash Competition.

All the clubs in Barkston Ash are not in the Competition, but I hope that next season the present number will be considerably augmented. Now is the time to make application for membership, and, according to the rules, all entries are due on August 1st. New clubs desirous of joining should at once communicate with Mr E. D. Pawson, the hon. sec., Halton.

Senior League Matches for Saturday.

The Senior League programme will be completed on Saturday, and then the semi-finals will be played. In one division the semi-finalists are Halton Wes.—they have made their position secure—and in the other two divisions they will be Tadcaster and Scarcroft, but there is just a possibility of an upset in these divisions. South Milford are only a point behind the Cawoodians, and if in the match to-morrow Tadcaster effect a draw they will tie, but if they lose Milford will be the semi-finalists. Tadcaster, I think, will succeed. Church Fenton and Church Fenton Sycamore, who have their return match, and Cawood will entertain Saxton, who are not shaping as well as they promised. Scarcroft's opponents are Halton, and the match is on the Primrose Valley ground. Although they are a smart side, Halton will create a surprise if they snatch a couple of points from their opponents. Micklefield and Garforth should provide a well-contested game, and Rawdon are given a chance of obtaining two points at the expense of Great Preston. Crossgates, at home, expect to defeat Crossgates Wes., who are not going as well as in the early part of the season, and at Collingham it is expected Halton Wes. will secure the points, while Shadwell will give Whitkirk the order of the knock unless there is a substantial improvement in their play.

League Games on Saturday.

Tadcaster administered a crushing defeat to Church Fenton, who, however, have the consolation that they scored more runs than Garforth against the same bowling. The Caledarians started their innings inauspiciously, for Todd (5) and Mason (0) were quickly got rid of, but Hebden (30) and Fryer (70, not out) completely mastered the bowling, and the men in the field had a merry time leather-hunting. Freer's score is the best he has got this season. Herbert was got rid of cheaply, but Baker rattled up 19 (not out), and when the score stood at 148 for four wickets the innings was declared at an end. Mosby was the best of the Fenton trundlers, his two wickets costing 36, while Coughton had 3 for 35, and Dixon 1 for 41. Church Fenton's innings had a disastrous opening, the five first men securing only two runs among them, but Otho (10) and W. Coughton (9) offered a stout defence to the deliveries of Herbert and Baker, who trundled unchanged throughout the innings. None of the others, however, gave much trouble, and the score totalled 38. Baker's five wickets cost 18, and Herbert's four were got for 16.

Cawood and Church Fenton Sycamore played a drawn game at Church Fenton. The visitors gave a good batting exhibition, registering 90 runs, and C. Jackson made an excellent 42. C. Poulter trundled well, taking 5 wickets for 22, and E. Poulter had 4 for 25. Church Fenton had two hours in which to get the runs, and play must be given credit for the total secured was 4 for seven wickets. Of course, the bowling was exceedingly good, and the home-sters were, naturally, inclined to take no risks. A. Fenton made 13 and Holt 10, Dobson 8, four wickets cost 12, and O. Lund had 2 for 13.

Garforth had an easy win over Barwick in a one-sided match. Batting first, the Barwick men found difficulty in playing the bowling of W. Glover and Ballance, and they were dismissed for 30. Walton contributed 13 and Hartley 9 of these trundled with remarkable effect, capturing four wickets for six, while Ballance claimed five wickets for 15 runs. Garforth lost two of their best batsmen—S. Glover and H. Prime—without a run on the board, and it was well for them that W. Glover, who batted admirably for 24 (not out), made a stand, as the next three men did not stay long at the wicket. When five wickets had fallen the total was 41. D. Childe had two wickets for 26, and Bowes had 2 for 24.

Halton had a substantial win over Great Preston, on whose ground the match was played. The homesters scored 59, and F. Wheatley distinguished himself by making 29. Sunter captured four wickets for 17 runs, and Benson had four for 20. Halton scored 88, and Sunter made 21, Ball 13, Heaps 11, and Benson 10. Great Preston was the most successful of the Preston trundlers, his five wickets costing 40, and Thompson had 3 for 26.

Micklefield went to Scarcroft determined to handle their rivals, but they failed, although it must be conceded that they made a very good effort. A singular feature of the match was that D. Barton, T. Toft, and G. Stead—three of the leading batsmen in the team—failed to make anything of a score, and then the bowling was severely trounced, all the other players, with one exception, making two figures. Attack made 20, Fryer 26, C. Johnson 32, E. Johnsin 27, F. Taylor 22, Pickersgill 25, and Thompson 16, and the total was 198. All Smith captured six bowlers for 43. Stone had 3 for 65, and Tompkinson 2 for 24. Micklefield had a formidable total on any win. Robin Hood A. made 62 (E. Todd, but they tackled it in the proper spirit, Wormald 24 and C. Barnby 17), and without losing a wicket Rothwell knocked up 63. A that they would not beat their opponents, they Tiffany having 34 and B. Fozzard 19. ran up the big score of 150. Hobson claimed the best return for the match with 5 for 47, and Scored 26, S. Taylor 15, and Goodman 12. Sea- were well beaten. The victors, who had choice ward tried to fewer than eight bowlers, and Fryer of ground, ran up 119, and Baxter scored 42, had the best figures—5 for 38, while E. John- Hebden 28, and Wilkinson 13. Stanley replied ston got two wickets for 14, G. Stead 1 for 8, with 36, of which Heaton claimed 18 and and C. Johnson 1 for 17. Dixon 11.

Collingham came by congratulated on at last securing a couple of points with their opponents' bowlers went to the first on Saturday, but they were Crossgates Wes., and for once in a way splendidly, sending up 153, and J. Brooks and L. Collingham gave a glimpse of their best form. Brown contributed 21 each, Butterworth 17, E. They scored two runs, and the principal contri- Bozzard 16, J. Brown 15, Illingworth 13, and butors were Lee 28, Graydon 15, A. Dalby Sykes 24. Kippax put in a creditable reply, but 14, and Whitehead 12. For the losers V. they finished nearly 70 runs behind. Towards a Thompson secured five wickets for 14, R. Coul- total of 86, Eddison had 36 and Plows 16. The ton had it for a hat-trick, and A. Jackson for 8. E. Wes. in the evening of the A. teams at Kippax produced a stiff match, the former scoring 148, the homesters won by six wickets. Towards Crossgates' score of 103, Kippax scored 49 (Ballance and Booth 11 Coultas made 26, and E. Webster scored 12. Oulton were completely outplayed at Outwood Graydon's six wickets were got for 37, and by the Friends' team. Batting first, the invaders C. Dalby claimed 4 for 36. were run-pressed by the deliveries of White and Pickerd, and they were all out for the meagre score of 36, of which P. Higgins (not out) claimed 11. Pickard obtained 6 wickets for 21, and White four for 13. Outwood scored 88 for a loss of a wicket,—in a high scoring match Oulton A. overcame Outwood A. by three runs. Oulton led off with 117 (Lockwood 34, not out, C. Butterick 22, and Nettleton 13), and Outwood responded with 114.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	8	7	1	0	14
South Milford	8	7	1	1	15
Cawood	8	5	3	3	7
Saxton	8	3	6	0	6
Church Fenton	8	1	6	0	4
Church Fenton Sycamore	8	1	6	2	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Scarcroft	8	8	1	0	16
Garforth	8	7	2	0	14
Micklefield	8	6	3	0	12
Halton	8	5	4	0	10
Barwick	8	4	5	0	8
Great Preston	8	0	8	0	0

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	7	8	1	0	16
Crossgates	9	6	3	0	12
Shadwell	9	5	4	0	10
Whitkirk	9	4	5	0	8
Crossgates Wesleyans	9	3	6	0	6
Collingham	9	2	5	0	2

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A	11	9	2	0	18
Ulleskelf	11	8	3	0	16
South Milford A	10	6	4	0	12
Kirk Deighton	10	6	4	0	12
Bramham	10	3	7	0	6
Sherburn White Rose	10	3	7	0	6
Barkston Ash	10	1	9	0	2

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth A	11	10	1	0	20
Seacroft A	10	9	1	0	18
Halton A	10	5	5	0	10
Great Preston A	11	5	6	0	10
Aberford	10	3	7	0	6
Micklefield A	10	3	7	0	6
Barwick A	10	1	9	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wesleyans	9	7	2	0	14
Swillington and Colton	9	6	3	0	12
Crossgates A	9	5	4	0	10
Crossgates Wesleyans A	9	4	5	0	8
Whitkirk A	9	3	6	0	6
Halton Wesleyans A	9	2	7	0	4

E. D. Pawson, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Cawood v. Saxton. Messrs T. Crosland (Micklefield) and T. Mathers (Great Preston).

Church Fenton v. Church Fenton Syc. Messrs W. Scarcroft (Tadcaster) and R Firn (Cawood).

South Milford v. Tadcaster. Messrs W. Crossland (Barwick) and H. Jackson (Leeds).

Barwick v. Great Preston. Messrs. C. Peers (Hillam Wes.) and S. H. Keeble (Crossgates Wes.).

Micklefield v. Garforth. Messrs J. Johnson (Scarcroft) and H. Bell (Saxton).

Halton v. Scarcroft. Messrs T. Goodall (Garforth Wes.) v. C. Atack (Micklefield).

Crossgates v. Crossgates Wes. Messrs A. Gascoigne (Kippax) and A. Thompson (Great Preston).

Collingham v. Halton Wes. Messrs E. Smith (Ulleskelf) and J. D. Snow (Wetherby).

Shadwell v. Whitkirk. Messrs F. Pickersgill (Scarcroft) and H. Johnson (Crossgates).

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Kirk Deighton v. Barkston Ash. Messrs H. Irish (Wetherby) and G. Fox (Bramham).

Bramham v. Sherburn W.R. Messrs H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton) and J. W. Falkingham (Leeds).

Tadcaster A. v. South Milford A. Messrs P. Hardcastle (Church Fenton Syc.) and H. Watson (Barkston Ash).

Scarcroft A. v. Micklefield A. Messrs T. P. Spivey (Crossgates) and J. Dobson (Garforth).

Aberford v. Barwick A. Messrs A. Bailey (Garforth) and E. Levitt (Swillington and Colton)

Great Preston A. v. Halton A. Messrs A. Birch (Garforth) and G. C. Earnshaw (Oulton).

Halton Wes. v. Swillington and Colton. Messrs A. Barton (Seacroft) and F. Hebden (Garforth).

Crossgates Wes. A. v. Crossgates A. Messrs J. Fox (Swillington and Colton) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

Whitkirk A. v. Garforth Wes. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and T. Blackburn (Great Preston).

BARKSTON ASH CHAMPION BOWLER'S SUCCESS.

HALTON PLAYER WINS LEEDS MERIT.

The concluding rounds of the eighteenth annual Individual Merit Competition for the Championship of the Leeds and District Amateur Association were decided on Saturday at the Chapeltown (Meanwood) Club's green, the honours being secured at his first essay by H. Thomas (Halton), who recently won the championship of the Barkston Ash Association. A record entry of 230 competitors had been narrowed down to sixteen, all of whom participated in the valuable prize-list, and entered the fifth stage with which play was commenced.

In the fifth round Thomas had a hard fight against Secker (Armley), winning by two only, and in the next round the Barkston Ash champion had a stern struggle with W. Waller, winner of the Elland Institution. The game was called level on seven occasions, and eventually stood at 19-18 in favour of the Halton player, who, with two singles went to game.

In the semi-finals S. Slomon (New Leeds) had seven shafts before Eulkin got in a single, and the latter only scored at four ends—7 chalks in all. J. Speight (Municipal Officers) was well beaten by Thomas in the second game, the latter by 14-7, and though Speight then registered six chalks in nine ends, he lost by 7 points.

Slomon entered his third final with a total margin of 36 points for the three rounds as against a majority for Thomas of 12 chalks. The Barkston Ash champion, however, going from corner to corner of the green, was six in front at the finish chalk. Slomon's first scored four singles a piece as many ends, but at the sixteenth end the game was 14-6. The issue was never in doubt thereafter, Thomas gaining his second honour this season by 12 points. Details:—

Fifth round—H. Thomas (Halton) 21 v. J. Secker (Armley) 19. Sixth round—H. Thomas 21 v. W. Waller (Holbeck) 18. Semi-finals—H. Thomas 21 v. J. Speight (Leeds Municipal) 14. S Sloman (New Leeds C) 21 v. J E Rukin (Morley) 7. Final—Thomas 21 v. S. Sloman 9.

BARKSTON ASH SENIOR LEAGUE.

Church Fenton Sycamore v. Cawood.—At Church Fenton.

Cawood—F. Thompson, c J. Harrison, b C. Poulter, 2; C. O. Lund, c G. H. Ambler, b C. Poulter, 22; H. Lund, b C. Poulter, 10; G. Lund, b E. Poulter, 2; H. Dobson, b E. Poulter, 0; W. Barker, b C. Poulter, 4; C. Jackson, c F. Poulter, b C. Poulter, 26; J. Turner, b J. Harrison, 7; T. Buckle, c Holt, b E. Poulter, 8; A. Chilton, c and b E. Poulter, 4; Preston, not out, 3; extras, 1; total, 90.

Church Fenton Sycamore—A. Poulter, b O. Lund, 7; C. Poulter, b Jackson, 0; G. Foxton, b Smith, 5; J. E. Mason, b Dixon, 0; J. T. Hebden, c Holgreaves, b Mosby, 36; G. Freer, not out, 79; F. W. Herbert, b Mosby, 0; R. T. Baker, not out, 19; extras, 0; total (for 4 wkts.), 148.

Church Fenton—W. D. Foxton, b Herbert, 0; A. Coughton, c Hebden, b Herbert, 0; W. Coughton, b Baker, 22; J. A. Thompson, b Herbert, 0; W. Dixon, b Baker, 0; T. Atha, c Grimston, b Baker, 16; W. Claughton, lbw, b Baker, 9; W. Mosby, c Raper, b Baker, 3; F. Jackson, run out, 3; H. Deighton, b Herbert, 0; A. B. Holgreaves, not out, 1; extras, 0; total, 38.

Garforth v. Barwick.—At Garforth.

Barwick—G. Bowes, b Pickersgill, 2; F. Lamb, b Ballance, 2; H. Walton, c Ballance, b W. Glover, 13; J. Pollard, b Ballance, 1; W. Hartley, c S. Glover, b Ballance, 0; J. Robshaw, c S. Glover, b W. Glover, 0; W. Lovatt, b Ballance, 2; D. Childe, b W. Glover, 1; W. Armitage, b Ballance, 2; Y. Robshaw, c Ballance, b Glover, 2; W. Brown, not out, 0; extras, 5; total, 30.

Garforth—S. Glover, c Lovatt, b Bowes, 0; H. Prime, b Lamb, 2; W. Glover, not out, 24; F. Taylor, c Lamb, b Tompkinson, 22; J. W. Pickersgill, b Stone, 25; H. Toft, not out, 2; extras, 7; total, 198.

Micklefield—Ardber, c Thompson, b C. Johnson, 26; Tompkinson, run out, 1; A. Smith, b E. Fryer, 0; A. Stone, c Atack, b Fryer, 41; P. Hobson, c Pickersgill, b Fryer, 57; J. Walls, c Taylor, b Fryer, 3; H. Goodman, b G. Stead, 12; W. Lunn, b E. Fryer, 0; S. Taylor, b E. Johnson, 15; Hardwick, not out, 1; J. H. Townend, lbw, b E. Johnson, 0; extras, 25; total, 150.

Crossgates Wesleyans v. Collingham.—At Old Manston. Scores:—

Collingham—H. Whitehead, b Clough, 12; H. Twidale, b Beaumont, 0; R. Gibson, lbw, b Coultas, 8; H. Graydon, c Coultas, b Webster, 15; G. Foster, b Beaumont, 0; W. Dalby, c Coultas, b Thompson, 14; R. Smithson, b Thompson, 4; E. Whitelock, b Thompson, 2; Stokes, not out, 8; H. Whitehead, lbw, b Thompson, 4; J. Dawson, c Beaumont, b Coultas, 1; extras, 14; total, 100.

Crossgates—Wood-Leyes—C. Brook, c Whitehead, b Graydon, 7; D. Umpleby, b Dalby, 2; E. Webster, c Whitehead, b Dalby, 12; E. Holliday, c Foster, b Graydon, 4; J. Clough, c Twidale, b Graydon, 27; R. Coultas, c Twidale, b Dalby, 26; C. H. Walker, b Graydon, 6; A. Beaumont, b Graydon, 15; Thompson, c Whitehead, b Graydon, 0; H. Wynne, not out, 7; H. Fidgett, c and b Dalby, 2; extras, 12; total, 93.

Whitkirk v. Crossgates.—At Whitkirk. Scores:—

Whitkirk—A. R. Milford, b White, 72; A. Shepherd, b White, 2; T. Pickersgill, b Yates, 4; J. Shepherd, run out, 5; R. J. Moss, b White, 0; F. Loveday, c and b Yates, 0; W. E. Taylor, not out, 2; W. L. Moss, c Craven, b Yates, 3; C. Rumford, c Fairburn, b White, 0; E. Ingle, c and b Yates, 0; Bowden, b Dawson, c Burnell, b Yates, 0; extras, 4; total, 36.

Crossgates—W. T. Sykes, b J. Shepherd, 7; I. Burnell, run out, 17; R. Craven, c Rumford, b J. Shepherd, 6; G. Goodall, b Ingle, 0; H. White, not out, 55; extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 37.

Halton Wesleyans v. Shadwell.—At Halton. Scores:—

Halton Wesleyans—C. M. Kilburn, c Heaton, b Scott, 18; J. Popplewell, st Burnett, b Heaton, 2; S. Batty, c and b Scott, 41; L. Stephens, lbw, b Heaton, 0; A. Popplewell, lbw, b Heaton, 5; O. Bell, b Metcalfe, 28; G. D. Crosthwaite, c Burnett, b Scott, 40; C. E. Batty, b Scott, 13; J. Bell, c Burnett, b Scott, 0; A. Bell, not out, 0; Heaton, 2; H. Wilson, not out, 2; extras, 10; total, 160.

Shadwell—Barrett, c Crosthwaite, b O. Bell, 8; Heaton, b Wilson, 8; Scott, c C. Batty, b Wilson, 53; Metcalfe, run out, 14; Freeman, c and b O. Bell, 2; Burnett, b Wilson, 0; Burnett, b C. Bell, 16; Mills, b A. Powell, 0; Umpleby, c O. Bell, b C. Bell, 11; Weatherill, not out, 13; Mawson, run out, 1; extras, 6; total, 72.

Great Preston v. Halton.—At Great Preston. Scores:—

Halton—Cowell, b Green, 0; Haigh, run out, 0; Sunter, c Wigglesworth, b Thompson, 21; Bodsworth, b Haigh, 8; Thompson, b Green, 1; Heaps, b Thompson, 11; Benson, b Green, 10; Ball, b Green, 13; Sunter, run out, 14; Guest, not out, 7; Shaw, b Green, 3; extras, 1; total, 88.

Great Preston—T. Wigglesworth, c Haigh, b Sunter, 0; H. Wigglesworth, c Sunter, b Taylor, 5; R. Wigglesworth, run out, 2; G. Varley, c Haigh, b Sunter, 0; F. Wheatley, not out, 25; A. Thompson, c Haigh, b Benson, 8; W. Varley, b Benson, 0; H. Firth, b Benson, 0; J. Green, c Guest, b Benson, 0; C. Thompson, c Guest, b Sunter, 1; J. Cooper, c Guest, b Sunter, 31; extras, 9; total, 90.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Barkston Ash v. Tadcaster A.—At Barkston Ash. Scores:—Tadcaster A—Kettlewell 7, A. Smart 0, B. Johnson 3, Nettleton 2, Aldous 15, A. Taylor 3, H. Wigglesworth (not out) 0, Chatfield 2, Taylor 4, Swan 0, extras 7; total 70. Barkston Ash — P. Rhodes 10, G. Latter 80, J. Wigglesworth 4, Whitehead 6, Woods 8, R. Bailey 13, E. Hills 0, J. Liddle 11, W. White 0, J. White (not out) 4, A. Smith 0, extras 5; total 68.

Sherburn White Rose v. Kirk Deighton.—At Sherburn. Scores:—Sherburn White Rose—J. Elliff 2, E. Poteh 4, C. Cooke 0, H. Cawthorne 6, W. Smith 11, J. Gill 6, C. Hey 0, W. Lunn 0, E. Tiffany 0, J. Hey 0, Bramham 0, Hey (not out) 0, extras 3; total 35. Kirk Deighton—Linfoot 0, Nicholson 5, Raine 1, Oxley 2, T. Blensby (not out) 6, Swann 0, J. Blensby (not out) 1, extras 3; total (for 5 wkts), 37.

Ulleskelf v. Bramham.—At Ulleskelf. Scores:—Bramham—J. Dawson 3, J. Cass 0, G. Shaw 0, F. Shaw 0, J. Bullock 5, A. Stockdale 0, G. Brown 1, G. Eastwood 1, D. Kerridge 0, P. Hebron (not out) 1, T. Hebron 0, extras 5; total 16. Ulleskelf—J. Ward 1, J. Sykes (capt.) 4, R. Bean 2, J. Porter 0, W. Bean (not out) 1, F. Holt 0, D. Varey (not out) 4, extras 6; total (for 5 wkts.), 18.

Aberford v. Great Preston A.—At Aberford. Scores:—Aberford—J. Blakeley 22, F. Walton 11, E. Capper 0, J. Connell 2, G. Connell 3, H. Abbott 0, A. Stringer 0, J. Inman 1, T. Lindley (not out) 3, W. Dickinson 3, A. Inman 1, extras 7; total 38. Great Preston A—F. Hutchinson (not out) 22; H. Wrigglesworth 8, G. Wrigglesworth 0, Collett 1, Lilley (not out) 2, extras, 9; total (for 3 wkts), 42.

Barwick A v. Garforth A.—At Barwick. Scores:—Barwick A—M. Lamb 4, E. Backhouse 1, G. Coulthard 0, J. Porkin 8, T. H. Robshaw 0, W. Markham 0, W. Booth 5, J. Wilson 0, B. Howeroft 0, F. Scargill 1, J. Drake (not out) 1, extras 5; total 21. Garforth A—W. Ballance (not out) 9, W. Kilburn (not out) 8, extras 5; total, 22.

Halton A v. Seacroft A.—At Halton. Scores:—Seacroft A—J. W. Smith 15, J. Liney 31, E. Guest 32, E. Hunter 0, T. Lisley 26, J. Hardy 8, S. Ball (not out) 2, E. Wentworth 2, A. Bateman 14, W. Liney 3, extras 17; total 148. Halton A—A. White 6, S. Clarke 0, J. Guest 1, H. Haigh 2, T. Todd 1, H. Dobson 0, E. Weatherill 4, W. Brazil 13, T. Booth 1, G. Dunbar 0, J. Bradley (not out) 5, extras 5; total, 46.

Garforth Wesleyans v. Halton Wesleyans A—At Garforth. Scores:—Halton Wesleyans A—H. Beatty 3, S. Clark 27, A. Baron 2, W. Taylor 0, H. Schofield 1, G. Palmer 0, S. Sunter 7, A. Kilberly 2, L. Townend 7, G. Goodall (not out) 1, extras 15; total 66. Garforth Wesleyans—F. Siberry 3, F. Gent 6, H. Ward 6, H. Siberry 2, R. Brownridge (not out) 37, H. Goodall (not out) 11; extras, 4; total, 69.

Swillington and Colton v. Crossgates Wes. A.—At Swillington. Scores:—Crossgates Wes. A—H. Brook 2, H. Thompson 8, G. Willans 4, A. Brook 2, C. Holliday 0, J. Selman 0, E. C. White 2, J. Bridgeman 2, H. Rodgers 22; J. Stephenson 3, H. English (not out) 0, extras 33; total 26. Swillington and Colton—A. Dobson 5, J. E. Southwick (not out) 18, G. Earndale 1, J. Hunt 0, E. Gascoigne (not out) 0, extras 3; total (for 3 wkts.), 27.

Crossgates A v. Whitkirk A.—At Crossgates. Scores:—Crossgates—A. Wilkinson 6, Linley 1, Holliday 0, H. Glover 4, Whiting 1, Smith 0, Hague 2, W. Glover 2, A. Carlton, Waller 0, Turner (not out) 7, extras 10; total, 46. Whitkirk—A. Dobson 15, E. Sowell 2, H. Newell 3, W. Cuttle 4, Woodford (not out) 10, Webb 5, White (not out) 2, extras 5; total (for 5 wkts.), 47.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT CRICKET LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood Adults	12	8	3	1	17
Carlton	10	6	2	2	14
Oulton	11	6	4	1	13
Robin Hood	10	5	3	2	12
Alotfts United	10	4	3	3	11
Kippax	10	4	5	1	9
Rothwell	10	4	5	0	8
Woodlesford	12	3	9	0	6
Stanley Church	9	1	6	2	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood Adults A	12	9	3	0	18
Rothwell A	10	7	2	1	15
Stanley Church A	10	6	3	1	13
Carlton A	10	6	3	1	13
Kippax A	11	5	5	1	11
Woodlesford A	12	4	8	0	8
Oulton A	11	3	7	1	7
Alotfts Wesleyan	10	2	7	0	4
Robin Hood A	9	2	7	0	4

R. HOYLAND, Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

Oulton v. Alotfts. Messrs Tattersall and Booth.

Carlton v. Robin Hood. Messrs Briggs and Lamb.

Kippax v. Stanley Church. Messrs Earnshaw and Tate.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Kippax v. Carlton.—At Carlton. Scores:—Carlton—J. Brown, b Lowe, 15; J. Brooke, c Lowe, b Lloyd, 21; R. Butterworth, c Lambert, b Lowe, 17; E. Fozzard, b Lloyd, 16 W. Brown, b Lloyd, 5; H. Corns, b Bickerdike, 7; U. Sykes, run out, 12; L. Brown, lbw, b Lowe, 21; S. Lawrance, b Lloyd, 9; J. Illingworth, c Rider, b Lloyd, 13; W. Newton, not out, 4; extras 14; total, 153.

Kippax—B. Eddison, b Newton, 30; W. Lloyd, b Illingworth, 0; E. Bickerdike, b Newton, 5; H. Lambert, retired hurt, 0; A. Brooke, c Brown, b Illingworth, 4; T. Lowe, c Butterworth, b Illingworth, 8; E. Plows, b Brown, 16; T. Lloyd, b Brown, 8; T. Sewell, b Brown, 13; A. Varley, b Newton, 0; not out, 0; extras, 14; total, 86.

Oulton v. Outwood Friends.—At Outwood. Scores:—

Outwood—H. Butler, b Pickard, 0; R. Higgins, b Pickard, 1; P. Butler, b White, 1; A. Wright, c Lunn, b Pickard, 33; S. Knight, c Hoyland, b White, 0; J. Burbrick, b White, 2; R. Chappell, c Colley, b White, 4; P. Higgins, not out, 14; W. Hutchinson, b Pickard, 0; B. Walker, b Pickard, 4; W. Higgins, c White, b Pickard, 0; extras, 14; total, 86.

Outwood Friends—H. Dixon, b Walker, 10; P. Carr, not out, 5; J. W. Lunn, not out, 20; extras, 3; total (for 1 wkt.), 38.

Robin Hood v. Rothwell.—At Robin Hood. Scores:—

Rothwell—C. Tiffany, c Howden, b Holroyd, 11; J. Newton, c sub, b Frost, 1; W. Fox, b Frost, 1; H. Wood, b Holroyd, 5; J. Holroyd, b Holroyd, 1; A. Clark, b Frost, 0; H. Hemsworth, b Holroyd, 0; E. Tiffany, c and b Frost, 0; E. Moss, not out, 4; W. Bywaters, b Holroyd, 0; J. Bullough, H. Lane, b Frost, 0; H. Banks, b Frost, 6; extras, 1; total, 24.

Robin Hood—W. Frost, b Moss, 5; E. Smith, c Tiffany, b Bedford, 5; P. Wormald, b Bedford, 2; G. Giles, b Moss, 6; T. Holroyd, b Moss, 0; L. Bramham, not out, 1; H. Lamb, b Moss, 0; H. Howden, not out, 6; extras, 2; total (for 6 wkts.), 27.

Woodlesford v. Stanley.—At Woodlesford. Scores:—

Woodlesford—W. Hamer, c Bulmer, b Dickinson, 4; O. Wilkinson, c Bulmer, b Hargreaves, 13; A. Brittlebank, b Hargreaves, 0; E. Dobson, b Wilkinson, 6; E. W. Bennett, run out, 0; W. Brown, b Hargreaves, 1; E. Baxter, b Hargreaves, 42; A. Evans, b Dickinson, 7; T. Williams, b Hargreaves, 3; E. Hitchen, c Heaton, b Hargreaves, 8; E. Williams, not out, 1; extras, 14; total, 119.

Stanley—J. Holmes, c Williams, b Wilkinson, 0; C. Littlewood, c Brown, b Wilkinson, 7; P. Hargreaves, b Wilkinson, 0; J. Heaton, b Wilkinson, 18; L. Hargreaves, c and b Hitchen, 3; L. Cawthorne, b Wilkinson, 2; C. Dickinson, b Wilkinson, 6; H. Robinson, b Hitchen, 3; A. Davison, b Wilkinson, 18; J. Bulmer, run out, 0; J. Hartley not out, 2; extras, 4; total, 86.

Mile Handicap—1, T. Tuffey, Leeds St. Mark's, 170 yards start; 2, P. Nettleton, Leeds East View, 220 yards; 3, A. Cheshaman, Barwick, 146. Won easily by 30 yards; five yards separating second and third.

Rothwell A v. Robin Hood A.—At Rothwell. Scores:—Robin Hood A—E. Wormald 24, B. Bell 4, C. Fearnley 17, F. Wormald 3, Bramley 0, Walker 1, C. Featherstone 0, H. Fenton 3, J. Holroyd 2, B. Kirkby 0, Jim Walker 0, H. Blackburn (not out) 0, extras 8; total 62. Rothwell A—A. Tiffany (not out) 34, B. Fozzard (not out) 19, extras 10; total (for 0 wkts.), 65.

Oulton A v. Outwood Adults A.—At Oulton. Scores:—Oulton A—T. Jones 7, R. Whitworth 6, W. Miller 0, C. Butterick 22, J. Swift 8, E. Parkinson 5, F. Palfreeman 1, S. Lockwood (not out) 34; A. Nettleton 13, J. Brown 8, G. F. Higgins 5, extras 7; total 117. Outwood—H. Lees 0, E. Ackroyd 0, W. F. Jones 38, F. Welley 6, F. Tattersall 4, H. Whiteley 15, W. Ashton 6, W. Finnigan 0, J. Whiteley 0, C. Moss (not out) 16, A. Richardson 0, extras 4; total 114.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."

THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.

The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of

SPRING FOOT STYLES.

Please Come Round and Inspect our Display

ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.

Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse 31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.

A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

Telephone No. 1129.

RHODES & SONS,

COMMERCIAL AND . .

GENERAL PRINTERS,

2 AIRE STREET

LEEDS.

ALLERTON BYWATER COLLIERY CLUB SPORTS.

KIPPAX, SEACROFT, AND BARWICK SUCCESSES.

In bitterly cold and wild weather, the annual sports and gala promoted by the Allerton-Bywater Colliery Cricket, Football, and Athletic Club were held on the cricket field at Ledstone on Saturday, and, considering the weather, the attendance was quite as large as could be expected. A gale of wind blew right across the sprint track, and also greatly hampered the cyclists The ground is a good one, and possesses a cycle track of about a quarter of a mile, which would be greatly improved by a little more banking and attention to the surface, which was very low on Saturday. From various causes several riders had bad falls, and at one period the pavilion bore the aspect of an accident ward in a hospital. The management was of the go-as-you-please order, and the proceedings terminated long after schedule time. Results :—

Quarter-Mile Bicycle Handicap—Heat winners —I. Johnson, Clifton, 33 yards start; A Goodall, Allerton, 47; T. Sykes, Clifton, 44; W. P. Hoyland, Moorthorpe, 24; R. Davis, Wellington Wheelers, 40; W. H. Davies, Wellington Wheelers, 47; C. H. Hepton, South Kirkby, 38; J. Pugh, Stanley, 22; J. D. Halpin, Leeds Kirkgate, 33; W. H. Bowers, Pontefract, 45. Semi-final round—Heat 1—1, Goodall; 2, R. Davis; 3, Sykes. Won by five yards. Heat 2—1, Bowers; 2, Halpin. Won by a length. As fastest loser Sykes was entitled to compete in the final heat. Final heat—1, Goodall; 2, Bowers; 3, Halpin. A good race was won by a foot; a wheel only dividing second and third.

100 Yards Handicap—Heat winners—G. Waite, Bradford, 10½ yards start; P. Taylor, Seacroft, 7½; D. R. Bullough, Allerton, 8½; G. Crosland, Allerton, 15; T. Sykes, Clifton, 14; W. P. Hoyland, Moorthorpe, 24; R. Davis, Wellington Wheelers, 40; W. H. Davies, Wellington Wheelers, 47; C. H. Hepton, South Kirkby, 38; J. Pugh, Stanley, 22; J. D. Halpin, Leeds Kirkgate, 33; W. H. Bowers, Pontefract, 45. Semi-final round—Heat 1—1, Goodall; 2, R. Davis; 3, Sykes. Won by five yards. Heat 2—1, Bowers; 2, Halpin. Won by a length. As fastest loser Sykes was entitled to compete in the final heat. Final heat—1, Goodall; 2, Bowers; 3, Halpin. A good race was won by a foot; a wheel only dividing second and third.

Half-Mile Bicycle Handicap—Heat winners—B Illingworth, 440 yards start; P. Taylor, Seacroft, 7½; D. R. Bullough, Allerton, 8½; G. Crosland, Allerton, 15; J. Trest, York, 61; J. Andrews, York, 73; P. Gilston, South Leeds, 104. Final heat—1, Taylor; 2, Bullough; 3, Waite. Won by a yard; a yard and a half separating second and third.

Half-Mile Bicycle Handicap—Heat winners—B Burgin, Kippax Road, 85 yards start; A. Dixon, Featherstone, 54; J. D. Halpin, Leeds Kirkgate, 20; W. H. Besse, Bradford, 92; R. Davis, Wellington Wheelers, 75; W. H. Davis, Wellington Wheelers, 60; H. Farrer, Yorkshire Road Club, 105; G. H. Thornton, Wellington Wheelers, 80, and T. A. Wentworth, Clifton, 75. Second heat; W. H. Bowers, Pontefract, 88; F. A. Bamforth, Goole, 28. Semi-final round—Heat 1—1, Burgin; 2, Dixon; 3, R. Davis. Won by two lengths; four lengths between second and third. Heat 2—1, Bamforth; 2, W.

SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
MILLER'S NORTH OF LEEDS
FURNITURE CARPETS LINOLEUM
SEND FOR OUR CATALOGUE

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE DOUBLE CHANCE.

By J. S. FLETCHER

Author of, "The Threshing Floor," "When Charles I. Was King," "Daniel Quayne," "The Pinfield," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF OPENING CHAPTERS: Clinton Mansersley had been accused and convicted of forgery by his uncle, Sir Robert Mansersley. He had protested his innocence, but the evidence was strong against him. Now, when sentence was virtually expired, he with a term of imprisonment had nearly expired, he sends a letter from Dartmoor. Currently he sends a letter from Dartmoor. Currently he sends a letter to Sir Robert's daughter, Phillipa, whom You know the terrible stain on our record here? he never to be makes known his escape, but again protests his innocence. Phillipa never believed him guilty, but now the wild note of his escape alarms her, and she makes known its contents to a sturdy miner, Jim Britten, Clinton's foster-brother. Jim feels sure that Clinton will come straight to him, and his expectations are fulfilled the same night. Unknown to either, the meeting is witnessed by a man, who steals silently away into the darkness.

CHAPTER III.

Sir Robert Mansersley, seventeenth of his line in the proud order of the Baronetage, had been a poor man until comparatively late in his life, and he was glad, for the sake of his family, to develop the enormous mineral wealth which lay all around him. He would have liked to preserve some of the old simplicity and dignity of life in the immediate vicinity of the Castle, but all that was left of old times was the Castle itself, which was really an old house, picturesque and romantic enough now that Time had mellowed it, that had been built out of the ruins of the ancient fortress a hundred years after the latter had been destroyed. Within its time-mellowed chambers Sir Robert found his great recreation. The responsibilities of the colliery had transformed him into a business man, because he was a conscientious man, and he made a point of attending at his offices with punctuality and assiduity; but he was never so happy as when under his own roof-tree and by his own hearth, talking to his friends or showing them some of his treasures.

On the evening of the day following Phillipa Mansersley's visit to the checkweighman's cottage on the opposite side of the valley three people sat round the hearth in Sir Robert's study examining an old Roman lamp which he had just taken from a cabinet. Sir Robert himself sat in a capacious chair, his white head, which stood a small table supporting a shaded lamp, the light of which fell on his finely-chiselled features, on his wavy hair and moustache, his long, shapely fingers moving lovingly about the curio as he explained some of its peculiarities and beauties to his daughter and his guest. Phillipa, prettier than ever in her dinner dress, hung over the back of the chair; the guest stood before them on the hearthrug. And a close observer would have seen that while the master of the house bent his head to the small lamp, Mr. Mark Quinton was much more interested in its owner's daughter.

The manager of Mansersley Colliery was a tall, well-built man of apparently thirty years of age, who had much of the military man in his appearance, in his manner, in some gestures, the quick flash of his eye—above everything, in the square, determined jaw. It required little knowledge of human nature to see that Mark Quinton was a born martinet—to see that he was accustomed and to have his own way. If his stern life issued an order, it was obeyed. If his stern life issued an order, and his steel-blue eyes emphasised it, most men under him hastened to carry it out with energy. But the stern lips were tender enough, and the keen eyes soft enough, when ever Miss Phillipa Mansersley happened to be near, and some people were beginning to notice the fact.

"And I believe there is no other specimen of this particular date, or of this particular sort, with the exception of one in the British Museum in London," said Sir Robert, lovingly handling his Roman lamp. "A somewhat similar lamp was unearthed some years ago, but it is not at all of the date or class of this—not at all!"

"Wherefore Mansersley Castle and its owners can boast themselves of being in possession of something which would be envied even by the Museum itself, I cannot imagine, unless it were—" said Phillipa, putting her father's thought into words, "unless it were that fireside head. "You ought to be flattered at the attention and the acquaintance of such a connoisseur as Mr. Quinton. And now I must leave you gentlemen to entertain yourselves, for I am going out—I am going to the village at this hour!" exclaimed Sir Robert.

"Out, my dear, at this hour?" exclaimed Sir Robert. "Excuse me, why—"

"Only for a while, papa, and it is on an errand of mercy—one of my old women." said Phillipa. "I shall be home again before you know I am gone."

"I sincerely hope, my dear, that the object of your visit does not reside in the miners' village?" said Sir Robert.

"I go with you wherever it is, Miss Mansersley!" said Quinton.

"It is rather late, and though—" she said.

"Thanks, very, really," she said. "Ann Mary, you know, goes with me everywhere. I shall see you on my return, Mr. Quinton." She gave him a light nod, and left the room.

Sir Robert rose from his chair. "Come, Mr. Quinton, and let me remind me art, eh?" he said. "I have some Roman coins sent to me the other day. I'll show them to you, and I'll in another room. Sit down, sir, and I'll fetch them. Light another cigar, do!"

The old Baronet went out of the room, and the manager walked to a side-table to take a cigar from an open case; in passing another small table on his way, he saw a card lying in the mere scrap of card, crumpled and dirty—and before he could prevent it, he had seen it and read the name on it: "Herrmit's Cell—to-night—nine-thirty."

He chose a cigar, went back to the hearth, and stood there wondering what such a mysterious sentence meant. The door opened and Phillipa returned in her walking dress. She looked flurried, and a little upset.

"All alone, Mr. Quinton? I've exclaimed.

"Your father is fetching some coins, Miss Mansersley," he answered.

"Poor you!" she said. "I—I left something here. I am so careless in leaving things about. I—oh, here it is—an address."

Before Quinton had realised the situation she had snatched up the card he had unwittingly seen, and with a smiling nod had again quitted the room.

When Sir Robert came sauntering back with a tray of coins, some five minutes later, Quinton had let his cigar die out, and was standing very erect and set of face before the old Baronet's desk.

"Now, these coins, Quinton," began Sir Robert, "are, I believe—"

Quinton drew his attention with a short cough. "Sir Robert," he said.

The elder man glanced at him, set down the tray of coins, and quietly took his own chair. "Go on, Quinton," he said, not unkindly. "I had an idea that you wanted to speak to me."

"Yes," said Quinton—"yes. The fact is, I think I ought to go away. I am not the sort of man to keep about the bush, especially with you, and—I am in love with your daughter."

The old man nodded his head several times. "Aye," he said, "so I thought, Quinton—so I thought. Well, I see no harm in that. Your family is of equal rank with mine, and I have the greatest opinion of you in every way. I think—"

"Give her to you?" interposed Sir Robert, with a smile. "Aye, very likely I would. But, Quinton, I fear it's no use. Sit down. You know the terrible stain on our record here? Quinton bowed his head without speaking. "They were always fond of each other as boy and girl," continued Sir Robert; "and, despite all that has happened, I believe they still care for that graceless young scoundrel, Quinton, I tremble to think of what may happen when he comes back to us!"

Quinton sat in silence for some time. At last he looked the old man earnestly in the face. "Sir Robert," he said, "do you really believe your nephew was guilty?"

Sir Robert passed his hand over his forehead. "I wish I could think else!" he answered. "But—I can't!"

Quinton rose. "I'll go now," he said, "You understand. And you'll let me back to you some other time, sir?"

Sir Robert passed the hand which the old man had pressed the day before over his forehead. He pressed the hand, leaving the study. Quinton shook him, and, leaving the study, got his hat and coat and let himself out by a side door into the grounds. He wanted to be alone—wanted to think.

"I wish I could think else!" he muttered. "Still cares for that graceless young scoundrel!" he said, bitterly.

If that were true, what hope was there for him!

CHAPTER IV.

The place which Clinton Mansersley had selected as a suitable rendezvous was one well known to Phillipa and himself; it was a lonely cave, which centuries earlier had been transformed into a rude oratory by a hermit, whose ghost was said to haunt it, and Clinton had accordingly chosen it for one of the most unlikely places wherein to meet his cousin.

Phillipa gained the rendezvous by a roundabout way. As she reached it a figure rose from a dark recess.

"Phillipa!"

"Clinton!"

For a moment she let him take her in his arms and kiss her; for a moment she recollected the days of boy-and-girl love welled up strongly within her; for a moment she had declined to remember anything but that he had suffered cruelly, and that she had the innocent-looking face upon which the sternest to take him to her bosom and comfort him. But then the danger of his situation, the perplexity of the future, rose up before her, and steadied her nerves—she knew that she was the support of the two, and that all light was to come out of all this darkness, if any light was to come out of it.

"Clinton, you must be brave!" she said. "Listen, while I explain the danger of his situation, cannot be out long, and we must say what we have to say quickly. I think we must be hard or have to say quickly. I think we must be hard or cold if I seem practical—it is only because I am so anxious, so terribly anxious, to think what can be done. Why, Clinton, have you done this?"

"Done it, Phillipa—got away? Wouldn't any man have got away if he'd had the chance?" he replied, bitterly. "It's all very well for you and for Jim Britten to say 'Why,' did you do it?' You were neither of you in my place."

"But you had only a few months to wait, Clinton," she urged. "Eight months at the most—I kept a careful count, Clinton—only most—I kept a careful count, Clinton—only eight months—eight eternities of torture!," he exclaimed, between his teeth. "It's no use, Phillipa. I'm out, thank Heaven, and out I'll stop."

"Who helped you—who managed it?" she asked.

"A Warrinder engineer it," he answered, curtly.

"Warrinder! That man? Oh, Clinton!" exclaimed Phillipa, a suppressed exclamation.

"There you are!" he said, testily. "Warrinder's the one man in the world that has tried to help me, anyhow!"

"That's unjust, Clinton, and it's not true," she said. "I had hoped that when you were more to do with your old cousin Phillipa," she added, "you'd never have anything more of men, and I have sometimes wondered whether some of them were not concerned in the affair that brought you to ruin—I have, indeed!"

Clinton uttered a loud snort of disdain. "Rot, rot, Phillipa! The mere idea!" he exclaimed. "Hang it all, we may have been a lot of young asses as regards horses and cards, but we weren't common thieves. No, the real culprits, the scoundrels for whom I've suffered, must be looked for elsewhere at home than that, my dear!"

"But where, Clinton, and how?" she asked.

"That's more for you than for me," he said, resolutely. "And that's why I've got to help me and will see him."

"I will see him quietly and quietly—it will be to him quite calmly and quietly—it will be the chance of a lifetime for you. I'll go to him for the first time I have ever had the chance in this affair in the direction of the Hermit's Cell, plunging at Sir Robert connected me in this affair because of the past. It was the old story of the dog with the bad name. And what's more, I'll go to him for you, Phillipa!"

"And Phillipa, with all her faith in her father, did know it, and she made no direct answer. "And you know her sympathy—she herself had never doubted his innocence.

"I'll keep my eye—my father, Clinton, what after that?" she asked.

"I'm off to Canada," he answered. "Warrinder is going to drive me to Liverpool in his motor—he's hagging about here—and I've got a full kit waiting for me there, and plenty of money. And, Phil, when I've got fairly settled down there in Canada I want you to come out to me. After all I've gone through I want you to come out to me. After all I've gone through you won't leave me alone there, will you, Phil?"

Phillipa's strong will came to the occasion, and turned the tide for her girlhood's sweetheart into the paths of common sense. She took a firm grasp of Clinton's hands.

"Clinton," she said, "we have always been friends since we were children—we have loved each other since we were children. I am not conscious of any change in myself. I am not conscious of any change in myself. I am not conscious of any change in myself

SHOW AT TADCASTER.

AGRICULTURAL AND HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITS

ALD. E. C. BROOKSBANK AND "POLITICAL PEOPLE."

THE SPORTS

The annual agricultural and horticultural show was held at Tadcaster on Wednesday, and a sum of £370 was offered in prizes. The society is in a very healthy condition, and it is well-supported by the people of the district. Among those who gave special prizes were:—Lord Hawke, Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., the members of the Bramham Moor Hunt, Mr S. Smith, Mr W F Walles-Fairbairn, Mr C B Lamb, J.P., Mr J H. Ingleby, J.P., and Mr W. Riley-Smith. The stock was also shown by some of the most prominent exhibitors of the season, and many animals which have been doing well in the show ring during the present year were shown. Exhibitors of heavy horses included Messrs Frank Myers, W. Lofthouse, E. T. Parker, A. T. F. Young, and J. W. and A. Pollard, and among the lighter horses Messrs R. Black, York, W. Lofthouse, W. Severs, G. Gunter, T. and H. Ward, H. Easterby, L. Snowden and Sons, and H. Watson, Newton Kyme. The latter, however, has unfortunately been deprived of one of the best horses which was ever in his stable in Newton Ruby, the Olympia winner of this year. She appeared at the Selby Show a few weeks ago, but soon afterwards she became very ill and died on Sunday last. She was a hackney of the pure type, and in addition to her death being a very serious loss to Mr Watson, it is also a loss to the breed in this country. Some idea of her value may be obtained from the fact that after the London show Mr Watson refused an offer of £700 for her.

The total entries compared very favourably with previous years, and showed an increase on last year. The comparative figures are as follows:—

	1914	1913	1912	1911	1910
Horses	180	171	149	205	217
Poultry, etc.	261	267	239	238	257
Horticulture	129	112	134	153	134
	570	552	522	596	608

The judges were:—Cattle, sheep, and pigs—Mr J. Davison, Lund Court, Nawton, S.O.; and Mr J. Kendrew, Oulston Hall, Easingwold. Agricultural horses—Mr J. Davison, Lund Court, Nawton, S.O.; and Mr J. Kendrew, Oulston Hall, Easingwold. Hackney and hunter classes —Mr J. C. Wilmot-Smith, the Hall, Boroughbridge; and Mr H. P. Webster, Abbey Farm, Yeddingham, West Hesleton. Polo ponies—Mr J. C. Wilmot-Smith, the Hall, Boroughbridge; and Mr W. Riley-Smith, Toulston, Tadcaster, Awards:—

HORSES

Agricultural—Colt foaled in 1914—1, J. W. and A. Pollard, Moor Allerton; 2, G. Lax, Cowthorpe; Filly, ditto—1, T. Harrison, Kirkby Overblow; 2, W. Lofthouse, Bishopthorpe; 3, S. Elvidge, Headley Hall. Gelding, colt or filly, foaled in 1913—1, E. T. Parker, Ledsham. Gelding or filly foaled in 1912—1, E. T. Parker; 2, J. J. Slater, Tadcaster; 3, T. W. Watson, Wighill. Ditto, 1911—1, W. Lofthouse; 2, J. Robinson, Bilton; 3, T. B. Watson, Bowbridge. Pair of horses (Mr W. Riley-Smith's prize)—1 and 2, R. Machin, Whixley; 3, C. Gypson, Grimston Grange. Brood mare and foal (Bramham Moor Hunt prize)—1, J. W. and A. Pollard; 2, T. Harrison; 3, W. Cass, Tadcaster. Cart mare and foal (Mr S. Smith's prize)—1, G. Lax; 2, T. Harrison; 3, W. Cass. Gelding or mare (Mr G. R. Lane Fox's prize)—1, H. Watson, Newton Kyme; 2, E. T. Parker; 3, J. Robinson, Bilton.

Hackney or Roadster—Gelding or filly, 4 or 5 years old—1, R. Black, York; 2, W. Johnson, Cawthorpe.

Hunters.—Brood mare (Mr W. F. Walles-Fairbairn's prize)—1 and 2, W. Lofthouse; 3, W. Severs, Wilstrop Hall. Foal (Mr W. F. Walles-Fairbairn's prize)—1, W. Lofthouse; 2, W. Severs. Colt or filly foaled in 1914—1, T. A. Hudson, Pannal; 2, W. Severs; 3, W. Lofthouse. Gelding, colt or filly foaled in 1913—1 and 2, W. Lofthouse. Gelding or filly foaled in 1912—1, W. Lofthouse. Ditto, 1911—1, T. and H. Ward, Harrogate; 2, S. Foxton, Escrick; 3, W. Lofthouse. Brood mare, having had a living foal in 1914—1, T. A. Hudson; 2, H. Easterby, Pilmoor; 3, W. Severs. Hunter, any age—1, L. Snowden and Son, Starbeck; 2, Mrs Kay, Copmanthorpe. Mare or gelding (the President's prize)—1, R. Renton, Ripon; 2, H. Grainger, Clifford; 3, T. and H. Ward.

Ponies, Riding and Driving Classes—Pony not exceeding 13 hands—1, H. Gilding, Haxey; 2, Master Leetham, York. Gelding or mare, any age, to be ridden—1, T. Throup, Cottingham; 2, J. and R. McCall, Kilsyth, N.B.; 3, H. Watson. Ditto driven—1, J. and R. McCall; 2, T. Throup; 3, E. Morris, Hundel. Gelding or mare (local harness class)—1, H. Watson; 2, H Woodruffe, Bramham; 3, W. Southern, Tadcaster. Polo pony (Mr W. Riley-Smith's prize)—1, H. Pugg, Tadcaster; 2, H. Sutton and Son, Boston Spa; 3, R. St. M. Delius, Leeds. Lady's hack, not exceeding 15.3 hh.—1, Mrs Kay; 2, L. Snowden and Son. Gelding or mare, driven—1, H. Gilding; 2, J. Turton, Leeds.

Leaping.—Jumper, open to all comers—1, T. and H. Ward. Jumper, that has never won a prize—1, Welburn Bros., Fryston; 2, G. Sykes, Church Fenton; 3, W. Storey, Aberford.

CATTLE

Dairy cow, any breed, in calf or milk—1, C. Parker, Pontefract; 2, J. F. Archbold, Stanks; 3, J. W. Watson, Wighill. Heifer for dairy purposes, any breed, in calf or milk, not to exceed 2½ years old—1, F. Holliday, Tadcaster; 2, T. B. Watson, Tadcaster. Fat horned Irish bullock—1, M. Thomlinson; 2, J. N. Atkinson, Towlerith; 3, L. Sumpson, Newton Kyme. Fat heifer, any breed—1, E. Jackson, Catterton; 2, W. R. Weddell, Hornington. Fat beast—1 and 2, F Lockwood, Thornton-le-Clay; 3, V Greaves, Bossingthorpe. Pair of home-bred bullocks or heifers, under 2 years old—1, C. C. Scholefield, Tadcaster; 2, L. Sampson.

SHEEP

Three fat shearling sheep—1, G. Lax, Cowthorpe; 2, C. Gypson, Grimston Grange. Five store lambs—1, F. Jackson, Healaugh Grange; 2, S. Elvidge, Headley Hall.

PIGS.

Pig, any breed, under 1 year old—1, A. Hodgson, Wetherby; 2, W. Maclean, Tadcaster.

EGGS.

White eggs—1, F. Jagger, Baildon. Brown eggs—1, F. Jagger; 2, J. Broodbent, Leeds; 3, R. Peckitt, Osgodby.

POULTRY

Duck or drake, any variety—1, J. Y. Wheatley, Appleton Roebuck; 2, R. Wetherall, Angram; 3, Miss Rokeby, Bilbrough. White Wyandotte, cock or hen—1, 2, and 3, J. Townend and Son, Pontefract. Any other variety Wyandotte, ditto—1 and 2, T. Lockwood, Pateley Bridge; 3, Mrs W. R. Abbey, Hessay. Game cock or hen, any variety—1, 2, and 3, W. Myers, Ossett. Wyandotte, any variety, cockerel, hatched 1914—1 and 2, J. Townend and Son; 3, B. Leggott, Normanby. Ditto pullet—1 and 3, J. Townend and Son; 2, T. Lockwood. Rhode Island red cock—1, Mrs Colbeck, Wakefield; 2, F. Uttley, Mytholmroyd; 3, Mrs W. R. Abbey. Ditto hen—1, Mrs Colbeck; 2, and 3, Mrs C. A. Warwick, Boston Spa. Leghorn cock or hen, any variety—1, 2 and 3, G. H. Ambler, Church Fenton. Minorca ditto—1 and 2, H. Wilson, Halifax; 3, A. Holt, Church Fenton. Orpington ditto—1, W. Myers; 2, Mrs Merrin, Ripon; 3, T. Lockwood. Any other variety cock or hen—1 and 3, J. Y. Wheatley; 2, F. Jagger. Couple of table fowls—1, T. Lockwood; 2, F. Jagger; 3, J. W. Whitehead, Tadcaster. Selling class—1, Mrs Merrin; 2, J. Townend and Son; 3, Master G. Ambler, Church Fenton. Bantam cock, any variety—1, J. F. Entwistle, Wakefield; 2, Mrs W. H. Schofield, Tadcaster; 3, White Bros., Thirsk. Ditto hen—1 and 3, J. F. Entwistle; 2, W. Myers. Novice class—1, A. Cairns, Church Fenton; 2, A. Holt; 3, H. Gray, Great Ouseburn.

PIGEONS

Flying homer, any colour, cock or hen (seven miles radius)—1, Wood Bros., Tadcaster; 2, H Harland, Bramham; 3, L. Backhouse, Tadcaster. Ditto (open)—1, W. H. Morris, Beverley; 2, Horn Bros., Starbeck; 3, F. Pounder, Pateley Bridge. Ditto, rung 1914—1, H. and T. K. Child, Dewsbury; 2, T. Walton, Silsden; 3, F. Pounder. Any other variety not mentioned, cock —1, H. and T. K. Child; 2, Hardcastle and Kilson, Easingwold; 3, H. Harland. Ditto, hen —1, Hardcastle and Kilson; 2, S. Williams, Ilkley; 3, H. and T. K. Child. Selling class—1, H. Harland; 2, T. Walton; 3, H. and T. K. Child.

CATS AND RABBITS.

English, under 6 months—1, E. Lister, Wakefield; 2, J. Aconley, Huddersfield; 3, Crawshaw and Son, Liversidge. Dutch, any colour, over 6 months—1, J. Aconley; 2, W. Stead, York; 3, J. S. West, Burnby. Ditto, under 6 months—1, Acomb, York; 2, T. Harrison, York; 3, G. Whiting Horsforth. Any variety except lops—1, W. Dale, York; 2, J. S. West; 3, Mrs W. E. Cutter, Harrogate. Ditto, except English or Dutch—1, Mrs W. E. Cutter; 2, W. Stead; 3, G. Easby, York. Silvers—1, J. Aconley; 2, and 3, G. Eeelby. Black or blue and tan—1, H. Fewery, York; 2, A. G. Phillips, Skipton-in-Craven; 3, H. Richardson, York. Selling class —1, H. P. Carrier, Nottingham; 2, Dykes and Wood, Oulston Hall, Easingwold. Novice class—1, W. Mountain, Harrogate; 2, B. Cheesborough, Ripon; 3, W E Mortimer, Toadsmoor, Kitten, any variety, under 6 months—1, Miss Hickman, Leeds; 2, P. Williamson, Crook; 3, Miss Mulcaster, Seaton.

HORTICULTURAL

Group of plants arranged for effect—1, H. P. Clinch; 2, W. Sykes. Table plants—1, H. P. Clinch, 21; H Bramer; 3, W Riley-Smith, Ampleforth; 2, Blair; 2, G. Jackson. Cut blooms —1, F. Sykes; 2, W. Riley-Smith. Begonias—1, C. B. Lamb; 2, F. Sykes. First prizes for sweet peas exhibits were won by—H. Lamberth, F. Sykes, R. Bland, and J. W. Jefferson; and seconds by R. Grimston and G. Metcalf. White grapes—1, W. Riley-Smith; 2, W. F. Walles-Fairbairn. Black grapes—1, W. Riley-Smith; 2, T Hague. Bread—1, Mrs Thompson; 2, Mrs Ambler. Batter—1, Mrs Midgley; 2, Mrs Howden. Honey—1, J. T. Stephenson; 2, F. Bailey. Sections of honey—1, Mrs Young; 2, R. Bellerby.

THE LUNCHEON

There was a large crowd at the luncheon, and Mr C. B. Lamb, President of the Society, presided. Amongst those present were Alderman E. C. Brooksbank, Mr W. F. Walles-Fairbairn, Mr C. K. Blackett, and many others.

The toast of "The President" was submitted by Mr W. F. Walles-Fairbairn, and responded to by Mr Lamb.

Alderman Brooksbank proposed the toast of "Success to Agriculture and to the Tadcaster Society." He was very glad to think that the Tadcaster Show was flourishing. This was true as regarded all the sections, and as regarded the horticultural section, he would suggest to the committee that by another year they should include a class for bottled fruit. The preserving of fruit was becoming a great industry. He said that although he had been connected with agriculture for many years, he had never seen the crops so good as they were at the present time. He had recently been in Berwickshire and Haddingtonshire, which were considered two of the best agricultural counties, but the crops of Yorkshire were far ahead of those in the north. There were some people who thought that a great deal of good could be done for agriculture by the Imperial Parliament, but his own impression was that they did not want interference. All they wanted was good weather and hard work. (Hear, hear). He was quite sure agriculture in the district would be a great deal more prosperous if it was not for the unrest following on suggestions made by certain political people as to the future of agriculture. If they were left to work out their own salvation it would be better for all classes. (Hear, hear). What he was afraid of was that people would be led away by nostrums which would never bring the results promised. In his opinion there would be nothing more disastrous to agriculture than the institution of the minimum wage, or the establishment of land courts. Any effort to put the relation of farmer, landlord, and labourer on a purely commercial basis would do nothing but harm.

Mr Lamb responded, and endorsed all that the proposer had said. All they wanted was to be left alone, and it would be better for all concerned.

In responding to the toast of "The judges," proposed by Mr C. K. Blackett, Mr Wilmot-Smith congratulated the society on their splendid show of hunters.

THE SPORTS

Sports were held in the evening, and the results were:—

One Mile Bicycle Race—Heat winners—T. Marsh, Wetherby (145 yards); G Scarr, Towton (180); W. Goodyear, Marston (130); P. Smith, Wingate Hill (170). Final—1, W. Goodyear; 2, T. Marsh; 3, G. Scarr.

100 Yards Flat Race, Handicap—Heat winners—E. Surdey, York (5); L. Green, York (5); A. Brackenbury, York (4); J. Darcey, Ulleskelf (9); C. Hill, Tadcaster (6); J. J. Kennedy, Beamham (6); R. Birdsall, Tadcaster (4); T. Tristram, Ulleskelf (6). Final—1, J. Kennedy; 2, L. Green; 3, C. Hill.

Variety Race (horse or pony)—1, C. Welburn, South Milford; 2, Welburn Bros., Fryston.

Half-mile Bicycle Race—Heat winners—P. Smith, Wingate Hill (50); T. Potter, Newton Kyme (55); W. Goodyear, Marston (40); T. Marsh, Wetherby (50). Final—1, W. Goodyear; 2, P. Smith; 3, T. Marsh.

440 Yards Flat Race, Handicap—Heat winners —H. Towriss, Wetherby (12); J. Darcey, Ulleskelf (28); C. Hill, Toulston (15); H. Brackenbury, York (20). Final—1, H. Towriss; 2, H. Brackenbury; 3, J. Darcey.

Musical Chairs on Cycles—1, J. Mortimer, Garforth; 2, C. Lawn, Saxton; 3, R. Ambler, Tadcaster.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TADCASTER COUNTY COUNCILLOR AND KEENNESS.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—The letter in your paper last week from "Hopeful" spoke the feelings of many employed at the Tadcaster Brewery, and especially in the offices.

His remarks about the wages are quite true, and it is quite time there was some improvement. Speaking as one who has been employed in the offices since leaving school, I can assure you that many of the young men could not live if they were not at home. It would be impossible to pay 14s. or so per week for lodgings, as they are lucky if they receive that by the time they reach 20 or 21 years of age.

As for promotion, it is simply a question of influence or luck, ability rarely being considered. —Yours, etc.,

A YOUNG HOPEFUL.

Sir,—I congratulate "Hopeful" upon his splendid letter in last week's "Courier." As one of the "long-suffering and patient" mortals he alludes to, and having been with the firm a few years, I can endorse most of his remarks. To reach a salary of 30s. per week one has to travel by easy stages, very easy indeed; in fact, when one manages 25s., after about 5 or 6 years' hard and faithful service, one begins to lose hope of ever getting much farther, but if one continues "hopeful," industrious, and patient, one might manage to reach 30s. per week in time. Then one saves up and gets married and produces some more cheap labour.

As I am unused to writing to the Press, I hope you will excuse this poor attempt and allow me to sign myself.—Yours, etc.,

HOPELESS.

THE OTTER WORRY.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—It is refreshing to read Mr George Guest's outspoken denunciation of otter hunting, and blood sports generally.

Would that all beadmasters shared his views, and acted on them.

A relative who lived to advanced age used constantly to say that his greatest regret in life was the cruelty of which he had been guilty as a boy at Eton, where sporting instinct was encouraged to the utmost. To a humane man what can be sadder than to recall heartless cruelties perpetrated in youth?

It is impossible to over estimate the value of early training on humane lines, and the headmaster who has courage to stamp out cruelty is worthy of all praise.—Yours, etc.,

E. L. DAUBENY.

10, Pittville Lawn, Cheltenham, July 28th, 1914

BOWLING ASSOCIATION.

League Table, including Saturday, July 25th.

	P.	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Crossgates	9	5	4	1422	1485	2
Crossgates Recreation	10	5	5	1577	1767	4
Garforth	10	6	4	1731	1523	8
Garforth Cons.	9	5	4	1516	1558	4
Garforth W.M.	9	6	3	1681	1276	6
Halton	8	5	3	1367	1073	2
Halton Travellers	10	1	9	1391	1908	—
Tadcaster	11	2	9	1812	1750	6

WALTER GREEN, Hon. Sec.

A match between Barkston Ash Amateur Bowling Association and Airedale Association will be played on Tuesday at Horsforth Black Bull green at 2.45 p.m. Barkston Ash will be represented by F. Hutchinson (President), W. Green (hon. sec.), T. Simpson (vice-president), H. Thomas (Halton), F. Vince (Halton), A. Caine (Halton), G. Lowell (Halton), A. Cockrem (Garforth W.M.), G. Hill (Garforth, W.M.), A. Reed (Garforth W.M.), J. P. Cowl (Crossgates Rec.), J. Fisher (Crossgates Rec.), J. Firth (Crossgates), F. Hardcastle (Crossgates), I. Semper (Crossgates), F. Jubb (Crossgates), J. Barker (Garforth Cons.), A. W. Westerman (Tadcaster), A. Collins (Tadcaster); reserves, W. Morris (Garforth W.M.), G. Freeman (Garforth W.M.), and H. Dransfield (Garforth Cons.).

Barkston Ash Amateur Bowling Association will play Wakefield and District Association on Wednesday, August 19th, at Normanton. Barkston Ash will be represented by:—F. Hutchinson (President), W. Green (hon. sec.), T. Simpson (vice-president), H. Thomas (Halton), F. Vince (Halton), A. Caine (Halton), T. Clarkson (Halton), R. Morris (Halton), A. W. Westerman (Tadcaster), A. Collins (Tadcaster), C. Moverley (Tadcaster), E. Walker (Garforth), J. Firth (Crossgates), I. Semper (Crossgates), F. Jubb (Crossgates), W. Holdsworth (Crossgates), J. Barker (Garforth Cons.), J. P. Cowl (Crossgates Rec.), J. Fisher (Crossgates Rec.), A. Cockrem (Garforth W.M.), G. Hill (Garforth W.M.), and J. Whitley (Garforth W.M.).

ESTABLISHED 1871.

Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary

LIMITED.

71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS

MR. THOS. ISON,

OCULIST and AURIST.

THIS INSTITUTION WAS ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they may, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in charitable institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character, without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Corrects or other mechanical or painful appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances and in isolated positions can have the advantage of Mr ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure or benefit to the patient.

Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7 On Alternate Saturdays, August 8th and 22nd. Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.

TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION. ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s. SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.

Special Notice.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291. CROSSGATES 6.

DOBSON & CO.,

— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —

Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,

SEACROFT, AND

70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.

Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.

PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

EXCITING COLLIERY STORY!

DO NOT MISS THE OPENING

CHAPTERS OF

"The Double Chance"

By J. S. FLETCHER, the well-known Novelist,

IN THE

"Rothwell Courier and Times"

THIS WEEK. THIS WEEK.

BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money : Boot Store, :

58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.

Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

THE CHALLENGE!

Never Beaten.

BRAITHWAITE'S

"The Firm with a Reputation."

ARE NOW MAKING A

SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS

In all the LATEST STYLES, for

SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.

LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.

5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared

FRED BARBER,

Pork Butcher,

11. CALL LANE, LEEDS.

TEL. 1604.

A MOORTOWN MAN'S OFFENCE.

A fine of £3 to include costs was imposed at Leeds Police Court yesterday afternoon on Mr Ralph William Ernest Beckett, son of Lord Grimthorpe, of Stonyhurst House, Shadwell Lane, Moortown, for exceeding the speed limit while motoring in Chapeltown Road.

A second charge of failing to produce his driving licence was not proceeded with.

Superintendent Blakey said that Mr Beckett was motoring in Chapeltown Road on July 22nd, when he was timed and found to be driving at thirty miles an hour. When stopped defendant said he had left his licence at home.

Furniture Delivered

ON PAYMENT OF 5/-

In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.

T. COATES,

House Furnisher and Manufacturer,

130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST

LEEDS.

N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.

NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

BEST & BOOTH

Tailors & Costumiers,

119, KIRKGATE,

— AND —

143, BRIGGATE

(Corner of Market Street), :: LEEDS.

Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.

Look Out for B. & B.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Huddersfield: " 1609.

Watchmaker to the Admiralty.

William GREENWOOD,

Watchmaker and Jeweller,

92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

SPECIALITIES:—

DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.

W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.

Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.

— AND AT —

3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

SMART & SON,

3 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.

SPECIAL LINE OF

TOYS. — DOLLS. — GAMES.

Week-end Hampers, Suit Cases and Basket Ware.

ALL THE LATEST LINES.

For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,

SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

Annual Clearance Sale.

WATCH OUR WINDOWS DAILY FOR BARGAINS IN

Costumes, Dresses, Skirts, Raincoats, Blouses.

SMITH & PETTY,

MANTLE WAREHOUSE,

44, Lowerhead Row (3 Doors from Briggate,) LEEDS

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.

96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).

DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.

3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.

3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.

PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.

Telephone No. 253

JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Alex Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier & Times"
— IS THE —
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 84— [Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper] NEW SERIES. SATURDAY, AUGUST 8 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
LIGHTNING PROGRAMME.
THE STAGE ALWAYS OCCUPIED.
MONDAY, AUGUST 10th, 1914.
Eustace Gray presents a Musical Slumber in Seven Nightmares, entitled—
"DORA'S DOZE."
Original London Cast:—Oscar Schwarz (from the London Opera House), Harry Ray (from the Shaftesbury Theatre, London, W.), Connie Emerald (The Dresden Doll Soubrette), Jack Edge (a Quaint Fun Maker), Joe Mott (Australia's Favourite Comedian), Dave O'Toole (The Popular Low Comedian), Marie Leonard, Millie Wardé, Jennie Lynn (Comediennes), and Full Chorus of Forty Beauties.
AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.
GEORGE TAWDE & EVA McROBERTS.
EDNA LYALL.
The Yorkshire Nightingale.
TWO PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY.
AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.
EVERY ITEM A SPECIAL FEATURE.
NO WAITS.
Booking Office open at Theatre, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily for advance booking of Boxes, Orchestra Stalls, and Grand Circle.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
OSWALD WILLIAMS' MAGICAL REVUE
FOUR ITS BIG JOSS.
THE ADRAS.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
ORPHEUS.
REVUE REVELS.
AUSTIN RUDD.
DUTCH DALY
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 2s., 6d., and 4d.

QUEEN'S THEATRE, LEEDS.
6.50 TWICE NIGHTLY. 9.
MATINEE EVERY MONDAY AT 2.30.
NEXT WEEK.
The Realistic Drama
"THE WOMAN WHO ATONED."
Thursday and Friday only—
"THE MORMON'S WIFE."

CITY VARIETIES, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY 7 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, AUGUST 10th, 1914.
FRANK F. STREET
LEO FIELDS.
FOUR DANCISTOS.
BIOSCOPE.
ETHEL HRAILSFORD.
HENGLER BROS.
TINY & MITE.
Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Gent's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate.
Repairs of all Kinds a Specialty.

Established 1868 SPARKLING HOSPERRIDE TRADE MARK
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
Obtainable from HOTELS RESTAURANTS & DEALERS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd LEEDS.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Having regard to the limited support accorded, it is thought the Garforth Medical Charities Committee would be well advised to consider the question of dropping the carnival and substituting some other means of raising money for the charities. Unless in the large centres of population, the carnival is played out, and one place after another has been compelled to give it up. It is really disheartening work. In one case I know an expenditure of nearly £50 on "attractions" brought a five-pound note to the coffers, and the committee, who had given their time and labour generously, were so disgusted that they would have no more of it. The public would not turn out in sufficient numbers to make the affair a paying proposition.

And why should money have to be fetched out of people's pockets in this way? They imagine they are giving to the charities when they pay to enter the carnival field, but they are simply paying for their own amusements, and they salve their consciences by contributing in this way. The Sunday festival is an excellent way of bringing the needs of the charities to the notice of the public, but look at the work involved in getting a few pounds together. It is rather humiliating to know that every large village in the district—with perhaps one exception—is in debt to the Leeds Infirmary, but this is one of the debts of which people somehow are not ashamed. Were they to owe their grocer or butcher from year to year they would be ashamed to face the creditor, but they are not above taking the benefits given by the Infirmary, and contributing little or nothing. Nor do the wealthy people give as they should. It is frequently argued that, as they do not use the Infirmary, it has no real claim on them. They will find that out should the day come when hospitals are put on the rates.

Templenewsam allotment-holders are rather inclined to dictate to the Parish Council how they should manage the estate under their control, and there have been several "scenes" in consequence thereof. Allotments should be encouraged, and, as one man said, they give the working-men a hobby and "keep them out of the public-house," but there is no reason why the Council should always be under criticism. They have done their best for the allotment-holders, who are always on the hunt for concessions, and their services should be received with a little more gratitude. One man told the Council, after all they have done, "that they should display more interest in the allotments." Did he want the Council to undertake their cultivation? Moreover, when a question is under consideration, the allotment-holders cannot get agreement among themselves, and, in any case, it is impossible for the Council to please everybody. My own opinion is that the the Council are prepared to meet every reasonable request in a proper way.

Is a housing scheme needed for Woodlesford? The District Council have been told that unless they proceed with the erection of a number of working-class dwellings they will be reported to the Local Government Board, and they have in consequence decided to receive a deputation of the people who say there is a scarcity of cottages. It seems to me that the Council will have to do something in the event of the colliery building scheme being dropped. The medical officer reported on this very question some time ago, and he stated there was a scarcity of houses, and now it seems over-crowding is taking place. "Have you many cases of over-crowding?" asked a member at last meeting. "A fairish number—people with large families," replied the inspector. Now, why should over-crowding be allowed at all? It is against both morality and health, but if people have not houses in which they can live under decent conditions what can be expected? It seems to me that there is need for a searching inquiry.

In promoting a nursing scheme for Oulton and Woodlesford, I am inclined to the view that the County Council's work should be undertaken, otherwise there will be over-lapping. It will mean a substantial contribution, too, from the county funds. If a nursing association was formed, and it was decided to work independently of the County Council, more than likely the nurse would have to attend cases in which the other nurse was concerned, and as her work would be mainly among women and children, it is obvious that the association would simply be throwing money away by not accepting the county grant. It is not advisable either that different organizations should be at work in one place, and in order to prevent that some sacrifice would be worth while. It was stated that the interference of the County Council would be a stumbling block, but a nurse's duties under the Notification of Births Act and medical inspection are clearly defined, and it is difficult to see how any trouble should arise. Whitkirk Nursing Association is to do the County Council's work, and other bodies are following their example, so what have Oulton and Woodlesford to fear?

Recently reference was made to the valuable work done in the churchyard by the members of the Whitkirk C.E.M.S., and it is but meet that the daughter parish—Seacroft—should now demonstrate its practical—muscular, some might put it—Christianity. "The contract for the church-cleaning," writes the genial Vicar of Seacroft, in his magazine, "does not include the work of washing the floors of the church. How is it to be done? Seacroft is famed for the many able women who can do such work—who could resist that?—and at present two have kindly promised to help." He calls for volunteers, and I doubt not they will turn out in such numbers as will gratify all concerned. For the "masculine portion of the congregation" work will be found, too, so that the parishioners of Seacroft will have a busy time beautifying their church.

Not a word was uttered concerning the annexation of Templenewsam at the Roundhay and Crossgates town-planning inquiry, but that is the object underlying all the tricky manœuvres of the Leeds Corporation. At the present time the District Council are spending £3,000 on an extension of the Halton sewage works, and if the Corporation are allowed to drive a road through them they will, of course, be destroyed, and the sewage will have to be treated at Knostrop. This would, of course, be making it easy for Leeds, who, at an extension inquiry, could say "We supply Halton with water, we are to give it trams, and we treat its sewage, so we have a good claim on it." That I have accurately stated the case is shown by the evidence of one of the witnesses, who stated that a road could easily be made to the south of the sewage works. The opposition, however, contend that a road is not required, inasmuch as the District Council are amply providing for the needs of the district.

While the Corporation are entitled to use every legitimate means to weaken the Templenewsam opposition, it does not lie with them to mislead the public with statements regarding sham "generous" proposals as to the treatment of the Halton sewage. It would pay them to treat the sewage for nothing could they thus destroy Templenewsam's defences. Leeds Corporation are not a philanthropic body; it is not their custom to relieve outsiders of their rates; and every move they make must rightly be regarded with suspicion.

In town-planning the land at Crossgates and Roundhay, the Corporation are serving the best interests of the district, and they are taking precisely the same steps as the Hunslet District Council have adopted for Templenewsam. Such a scheme provides for the erection of a limited number of houses to the acre; it controls the laying out of the streets, having regard to the public convenience, and not the property-owners or builders' desires, and it demands the provision of public spaces. Had town-planning been the universal custom fifty years ago what a difference it would have made to our towns and cities.

Crossgates will develop, I suppose, in the direction in which land is available for building purposes, and the Corporation have included a portion of Scholes and Austhorpe in their scheme, but Tadcaster District Council will have the control of the development of their own area. Some time ago, following a resolution from the Barwick Council, the District Council, with a view mainly to protecting their own district, appointed a committee to consider the advisability of promoting a town-planning scheme for Scholes ward. This would be a rather large order, and what I presume the Council meant was the land lying between Scholes village and the Leeds boundary. So far as I know the Committee have not yet given any report.

Kippax Education Committee are not so pliable as some of the local committees. Some one—presumably a person representing the profession—is greatly concerned because the Kippax Committee allow questions in connection with teachers' salararies to be reported in the Press, and he implored the committee to change their methods, but they have, in effect, told him they will conduct their business in their own way. So far as I know, teachers have nothing to complain about, because the questions of salaries are dealt with discreetly by the local newspapers, but nothing will please them, I suppose, except the leaving out of these matters. In the days of the old School Boards no such attitude was adopted by the teachers, and there is no reason for any change now.

Seacroft, Shadwell, Roundhay, and Crossgates people have an interest now in the Leeds Board of Guardians, but, seeing they have preferential rating, they will not have to contribute anything towards the increase of £230 towards the Clerk's salary. Mr Ford, let it be said, is a very able official, and what he does not know about Poor Law administration is not worth knowing, but his services were, I think, well rewarded with £600 a year, besides which he is paid for his services as Clerk to the Assessment Committee, and he has £60 a year as compensation from Leeds Corporation for loss of office as Clerk to Roundhay and Seacroft Council. Large public bodies seem to be suffering at present from a fit of extraordinary generosity, and the higher officials are simply scooping the golden sovereigns in. Of course, the money belongs the ratepayers, otherwise the gentlemen who give it would not be so free with it. They argue, of course, that the officials are worth the money paid, but it all depends upon how one's services are appraised. Were many of these men in the employment of private firms they would have to be content with a jolly lot less, and they are fortunate that they can get their "masters" to place such a high value on their services. It is time the ratepayers—the people who have to find the money—decided to take an interest in their own affairs.

Judging by the speeches made at the Rothwell demonstration the members of local friendly societies are by no means satisfied with the medical service, and they will not be content until provision is made for their wives and families as well as for themselves. This is undoubtedly a weakness, but the object of the Insurance Act was to look after the bread-winner, so that the family would not suffer unduly by anything that occurred to him. In many districts, it is admitted that medical men's work is largely among women and children, and insured persons would be very glad were means adopted whereby the family could be attended to without the necessity for long medical bills, frequently a difficulty for people to meet. Rothwell people say that the setting up of a State Medical Service would meet the necessities of the case, but Parliament will probably be in no hurry to upset existing arrangements. In talking to a doctor the other day, he told me that he was in favour of a restricted number of insured persons being allocated to medical men, and he gave it as his opinion that in cases where men had two or three thousands on their panels, they could not do the work properly. This gentleman, who has an excellent practice and has as many panel patients as he wants, was probably expressing the views of many of the profession, but it is not likely that the doctors will take action themselves.

Tadcaster Guardians are anxious that a scheme should be formulated for dealing with the mentally defective, and they have in consequence decided to attend a conference convened by the Wharfedale Board to consider the matter. Apparently the institution they have in view is the workhouse at Settle, where, happily, there are few inmates, and it is suggested that these buildings might be adapted as a home for the "deficients" of several Unions. It seems singular that Tadcaster Board should go so far afield, when an institution is to be started on the borders of their own Union at Fryston Hall. Guardians are responsible for this scheme, too, and it appears as if it were to be a permanent one.

Mrs Case, of Ribston, won a number of prizes in the cattle classes at Harrogate Show on Wednesday.

Mr J. Pocklington, of Wistow, was second for draught gelding, two years, at Harrogate Show on Wednesday.

Mr G. Gunter, of Wetherby, was second for hunter foal, and Mr R. J. Foster, Stockeld Park, first for hunter, gelding or mare, at Harrogate Show on Wednesday.

PARS ABOUT THE WAR.

The Germans have arrested a Russian Grand Duke as a prisoner-of-war.

The German cruiser Emden and the Russian cruiser Askold are reported to have been sunk, after battle off Wei-Hai-Wei.

Seventy-two members of the House of Commons have been called to the colours in some branch of His Majesty's forces.

It is stated that Germany has sent an Ultimatum to Italy that if she does not support her allies, Austria-Hungary and Germany, war will be declared against her.

The Admiralty have accepted the Duke of Sutherland's offer of Dunrobin Castle, which will be used as a central surgical base for the North Sea Fleet.

News is forthcoming that a thousand West Riding Boy Scouts are to be selected to render the nation those services for which their training fits them.

The German mine-layer Koenig'n Luise has been sunk off Harwich. The new destroyer Lance was the hero of Britain's first naval engagement in the war. She only fired four shots, but they were all sufficient. The first destroyed the enemy's bridge, and the third and fourth tore away the vessel's stern. It is stated that the Koen'gin Luise sank in six minutes. The British destroyer took the promptest measures to save those on board, and twenty-eight prisoners are now in Shotley Naval Barracks. Nine of the crew of the Lance received any injuries. The German vessel was caught in the very act of laying mines, about sixty miles from Harwich, off the Dutch coast.

Midshipman H.R.H. Prince Albert is serving in the line of battle. The boy was keen on doing his duty with his comrades, and there was no more delighted young sailor on the Collingwood when she left port. There was never any question of the young Prince being withdrawn, and the mothers who turn an anxious face to the sea have a sister in the Royal mother, who waits news as anxiously as they. Her Majesty learns no more of her son than any other mother, the wireless being employed only for official messages.

Th German 7th Army Corps delivered a desperate attack on Liege on Wednesday, in which it is stated 40,000 German troops were engaged against 25,000 Belgians, and the Germans were beaten back at all points with heavy losses. The Belgians pushed home a successful counter-attack. An unofficial statement says the German losses are estimated at 8,000. The message adds "they had also many wounded." It is also stated that the Belgians captured seven guns and made a number of prisoners. Another attack on the Belgian forts was made by the 10th German Army Corps at midnight on Wednesday night, and this is stated to have been repulsed with heavy losses.

Mr Frederick William Mais, of Roseworth, Thorner, left £1,512.

Miss Gwen Robinson, of Wetherby, had a flight with Mr Pickles, the airman, at York, on Friday.

Mr M. Harrison, of Spofforth Haggs, was second for hunter, gelding or filly, two years, at Harrogate Show on Wednesday.

Mr R. L. Powell, of Askham Bryan, won third prize for agricultural foal at Huby and Sutton Show on Monday.

In the All-England angling match at Skipton Bridge on Monday Mr Marlow, of Boston Spa, was eighteenth with 1 lb. 3½ oz.

VICAR OF RUFFORTH.—The death has taken place very suddenly, as a result of heart disease, of the Rev. Andrew Wilson, M.A., vicar of Rufforth. Deceased was 65 years of age. Obtaining his degree of B.A. at Trinity College, Dublin, in 1884, he became M.A. three years later. He was ordained deacon at York Minster in 1886, and priest in the following year, and from 1886 to 1890 was curate at St. Paul's, York. He then became vicar of Rufforth.

WEDDING.—The marriage took place at Selby Wesleyan Church, on Saturday, of Mr Arthur Stone, builder, and Miss Janet Wilson, daughter of the late Mr William Wilson, of Brook Street, Selby. The bride, who was prettily attired, was attended by Miss Violet Foster as bridesmaid. The bride was given away by her cousin, Mr Charles Moody, of Market Weighton. A number of relatives and friends were present at the church.

A BREWERY DEAL.—In the action of Cockayne and another v. John Smith Tadcaster Brewery Company (Limited), referring to the sale of a Sheffield brewery and public-houses, the order of the Court was that on payment of £16,000 the Bank are to release their charge, the plaintiffs undertaking to execute conveyances in the form approved in Court. If the undertaking is not carried out, there is liability to apply to the Vacation Judge to enforce it.

MARRIAGE.—The marriage took place quietly (owing to the recent death of the bride's mother) on Saturday, at St. Aidan's Church, Roundhay Road, Leeds, of Mr Arthur Thompson, youngest son of Mr John Thompson, of North View, Thorner, and Miss Lily Sims, only daughter of Mr. Chas. Sims, of 238, Harehills Lane, Leeds. Many beautiful presents were received. Later in the day the bride and bridegroom left for Ambleside, where the honeymoon is being spent.

MR. C. F. RYDER'S VIEWS.—Writing to the newspapers Mr C. F. Ryder says:—In regard to the view that the present is a favourable time for chastising Germany, not only for her political arrogance, but also for her commercial activity, I would only say that, if the promised war is a business one, for goodness sake let it be conducted on business principles. Let us have, 'in the name of common-sense, no whining litany to the "God of Battles" but, Ledger in one hand and Sword in the other, let us go forth and battle strong in the knowledge of our actuarial righteousness.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

Doyle's Durable Pottery.
A Remarkable Achievement in the Production of Ware that will resist the HARDEST USAGE.
Doyle's are this week making a special display of a wonderful new Ware for use in Hotels, Restaurants, etc. This remarkable Ware will withstand an enormous amount of hard usage, and will be the means of cutting down the breakage cost considerably. It is as "tough as Rawhide." Call and let us give you a demonstration of its capabilities without obligation to purchase.
SPECIAL WINDOW DISPLAY THIS WEEK.
59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.
DOYLE'S, LTD.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

SMART & SON,
3 and 5, THORNTON'S ARCADE.
SPECIAL LINE OF
TOYS. DOLLS. GAMES.
Week-end Hampers. Suit Cases and Basket Ware.
ALL THE LATEST LINES.
For Jewellery, Leather and Fancy Goods,
SEE OUR WINDOWS IN ALL THE LEEDS ARCADES.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Cleanliness is still the order of the day in this department. Continue to remove spent flowers from pansies, violas, canterbury bells, sweet peas, antirrhinums, and other free seeding subjects. This is very important, as they will increase blooming almost immediately if seed pods are allowed to develop.

Dahlias, hollyhocks, and other tall growing subjects must be secured to suitable supports or they will fall a prey to strong winds.

Roses of the rambler or climbing types are now producing the strong basal growths which will provide next year's show of blooms. The rapid growth of these plants indicates the greedy mass of their roots, which must be kept regularly supplied with water, and in the case of established plants, liquid manure.

LOBELIA.

It is remarkable how often one hears the complaint of a scarcity of lobelia cuttings during the spring months. This cannot be traced to a difficulty in keeping the plants through the winter so much as it can to neglect in preparing the stock plants in the autumn. It is advisable to cut down a few plants now. About an inch of the old growth may be left on. They will soon break into new growth, and may then be lifted and potted into 3-inch pots, and put outdoor until the end of September. During the winter months they should be accommodated on a shelf near the glass in a frost-proof greenhouse. A dozen plants will produce hundreds of cuttings.

VIOLAS.

September is usually considered early enough to commence taking viola cuttings, but where an increased stock of new or choice varieties is wanted a start may now be made. They will strike freely in a shaded position outdoor, or they may be placed straight away into cold frames. The new yellow variety, Moseley Perfection, is a splendid thing, and is bound to become popular. It is free-flowering, and the individual blooms are large and of a rich shade. We were afraid, earlier in the summer, that it would turn out to be a leggy grower, but under better conditions it has developed strong, well-jointed growths, and has proved an ideal bedding variety. The advent of a really good yellow variety will fill a long-felt want, most of the other varieties being far from satisfactory.

SEEDLING PLANTS.

Numerous kinds of seedlings are now ready for transferring to nursery beds. Wallflowers in particular should be attended to in good time. By planting them whilst they are quite small the danger of having long-stemmed, leggy plants is avoided. If they are left in the seed bed until they get drawn it becomes necessary to plant them deeply in the nursery beds. This of itself is not a difficult matter, as they can be dibbled in with a pointed stick, but when they have to be replanted with a trowel in the autumn, a considerable amount of labour is incurred with leggy plants.

INSECT FOES.

The summer of 1914 will be long remembered by gardeners on account of the tremendous number of insect pests that have been a very serious nuisance. We have heard numerous complaints of a minute caterpillar that is literally devouring sweet peas, chrysanthemums, etc. Caterpillars are very difficult to deal with, as few of the usual insecticides appear to affect them. Hand-picking is the surest remedy, and spending soot in their haunts will have a deterrent effect upon them. The soot may be washed from the foliage a few days later by spraying with strong soapy water.

VEGETABLES, ETC.

Rhubarb should never be allowed to flower unless seed is required. As soon as the big flower stalks appear they should be cut off close to the ground.

Recent rains have encouraged the growth of celery and the early rows may now be earthed up if not already done. Before placing earth around the plants yellow leaves and young growths springing from the base should be removed. A light dusting of soot may be placed on the leaves whilst they are moist with dew. This will keep insect pests at a distance.

Herbs are ready for cutting when they commence to flower.

PLANTS IN POTS.

Malmaison carnations may now be layered in cold frames. This is an operation requiring some little skill. Remove the lower leaves of the shoots to be layered, retaining about six pairs of leaves at the top, cut half way through the stem in an upward direction for about an inch, immediately below the leaves. This will form a "tongue" at one side of the stem. From the inside of this tongue the roots will eventually develop, and it is important that the "cut" should be kept wide open to allow the young roots room to spread. Turn the plant out of the pot, trim its pot and lay it on its side in the frame. Sufficient soil must be placed around the ball of soil to prevent it getting dry. Peg the pressed down upon small heaps of fine sandy soil, taking care to completely cover the point where the "tongue" has been prepared. Keep the frame close and moist, and shade from bright sun until root action commences, when more light and air may be given gradually. When the layers are nicely rooted they may be potted into 3-inch pots and returned to a cold frame. The close, moist, and shady treatment should be repeated until they recover from the shock of removal. Young plants usually grow away vigorously and are rarely troubled by insect pests. If large specimen plants are desired, select a few of the healthiest of those that have flowered this year; and repot them into larger pots. Turfy loam, leaf mould, and a little old manure, with sufficient sand to make the whole porous, will suit them very well, and they should be rammed firm with a potting stick.

PERPETUAL-FLOWERING CARNATIONS.

Cuttings rooted during the spring months should now be ready for transferring to their flowering pots. They require plenty of fresh air and may be put in cold frames without the lights being placed down except during rainy weather. They are very impatient of an excess of moisture at the roots, and careful watering is most essential. Any plants that show signs of premature flowering may be cut back. They will soon break into fresh growth. Flowering plants may be helped by having the surface soil freshened up, and receiving a top-dressing of special carnation manure. Red spider is troublesome at this time of the year and must be checked frequently to save the plants from ruin.

There is no better method of dealing with the pest than smearing the hot-water pipes with flower of sulphur. No fire heat is required for carnations at present, but it is worth while lighting the fire for a few hours if red spider is present. Choose a still evening, and close the ventilators tightly.

Put sulphur with think and smear it over the pipes whilst they are cool, using a brush for the purpose. As the heat increases the fumes from the sulphur will fill the house and effectually destroy the spider. Two or three hours later the ventilators may be opened to allow the fumes to escape. The following day give a syringing with some approved insecticide.

It is advisable to cut any blooms that are open before using the sulphur. Outdoor carnations invested with sulphur may be sprayed with salt water. One teaspoonful of salt to the gallon of water.

QUESTIONS.

MILDEW ON ROSES.

Rosedian (Liddesdown) has a number of rose trees that have made free growth, and have produced some splendid blooms. During the last fortnight, he says, the leaves and petals have curled badly, and have become discoloured with a white powdery substance.

The trees are attacked with mildew, which is very prevalent this year. It may be remedied by dusting the affected parts with flowers of sulphur, or by spraying with a solution of potassium. Dissolve one ounce of sulphurated potash in a pint of boiling water. Add sufficient water to make one gallon of solution, and spray the affected parts during the evening of a warm day. The undersides of the leaves will require treatment also, and if the first application does not eradicate the disease give a second dressing a few days later.

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS

I have a quantity of tuberous-rooted begonias started to flower. They are in 8-inch pots, and I want them for conservatory decoration. On examination of the roots I find they form a compact ball of matting-mould, and I have practically decided they will soon begin to deteriorate. Is it safe to repot them into larger pots now they are producing flowers, and if so, what size pot do you recommend, and what compost.—"Tuber."

Repot at once into 8-inch pots. Use 3 parts fibrous loam, 1 part each leaf mould, and old manure, with a sprinkling of wood ashes or soot, and sufficient sand to make the whole porous.

Do not press the compost too firm, and water very carefully until the roots start working in the new soil.

GALA AT ROUNDHAY PARK.

KIPPAX AND ROTHWELL SUCCESSES.

The opening day of the Leeds Workpeople's Hospital Fund Gala attracted a vast concourse of people to Roundhay Park on Monday. It was an entirely successful event, since the famous park threw off its aspect of fearful beauty in the morning and the warm sun supplemented the efforts of the promoters, who so effective that in the early afternoon it was possible to view a "gay, reposing throng." The weather conditions ensured the success of the day, and it appears to be certain that the sum of £2,242.000 which has been collected by this pleasant means is the largest for just 27 years will record a notable augmentation. It was a real Bank-Holiday crowd, full of gaiety and movement, and quite oblivious to a perfect concert with the many aids to enjoyment so richly at hand. The principal feature of general interest was, of course, the appearance of Mr Reginald H. Carr, the aviator, with the Grahame White looping biplane. The permission of the Home Office having been obtained, Mr Carr made two ascents in almost ideal flying weather. The first, during the afternoon, sufficiently revealed the airman as a skilful and capable pilot. His machine, while not perhaps so trimly graceful as a monoplane, appeared to have enhanced stability, and guided by Mr Carr, several purposeful evolutions were executed. The loop was looped about half-a-dozen times, but in addition there were during tail slides, spirals, bankings, particularly delightful spiral descent. In the evening Mr Carr spent a shorter time in the air, but again his performance was thrilling and masterful, and the ovation accorded to him by the thousands of onlookers was hearty and complete.

Captain Spencer's ascent by means of a balloon was relatively less exciting, but this silent soaring into the heavens has not lost its charm by any means. The descent by parachute was also accomplished. There was no appreciable lull in the round of entertainments, while the selection made by the Rothwell Foresters' Military Band and the Leeds Model R.U. Band. The absence of hitch in the proceedings was all to the credit of Mr. Walter Wormald (hon. secretary), and his able assistants. Mr F. R. Spark is the chairman of the fund. An entertaining series of sports was an important part of the gala, which was continued on Tuesday. The sports result were as follows:—

100 Yards Flat Race Handicap—1, H. Mellor, Bolton United (10); 2, J. T. Layden, Hudderfield (10); 3, J. W. Ridsdale, York H. (7).

One Mile Bicycle Race Handicap—1, B. Skelding, South Kirkby; 2, Rudford, Pontefract; 3, H. Burton, D.W.C.C.

220 Yards Flat Race Handicap—1, H. Mellor, 2, J. Kelly, Gateshead; 3, A. R. Mumford, Leeds A.C.

100 Yards Sack Hurdle Race—1, H. Brown, Ripon (12); 2, H. Moorcroft, Ormskirk (8); 3, J. Prestwood, Broughton (2)

100 Yards Tandem Handicap—1, C. Field, Cleckheaton (5½); 2, R. Metcalf, Hyde Park (1); 3, H. Ely, Rothwell (6).

Half Mile Bicycle Race Handicap—1, B. Burgin, Kippax Road (28); 2, B. Skelding (88), 3, R. Davis, Wellington Wheelers (2½).

The Cross Bars Jump proved a feature of the Gala on Tuesday. At about five o'clock some 9,000 people had assembled. This is a big decrease on the previous years. The officials attribute this to the excitement caused by war. On the first day there was an attendance of 48,700, which represents an increase of some hundreds as compared with last year, although the figures were 10,000 below the record of eight years ago. Still, it is certain that the medical charities will benefit very considerably. Mr Reginald H. Carr made an ascent in his biplane and executed a number of volplanes, spirals, and banks. A display of spirals, and banks. A display of volplanes, spirals, and banks. A display of upside down flying followed, and the exhibition ended with seven or eight loops. Capt. Spencer made a fine parachute descent from his balloon.

The chief sports results are as follows:—

One Mile Bicycle Race (Handicap)—1, B. Skelding, South Kirkby (185 yards); 2, r. Neal, Mexborough (115); 3, J. H. Parker, Yorkshire Road Club (185), time, 2m. 26 1-5s.

100 Yards Flat Race Handicap (Boys)—1, J. J. Hughes, Hunslet St. Joseph's (6½ yards); 2, F. Ely, Cockburn (scratch); 3, G. Chesterby, Green Lane C.S. Time, 12 3-5s.

220 Yards Flat Race Handicap—1, A. R. Mumford, Leeds A.C. (scratch); 2, P. Taylor, Scholford, Leeds A.C. (scratch); 3, H. Abrams, Methley (30) Time, 25 4-5s.

Sack Hurdle Race Handicap—1, J. Prestwood, Broughton (5); 2, H. Brown, Waterloo H. (5); 3, H. Moorcroft, Ormskirk (11). Time, 19 1-5s.

Half-mile Bicycle Race Handicap—1, J. ?) Halpin, Leeds Kirkgate (50); 2, A. Harland, Grewelthorpe (55); 3, F. A. Bamforth, Goole T. and A.C. (28). Time, 1m. 7 2-5s.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN,
Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved)

THE SUMMER MARKETING OF POULTRY

I have just been visiting the Central Market, Smithfield. Poultry-raisers invariably have a grievance against the commission agents in the market. I have no brief on the latter's behalf, but from a sense of justice must point out that when poor returns are received for birds sent, in the great majority of cases it is the poultry-man's fault.

Dead poultry must be sent in a marketable condition and according to the requirements of the market to which they are sent.

To assist to that end I reproduce a few hints on the subject which appeared in my magazine "Monthly Hints on Poultry."

One of the reasons why so many poultry-keepers fail to realise good prices for their dead poultry at this time of the year is because far too little trouble is taken in final preparation of the birds, and thus, upon reaching the market, they are in such a state as permits nothing but the selling at rock-bottom prices.

In the first place, poultry should at all times, and particularly during hot weather, be thoroughly fasted before killing; if there is any food remaining in the crop or intestines when the birds are killed, this after death quickly decomposes, and very soon affects the whole of the carcase. To avoid this all birds should be fasted for at least eighteen hours before killing, whilst a fast of twenty-four is none too long a one.

MARRIAGE OF MISS VIOLET GUNTER

CEREMONY IN LONDON.

St. Saviour's Church, Wolton Street, London, S.W., was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday (Thursday) week, when Miss Violet Gunter, only daughter of the late Major-General James Gunter and Mrs Gunter, of Aldwark Manor, Alne, and formerly of Boston Spa, was married to Mr Charles Bannatyne Findlay, Royal Horse Artillery, eldest son of Mr Robert Elmsall Findlay, of Botwick Castle, Dumbartonshire. The Bishop of Glasgow officiated, assisted by the Rev. S. S. Fox, and the Rev. J. Edmundson, vicar of St. Saviour's. On the altar table were arranged vases of lilies and other white blooms, while banks of flowers and palms dispersed about the altar rails and chancel screen gave an aspect of coolness and relief from the hot sun.

While the guests were assembling, the organist of the church gave a fine rendering of the Overture from "Lohengrin," Grieg's "Morning," and the Prize Song from the "Meistersinger." Awaiting the arrival of the bride, on whom they were to attend in the capacity of bridesmaids, were Miss Marjorie Stuart-Wortley and Miss Barbara Granville (cousins of the bride), Miss Constance Findlay (cousin of the bridegroom), and Miss Ruth Bethell. They presented a pretty picture in their quaintly fashioned dresses of white taffeta, with blue satin belts and face caps, and they carried bouquets of pink roses, tied with blue ribbon. Each wore a pearl and enamel locket, the gift of the bridegroom. Another small, but important member of the bridal retinue was Miss Margaret James Stuart-Wortley, in a white satin suit, subsequently discharged the duties of train-bearer with triumphant gravity.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr Francis Gunter, looked very charming in a beautiful gown of ivory satin and old lace, the long train being ornamented at the end with sprays of orange-blossom. Her veil was of rich Brussels lace, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. Her ornaments consisted of pearls, the gift of her mother. The bridegroom was attended by a brother officer, Mr H. Nowell, R.H.A., as best man.

The service, which was fully choral, included the hymns, "Come gracious Spirit, heavenly dove," "O perfect love, all human thought transcending," and "The King of Love my Shepherd is," and during the signing of the register the choir sang Gounod's anthem "The King of Love."

Subsequently a reception was held at 29, Lennox Gardens, the town residence of Lady Harriet Harrison, and later in the day the newly married pair left for Scotland, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's travelling dress was of ivory faude velvet, with hat to match.

Among the presents received by the bride were:—Colonel and Mrs. Armytage, old Sheffield plate tray; Mr and Mrs John Austin, old silver spoons; Colonel and Mrs. Archibald, miniature; Miss and Miss L. Bethell, old Flemish dimanty; Miss Bethell and Sir Hylton Brison, visitors' book; Mr, Mrs, and Miss C. Burgoyne Lamb, brooch; Lady Brisco and Miss Brisco, leather blotting book; Mr and Mrs W. Bennett, silver pepper pots; Mrs Bethell, old glass flower vase; Miss Boulter, embroidered bag; Mr and Mrs Everard Brooksbank, egg boiler; Mr E. R. Burgess, silver photograph frame; Mr and Mrs Bethell, pair of silk table horses candlesticks; Hon. Mercia Constable Maxwell, book and library set; Mrs Craigie Halkett, china vase; Mr and Miss Colling, silver bottle; Mr and Mrs Walter Grisdale, silver cream jug; Mr and Mrs W. R. Collins, opera glasses; Miss Isabel Dent, satin cushion; Mrs Dent, writing case; Major Dent, pair silver vases; Mr and Mrs Bethell, old Sheffield plate tray; Mr and Mrs Darcy Grey, clock; Captain and Mrs Everard Cowdroy, umbrella.

Mrs James Gunter (mother of the bride), cheque, pearls, amethyst, brooch, pearl and turquoise necklace, house linen; Miss Gunter, parasol; Colonel and Mrs Gascoigne, tortoiseshell and gold box; Mrs Geoffrey Gunter, silver tea caddy; Miss M. Greenway, table cloth; Mr Francis Gunter, diamond tiara; Miss Kate Hume, Prayer Book; the Lady Harriet Harrison, sweeper, dressing bag; the Lady Hawke and the Hon. Mary and Eleanor Hawke, silver tea pot, cream jug, and sugar basin; the Misses Hume, tortoiseshell box; Mrs Edward Heyland, old china dish; Lord Hawke, silver tea; Mrs and Miss Hewetson, jewel case; Captain and Mrs A. P. Heneage, silver sauce boat; the Hon. Alice Hawke, old brass flower stand; Mr and Mrs Hugh Johnston, pearls; Mr and Mrs Hugh Inglis, clock; Mr and Mrs Robert Kerr, leather blotting-book; Mr and Mrs Arthur Kerr, patience cards in case; Mrs Hastings Lamplugh, gold and diamond wrist watch; Miss D. and Miss H. Lowther, tea cloth; Miss Lane Fox, gold and enamel box; Mrs James Lane Fox, cut glass vase; Mr and Mrs. George Lane Fox, umbrella; Miss Leslie, cushion with embroidered cover; Mrs Lee, silver photograph frame; Mr and Mrs Edward Lane Fox, two china figures; the Hon. Mary and Kathleen Lawless, two lamp shades; Misses Mary and Lizzie Lang, butter dish; Miss Alice Marriott, Sheffield plate candlestick; Miss Mildmay, plates and knives and forks; Colonel and Mrs Mostyn Owen, travelling medicine case.

Mrs Parrett, paper weight; Lady Plumer, old sugar tongs; Mr and Mrs Richard Ramsden, clock; Mr and Mrs Garth Ross, silver box; Col. Richardson, silver stamp box; Mrs Charles Scott, armchair, diamond brooch, lace for wedding dress, cut-glass vases, china; Mrs Scott, silver tea service; Miss Strickland Constable and Mrs George Bulfeet, china tea service; Miss Jessie Scott, old silver vase; Lieut.-Col. and Mrs Strickland Constable, silver box; Capt. and Mrs silver blotting book, paper case, and glass; Lady St. Oswald and the Hon. Emily Winn, silver tea pot; Mr Andrew Scott, diamond and beryl pendant; servants at Aldwark Manor, Spode china tea service; Col. the Hon. and Mrs Stuart-Wortley, old Chippindale screen; Miss L. Stokoe, Watford pillow lace; Miss D Stewart Robertson, silver photograph frame; Mr, Mrs, and Miss Spencer Stanhope, carriage rug; Mr and Mrs Hugh Stobart, print; Col. and Mrs Richard Mewsey Thompson, travelling clock; Mr and Mrs. Norton Tomlin, lamp and shade; Mr and Mrs F. Thornton, card tray and cut-glass dishes; Mr George Thompson, silver and enamel bottle; Hon. Mrs. Jenkinson Tower, jewel case; Mrs Worsley, menu-holders; Mrs Edwyn Walker, writing case; Mr Roger Walker, paste and tortoiseshell pins; Hon. Mr and Mrs George Winn, old Sheffield plate tea urn; Miss Mabel Wintour, enamel and pearl brooch; Miss Wyatt, Prayer Book, Mr and Mrs Ernest Walker, parasol; Hon Cecil and Mrs Winn, plate heater; Lady Younger and Mrs Jack Wormald, writing case.

GARDEN FETE AT BROOKFIELD, GARFORTH BRIDGE

COMPETITIONS AND SPORTS.

FOR SWILLINGTON CHURCH EXPENSES.

In the beautiful grounds of Brookfield, Garforth Bridge (the residence of Mr and Mrs Bartle) a garden fete and sale of work took place on Saturday afternoon, and the function proved a most successful and enjoyable one. The primary object was to assist the Swillington Church Expenses Fund, but the fete gave the residents of the parish and district an opportunity of meeting under the happiest conditions, and Mrs Bartle, who, assisted by a splendid body of enthusiastic workers, had arranged the gathering, gave a very cordial welcome to the numerous guests. Amongst those present were Mr John Farrer, J.P. (Bolton), Mrs Prater (Aberford), Mrs Child (The Manor House, Whitkirk), Rev. T. E. R. Wilford, Mr John Wilford, and Miss Wilford (Garforth), Rev. E. B. and Mrs Smith (Kippax), Rev. J. Gregory (Preston), Rev J. Maver (Garforth), Mr W. P. Nicholson (Stutton Grange), Mr and Mrs H. Walker, Mr H. G. Young, Md. Arthur Hartley (Gascliscard), Mr Hemment, Mr and Mrs J. W. Dobson (Garforth), Misses Batley (Austhorpe Lodge), Mr and Mrs Richardson (Garforth House), Mrs Sissons (Waterloo House), Mrs Denby, Mrs Craddock (Garforth), Miss Nichols (Ledston), Mrs Whitehouse and Mr H. Watch-use (Aberford), Mr and Mrs W. Birkinshaw (Warren House), Mrs J. Birkinshaw (Peckfield), Mr and Mrs P. A. Minden, Mr and Mrs McLintock (Whitkirk), Mrs and the Misses Appleyard (Austhorpe), Mrs C. F. Stead (Chapel Allerton), Mrs H. B. Beiggs (Chapel Allerton), Mr Nicholls (churchwarden, Swillington), Mr and Mrs W. Ash (Garforth), Mr Hutton, Miss Ash, Mrs Simpson (Aberford), Miss McQuat (Leeds), Mrs Dickinson, Miss Craven (Peckfield), Miss Rinder, Mr Gibbon, etc.

Mrs Bartle had asked Lady Dorothy Wood, of Temple-newsom, to open the fete, but she wrote regretting her inability, owing to other engagements, to accept the invitation. She, however, sent a handsome donation to the funds. Others who sent donations were Sir Charles Lowther, Bart., Mr R. W. Bower, Mr Johnson (Leeds), Mrs Vivars (Sherburn), and Messrs White and Son (Hull).

The lawn in front of the house was, for the nonce, converted into a fancy fair, and the ladies were busily engaged throughout the afternoon in disposing of the goods on the heavily-laden stalls. Towards the Simple Stall, which was under the supervision of Misses Hider, the tradespeople had contributed most generously, and upon it was a wonderful display of the substance of goods. The Flower Stall, filled with beautiful plants and blooms, was in the charge of Misses Denby (Garforth). Mrs Lowther's stall was laden with plain and fancy work, the production of busy hands, the Sweet Stall was looked after by the Misses Bartle, the Lavender Basket by Miss Dobson, the Icecream Stall by Miss Mason, the Hoopla Stall by Miss Laverack and the Cake Stall by Miss Garland. The cakes-baking competition (Brown and Polson's) was a novel feature, and it was so popular with the ladies that it attracted no fewer than 44 entries. Mrs Hewson (Colton) was given the premier award, Miss Buckley (Roundfield) secured the second prize, and Miss Gummerson (Swillington) the third. Three ladies—Mrs W. Heworth (Whitkirk), Mrs J. Freeman, and Mrs Porter—received highly commended for their work. Mr Whitehouse did excellent business in the cocoanut shie, and "Aunt Sally," in the charge of Miss Dickenson, was another source of fun and profit. During the afternoon excellent selections of music were played by Garforth Band, and a short entertainment was given by Mr McLintock (humorist) and Miss Danks (dancer). Tea was served to the company in the gardens and in the house.

Sports, directed by Messrs H. Walker and H. G. Young, took place in the evening, and some interesting races were seen. Mrs Bartle won the egg and spoon race, and Miss Denby was first in the potato race. Miss Thompson was second. The prize for the three-legged race for girls was secured by K. Bartle and R. Bingham, and in the boys' three-legged race 'he winners were M. Pogson and A. Roberts. Other results were:—Ladies' bicycle race (last to win) —1 Miss Watson, 2 Miss Dickenson. Three-legged race for men—1, Dickinson and Smith, 2 Allen and Smith. Quarter-mile race (open)—1 W. Birch, 2 Dickinson. One hundred yards race (open)—1 W. Birch, 2 John Quigley. Sack race (open)—1 J. Quigley, 2 W. Lawton.

A feature of the evening's programme was an entertainment arranged by Miss Binns. Songs were given by Miss Harrison (Halton) and Mr McLintock, dances by Miss Danks, Miss Richardson, and Miss Thomas, and the sketch "The colonel's consent" was performed by Misses Binns and Harrison and Messrs Heywood, Royston, and Wynne. The accompanists were Mrs McLintock and Miss Dickinson (Swillington Common).

It is expected that the proceeds of the fete will realize about £50.

BARWICK AND SCHOLES CHARITIES

THE CROSSGATES PORTION.

As an effect of the extension of the Leeds city boundary, whereby a great portion of Crossgates became part of the Leeds Corporation's administrative area, included in the Leeds Poor Law Union, it is anticipated (says the "Post") that a new scheme will have to be devised for dealing with the income arising from what are known as the Barwick-in-Elmet Charities. The Barwick Parish Council, in fact, are reported to have applied to the Charity Commissioners for a rearrangement, and the subject is also being considered by the Leeds authorities. Nothing, however, can be done until the Charity Commissioners move in the matter. The main point of interest is that of the total estimated sum of close on £450 annual income available, more than £80 goes in relief of the poor rate. But now that Crossgates, which shares in the charity benefits, has been transferred from the Tadcaster Union to Leeds, the question arises what proportion of this amount shall be handed over. The Barwick people are naturally desirous of securing as large a proportion as possible, and seeing that the original gifts and bequests were made to Barwick-in-Elmet parish, long before the growth of Crossgates with its increasing rateable value was dreamed of, a plea is being put forward for special consideration. The income applied to the relief of rates is drawn from parish lands, including what is called the Poor's Estate, the "Workhouse Allotment," and public stone-quarries. In addition, there is a fund for various doles, and there are the national school site and bull-bags, together with other resources and sources. According to the last scheme of the Charity Commissions, the gross income is £449 18s. 10d., apportioned thus—£70 15s. for education, £12 0s. 4d. for church purposes, £5 for the Wesleyan Sunday School, £60 for Roundhay almshouses and pensions, £10 9s. 3d. distributed in money, £6 4s. 9d. distributed in kind, and £85 for public uses. A new scheme may, of course, mean the appointment of additional trustees representing Leeds or a division of the responsibilities and power of administering the charities, as well as a readjustment of the finances so far as they affect the poor rate.

It may be stated that this question was discussed by Barwick Council two or three months ago, and reports of the meetings have appeared in our columns.

NEW USE FOR FRYSTON HALL.

HOME FOR MENTALLY DEFECTIVE.

A huge scheme promised by eight Poor Law Unions for colonising mentally mentally defective persons has just been brought to maturity, the Local Government Board having provisionally sanctioned the purchase of the Fryston Hall estate at Ackworth, exceeding £100,000.

The Unions that have agreed to combine in the scheme are Dewsbury, Doncaster, Ecclesoll, Bierlow, Halifax, Huddersfield, Penistone, Rotherham, and Sheffield. They include a population of about 1,300,000, and have a joint assessable value of £6,000,000.

The Fryston Hall estate includes an old mansion which formerly belonged to Earl Crewe, extensive out-buildings, a bailiff's house, a block of cottages, a large area of garden ground, and between 400 and 500 acres of land, which embraces a substantial area of woodland.

The estate is situated about two miles from Pontefract railway station, and a shorter distance from the Knottingley and Ferrybridge stations. It is not overlooked in any way, nor is it bounded by any main roads.

In every way the estate is admirably situated and suited for the purpose in view. It is easily accessible from all the eight Unions concerned, being only thirty miles distant from Sheffield, which is the farthest Union.

With provisional sanction to purchase the estate, the Local Government Board have also intimated that they are prepared to issue an order for the establishment of a Joint Committee representing the eight Unions concerned.

On the first of July last the number of uncertified mentally deficient and epileptic persons chargeable to the eight Unions was 618, but it is not proposed to remove to the colony those who are mentally defective owing to senile decay. Altogether there are about 500 people for whom provision will be made.

These at the present time are in workhouses, Union hospitals, and in voluntary institutions all over the country, while a proportion of them are living with their friends and receiving outrelief. Some of those who are receiving outrelief may be found to be quite well cared for in their present surroundings, in which case they will not be removed.

TRAGEDY AT CHURCH FENTON STATION

ASSISTANT STATIONMASTER KILLED.

"CARELESS IN CROSSING THE LINE."

Major Arundel, Coroner, held an inquiry in the general waiting-room at Church Fenton Station on Monday respecting the death of Robert Brownrigg, assistant stationmaster at Church Fenton, who was knocked down and killed by the York and Derby express fish train on Friday night.

Mr Wm. Dixon Foxton was appointed foreman of the jury.

Mr Charles Pearce, district traffic engineer, Sheffield, represented the Midland Railway Company, and Mr A. Deighton, district traffic inspector, York, represented the North Eastern Railway Company.

David Brownrigg, 109, Whalley Road, Blackburn, brother of the deceased man, said he had not seen deceased for four years before his death. Witness received a letter from the deceased a fortnight ago, in which he said he was relieving at the end of September.

Harry Septimus Holt, assistant signalman at Church Fenton, said he was present when deceased was killed about 9.22 on Friday night. Deceased went to the north signal box, which was near the station, to see how the goods train was getting loaded. He was standing on the down Leeds line, and spoke to witness. Witness left him to answer the telephone, and at that time the fish express was approaching on the up Leeds line for York. Witness signalled the train on, but previously told deceased that it was coming. Deceased could not see the signal go down, but could see the light attached to it. Witness was away about five minutes, and when he next saw deceased he was on the Leeds to Normanton line, and about a yard in front of the engine trying to get out of the way. This he failed to do, and he was caught by the engine in the fourfoot way, being carried about 35 yards. The whole of the train passed over him. Witness immediately informed his signalman, who went to deceased.

The Coroner: How far was he away from you when you first had conversation with him?

Witness: About a yard, sir.

How far were you away when he was struck by the engine?—About 9 yards.

Continuing, witness said the train was travelling at from 40 to 50 miles an hour. There were two lights on the front of the engine which could be seen for a distance of 14 miles.

George Tomlinson, Ulleskelf, said he was a signalman at the north signal box, near Church Fenton Station. On Friday night, about 9.22, just as the 6.15 express fish train left, he heard a shout called out: "They have knocked poor old Robert down." Witness at once ran to him and found him on the four-foot way near the up Leeds to Normanton line, near the crossing. Deceased was dead, and witness went back to his box to telephone for assistance. Witness had seen him on the 6.17 p.m., and he was then clear of the Leeds to Normanton line. Deceased knew the fish train was expected, because witness told him so.

George Butler, 274, Woodseats Road, Sheffield, an engine driver in the employ of the Midland Railway Company, said he was in charge of the York and Sheffield fish express, which left the former for the latter at 5.45 p.m., and the north signal-box near Church Fenton at 9.22 p.m. He did not feel anything catch or obstruct the engine. When the train arrived at Leeds he was told he had knocked the Church Fenton assistant station-master down. It was a very dark night. He did not see anyone approaching the signal-box because he thought it was unnecessary.

William Mosby, station-master, Church Fenton, said deceased had been under his station-master seven or eight years. Deceased was near the north signal box on Friday night in pursuit of his duty. Deceased was rather careless in crossing the lines, and witness had cautioned him on several occasions to be more careful.

The Coroner, in summing up, said the question was whether deceased's death was due to an accident or not, and everything pointed to its being a pure accident. If there had been any fault it was with the deceased himself, because they were told in evidence that he knew the fish train was expected and that it could be seen for a distance of one and a half miles, and he ought to have been on the alert.

The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

Mr Brownrigg's death caused quite a sensation in the district, especially as he was going to retire on his pension next month, and arrangements had already been made for his successor to take up his position.

Deceased was a native of Dumfries, but early in life joined the North Eastern service. He was for many years a guard, and was eventually appointed an assistant stationmaster at York Station. At his own request he was transferred to Church Fenton Station seven or eight years ago. He was predeceased by his wife about two years ago.

A SELBY BANKRUPTCY CASE.

WHAT THE OFFICIAL RECEIVER SAID.

At York Bankruptcy Court on Friday the examination took place of Richard Peel, 73, Volta Street, Selby, and Fred Peel, 71, Volta Street, Selby, trading as Peel Brothers and Co., horticultural engineers, East Common, Selby.

The liabilities were returned at £3,367 15s. 8d., and the deficiency was stated to be £182 13s. Debtors attributed their failure to want of capital, heavy law costs, and decline in trade during the past three years.

In answer to the Official Receiver (Mr Donald S. Mackay) Richard Peel said he and his brother were carrying on business as horticultural engineers at Selby. They had been in business for 12 years. They began with £2, and they had never made any money. It had been a hard struggle to live all the time. The most money they had ever had in the bank was £20, but it was probably put in one day and drawn out the next. They called their creditors together in 1907, and a composition of 7s. 6d. was accepted by them. His brother and he shared the profit, and bore the losses. They had both stuck to the business. All the profits they had made had gone into the business. When they made any profit they built workshops and put down machinery. They had to raise a mortgage on the buildings and land. There was a quantity of machinery in the sheds, and it could all be removed if required. All the machinery was there when they mortgaged the land, except the present gasengine. There was a charge on the land of £81, and he believed the land, if sold, would realise that amount. In fact, he thought it should be worth £90 to £100, while the machinery was worth £86. The gas-engine alone had cost £72, which they had paid off by instalments. A great part of their work was building greenhouses. When they made goods to special order under £10 value they were paid beforehand. They had not been able to complete several of their contracts for want of money, although they had already received money in advance. They had known they were insolvent for over 12 months. They had hoped for better times, but they had never come. They had both worked hard, out their failure was due to want of capital. There were a lot of goods on their land which belonged to other people. He had two insurance policies which were in the custody of Messrs Brown, Brothers and Taylor as security for credit. His wife had purchased all the household furniture out of money she had earned as a laundress. He would undertake to produce his wife's receipts for the furniture.

Fred Peel said he had heard his brother's evidence, and he concurred in it.

The Official Receiver said it was rather suspicious that both their wives should have bought all the furniture.

The examination was closed.

MR WAILES-FAIRBAIRN AS DEPUTY LIEUTENANT.

The "London Gazette" on Friday night contained the following:—

Commission signed by the Lord Lieutenant of the West Riding of the County of York, and of the City and County of York.

William Fairbairn Wailes-Fairbairn, Esquire, of Askham Grange, York, to be Deputy Lieutenant for the said County.

Mr William Fairbairn Wailes-Fairbairn is the eldest son of Mr William Wailes, of Brookfield, Bath. He was educated at Harrow and Jesus College, Cambridge, where he took his degree in 1883, and his M.A. degree in 1886. He had been a Justice of the Peace for the West Riding of Yorkshire since 1900. He joined the Derbyshire Imperial Yeomanry in 1901, was promoted lieutenant in 1903, and captain in 1906. He was for some time Joint Master of the York and Ainsty Hounds, along with Mr J. A. Fullerton. Mr Wailes-Fairbairn adopted the surname of Fairbairn on succeeding his uncle in 1901. Mr Wailes-Fairbairn is descended from the yeoman family of Wailes of Husthwaite. The members of that family have chiefly been farmers, landowners, barristers, and soldiers since the middle of the 16th century.

SELBY

GIFTS TO SELBY ABBEY.—A donation of £10 has been given by the Earl of Londesborough for the Selby Abbey Assistant Clergy Fund; and from Mr Gray (Blackheath), 18 guineas have been received for the carving of nine capitals in the Abbey.

LOCAL COLLIERY FIRM'S REPORT

DIVIDEND OF 20 PER CENT.

The net profits of Henry Briggs, Son, and Co. (Limited) for the year ended June 30th were £69,386, and £2,000 was brought forward. Final dividends of £2 5s. per share on the A Shares and £1 10s. per share on the B Shares are recommended, making £3 and £2 per share respectively, or 20 per cent., for the twelve months, adding £20,000 to the reserve, writing £2,500 off leases, and carrying forward £42,994. The directors report their prices had a downward tendency, particularly in the latter half of the year. This, coupled with the strike in April, caused a dislocation of trade not yet fully overcome. Owing to ill-health, Mr F. C. Shepherd has been compelled to sever his official connection with the company, and to relinquish his seat on the board. Mr John Horsfall (director) and Messrs Close, Hind and Co. (auditors) offer themselves for re-election.

The company's net profits for the past five years and the dividends, etc., are shown in the following table:—

	Net profits.	Added to reserves.	Div'd rate per cent.	Balance forward
	£	£		£
1913-14	90,386	22,500	20%	42,994
1912-13	109,038	40,000	20%	40,593
1911-12	64,071	15,000	15%	36,230
1910-11	38,061	5,000	10%	36,340
1909-10	42,723	15,000	10%	36,067

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday—Wheat prices were quoted at an advance of 3s. and 5s. per qr., but no transactions were reported. There is a very small quantity of old grain to be had. Samples of winter-sown oats may come in at the next market.

PROVISIONS

SELBY, Monday—Eggs 10 for 1s.; butter 1s. 2d. per lb.; chickens 4s. to 5s. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday—The good supply of new potatoes in the market met with a satisfactory demand at from 50s. to 55s. per ton, or 2s. to 2s. 3d. per hamper of 6 stones.

CATTLE.

SELBY, Monday.—At this Auction Mart Messrs Richardson and Son disposed at 41 beasts, 31 sheep, and 33 pigs. Owing to the holidays there was only a small supply of stock, an improved trade for cattle, beef making up to 5s. per stone. Pigs and sheep sold rapidly at advanced prices. The prices were as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £23 15s., fat heifers up to £19 7s. 6d., fat cows up to £20 15s., store cattle up to £14 12s. 6d., cows in calf up to £18, cows in milk up to £17 15s., fat sheep up to £3 7s., fat pigs up to £6, and sows in pigs up to £6 15s. each.

TADCASTER, Monday—At this mart Messrs Stephenson and Son held their fortnightly sale when 600 head of cattle and 1,000 sheep and pigs were sent forward. The attendance of butchers and dealers was up to the average. Best quality bullocks and heifers sold with a good inquiry, and was readily disposed of at prices about equal to a fortnight ago, and may be quoted from 84s. to 91s. per cwt. Second-quality cattle and cows met a ready sale, and made from 8s. to 8s. 6d. per stone. Shearling sheep were a fair show throughout the pens, and sold steadily at 34s. per stone. Pigs and sheep sold rapidly at advanced prices. The prices were as follows:—Fat bullocks up to £24 5s., fat heifers up to £19 7s. 6d., fat cows up to £20 15s., store cattle up to £14 12s. 6d., cows in calf up to £18, cows in milk up to £17 15s., fat sheep up to £3 7s., fat pigs up to £6, and sows in pigs up to £6 15s. each.

TADCASTER, Monday—At this mart Messrs Thomlinson and Son held forward an average show of prime fat cattle, and a good display of fat sheep and lambs; pigs a less show. The attendance of butchers and dealers was well up to the average. Best beef met a steady inquiry to a week ago, making up to 9s. 3d. per stone, cows and heavy beef from 8s. to 8s. 9d. per stone. Sheep and lambs made similar prices to last week, per lb., lambs 10d to 11d. per lb. Fat pigs made more money, from 7s 6d per stone, and store pigs made less money, from 6s to £7 per head. Calves and heifers sold at £4 each. Sheep made to 75s. each. Numbers sold: 94 beasts, 274 sheep and lambs, and 70 pigs. Mr J. W. Watson, of Wighill Manor, had three good bullocks, making £24 12 6d, £24 17s. 6d and £22 12s 6d; Mr Hawkesworth, of Tadcaster, had two good bullocks, making £23 15s and £23 2s 6d; four bullocks from Mr F. Jackson, Healaugh Grange, made £26 7s 6d, £24 17s 6d, £23 12s 6d, and £21 10s.; from Mr W. Westaby, of Healaugh, had three ripe bullocks, which made £25 15s, £24 5s, and £23 7s 6d; Mr T. Richardson, Healaugh, had two bullocks, making £22 7s 6d and £22 15s; Mr I. Sagleson, of Newton Kyme, had six ripe well-finished bullocks, making £25 10s 6d, £24 2s 6d, £23 2s 6d, £20, £19 5s and £20 17s 6d.; Mr R. Case, of Catterton, had two good bullocks, making £26 and £23 12s 6d, and two bullocks making £22 7s 6d and £22 17s 6d; Mr G. Winter, Pallathorpe, had four good beasts, making £21 10s, £21 and 2s 6d, £19 15s; three bullocks from Mr C. Gypson, Grimston, made £22 2s 6d, £21 17s 6d, and £19 17s 6d; four grazing bullocks made by Mr Hall, Hornington, including the second prize winner at Tadcaster Show, made £21 17s 6d, £21 15s, £19 2s 6d, and £19 5s; Mr Jackson, of Bramham, Catterton, had two bullocks and heifers, making to £21 7s 6d. each; two bullocks from Mr Dunnington made £21 5s. each; and two bullocks from the Auctioneers, including the first prize winner at Tadcaster Show, which made £26 15s, £27 10s, £22 17s 6d., £23 17s 6d, £23 12s 6d, £21 15s, £21 17s 6d., and £21. Prime fat sheep from Mr H. Simpson made to 75s each; from Mr A. Gypson to 73s; from Mr J. Hall to 65s. 6d.; from Mr G. Jackson, to 72s.; from Mr J. Bromley to 72s.; from Mr J. T. Dearlove to 66s 6d; from Mr A. Carr to 62s.; from Mr Scarr to 59s.; from Mr Watson, to 51s. each. Prime fat lambs from Mr F. Jackson made to 69s. each; from Mr. Blacker to 51s 6d.; from Mr Swales to 49s.; from Mr Dunnington to 41s.; from Mr R. Dearlove to 53s. 6d.; from Mr Dalby to 47s. 6d.; from Mr T. H. Watson to 44s. each. Fat pigs from Mr Bachelor made to £6 10s each; from Mr T. Richardson, to 86s.; etc. Gilts in pig made to 90s each; and stores from 8s. 6d. to 33s. 6d. each.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

COLD FEET.

A much-neglected health maxim is never to go to bed with cold feet. It should be made even stronger. Cold feet should be guarded against whether by day or night. They are a prolific source of numberless ills, some of which are very serious, with fatal terminations as possible sequence, says a writer in the Family Doctor. Congestions occur, catarrhs follow, and finally become chronic and well-nigh incurable.

There are many methods of guarding against cold feet. The very first relates to the foot covering. Never tolerate tight shoes. Give your feet plenty of room, so that there will be no interference with a free and constant circulation of the blood. In cool or cold weather thick soles are a necessity. A proper amount of vigorous exercise, especially walking, should be practised. Kicking, swinging the legs in semi-circles, vigorous massage of the feet, with rapid and forcible flexing and rotating of the ankle joints, so as to pump the blood into the feet, slapping the soles of the feet with the sole of a slipper or with the palm of the hand—all these are aids, and if faithfully used will frequently overcome the tendency to cold feet, which often becomes a habit. The alternate hot and cold foot-bath is often effective in giving permanent relief, if reasonably persisted in.

HOW TO COOK SAUSAGES.

Sausages are often spoilt in appearance by being placed in a hot frying-pan and placed over a hot fire. The secret of success lies in cooking them slowly. Put a little fat in the pan, separate, after being pricked in several places with a fork, should be placed in a cold pan and set on a moderately hot part of the stove so that they are gradually heated through. An ordinary-sized frying-pan will hold half a dozen sausages, and the last part of the time should be over a hot part of the stove, so that the outer part is quickly and evenly browned.

STIMULATING TEA.

A most nourishing and powerful stimulant for invalids or brain workers is tea made with three parts boiling milk to one part of water; it is also far more digestible than ordinary tea, as the milk neutralises the tannin. The quantity of tea used must, of course, be measured by the individual requirement. Three cuddy spoonfuls, or four large teaspoonfuls, to a pint of milk and a third of a pint of water, make a generous cup of tea. It is curious remarks a Globe writer, to find how many people servants especially — never learn the simple arts of making tea correctly. The secrets are to heat the pot thoroughly, make the tea the moment the water boils, and let it infuse about ten minutes. The tea-pot is allowed to boil for even a few minutes before the tea is made the water will be "flat," and the flavour of the tea will be lost; while if the latter stands too long the tannin is extracted and the tea bitter and indigestible.

THE CARE OF SINKS.

The kitchen sink and its pipes are sufficiently important to merit more than soft water is to be had; infinitely more so when hard water has to be used. Flush the pipes frequently with hot water mixed with soda, followed by cold water, and when the water from cooked vegetables is poured into the sink it should be followed by a mouthful with plenty of cold water. Grease, of course, chills as it reaches the pipes and hardens on the sides, and the latter should be scalded with soda and used at least once a week in most places; more frequently in cases where water is not to be had. Lime-water is also objectionable in any way.

Where the water is temporar.ly hard it may be boiled and plenty of hot boiled water be poured into the drain; where it is permanent hard water is the only available, a little of the pipes are first heated with plenty of hot water and a very strong solution is then poured through, followed by cold water. If the sink itself in the pipes, whatever may happen when it reaches the sewer. A soap is not formed until it has passed the trap, and is harmless in the water. So the remedy for your trouble seems to be plenty of hot water and frequent application of soda to the sink.

TO CLEAN A FURRED KETTLE.

Sal ammoniac will remove this. Fill the kettle with cold water, add a piece of sal ammoniac to it, and boil. All the fur will dissolve. Well rinse the kettle afterwards.

A PUNCTURE-FINDER.

An ingenious little device for locating punctures is described in the Boy's Own Paper. It consists of a small box which is made of wood, tinned inside, and enclosed in which are a number of pieces of down or other similar light substance, such as cork. The box is closed by the slightest disturbance of the air. The bottom of the little box is formed of a piece of wire gauze, and a small funnel that will allow a current of air to pass through it. When required to locate a puncture the box is placed in a pail of water, removed slowly over its surface. Directly a puncture is reached, the emerging fine stream of air and water from the hole in the tube proclaims that fact. Quite an entertaining method of finding punctures, by the inventor says "it will last as long as your bicycle," and with the aid of one's cycle lamp at night punctures can readily be found.

NICE DISHES.

FISH WITH MACARONI.—Divide into fairly large flakes cold haddock, cod, ling, or any white fish, season it with salt and pepper, and put it into a buttered dish. Add to it three teacupfuls of fish break into small pieces as much macaroni as will be a breakfast cupful, previously boiling water, add plenty of salt, cook quickly for twenty minutes, or until it begins to soften, drain it well before placing it on top of the fish. Sprinkle lightly with pepper, and thickly with grated cheese. Dredge cheese. Beat an egg, stir in rather more than a teacupful of milk, season with salt. Pour over the dish. Cover the top lightly with breadcrumbs, add a few small pieces of butter, and bake in a moderate oven for about half an hour.

BEET SALAD.—Wash the beets thoroughly, cut off the stems except about three inches, but do not cut from bleeding. Put them in cold water and boil until tender; remove from the fire, slip the skins off, and while in round slices, season with salt, pepper, and white sugar; pour enough white vinegar over to cover them, and set aside until cold. The beets are put in a jar and well covered with vinegar they will keep for some time. Serve on a dish made of cabbage leaves.

SPINACH MOULD.—Boil two pounds of spinach in the usual way; drain, press, and rub it through a sieve. Put it into a saucepan with two ounces of butter, one gill of stock, and half a pint of cream. Make it quite hot, season, and let the whole simmer for about five minutes. Again rub through a sieve, mix with the spinach a well-beaten yolk of an egg, and pile on top of pudding, return to the oven to set, and serve hot.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON.

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks.	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20	0 6	1 0	1 10	3 0
30	0 9	1 6	2 9	5 0
40	1 0	1 9	3 3	6 6

Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than

13 weeks,	1s. per inch	per insertion.
26 do.	10d. do.	do.
52 do.	8d. do.	do.

TO LET.

TO Let Good COTTAGE, with living-room, scullery, and three bedrooms. Rent 4s. weekly clear.—Mrs. Baiers, Barwick-in-Elmet.

WANTED

WANTED LAD to Help in Garden.—Apply, Green, Barrowby Hall, Garforth. 2094

WANTED Well-educated Youth as APPRENTICE.—Purdy, Chemist, Crossgates. 1

WANTED GENERAL, over 30, trustworthy, competent. Three in family. No children. Good home.—15, Elmet Terrace, Crossgates. 1 2955

JUNIOR CLERK, about 16, with office experience, posting ledgers, etc., good writer. State age, experience, salary required, to The Yorkshire Copper Works, Ltd., Leeds.

WANTED at once Respectable YOUNG GIRL. Good home. Good wages to a suitable girl. No family.—Write Mrs. Derrick, Lilycroft Hotel, Manningham, Bradford. 1 2084

BRASS TURNING—YOUTH wanted, accustomed to Brass Turning. Good wages to suitable applicant. Apply personally, or by letter, to the Yorkshire Copper Works, Pontefract Road, Leeds. 3

WANTED Smart GIRLS to LEARN BLOUSE-MAKING.
Apply, personally, after August 10th, at THE MILL, CLIFFORD. 23

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale 7 ACRES PLUMAGE BARLEY, growing near Scholes Station.—Apply, Wm. Prevat, Barwick-in-Elmet. 1

FOR Sale 3½ h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR-CYCLE and SIDECAR, in good condition. Cheap.—Dockray, Hazelroyde, Green Lane, Whitkirk.

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also first-class YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandon Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

FOR Sale perfectly new Jones' HAND SEWING-MACHINE, £2 12s., worth double; also SILVER PLATED AFTERNOON TEA SET, very pretty and perfectly new, value 30s. Will accept 24s., or nearest offer for either.—Apply, 22, Westfield Crescent, Leeds. 1 2065

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Post Free 2 Stamps.—(S) Davies & Co., 54, Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road, Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.
Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrappers, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at
KAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
96 VICAR LANE, (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0 10 0 for	2½d.	per month.
£1 0 0 „	5d.	„ „
£2 0 0 „	10d.	„ „
£3 0 0 „	1s. 0d.	„ „
£5 0 0 „	1s. 8d.	„ „
£8 0 0 „	2s. 8d.	„ „
£10 0 0 „	3s. 4d.	„ „

Sums above £10 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 2, LADY LANE LEEDS.

Mr. & Mrs. Turner,
7, Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Best-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited.
Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds 21881; Bradford, 2417.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ROTHWELL URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council intend at the EXPIRATION of ONE CALENDAR MONTH from this publication to APPLY to the LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD for CONFIRMATION of REGULATIONS under section 17 (5) of the HOUSING, TOWN PLANNING, etc., ACT, 1909, prescribed by the Council at a meeting held on the 20th July, 1914. A copy of the regulations is deposited at the Council Offices, Rothwell, and will for a Calendar Month from and after the date of this publication be kept there open during office hours, to the inspection of the ratepayers of the district without fee or reward.

By Order of the Council,
WALTER DODGSON, Clerk.

27th July, 1914.

Established 37 years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
32, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
ESTATE AGENTS & RENT COLLECTORS
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc., Insurances Effected.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

POTTERTON HALL, BARWICK-IN-ELMET

MR and MRS CHILDE much regret that the MEETING arranged for NEXT SATURDAY at POTTERTON HALL has had to be POSTPONED.

JAMES BRAMLEY, Deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that all CREDITORS and other persons having any CLAIMS or DEMANDS against the estate of JAMES BRAMLEY, late of GATELAND HOUSE, SHADWELL, Leeds, in the County of York, deceased (who died on the 23rd day of April, 1914, and whose will was proved in the Wakefield District Registry of His Majesty's High Court of Justice on the 29th day of June, 1914, by Louisa Bramley and Tom Sherwood, the surviving executors therein named), are hereby required to send the particulars in writing of their CLAIMS or DEMANDS to us, the undersigned, the Solicitors for the said executors, on or before the 5th day of September next, after which date the said executors will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased amongst the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims and demands of which they shall then have had notice.

Dated this 23rd day of July, 1914.
HARLAND & PLACKETT,
14, East Parade, Leeds,
Solicitors for the said Executors.

GARFORTH PICTURE HOUSE.

WEEK COMMENCING AUGUST 10th, 1914.

STAR PROGRAMMES.

ALL THE LATEST AND BEST OF THE CINEMA ART.

DRAMA, HUMOUR, INSTRUCTION.

Mon., Tues., Wed., Thurs., and Friday at 7. Saturday 3, 6.30, and 8.30.

Admission: 2d., 4d., 6d. 6d. Seats may be booked
Children half-price Saturday afternoon.

Barkston Ash Parliamentary Division.

Register! Register!! Register!!!

ALL LIBERALS

Should see that their Names are on the Overseers' Lists. If not, or wrongly described,

Apply at once to—

W. J. TAYLOR,
Liberal Registration Agent,
11a, Water Lane, SELBY.

WHEN AT HARROGATE CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Teas, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists.
Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
Proprietor: H. BEEFORTH.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
Dental Rooms,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TER., HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates,
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
Mr. Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free.
on British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 35Y.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART

ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
40 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 12 O'CLOCK,
WHITKIRK LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
(Near to Crossgates Station and within four miles of Leeds).

Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will sell by Auction, in strict accordance with the conditions posted at the mart—
430 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.:—
75 NEWLY CALVEN and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE BEASTS,
60 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and COWS.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
125 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
150 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
Auctioneers' Offices: Garforth, near Leeds. (Tel. No. 26).

THE AUCTION MART, WHITKIRK.

THE NEXT SALE OF HORSES will be held on WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 19th. Entry Forms may be had, post free, at the Offices (Garforth, BARTLE & SON, Auctioneers

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
[Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank].
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers, and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs. J. CUNDALL & SON
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK, and
WHARFEDALE AUCTION MART, TADCASTER

E. RAYNER,
Monumental Sculptor,
—WOODLESFORD.—

The Latest Designs of Scrolls, Crosses, and Headstones, in Granite, Marble, and Stone.

If you cannot call, please write for designs

All Inscriptions carefully arranged & neatly cut.

Imperishable Letters a specialty.

Old Monuments Cleaned.

Office & Show Room—
Aberford Rd., Oulton

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS

See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge,
Easy Terms £2 2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-

OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

— TRY —
SANGFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt, and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
Telephone No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &C.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Gasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
47, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

Fine Low Shoes
For SUMMER and the HOLIDAYS
We specialise on low shoes. We offer you shoes at that in style, fit and comfort cannot be equalled at anything like the price. 10/6

The New Summer Models of
THOR SHOES for MEN
GATORA SHOES for LADIES
are a long way ahead of any other brands, even at shillings more per pair. Don't just accept this statement. Call and see the shoes in our windows—step into the store and ask to examine any that interest you—don't purchase unless you are absolutely satisfied that the shoes are what we represent them to be. In ladies' shoes we have splendid lines at 7/11 which compare favourably with those sold at 10/6. The name Southall stands for quality and dependability—you buy with security from Southall.—Note our address, and call the first time in the City.

SOUTHALL & Co.
8, New Station Street
(Opposite Albion Street),
LEEDS.

If your Hearing is Defective, read this:-
The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists, and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET, LEEDS.

FOR FUNERALS.
CABS AND CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS.
J. T. BUCKTON, Proprietor.
10, Basinghall Street, Boar Lane,
Telephone 1000 — Code double four eight
ALWAYS READY
LEEDS UNDERTAKERS

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11. CALL LANE.
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing
Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

DENTISTRY.
W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 36a, Boar Lane (over Messrs. Newby's, Chime Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s., each.
Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees. Advice Free.
Painless Extractions 1s. Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3515.C.

Established 1871.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.

THIS INSTITUTION WAS ESTABLISHED in 1871. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical fee whilst under treatment, and they may, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances in charitable institutions is too often omitted. The treatment is of a mild and safe character, without operation or the use of Ear Drums, Ear Cornets or other mechanical or painful appliances. Another advantage appertaining to this dispensary is its system of treatment by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances, and in isolated positions can have the advantage of Mr. ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken unless there be a reasonable hope of cure or benefit to the patient.
Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7
On Alternate Saturdays, August 8th and 22nd.
Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.
TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION.
ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s.
SPECTACLES and EYE PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.
Special Notice.—There are many cases of failing eyesight which can be speedily remedied by mild local treatment, thus dispensing with the use of glasses.

Rothwell Courier & Times
SATURDAY, AUGUST 8th, 1914.

The malingering of the working-man formed the subject of a discussion at the British Medical Association, and some novel views were stated by Sir John Collie. That "shamming" does exist every friendly society official knows, but it is doubtful that as many people are thus acting dishonestly as is believed. Sir John Collie, who may be presumed to be speaking from experience, stated "that frequently an accident so perverted the outlook of the victim that he exaggerated his symptoms, which, in course of time, loomed so large in his consciousness that he genuinely believed that he was not able to work. The extra attention paid to a simple man of the working-class by his friends and his employer impressed him with the conviction that he was the central figure of some quite extraordinary occurrence. While he was waiting for a settlement or the trial of the case, the injured man had nothing but himself to think of. He was devoid usually of literary resources, and could not concentrate his thoughts on anything but his body, so that he became a prey to all sorts of pains which in other circumstances would be ignored. The men in the vast majority of cases," said Sir John, "were able to work provided there was sufficient stimulus. The possession of compensation and club money deprived the victim of the stimulus, and the expectation of a lump sum in settlement seemed to demoralise him thoroughly, whilst labour became more and more monotonous and irksome. The stimulus of a return to work was very much less than formerly; indeed, it was often non-existent. Every recollection of the accident brought further injury to the nervous system." All this reminds one of a character delightfully portrayed by Barrie. This man, always well-dressed, had been "ill" for years, and when people sympathised with him, he managed to convey the impression that he was a great sufferer and that he accepted the infliction sent by Providence with Christian resignation. His wife, who had to work hard to keep her home together, was condemned as a "shut" by the neighbours, and when she died as a result of over-work, the husband was discovered to be a fraud. With the passing of the bread-winner, he was compelled to work. His only ailment was laziness, but the sympathy of his neighbours exercised a potent influence on his mind. It is perfectly true that the possession of a sum of money deprives some people of all desire for work, and, like the vagrants, the longer they are away from honest toil the less do they like the notion of returning to it. And it is well-known that persons drawing compensation are not the only malingerers. People of a certain temperament, if suffering slightly, can easily be made to believe they are seriously ill, and the case is recorded of a man, in excellent health, who was brought to a desperate state by a few practical joking friends. One after the other these jokers went to the poor fellow and condoled with him on his wretched appearance, and advised him to see a doctor. At first he treated the subject as a joke, but, as one friend after another commiserated with him, he began to think that he was ill, and he had decided to consult a medical man, when somehow he received enlightenment as to the trick that had been played upon him. It is obvious that the people who should deal with malingering are the doctors, and if they knowingly allow a man to impose on others, they are just as dishonest as he is. No matter how good a scheme may be, there are people who will take advantage of it to their own profit, and it is the business of the men who have the power to put a check to such impositions.

"Each individual, physically, mentally," and morally, is in the main what his parentage and his environment make him." This is the view of Professor Matthew Hey, an authority whose opinion should have weight, but few people will be inclined to accept such a sweeping statement, because it means the acceptance of the complete abrogation of personal responsibility. Still, the question is one that should not be treated with levity, as has been done in certain quarters. Parentage is an important factor in national well-being. Without adopting the arguments of the advocates of eugenics, people readily believe that the raising of a healthy race depends very large upon the character of the people, and there is no escaping the evidences of deterioration when the mentally defective are allowed to have offspring. It is not true, however, to say that "each individual" is what parentage and environment make him. Families, raised from healthy parents, turn out well, with one exception—it is often said that there is usually one black sheep in the flock—and in the one becomes a criminal how can the parentage be blamed? It is not difficult to discover such cases, and surely the parentage and environment must be judged by the majority of the family and not by the minority. The giving way to temptation sometimes lands an individual in prison, with subsequent disastrous results. But it would be wrong to relieve such an one of personal responsibility by placing it upon those who brought him into the world. Over-indulgence in drink, as the Judges have stated again and again, is the cause of the downfall of many good men, and the perpetration of serious offences, and this weakness, very often acquired, brings men down to the lowest depths of degradation. Nevertheless, the other members of the same family may have done well. While it would be foolish to accept the aforesaid doctrine and apply it generally, it may be admitted that parentage does count for much, and children of weak-willed, unhealthy, and vicious parents have a heavy handicap in life. How could it be otherwise? Not only the physical and mental defects they possess, but the environment in which they live, are a source of weakness, and if children are brought up under evil conditions they cannot altogether be held responsible. Yet that is what is assumed in this country. If boys and girls are taught in the home—the school influence is really of secondary importance—that it is their business to prey on their fellows, and that it is clever to cheat the law, is it right to mete out to them the punishment that would be given to one brought up under healthier conditions? It is easy for magistrates to hear evidence and pass sentence, but it is difficult for them to understand whether or not they are giving the treatment the particular case needs. Thousands of the denizens of slum property in town and village never have a chance in life, because the example daily set them has been an evil one, and parental responsibility is the last thing that is thought about, so fierce is the struggle for existence. "As with disease," says Prof. Hey, "so with crime—prevention is better than cure." But how is it to be prevented when conditions which no Christian country should tolerate are allowed to exist? Bound up with this great problem are many social questions—bad housing, "overcrowding," drinking habits, and the marriage of unhealthy individuals. It is wonderful how one problem hangs upon another. Under the best conditions criminals would be made, but their number would be greatly lessened. By the perpetuation of all these evils the nation has a costly bill to meet. Workhouse, asylum, and prison maintenance accounts for many millions every year, the fighting of disease is an expensive battle, and even the burial of the victims comes to a tidy sum annually. Inefficients and defectives are a weakness to the national life, and they, as well as the criminals, are the products of our social conditions, but no one has the courage to deal thoroughly with the problem, because it is so vast.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each
In Memoriam "Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

MARRIAGE.

Thompson—Sims—On Saturday, August 1st, at St. Aidan's Church, Roundhay Road, Leeds, by the Rev. Edmund Sons of John Thompson, of North View, Thorner, to Lily, only daughter of Charles Sims, of 238, Harehills Lane, Leeds.

DEATHS.

Cundall—August 1, at Holmlea, Appleton Roebuck, aged 65, Joseph Cundall.
Lister—August 2, at 23, Denton Avenue, Roundhay, in his 81st year, Charles Lister.
Robinson—August 1, at Northcote, Middleton, Emma, older daughter of the late William Robinson, of Middleton.
Ellis—August 4, at Rose Cottage, Newsam Green, Mary Ellis, widow of the late William Ellis.

IN MEMORIAM.

Ward—In ever loving memory of a dear husband and father, James Ward, of Pontefract Road, Stourton, who died August 8th, 1911.
"God will bind the broken chain
Closer when we meet again."
"Earthly loss, eternal gain."
From his ever loving wife, sons, and daughter. 2097

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

Patent List compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax.—Application completed—M. A. Harper Mitchell, Otley, an improved skirt and blouse holder. Patents sealed—F. M. Dossor, Doncaster, improved apparatus for cleaning and separating seeds, grain, meal, &c.; J. T. Bull and H. H. Hutchinson, Bawtry, improvements in horse shoes.

Golf.—On Saturday the medal competition in connection with South Leeds Golf Club took place at Rothwell Haigh. Results:—first Division—J. Pratt, 79, 4, 75; Hugh Clark, 91, 15, 76; Walter Brown, 85, 8, 78; Fred J. Brown, 82, 4, 78; S. Groves, 90, 14, 79; W. Pratt, 89, 10, 79; E. B. Lawson, 98, 16, 82; J. Prince, 97, 15, 82; P. Nicholson, 97, 15, 82. Second Division—A. Whitehouse, 85, 10, 75; C. Robinson, 97, 22, 75; J. A. Stembridge, 90, 20, 79; T. Hargreaves, 104, 20, 84.

A Boxer's Success.—On Friday night, at the Alhambra Picture House, Hunslet, the new promoter, Mr Felix Allard, placed a good programme of boxing before a large company. Charley Hart was referee, and Tommy Oates acted as timekeeper. Among other items there was a ten rounds contest between J. Fennell, Rothwell, and W. Goldthorpe, Leeds. The lads were well matched, and a hard-hitting bout was seen. Each scored well in turn, but there was rather too much clinching. Fennell was the better boxer, and very tricky in avoiding punishment, and after the full journey had been covered, Fennell was a good winner on points.

Allerton Bywater

Homing.—On Saturday the members of Allerton Bywater Homing Society sent 150 birds to take part in the race from Ambergate. Results:—Hutchinson Bros., 1,337 (two birds), Barrett 1,319 (wins pool), Simpson 1,309, Milner 1,309, Biscomb 1,279, Atkinson 1,278.

The Cricket Club.—There was a cricket club at Allerton Bywater at least thirty years ago, but in 1909 the New Silkstone and Haigh Moor Colliery Company, who employ most of the players, began to take an active interest in the athletics of the village, a cricket, football, and athletic club being formed, to the upkeep of which all the employees of the firm subscribe a penny per week. This is an arrangement which gives satisfaction to everybody concerned, and out of the funds so raised a finely appointed ground has been laid out, a circular cinder quarter-mile cycle track surrounding it. Every run is recorded outside the scorers' box by means of figured bands running on rollers, and the box is also fitted with a large clock, which would not disgrace many a public building. The club heads Pontefract and District League again this season. For the past three seasons the cricket team has been captained by Mr H. F. Smithson, the manager and agent for the colliery company.

Barwick

Mr Baxter and family, of Barwick-in-Elmet, wish to thank all friends for kind messages of sympathy and floral tributes sent during their sad bereavement.—Advt.

It will be observed by an advertisement that the fete arranged by Mr and Mrs Childe, of Potterton Hall, for the Barwick and Scholes Conservatives has been postponed.

Crossgates

Homing.—On Saturday ten members of Crossgates and District Homing Society sent 94 birds to take part in the race from Rugby. Results:—Fox 1,132, Horsby 1,094, Middleton 1,068, Linley 1,055, Haddaway 1,036, Limbert 1,020.

Fairburn

On Wednesday at Harrogate Show Mr T. E. Makin, of Fairburn, was first in the horse-leaping contest.

The honours of the leaping contest at Meltham Show on Saturday were easily gained by the pony belonging to Messrs T. E. Makin and Son, of Fairburn, for which, it is stated, a big sum was offered at the Yorkshire Show.

Homing.—On Saturday seven members of Fairburn Homing Society sent 117 birds to take part in the race from Ambergate. Results:—Green Brothers 1,572 (wins 3d. pool and nomination special), J. Fox 1,536, Lunt and Son 1,517, Barker and Sons 1,508, Barker and Grainger 1,459, J. Powell 1,413.

Garforth

Thirty men belonging to the Aberford-Ia Ambulance League have received orders to proceed to Leeds on Friday.

V. Siberry, playing for Headingley against Barwick C.C. at Barwick on Tuesday, scored 118 out of a total of 191.

Bowling.—Garforth W.M. played their return League match with Halton Travellers on Saturday, and the scores were:—Garforth W.M. 209, Halton Travellers 68. Details (Garforth W.M. names first):—M. Morritt 21 v. C. Catlow 2, W. Yeandle 21 v. B. Dickinson 10, C. Baxter 21 v. W. Adams 3, G. Hill 21 v. T. Chapman 4, F. Cockerham 21 v. J. Heseldon 8, G. Freeman 21 v. A. Mosby 9, A. Cockrem 21 v. H. Bowes 7, T. Simpson 21 v. W. Calverley 5, A. Reed 21 v. B. Smith 9, and W. H. Monks 21 v. G. Mosby 11.

Cricket.—On Monday Garforth Wesleyans played Headingley at Headingley, and the visitors won easily. Scores:—Headingley—A. Etches, c Dibb, b Brownridge, 2; H. Parker, c Johnson, b Brownridge, 3; A. Wilton, c Johnson, b Brownridge, 4; R. Boal, c Casson, b H. Siberry, 34; J. Mitchell, b H. Siberry, 11; H. Joel, c Goodall, b Hewitt, 42; H. Casson, c H. Siberry, b Goodall, 15; T. Kirkup, c H. Siberry, b Goodall, 6; H. Chambers, b Hewitt, 0; J. Murphy, b Hewitt, 0; E. Hough, not out, 1; extras, 5; total, 156. Garforth W.M.—V. Siberry, c Joel, b Boal, 75; B. Casson, c Hough, b Boal, 9; F. Siberry, c Parker, b Boal, 0; J. Goodall, b Joel, 17; R. Brownridge, c Wilson, b Parker, 20; H. Goodall, b Chambers, b Boal, 18; J. Johnson, not out, 24; Harold Siberry, b Boal, 1; H. Siberry, c Parker, b Chambers, 10; A. Hewitt, c Parker, b Chambers, 4; J. Hemsworth, b Joel, 0; H. Dibb, c Boel, b Joel, 9; extras, 0; total 171. For Garforth Hewitt captured 4 wickets for 60 runs.

Halton

On Saturday afternoon Halton Travellers' bowlers were defeated by Garforth W.M. by 209 to 68.

Hon. E. F. L. Wood, M.P., and the War.—On Saturday the Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., was one of the speakers at a Unionist meeting at Scalby. He said that we were confronted with a crisis which might involve the gravest results to European civilisation and humanity. He was perfectly certain that the House of Commons interpreted the instincts of every right-thinking Englishman when it supported the Prime Minister in presenting a solid and united front to Europe at the present time was divided into two big groups—the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente—each of which in different ways was bound by different obligations. In the old days England was able to adopt a policy of splendid isolation, but for the last 100 years the increasing cost of armaments had compelled us to depart from that policy. England, in such a matter, stood for no aggressive policy, but if a friendly power was attacked it would be supported. In view of the amount of food supply which came to us from over the seas, we could not acquiesce in any change of front or position on the part of the Power in possession of the seas from which it could command the sea-borne trade. If ever that day arrived, the days of our ees power and national independence would assuredly be numbered. (Applause).

KIPPAX

The grocers' shops in Kippax were besieged by people requiring flour on Tuesday, and stocks were speedily transferred from shop to cottage.

LINNET CLUB.—Contests each Saturday from January to August each year. Bird Fanciers are asked to note this. Entrance fee for membership, 1s. Contributions 2d. per week.—Advt.

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH.—The choir in connection with this Church had their annual trip to Cleethorpes on Monday. The party, numbering 48, went by waggonettes to Castleford, and joined the train there at 5.20. Cleethorpes being reached in good time. The weather conditions were fairly good, enabling the party to enjoy their first visit greatly. The return journey was commenced about 9.20 in the evening, and the party reached Kippax next morning at 2.45.

KIPPAX LINNET CLUB.—A special singing contest was held at the Commercial Hotel on Saturday afternoon, when thirty birds were entered to sing for ten prizes, which were given by Messrs James Farrar, G. Cawood, W. Lister, C. Sowden, S. Halliday, and W. Partridge. Results:—1 R. Plows (trinket set), 2 R. Plows (clock set and vases), 3 R. Plows (alarm clock, given by Mr. A. Halliday), 4 J. Liversidge (plain vases), 5 J. Bath (silver-mounted pipe), 6, J. Bath (4 lb. tobacco, given by Mr W. Partridge), 7 J. Liversidge (50 cigarettes, given by Mr C. Sowden), 8 J. Liversidge (pair vases, given C. Mr J. Farrar), 9 A. Cooper (1 stone of seed, given by Mr W. Lister), 10 J. Wallis (1 stone of seed, given by Mr W. Lister). The birds belonging to R. Plows and J. Liversidge tied for third place, and they decided to sing off for the prize, and R. Plows' bird won easily. Mr J. Wallis presented the prizes at the close of the contest to the winners.

LEDSHAM

Mr E. T. Parker, of Ledsham, was first for second for mare, four years and upwards, and first for mare or filly (15 miles' radius) at Harrogate Show on Wednesday.

METHLEY

A sum of £1 18s. 6d., collected at Methley Church, has been sent to the Leeds Infirmary.

HOMING.—On Saturday four members of Methley Homing Society sent 25 birds to take part in the race from Rugby. Results:—Wilkinson 981, Wright (2) 859, Armitage 843, Gallagher (6d. pool) 834, Gallagher (2s. 6d. pool) 670.

MICKLEFIELD

FATALITY.—The body of a man named Joseph Atkinson, of 12, Bland's Cottages, Micklefield, was found on the North-Eastern Railway line near Newthorpe gatehouse at about 10.45 yesterday (Thursday) night. Atkinson was apparently knocked down by the 9.50 train from Leeds to Hull while crossing the line.

MOOR ALLERTON

SUCCESS.—On Wednesday at Harrogate Show Messrs J. W. and A. Pollard, of Moor Allerton, were second and third for draught brood mare, first for draught foal, second for colt, one year, third for filly, two years, third for mare, four years and upwards, and third for mare or filly (15 miles' radius).

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Moortown, who have had a very successful season, easily defeated Arnold and Sons at Moortown. Scores:—Moortown—Wilbert, M. Topham 26, France 1, A. Topham 55, Barnfather 1, Little 9, Boothman 1, Heywood 5, Pearson 0, Marsden 2, Emmonson (not out) 6, extras 9, total 111. Arnold and Sons—Wood 6, Burton 4, Sotet 22, Holt 4, Tinsdale 3, Clay 5, Hobson 0, Parker 0, Bradbury 1, Miller 0, Tillotson 0, extras 4; total, 50.

ROUNDHAY

Mr W. Greenwood, of Roundhay and Leeds, was second for hackney brood mare at Harrogate Show on Wednesday.

GOLF.—On Saturday at the Cobble Hall Links, Roundhay, the bogey competition resulted as follows:—O. Swithenbank (8), 4 up; C. Jowett (9), 4 up; T. J. Sharrock (12), 3 up; F. Cousmedley (5), 1 up; E. Walling (6), 2 up; J. B. Crawford (12), 1 up; J. C. Mussey (5), 1 up; C. F. Thackray (4), all square; C. R. Baker (14), all square; W. H. Jones (5), 2 down; J. C. B. Smith (8), 2 down; S. Parrish (8), 2 down; Paul Rhodes, 3 down; R. Wright (11), 3 down; J. Pearce, 3 down; S. Clarke (9), 5 down.

SHADWELL

The boys of the Shadwell Industrial School are enjoying their new camping experience at Barniston Road, Scarborough. The camp, organised by the Leeds Education Committee, is being worked on military lines. The discipline, conduct, and health of the boys are good.

WOODLESFORD

HOMING.—On Saturday eight members of Woodlesford Homing Society sent eight birds to take part in the race from Rugby. Results:—Jackson 1,137, Carter 1,125, Nettleton 1,042, Hall and Pritchard 997, Higgins 851, Bayliss 729.

CAMPHOR FOR COLDS.

One of the most efficient remedies for breaking up a cold during its earliest stage is camphor, says the "Family Doctor." When the eyes begin to water, and there is the accompanying tingling of the nose and feeling of chilliness, put three drops of camphor on a lump of loaf sugar and place the sugar in the mouth.

Repeat this every fifteen minutes until four or five doses have been taken. At the same time make the bed where they will become thoroughly warm. This will usually prove effectual in breaking up a cold, if the cold is taken at its very beginning. For a child, but one drop should be placed upon the sugar, and five or six doses administered.

Another method of taking the camphor which is sometimes preferred for grown people is to put a spoonful of cream in a cup, add hot water and from ten to fifteen drops of camphor. This makes what is called a camphor julep. Camphor may be prepared by placing in a tightly-corked bottle as much camphor gum as the amount of alcohol which the bottle holds will dissolve. Place some of the gum in the alcohol and add more as this is taken up. This makes a strong, pure solution.

ENTHUSIASM AT SELBY.—An illustration of the way in which the ranks of Selby are being depleted by the war is afforded by the case of the Olympia Oil and Cake Mills at Selby, where no fewer than 300 reservists were employed. They have now been called to the colours, and those with many others employed at other works in the neighbourhood, and at the Post Office. The scenes attending their departure have been marked by both enthusiasm and pathos. Some left for their respective depots on Tuesday night, and others went by trains on Wednesday morning. Many of them are married men with young children, and many affecting farewell scenes were witnessed. As the trains moved out of the station the people assembled on the platforms cheered loudly.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS

BOARD AND ROTHWELL COUNCIL.

BOY'S SCHOLARSHIP—RISE IN FOOD PRICES.

The fortnightly meeting of Hunslet Board of Guardians was held on Wednesday at the offices at Hunslet—Mr J. Gavins (vice-chairman) presiding. Other members present were Mrs Dickenson, Father Ody, Messrs P. S. Marsden, Appleyard, W. Schofield, E. B. Pickersgill, Conyers, J. Butterick, W. Stead, Chappell, Hemingway, with the Assistant Clerk (Mr Ward).

Accounts amounting to £2,031 9s. 11d. were passed.

WORKHOUSE COMMITTEE.

The minutes of the House Committee showed that the acting master reported that he had received gifts of flowers from the Woodlesford and Rothwell Parish Churches, the Bower Road Chapel and Spiritual Church, Hunslet, and that the Beabazon workers, together with several of the nurses, were entertained to tea by Mr Farrer at Oulton on the 17th July. It was proposed by Mr Conyers, seconded by Mr W. Verity and unanimously resolved that the best thanks of the Guardians be given to the donors of flowers and to the—Beabazon Committee and Mr Farrer for their kindness in entertaining the Beabazon workers.

The Clerk submitted quotations for repair of electric light cables. It was resolved that the tender of Mr R. F. Winder at £4 10s be accepted, on the understanding that it includes everything necessary for the satisfactory completion of the job.

A letter was received from Arthur Kerbotson giving notice to terminate his engagement as temporary fitter and asking to be released on the 1st. It was resolved that Kerbotson be liberated on the 1st and that the Chairman and Clerk be empowered to engage another man on the same terms as before.

The committee had under consideration the question of painting required to be done in the institution, and made an inspection of the parts of the infirmary needing first attention. It was decided that the Ripolin paint in one of the duty rooms and a corner of the ceiling of one of the large wards on the ground floor of pavilion L, (male infirmary) be properly washed for the committee's inspection, and that the Clerk give an order and detailed instruction to Mr H. Steel for the careful and thorough execution of the work.

A letter was received from the Leeds Blind Institution expressing regret that the Guardians had been unable to place the order for tuning of pianos with them, and stating their willingness on another occasion to consider any price offered by the Guardians.

A letter was received from the Board of Control stating in reply to an enquiry by the Clerk in consequence of difficulties which had arisen in practice that they do not think it would be ultra the medical officer to give a certificate to conceal an order under sections 20 or 21 of the Lunacy Act, 1890, for the temporary detention of a lunatic or alleged lunatic, but pointing out that the Guardians can discharge such patients under Section 81 of the said Act.

The minutes were approved.

HOMES COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Children's Homes Committee they had under further consideration the offer of the Rothwell Urban District Council to allow an abatement of 5 per cent. in the charges conditional upon the Guardians continuing to receive a supply of water by meter. The Clerk submitted replies to enquiries concerning the terms and conditions of water supplies to similar institutions in seven neighbouring Unions, showing that they all received a supply by rent and at considerably less cost per head of inmates and per £ of rateable value than this concern. It was decided that it was proposed by Mr J. W. Verity, seconded by Mr. Appleyard, and unanimously resolved that the Clerk be instructed to furnish the Council with the further facts, and failing their willingness in the light of such facts to accept the generous offer of the Guardians, to suggest that the matter be made the subject of a reference to the Local Government Board, and that both sides agree to accept their opinion thereon, and also that the Clerk draw the Council's attention to the statement contained in the newspaper report of their last meeting that the Clerk had previously written stating that "the Guardians would not accept the offer" of the Council and challenge its accuracy. A further letter was received from the superintendent as to his recollection of the circumstances attending the high reading of the meter in September last, and on the motion of Mr Butterick, seconded by Mr Appleyard, it was unanimously resolved that the outstanding balance of £3 19s. 2d. on the September (1913) half-year's account be paid under protest.

Letters were received from the Leeds Education Committee respecting the proposed termination of Herbert Arrowsmith's scholarship, and expressing the hope that the Guardians will allow the boy to complete the period for which his scholarship was awarded. A letter was also received from the West Riding Education Committee stating they are unable to waive the terms of the agreement into which the Guardians have entered, and asking for payment of £6 6s., the amount due to them under the agreement. It was proposed by Mr Gaskell, seconded by Mrs. Dickenson, and unanimously resolved that application be made to the Local Government Board for sanction to the payment of £6 6s. to the West Riding Education Committee, and any sum that may be due to the Leeds Education Committee in default of notice of the lad's withdrawal from the school, and subject thereto that the charges be paid.

A letter was received from the West Riding Education Committee regarding the payment of 1s. 2d. for stationery, &c., and stating they cannot accept responsibility for these extra items which they do not consider to be covered by the scholarship allowance. It was resolved that the Guardians be recommended to waive the claim in question.

The Clerk reported that the House Committee desire this committee to play a return cricket match with them on the ground at Tofthouse, and Mr Chappell, seconded by Mrs Dickenson and unanimously resolved that the challenge of the House Committee be accepted.

The minutes were approved.

A RESOLUTION

The Chairman moved that the relieving officers, in submitting applications for relief, state not only the total income of the household from all sources, but also the net income of the applicant and the number of persons dependent on such income.

Mr Conyers said the officers could not always get the information.

The Chairman: Then they must say so.

Mr Schofield, who seconded, said he thought the proposal was necessary, although it might cause the relieving officers a little more work.

The resolution was carried.

RISE IN PRICE OF FOOD.

Mr Wright Stead (Rothwell) said he desired to move that, taking into consideration the high price of food stuffs, in cases where children were involved extra relief be given in kind.

The Chairman said he would have to give notice of that.

Mr Stead said it was no use to put this matter further back.

The Chairman: It will not be put back. It will come up in a fortnight if you give notice.

Mr Stead said he thought he was quite in order, because the Relief Committee minutes were being discussed, and seeing how commodities were rising in price, it was a question of emergency. In a fortnight they hardly knew where these people would be, especially the children.

The Chairman said that they could not make any alteration, because it would be against both the standing orders and the regulations.

Mr Stead: It is a question of emergency and not of standing orders.

The Chairman said he was out of order.

Mr Marsden said that the relieving officers had certain powers in such cases.

The Chairman said that the Clerk stated if the relief given was not sufficient the relieving officers had power to make it sufficient.

Mr Wright said that if anything took place he hoped the relieving officers had the power, but he was afraid they had not.

Mr Conyers said that the relieving officers had discretionary powers.

Mr Wright Stead: Milk?

Mr Conyers: Yes, and groceries.

Mr Stead said that a medical officer's order was required for milk.

The Chairman said that the relieving officers had power to give provisions if a person was destitute.

Mr Butterick said the Board had power to suspend the standing orders if they liked.

The Chairman said they could by a two-thirds majority.

Mr Butterick said he maintained that Mr Stead was in order.

Mr Wright then moved that the standing orders be suspended in order that the question might be discussed.

Mr Marsden asked if it would not be sufficient if the Chairman gave instructions to the relieving officers on the matter.

Mr Stead said he wanted the matter to go through the Board.

Mr Hemingway seconded.

Mr Schofield, as an amendment, moved that it be an instruction to the relieving officers in any case where there was need that the allowance be increased.

Mr Pickersgill seconded.

Mr Stead said he would support that.

The amendment was then agreed to.

RECTOR OF ADEL AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

The Rev. W. H. Draper, M.A., rector of Adel, at the Literature Section at the Cambridge Summer Meeting, lectured on "Some Tendencies of Poetry at the Present Day." In his first lecture he said the tendency in modern poetry to be considered first was what might be described as empiricism, the inclination to make changes or experiments both in subject matter and form. That tendency was fed partly by the recurrent force in human life, the love of novelty and the spirit of adventure, and partly by a widespread acquaintance with the literature and art of other ages and other countries, which was characteristic of our time. This tendency was leading to a rather general neglect of blank verse. Another sign of the times was the effort to catch the evanescent, to seize and express the slightest and most subtle shades of emotion, a literary mode corresponding to impressionism in art. Opposed to it was a tendency to be bald and matter of fact. A sign of the reviving interest in poetry was found in the existence of the Poetry Society, which was founded six years ago, and had already issued six series of poems, and had already justified its existence. A distinct phenomenon in contemporary poetry was its diversity of subject. In past periods poetry had been restricted to a comparatively few subjects and motives, but in our own day we had an astonishing diversity of subject, and yet there had been no great original genius while since Whitman and Browning. The age seemed waiting for a new original mind, but no one could tell when or where he would appear. The thing to be done was to keep poetry alive and held in honour, and in this work very much indeed might be done by extension students.

In the second lecture, Mr Draper dealt with the relation to classicalism. He said that when there arose in any literature a tendency to reaction from the present to the past, from what was contemporary to what was classical, it meant that, for some reason, the mind of the age was either dissatisfied or was exhausted with what was being written for its perusal, and turned for relief to what had the mark and sign of other men's approval. The most recent example in our literature was seen in the work of the present Poet Laureate, Mr Robert Bridges. Incidentally, Mr Draper said, the Poet Laureateship was a greater thing than the holder of it sometimes fully knew. It witnessed to the duty of publicly honouring literature and the art of poetry. One of the most interesting developments in modern poetry was the rise of the Celtic school in Ireland. Both in drama and lyrics it was achieving notable things under the leadership of Mr W. B. Yates. With regard to the effect of the immense development of magazines and newspapers in relation to modern poetry, Mr Draper affirmed that in the special vein of humorous satire and society verse scores of the journals and magazines had served literature well. Perhaps one of the most significant tendencies in the poetry of to-day was that of the linking-up of the poetry of the world. It was a movement partly at its beginning, and arising from the vast growth of inter-communication, coupled with a wider spread spirit of education. What was significant in it was that it not confined to the realm of poetry, but was present on the whole field of the intellectual life.

In the All-England angling match at Skipton Bridge on Monday Mr Atkinson, of Tadcaster, was thirty-second in the list with 144 oz.

HONOUR FOR LORD HELMSLEY.—In the London Gazette" appears a notification of the appointment of Viscount Helmsley, M.P., as a Deputy Lieutenant of the North Riding of the County of York. Viscount Helmsley is so well-known in Yorkshire that it is almost unnecessary to refer to his career. He is the grandson and heir of the Earl of Feversham, and the eldest son of the late Viscount Helmsley, M.P. (who died in 1881), and Muriel Viscountess Helmsley. He has been M.P. for the Thirsk and Malton Division since 1906, and from 1902 to 1905 was Assistant Private Secretary to the Earl of Selbourne, then First Lord of the Admiralty. He is a major in the Yorkshire Hussars, Imperial Yeomanry, and since 1904 has been Master of the Sinnington Foxhounds. He is a Director of the North Eastern Railway Company and of the Yorkshire Insurance Company, and is connected with other undertakings. He is popular with all classes and creeds in Thirsk and Malton, and is an able and influential member.

GARFORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

A MISUNDERSTANDING AND A "BREEZE."

SURVEYOR'S SALARY INCREASED.

NO INFECTIOUS DISEASE FOR A MONTH.

On Wednesday evening the monthly meeting of Garforth Urban District Council was held at the offices at Garforth—Mr J. W. Dobson (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs R. Routledge, jun. (vice-chairman), E. R. Archer, R. Routledge, sen., W. W. Hartley, H. Gascoigne, H. Chappel, T. C. Slater, and W. Goodall, with the Acting Clerk (Mr H. H. Carr), the medical officer (Dr. Teevan), the surveyor and sanitary inspector (Mr. T. Abbott), and the assistant overseer (Mr. W. Bosher).

THE COMMITTEES.

At a meeting of the Water Committee it was resolved that the Clerk write the Gas Company and state that if any streets are broken up without permission proceedings would be taken against them. The water inspector reported that for the month ending 27th July the consumption of water was 1,406,000 gallons—an average of 50,214 gallons per day for 28 days. During the month four water closets had been fixed at Milnthorp Buildings and two urinals fixed at the Picture House, and a connection made at Goodall's cottage in Barwick Lane, belonging to Colonel Gascoigne. It was agreed that the Picture House be charged 2s. per quarter for water for the urinals.

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee the plan of a workshop, proposed to be erected by R. H. Long, in Main Street, Garforth, was approved.

At a meeting of the Highways Committee the Clerk reported that he had received the papers from Mr Breed in connection with the naming of the streets, and the consideration of the matter was left over until the Council meeting. The Clerk read an application from Mr John Clarke Warde asking for a renewal of his certificate for a pawnbroking licence in connection with his shop in Station Road, Garforth, and it was agreed that it be granted. The Clerk read a letter from the manager of the Garforth Gas Co. apologising for opening out the road in Church Lane without obtaining the Council's consent. It was agreed that the stone required for the widening of Church Lane be obtained from Messrs Rickard and Co. and Garforth Colliery Co. Councillors Archer and Gascoigne and Mr Abbott were given charge in connection with the taking of the census required by the Road Board.

At a meeting of the Lighting Committee it was decided that the lamp in Beech Grove Avenue be removed to the corner of the entrance to the Back Street.

MISUNDERSTANDING—A SCENE.

On the reading of the Highway Committee minutes, Mr Hartley asked who the members of the firm of Messrs Rickard and Co. were.

The Chairman said they were Messrs Rickard and Mr Routledge, jun.

Mr Hartley said that Mr Routledge, jun., had no right to sit on a committee when business in which he was interested was being done.

Mr Archer: I can state positively that Mr Routledge, jun., did not vote.

Mr Slater said that they were not carrying out repairs; they were simply filling a hole and making a foundation, and they had adopted the cheapest course.

Mr Archer said there was no comparison between the price of stone they had got and another lot, and it was quite satisfactory for the work.

Mr Hartley: I am not saying anything about the stone being satisfactory or unsatisfactory. I am simply putting you in order.

Mr Archer asked if the hare stipulated in such a case that a member should absent himself from the meeting, or that he should not vote?

The Chairman said that he was not quite sure, and he got the book to look up the question.

Mr Archer again stated that Mr Routledge, jun., did not vote.

Mr Hartley said it was against the law. He protested against the widening of the Church Lane not necessary; and the expense was not justified. He also protested against members using their votes on committee—

Mr Archer: I think you are out of order.

Mr Hartley said he was sitting on the committee.

Mr Archer: Does the law say a member shall retire during discussion?

Mr Hartley said they had no record to show he had not voted.

Mr Routledge, jun., then came into the room, and when a member was explained to him, he said he was not interested in the firm; his wife was. He said he supposed the Labour men had brought this up.

Immediately there were protests, and Mr Hartley said it was an insulting slur.

Mr Archer: It is not the only insulting slur.

Mr Routledge, jun.: It is all rot.

Mr Chappel demanded that Mr Routledge should withdraw his remark.

Mr Routledge, jun., said he would not withdraw it.

Mr Gascoigne said that he moved the resolution as to the purchase of the stone, and he had no idea who were members of the company. He was a labour men, he supposed Mr Routledge included him.

Mr Routledge, jun.: No.

Mr Slater: I know Mr Routledge did not vote on the matter. We were pleased to get the stone because it was so much cheaper than the other. We were considering our own benefit.

The Chairman explained that, owing to a misunderstanding, he had misled Mr Hartley as to the members of the firm, and he himself was to blame.

Mr Hartley got up again, and was proceeding to give an explanation, when

Mr Routledge, sen., called him to order, and said he had spoken already.

Mr Hartley said that he never stabbed any member in the back, and what he had said he could say it in the member's presence.

Mr Routledge, jun.: Why did you not say it, then?

Mr Hartley: Because you were not here. I asked who Rickard and Co. were, and the Chairman said you were a member of the company, and I said that the minute was out of order.

Mr Chappel: He said "Labour members," and I expect he means me. I never said anything.

Mr Routledge, sen.: Just withdraw.

Mr Goodall proposed that the minutes be passed.

Mr Archer seconded.

Mr Gascoigne: I think the remark should be withdrawn. We should be better satisfied.

Mr Hartley's remarks were in order in a sense.

The Chairman: That is so.

Mr Gascoigne: I think we ought to settle the matter.

Mr Routledge, sen.: Withdraw the remark.

Mr Routledge, jun.: I am sorry if I said anything wrong.

Mr Archer: There was another remark passed. It was unrecalled for, and if there is one withdrawal I shall insist upon another.

Mr Hartley: What do you mean?

Mr Archer said it was a reflection on the statement he made that Mr Routledge did not vote.

Mr Hartley said he only said there was no record of the voting.

The minutes were passed, and the matter then dropped.

Mr Gascoigne moved that they stop the work of widening the road. He said they might have difficulty in getting money in, and he did not think they should spend any more on it at present.

Mr Routledge, jun., seconded, and this was agreed to.

TAR-SPRAYING—NEXT YEAR.

Mr Slater said that Mr Scarr was cut up about a piece of road not being tar-sprayed near the Bridge. He told him it was not the Council's fault, but that the county surveyor had not sanctioned it. He thought they should see it was done next year.

Mr Archer said that he and Mr Abbott were at a conference at Wakefield, and they saw Mr Carpenter, to whom they mentioned this matter. He said it was an overs ight, and if they would put it in the estimates next year he would allow it to be done.

HEALTH OF THE DISTRICT.

Dr. Pickersgill stated that last month there were two deaths and ten births in the area.

Mr Archer: Well done.

Dr. Pickersgill said no cases of infectious disease had been notified, and it was the best record he had ever had.

MR ABBOTT'S SALARY INCREASED.

Mr Routledge, sen., proposed that Mr Abbott's salary be increased by £13 per annum. He said he had done the work well and he was a steady and reliable man. The residents had been making application for advances, and if it went on they would eventually get more than the man who had the supervision had. He had been six years with them, and he thought they would be doing him an injustice if they did not advance his salary.

Mr Archer, who seconded, said Mr Abbott was a conscientious workman, who looked well after the interests of the Council and the ratepayers.

Mr Gascoigne asked how they were to divide the money, because Mr Abbott had so much for being surveyor and so much for being sanitary inspector.

Mr Routledge said that could be arranged easily enough.

The Chairman: At present he gets £65 and £26.

Mr Gascoigne: The advance would give him £2 a week.

Mr Routledge: He is worth it for the amount of work he has to do.

Mr Gascoigne: We have had no application from him. This is unusual.

Mr Routledge said he would propose the advance be given to him as road surveyor.

Mr Archer: That is quite satisfactory to me.

After further discussion the resolution was passed.

ANOTHER APPLICATION.

Two roadmen made application for an advance of 2s. per week.

Mr Routledge first proposed that it be not entertained at present, and then that the question be referred to the Highways Committee.

Mr Abbott said that the applicants, along with two other men, had £1 per week.

Mr Hartley proposed that the applicants be given 1s. per week.

Mr Goodall proposed that all four be given a shilling advance.

Mr Gascoigne seconded, and this was agreed to.

VARIOUS.

Mr Bosher stated that Reservists had been called up, and they had not paid their rates. In such cases he suggested that the amounts should be carried to next half-year as arrears.

The Council approved.

A letter was read from a person offering to demolish the mill chimney, and it was decided to get his terms.

The Selby Company of Territorials assembled on Wednesday in readiness to proceed to York to join their Battalion, the 5th West Yorkshire Regiment.

PRAYERS FOR PEACE.—Special prayers for peace were offered at Selby Abbey on Sunday. The Vicar (the Rev. Dr. Solloway) preaching at the evening service on a passage from the collect for the day, "O God, whose never failing providence ordereth all things," referred to the subject of the crisis which was in all minds, and expressed the fervent hope that even now the horrors of war might be averted. At other places of worship in the town special prayers were said for peace.

THE FOOTPATH DEVIATION.—The Selby Bench on Monday appointed three justices, the Rev. B. Hemsworth, Colonel Hawdon, and Mr H. Anson, to view the proposed deviation of the footpath on the river bank at Selby, near Messrs Cochrane's shipyard. The footpath follows the river bank, but on the establishment of the shipyard on the west bank of the river, some sixteen years ago, a deviation from the original path was carried out. The present proposal contemplates a further deviation. In the near future an extension of the shipyard is to be carried out.

ALLEGED BURGLARY.—Jack Smith, labourer, of no fixed address, was on Wednesday at Selby committed for trial at the West Riding Quarter Sessions on a charge of burglariously breaking and entering the dwelling-house of Mrs Annie Rimmington, widow, of The Woodlands, Brayton Road, Selby, during the early hours of the morning of July 31st. Evidence was given by Mrs Rimmington, who, o'clock Miss Jane Rimmington, the complainant's daughter, heard someone breaking the front sitting-room window immediately underneath her bedroom. She turned the gas on, opened her window, and raised an alarm. P.C.'s Oultram and Snelling, who were in an adjacent street, heard her calls. They at once entered the grounds of the house and caught the prisoner, who had his arm through a window trying to reach a small writing desk. They seized him and took him to the police station. It was found the prisoner had broken two large squares of plate glass, one in the sitting-room and the other in the dining-room. The accused had cut his hand, and bloodstains were found on the glass. Supt. Stafford stated that the prisoner had been convicted several times, the cases including larceny and shopbreaking. The Chairman commended the two constables for the prompt and smart way in which they captured the prisoner.

FAMOUS HOUSE FOR ENGAGEMENT RINGS, £1: £33 £5:5: £10:10:s £100 &c.

DIAMONDS

PENDANTS. EARRINGS, SCARF PINS, & JEWELLERY OF EVERY DESCRIPTION from £1 to £100.

SEE OUR WINDOW EXHIBIT.—ALL PRICES MARKED:

DYSONS

24,25,26, (LOWER) BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

THE LARGEST STOCK IN THE COUNTY, OF GOLD & SILVER WATCHES from 10/6 to 50 GUINEAS EACH

SPECIAL VALUE GUN-METAL LEVERS :—

The "University" 30s. The "Roughwear," 15s. The "Black Prince" 10/6.

WATCHES

OLD WATCHES, JEWELLERY & SILVER TAKEN IN EXCHANGE. VALUATIONS for PROBATE, &c.,

MOST RELIABLE HOUSE FOR REPAIRS

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE. Age Limit, 16-60.

Section	Death	Total Disablement up to 26 weeks	PREMIUMS One Week	Two Weeks	One Month
	£	Per Week
A	500	50/-	3/-	5/	10/-
B	250	25/-	1/6	2/6	5/-
C	100	10/-	9d.	1/-	2/-

These insurances do not cover Professional or Trade Risks, or obviously dangerous adventures.

GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LTD., PERTH, SCOTLAND.

Assets nearly £2,000,000. Established 1885

Specially Re-insured with the GENERAL ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION LIMITED.
Chief Offices:
General Buildings, Perth, Scotland.
General Buildings,
Aldwych, Strand, London, W.C.
F. NORD-MILLER, J.P., General Manager.

To whom, on behalf of the proprietors, Notice of Claims under the following conditions must be sent within seven days of accident.

£100 will be paid to the next-of-kin of any person who is killed by an accident to the passenger train in which the deceased was travelling as a ticket-bearing or paying passenger, or who shall have been fatally injured thereby, should death result within one calendar month after such accident. Provided that the person so killed or injured has upon his or her person this page with his or her usual Signature, written prior to the accident on the space provided below, which, together with the giving of notice within seven days to the above Corporation, is the essence of this contract.

This Insurance only applies to persons over 14 and under 65 years of age, and holds good for the current issue only.

No person can recover under more than one Coupon Ticket in respect of the same risk.

Signature.....

This Coupon must not be sent out, but left intact in the "Skirrack Courier," as that, being dated, forms the only evidence of its currency.

TELEPHONE 1877 CENTRAL.
BUCKTON'S CABS OR TAXIS "We Never Sleep"
END OF CLAYPIT LANE LEEDS TOP OF CORNMARKET

ESTABLISHED 1849.

W. T. GRISDALE,
Painter and Decorator,
36, Austhorpe Road,
Crossgates.

Pattern Books sent to any Address. Estimates Free.

Russell & Russell, Ltd.
(Late A. C. WANSTALL),
Complete House Furnishers
and Piano Dealers,
201-3-5, North Street,
LEEDS.

ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET and Easy Payment Terms sent on receipt of a Postcard.

FOR TOWN OR COUNTRY.
FOR BUSINESS OR PLEASURE.

THE FABOR LOUNGE SUIT
IT AT !!
Fabor 45/-
Is the Hall-mark of Perfect Tailoring.
LOUNGE SUITS from 35/-
COSTUMES from 2 Guineas.
Tailor Made & Perfect Fit Guaranteed.
24, Queen Victoria Street, and County Arcade, LEEDS.

YORK AND AINSTY PUPPY WALK.

THE WINNERS.

STINGY PEOPLE AND THE POULTRY FUND.

The annual judging of the young entry of the York and Ainsty Hounds took place in splendid weather yesterday (Thursday) week at the Kennels, Acomb, where the Master, Lord Furness, entertained a large number of members and supporters of the Hunt and of tenant farmers in the country. There was a capital entry of young stock, including eight couples of dogs and 11½ bitches. The hounds exhibited marked a considerable improvement on former years, the bitches being a particularly fine lot, and competition was keen. The prizes were finally awarded as follows:—

Dog—1, Rallywood (South Devon Viceroy—Newmarket), whelped July, 1913, Mr. Richardson, High Poppleton; 2, Rector (South Devon Viceroy—Newmarket), Mr Rogerson, Copmanthorpe; 3, Spanker (Bramham Moor Senator—Symmetry), May 7, 1913, Mr Shields, Shipton. Bitches—1, Trophy (Bramham Moor Tomboy—Trespass), May 9, 1913, Mr Dunnington, Aline; 2, Cowslip (Lord Zetland's Coroner—Virtue), February, 1913, Lord Furness; 3, Singwell (Holderness Sergeant—Secret), May 5, 1913, Mr Lofthouse, Bishopthorpe; reserve, Trilby (Bramham Moor Senator—Truthful), April 25th, 1913, Mr Hall, Copmanthorpe. Couples—1, Telltale and Trifle (Bramham Moor Tomboy—Trespass), May 9, 1913, Mr C. Burton, Green Hammerton; reserve, Rally and Rector (South Devon Viceroy—Newmarket), July 6, 1913, Mr Rogerson.

The judges were Peter Farrelly, huntsman of the Bramham Moor, and W. Freeman, huntsman of Lord Zetland's Hunt.

A large number of county people, well-known in hunting circles, were present at the luncheon which was held subsequent to the judging. Lord Furness presided, and was supported by Lady Furness, Major Miles J. Stapylton, Lady Vivian, Mr E. Lyett Green, Mr. F. Wailes-Fairbairn, Mrs Wailes Fairbairn (Askham Grange), Sir Edward Green, Bart., Mr T. R. Wright, Mr Guy Fairfax (Bishopsgarth), Mrs F. W. Slingsby, Mr Guy Fairfax-Galloway (Askham Bryan), Mr J. C. Wilmot-Smith, Mr Guy Palmes, Miss Joan Palmes, Lieut-Colonel and Mrs E. W. Stanyforth, Colonel and Mrs N. T. Smith, Mr and Mrs E. Lane Fox (Walton), Major Swetenham, Mr C. Slingsby, Mr and Mrs G. Berry, Mr W. Coates, Colonel, R. F. Meysey-Thompson, etc.

After the loyal toasts had been duly honoured, Mr T. R. D. Wright submitted that of the "Hunt Committee," and said he believed the York and Ainsty Hunt was one of the best organised in the country. They had always plenty of good sport, and were fortunate in not having many changes. There was also an absence of ill-feeling and trouble, such as they sometimes heard of in some hunts. That state of things was due to the admirable Hunt Committee. They had a great deal to do, and they did it well, and it was owing to their efforts that the Lunt enjoyed the good sport it did, and that there was no fuss, trouble, or correspondence. Everything went smooth and easy.

Mr. E. Lyett Green, in replying, said the Committee's duties were made easy by the admirable sub-committee. He hoped the present popular Master would continue to fill the office until senile decay finished off the Committee. (Laughter and applause).

Colonel Meysey-Thompson, giving the toast of the covert owners, said he was probably the oldest follower of the Hunt, for his first season with it was that of 1858-59. (Applause). He believed that it was always a terrible disappointment to a covert owner to see his covert to be drawn blank.

Mr. W. F. Wailes-Fairbairn, in responding, said he thought it was a duty if a man had a covert to make it a fox covert's fault if he was sent of it. (Applause). One reason was that without hunting things would be in a very bad way in this country. Hundreds of people who had money and spent money would shut up their houses and go away if there was no hunting. He believed that £20,000,000 a year was circulated through hunting, and, therefore, it was the duty of everybody to do their best to keep hunting going. That particularly applied to covert owners, because if they had no coverts they could not have foxes. There was a certain amount of bother and expense about keeping coverts, but the owner was amply repaid. It was a great joy to him when he saw his covert drawn and found a fox or two.

Lord Furness proposed the health of the puppy-walkers, and Mr Deighton and Mr Dunnington responded.

Colonel Stanyforth submitted the health of the retiring Master, Major Stapylton, who had been associated with the Hunt as Master or joint Master for the past six years. Circumstances had now arisen which had compelled their dear old friend to resign the joint Mastership, but the Hunt hoped that for many years he would continue with them, and so long as he did it was perfectly certain their old Master would do all he possibly could for the sake of the York and Ainsty Hunt. (Applause).

Major Stapylton, in replying, said he saw the Government were very anxious to help hunting, and had brought in a measure by which poultry owners were to be compensated for the damage done by foxes. The unfortunate thing from the point of view of the Hunt, was that the Government did not propose to find the money. That would rest on the shoulders of the subscribers, and it might be by the hunting of some subscribers who had been a little bit stingy to the poultry fund that they might do more for that object. He knew that during the greater part of Mr Green's Mastership and his own they had found it very difficult to make ends meet in the poultry fund, and the deficiency was made up out of Mr. Green's own private pocket. (Applause). By no means all the claims made were justifiable; all the destruction of poultry was not due to foxes. He had three or four hundred head of poultry, and had lost three, foxes and dogs by rats. But there was no claim against the rats. (Laughter). When a fox once took to eating poultry there was nothing for it but to kill it, but the killing should be done properly and not by the time with a gun—(applause)—and until the fox was killed by the hounds the farmer should be compensated fully for the poultry the fox had destroyed.

Mr H. Payne Galloway proposed the Judges, to which Farelly and Freeman responded.

Mr Melrose proposed the health of the Master, and Lord Furness, responding, promised to do his best to furnish good sport. Three things were essential—foxes, hounds, and a good huntsman. He had a good huntsman in Compston, the best of fox preservers, and he hoped that in a few years he would be able to lift the hounds up to a still higher standard.

The toast of the retiring hon. secretary (Major Eley) was proposed by Major Stapylton, the new hon. secretary, Mr C. Wilmot-Smith, responding.

MIDDLETON

The underground workers at the New Pits, Middleton Colliery, have sent £9 17s 6d. to Leeds Infirmary, and the surfacemen at the New Pit £2 2s.

BARKSTON ASH BOWLING ASSOCIATION

AIREDALE ASSOCIATION AGAIN DEFEATED.

This return engagement was decided on the Block Bull green, Horsforth, on Tuesday.

The first encounter at Crossgates, Barkston Ash gathered a head of 92 points, and this was further increased by 122 points on Tuesday's games. Scores:—Barkston Ash 376, Airedale 254.

Details (Barkston Ash names first):—

Hutchinson (Pres.) 21 v. Holdroyd 18.

Green (hon. sec.) 21 v. Rodgers (hon. sec) 9.

Simpson (vice-pres.) 21 v. Cowling (vice-pres.) 14.

Thomas (Halton) 21 v. Richardson (Meanwood) 11.

Cain (Halton) 21 v. Wright (Horsforth Cons.), 2.

Vince (Halton) 21 v. Hudson (Stanhope) 9.

Cockerton (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. Gough (Meanwood) 8

Hill (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. Noble (Stanhope) 17.

Reed (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. Sheldon (Tingley) 7.

Merritt (Garforth W.M.) 21 v. Hogg (Horsforth) 20.

Firth (Crossgates) 21 v. Judson (Meanwood) 16.

Semper (Crossgates) 12 v. Fawcett (Horsforth) 21.

Judd (Crossgates) 11 v. Reece (Horsforth) 21.

Cowl (Crossgates Rec.) 21 v. North (Horsforth Cons.) 8.

Fisher (Crossgates Rec.) 21 v. Hargreaves (Stanhope) 5.

Barker (Garforth Cons.) 19 v. Cowling (Tingley) 21.

Hollay (Tadcaster) 21 v. Duckett (Tingley) 13.

Collins (Tadcaster) 21 v. Drury (Pres.) 9.

Dransfield (Garforth Cons.) 21 v. Bradley (Horsforth) 19.

OULTON MOTOR-CYCLING FATALITY

OPENING OF THE INQUEST.

Mr Thomas Benjamin Harris, son of the Chief Constable of Wakefield, died at the Leeds Infirmary on Friday morning from the injuries he sustained in a motor-cycling accident near Oulton on Thursday night. The inquest was opened at the Leeds Town Hall on Friday by the City Coro er, Mr. J. C. Malcolm. Formal evidence of identification, and medical evidence was given, and the proceedings were then adjourned. The police are investigating the circumstances of the collision, which is supposed to have taken place.

The father, Mr Thomas Middleton Harris, identified the body as that of his son, who was 26 years of age, and a bank clerk, residing with the witness at 3, St. John's Square, Wakefield. His son left home at five minutes past seven on Thursday night, saying that he was going for a ride. He had to call in Leeds to get some tools on the way back, and was riding a new 4 h. p. motor-cycle which he only bought on Monday. For a considerable time he had been accustomed to riding, though he had only possessed a machine of his own for six months. He was coming home from Leeds on the Doncaster Road when the accident occurred. A quarter past eight on Friday morning the witness heard that his son was on the way to the Leeds Infirmary, where he saw him later in an unconscious condition. His son's wings believed his son serious condition.

The inquest was adjourned until he died.

The Coroner: Was he in good health?

Witness: Yes. He was a robust healthy young man.

The Coroner: I do not want to go into further particulars, as I do not think it advisable at present. The case will have to be adjourned.

Dr. Flint, from the Infirmary, said that he received Mr Harris in an unconscious condition. He had torn his right ear and was bruised on the left side of the head, and on the right temple there was also suffering from compound fractures of the right arm and the right leg, and died two hours after admission. On making a post-mortem examination, he found that Mr Harris had sustained a fracture of the base of the skull and laceration of the brain. The immediate cause of death was shock and injury to the head. All the injuries were consistent with a fall.

In answer to the Coroner, Police Sergeant Matthews, of Stourton, stated that there were some circumstances which required investigation, and on that he recommended an adjournment of the case.

The inquest was adjourned to August 11th.

The father expressed his thanks for the uniform courtesy and kindness which the police and everyone associated with the case had shown.

The Coroner: You have the sympathy of myself and the jury.

A ROUNDHAY DIVORCE CASE.

WENT OFF WITH WINNIE.

In the Divorce Court on Friday Mr Justice Bargrave Deane heard the petition of Mrs Edith Emily Barker for the dissolution of her marriage with George Valentine Barker on the grounds of his desertion and misconduct. The case was undefended.

Mr Noel Middleton, for the petitioner, said the parties were married in May, 1896, at the Methodist Free Church, Harrogate, and afterwards lived together at Gledhow Wood Road, Roundhay, and other places. There were two children.

The marriage was happy until the spring of 1910, when the husband began to pay attention to a girl named Winnie Ragdale. One night when the wife was away from home respondent had this girl to stay at the house. He explained the matter, however, in a way which satisfied the petitioner at the time, but he continued to associate with Winnie Ragdale, and that resulted in quarrels.

On December 15th, 1910, Mr Barker left his wife, telling her that he was going to get an engagement on the variety stage. He did not return to her, but subsequently sent her a letter, and on going to London she found that he was living with Miss Ragdale.

Mrs Harry Caroline Kerry, of Chestnut Road, Tottenham, said that respondent and co-respondent stayed at her house as Mr and Mrs Valentine George. The co-respondent was in the Karno troupe, and acted under the name of "Ragdale."

His Lordship granted a decree nisi, with costs and custody of the children.

PRUNE SHAPE—Wash and soak a pound of prunes overnight in one pint of cold water. Next day stew them gently in the same water till tender, with three ounces of castor sugar and the grated rind and strained juice of one lemon. Strain them and save the syrup. Halve and stone the prunes, crack about half the stones, blanch and split the kernels, and add them to the fruit. Dissolve seven sheets of gelatine in the syrup, strain it on the fruit, mix thoroughly and press into a wet mould. Turn out when cold and set, cover the top with whipped cream, and decorate with crystallised cherries and angelica.

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

LANE FOX CUP-SEMI-FINALS.

The semi-finals in the Lane Fox Cup Competition will be played on Saturday, and interesting contests will likely be seen at Garforth and Church Fenton. Scarcroft and South Milford will decide their match at Garforth, and, having regard to the erratic manner in which Milford have been performing, I am inclined to favour the chances of Scarcroft, who have certainly shown greater consistency throughout the season. It must not, however, be overlooked that Milford have given one or two remarkable performances this season, and the "Crofters must regard their task as no light one. Crossgates have improved as the season has advanced, but they do not seem to be as strong either in bowling or batting as Tadcaster, and the Collarians will probably work their way into the final. O' course, if Crossgates last as they did last Saturday there is no another tale to tell.

SENIOR LEAGUE GAMES.

Church Fenton and Church Fenton Sycamore beal their return match, and the former were the superior combination. Having first issue of the wicket, Church Fenton registered the respectable total of 85—the highest score, I think, they have made this season—and Atha batted well for 22. W. Claughton for 20, and W. Mosby for 11. C. Poulter was the only Sycamore trundler to meet with success, and his seven wickets were got for 30 runs—a highly creditable performance. Sycamore's score was 53 (Holt 10), and Dixon secured five wickets for 25, and W. Claughton had three for 11 runs.

Cawood had a five wickets' victory over Saxton. The match was at Cawood, and Saxton were sent back for 126, Jackson taking 6 wickets for 16, and S. Lund 4 or 8. For a loss of five wickets Cawood made 51, and the feature of the match was Jackson's score of 33 (not out).

Tadcaster made their position at the head of division 1 secure, and they have finished with three points ahead of South Milford's score. The latter had made some good tonings to the first match, would have gone forward to the semi-final had they won a second time, for they would have had one point more than the Collarians, but they failed to repeat their success. They rattled up 95, and E. Atkinson scored 21. R. Sutton 20, and A. Atkinson 14. The bowling honours fell to Tadcaster's lot to Arthur Swindin, whose five wickets cost 25 runs only, while Wyst had 2 for 5, Baker 2 for 34, and Herbert 1 for 22. The Collarians won handsomely by four wickets, and H. Raper made 26 not out), Mason 24, and Garbutt 21. E. Atkinson captured four of the wickets for 22 runs. South Milford will now concentrate their efforts on the Lane Fox Cup Competition.

Hilltop did not do themselves justice when opposed to Scarcroft, and it is possible that the reputation of their doughty opponents was a factor in their overthrow. They gave a remarkably poor display, at any rate, and 29—Heaps was credited with 17, there were five "extras," and ten men only scored among them—was no score for the team. Stead obtained two wickets for no runs, C. Johnson had four for 6 runs, and D. Burton four for 8. Scarcroft lost a wicket getting the runs necessary for victory, and Thompson made 13 (not out).

Great Preston, in their final match, have secured the points they have been striving for all the season, but which up to Saturday had eluded them, and they deserve them. No team has fought more pluckily than they have, but they have had good scores, too. Their opponents were Barwick, who were dismissed for 40 (Bowes 19), and this was largely because of about by the fine bowling of Thompson, who had seven wickets for 17 runs. T. Wiggleswortb secured two wickets for one run, and Green had one for seven runs. Preston passed their opponents' figures with eight wickets in hand, and R. Wiggleswortb scored 15 (not out) and T. Wiggleswortb 13 (not out).

Garforth, who might have been in the semi-final had their fielding been a shade smarter, had no difficulty whatever in defeating Micklefield, who thus finished third in their division. The match was played at Micklefield, and the visitors, who batted first, opened in distinctly promising style. S. Glover and H. Prime were, as usual, the first batsmen, and they put on a very creditable total for a remunerative one, the former scoring 16 and the latter 30. Subsequently W. Glover registered 14 and T. Ballance made 18. The total being run to 85, Townsend was the best of the five Micklefield trundlers, taking 5 wickets for 32, while Stones obtained 3 for 29, and S. Taylor had 2 for 15. T. Ballance and G. Read bowled so well that they had the homesters out for 54. and E. Stones contributed no fewer than 20. In both Garforth and Micklefield greater interest is being shown in the game, and strong sides should be available next season.

Holton Wesleyans continue their triumphs. They went to Collingham on Saturday, and, as they usually do, they did not score a century, they got sufficient for the day. The winners' total was 72, and S. Batty registered 27 and Stephens 16. Gibson bowled well for Collingham, his four wickets being secured for 21 runs, while Foster obtained five for 29 runs. The losers' total was 43, and the Bells were in grand form with the leather. C. Bell had four wickets for 10, and O. Bell had five for 28.

Whitkirk gave another poor exhibition, and it is difficult to account for their falling-off. They went to Shadwell full of hope, and with the fervent intention of securing a couple of points, but the homesters proved themselves superior all-round. The hosts were got rid of for 43, of which R. H. Moss had 12 and W. L. Moss 11, and their bowling honours were brought about by the excellent bowling of Barrett, who obtained 6 wickets for 16, while Heaton claimed 3 for 19. For a loss of nine wickets Shadwell put up a total of 73, Barrett was credited with 17 (not out) and Freeman with 15 (not out). Pawson captured 2 wickets for 16, and Ingle had one for 21 runs.

Crossgates inflicted a crushing defeat on Crossgates Wesleyans, who were not represented by their usual team. The feature of the Wesleyans' innings was the batting of Webster and Mackay, who were the only Sykes. The Wesleyan team captain was in capital form, and he trounced the bowling right merrily until Sykes came along and knocked his bails off. His score was 51, and the total was 91. Sykes, who is proving himself a very versatile player, sent down six overs, of which three maidens, and he secured 6 wickets for 5 runs. Harvey's two wickets cost 25. Burnell's one 5, and White's one 18. Crossgates won by nine wickets, and Burnell scored 50 (not out), Sykes 23, and Burnton 14 (not out). The Wesleyans tried six bowlers, but the attack was very weak.

JUNIOR LEAGUE RESULTS.

Tadcaster A, at home, defeated South Milford A, and maintained their position at the head of affairs in division 1. Milford's score was 40 (A. Lindley 19), and five of their wickets fell to A. Taylor for 13, while A. Smart had 3 for 20. Tadcaster scored 41 for a loss of five wickets, Hobbs claiming 19 and Kettlewell 14. Lindley obtained 3 wickets for 19, and J. Hill had 2 for 20.

Barkston are improving. They went to Kirk Deighton, and, although the chances of winning were against them, they brought off a creditable win. The homesters made 51 (Linfoot 21), and White had 3 of their wickets for 5, Wood 5 for 20, and Rhodes 2 for 23. Barkston scored 54 for a loss of three wickets, Holmes claiming 15, Wright 12 (not out), and Rhodes 11.

Aberford were too strong for Barwick A. The winners, who had choice of ground, scored 85 (J. Hannan 30 and A. Lupton 28), and Lumb was the most skilful of the Barwick trundlers, taking five wickets for 13. Barwick were sent back for 24, and F. Walton claimed seven wickets for 9, while J. Inman had three for 9.

Scarcroft A proved much too good for Micklefield A, who were beaten by seven wickets. The losers' score was 63 (Simpson 13, Kilburn 12, not out, and Walton 10), and the Lileys had the bowling honours. W. Liney's four wickets cost 15 runs, and J. Liney's 4 were got for 28 runs. Towards Scarcroft's total of 66 for 3 wickets, J. Liney contributed 37 (not out) and E. Hunter 29. A. Moakes had 2 wickets for 19, and G. Shillito one for 8 runs.

Great Preston A gave Halton A a sound drubbing. The match was at Preston, and the homesters put on 138 (H. Wiggleswortb 34, not out, Howson 27, W. Thompson 15, H. Colley 13, and Hy. Lilley 12), and Holton were dismissed for 48 (Jennett 24). For the winners H. Colley had 3 wickets for 8, and W. Oldham 5 for 23

Crossgates Wesleyans A defeated Crossgates A at Old Manston. The homesters compiled 112 (H. Brook 28, C. Halliday 25, A. Brook 22, and H. Thompson and Batty 11 each), and T. Hague secured five wickets for 28, and W. Wilkinson 4 for 29. Crossgates had to be content with 58 (Walker 16, H. Holliday 14, and Linley 10). A. Brook bowled with remarkable effect, for 19 runs. Tadcaster A won by seven wickets, and F. Siberry scored 22 and H. Siberry 10 (not out). Mackay captured two wickets for 4 runs.

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

WHITKIRK A. v. GARFORTH WES.—At Whitkirk. Scores:—Whitkirk—W R Tate 1, C Nowell 0, W Cuttle 14, H Nowell 0, Wood 0, E Pearson 0, F Webb 3, E McKay 14, G White (not out) 0, M Wainwright 6, R H Wood 0, Bryce, 0, extra, 1; total, 47. Garforth—W. Ward 8, F Siberry 7, Goodall (not out) 7, R Brownridge 0, H Siberry (not out) 10; extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 49.

ABERFORD v. BARWICK A.—At Aberford. Scores:—Aberford—J Blakey 1, J Connell 0, H Abbott 4, A Lupton 28, W Smith 3, E McKay 14, G Wright 0, W Wainwright 6, R H Wood 0, Bryce, 0, extra, 1; total, 47. Garforth—W. Ward 8, F Siberry 7, Goodall (not out) 7, R Brownridge 0, H Siberry (not out) 10; extras, 2; total (for 3 wkts.), 49.

ABERFORD v. BARWICK A.—At Aberford. Scores:—Aberford—J Blakey 1, J Connell 0, H Abbott 4, A Lupton 28, W Smith 3, E McKay 14, G White (not out) 0, M Wainwright 6, R H Wood 0, Bryce, 0, extra, 1; total, 47. Barwick—A. Mason 0, J. Nutton 7, B Pickles 3, F Lindley 1, E Capper (not out) 0; extras, 3; total, 85. Barwick—Walton 0, Cockburn 0, Parkin 2, Lumb 0, Speight 0, Markham 0, Coulthard 1, Wilson 0, Poulter, 4, Parker 2, Drake (not out) 0, extras, 6; total, 24.

SCARCROFT A. v. MICKLEFIELD A—At Scarcroft. Scores:—Micklefield A.—L. Meakin 8, W Town end 3, Siberry 0, Goodall 5, T Walton 10, A Moakes 2, T Limbert 0, W Kilburn (not out) 12, J Atkinson 4, C Ragan 0, A Town end 3, extras, 5; total, 52. Scarcroft—J Liney (not out) 37, J W Smith 0, E Guest 0, E Hunter, 29, T Linley (not out) 0, total (for 3 wkts.), 66.

TADCASTER A. v. SOUTH MILFORD A—At Tadcaster. Scores:—South Milford A.—J. Hill 1, F. Crawford 1, L. Kettlewell 0, A. Hobbs 18, A Chilton 3, A Lindley 10, J Talbot 5, H Wilson 5, R Chilton 1, L Wilson 2, R Holgate (not out) 2, extras, 2; total, 90. Tadcaster A.—A Aldous 0, J Johnson 0, A Shearsmith 0, J T Kettlewell 14, H Taylor 2, A Taylor (not out) 2, W Iredale (not out) 2; extras, 2; total (for 5 wkts.), 41.

KIRK DEIGHTON v. BARKSTON ASH.—At Kirk Deighton. Scores:—Kirk Deighton—E. Foster 11, T Nicholson—A Swann 3, J Beasley 0, H Oxley 0, T H Raine 5, J Oxley 7, T Beasley 5, G White 0, R Nicholson (not out) 4, C F Oxley 2, Wilkinson 5; extras, 5; total, 51. Barkston Ash—W White 2, J Haines 15, P Rhodes 11, Weight (not out) 12, W Woods (not out) 5; extras, 6; total (for 3 wkts.), 54.

GREAT PRESTON A v HALTON A—At Great Preston. Scores:—Preston—F Hutchinson 3, H Lilley 1, G Wiggleswortb 9, Hy. Lilley 12, W Howson 27, W Thompson 15, A Wiggleswortb 2, H Wiggleswortb 34, W Oldham 7, W Colley 3, H Colley 13, H Firth 7, extras, 8; total, 138. Halton—Clark 4, Longdon 4, Brazil 22, Haigh 1, Guest 0, Dobson 6, Todd 5, Simpson (not out) 3, Smith 0, A Colley 0, Bowers 0, extra, 1; total, 48.

CROSSGATES WES. A. v. CROSSGATES A.—At Old Manston. Scores:—Crossgates Wes.—H. Thompson 11, H Brook 28, C Holliday 25, Selman 1, A Brook 22, E Beaumont 0, Walker 2, R. Beaumont 4, J Stephenson 1, E C White 2, Batty (not out) 11; extras, 5; total, 112. Crossgates A.—T Hague 0, W Wilkinson 3, H. Linley 18, Holliday 14, W. Turner 2, W. H Smith 0, T Hague 4, C Whiting 0, A Curtis 4, W Walker 16, W Glover 0, H Slater (not out) 3; extras, 2; total, 58.

WETHERBY

Mr Harold Blackburn, after alighting in his aeroplane at Stockeld Park, Wetherby, ran against a hedge, and damaged one of the planes of his machine.

LADIES
BLANCHARD'S PILLS
are unrivalled for all irregularities, &c., they speedily relieve and bring about Nature's desired end. Sold by Chemists throughout the country, 10/- Outfits, Blister Applied, Free. They are the Original Pennyroyal Pills. Beware of Imitations. Ask for BLANCHARD'S Pills and Blister of Sir John Forbes, Bart. Made in boxes, 1/1½, by Sheriff Brandreth, Taylor's Yard, Sherlock Street, Birmingham, and all Chemists. Agent for Rothwell, Mr. ELSTON LANE, LONDON. Prize Samples and Valuable Pamphlet, 1d. stamp.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	10	9	1	0	18
South Milford	10	7	2	1	15
Cawood	9	3	3	3	9
Saxton	9	3	3	3	9
Church Fenton	9	3	6	0	6
Church Fenton Sycamore	10	1	7	2	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Scarcroft	10	9	1	0	18
Garforth	10	8	2	0	16
Micklefield	10	6	4	0	12
Holton	10	5	5	0	10
Barwick	10	1	9	0	2
Great Preston	10	1	9	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	10	9	1	0	18
Crossgates	10	7	3	0	14
Shadwell	10	6	4	0	12
Whitkirk	10	4	6	0	8
Crossgates Wesleyans	10	3	7	0	6
Collingham	10	1	9	0	2

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A.	12	10	2	0	20
Ulleskelf	11	8	3	0	16
South Milford A.	11	6	5	0	12
Kirk Deighton	11	6	5	0	12
Bramham	10	3	7	0	6
Sherburn White Rose	10	3	7	0	6
Barkston Ash	11	2	9	0	4

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth A	11	10	1	0	20
Scarcroft A.	11	9	2	0	18
Great Preston A.	12	6	6	0	12
Halton A.	11	5	6	0	10
Aberford	11	4	7	0	8
Micklefield A.	11	3	8	0	6
Barwick A	11	1	10	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wesleyans	10	8	2	0	16
Swillington and Colton	9	3	6	0	6
Crossgates A.	10	5	5	0	10
Crossgates Wes. A	10	5	5	0	10
Whitkirk A.	9	3	6	0	6
Halton Wesleyans A	9	3	7	0	6

E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY

LANE FOX CUP—SEMI-FINAL TIES

Tadcaster v. Crossgates. Messrs T. Mathers (Great Preston) and H. Woodbridge (Kirk Deighton).

South Milford v. Scarcroft. Messrs T. Crosland (Micklefield) and W. Crosland (Barwick).

JUNIOR LEAGUE

South Milford A. v. Kirk Deighton. Messrs T. Ambler (Church Fenton Syc.) and T. Carter (Tadcaster).

Barkston Ash v. Bramham. Messrs T. Poulter (Church Fenton) and G. Westerman (Sherburn).

Sherburn W.R. v. Ulleskelf. Messrs C. Morton (Barkston Ash) and H. Bell (Saxton).

Micklefield A. v. Aberford. Messrs F. Hebden (Garforth) and A. Hall (Garforth).

Scarcroft A. v. Garforth A. Messrs W. Nicholson (Halton) and C. Plews (Halton Wes.).

Halton A. v. Barwick A. Messrs F. Pickersgill (Scarcroft) and A. Barton (Scarcroft).

BARKSTON ASH SENIOR LEAGUE.

CHURCH FENTON v. CHURCH FENTON SYCAMORE —At Church Fenton. Scores:—

Church Fenton—F. Jackson, c Moore, b C Poulter, 1; A Claughton, b Whittingham, 4; T Atha, b C Poulter, 22; W. Claughton, b C Poulter, 8; A Thompson, b C Poulter, 8; W Claughton, b C Poulter, 20; W. Mosby, run out, 11; W. Dixon, b C Poulter, 0; C Poulter, b Dolphin, 8; C Poulter, b A B Holgreaves, b C Poulter, 0; A Ruston, not out, 3; extras, 5; total, 85.

Church Fenton Sycamore—G Foxton, c A. Claughton, b W Claughton, 7; A Poulter, b W Claughton, 0; E. Poulter, b W Claughton, 6; C. Poulter, run out, 2; A. Holt, b W Dixon, 10; A Moore, c Holgreaves, b Dixon, 2; D Poulter, b Dixon, 3; J. Harrison, c Thompson, 4; A Dalby, b C Bell, 7; E. Dawson, c Stephens, b O Bell, 0; M Dalby, c C Bell, b O Bell, 0; D. Dawson, not out, 1; extras, 5; total, 43.

CROSSGATES V. CROSSGATES WES.—At Crossgates. Scores:—

Crossgates Wes.—C. Brook, b Burnell, 6; G Webster, b Sykes, 51; G Umpleby, lbw, b Sykes, 0; E Halliday, c White, b Harvey, 6; C. Poulter, run out, 2; A. Harvey, 4; E Mills, c Goodall, b Sykes, 1; V Thompson, c White, b Sykes, 5; G Willans, not out, 0; C H Walker, c Goodall, b Burnett, c Wilson, b Sykes, 0; C. Holliday, b Sykes, 0; extras, 3; total, 91.

Crossgates—Burnell, not out, 50; Sykes, 23; Willans 8; Brook, 7; Harvey, 5; Webster, not out, 16; extras, 5; total (for 1 wkt.), 94.

SHADWELL v. WHITKIRK—At Shadwell. Scores:—

Whitkirk—Taylor, b Barrett, 1; Milford, b Heaton, 1; Coultas, st Barnett, b Heaton, 8; Shepherd, c Barrett, b Heaton, 8; J Shepherd, lbw, b Barrett, 1; Pawson, run out, 0; Ingle, b Barrett, 2; W Moss, c Barrett, b Heaton, 11; R Moss, b Barrett, 12; H Scott, c Metcalfe, b Barrett, 0; Smith, not out, 0; extras, 7; total, 43.

Shadwell—Barrett, b Pawson, 2; Heaton, not out, 17; Flint, b Pawson, 0; Metcalfe, b Ingle, 7; Freeman, not out, 15; extras, 4; total, 45.

GREAT PRESTON v. BARWICK-IN-ELMET—At Barwick. Scores:—

Barwick—F. Lumb, b A Thompson, 0; W Hartley, b A Thompson, 0; G Bowes, b A Thompson, 10; H Walton, c Colley, b Green, 0; J Robshaw, b A Thompson, 7; W Armitage, b A Thompson, 8; J Pollard, not out, 6; D Childe, b A Thompson, 3; W Lovett, b H Wiggleswortb, 0; W Cockburn, lbw, b T Wiggleworth, 0; T H Robshaw, b A Thompson, 0; extras, 4; total, 40.

Great Preston—H Wiggleswortb, c and b J Robshaw, 2; F Wheatley, c T H Robshaw, b Walton, 4; T Wiggleswortb, not out, 13; R Wiggleswortb, not out, 15; extras, 7; total (for 4 wkts.), 41.

HALTON v. SEACROFT—At Halton. Scores:—

Halton—E Daniel, c F Taylor, b C Johnson, 0; C Sunter, st Atack, b D Burton, 0; W Smales, c Atack, b Johnson, 3; N Sunter, c H Toft, b D Burton, 0; F Heaps, c D Burton, b G Stead, 17; S Haigh, c H Toft, b C Johnson, 0; W Benson, c T Toft, b D Burton, 1; H Tasker, b C Johnson, 1; N Ball, c T Toft, b Stead, 2; R W Shaw, not out, 0; H Cowell, c T Toft, b Burton, 0; extras, 5; total, 29.

Seacroft—G Stead, c Cowell, 13; C Johnson, c N Sunter, b Daniel, 9; Taylor, not out, 8; total (for 1 wkt.), 30.

MICKLEFIELD v. GARFORTH—At Micklefield. Scores:—

Garforth—S Glover, c Smith, b Taylor, 16; H Prime, b Stones, 30; J Kilburn, c White-head, b Stones, 1; W Glover, b Townend, 14; H Gascoigne, b Townend, 6; A Firth, b Stones, 1; G Reed, b Townend, 0; T Ballance, c Walton, b Taylor, 18; H Morley, c Tomlinson, b Townend, 4; J Pickersgill, b Townend, 3; H Pickersgill, not out, 2; extras, 6; total, 101.

Micklefield—A Smith, b Ballance, 4; G Tomlinson, c Morley, b Ballance, 3; G Wall, 0; Kilburn, b Ballance, 0; E Stones, b Reed, 20; J H Townend, c Firth, b Ballance, 1; H Goodlass, run c Kilburn, b Reed, 6; S Taylor, b Reed, and b 3; S Walton, b Reed, 5; E Hardwick, c and b Ballance, 3; B Whitehead, not out, 1; F. Tomlinson, run out, 2; extras, 6; total, 54.

SOUTH MILFORD v. TADCASTER—At South Milford. Scores:—

South Milford—R Sutton, c Hebden, b Herbert, 20; A Atkinson, c Raper, b Baker, 14; H Hunscroft, b Swindin, 6; H Chilton, b Swindin, 2; E Atkinson, b Swindin, 41; N. Staindon, 2; E Atkinson, b Swindin, 41; N. Staindon, 2; E Atkinson, b Baker, 6; H. Hedgegrave, c Freer, b Swindin, 0; J Hodgson, c Garbutt, b West, 3; R Tindill, c Hebden, b West, 3; J Lindley, c Herbert, b Swindin, 0; J. Bissett, not out, 2; extras, 9; total, 95.

Tadcaster—J F Mason, b E Atkinson, 24; G Freer, b E Atkinson, 7; F Hebden, run out, 4; R T Baker, c Sutton, b E Atkinson, 7; J W Garbutt, c Bissett, b Chilton, 21; E W Herbert; b E Atkinson, 7; T Raper, not out, 26; A Swindin, b Sutton, 0; F. Fim, b Dobson, 2; R. Firn, b Lund, 2; B Hawksley, not out, 3; T. Lund, b Dobson, 0; F Marshall, c Dobson, b Lund, 0; J. Green, b Dobson, 1; total, 36.

Cawood—S. Lund, b Sissons, 0; F Ward, b P Lawn, 2; C

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE DOUBLE CHANCE.

By J. S. FLETCHER

Author of "The Threshing Floor," "When Charles I. Was King," "Daniel Quayne," "The Pinfold," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS: Clinton Mannersley had been accused and convicted of forgery by his uncle, Sir Robert Mannersley. He had protested his innocence, but the evidence was strong against him. Now, when his term of imprisonment had nearly expired, he escapes from Dartmoor. Secretly he sends a note to Sir Robert's daughter, Phillipa, whom he loves. In this he makes known his escape, and again protests his innocence. Phillipa never believed him guilty, but now the wild tone of his letter alarms her, and she makes known its contents to a sturdy miner, Jim Britten, Clinton's foster-brother. Jim feels sure that Clinton will come straight to him, and his expectations are fulfilled the same night. Unknown to either, the meeting is witnessed by a man, who steals silently away into the darkness.

Clinton and Phillipa then meet. Clinton urges upon her the necessity of an interview between her father and himself, so that he may once again declare his innocence. Phillipa, who has a key by which he can easily gain access to Sir Robert's study. When they part, Clinton learns that the police are on his track, and he remains in hiding. The next evening, under cover of the darkness, he finds his way to the Castle. Entering the study, he thinks at first that the room is empty, but, then, to his horror, he sees that Sir Robert has fallen across his desk, and that a red stream is running over the papers beneath him. Attempting to cry for help, he finds himself in the grip of a stern-faced man, and realises with sickening fear that he is suspected of murder.

CHAPTER V.

It was only a sprinkling of rain that went down the shaft of Mannersley Main next morning. Those who went were the sort of men whom nothing affects, men to whom the solidity of temperament which cannot be broken down. As for the rest of the population of the new village, it, like the people of the old, man and boy, woman and child, gave itself up without reserve to a discussion of the terrible tragedy of the previous evening. Before the news had spread like wildfire, as was inevitable in so small and tightly-packed a place, and everybody had known of it for a mid-night. And it naturally presented itself in a crude and primitive form. Clinton, who, after three years' penal servitude for forging his uncle's name a while back, had broken out of prison, and come home, and stabbed Sir Robert to the heart in his own study, and if he had not been caught in the very act, well, hands had been laid on him in a minute after it was done! And he was safely locked up, and Sir Robert was dead and gone —for ever!

Long before breakfast-time that morning the newly-built court-house at Mannersley, in which, so far, nothing more serious than a few charges of drunkenness and poaching had been heard, was besieged by a crowd of miners determined to hear what went on when Clinton was brought up before the magistrates. Some of the more knowing ones would happen, had crammed a package of food in their pockets and stationed themselves at the door of the public entrance before daylight. Amongst these was Black Moses, whose stentorian voice could be heard haranguing those about him at intervals as the morning wore away. The theme of his discourse was his profound and implicit belief in Clinton's innocence; his invariable conclusion a passionate desire to get at the truth of a mystery which Moses stigmatised in unprintable language.

"Tell ye Master Clinton's as innocent as any bairn I' one o' them cradles!" he insisted after the hundredth time, holding forth with undiminished ardour as the clock drew near the sitting of the court. "He could no more do a foul thing like that there One could no more do a foul thing like that there nor our district nurse. Wild and skittish he may be! but he's been as a lad, but there's a difference between sowing yer wild oats and doing murder! He never did it!"

"He might ha' done it in a temper," said a voice. "We're all liable to that there at times."

"I tell thee he never did it," vociferated Black Moses, "and I'll feight thee or any man i' Mannersla as said he did. Wait till all this mystery's over, and some on yer'll see summat."

Within a moment of the doors being opened the court was packed to the last corner; outside, hundreds waited eagerly to hear what news could be passed to them from the favoured ones within. And at that news came, bit by bit, the friends of the accused man—which means practically the whole crowd—which means practically the whole crowd—felt their hearts become as lead and their hopes sink lower and lower. For the whole story, as it was told to the magistrates who had hastened to fill the bench, seemed so simple, so devoid of anything savouring of the mysterious! It was just a plain, straightforward story, sordid, brutal, horrible straightforward story, sordid, brutal, horrible —but, above all, on the face of it, a story which seemed impossible of contradiction.

To Sir Clinton Mannersley, sitting closely guarded in the dock, the whole thing seemed like a horrible nightmare. Although he had like a horrible nightmare. Although he had never closed his eyes since the event which was still hovering in dreadful scarlet on the black before them he was wide awake as to believe himself in a dream or a trance or gone out of his senses, and he kept pinching himself mechanically, as if to ascertain whether he had any feeling left. He stared with astonishment at a young solicitor with whom he had had many a lark in boyish days, recent enough—who was glibly setting forth the case against him. He heard all Rowland Parke's hopes sink lower and lower. For the whole story, as it was told to the magistrates who had hastened to fill the bench, seemed so simple, so devoid of anything savouring of the mysterious! It was just a plain, straightforward story, sordid, brutal, horrible —but, above all, on the face of it, a story which seemed impossible of contradiction.

To Sir Clinton Mannersley, sitting closely guarded in the dock, the whole thing seemed

C.M.S. MEETING AT MONK FRYSTON PARK.

The C.M.S. Laymen are to be congratulated on the splendid gathering held in the grounds of Monk Fryston Hall, by permission of the Rev. R. and Mrs Hemsworth. In spite of the uncertainty of the railway arrangements owing to the war crisis, fully 500 people journeyed to Monk Fryston, and it was largely due to the enthusiasm and excellent arrangements made by Mrs Hemsworth and Mr G. W. Lloyd (President of the York C.M.S. Laymen's Union) that the gathering was such a success. Mr G. W. Lloyd occupied the chair, and was supported by the Rev. R. Hemsworth, J.P., the Rev. W. M. C. Clarke (vicar of Monk Fryston), the Rev. J. Topham, the Rev. C. T. Alexander, the Rev. W. P. Dott, Mr W. H. Phillips, Mr E. C. Mackie, Mr G. F. Richardson, etc.

The Bishop of Beverley, who had hoped to be present, wrote regretting his enforced absence owing to an urgent engagement.

The Chairman (Mr G. W. Lloyd), in introducing the speakers, alluded to the war cloud, and asked all present for their prayers in this great national crisis.

The Rev. G. T. Greenshield, missionary to the Esquimaux, described in very graphic language the conditions under which he had to labour, the thermometer sometimes being as low as 70 below zero. He felt sure that all present must feel a vital interest in mission work. Some people seemed to think the Arctic was such a small region that he would be likely to run across an exploring expedition. Sir E. Shackleton took a great interest in missionwork, and had promised to preside at one of his meetings, but had had to go to Norway to test some motor sledges. The converted Esquimaux were fine people, loyal to the British flag, and ready to deny themselves to help others. One convert, now a lay reader, had refused to take food when out with the speaker, and food was running short. "I am hard and dun I need it; you are soft," he remarked, referring, of course, to physical condition.

Mr Greenshield was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his address.

The second speaker was Dr. Eugene Stock, who said that he deplored our strained relations with Germany. From a missionary standpoint they were our firmest allies. In German East Africa they gave all possible help to the missionaries, whereas in the French territories missionaries were never allowed to enter. No natives had co-operated with us in missionary work like Germany. One great mistake people were apt to make was to think that their money went to keep the native churches when established. This was not so. The money was used for evangelisation, and then to train native converts and to fit them for carrying on the work.

After a vote of thanks to the speakers, the host and hostess, and the choir, the meeting was closed by the Rev. W. M. C. Clarke pronouncing the Benediction.

The collection realised £16 7s. 6d.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FARM WORKERS' THREATENED STRIKE —A TRUCE.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—At a moment when the war clouds of Europe gather ominously, and roll in the direction of our island home it is absolutely necessary that all sections of the community should sink all petty strife and present a united front to the common foe.

As patriots, the farm workers of Yorkshire recognise the seriousness of the step they would have taken but for the sudden development of this national crisis. Their patient and reasonable demands for the betterment of their conditions have met with little sympathy from the majority of farmers in this country.

The following is the programme drawn up by the farm workers of Yorkshire, who are members of the agricultural section of the Workers' Union:—

It is requested that you should concede the following conditions of labour:—

1. A minimum wage of 22s. per week, and an equivalent advance equal to this rate to all hired men.
2. That a week's work should consist of 60 hours, and that the Saturday work should cease at 1 p.m.
3. That all overtime above the normal day's work should be paid for at 6d. per hour.
4. That casual labour should be paid: Men, 4s. 6d. per day; women 2s. 6d. per day.
5. That a three months' notice should be given when a labourer is required to leave his cottage.
6. That all unexhausted improvements in the garden shall be valued and paid for a week before the outgoing tenant's notice expires, by the farmer, unless payment has been made by the incoming tenant.

At the present moment, when the outbreak of war has opened the eyes of the nation to the danger of starvation in case of disaster to the British Fleet, the value of the agricultural worker's labour must be recognised.

Like the artisans of the towns, his cost of living has steadily risen during the past ten years. His wages have, however, remained almost stationary during the same period. While the average hours worked by all classes of skilled and unskilled workers have been reduced, the farm worker's hours remain as long as ever.

The improved housing conditions of most workmen have not yet been extended to the farm workers, whose houses compare unfavourably in many cases with the stables of their employers.

For over twelve months negotiations between the farmers and their men have taken place to bring about the fulfilment of this reasonable programme. In almost every case these negotiations have ended in failure.

The patience of the Yorkshire farm workers has become exhausted, and a resort to a strike before harvest time was decided upon. Such a strike would have resulted either in the granting of the men's demands or the destruction of the crops left rotting on the ground. Such a fight would have ensured suffering both for the farmer and the farm worker under ordinary circumstances. But since the declaration of war such a strike would be a serious menace to the well being of the whole nation. Every grain of food becomes of untold value, and not a single grain must be wasted that can possibly be saved. The patriotism of the farm workers consequently causes them to call a truce for the time being.

But recognising the justice of their case they issue this manifesto to the British people, leaving the judgment in their hands. The food supply of the nation must be guaranteed. The greed of the farmer must not be allowed to endanger the people's food supply. If necessary at a time like this the intervention of the Government should make a strike impossible. This can only be done by the granting of the reasonable demands of the farm workers of Britain.

The rise in food prices will put enhanced profits they have not earned into the pockets of the farmers. Such profits will be made out of the necessities of their fellow citizens. We ask for no such exorbitant benefits.

The demand of the farm worker summed up in a sentence is "A guarantee of food for the family of the man who grows the food of the nation."

The last remnants of serfdom must be destroyed. The hiring system is brutal and degrading. The farm labourer alone has no legal right to holidays, and the farmers bitterly oppose a Saturday half-holiday to those doomed to continuous toil. The hiring agreement makes him a slave for twelve months, afraid to make a stand for better conditions for fear of losing his year's wages and possibly be fined for his pains into the bargain. Over a thousand farm workers with families in Yorkshire receive less than 17s. per week including all perquisites.

Is it to be wondered at that the farm worker refuses longer to be regarded worse than a brute of the field, and is determined to take his place as a man and a citizen of the greatest Empire the world has ever known.

Shall there be peace or war between the farmers and their underpaid, overworked, and badly housed workers.

The public conscience, the safety of the nation, and the necessities of the Government should supply the answer. Peace must be maintained by the granting of the "farm workers' demands by the farmers, compelled if necessary by Government intervention to do this act of justice.—Yours, etc.,

ARTHUR SMITH, Secretary.
Cloteridge View, Horsforth,
Aug. 5th, 1914.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week one of the principal turns is given by Jack Pleasants, the shy comedian. He has four characteristic songs—"Mother's so careful with me," "Does I know that Jane had found another cuckoo," "Gus," and his song of the bashful lover, all sung in the simple style which has earned him his fame. A really novel act is "The Rag Doll," presented by the Martinets, in which the lady shows herself a wonderful tumbler, and some very funny business is introduced into the acrobatic act of Alvoretto, Rogo, and Stogo. One of the features of the programme is the turn of Hodges Bros. and Jacobson, who bring with them some good ragtime medleys. Others on the bill are The Joannys, Daisy Sloan, Charles Stevens, and Dowas and Langford.

On Monday next Mr Eustace Gray will present at the Leeds Empire "Dora's Doze," facetiously termed "a musical slumber in seven nightmares." That this production is of the finest quality may be gleaned from the fact that it has been devised and staged by Ned Wayburn, producer of "Hullo, Tango!" "The Honeymoon Express," etc. The dialogue and lyrics are by George Arthurs, while the music is by the famous composer, Louis A. Hirsch. In the cast will be found Oscar Schwarz (from the London Opera House), Harry Ray (from the Shaftesbury Theatre), Connie Emerald, the Dresden Doll soubrette, Jack Edge, Joe Mott, Australia's famous comedian, Dave O'Toole, Mdlle. Anita, and Jennie Lynn, Marie Leonard, character soubrette (from the Winter Garden, New York), and Millie Warde, ingenue soubrette (from the Hippodrome, London). The seven scenes are: Living Room at Mrs Dicken's Boarding House, Hornborough; Exterior of the Century Night Club, London; Interior of Harry Hill's Emporium, London; At the Great White City, London; Behind the scenes at the Colchipaladium, London; Dora's Honeymoon; and Home again, Hornborough. The musical numbers include "In the boarding house," in scene 1; "The Night Clubbers," "He put it in the bank," scene 2; "The Little Girl Inside," "When Two Hearts beat as one," in scene 3; "Just we two and the moon," scene 4; "My Spooky Girl," in scene 5.

Other additions to the programme include Tonde and McRoberts, in a Scotch comedy sketch entitled, "Elder Hours"; Edna Lyall, the Yorkshire nightingale, and the American Bioscope.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week Mr Gus Onlaw presents a troupe of talented lady boxers, including Mdlle. Carpentier (France), the lady champion of the world, Miss Lucie Warner (England), Mdlle. Adele Nielson (Norway), and Miss Alice Fleury (France). They go through a few exhibition contests and admittedly give a good account of themselves. Miss Vera Cain, the British athletic girl, is also among the company, and gives a clever boxing exhibition. Betty Barclay and a Barlipee pay a welcome return visit, and Miss Barclay has a new song, "I'm such a shy girl," which suits her admirably. Robbins, a humorous imitator of musical instruments, presents a quite novel turn. His inane laugh is a big asset. Kartelli, the famous wire performer, is very good, and Blake and Granby, duologue artistes, provoke many a laugh. Others on a good programme are Martin Kamp, the Amsterdam humorist; the Two Boyds, entertainers and dancers; and Tom Cullen, a natural "alto."

Next week at the Hippodrome the great attraction will be Oswald Williams' magical revue. Mr Williams, who is a great illusionist, will be supported by his own company, and his entertainment of mystery will be keenly looked forward to. Others billed to appear are Austin Rudd, in his latest successes; Dutch Daly, the popular concertiniste and monologue artiste; Revue Revels, by Eight College Girls; The Adras, sensational equilibrists; Orpheus, in a musical interlude; Four Its, vocalists and wooden shoe dancers; Big Jass, and pictures.

LEEDS QUEEN'S THEATRE.

At the Queen's Theatre a lively entertainment is being presented this week. It consists of a bright series of songs and dances, with a thrilling love story linking the structure together. "Dare Devil Dorothy" it is called, and of course the scheming villain who wants to marry her gets "told off" in lively style. Variety specialities are given by Adeline Yobie, Ida Conway, Tom D. Newell, and Nellie Harcourt's Eight "Revusical Girls."

Next week at Queen's "The Woman who Atoned," described as a magnificent production, will be the attraction, and it will be submitted by Messrs R. S. Ravenscroft and S. Bowen Smith's company, including Miss Isobel Norman. On Thursday and Friday only the comedy drama "The Mormon's Wife" will be staged.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES.

This week at the City Varieties the Jackson Family, who head the bill, are artistic musical entertainers, and their turn was much appreciated at both houses on Monday night. Darty and Partner, comedy acrobats, are a laughable couple; and George Leavers, comedian, has a couple of good songs. Perry and Perry, refined vocalists, sing a pretty number; and the Hana Trio, in a singing and dancing act, are very successful. A lady juggler —Rene—goes through a clever performances.

Next week at the City Varieties the American Cowboy actor, Frank F. Street, will appear in a new and original western sketch "The Gunfighter." Others in the bill are Trey and Mitz, talented terpsichorean twins; Hengler Bros., comedy acrobats; Ethel Brailsford, assisted by Wee Jean, in a novel act; Four Dancerios, in a clever vocal and dancing act; Lea Fields, in burlesque; and pictures.

WHITKIRK MAN TAKEN FOR A SPY.

AN AMUSING EXPERIENCE.

Despite its gravity, the war has provided humour for visitors at Sutton-on-Sea. Within the four corners of that little seaside place rumour has it there are housed two German Secret Service men, who are taking photographs of the topography, and any dark-moustached man with an unusual mien attracts attention.

The coastguards are walking about armed, and a visitor—Mr G. A. Burras, of Whitkirk, has had an amusing experience.

Shortly after 7.30 he was with his camera and son and heir on the sandhills, waiting for a sunset picture. The tripod was fixed, the camera was ready, and all that was wanted was the proper light. But before the proper light came up walked a bronzed-faced coastguard. "Have you been taking photographs at Huttoft?" said the coastguard.

"No," was the reply of Mr Burras, as he turned to adjust his lens for the next picture.

But question number two was more startling. "Somebody has been taking photographs of Huttoft; you answer the description."

The suspected one then began to take things seriously, and in a cautious vein he remarked, "I have not been to Huttoft. I have been in Sutton all the day with my family." But the coastguard was not yet satisfied. "I must ask you for your card!"

Mr Burras had not such a thing in his holiday tweeds, but he volunteered to write his name and address on a piece of paper if that would suffice. He then felt for paper, but there was none, and the coastguard, becoming more suspicious, raised his voice as he said, "You will have to give me your plates."

Unperturbed, Mr Burras smiled, and invited the coastguard to his house, where he would write his name and address and try to prove his sweet innocence. The coastguard agreed.

Eventually the coastguard departed with the name and address, and looked very downcast as he cycled back to the station.

After a while Mr Burras went to see the Chief Officer, and that high authority assured him that they had to be very careful. There had been some suspicious person taking photographs at Huttoft that afternoon. They had also heard that someone had attempted to cut the wires.

"Have you a dog?" asked the Chief Officer, and when Mr Burras assured him that he had not such an animal he was once again beyond suspicion.

Needless to say, Mr Burras has a black, drooping moustache.

ORDINARY MATCHES.

CROSSGATES WES. v. HOLBECK ALBION.—At Old Manston on Tuesday. Scores:—Crossgates Wes.—C. Brook, c Dunderdale, b Ambler, 0; G. Umpleby, c Spink, b Bell, 15; E. Webster, c Dunderdale, b Bell, 97; E. Holliday, c Bell, b Pitts, 11; R. Coultas, c Vickers, b Bond, 58; A. Withy, b Bell, 0; E. Mills, not out, 4; G. Willans, not out, 8, extras, 22; total (for 6 wkts.), 215. Holbeck Albion—Vickers, lbw, b A. Withy, 21; Wildman, b G. Umpleby, 12; Spink, b G. Umpleby, 0; Dunderdale, b C. Brook, 0; Lavell, b A. Withy, 12; Bond, b E. Walker, 6; Duthoit, c E. Holliday, b Walker, 10; Pitts, not out, 5; Bell, not out, 0; extras, 8; total (for 7 wkts.), 68. Match drawn.

CROSSGATES WES. v. PUDSEY TRINITY.—At Old Manston on Monday. Scores:—Pudsey — A. Verity, lbw, b A. Brook, 12; G. Verity, b Umpleby, 14; H. Emsley, c and b Selman, 1; H. Verity, b Selman, 0; R. Clegg, c A. Umpleby, b Selman, 0; E. Hudson, b Selman, 1; A. Verity, b A. Brook, 3; E. Milner, c Thompson, b Selman, 0; W. Armitage, run out, 12; E. Holliday, c and b Selman, 17; F. Hinchliffe, c Willans, b Selman, 2; Tomlinson, not out, 0; Armitage, b E. Beaumont, 0; extras, 1; total, 69. Crossgates Wes.—C. Brook, lbw, b A. Verity, 9; G. Umpleby, b Milner, 21; C. H. Walker, b A. Verity, 0; V. Thompson, b Armitage, 7; A. Brook, b Armitage, 0; E. Webster, lbw, b Armitage, 1; E. Walker, lbw, b Milner, 3; G. Willans, c Verity, b Armitage, 1; A. Umpleby, c Halliday, b Milner, 3; E. Beaumont, lbw, b Milner, 4; J. R. Webster, c Hinchliffe, b Milner, 0; F. Hewitt, c Verity, b Milner, 0; J. Selman, not out, 0; extras, 6; total, 55.

AN ANGRY TREE.

In Idaho there exists a species of the acacia tree that a traveller says is entitled to be classed as one of the wonders of plant life. The tree attains a height of about 8ft. When full grown it closes its leaves together in coils each day at sunset. When the tree has thus settled itself for its night's sleep it will flutter violently if touched, and if you shake the branches it will emit a nauseating odour strong enough to bring on a headache. In Idaho it is called the "angry tree," and it is said that it was discovered by some men who were making a camp for the night, and placed one end of a canvas covering over one of its sensitive branches, to use as a support. Immediately the tree began to jerk its branches sharply. The motion continued with increased "nervousness," until at last there came a sickening odour that drove the tired men to a more hospitable camping-place.

SCALLOPED TOMATOES.—Make two breakfastcupfuls of fine bread-crumbs. Butter a round fireproof soufflé dish, and place a layer of crumbs at the bottom. Slice a pound of tomatoes, and roll the pieces in salt sifted with pepper. Cover the crumbs here and there with small pieces of butter, and lay slices of hard-boiled egg on the top. Season between each layer, and build them up high and turn about until the dish is full. Lastly, cover with crumbs, pour melted butter over the top, and brown in the oven.

DUTCH APPLE PUDDING.—Three eggs, one and one-half cupfuls of milk, three cupfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter, and two teaspoonfuls of baking-powder. Separate the eggs, beat the yolks, and add the milk; next the melted butter and flour. Beat with an egg-beater for about two minutes, add the baking-powder, and beat two minutes longer. Fold in the well-beaten whites. Turn into a shallow, greased baking-pan and place over the top, pressing them down into the batter, sufficient quarters of apples to cover the pudding. Dust thickly with granulated sugar, using at least half a pound and bake in a quick oven for half an hour. Serve hot with orange or hard sauce or milk. Peaches, blackberries, and raspberries may be substituted for the apples.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.

96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.
Telephone No. 253
JNO. EXLEY, President.
WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

EXCITING COLLIERY STORY!

DO NOT MISS THE OPENING
CHAPTERS OF
"The Double Chance"
By J. S. FLETCHER, the well-known Novelist,
IN THE
"Rothwell Courier and Times"

START NOW. START NOW.

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291.
" CROSSGATES 6.
DOBSON & CO.,
— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —
Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,
SEACROFT, AND
70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.
Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.
PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

Telephone No. 1129.
RHODES & SONS,
Posters, Handbills, Circulars, Business Cards, Balance Sheets, Fixture Cards, Catalogues, Ball Programmes and . . Every description of . . General and Commercial Printing.
Commercial and General Printers
Lithographers, Bookbinders, &c.
ORDERS BY POST OR TELEPHONE PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.
Magazines, Periodicals, &c., Bound to any Pattern. . .
"Rothwell Courier and Times" Office,
2, AIRE STREET.
LEEDS.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the Huddersfield: " 1609. Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

Annual Clearance Sale.
WATCH OUR WINDOWS DAILY FOR BARGAINS IN
Costumes, Dresses, Skirts, Raincoats, Blouses.
SMITH & PETTY,
MANTLE WAREHOUSE,
44, Lowerhead Row (3 Doors from Briggate,) LEEDS

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
OF THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Sweet Street, LEEDS.

BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Store,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.
THE CHALLENGE!
Never Beaten
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW MAKING A
SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS
In all the LATEST STYLES, for
SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.
LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.
5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX ROGERS, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier & Times"
— IS THE —
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 85— [Registered at the G.P.O.] as a Newspaper NEW SERIES SATURDAY, AUGUST 15 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
MONDAY, AUGUST 17th, 1914.
OLGA, ELGAR & ELI HUDSON,
In a New Musical Entertainment.
JAMES A. WATTS. DAISY TAYLOR.
A. D. ROBBINS.
LATEST WAR NEWS on the BIOSCOPE.
AUSTRALIAN McLEANS.
DION WADE. MARIE SANTOI.
FISHER & GREEN.
The "Potash and Perlmutter" of Vaudeville.

AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
BARCLAY GAMMON.
BINNS & BINNS.
OLIVE WEIR.
HIPPODROME MOTION PICTURES.
ALCIDE CAPITAINE.
KING'S COLLEGE BOYS.
AN IMPROMPTU.
LUNAIIC BAKERS.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 2s., 6d., and 4d.

QUEEN'S THEATRE, LEEDS.
6.50 TWICE NIGHTLY. 9-
MATINEE EVERY MONDAY AT 2.30.
NEXT WEEK.
Mr J. Forbes Knowles and Company, in a Great Play of Modern Life,
"FALLEN BY THE WAY."

CITY VARIETIES, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
PERFORMANCES NIGHTLY AT 6 AND 9.
MATINEE, WEDNESDAY, 2.30.
MONDAY, AUGUST 17th, 1914.
ZELLA VONDI & COMPANY.
JACK RAE.
LAVELLE BROS.
BIOSCOPE.
ARTHUR CLIFTON.
ONSLOW SISTERS.
FYNE & HURLEY.

Prices: 2d., 4d., 6d., and 9d.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established 1810
SPARKLING DHOSFERRIDE
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
OBTAINABLE FROM ALL RESPECTABLE SALOONS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON LTD LEEDS.

Furniture Delivered
ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.
T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST
LEEDS.

N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.

NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Owing to the rise in the price of foodstuffs, some of the Hunslet Guardians, who deal very generously with the poor under their supervision, are afraid that there will be suffering in homes. At a meeting of Tadcaster District Council, and at last meeting a Rothwell representative, in the stirring days when meetings lasted from who would not allow himself to be bowled out, twelve to half-past three, and he provided the wanted provision to be made for such cases. He reporters with more "copy" than any other was told that he was out of order, and that he member. Mr Cundall, whatever people may must give notice of motion, but still he persisted, say about him, was one of the cleverest men pension of the standing orders. Then a resolu- associated with the Council, but he did tion practically similar in terms to the one it owing to the manner in which he reiterated wished to be passed was adopted. The his remarks, being a wearisome speaker. Guardians, as a whole, desire to protest While not without humour, he had a caustic against the poor suffering, but had the Rom- tongue, and many wordy clerks were fought will may not been so persistent the resolution between him and the ex-Chair, whom he con- would probably not have been passed. That it sidered a fair target for his pungent wit. was necessary one does not know, because reliev- Neither was the Chairman exempt from his ing officers have discretionary powers in regard criticism, and I remember on one occasion, when to giving relief, and I have heard an officer tell Mr Cundall was slinging his barbed shafts, a Board what he could and what he could not that Mr Brodelsbank threatened to leave the do. However, all's well in the Hunslet Union, chair unless he desisted. and if commodities become very dear, the poor folks will be granted relief in accordance with their needs.

At the present time little interest is evinced in anything outside the war, and the wholesale abandonment of fetes, meetings, etc., is a striking evidence of how deeply folks have been moved by the events of the past week. Very different, indeed, is the mood of the people as compared with that when hostilities broke out in South Africa; the great issues at stake are realised, and the enormous sacrifices that must be made are, in a measure, known, and these have had a sobering influence upon all classes. Wherever men—or women for that matter—meet, the war is the sole topic of conversation, and the thirst for news is insatiable. The war is the greatest calamity that has fallen on Europe for more than a century, but it is possible that out of it good may come.

Carrier pigeons belonging to fanciers in the district have, I understand, been offered to the War Office for "active service" abroad. The homer is largely used by other nations for carrying messages. Mr F. W. Sutcliffe, of Crossgates, was in Belgium, just about the time the Germans had entered Belgium territory, and he noticed an extraordinary number of pigeons at the great fortress at Namur, on the River Meuse, and he was somewhat mystified. He inquired why there were so many pigeons about, and an officer told him they were used for carrying messages. On the following morning he noticed that the homers had disappeared, and then he learnt that they were on duty.

I understand that in the district—Crossgates, Garforth, Allerton, Rothwell, Carlton, Woodlesford, etc.—there are some of the finest homers in England. Some of the pigeons have made flights this season of 300 and 400 miles, and one fancier has birds which have covered a distance over 600 miles in ten hours. Pigeons must be given voluntarily to the authorities, and owners who desire to serve their country in this way are requested to communicate with the posters in their shop windows. That the intended offering by pigeons for "service," and I doubt not that his example will be followed by many others.

In the larger villages in the district the provision shops were besieged two or three days last week, and everybody who had any money to invest was struggling to "snatch the eye" of the merchants. The siege began on Tuesday in some places, and it continued later in the week, shops queues were formed, and the customers were allowed to enter by one door, and when they had made their purchases they were shown out at the backdoor. And the "early bird" caught the early worm"; for the first-comers, on Tuesday, at any rate, got commodities at prices lower than the late-comers.

Some people, I know, have stocked as much flour as will last them for a year. One, two, and three sacks have been common orders, and people have wondered, when these stocks have been laid in, whether their neighbours were going into the bakery and confectionery line. One result of this has, of course, been to send up the price of flour, and the poorer people, who have to purchase stones or half-stones, find it hard to pay for the foresight—some people call it by another name—of their better-off neighbours. But it was always so; the bottom dog comes off worst, because he cannot help himself.

With the passing of Mr Joseph Cundall, whose death was chronicled in our last issue, generously with the poor under their supervision, an interesting and vigorous personality is gone. The stirring days when meetings lasted from

The recreation field at Whitkirk, so generously given by the Hon. E. L. Wood, M.P., of Templenewsam, is now open to the public, and the children have provided for them an excellent little field in which they may indulge in all manner of games. The field has a frontage to the Selby Road, and the entrance gate is there. Having secured this recreation ground, it will be for the resident's generally to see that it is thoroughly appreciated, and to make sure that no damage a done in any way to hedges, etc.

Barwick and Scholes possess several valuable charities, and Crossgates, as part of the ancient parish, is interested in them, so it has come about that since Leeds annexed Crossgates a new scheme for their administration is necessary. In reading the Charity Commissioner's report one opinion is forced on one that the charities were never intended for Crossgates, which came into being long after the pious donors had gone the way of all flesh, and this view is being urged on the Charity Commissioners, who have power to have certain charities administered in any way they please. The Barwick and Scholes people recognise that Crossgates has some claim, but they are very anxious that Leeds Corporation should have no "finger in the pie," and they would be glad to buy Crossgates out.

Barwick Council discussed the question on Monday night, and it was stated, in reply to a question by the Commissioners, that Roundhay had never participated in the charities under discussion. Why they should have asked such a question is a mystery, because they have the report of the last inquiry to guide them, and there is a suspicion that Leeds may be putting in a claim for Roundhay. In the Commissioner's report on Riley's Charity, for instance, it is stated:—

There is some ground for supposing that Roundhay is entitled to some share in the management of the Charity, in the fact that four churchwardens are named in the conveyance of 1773, as it is known that Barwick township was never represented by more than three wardens. But as the words in the feoffee's will, describing the beneficiaries of the Charity, are "parishioners in the town of Barwick," it is not likely that the township of Roundhay will be anxious to claim their right. Roundhay folks would have nothing to do with this charity—not likely—for they have no poor. Originally a penny and a penny loaf were given once a week to each of twelve poor widows, and the rest of the money was distributed in the course of the year among poor people. Now the loaves have been knocked off, and the money is given in doles.

Although nothing has been reported regarding the town-planning of Scholes, I understand the District Council are moving in the matter, and an expert has been in communication with them. Barwick Council are interested in the question, and they are anxious to secure representation on the committee entrusted with the work, and I don't suppose the District Council will raise any objection to it.

A sum of £1 3s., collected at Cawood Ash by an Chapel, has been sent to Leeds Infirmary.

Captain G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., is the recruiting officer of the 3 Squadron of Yorkshire Hussars. On Saturday one of the troopers was thrown from his horse in Leeds.

HOUSES FOR THE ARMY.—Mr J. Godfrey Lee, J.P., Chairman of the Wetherby Stapelcross Committee, who is purchasing horses in the Wetherby district for the War Office, had a very busy time on Monday. In many parts of the country the question is being asked as to how the farmer will carry on his work, especially at harvest time, when the majority of his horses have been commandeered for the war. In this respect the farmers in the Wetherby district are extremely fortunate, for Mr Lang has used the utmost consideration in his selection of horses, and has only taken such as he actually requires. As a result he has left a sufficient number in the district to allow of the agricultural operations being completed with but little inconvenience. All the horse owners concerned seem to be most satisfied with the method adopted by Mr Lang in his treatment of the owners generally. The farmers, on their part, have responded to the country's call in an admirable spirit, willingly submitting their horses to Mr Lang. On Monday he selected 50 horses, which shortly before noon were despatched to the Royal Field Artillery depot at Leeds.

Those were stirring days! Mr Cundall was a strong fighter, and his knowledge of the work and his powers of speech made him a formidable opponent. Then he was resident at Stutton, where he bought considerable property belonging to Sir William Vavasour, and he was a prominent official of Tadcaster Chamber of Agriculture, into whose meetings he imparted no little interest. Over six feet in height, he was a splendidly built man, and he was a fine figure, evidently he got tired of wordy strife, for he retired from public life several years since, but he was very active in his business, and he attended the markets in Leeds regularly. Comparatively few of the old members of Tadcaster District Council are left, and it is strange that the three old Tadcaster representatives—Messrs Scriven, Addinell, and Cundall—should have joined the great majority already.

Recently Tadcaster Board of Guardians asked the Wharfedale Board to convene a conference of Poor Law representatives, with a view to making provision for the treatment of the feeble-minded and epileptics under the recently-passed Mental Deficiency Act, and the meeting took place on Friday at Otley. The Unions represented included Settle, Skipton, Pateley Bridge, Knaresborough, Keighley, Todmorden, Tadcaster, and Wetherby. Mr Jonathan Peate, Chairman of the Wharfedale Union, presided. The conference expressed the opinion that it was desirable to form a combination of certain West Riding Unions for the purpose of making adequate provision for the care of the feeble-minded and epileptics that such a combination might be lawfully and properly comprise the Unions of Sedbergh, Settle, Skipton, Pateley Bridge, Ripon, Great Ouseburn, Knaresborough, Wetherby, Tadcaster, Selby, Wharfedale, Keighley, and Todmorden; and that a provisional committee should be formed of one member and the Clerk for each Union, which should be authorised to collect statistics and other information, and to make inquiries as to any suitable land or premises for a hospital.

Quite a "breeze," which at one time threatened to develop into a "scrap," occurred at last meeting of Garforth Urban Council. The Chairman, in answer to a question, stated inadvertently that a certain member was in a firm who had been given a contract, and it was fatal for one representative to leave allowed this to go unchallenged when he knew the facts of the case. Had he at once explained who the members of the firm were there would have been no bother, and a lot of unnecessary squabbling would have been saved.

At the same time, the member who challenged the minute was, on the information given him, quite in order, and he acted in a perfectly fair and straightforward way. It is well-known that a member of a public body, unless in stated cases, cannot legally accept a contract from it, and the provision, from a public standpoint, is a distinctly necessary one, because men would seek service on public bodies for no other purpose than to "feather their own nests." Of course, there is no question of anything of it at Garforth, and, in fact, I do not know of a public man in the whole district who is using his position to that end.

For the first time for many months a clean bill of health was returned for the district, urban area. Fever cases have cost the ratepayers a pity sum since the district was severed from Tadcaster rural area, and one wonders why there should have been so much disease in the place. It is attributed by some to the carelessness of parents, who visit neighbours' houses to which disease is prevalent, or who do not isolate their children properly when suffering, but if this is so why don't the Council take proceedings when they get a good case? Conclusive there no doubt is, but to what extent it is difficult to hazard an opinion, and parents would be saving themselves a lot of expense if they exercised greater discretion in regard to epidemic disease.

RAILWAY TRAGEDY AT CHALONER'S WHIN.

DOORS LOCKED AT MONK FRYSTON.

CHILD FALLS FROM THE TRAIN.

An inquest was held at York County Hospital on Friday by Mr J. R. Wood (Coroner for York and District) on the body of Marjorie Willis, who died in that institution on Thursday as the result of injuries she received by falling from a train near Chaloner's Whin earlier in the day.

Mr W. C. Scott, of the operating department of the North-Eastern Railway, and Mr G. Levitt, of the engineering department, were present on behalf of the company. Mr R. Lamey represented the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company.

The first witness was Mr Charlie Willis, the father of the child, who said he resided at North Lodge, Wynyard Park, Stockton-on-Tees, on the estate of the Marquis of Londonderry. He was a coachman in the estate offices. The deceased child was five years old, and was travelling with her mother from Rochdale to Billingham when the accident happened.

The mother gave most a pitiable picture. She stated she was travelling with her daughter from Rochdale to Billingham on Thursday on the Lancashire and Yorkshire train, which left Rochdale at 12.50 for Scarborough. There were only the witness, the deceased, and witness's baby in the compartment in which they travelled. Monk Fryston was the "first station they stopped at before the accident happened. Deceased left through the door. The last time witness saw deceased she was sitting on the seat, and she no sooner reached the door than she fell out. Witness pulled the communicator cord and the train was pulled up. Deceased was found on the line dying, but witness was not allowed to stay with her. Deceased had previously walked about the carriage as they had been in the train two hours. Some other passengers had been in the train during that period and had got out, but deceased did not fall out on that side. The other door, witness thought, must have been open all the way.

At this point one of the jurymen was seized with ill fit, but he soon recovered.

John Wheelan, 27, Culcheth Brow, Newton Heath, Manchester, an the employ of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company, said he was the guard on the train which left Manchester at 12.10 p.m. on Thursday. It was his duty to see that the carriage doors were secure before the train left Manchester. He last saw the carriage previous to the accident in Miles Platson, and the doors were then certainly locked.

The Coroner: What makes you say that?

I walked the whole length of the corridor at Monk Fryston, and examined the tickets.

The Coroner: If anyone got out at Monk Fryston would it be at this door?

Witness: No, sir; it was on the off side.

Continuing, witness said the door in question was not opened at all from the time they left Victoria Station, Manchester. The first intimation witness had of the accident was when the communication cord was pulled, and the train stopped. He saw a compartment door open. The mother of the child came out, and told him her girl had fallen on to the line. Witness went a short distance back, and met some persons coming to meet him. He told them about the affair, and instructed them to search the line. They found the quickest way to get the child to York was to send an engine and coach, which were standing at the signal-box, to the scene. This was done. He conveyed the mother and baby to York in the train.

The Coroner: Why did you not let her stop?

The witness: It was very dangerous there. There are a lot more lines.

He examined the carriage door, and there was no defect whatever. The lock was in working order, although rather stiff. It would be impossible for it to come open, and the child must have been against the door to open it.

The Coroner: Could a child of 5 years open it?

Witness: Yes.

Continuing, witness said the doors were self-locking, and the door could not have been closed and not caught without his noticing it?

The jurymen: And do you think a child of five could open the door?—Yes.

Where did the accident happen?—At Chaloner's Whin Junction, near the south points, at 2.18 p.m.

If the child was seated with her back to the engine near the compartment door, could it open the door.—Yes.

Thomas North, Greenhill, Acomb, platelayer in the service of the N.E.R. Company, said that at about 2.30 p.m. on Thursday the signalman at Chaloner's Whin told him he had received a message from the South Points signalbox to the effect that a child had fallen on to the lines. They did not know which way and so men were sent in two directions. Witness went towards York and found the body. The child appeared to be dead when she was sleeping, with her feet on the rails, and head on the sleeper in the six footway. He saw she was badly cut, and he procured a stretcher and went to the North platelayers' cabin, where a platelayer rendered first aid, until the engine was sent to take the child away. She showed no sign of consciousness.

Dr. Frederick G. McCarter, house surgeon at the York County Hospital, said the deceased was received into the Hospital about 4 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Deceased's injuries consisted of two wounds to the scalp on the right side of the head, one on the left side, and the body generally was badly broken up. He thought death was due to laceration of the brain, and shock.

The jury returned a verdict that deceased died from laceration of the brain caused by falling from the train through the door coming open. There was no evidence to show how the door did come open, the jury added.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

DOYLE
The Noted China House

Doyle's Durable Pottery.
A Remarkable Achievement in the Production of Ware that will realist the HARDEST USAGE.
Doyle's are this week making a special display of a wonderful new Ware for use in Hotels, Restaurants, etc. This remarkable Ware will withstand an enormous amount of hard usuage, and will be the means of cutting down the breakage cost considerably. It is as "tough as Rawhide." Call and let us give you a demonstration of its capabilities without obligation to purchase.
SPECIAL WINDOW DISPLAY THIS WEEK.
59, BOAR LANE, LEEDS.
DOYLE'S, LTD

We can Furnish your Home as it should be Furnished.
People who appreciate home life strive to make their home not only a comfortable residence, but also a picture of elegance and refinement—a house that shall be in keeping with the true spirit of happy home life from attic to basement.
It costs no more to achieve this result than it does to furnish in the commonplace style.
It is an Easy Plan to furnish on our system of Deferred Payments.
Our System is just another way of saving money—you lay aside what you can spare each month, and you have the use of what that money will buy all the time.
COME AND SEE OUR STOCK OF FINE FURNITURE.
TERMS:

£	s.	d.			s.	d.
5	0	0	Worth of Goods,	...	1	3	Weekly.
7	10	0	do	...	1	9	"
12	0	0	do.	...	2	0	"
17	10	0	do	...	2	6	"
25	0	0	do	...	3	6	"
35	0	0	do	...	4	6	"
50	0	0	do	...	5	0	"

LARGE STOCK OF PIANOS FROM 2/- per Week
We pride ourselves on offering lower terms than any other firm in Leeds. If there's any article of Furniture in our large stock that you take a fancy to, and the payments are rather more than you can conveniently afford, don't hesitate, but come inside and we can arrange special terms to meet your case.
Sharp & Thornton,
CASH OR CREDIT HOUSE
— FURNISHERS, —
97 VICAR LANE, LEEDS 99
Mind you get to the RIGHT SHOP.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE FLOWER GARDEN.

Recent rains have brightened the appearance of the plants in the flower garden, and the opportunity should be taken, whilst the plants are in full bloom, to make notes as a guide to next year's bedding operations; it is as much easier to compare the colours and arrange new schemes whilst the plants are actually in bloom. Soil and aspect play an important part in the success (or otherwise) of the different species of plants grown in the flower garden. Mixed borders should now be examined and notes taken of the kinds that are giving the best results. These should be allowed to predominate in the arrangement next year. Notes of this kind are very useful for future reference, especially those applying to borders having a somewhat unfavourable aspect. Borders with a north aspect are often looked upon as impossible as far as summer bedding is concerned. In many gardens such positions are sown down with hardy annuals. Where this has been done it is quite safe while making note of the most satisfactory varieties. Mention of northern borders reminds us of a beautiful example we saw a short time ago. The arrangement was worked out on the ribbon principle and consisted of six distinct lines. The back row was planted with the strong growing grass commonly called Gardener's Garter. This was followed in turn by stocks, pink Beauty of Nice, yellow calceolarias, Sweet William, Japanese Pink Beauty), viola White Swan, and blue lobelia.

Window boxes, vases, and hanging baskets will now be full of roots and require almost daily waterings. The soil in these comparatively small receptacles soon gets exhausted, if weak liquid manure, or some concentrated food, is not given, the plants soon suffer. Yellow, sickly looking and enfeebled growth are the first visible signs that feeding is required. Continued waterings usually makes the surface soil cake, and the roots would receive benefit if the surface is now broken up and a topdressing of rich soil given. This class of gardening is now very popular. An important point is to prevent overcrowding of the growth, whilst the removal of decaying leaves and flowers should be attended to daily.

PROPAGATION.

The propagation of many kinds of bedding plants may now be commenced. In districts where it is found difficult to preserve violas and pansies through the winter months a start should be made with these subjects first. Flowering stems should be rejected in favour of the basal shoots springing from the base. Use a sharp knife in preparing the cuttings, and cut through immediately below a joint. Remove the leaves of the cuttings to about three inches long, and one or two of the bottom leaves should be removed. A suitable compost for rooting the cuttings is fine loam of old potting soil, one part leaf-mould, and a free admixture of sand. Pass the whole through a half-inch riddle, and place in shallow cold frames to a depth of four or five inches. The bottom of the frame should be broken up to a depth of about 6 inches before placing the soil in position. Place half an inch of fine sand on the surface, and make the holes with a dibber, into the cuttings to at least three inches apart and make them in one quite firm. Give a thorough soaking of water, and place the lights in position during the day, removing them again in the evening. An effort should be made to prevent the cuttings drooping, and with this object in view shade from bright sun should be provided. Sprinkle overhead three times daily during dull or wet weather. In about a fortnight's time the plants will have formed a calloused base, and air must then be given to the frames on suitable days by day. The object of removing the lights in the evening is to keep the cuttings as hardy as possible, and the sooner the lights can be dispensed with in the daytime the better it will be for the plants.

When violas and pansies are in, a start may be made with geraniums. Short-jointed side shoots make the best cuttings, and we have found no better method of rooting the cuttings than to place four around the edge of a three inch pot. The compost for propagating purposes should contain a fair amount of sand, and a little should also be placed at the bottom of each hole before inserting the cutting. Press the soil firmly around them, and if it is moist no water need be given for a few days. Our climate is so uncertain at this time of the year, that we find it an advantage to place the pots of cuttings either in a cold frame, or in a greenhouse shelf. Geraniums are impatient of too much water at any time, and if the cuttings were placed outdoor during a spell of wet weather many of them would damp off. So long as the soil can be kept just moist the cuttings will be all right, and spraying lightly overhead will do more good than giving an excess of water to the soil.

Arabis alpina variegata is now largely used for summer bedding. The usual method of increasing stock is by division, but if large quantities are required they may easily be raised by taking cuttings this month. Cuttings of every small piece will grow, and it is not necessary to remove the lower leaves. Dibble in pieces into sandy compost in cold frames, and keep close, moist and shaded until the roots form.

VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Peas are now bearing freely and the pods should be gathered before they get old. They will remain sweet for days if spread out thinly on a shelf in a cool place. Do not allow the peas on their plants they soon loose their sweetness, and interfere with the development of younger pods. Later varieties should be sown now in good time. High winds may be expected any time this month, and peas that are not securely staked may be blown down in a few hours.

Continue to sow and transplant lettuce. Sow radishes and onions, and keep the hoe going amongst growing crops.

Celery grows quicker after receiving its first slight earthing up. This should be given whilst the soil is moist, and the foliage dry.

POT PLANTS.

CYCLAMENS.

Cyclamen are now commencing to make new growth and should be repotted without delay. If the old soil is very dry, it should be thoroughly watered, so that it can be removed without seriously damaging the roots. The new compost may be made up of two parts fibrous loam, one part each of leaf-mould and peat, a sixth each of soil from each of the following to each barrow load of loam—soot, wood ashes, lime, mortar, and crushed oyster shells. Add sufficient sand to make the whole porous. No animal manure is required at present. Press the compost firmly into the pots, and allow half the corm to protrude from the soil. Place the plants in a cold frame, and shade from sunshine. Spray overhead every morning but avoid wetting the soil excessively until plenty of new roots have developed. When in full growth there are few plants which require so much water as the cyclamen, but excessive dampness before the roots become thoroughly active would cause the soil to turn sour, and eventually prevent healthy growth being made after words. When the plants are growing freely they may be lifted almost up to the glass, and have the pots plunged in a bed of ashes. This is quite as conducive to disease as is a leaky or draughty one. Have these strong, well-ventilated, watertight structures, straight-sided houses, and your birds will be safe from disease arising from this source. The next thing is cleanliness.

Dirt in any shape or form is a very prolific cause of diseases, and where filth abounds there will also the germs of disease thrive.

Clean all houses, coops, &c., out regularly and do roughly, and also wash out the feeding troughs and drinking fountains, and use the limewash brush with a free hand. Cleanliness is fatal to vermin and disease germs, and therefore if you have your birds and all appertaining thereto scrupulously clean another source of disease will be removed.

Overcrowding the birds is another cause of disease, as the birds' constitutions are lowered and when in this condition they fall easy victims to disease. Avoid overcrowding.

Improper feeding and the unnatural use of spices are direct causes of liver disease and many allied complaints.

The presence of vermin, such as fleas, lice and mites, is also a direct cause of ill-health, for, apart from the injury done the birds by these pests themselves, the birds' constitutions are brought so much in a low condition by them that quite incapable of resisting the attacks of any disease, and thus they fall easy victims. Void of stale ground is full of disease germs, and for this reason birds should never be kept upon ground which has become stale through the continual running of fowls upon it. The common fowl-run should be ploughed in the autumn, and the ground thoroughly dressed in the spring. Neglect to quarantine an already infected bird. Directly a bird shows symptoms of any disease it should be isolated, and the remainder of the birds, and as an extra precaution a little sour powder added to the healthy birds' soft food or drinking water, whilst still better is to dose them also by limewashing or co-soaking all the houses and boiling all the feeding troughs and drinking fountains in a wash of 1 part of Jeyes' Fluid to 20 parts of good disinfectant. A little of this might also be sprinkled about the houses and runs. The absence of sharp flint grit with which to digest their food is another cause of the formation of egg-shell, and green food are all causes of health troubles.

Bearing in mind the foregoing. I think myself I agree with me in saying that although on paper it seems a fair amount, when put into actual practice the advice given entails very little trouble and is well worth carrying out, for it is hard enough when we have to combat a disease which no earthly power can avert, without doubling the chance of trouble by neglecting the simple duties.

Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Captain Ralph K. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts, will be answered through these columns free, those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must enclose halfpenny postal order. The address of the writer must in all cases be given).

Quite a number of German reservists have been arrested in Nottingham. One candidly admitted he would rather fight for England than Germany.

A HEARSON INCUBATOR for 5/- a year!

A 50 Egg Hearson costs £5 5 0 complete and carriage paid, and will hatch every fertile egg for you at 5/- per year. Guaranteed for the initial outlay unless you are less than pleased with your bargain. Write for "Hearson's Poultry Chats" and "How we send you a free copy" "The" it's the finest book on poultry ever published. The Proprietors: SPRATT'S PATENT LTD., 24-25, Feathers St., London, E.C.

FINAL REDUCTION FOR SITTINGS

4/- There is still time to set eggs from light breeds. Fertile eggs, 4/- per sitting. Pure-bred Pekin Ducks, 4/- per sitting. Orders in rotation. Eggs in the sitting, or Winner Incubator. Eggs for the sitting, or Winner Incubator. Eggs for hatching at Hurst's Yates, Black and Buff Orpington, Gold and Silver Wyandotte, Gold and Silver Sebright, Black and White Minorca, Buff Leghorn, Gold and Silver Duckwing Game, Black Rose Comb Bantam, Buff Rose Comb Bantam, Buff Cochin Bantam, Pekin Bantam, Silver Sebright Bantam, Buff Orpington Bantam, Black Minorca Bantam, Buff Leghorn Bantam, Gold and Silver Duckwing Game Bantam

WELL-KNOWN BARKSTON ASH MAN IN LIEGE.

MR F. W. SUTCLIFFE'S EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

AT LUXEMBURG, LIEGE, AND NAMUR.

Mr F. W. Sutcliffe, of New Mansion, Crossgates, who is Chairman of Barkston Ash District Liberal Association, has had an exciting experience on the German Frontier. For several years he has spent the summer holiday on the Continent, and when he sailed from Dover on the 1st inst. it was his intention to spend a few weeks in Belgium, but, like many more, he was compelled to return to old England in a hurry, and, strange to say, it was not until he returned on Thursday, the 6th, that he learned this country was at war with Germany.

On arriving at Ostend, Mr Sutcliffe went to the station, and booked a seat in the train intending to go on to Luxemburg, and the journey to Brussels was without incident. There was, however, considerable delay at Brussels, where there was great excitement, and he learned that the Reserves were being called up as a precautionary measure. The station was crowded with soldiers, and there was much commotion. Luxemburg, which Belgium and Germany have invaded, has eventually reached, and the first evidences of anything untoward having occurred were revealed at the hotel which the tourists had put up at. The fare provided was of the poorest description, and, when the management was remonstrated with, it was explained that the Belgians had commandeered all the food in the house, with the exception of bread. That was on Sunday morning. Orders had been issued, too, that bakers were not to make pastry, etc.; they were to provide plain bread only. The tourists discovered themselves in a state of siege, because the Belgians would not accept their own paper money, nor would they have English gold. On going down the town, which was under military control, he was told the Germans were on the frontier, but he did not believe it and treated it as a joke.

"Connons they will rattle,
And the bulls they will fly;
For Old Nick will come
To drink old England dry."

This was what he recited to the tourists in his company, not that at the time he had it written; it was the Russian bogey, and now it was the German bogey. However, he soon found the Germans were more serious than he thought, for on returning to the hotel he saw a notice posted, stating that the tourists had better go further from the frontier, in which words, even the way they came. The Germans, they were informed, were about to open fire, and the Belgians were blowing the bridges in order to check the advance of the enemy. As a matter of fact, the party soon had evidence of this, for they heard the bridges being destroyed.

Of course, there was nothing for it but to obey orders, and the party went on to Liege, but it was a case of jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire. German airships and aeroplanes were flying over the district—spying out the land—and the forces of the Fatherland were preparing for an attack. Mr Sutcliffe says that he saw a squadron at Uhlans, and they terrified a lot of women. Clearly it was not prudent to remain here, and, on reaching the British Consul, it was decided to move on.

At Namur, the strongest Belgian fortress on the River Meuse, there is an hotel practically at the fortress, and here Mr Sutcliffe had the highest point in Belgium. To this stronghold the tourists came. They were somewhat surprised to see so many Belgian officers, but it was explained that they were used for carrying messages, and, as a matter of fact, they had disappeared next morning—they had gone to join their units full of soldiers, and on walking through the place, Mr Sutcliffe states, they were treated with every courtesy by the soldiers who permitted him to pass over the bridges and through the regiments. On returning to the hotel, someone suggested that a service should be held, and the suggestion was promptly acted upon. A Scottish minister, who was one of the party, conducted an impressive service, and at the close, the well-known hymn, "O God, our Help" was sung by the little congregation. That service those who participated in it will never forget.

Immediately afterwards they were told to pack up and prepare for departure. It was not, however, until four o'clock on Wednesday morning that the train came—"You had better get ready to clear out." Mr Sutcliffe looked out, and the grounds were full of soldiers, who were hastily erecting wire entanglements by the sett. A special train-car was provided for the tourists, who numbered 35, including a few Americans, and when they got to the station confusion reigned. Rich men were sending their families away to safer quarters, and, to make matters worse, the troops were being concentrated at this point. "After waiting 12 hours," said Mr Sutcliffe, "as train came in, and then ensued a terrific struggle. It was a pitiful sight to see the people struggling over two hours to get on board. Mr Sutcliffe, "by a little tact and gentlemanly conduct, and the men, mustering well with English, cheered lustily. It was fun to see the planed look on the poor-stricken faces as they remarked, on seeing the warship, "We are all right now!" Dover was reached on Thursday, and as the steamer passed before the forts the garrison turned out and cheered and cheered again. Then they were told about the declaration of war.

"The Belgian soldiers, Mr Sutcliffe stated, are determined to make a great fight, and have been inspired by their King's message to the soldiery, with whom he had a talk at Luxemburg, said that he thought they would be beaten by the Germans, for there were so many of them that thousands of them would go down before the forts fell. As we now know, the Belgian soldiers have fought splendidly, and the Belgians, it appears, are controlled by the Belgians, and all messages have to be passed by the Governor, and the news that is not official may or may not be true.

BARWICK AND SCHOLES AFFAIRS

QUESTION OF THE CHARITIES.

GARFORTH GAS CO.'S REPLY.

Barwick-in-Elmet Council had a meeting at Scholes on Monday night, and the members present were Messrs J. W. Rayner (Chairman), Hudson and Wetherall (Scholes), R. Wright, J. Birch, and F. Lumb (Barwick), and the Clerk (Mr H. R. Clarke).

The following letter, in reply to one sent by the Clerk, was read from the Clerk of Crossgates, who are preparing a new scheme for the administration of the charities, owing to Crossgates being included in Leeds:—

With reference to your letter of 9th June, I am to say that the proposed scheme has been under consideration. Before proceeding further with the matter, however, I am to inquire whether it is correctly understood that you suggest that "other charities" should be included in the scheme, and, if so, to request that you will furnish me with the name of such "other charities."

At the same time I am to inquire (a) whether the township of Roundhay has ever participated in the benefits of the charities known as the Poor's Estate, St. Thomas' Doles, and the charity of John Riley; (b) what is the present endowment of the Old Workhouse Trust; and (c) who is the Steward of that Trust and by whom and in what manner is it applied?

The Chairman asked if Roundhay had ever participated in the charities.

Messrs Wright and Wetherill said it had not.

Mr Birch explained that Roundhay had not been part of the civil parish for many years, but it was at one time included in the ecclesiastical parish of Barwick.

The Chairman said they were not interested in ecclesiastical divisions now.

Mr Birch said that none of the charities were for the benefit of the church.

Mr Wright said that the churchwardens, along with representatives of the Council, administered some of the charities, but they were distinctly apart from the church. He did not think the churchwardens had any power at all, and for a long time they lost it, but a former rector of Barwick had an interview with the Charity Commissioners, and he got them to put it back again.

Mr Birch: In opposition to the views of this Council.

The Chairman said that Crossgates was the only place, other than Barwick and Scholes, that had any claim on the charities.

Mr Wright said the Charity Commissioners had all the information they required in the report of the last inquiry, to which the Clerk had called their attention.

The Chairman: It looks to me as if they had some doubt as to whether all the charities should be shared.

Mr Wright: Leeds is probably claiming something for Roundhay out of them.

Mr Needham: We want the other charities exhausted.

The Chairman said it might be worth while to have an interview with the Charity Commissioners.

Mr Wright said there was a charity of £5 which went to the Sunday School, and at one time it was thought by the Church Sunday School that a claim on it, but it was found that at the time the money was left there was no Church Sunday School, and it went to the dissenters' Sunday School.

After further discussion it was proposed by Mr Wright, seconded by Mr Wetherill and carried, that the questions be answered, and that the Clerk ask an interview with the Charity Commissioners.

The old workhouse estate consists of five cottages and 64 acres of land, with a net rental of £51, which goes to the relief of the rates.

Mr Demain, manager of the Garforth Gas Co., wrote, in reply to the Clerk, in regard to the cost of gas, fittings, etc., to Barwick consumers as follows:—

I am sorry that I did not make myself quite clear in reference to the sale of fittings. The fact, as I quote, viz., "consumer to find own piping and fittings," refers only to the consumers who elect to use gas with an ordinary meter. This is the usual practice with all gas undertakings. We do, however, find all piping and the fittings for consumers who prefer having a penny slot meter. This is the practice both in Garforth and Aberford now. You will perhaps see that it would be greatly unfair to ask the penny slot consumers to pay 4s. 2d. per 1,000 cubic feet (40 feet for a penny), and the ordinary consumers only 3s. 6d. per 1,000 feet. Hence the reason why we pipe the house and find three fittings, and we have to keep these pipes and fittings continually in repair.

Mr Needham said his remarks were not to be taken as that all consumers at Barwick would be treated alike.

Mr Wright: No distinction was made.

It was decided to send a letter of protest to the Gas Co., on the motion of Mr Wright, seconded by Mr Lumb.

It was decided to issue a precept on the overseers for the amount of a halfpenny rate (between £17 and £18).

The Chairman having raised the question of the Scholes township-planning scheme, Mr Wright said he thought the Council should be represented on the committee, and he proposed that the District Council be asked to give representation, and if they agreed, that Mr Rayner be appointed—Mr Birch seconded, and this was adopted.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LORD HAREWOOD'S APPEAL.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—In the present crisis, money will be urgently needed to relieve the distress caused by the war. I would ask you, therefore, to give prominence in your columns up on appeal to the people of the West Riding for subscriptions for the following objects:—

(a) Relief of sick and wounded.
(b) Relief of the families and dependants of all engaged in the war.
(c) Provisions, equipment, and personnel of hospitals and other medical services.

A Special Committee of the West Riding County Association has been already appointed to take charge of, and distribute the funds collected for these purposes, in order to have one central organisation for distribution, and so avoid the confusion and over-lapping which took place during the South African war.

This committee, which has power to enlarge its numbers, is intended to cover the whole area of the West Riding, exclusive of any cities or large towns which may desire to have their own funds and organization. I am confident that the Lord Mayors and Mayors of the West Riding will work in harmony with such committee, so that cases of over-lapping, etc., may be avoided.

All subscriptions to the fund should be directed to West Riding War Fund, Messrs. Beckett's Bank, York, and inquiries addressed to the Secretary, West Riding War Fund, Territorial Headquarters, York.—I am, sir, yours obediently,

HAREWOOD, Lord Lieutenant,
West Riding and of the City and County of York.
West Riding Territorial Headquarters, York,
8th August, 1914.

SEATS IN HALTON RECREATION FIELD.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—I should like (through your valuable paper) to call attention to the seats, or lack of seats, in the Halton Recreation Ground. The Council provided 12 splendid seats for us, but just brought them to the ground and left them there some months ago. Now they are mostly broken. The children have carried them about and used them for playing schools, and tobogganslides, until the backs are off and the frames are smashed, all because the Council cannot agree, I expect, as to who can find some wood and screws to fasten them into the ground.

Is there nobody who would do the job for a £, or have we to see them all made into hedges?

These seats supplied a long-felt want, and more people have used the Recreation Ground this year than I have ever seen before, but now if you want to sit down, you must sit where the children think you ought to sit, that is, in a class, with some one else behind you and half-a-dozen "kids" playing schools on either side, under the shade of the one and only tree.

I do think the Council have spoiled a good job for the want of screws or screwbolts and a bit of wood.—Yours, etc.,

A RESIDENT.

It is estimated that 55,000 holiday-makers left Blackpool on Saturday, and by 6 p.m. the town was almost drained of its visitors.

Sentencing prisoners for drunkenness at Birmingham on Saturday, Mr. H. Hobbs, presiding magistrate, said everyone who gets drunk now is squandering the resources of his country, and must be punished accordingly. Heavier fines were imposed. One woman created a scene when being locked down for fourteen days, in default of paying a fine. "Only for a drop of beer," she cried, as she was removed from court.

CROSSGATES AND HALTON MEN'S DASH THROUGH FRANCE.

THRILLING 600 MILES' RIDE.

FRANCE AND THE WAR.

Mr J. Smart White, of Crossgates, Mr Reginald Hall, of Halton, and Mr Hubert Hall, and Mr C. P. Finn, of Castleford, were on holiday in the French Alps at Grenoble, when the news of the mobilisation of all foreigners of whatever nationality must be out of France within three days under pain of arrest. Mr White writes in the "Evening Post":—

The trains were all commandeered for army work, so there was nothing for it but to make a dash by road. That meant a ride of six hundred miles, and we had to pass through the heart of the rapidly mobilising French Army and skirt the dangerous frontier line. In addition we had to consider the probability of getting no petrol, as all supplies were, of course, at once taken over by the Government.

"Full to Defence Majesty's Consul" apparently each of us with a certificate of British nationality, and off we set. The first few miles through the Alps bordering Italy were devoid of incident, but once clear of Aix les Bains and on the verge of the Swiss neutral ground the trouble began. Finn moved us all round fork, and before he knew it was over the border into the neutral territory; and on discovering his error he had great difficulty in getting back. Two English-speaking officers appeared, however, and smoothed matters out.

Crossing the Rhone at Seyssel, we were subjected to a severe scrutiny, and thereafter in every town, village, at every railway crossing or river or canal bridge, we were "arrested," and our papers examined.

We got along fairly well next day until in a good-sized village, a boy suddenly jumped on his cycle and raced ahead of us; we happened to be going quite slowly. On rounding the next bend we saw a line of gendarmes across the road, backed up by a rapidly growing crowd, who were manifestly hostile. We explained we were English, and matters were allayed, but the crowd pushed our machines, Swift's and mine, up to the Gendarmerie for examination of our baggage.

The next question, however, was "Where is Finn?" He had not overtaken us, though following closely. It transpired that the sound of our engines had brought out a gendarme not after Swift and I passed his sett, and on seeing Finn, he rushed into the road, brandishing a naked sword in the most terrifying manner. Finn endeavoured to get permission to go on, but in vain, but the gendarme was obliterate, until a messenger, whom the chief kindly sent at my request, appeared, and escorted our company in.

The chief did not trouble to open our baggage on finding we were English, but was thrilled to see that we were obliged. As I had some of my business cards, bearing the word "Yes" phrase," which might have caused trouble, I took and destroyed them.

At Dole we were about clear of the mountains, and henceforward our way should nowhere be closed. Our next halt was to Bodegen, where constant challenges and examinations so delayed us that we were leaving Chaumont at 7 p.m., as there was a 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew in force. The streets were full of soldiers. We struggled on in the growing darkness, finally dropping thankfully into an hotel at Joinville.

Everywhere this day, and, in fact, all along where we were within fifty miles of the frontier, we passed streams of Swiss and other nationalities struggling pointlessly forward, their point of destination being the most part in hand carts drawn by weeping men and women, while the children toiled along in the dust. Here will be the place to record a forced exit, but always the animal was an old screw, too far gone for the army to use. Poor wretches! It was a sad sight.

While getting petrol next morning, a good Samaritan advised us that it would be safer to get a police safe-conduct in the next military district, and we had hardly bustled in overheard the police lieutenant remark to his chief: "How the d—— did they get so far with only this?" referring to the certificate.

The new passport cleared the way fairly easily as a rule, but on approaching Chateau Thierry we were again arrested and marched off, possibly by the marching nearly a mile to the gendarmerie, only to be very courteously dismissed. A Boy Scout cyclist was sent to conduct us through the town, and a very proud he was of his job. He was a good pedaller, too, and kept along at a smart pace.

Approaching Soissons for the night, we found ourselves stopped peremptorily. It was after 9 o'clock, and the "retat de siege" forbids everybody to travel after this hour, on the risk of being shot at sight. An obliging adjutant, however, appeared, and passed us through. The town swarmed with soldiers, and the hotels were packed.

We stopped in the Grande Place and in a moment were the centre of a bellowing crowd of soldiers, who shook our hands, slapped our backs, and shouted "Vive l'Angleterre!" All we could do was to bellow back our thanks, but finally we, as good Britishers, applied to the police, who very quickly sent courteously to us settled—and well settled, too.

That day we had come through the Burgundy and Champagne districts, and it is charming to see the attempts made by the few remaining inhabitants to carry on the work of the land. For 5, sacrificial motives, both old grandfathers, and boys and girls were weeding the vines, harvesting what they could of the corn, and tending the cows. Butter was apparently able at several hotels we were in, there being, of course, no one left to make it. A land deserted and silent and sad.

In the towns all the women were dressed in deep mourning, and almost the only smiles we saw in that ride of two miles were those of the soldiers on their way to battle.

On two or three occasions we had to appeal to the "mairs" of a town to get petrol, as the stocks were forbidden to sell it. In every case, with his assistance, we got it without further difficulty, and always at normal prices. The same can be said of the hotels, where we were well and reasonably treated.

At Boulogne there was more calmness, due, I suppose, to the people being able to get news close at hand. In the hotel we were lucky enough to get a boat with lots of room, as no train happened to get through from Paris with passengers for it. We thought, however, nine English motor-cars. Some of them had had a good deal of difficulty in getting away, mainly because their owners could not get their paper money changed. My companions were also in this fix, but fortunately I had sent a small draft for myself to Grenoble in case of accidents, and this I just managed to get cashed. On it we struggled home.

France seems to make an end of it this time without a doubt. Her soldiers are optimistic and well-trained, and, my goodness, what thousands of them there are! Strings of motor lorries, up to the Gendarmerie for examination of our baggage.

The next question, however, was "Where is Finn?" He had not overtaken us, though following closely. It transpired that the sound of our engines had brought out a gendarme not after Swift and I passed his sett, and on seeing Finn, he rushed into the road, brandishing a naked sword in the most terrifying manner. Finn endeavoured to get permission to go on, but in vain, but the gendarme was obliterate, until a messenger, whom the chief kindly sent at my request, appeared, and escorted our company in.

The chief did not trouble to open our baggage on finding we were English, but was thrilled to see that we were obliged. As I had some of my business cards, bearing the word "Yes" phrase," which might have caused trouble, I took and destroyed them.

At Dole we were about clear of the mountains, and henceforward our way should nowhere be closed. Our next halt was to Bodegen, where constant challenges and examinations so delayed us that we were leaving Chaumont at 7 p.m., as there was a 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew in force. The streets were full of military. We struggled on in the growing darkness, finally dropping thankfully into an hotel at Joinville.

Everywhere this day, and, in fact, all along where we were within fifty miles of the frontier, we passed streams of Swiss and other nationalities struggling pointlessly forward, their point of destination being the most part in hand carts drawn by weeping men and women, while the children toiled along in the dust. Here will be the place to record a forced exit, but always the animal was an old screw, too far gone for the army to use. Poor wretches! It was a sad sight.

While getting petrol next morning, a good Samaritan advised us that it would be safer to get a police safe-conduct in the next military district, and we had hardly bustled in overheard the police lieutenant remark to his chief: "How the d—— did they get so far with only this?" referring to the certificate.

The new passport cleared the way fairly easily as a rule, but on approaching Chateau Thierry we were again arrested and marched off, possibly by the marching nearly a mile to the gendarmerie, only to be very courteously dismissed. A Boy Scout cyclist was sent to conduct us through the town, and a very proud he was of his job. He was a good pedaller, too, and kept along at a smart pace.

Approaching Soissons for the night, we found ourselves stopped peremptorily. It was after 9 o'clock, and the "retat de siege" forbids everybody to travel after this hour, on the risk of being shot at sight. An obliging adjutant, however, appeared, and passed us through. The

HORSE AND FLOWER SHOW AT WISTOW

HAMBLETON, FENTON, HILLAM, AND CAWOOD WINNERS.

The 49th annual Wistow Agricultural and Horticultural Show was held on Tuesday, in perfect weather. It was a very successful event. The fields which had been made during the week by the army of officers for horses had had the effect of rendering a good many prospective entries, while the fact that the barley has been falling somewhat behind had increased the necessity for some farmers to stay at home. The effect, also, affected the attendance, but, everything considered, both the display and the attendance were very satisfactory. Indeed, as regards the latter, one of the shows was that for agricultural horses. There were some very creditable animals in the ring, all of the local sort. Mr. Jno. Burton, of Ulleby, was a winner in the colt, foal class with an unbeaten youngster, whose victories include North Duffield and Selby. Messrs Lee's, Garrick, stood second, and the same colt headed the class for foals which had never won a prize. In the two and three year old class the first prize winners exhibitors were Mr E. Jagger and Mr James Pocklington, who each had horses of which a great deal should be heard. The prize winners were also in the collection in the pairs class.

There were one or two very prominent hunters. Mr J. Pocklington had a fine brood mare class with Jagger in front of considerable quality, with plenty of good bone. She is a mare of the old type that is only too uncommon nowadays. Mr J. Tatsfield's Shamrock was first in the hunter in the foal class. She has come on a great deal since her North Duffield and Selby victories, and looks the right sort of hunter for weight-carrying.

There were several very fine classes in the harness section, and, though the entry was not large, the work were of excellent quality, while the open riding and driving classes saw a promising 1914 winner in the ring in Mr Cawood's Campion, shown by Mr R. Black, York. She had little difficulty in annexing premier honours.

The flower, fruit, and vegetable section was a strong part of the show. This was particularly the case in respect to vegetables, some very attractive classes of turnips and mangolds being on view. The following were the awards:—

HORSES AND COWS.

Foals.—Colt or filly foal, for hunting purposes:—1, G. Tatsfield, Thorgersby; 2, Jas. Pocklington, Wistow; 3, W. H. Winters, Skipwith. Colt or filly foal, for nag purposes:—1, A. B. Cooper, Selby; 2, R. S. Kendall, Cawood. Colt foal, for agricultural purposes:—1, T. Burton, Cliffe; 2, Messrs S. and J. Lee, Escrick; 3, Robt. Pocklington. Filly foal, ditto:—1, G. H. Collins, Hillam; 2, Jos. Hardcastle, Church Fenton. Agricultural colt or filly foal, which has never taken a prize:—1, S. and J. Lee; 2, Jas. Pocklington. Hunting brood mare with foal at foot, or having a living foal in 1914:—1, Jas. Pocklington; equal, G. Smith, Selby, and Messrs Lee's, Escrick. Carting brood mare, ditto:—1, T. Burton; 2, G. H. Collins.

Three-year-olds.—Agricultural gelding or filly:—1, E. Jagger, Stockton Lane, York; 2, Jas. Pocklington; 3, Jas. Pocklington. Hunting gelding or filly:—1, E. Jagger; 2, T. Burton, Cliffe; 3, Jas. Pocklington.

Agricultural gelding or mare, worked during the present season, by a tenant farmer:—1, E. Jagger; 2, E. Jagger; 3, W. Clough, jun., Selby. Pair agricultural horses:—1, E. Jagger; 2, Jas. Pocklington. Single agricultural horse, gelding or mare, class 1, McColl Bros., York; 2, G. B. Copley, Selby.

Dairy cows:—1, E. Hirley, Wistow Lordship; 2, George Elliot, Kettlethorpe.

FLOWERS.

Cut roses, varieties:—1, G. W. Reader, Cawood; 2, Dudding, Selby; 3, T. Woodall, Barlby; 2, T. Tasker, Flaxley Common. Stocks, ditto:—1, G. W. Reader, Asters, ditto:—1, G. W. Reader; 2, A. Ripston, Church Fenton; 3, Mrs Rowntree, Pollington; 2, Mrs Rowntree, Pollington; 3, T. Smarr, Red currants:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. Howcroft, Riccall. Collection of vegetables:—1, Miss May Pocklington; 2, T. Woodall.

VEGETABLES.

Troy vegetables:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, A. Hemingbrough, Wistow. Tomatoes:—1, Mrs Hambleton; 2, G. Howcroft. Vegetable marrows:—1, Geo. Jackson, Wistow; 2, Chas. Jackson, Wistow. Cauliflowers:—1, A. Brown, Barlby. Kohl-rabi:—1, G. Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, C. Jefferies:—1, G. W. Reader. Cabbage:—1, G. W. Reader; 2, H. Hemingbrough, Barlby. Radishes:—1, Chas. Jackson; 2, G. W. Reader, Wistow. Spring-onions or onions:—1, Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, T. Smarr. Autumn-sown onions:—1, Howcroft; 2, Howcroft, Hambleton. Broad beans:—1, T. Woodall; 2, T. Smarr. French beans:—1, Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, T. Smarr. Scarlet runners:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. W. Reader. Wistow. Peas:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. Howcroft. Round potatoes:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, Howcroft, Hambleton. Kidney potatoes:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, Howcroft, Hambleton. Potatoes, any one variety:—1, T. Smarr; 2, G. W. Reader. Six varieties of potatoes:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, G. Stockdale, Wistow. Onions, any one variety:—1, G. W. Reader; 2, Howcroft. Onions, three pecks, given by Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., for the best troy of vegetables (4 varieties), open to all Lordship members, and not to be competed for by cottagers in the Barkston Ash Division under £7 rental:—1, F. Wood; 2, H. Hemingbrough.

FARM PRODUCE.

Butter:—1, Mrs Poskitt, Flishlake; 2, Mrs Rowntree. Eggs (white):—1, Mrs Blanchon, Babwith; 2, T. Smarr. Eggs (brown):—1, Mrs Blanchon; 2, Mrs W. Smith, Ogdodyke. Heaviest hen eggs (single yolks):—1, Mrs Shepherd, Riccall; 2, Mrs Poskitt. Wheat:—1, W. Hirsey, Gateforth; 2, Jas. Pocklington, Wistow. Black oats:—1, G. Sweeting, Wistow. White oats:—1, G. Sweeting; Barley:—1, G. Hirsey; 2, R. Robt. Jackson. Swede turnips:—1, G. Mackshall. White Turnips:—1 and 2, A. E. Backhouse. Red mangolds:—1, G. W. Neville; 2, Chas. E. Simpson, Wistow. Yellow mangolds:—1, R. J. Pocklington, Wistow; 2, T. Gray. Mangels (Messrs Ingpool and Sons' specialities):—1, Tom Gray; 2, A. E. Backhouse; 3, Robt. Jackson. Carrots:—1, A. E. Backhouse; 2, Robt. Jackson. Carrots:—1, C. Parkinson; 2, G. Howcroft; 3, Hambleton; 2, Ed. Marshall, Wistow. Bronze Miss A. Ward, Foggathorpe; 2, Mrs E. Leach, Escrick; 3, Mrs Jim Watson, Ellerton.

THE LADIES' COLUMN.

AVOID MONOTONY IN DIET.

Let all housewives who have considered good cooks avoid monotony above all things. It is quite possible to starve in the midst of plenty—that is to say, we may eat day after day of a fashionable diet, very nourishing in itself, and yet derive no benefit from it. Strive, then, to have variety, and strive to see each dish as "tasty" as possible. Eggs, for instance, can be cooked in a great many ways, and yet most people's whole idea of cooking an egg is to boil it, or fry it, until it is leathery and indigestible. It is not merely to pamper the appetite that one should make everything as tasty as possible. Taste, and a variety of tastes, are necessary to the digestion as well as the enjoyment of food. It has been satisfactorily proved by scientific experiment that no man can be properly nourished on tasteless food. The taste and smell of food excite the digestive juices to flow more abundantly.

SMOKING BAD FOR ARTERIES.

A Dortmund physician has been making a special study of the influence of tobacco smoke on the circulation of the blood. His measurements indicate that the smoking of two-and-medium cigars causes characteristic alterations in many of the most important features in the nicotine effect on the vasomotor centre, which is the chief regulator stimulus to the vessels which results in increased tonus. The behaviour of the pulse-rate is variable. Slight or ten Hostile cigars give a vasomotor result (the effect on the muscles of the vessels) similar to that from two "medium" cigars." These experiments confirm the widely current impression that excessive smoking is harmful to the heart and the arteries. Therefore, anyone with a tendency to the hardening of the arteries ought to be extremely moderate in his use of tobacco, or employ a substitute.

TOOTH-BRUSH DRILL.

As soon as the child is old enough to use a tooth-brush a medium soft brush should be provided, and the child should be carefully taught how to use it, says a writer in Good Words. If the teeth are brushed for a few moments after each meal there will be little or no difficulty in keeping them perfectly clean, and ordinary water is the only lotion that will be required. It is also a good practice to rub them a little lightly with the last thing at night. A harsh, stiff brush is not desirable, for it is likely to lacerate the gums and cause bleeding, and the gums are very tender a piece of cotton wool moistened in water may be used for the teeth, but it is more awkward to handle than a brush. The use of toothpicks other than in exceptional circumstances is to be deprecated, for unless applied with care there is every chance of damaging the gums and causing them to recede.

POLISHING BRASS.

New brass needs nothing but dusting with an old silk handkerchief. Brass that is very old, or has been neglected, or has tarnished, should be polished with a paste made by moistening powdered rotton-stone with turpentine. When the brass has been well rubbed, the surface of the brass should be painted over with a mixture of lacquer and turpentine. If treated in this way at the time of spring-cleaning, the brass will last through the summer with little dull.

A FEW LITTLE WRINKLES.

Special care should be rubbed with lemon juice, then dried with a soft cloth.

The varnished street door will look like new if well rubbed over with a cloth dipped in paraffin.

After cleaning the brasses in the usual way, polish them with a dry cloth sprinkled with powdered whiting.

When relaying the stair carpets put a pad of folded newspaper over the edge of each stair. This will lengthen the life of the carpet.

Furniture polish from mahogany furniture, rub a little sweet oil into the mark, then a little spirits of wine. Dry with a soft cloth, and the mark will disappear.

To clean matting, tie some bran in a bag, dip the bag in boiling water, and when the matting is cold, then rinse off with a cloth wrung out in warm salt water.

When you are cleaning the blind flat on a table, sprinkle with powdered bathbrick, slightly warmed, rub well into the blind, then brush off. Any stain, lace edge, apply powdered bathbrick with a brush, working it well in.

NICE DISHES.

Artichoke Soup.—Take pounds of chokes, slices of lean bacon or ham, half head of celery, one turnip, one grated carrot, one onion, seasoning to taste, two capfuls of boiling milk, three quarts of stock, one pint of milk. Boiling apples:—1, Mrs Rowntree, Pollington; Pears:—1, T. Smarr. Red currants:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. Howcroft, Riccall. Collection of vegetables:—1, Miss May Pocklington; 2, T. Woodall.

FRUITS.

Plums:—1, Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, Robt. Jackson, Wistow. Gages:—1, Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, Mrs Rowntree, Pollington; Pears:—1, T. Smarr. Red currants:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. Howcroft, Riccall. Collection of vegetables:—1, Miss May Pocklington; 2, T. Woodall.

VEGETABLES.

Troy vegetables:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, A. Hemingbrough, Wistow. Tomatoes:—1, Mrs Hambleton; 2, G. Howcroft. Vegetable marrows:—1, Geo. Jackson, Wistow; 2, Chas. Jackson, Wistow. Cauliflowers:—1, A. Brown, Barlby. Kohl-rabi:—1, G. Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, C. Jefferies:—1, G. W. Reader. Cabbage:—1, G. W. Reader; 2, H. Hemingbrough, Barlby. Radishes:—1, Chas. Jackson; 2, G. W. Neville, Wistow. Spring-onions or onions:—1, Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, T. Smarr. Autumn-sown onions:—1, Howcroft; 2, Howcroft, Hambleton. Broad beans:—1, T. Woodall; 2, T. Smarr. French beans:—1, Howcroft, Hambleton; 2, T. Smarr. Scarlet runners:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. W. Reader. Wistow. Peas:—1, T. Woodall; 2, G. Howcroft. Round potatoes:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, Howcroft, Hambleton. Kidney potatoes:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, Howcroft, Hambleton. Potatoes, any one variety:—1, T. Smarr; 2, G. W. Reader. Six varieties of potatoes:—1, G. Howcroft; 2, G. Stockdale, Wistow. Onions, any one variety:—1, G. W. Reader; 2, Howcroft. Onions, three pecks, given by Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., for the best troy of vegetables (4 varieties), open to all Lordship members, and not to be competed for by cottagers in the Barkston Ash Division under £7 rental:—1, F. Wood; 2, H. Hemingbrough.

FARM PRODUCE.

Butter:—1, Mrs Poskitt, Flishlake; 2, Mrs Rowntree. Eggs (white):—1, Mrs Blanchon, Babwith; 2, T. Smarr. Eggs (brown):—1, Mrs Blanchon; 2, Mrs W. Smith, Ogdodyke. Heaviest hen eggs (single yolks):—1, Mrs Shepherd, Riccall; 2, Mrs Poskitt. Wheat:—1, W. Hirsey, Gateforth; 2, Jas. Pocklington, Wistow. Black oats:—1, G. Sweeting, Wistow. White oats:—1, G. Sweeting; Barley:—1, G. Hirsey; 2, R. Robt. Jackson. Swede turnips:—1, G. Mackshall. White Turnips:—1 and 2, A. E. Backhouse. Red mangolds:—1, G. W. Neville; 2, Chas. E. Simpson, Wistow. Yellow mangolds:—1, R. J. Pocklington, Wistow; 2, T. Gray. Mangels (Messrs Ingpool and Sons' specialities):—1, Tom Gray; 2, A. E. Backhouse; 3, Robt. Jackson. Carrots:—1, A. E. Backhouse; 2, Robt. Jackson. Carrots:—1, C. Parkinson; 2, G. Howcroft; 3, W. Reader; 2, Ed. Marshall, Wistow. Bronze Miss A. Ward, Foggathorpe; 2, Mrs E. Leach, Escrick; 3, Mrs Jim Watson, Ellerton.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

Hothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.
Words 1 week. 3 weeks. 6 weeks. 13 weeks.
20 ... 0 6 ... 1 0 ... 1 10 ... 2 3
30 ... 0 9 ... 1 6 ... 2 3 ... 3 6
40 ... 1 0 ... 2 0 ... 3 0 ... 4 6
Cash is not paid with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than 13 weeks, 1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do. 10d. do. do.
52 do. 8d. do. do.

TO LET.

TO Let Good COTTAGE, with living-room, scullery, and three bedrooms. Rent 4s. weekly clear.—Mrs. Brown, Barwick-in-Elmet.

WANTED

WANTED a GENERAL, one used to children. Good wages to right person.—Apply, Mrs. Wheater, Barwick-in-Elmet.

WANTED three steady YOUNG MEN as LODGERS.—Apply, Mrs. Fearnley, 3, Bentley Square, Oulton, near Leeds. 3 1613

REQUIRED by a Lady, BOARD and LODGING near Market Square, Hothwell. Would like with the family. Separate bedroom. State terms.—Miss Graves, 100, Keldor Avenue, Sutherland.

JUNIOR CLERK, about 16, with office experience, preferred, indigent, etc., good writer. State age, experience, salary required, to The Yorkshire Copper Works, Ltd., Leeds.

BRASS TURNING.—YOUTH wanted, accustomed to Brass Turning. Good wages to suitable applicant. Apply personally, or by letter, to the Yorkshire Copper Works, Pontefract Road, Leeds.

ROTHWELL DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

FULL-TIME CARETAKER for STOCKTON MIXED COUNCIL SCHOOL. Duties commence 1st August, 1914. Applications, to include names of all persons mentioned for appointment forms, apply on or before August 22nd, 1914, to ALEX ANGUS,
W.R. Education Offices, Rothwell.

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale BLACK PONY, 12½ hands, 7 years, quiet; suitable for lady.—Apply R. Grice, Jun., Manor-house-Street, Leeds. 1267

FOR Sale 31 h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR-CYCLE and SIDE-CAR, in good condition. Cheap.—Dockray, Hazlewood, Green Lane, Whitkirk.

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also Sow-class YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Several for sale. Inspection invited.—Cooper, Brookfoot Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

PRIVATE DISPOSAL.—Neat, Responsible BAY CARRIAGE HORSE, 9 years, 16 hands; price 50 guineas; also Pretty BAY COB, 8 years, 14 hands; price 30 guineas. Both warranted and quiet in all harness and saddle, quiet with all motor and traction engines. Every kind obtained for engagement. No dealers. Good trials invited. VICTORIA GOVERNESS CAR, HARNESS, etc., for disposal.—Apply A. Jackson, Mark Hall House, Marsh Road, Scargreen, Middlesbrough-on-Tees.

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDMAID, by Dr. Allbutt should be read by all Married People. 7d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Medicines, Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c., Post Free.—Boots, (M) Dept., Nottingham.

LADIES!—Wood's Challenge Remedy is the greatest ever under the sun. It relieves more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, 4/6, 6/6. Cheques, cross from 10/- to 20/- daily. Register Rubber WOOD, 21, Lands Street, Chapeltown Road, Bramley. Consultations free at 10 to 1 daily. Hours—Mr. and Mrs. W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, 19th only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My invention never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe and Sure. Privacy all. Special at 5/-, post free in plain wrapper, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs. WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/1½ and 2/9 at LAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Grabbing.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

REGISTER!! REGISTER!! REGISTER!!
NORMANTON DIVISION LIBERAL ASSOCIATION.
TO OCCUPATION ELECTORS

A FULL LIST OF PERSONS ENTITLED to be REGISTERED as VOTERS will be hung up on the doors of Post or Township, Post Offices, etc., on August 1st. You are earnestly requested to examine such lists, and see whether your name appears thereon, and if not to communicate at once with J. STEAD (Non-Registration Agent), Corporation Street, Normanton.
The qualifying period of occupation is from 15th July, 1913, to 15th July, 1914.

KIPPAX FLOWER SHOW AND SPORTS.

NEXT WEDNESDAY, AUG. 19th, 1914.

To be opened at 3 p.m. by the Right Hon. Sir JOSEPH COMPTON-RICKETT, Bart., M.P.

GREAT DISPLAY of FLOWERS, FRUIT, VEGETABLES, also RABBITS, PIGEONS, POULTRY.
GRAND SPORTS under A.A.A. Laws.
GOOD ENTRIES (including R. Dobson, 440 yards Champion of Yorkshire).
GREAT YORKSHIRE SALS AT NIGHT.
Admission: 1 to 5, 1/-; after 5, sixpence.

Entries for Show close Aug. 15th, to
E. M. LOGAN, Sec.,
3, Spencer Avenue, Kippax.

THE PICTURE HOUSE, GARFORTH

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Aug. 17th, 18th, and 19th.
EVERY EVENING AT 7 O'CLOCK.
The Great Irish Racing Drama,
"THE FILLY."
"FOR THE LOVE OF THE FLAG."
A Stirring Story of Heroism on the Battlefield.

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday,
NOVEL SPECIAL ITEMS.
EVERY EVENING (by special request), TWO DISTINCT PERFORMANCES at 6.30 p.m. and 8.30 p.m.
The World's Amusing Unusual Military Drollery.
"THE CURSE OF WAR."
Also the Great War Special
"BRITAIN'S MIGHT."
Showing the Powerful British Fleet clearing for Action.
Popular Prices—1d., 2d., and 6d.

Barkston Ash Parliamentary Division.

Register! Register!! Register!!!

ALL LIBERALS

Should see that their Names are on the Overseers' Lists. If not, or wrongly described,
Apply at once to—
W. J. TAYLOR,
Liberal Registration Agent,
11a, Water Lane, SELBY.

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
Proprietress: H. BEEFORTH.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 4.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates,
Every Friday, 2 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
In Office Established in Leeds, Handbook Free, on British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 358.

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
36 (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£2 10 s. to £5 ... 1½d. per month.
£5 0 0 ... £5 ... 2d. ... ,,
£5 0 0 ... £10 ... 3d. ... ,,
£10 0 0 ... £20 ... 4d. ... ,,
£20 0 0 ... £30 ... 5d. ... ,,
£30 0 0 ... £50 ... 6d. ... ,,
£50 0 0 ... £75 ... 8d. ... ,,
£75 0 0 ... £100 ... 9d. ... ,,
£100 0 0 ... £150 ... 10d. ... ,,
Same above £150 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
LEDGER OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

PUBLI

Established 1870.

WM. DENTON & SON,
22, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Insurances Effected.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

SHERBURN NEW SEWAGE SCHEME.

FOR SEWER CONNECTIONS to the NEW MAIN, apply to Thomson & Cornforth for all Branches in the Building Trade. Estimates and information free.

OWING to the War the SHELF at CLIFFORD'S WILL NOT BE OPENED until later, when particulars will be announced.

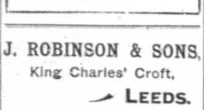
SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' FAMILIES' ASSOCIATIONS.

THE WIVES and OTHERS DEPENDENT on RESERVISTS or VOLUNTEERS who have joined the Colours, and who live in the Tadcaster Poor Law Union, are requested to communicate with Mr. E. C. Buckhouse, Hessleaugh Old Hall, Tadcaster, in writing.

TEMPLENEWSAM PARISH COUNCIL.

THE CHILDREN'S RECREATION GROUND AT WHITKIRK IS NOW OPEN.
Entrance SELBY ROAD.
The Public are respectfully requested to protect that which is intended for their enjoyment.
J. HENRY TOMLINSON, Chairman.
A. GREAVES, Clerk.

MR and MRS. TURNER,
7 Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trade Solicited.
Highest Price Given.
Tel. No. Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 1417.



DENTISTRY.
W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 36a, Boar Lane (over Messrs. Neville's, Cigar Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth Fitted on the most Improved Principles, Single Tooth, Set, or Full Set on Gold, Crown, Vulcanite, and Earth Stained or Transparent Gums.
Painless Extractions by Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3347.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK IN ELMET
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge,
Easy Terms £2 2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-
OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

TRY—
SANCFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Wealth Salt,
and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &c.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

TELEPHONE 1877 CENTRAL.
BUCKLAND'S
CABS OR TAXIS
"No Horses Sleep!!"
LEEDS
CHEAPEST AND MOST CONVENIENT.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY, NEXT.
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to be Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
60 to be Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

NEXT WEDNESDAY AT 12 O'CLOCK.
THE AUCTION MART, WHITKIRK.
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will hold their MONTHLY HORSE SALE on WEDNESDAY next, August 19th, when they will offer
60 VALUABLE HORSES, CARRIAGES, HARNESS, Etc.
Further entries should reach the Auctioneers, Garforth, not later than noon Tuesday next.

KILLINGBECK FARM, SEACROFT, Near LEEDS.
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Instructed by C. E. Wade, owing to the farm being required by the Leeds Corporation), will Sell by Auction, on Thursday, August 20th, 1914,
HIS VALUABLE FARM STOCK, viz.:—
11 HORSES,
3 Useful Working Mares, in foal;
3 Mattress Horses and Colts;
4 Half-bred Geldings and Mares, 4 and 5 years old.
15 HEAD OF CATTLE.
26 PORK and STORE PIGS. 150 HEAD of POULTRY, to Geese, 15 Ducks.
The FARM CARRIAGES, IMPLEMENTS and MACHINES, Mrs. Float, Horse Wheel motion, Chaff-cutter, Small Tools, Gearing, etc.
Full particulars of which will be found in catalogues.
Sale to commence at 12 to o'clock.

ON MONDAY NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
(Adjoining the Old Goods Station).
FAT LAMBS, SHEARLINGS, and EWES.
PORK and STORE PIGS.
WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank)—
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers, and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and must be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON,
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS,
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing
Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges,
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter.
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1804.

TO BE CONTENT
With anything but the best is approbation or complacency in the wisdom of the unwise.
Thoughtful people recognise this fact, and value every two hundredth to run unnecessary risks by wearing wrong glasses.
It is to such that this appeal is made; and if your eyes are causing you trouble, we ask you to call and talk the matter over with us, when we shall be pleased to advise you.
HEYWOOD,
Optologist,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

Geat's. 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Right by the Yorkshire Penny Bank Entrance).
Repairs of all kinds a Speciality.

FOR FUNERALS.

CABS AND CARRIAGES for WEDDINGS
J. T. BUCKTON, Proprietor,
10, Blenheim Street, Boar Lane,
ALWAYS READY
LEEDS
UNDERTAKERS

HOLIDAY INSURANCE.
ACCIDENTS OF ALL KINDS.
WORLD-WIDE INSURANCE.

Section	Death	Permanent Total Disablement up to 26 weeks	Temporary Total Disablement per week	Medical Fees	Limit of Compensation
	£	Per Week	£ s.	£ s.	£
A	500	10/-	2/6	5/-	500
B	250	5/-	1/6	2/6	250
C	100	1/-	6d.	1/-	50

These insurances do not cover Professionals or Trade Risks, or extremely dangerous adventures.
Apply to—
ACCIDENT FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE CORPORATION Ltd.,
PERTH, SCOTLAND.
Assets nearly £2,000,000. Established 1888.

Hothwell Courier & Times
SATURDAY, AUGUST 15th, 1914.

Business-like arrangements have been made to mitigate distress and suffering in this country owing to the war, and all classes are working splendidly together. The nation is absolutely united, and all differences bear for the moment been forgotten. Trades Union disputes have been shelved, employers have determined to keep their works going—long as they can—in order that the workpeople may not suffer, and in some cases employers have decided to put wages for three days a week whether the works are open or not. Such co-operation as the highest patriotism, every man cannot bear arms, but everyone can do his duty to his country in this hour of need. During the last week many people became panic-stricken, owing to a baseless rumour that food supplies would be extremely scarce, and they besieged shops, so that prices were forced up to an high figure. With our trade routes open, there is no fear whatever of starvation, as this country, though the war were to last a long time, and it is reassuring to know that as Britain at the present time there are supplies for five months. Canada is wanting to sell further shipment of wheat, and from other colonies food stuffs will come steadily as the mother country. Germany is all bad, the pinch, as more ways than one, long before this country. In order to give further protection to the public, the Government, who must had the banking Act passed through all they have done, have passed a measure which will prevent the cornering of food stuffs. Such a step was not be needed, but there are always people ready to benefit by the necessities of others, and it is cited in that class. The authorities, too, have appointed a committee to fix prices of commodities for the country, so that people will not be overcharged, and in many other ways protective measures have been taken to prevent the efforts of the War Office. The Chancellor of the Exchequer states in that no one must foolishly obstruct the efforts of the Government to keep stable the finances of the country. Let no one should buy more food than is absolutely necessary at one time. Large buying means, by the laws of the sudden demand, prices far beyond their normal level. Thus are the poor doubly crushed by diminishing wages and inflated prices. (3) all employers of labour should strive to their utmost to keep their works going, and thereby employment. Will follow unemployment, and untold misery and suffering will come upon the children. No work, public or private, should cease if it can in any way be continued. Public work should be anticipated, overtime should cease, and extra workers be employed. Short time for all is better than no work for many. With some wages our people may secure bare necessities, with no wages social degradation and ruin are the result. (4) All employers, therefore, must do their part in this country, in discharging no workmen where it is humanly possible to keep them employed, and to endeavour to find opportunities for employing more men. It is by labour that nations win in time of peace; it is by labour and sacrifice alone it can be sustained in times of war.

Nowadays common honesty is expected of nations just as much as of individuals, and any reason why Germany has not a single friend or sympathiser, with the exception of her ally, Austria, among the civilised nations of the world, is the failure of our rulers to appreciate the rights of others. The Kaiser and Prince Buelow have caused monstrosities—the brute of Belgium and—to the German people, and the Prince's proclamation reminders with its phrase "Even if the world be filled with foes" the German people will defend and maintain its place in the sun." France has memories of 1870 to wipe out, or she has never forgotten her loss of Alsace and Lorraine, but even she ally in the great European struggle that is now going on has never attempted to check the legitimate development of Germany, nor has any other nation sought to limit the expansion of the Prussians so long as they were within limited bounds. On the contrary, German ambition has been a source of anxiety to European statesmen for years, and its whole policy seems to have been directed at not maintaining a place in the sun, but of securing the sun as the exclusive possession of the Fatherland. Instead of Germany, it is the other nations who are striving to keep their places in the world, for, in the light of the revelations made in the British Parliament, it is quite clear the German Emperor had determined on a policy of aggrandisement, and for years he has been making plans with a view to striking at the first opportune moment. The horrors of war and the awfulness of human suffering do not count with such men; the conscript soldiers have but to do their bidding, although they would prefer to remain employed at their peaceful occupations; and to gratify the ambition of a single individual for ye must be turned into a battle-field. And how wily the Kaiser has been. Austria, which has too often been the catspaw of Germany, declared war on Servia, because the latter would not comply with certain conditions, following the murder of the heir to the Austrian throne, and when Russia interfered on behalf of the Serbs, Germany took up arms in support of Austria. This looks very simple, but there was something behind it all. The British Foreign Secretary strove hard to prevent the conflagration, but he could not control when the Kaiser thought he should strike, and all the endeavours of Sir Edward Grey to bring about peace failed utterly. France, by her treaty obligations, was compelled to go to the assistance of Russia, and when German troops invaded Belgium—whose neutrality both this country and Germany had covenanted to maintain, Great Britain declared war on Prussia. But behind all this is a story of German perfidy which, happily, the British Government was given to the world, and it proves conclusively, if any proof were ever needed, that Germany intended to make the Austro-Servian quarrel serve her own purpose. Papers were submitted to Parliament, and they set forth in a manner that there is no mistaking how Germany, backed by Austria or using that country as an instrument, has been at the bottom of all this bad business—how, as was surmised at the time, the jubilees exhibited on the unparalleled of Russia and France, but they were equally confident (probably induced to that belief by our internal troubles at the time) that Britain could be "bought off," how they evidently never reckoned on Italy failing to agree to their nefarious designs, how they failed to take account of the opposition of Belgium and the resistance that that little country would be able to make to their military schemes, how the real object of Austria was not simply enforcing reparation for the murder of the Archduke and Duchess, but getting possession of Salonica and dominating all that part of the Balkans, and how their own primary purpose was the subjection of France, the annexation of French colonies, and the ultimate occupation of Belgium. When Sir Edward Grey informed Germany that this country could not be indifferent if France were assailed, the German Chancellor prop-ed that Britain should stand aside whilst the Prussians worked their will in France, particularly in seizing French colonies, on the strength of an "assurance" that the integrity of France and her colonies preserved were the Germans to win in the struggle. Although the Germans later not the grounds for colonisation, they have been extremely anxious to get an outlet for their growing population, and what better than were the French colonies and begin the building up of a world-wide empire? Here was a Power making promises to Britain, and at the same time violating her most treaties by invading Belgium. Moreover, the French are our friends, and we were asked to sell them. Such was the bribe held out to us for the acceptance by Britain of the German proposals, as the Prime Minister said, this country would have been for ever dishonoured. Had such a proposal been made to sell a friend by an individual, as one statesman said, he would have been knocked down. So far as Germany's assurances are concerned, had all her pre-arranged plans matured, and had she succeeded in beating France, what was there to prevent her seizing Belgium and Holland? Then Britain would have had a task. Germany desires a great navy, she is jealous of Britain's naval power, and what would she not give for possession of the ports on the North Sea coast? Were Holland and Belgium to become Germany states, Britain would have a great naval Power on the other side of the sea, and, judging by her history, that Power would not be inclined to be a peaceable neighbour. For years a struggle between Britain and Germany has been foretold, and, if it had its origin owing to Prussian militarism, it is safe to say that it have come about in the manner it has done. Germany is a great military Power, with her army of millions of men, and the fight will be a terrible one, but the other European nations have so much at stake that they cannot lay aside the sword until they have convinced the German Emperor that they, too, have a place in the sun.

Farmers attending Melton market on Saturday said there was a shortage of field workers, in consequence of the calling up of men to the south Riding Territorials, and Farm Waggoners' Reserve.

ACCIDENT.—What might have been a serious accident was narrowly averted at the bottom of Burkers' Hill on Saturday. A trap belonging to Mr Jackson, of Sherburn, was turning the corner for Lotherton, when it was run into by a motor-car. The front of the car caught the axle of the trap and turned the horse completely round, the horse mounting the bonnet of the car. The horse was slightly bruised.

ON GUARD.—Twenty-four of the picked Boy Scouts in Leeds paraded in front of the Y.M.C.A., in Albion Street, on Wednesday afternoon, after which twelve left for Ailed and twelve for Escup. The boys have been deputed to guard the reservoir at Escup and the culvert leading to it at Ailed. The boys will continue to camp and be on guard day and night at these places until further orders.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each.
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

DEATHS.

BURLEY.—August 12th, at Kippax, in her 58th year, Mary Ann, beloved wife of James Burley, butcher.

ROGERS.—August 11th, at Harrogate, suddenly, aged 72, Mary Ann, beloved wife of G. R. Rhodes, of Rothwell-Haigh.

INGLEBY.—August 10th, at Rothwell Haigh, near Leeds, aged 49 years, Catherine, the beloved wife of Constantine Ingleby.

THOMPSON.—August 8th, William Thompson, market gardener, Rothwell Haigh, Wakefield, aged 38. Was interred at Lofthouse Cemetery August 11th.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

Several members of the Rothwell section of the Aberfordia Division of the St. John Ambulance have volunteered to serve if called upon.

On Sunday evening the Rev. H. Philipson, B.A., took his final leave of the members of the congregation of the Wesleyan Church, and wished them every success in the future.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr. J. W. Morkill (in the chair), Col. A. F. Sykes-Musgrave, Mr. E. H. Foster, Mr. J. R. Greaves, Mr. J. Farrar, Mr. H. Evans, Mr. P. H. Booth, and Mr. J. Pickard.

DRUNKARD.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, in the case of John Priestley and Betsy Priestley, a summons for wife maintenance arrears amounting to £8 17s., neither the prosecutrix nor the defendant appeared, and the summons was accordingly dismissed.

DRINK.—On Tuesday at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions Charles Henry Normans, a labourer, of Hunslet, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly at; Rothwell on Sunday, August 2nd. P.C. Abbott spoke to arresting the prisoner in Commercial Street, as he was in a drunken condition and refused to go home. Defendant's wife stated defendant's excuse was that he had had a little drop too much. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

CRICKET.—The Rothwell Wednesday team played an interesting match on Monday evening against the West Riding C.C. on Wednesday, at Rothwell, and won easily. Scores:—Rothwell—A. Tiffany 12, A. Watson (not out) 20, Perkins 2, Mathews 7, R. Firth 8, A. Lunn 7, Elstob 2, Hampson (not out) 35, Baines 2, Nettleton 1, Tiffany 0, extras 3 total (for nine wkts.), 131. West Riding—Silcock 8, Crawford 11, Greenwood 19, Sugar 24, Stiles 23, Marsh 18, Ellis 1, Goodson 0, Chipchase 0, Wood (not out) 2, Cole 0, extras 10; total 126.

A ROTHWELL CASE.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, when the case of John Smith, a miner, of Rothwell, who was summoned by his wife, Jane Smith, for persistent cruelty, was called, the complainant applied for the summons to be withdrawn. This was agreed to by the magistrates on condition that the costs were paid. The same defendant, John Smith, was also summoned by the police for having been drunk and disorderly in Church Street, Rothwell, on Sunday, July 26th, about 10.15 p.m. P.S. Metcalf proved the case, and Smith was ordered to pay a fine of 5s. and costs.

ALLERTON BYWATER

THE PUPPIES.—At Castleford on Wednesday Israel Townsend, Head Street, Allerton Bywater, Castleford, was summoned for cruelty to four puppies. On August 5th a man named Holdsworth found the puppies howling piteously for several hours in a dustbin in Back Powell Street, Townsend said he thought the puppies were dead when he placed them there. A fine of 15s. 6d., or fourteen days, was imposed.

BARWICK

It was stated at a Council meeting on Monday that the purchase of a new pump for Barwick had caused a protest to be issued on the ratepayers.

Lady Peel, of Park Gate, Guiseley (formerly of Potterton), has offered the use of her residence as a hospital or convalescent home for the wounded in the event of the offer has been accepted by the military authorities.

TELEPHONE.—On Monday at a meeting of Barwick Council the Chairman (Mr. Rayner) asked if any correspondence had been received with regard to a telephone service for Barwick. The Clerk said he had none.—Mr Wright said he had heard nothing definite.

NURSING SCHEME.—On Monday night Barwick Council had the suggested nursing scheme for that parish under consideration. It was stated that if a nursing associations were started it would receive £50 for doing the County Council work, but it was asked where the remaining £100 under the parish's contribution was to come from. It was decided to leave the matter alone, and the County Council will, therefore, have to make arrangements for the parish's district nursing work and the notification of births.

CROSSGATES

MR B. Stringer, of Crossgates, won nine first prizes for dahlias, and also awarded a gold medal at Knaresborough Show.

BOWLING.—On Saturday afternoon a match was played between Crossgates and Crossgates R.H. on the Recreation Ground. Crossgates won by 250 to 142. Details (Crossgates first):—J. Armistead 7, W. Bell 15, G. Simpson 21, A. Smith 3, Field 3, Firth 21 v. J. W. Hodgson 13, H. Whitehead 7, Lindley 7, J. W. Rimer 17 v. J. Cook 22, T. Fidgett 15 v. S. Boyle 21, J. Connor 21 v. T. Cooper 16, C. Holdsay 21 v. E. A. Wyatt 17, M. Boyle 21 v. Baxter 8, and G. Danby 21 v. J. Fisher 13.

PUBLIC LIGHTING.—Preparations are being made for the resumption of public lighting in the village, and it is evidently the intention of the Corporation to light the footpath alongside the railway, because lamps have been erected on the bridge and on the path. The Corporation, when they annexed Crossgates took over all the responsibilities and obligations of the District Council, and that latter body had entered into an agreement with the Railway Company to maintain and light the footpath, which is on private property, on condition that the gate at the bottom of the steps was removed, and the public had access at all times to the path.

N.B.W.T.A.—On Wednesday the members of the Crossgates and District Branch of the B.W.T.A. held a garden meeting (by the kind invitation of Mrs Crosland, "The Lodge," Scholes). Mrs Haste Carr presided, and there was a good attendance. Mrs Rennard, of Shipley, was the speaker, and gave a most interesting and inspiring address on the "Parable of the Talents," emphasising portions of the text of the parable, and the need for each to cultivate and use their talents in whatever form they take, and also the need for personal influence. Miss Jessop, of Leeds, played violin solos, which were greatly appreciated. Mr Harding (Mrs Crosland's brother), who is on a visit from Australia, accompanied on the piccolo, and Miss Crosland presided at the piano. Mrs. Dewhirst (Whinmoor) proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs Crosland, and all who had helped to make the meeting a success, and this was cordially passed. Tea was served at the close.

GARFORTH

AMBULANCE LEAGUE.—A splendid response is being made to the appeal in the area of the Aberfordia division of the Territorial branch of the St. John Ambulance Brigade for volunteers for service at home and abroad. The Government have accepted an offer of a temporary hospital, fully equipped, at Monk Fryston, placed at the disposal by the Earl of Londesborough. Temporary hospitals have been offered by detachments in the surrounding villages.

PICTURE HOUSE.—An excellent programme of pictures is being shown at the popular Picture House this week. First-rate films have been secured for next week, and on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights the outstanding features will be the great Irish racing drama "The Filly," and a stirring love story of heroism on the battlefield, entitled "For the love of the flag." On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the coloured military drama "The curse of war," which is a sensational and thrilling production, will be exhibited, together with "Britain's Might," showing the British Fleet clearing for action. Other fine class films will be screened. For times and prices see advt.

THE POLICE.—At a meeting of the Standing Joint Committee on Wednesday at Wakefield, it was reported that 45 of the police had been called up to the Army and two to the Navy. The Committee decided to give these men the difference between what they will get from the Government and what they have received as constables, so that each man's wages are assured. To the wives of these men 10s. and 5s. for each child will be added whilst the men are away. The Chief Constable, Major Atcherley, has also been called up, and Mr Quest is now acting Chief Constable. Mr H. H. Fosser and the Chairman of the Committee have been appointed a committee whom the Acting Chief Constable may consult in an emergency.

HALTON

Lady Dorothy Wood, of Templenewsam, has been appointed a member of the committee of the Women's League in Leeds in connection with the war.

Mr H. Thomas (Halton), playing for Leeds against Huddersfield in a bowling match on Wednesday, defeated Mr S. Arlson (Milnsbridge Liberal) by five points.

KIPPAX

Mr John Harding, of Kippax, obtained a first and second prize for smooth-haired Fox Terriers at Harrogate Show on Monday.

THE SHOW.—NEXT Wednesday the annual flower and poultry show and sports will take place at Kippax, and the committee have a large array of specimens. Good entries have been secured for the sports. Entries for the show close on Saturday, the 15th. Particulars are given in our advt. columns.

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH.—The elder scholars in connection with this Sunday School held a picnic on Wednesday in the grounds of Mr Hirst's residence at their disposal by Mr Lancelot Tasker. The children were under the supervision of their superintendent, Mr J. F. Hirst. Tea and a bountiful spread, and games and amusements were indulged in, and a very pleasant time was spent.

DRINK.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday David Farrar, miner, of Kippax, was summoned for having been drunk and disorderly at Kippax on Monday, July 20th. Evidence was given by P.C. Hodgson that about 10.15 p.m., he was on duty near to the Cross Hill, Kippax, where he saw the defendant in a very drunken condition, and he was making use of filthy language. A fine of 7s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

DISORDER.—At the Skyrack Petty Sessions on Tuesday, Albert Hartley, a miner, of Kippax, was summoned for having been drunk and disorderly. P.C. Davies stated that on Saturday, August 1st, about 10.15 p.m., he was on duty on Mount Pleasant, Kippax, when he saw the defendant in a very drunken condition. He was making use of bad language. He was fined 5s. and costs. This is a long list of previous convictions against the defendant, who was fined 15s. and costs.

ON LICENSED PREMISES.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday James Gribon, a labourer, of Kippax, was summoned for being found on licensed premises at Kippax on Saturday, August 1st. It was stated by P.C. Aldborough that about 9.30 p.m. on the night in question he saw the defendant, who was then in a drunken condition, enter the Old Tree Inn. Witness followed and called the attention of the barmaid to the man's condition, and she refused him drink. A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

A RUNAWAY.—On Wednesday afternoon a horse, attached to a trap and in charge of a boy, was coming in the direction of the village from Leeds Hill, when the horse bolted and went over the Cross Hill and down Hall Lane in a great state of fright. The boy got off the cart before the horse plunged down the hill, and was uninjured. A dozen cows came round the bend at Sol's Preston Dairy, and here the horse and trap avoided collision with the cows was really wonderful. The horse was stopped on Brigshaw Lane.

IN DARKNESS.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Albert Martin, a miner, of Kippax, was summoned for being in charge of a vehicle without a light. P.C. Alborough stated that about 11.55 p.m. on Thursday, July 28th, he saw the defendant in High Street, Kippax, in charge of a vehicle which had no light. When questioned by the officer, the defendant said the light had only just gone out. The lamp, however, proved to be quite cold, and there was no candle. A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

PARISH COUNCIL.—A meeting of this Council was held on Tuesday evening—Mr S. R. Silverwood presiding. The other members present were Mr W. Mellor, Mr W. A. Dinsdale, Mr C. Grigson, Mr R. Johnson, and Mr Dr Mucklestosh, with the Clerk (Mr W. Cripsell). The committee appointed to view the sites for the proposed lamps in Westfield Lane and the Kippax Common gave their report. Five lamps are required in Westfield Lane, and three on the Common. After brushing the report the Council decided to erect the number of lamps suggested by the committee in each locality. In regard to the question of the barbed wire fencing in the Robinson Lane entrance to the Ober Lander, it was stated that the wire had been removed. In re pect to the acquisition of a playing field for the children no definite steps could be taken in relation to the matter, as the interview with the squire had not taken place.

MICKLEFIELD.

Patent List compiled by John E. Wiley, Chartered Patent Agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Applications—J. G. Linneker and J. Adams, Micklefield, cancelling device for winding signal gear in collieries and mines; and A. L. Brockman and C. V. Laycock, Leeds and Hailsham, for an improved lawn mower golf game. Patents sealed—Daniel Todd, Otley, improvements in valves for pneumatic tyres; and S. Wormald and Sons, Micklefield, improvements in railway signalling apparatus.

MOOR ALLERTON

Mrs Laura Pearson, of Chapeltown Road, Leeds, and formerly of Moorlands, Moorlea, Moor Allerton.

Messrs E. H. and A. Milner, of Moor Allerton, won third prize in the pony class (riding) at Harrogate Show.

SUCCESS.—On Saturday at Long Show Misses J. W. and A. Pollard, Moor Allerton, were second for agricultural foal, first for agricultural foal or filly, yearlings (both), first for agricultural gelding or filly, two years, first for gelding or mare, any age, in both open and local classes, and for agricultural brood mare, with foal at foot, and third for draught stallion.

MAGISTRATE'S WILL.—Mr John Richard Flitch, of Southlands, Moor Allerton, who died on April 29th, left estate valued at £34,491. He had been associated all his life with the leather trade, being at the head of the firm of Messrs. J. J. Flitch and Son, Springwell Leather Works, Bushingthorpe, Leeds, but he had retired from business three years ago. His name was added to the list of city magistrates a few years ago, and up to the time of his illness he attended regularly. The will is dated December 10th, 1913, wherein testator left £100 to the Leeds General Infirmary, National Orphan Homes for Children, London, the Leeds Hospital for Women and Children, and the Wesleyan Methodist Missionary Society. He also bequeathed £1,000 each to the Leeds Unmarried Women's Benevolent Institution, Leeds United Institution for the Blind, Deaf, and Dumb, and the Leeds Public Dispensary.

OULTON

MR W. P. Peters (Oulton), playing for Leeds against Huddersfield in a bowling match on Wednesday, defeated Mr P. Kershaw (Shepcridge and Deighton) by no fewer than 14 points.

Mr H. J. Butler, lately of Oulton, and a clerk in the office of the surveyor to the Rothwell Urban District Council, has volunteered for service to the Government as a motor despatch carrier. His offer has been accepted.

AS INSPECTED.—During the week several troops of Territorials have passed through the village. On Monday a diverting incident took place in connection with the passing through of a mounted troop. Two young officers rode some distance ahead, and each was accompanied by a young lady on a bicycle.

DRINK.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, William Lee, a pit sinker living at Oulton, was summoned for being drunk and disorderly on the Aberford Road at Oulton about 9.30 p.m., on Friday, July 31st. Colwell proved the case, and the defendant wanted to fight with other men. Defendant, who did not appear, and who was said to have a bad record, was fined 30s. and costs.

ROUNDHAY

The Lord Mayor of Leeds has received an offer from Lord Airedale to allow Gledhow Hall to be used for hospital purposes in connection with the war.

Mr W. Greenwood, of Roundhay and Leeds, has presented the prizes for the second Ivy hackney stallion, second for hackney foal, and second for hackney brood mare, with foal at foot.

The Lord Mayor of Leeds (Mr E. A. Brotherton), like many other owners of spacious mansions, has offered to devote a large part of his residence, Gledhow Hall, Roundhay, for the services of a hospital for the wounded.

Lord Airedale has offered his résidence at Colsh Hill, Chaughton, near Scarborough, to any authorities for the purpose of a hospital for wounded during the war, and also as a convalescent hospital for wounded after the war is over.

SEMEROUS.—Mr Brotherton, of The Hall, Roundhay (Lord Mayor of Leeds) said at a meeting on Monday that this was a time when our people should discipline themselves to spend money with care. They should, for instance, minimise expenditure on luxuries; and he particularly referred to alcohol and tobacco. Each one who indulged in these things should aim at reducing his expenditure by one-half. He appealed in this emergency especially for capital was at the disposal of his country. (Applause). Moreover, one half of his income —say, the whole of it—should be placed at the disposal of his country in this crisis. (Loud applause).

MR W. HARVEY AND GERMANS.—Mr W. Harvey, of Roundhay, has written a letter of great regret that one of the immediate most results of the present sad state of war, is for foreigners, whether in Germany or England, to be looked upon with suspicion, and in many cases placed under arrest. In the great cities of our land there are hundreds of German citizens who have been working side by side with their British brethren, making friendships, devoting their energies and abilities in legitimate commerce, and it is lamentable that so many of these should soon be regarded as enemies. Probably, in a limited number of cases, German and other foreign residents may have abused the hospitality of this nation, but I feel sure that many of our people are greatly regret the needlessly harsh action of the military authorities, and I desire to plead, at the outset of this terrible strife, for kindly personal feelings towards those domiciled for a time in our midst. The people of the great commodities now plunged into warfare have to contend with one another; and in many cases, and it is lamentable but

CRICKET JOTTINGS.

SAGAR-MUSGRAVE CUP.—SEMI-FINAL.

Tadcaster and Hallon Wes. meet in the Sagar-Musgrave Cup semi-final at South Milford tomorrow (Saturday), and there should be a big crowd to witness, who should prove a very interesting game. Tadcaster are certainly the more experienced team, and they are a strong side in both batting and bowling, but Hallon Wes., who are very enthusiastic, possess some good "talent," and they will, in all probability, make a good fight, for they are very keen on getting into the final. In the League this season both teams have a similar record, having lost only one match. Tadcaster were defeated by Milford, and Hallon Wes. went under to Crossgates.

RILEY-SMITH SHIELD SEMI-FINAL.

The ground at Old Marston, Crossgates, is an excellent choice for the semi-final between Garforth Wes. and Seacroft A, and a good turnout of spectators from Garforth, Seacroft, and Crossgates is expected. The Crofters have a better League record than their opponents, having been beaten only once, whereas Garforth Wes. have lost two matches, but that is nothing to judge by, and both teams will strive hard for supremacy. Both teams have figured prominently in this Competition before, but the Garfothians have never had the shield in their possession.

LANE FOX CUP—CHURCH FENTON FIASCO.

The semi-finals in the Lane Fox Cup Competition were down for decision on Saturday afternoon, and it was very unfortunate that rain fell heavily in the early part of the day, because it was the primary cause of one of the games not being played. It was arranged that Crossgates and Tadcaster should meet at Church Fenton, and the Crossgates men should have travelled by the 1.28 train from Leeds on to Wetherby Fne, but when it arrived at Crossgates the rain was pelting down, and it was doubtful that there would be any play. The Tadcaster players naturally objected to "throwing money away" when there was every indication that the match would not take place. Of course, in adopting this attitude, they were wrong, because it has been ruled that if one side does not turn out the other team may claim the match.

Two Crossgates players, however, made the journey by the train alluded to, and they were asked to wire whether or not play was possible, but no message came. The weather cleared, and Crossgates decided to travel by the 3.50 from Leeds. It was after four before the train arrived at Church Fenton, and then the Tadcaster players and spectators could be descried coming off the field. It appears that the Calcaria forces turned up in good time, and when their opponents failed to put in an appearance by four o'clock they decided to claim the match. The game should have been commenced about 4.30, and it was about 4.40 ere the Crossgates men got to the field. Several people, while not expressing an opinion as to the justification of their action, urged Tadcaster to play the match under protest, but some of the Calcarians argued that, in the event of their losing the toss, and their opponents batting first, it would penalise them had they to bat in a failing light.

Personally, I think Crossgates made a mistake in not travelling by the 1.28 train. The Competition Committee, in fixing the match at Fenton, did not consider that the late to Tadcaster team would be only 8d., and to Crossgates 2s. 3d., for they were concerned about their own exchequer, and thought that they would get a better "gate" at Fenton. In this way, it must be admitted, Crossgates players were placed at a disadvantage. The "luck of the draw" had nothing whatever to do with the case, and the question of fares as affecting both teams in a match should, in fairness to all concerned, be considered in the Sagar-Musgrave Cup Competition. They have won the Sagar-Musgrave Cup more times than ever team in the district, but they have not yet been able to lead the other trophy, and on Saturday South Milford again baulked them. The Milfordians arrived after three, and a bit short was made. The wicket was in a very soft condition, and the bowlers had the upper hand throughout the game. Seacroft had first knock, and D. Burton and T. Toft were the only batsmen. Chillen, and Atkinson being the trundlers. Burton scored seven in the first over, and then he returned the feather to Chilton, who dropped it, while Toft was subsequently stumped. When the Scarce had reached 19 Burton (7) was caught by Atkinson, and without another run on the board Toft was caught out by Osborne. Thompson (13) and Stead (10) then came together, and they batted steadily, bringing the score to 41. Then Thompson was run out—a division which did not please the spectators. Stead was clean bowled by Lindley without any change in the score, and then came a very lapse. Dy Johnson and Fryer were soon got rid of, and six wickets were down for 55. The remaining four yielded one run, the innings closing for 56—a score altogether unworthy of the team. Lindley had five wickets for 13, E. Atkinson 3 for 18, and Chilton one for 23.

The Milfordians were, naturally, on good terms with themselves, and they had visions of a victory. They, however, did not start at all promisingly, and three wickets were lost for 19, and 4 for 22. Then A. Atkinson and Chilton got together, and before they former was bowled the score was taken to 53. Milford were within sight of victory, and by steady play they won by three wickets. Seacroft fielding was not as good as it might have been, several chances being missed, but Milford were also at fault in this respect. Toft had three wickets for seven, Stead two for 12 runs, Johnson one for 6, and Burton 1 for 19.

THE LEAGUES—SEASON'S PLAY.

From a playing standpoint, the season has been one of the most successful in the history of the Competition, and one very satisfactory feature has been the complete fulfilment of the League programme week by week. In the previous season, owing to wet, many matches were abandoned, and the sharing of points by teams tended to place certain clubs in a flattering position. Tadcaster and South Milford have been outstanding in division one, and, although the other clubs possess some fine bowling "talent," they are very weak in batting, and consequently the leading teams had an easy task. In division two, containing Seacroft, Garforth, and Micklefield, there was a splendid struggle, and there is not much to choose between the leaders and Garforth, who, had they availed themselves of the chances they were offered, would have been in the first position. Halton, too, are plucky fighters, and, under good leadership, they should prove a match for local cricket. Hallon Wes., a very enthusiastic combination, are certainly the best eleven in division 3, and they deserve their place, for they have worked hard to secure it. The other teams, with the exception of Collingham, appear to be well matched.

The work of the Executive has this season been very light, indeed, and disputes between clubs have, happily, been very few, and this must be taken as a manifestation of good-fellowship among cricketers generally. Two remarkable cases—the first of the kind—came up for decision. In a Lane Fox Cup match between Micklefield and Cawood and in a Junior League match between Garforth A and Aberford mistakes were made in the scoring, and play was stopped, with Micklefield and Garforth A as winners, but when the figures were gone into thoroughly it was discovered the scores in both cases were equal.

It will be noticed that in the League table Cawood and Church Fenton are shown as having played only 9 matches. This was due to the clubs "taking the law into their own hands," as it were. One wet day it was thought the ground at Fenton would not be fit for play, 24th, in order to save Cawood expense, they were asked not to make the journey. Only the umpires have power to settle this matter, and the Executive decided to pledge the match from the table. Church Fenton made a mistake in notifying their opponents, and Cawood were wrong in not going to Fenton.

JUNIOR LEAGUE—GARFORTH A LOSE.

In the Junior League the most important match was that between Garforth A and Scarcroft A for the leadership of division 2, and it produced a splendid contest. The match was at Seacroft, and the homesters were dismissed for 50 (Hunter 14 and J. Linley 10). W. Hancock trundled effectively for Garforth, taking 7 wickets for 32, while S. Stead had 3 for 4 runs. Garforth were not set a big task, but they failed to accomplish it, finishing three runs behind their opponents. F. Hancock was top scorer of the match with 15. Three Linleys were the Seacroft bowlers, and W. Linley secured 4 wickets for 17, J. Linley 4 for 19, and T. Linley 2 for 9.

Barkston Ash have come away in fine style at the finish of the season, but it is a pity they did not make a spurt earlier. At home, they administered a severe trouncing to Bramham, and they demonstrated that they are not without "talent." Barkston scored 195 (Wright 44, Bailey 30, and Dent 17), and J. Cass captured five wickets for 18, while Dawson had two for 12. Bramham were sent back for 54, and Woods secured six wickets for 18, and Rhodes 3 for 5.

Berwick A, formed for the purpose of encouraging cricket among the juniors, are not at the top of the table, and although they have met with defeat after defeat, they are still game, and on Saturday, bringing their opponents—Barkston Ash A—to Berwick, they showed that practice makes perfect. Their opponents on Saturday were Halton A, and the latter scored 74. Beard 10, Haigh 14, and Grant 10. Lumb had 4 wickets for 17, and Rawdon 4 for 20—creditable records. Eight of the Berwick team failed to score, and provided a total of 10. T. H. Hudson contributed 9 and Scargill 7. Dobson captured five wickets for seven, and Longden had four for 10 runs.

Sherburn White Rose had their fourth victory by defeating Ulleskelf. No details are come to hand, but it is reported Sherburn scored 32 and Ulleskelf 18.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

Rothwell, who were knocked out in the semi-final of the Wakefield Cup Competition in the previous week, were at home to Kippax on Saturday, and won easily. Batting first, the homesters quickly rattled up 144, and declared at the fall of the seventh wicket. A. Tiffany was again in good form, and made 55, while H. Hemsworth played well for 33, and H. Lane scored 22. The other four wickets fell for a total of 15, while the two out men made 11 between them. Kippax responded with 76, to which S. Edwards (12) and A. Ward (26) were the chief contributors. Bowling honours fell to W. Botford (Rothwell), with 3 wickets for 14 runs, and C. Tiffany (Rothwell) and E. Bickerdike (Kippax) each secured 3 wickets for 22.

Woodlesford met with a reverse on Saturday, when they entertained the Carltonians. The homesters, whose chief strength lies in their ball, let down by five "ducks." However, E. Baxter made a stand for his side and scored 25 not out. L. Wilkinson 19, G. Hewitt 15, and T. H. Myton 10 were the other chief scorers. On Carlton taking the field, Newton and E. Fozzard went in to bat, and both settled down to give what proved a clever batting display. Newton made 37 and Fozzard was still batting with 36 to his credit when their opponents' score was passed. The visitors then closed their innings with nine wickets to spare.—Stanley Church defeated Outwood by five wickets.

Kippax A had a match with Rothwell A, and the former won by a couple of wickets. Rothwell batted first, and sent up 99, of which Nelson obtained 14 and Fazzard 11. Kippax scored 60 for a loss of eight wickets, and Alb. Gripwell made 20. B. Stoker 13, and Balfour 10.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT CRICKET LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood Friends	13	8	3	1	17
Carlton	12	8	2	2	18
Oulton	12	7	4	1	15
Methley	12	5	5	2	12
Robin Hood	12	5	5	2	12
Kippax	13	5	7	1	11
Rothwell	10	5	5	0	10
Woodlesford	13	3	10	0	6
Stanley	11	1	9	1	3

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Outwood A	11	11	3	0	22
Rothwell A	12	7	4	1	15
Carlton A	10	7	3	0	14
Stanley A	11	6	4	1	13
Kippax A	12	6	5	1	13
Altofts Wes.	11	4	7	0	8
Woodlesford A	12	4	8	0	8
Oulton A	12	3	8	1	7
Robin Hood A	10	2	8	0	4

R. HOYLAND, Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY

Altofts v. Woodlesford.—Messrs Lumb and Morley.
Kippax v. Carlton.—Messrs Tattersall and Fox.
Oulton v. Robin Hood.—Messrs Whitehead and Britton.
Stanley v. Rothwell.—Messrs Tate and Booth.

ROTHWELL AND DISTRICT LEAGUE.

ROTHWELL v. KIPPAX—Played at Rothwell. Scores:—

Rothwell—J. Newton, b Bickerdike, 3; W. Fox, lbw, b Bickerdike, 5; A. Tiffany, c Gripwell, b Eddison, 55; H. Hodgkinson, b Bickerdike, 4; H. Hemsworth, c Gripwell, b Eddison, 33; H. Lane, c and b Lloyd, b Eddison, 22; C. Tiffany, c Varley, b Eddison, 3; E. Bush, not out, 0; E. Mathews, b Eddison, 0; J. Hudson, b Eddison, 0; J. Hall, b Eddison, 0; S. Edwards, run out, 22; W. Lloyd, b Botford, 1; B. Eddison, run out, 7; E. Bickerdike, lbw, b Botford, 2; A. Gripwell, lbw, b Botford, 0; Extras, 5; total, 171.

Kippax—S. Edwards, run out, 22; W. Lloyd, b Botford, 1; B. Eddison, run out, 7; E. Bickerdike, lbw, b Botford, 2; A. Gripwell, lbw, b Botford, 0; Extras, 5; total, 87.

WOODLESFORD v. CARLTON—At Woodlesford. Scores:—

Woodlesford—G. Hewitt, b Illingworth, 15; W. Harrison, lbw, b Carlton, 0; A. Hetherington, b Illingworth, 8; O. Wilkinson, b Illingworth, 0; E. Baxter, not out, 25; E. Hitchin, c Corns, b Illingworth, 1; J. Hudson, c Wright, b Brook, 0; L. Wilkinson, b W Brown, 19; T. Morton, c G. Bennett, b Sykes, 0; T. H. Myton, b Sykes, 0; T. H. Myton, b Nelson, 19; extras, 13; total, 87.

Carlton—W. Newton, c Hitchin, b Myton, 37; E. Fozzard, not out, 36; Sacklington and Colton, result not to hand; extras, 5; total (for 1 wkt.), 83.

ROTHWELL JUNIOR LEAGUE.

KIPPAX A v. ROTHWELL A—At Kippax. Scores:—Rothwell—R. Charlesworth, lbw, b Gripwell, 6; B. Fozzard, b G. Gripwell, 11; J. Hobson, run out, 5; W. Nelson, c Cockerham, b Gripwell, 0; J. Bailey, c Gripwell, b Eddison, 14; J. Stoker, 22; G. Drury, c Goodland, b Gripwell, 51; W. Raby, c Beech, b Stoker, 0; A. Parrish, b Stoker, 3; S. Falkiner, not out, 6; H. Loughley, b Stoker, 1; extras, 22; total, 89.

Kippax—A. Balfour, b Fozzard, 10; W. Gripwell, c Charlesworth, b Nelson, 2; J. Bickerdike, run out, 13; S. Cracknell, lbw, b Nelson, 0; T. Beech, c Fozzard, b Nelson, 0; C. Cockerham, run out, 22; R. Stoker, b Nelson, 13; A. Gripwell, c Balfour, b Nelson, 0; G. Goodland, not out, 0; H. Loughley, b Nelson, 0; extras, 7; total (for 8 wkts.), 80.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION.

SENIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster	10	9	1	0	18
South Milford	10	7	2	1	15
*Cawood	9	5	3	1	11
*Church Fenton	9	3	6	0	6
Saxton	10	3	7	0	6
Church Fenton Sycamore	10	1	7	2	4

*Cawood v. Church Fenton match not to be included.

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft	10	9	1	0	18
Garforth	10	8	2	0	16
Micklefield	10	6	4	0	12
Halton	10	5	5	0	10
Berwick	10	1	9	0	2
Great Preston	10	1	9	0	2

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Halton Wesleyans	10	9	1	0	18
Crossgates	10	7	3	0	14
Shadwell	10	6	4	0	12
Whitkirk	10	4	6	0	8
Crossgates Wesleyans	10	3	7	0	6
Collingham	10	1	9	0	2

JUNIOR LEAGUE.

Division 1.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Tadcaster A	12	10	2	0	20
Ulleskelf	12	8	3	1	17
*Kirk Deighton	12	6	5	0	12
*South Milford A	12	6	5	0	12
Bramham	12	4	8	0	8
Sherburn W.R.	12	4	8	0	8
Barkston Ash	12	3	8	1	7
*South Milford A v. Kirk Deighton, result not to hand.

Division 2.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Seacroft A	12	11	1	0	22
Garforth A	12	10	2	0	20
Great Preston A	12	6	6	0	12
Halton A	12	6	6	0	12
*Aberford	12	4	7	0	8
*Micklefield A	12	3	8	0	6
Berwick A	12	1	11	0	2
*Micklefield A v. Aberford, result not to hand.

Division 3.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	Pts.
Garforth Wesleyans	10	8	2	0	16
Sacklington & Colton	10	7	3	0	14
Crossgates A	10	5	5	0	10
Crossgates Wes. A	10	5	5	0	10
Whitkirk A	10	3	7	0	6
*Halton Wesleyans A	10	2	7	0	4
*Halton Wes. A v. Sacklington and Colton, result not to hand.

E. D. Pawson, Hon. Sec.

MATCHES AND UMPIRES FOR SATURDAY.

SAGAR-MUSGRAVE CUP.

Halton Wesleyans v. Tadcaster. At South Milford. Messrs J. E. Kitching (Leeds) and R. Firn (Cawood).

RILEY-SMITH SHIELD.

Garforth Wesleyans v. Seacroft A. At Old Manston. Messrs G. C. Earnshaw (Oulton) and H. Ward (Great Preston).

LANE-FOX CUP SEMI-FINAL.

SEACROFT v. SOUTH MILFORD—Played at Garforth. Scores:—

Seacroft.
D. Burton, c A Atkinson, b Chilton	12
T Toft, c Osborne, b Lindley	6
G Thompson, run out	13
S Stead, b Lindley	10
C. Johnson, c Howlgrave, b Lindley	2
I. Fryer, lbw, b E. Atkinson	4
E. Johnson, b E. Atkinson	0
F. Taylor c Lindley, b E Atkinson	0
J W Pickersgill, c C Sutton, b Lindley	1
H. Toft, not out	0
S. Simpson, b Lindley	0
Extras	2
Total	56

South Milford
E. Atkinson, C Johnson, b D. Burton	6
H. Hutchenoth, b Stead	7
H. Hoodgrave, b C Johnson	4
A. Atkinson, b Stead	0
N. Stainburn, b Stead	3
H. Chilton, c Taylor, b Toft	15
W. Sutton, not out	6
A. Lindley, b Toft	3
J. Hodgson, not out	0
Extras	3
Total (for 7 wkts.),	59

BARKSTON ASH JUNIOR LEAGUE.

SEACROFT A. v. GARFORTH A.—At Seacroft. Scores:—Seacroft A.—P. Taylor, b W. Hancock, 4; J. Linley, b W. Hancock, 10; E. Hancock, c W. Hancock, 14; F. Knott, b S. Stead, 1; J. W Smith, c F. Hancock, b S. Stead, 3; T. Linley, c F. Hancock, b S. Stead, 0; J. Hardy, c F. Hancock, b S. Stead, 0; W. Linley, not out, 7; W. Linley, c F. Hancock, b W. Hancock, 2; E. Linley, c F. Hancock, b W. Hancock, 2; Kilburn, lbw, b W. Hancock, 0; W. Linley, not out, 7; extra, 1; total, 56. Garforth A.—F. Hancock, c T. Linley, b W. Linley, 15; T. Kilburn, lbw, b W. Linley, 2; A. Browning, b J. Linley, 22; J. Kilburn, c E. Linley, b W. Linley, 4; W. Hancock, b Linley, 2; A. Hewitt, b T. Linley, 8; W. Hemsworth, c W. Linley, b J. Linley, 4; W. Hancock, b J. Linley, 2; S. Stead, c and b J. Linley, 8; W. Harwood, not out, 0; extras, 2; total, 47.

BARKSTON ASH v. BRAMHAM.—At Barkston. Scores:—Barkston Ash—R. Bailey, b Hebron, 0; J. Dent, b Eastwood, 8; C. Bell, b Hebron, 0; Dove, b Stockdale, 17; W. Woods, c Cass, b Hebron, 0; I. Wright, b Cass, 34; H. West, b Cass, 0; W. Varley, b Hemsworth, 5; A. Ward, c Hodgkinson, b Bedford, 19; O Banks, not out, 19; extras, 42; total, 76.

BRAMHAM v. CARLTON—At Woodlesford. Scores:—

Woodlesford—G. Hewitt, b Illingworth, 15; W. Harrison, lbw, b Carlton, 0; A. Hetherington, b Illingworth, 8; O. Wilkinson, b Illingworth, 0; E. Baxter, not out, 25; E. Hitchin, c Corns, b Illingworth, 1; J. Hudson, c Wright, b Brook, 0; L. Wilkinson, b W Brown, 19; T. Morton, c G. Bennett, b Sykes, 0; T. H. Myton, b Sykes, 0; T. H. Myton, b Nelson, 19; extras, 13; total, 87.

Carlton—W. Newton, c Hitchin, b Myton, 37; E. Fozzard, not out, 36; Sacklington and Colton, result not to hand; extras, 5; total (for 1 wkt.), 83.

A number of Territorials out in search of an early morning shave at Victoria on Monday came across a barber's shop in charge of a man of the proprietor, a German, had left. One of the soldiers ordered the boy to lather the face of the unconscious German, and then went at it with a will. Other soldiers were in a number of their men, whilst he shaved them, and for over an hour good business was done.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET COMPETITION

LANE FOX CUP AND SAGAR-MUSGRAVE CUP.

THE TADCASTER AND CROSSGATES SEMI-FINAL.

A meeting of the Barkston Ash Competition was held at the Hotel Metropole, Leeds, on Monday.—Mr. W. Tinsley presiding. Other members present were Messrs E. D. Pawson (hon. sec.), A Howith (Seacroft), K. Ward (Great Preston), A. Dighton (Church Fenton), J. H. Townend (Micklefield), W. Glover (Garforth), E. W. Herbert (Tadcaster), H. White (Crossgates), A. Cruickshank (Hallon Wes.), A. Johnson (South Milford), and F. Heaps (Hallon).

The Hon. Sec. reported that the Lane Fox Cup semi-final, Crossgates v. Tadcaster, which should have been played at Church Fenton on Saturday, did not take place.

The Hon. Sec. of Tadcaster club had written claiming the match owing to Crossgates not putting in an appearance until after 4 o'clock. The umpires also reported the late arrival of Crossgates.

The Hon. Sec. read the rule bearing on the matter, which is as follows:—"For the first fifteen minutes late, without reasonable excuse, a club shall be fined 10s., and for the second 15 minutes, 20s. If a club be more than 30 minutes late the matter shall be dealt with by the Committee, and if one hour late the match shall be awarded to the club whose team is in readiness to play."

Mr White, on behalf of Crossgates, said he considered it would be most unfair to his club if the match was awarded to Tadcaster, as the circumstances were so extenuating. He stated that two of their players were kept back owing to the war, and that on Saturday morning there were three men's places to be filled. The train fare was excessive, and the weather was so bad he thought the match should certainly be played later.

Mr Herbert stated that Tadcaster in the past had been called upon to make equally long journeys, and that they had turned up according to rule, whatever the weather conditions were. He maintained that Crossgates should have made the journey on the earlier train, and that, in his opinion, the rule affecting the matter was definite.

The Chairman stated that according to rule the match should be awarded to Tadcaster, but under the exceptional circumstances his sympathies were with Crossgates club. The Executive had no power to order the match to be played, but in the event of Tadcaster agreeing to such a proposal the affair would be amicably settled.

Mr Herbert said he could give no such undertaking on behalf of Tadcaster, but he would be pleased to put the matter fully before his club's committee.

The draws for the deciding matches in the Senior and Junior Leagues then took place, and afterwards, in the Senior, and Tadcaster in the Junior, received byes.

It was agreed that the matches be played as arranged on August 15th, as follows:—Halton Wesleyans v. Tadcaster, at South Milford; Garforth Wesleyans v. Seacroft A., at Old Manston, Crossgates.

Mr Herbert proposed, and Mr Glover seconded, that the handicapping of medals for the three Competitions be left in the hands of the President and Hon. Secretary.

It was resolved that the next meeting should be held on August 17th.

A vote of thanks was accorded the Chairman on the call of Messrs Herbert and Dighton.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—Owing to trade being unsettled prices for old grain were irregular. The amount asked for wheat was 45s. and upwards. Oats have advanced about 5s. per qr. No new corn is yet on offer.

PROVISIONS.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs 8 or 9 for 1s.; butter 1s. to 1s. 6d. per lb.; chickens 4s. 6d. to 5s. 6d., ducks 5s. and 5s. 6d. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—A nice supply of early potatoes on offer. There was a rise in prices, the quotations being from 65s. to 75s. per ton; retail, 2s. 6d. to 3s. per hamper of 1½ stones.

CATTLE.

SELBY AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Richardson and Son sold 54 beasts, 12 sheep, and 58 pigs. There was about an average attendance of buyers. Stock was not of the best quality; prime beef made 9s. 6d. per stone. A sharp trade for pork. Fat bullocks realised up to £30 5s., heifers £19 17s. 6d., cows £19 15s., store cattle £13, heifers in calf £15 10s., cows in milk £22, fat sheep £2 12s., lambs £2 5s. to £2 7s. 6d., pigs £6 2s. 6d., and breeding sows £7 17s. 6d. each.

WHITSIDE AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Barth and Son offered 60 newly laid-down Irish cows and calves, 128 pigs, and 12 calves. There was a good attendance. Trade in all departments was practically normal. The best newly-calven cows made up to £25 5s., present calvers to £23 10s., and October calvers to £20 5s. fat cows for sale. Best heifer beef to 8d. per lb., and cows to 9½d. per lb. Sheep and lambs maintained the recent high quotations, sharp lings realising up to 9½d., ewes to 8d., and lambs 10d. to 11d. per lb. Small pigs sold well, but the heavier kinds to 7s. 3d. per stone to £7 5s. for 2 score each.

WETHERBY, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a good show of prime fat beasts, sheep, and lambs. The attendance of buyers was in excess of a week ago, and trade ruled firm. The choicest quality beef made up to 10s. per stone, secondary from 9s. to 9s. 6d., and cows and heavy sheep 8s. 6d. to 9s. Sheep a good trade up to 10½d. per lb.; heavy sheep 8½d. to 9½d.

Fat bullocks made up to £30 15s. and second to new cattle. Numbers on hand were on sheep and lambs. Mr R. Dutton, Bilton Grange, topped the market with very good bullocks, making £29 5s., and £26; Mr J. H. Tweddle, Bickerton Grange, had seven good bullocks, making £28 5s., and £27 15s.; Mr J. Hebblethwaite, Bickerton Grange, had four good bullocks, making £25, £22 2s. 6d., £21 10s., and £21; Mr T. Dawson, Walkeld

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE DOUBLE CHANCE.

By J. S. FLETCHER

Author of "The Threshing Floor," "When Charles I. Was King," "Daniel Quayne," "The Paladin," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.—Clinton Massenbury had been arrested and charged with murder of his uncle, Sir Robert Massenbury. He had protested his innocence, but circumstances were strongly against him. Now, when his town of congressmen had nearly completed a session from Scotland, he sends a note to Sir Robert's daughter, Phillipa, asking her to come to his room. Here he confesses and again protests his innocence. Phillipa avers that she believes him guiltless, but now the trial of her father alarms her, and she makes known to Clinton that he is a stand rumor. Clinton is overwhelmed. Jim feels sure that Clinton will come straight to him, and his expectations are fulfilled the same night. Unknown to either, the meeting is witnessed by a man, who also recently was in the bedroom.

Clinton and Phillipa then meet. Clinton urges upon her the necessity of an interview between her father and himself, so that he may once more protest his innocence. Phillipa gives Clinton a key by which he can easily gain access to Sir Robert's room. When they meet, Clinton tells her that the police are on his track, and he remains in hiding for several days, never leaving the house, he finds his way to the Castle. Entering the study he finds a few documents relating to the trial. Among the former, he sees that Sir Robert has fallen across his desk, and that Sir Robert has taken from the papers beneath him. Turning to try for help he finds himself in the grip of a man-servant. He is confronted with screaming fear that he is suspected of murder. Clinton, with assistance of the servant, is arrested to stand for the murder of his uncle. Lonsey Bates, one of the servants, is found dead. He was shot in a treadmill, had been Clinton in the study. As a treadmill had been Clinton in the study. As a treadmill had been witnessed the interview. Mark Quinton, Sir Robert's secretary, was found murdered, and had come to the study just as Clinton had made the appalling discovery, and the man who had entered Clinton's room was sufficiently sinister to suit the help. Clinton assures Phillipa of his innocence of the crime of which he is charged, but it is serious, and a hush falls upon the room when the dead master's daughter is called.

CHAPTER VII.

Of all the people present in court, Clinton Massenbury was the most affected by Phillipa's entrance. But while the rest, from magistrates to printers, were one and all moved to some measure of sympathy across amongst the prisoner as they saw that her face was pale, and that her eyes were swollen and drawn, Basil Parke grasped the sharp, self-assured manner which he had evidently assumed for the occasion, and addressed her in soft tones.

"I am deeply regretful, Miss Massenbury, to put you to the pain of being told that it has been unavoidable, and I will not detain you any longer than I can help," he said. "Please sit down, and tell me if it is yours."

He spoke, and held out a bunch of keys.

"It is mine," replied Phillipa.

"The key which found in Sir Clinton's possession last night. Can you tell us how it came into his possession?"

"I gave it to him."

"When was that?"

"The day before last."

"May I ask for what purpose?"

"I gave it to him that he might have access to my father's study last night."

"Then I take it that you had had interviews with your cousin—with the prisoner—before last?"

Yes.

Rowland Parke hesitated for a moment, as if he were not quite assured of his next question, and in the silence Clinton called witness after witness.

"I will then everything, Phillipa—there's no need to keep you longer," he said.

Phillipa looked at Parke. "That is what I should wish to do," she said, quietly. "There is really no need to detain me, Mr. Parke. I have answered and hesitated Stanford stepped to his client.

"I am sure that if Miss Massenbury is good enough to offer any evidence that may be of assistance to your Worships and to me," he said, "my friend will gladly hear it," he said, in his suavest manner.

"Certainly—certainly!" murmured the chairman.

"I should like to say what I know," said Phillipa, as Stanford sat down again, "and I am sure that my friend is as anxious to put every scrap of evidence before your Worships as I am myself. It is only a few days ago that I heard that my cousin was in the house—in the house, and that he was coming to Manchester. I was made aware of the fact by a letter which I received on the night before last at the Hermit's Cell. We met, and he explained to me that he desired to communicate with my father for the purpose of strongly urging him to reopen the case of my mother's death. I told him that my father would not receive him in the ordinary way, so I arranged that he should come to the house secretly by the garden door next evening at an hour when my father was always engaged in study. That was last night—yesterday—that he should admit himself. I think it right that you should know that I myself, after my cousin had gone, decided that my interests required that his scheme should be carried out, and that I would let some one admit him to the house. I myself, therefore, arranged with the authorities room whom he had escaped."

There was a very slight emphasis on the word "I," as Rowland Parke had evidently no further question to ask. Stanford did not, and Phillipa was therefore given leave to withdraw.

Although you had made no suggestion of the kind, Miss Massenbury," said Mr. Dauncey, "I should have thought it desirable that you should actually leave it your cousin was in the house?"

"No, I never knew—"

"You knew that he be to enter the study by the garden door?"

"I had just time—the time my father was usually there."

"We have heard from Mr. Quinton that he called at the house about twenty minutes past nine, and was on his way to the study when you met him and asked him to come to your apartment."

Phillipa nodded her head. "Yes," she said, "I think I did that on purpose. I did not want anybody to interrupt the interview between my father and my cousin."

"Stanford sat down and helped himself to a pinch of snuff. He glanced at Parke, who merely shook his head.

"I have nothing more to ask Miss Massenbury," he said.

Phillipa left the box, once more assisted by Quinton. But instead of returning to the seat she made a curtsey, addressed to the magistrates, and in cool was immediately seized for her self-possession. "I should like to say something, sir," she said, addressing the chairman, "if you will allow me to do so. I see that there is very necessity for me to ask your Worships to remain the prisoner, he may be released on bail. I am quite willing to give those proceedings there is absolutely evidence to justify you in such a course. I am sure that Sir Clinton will himself in no flutter, and the case can come into the list. I therefore, on behalf of my cousin, consent the prisoner for trial on the charge preferred against him."

Stanford rose slowly from his seat, and, taking off his spectacles, began to wave them in the air, as was his habit when he addressed the learned Bench. He was a handsome gentleman whose manner, befitting a man of his profession, was somewhat of a pompous style.

"I am sure your worships will agree with me that my friend is an admirable and a most accomplished specimen of the products of our present age," he said, with a twinkle in his eye. "And in saying that I am certainly destitute of her perseverance in his cause—to be an opponent of time-saving methods—but before your Worships I must contend that I must cease to be opposed. I must cease to be opposed before your Worships some evidence which will secure the safe custody of the prisoner in this case, and may alter the complexion very considerably. And having offered that evidence, I shall ask for an adjournment. Call Walter Fisher."

A young, alert-looking man, trim, clean shaven, stepped into the witness-box.

"You are a footman at the Castle?" asked Stanford.

"I am, sir."

"How long have you been there?"

"Three and a-half years, sir."

"Will you kindly tell us, first, whenever Sir Robert was at home, to take into his study at precisely half-past nine a tray on which was decanted of whisky, a syphon of mineral water, and a glass?"

"I did, sir."

"Did you do this last night?"

"I did, sir."

"To the exact minute?"

"To the very minute, sir, by the great clock in the inner hall."

"Was Sir Robert in his study?"

"Yes, sir."

"What was he doing?"

"Writing at his desk, sir."

"Was anybody else about him?"

"No, sir."

"What did you do after that?"

"I went back to the inner hall, sir."

"Had Mr. Quinton arrived then?"

"No, sir."

"Where was he?"

"He had gone into the drawing-room with Miss Massenbury, sir."

"Between that time and the time when Mr. Quinton rang the alarm was anyone else admitted to the house?"

"You, sir—Mr. Stead."

"What time was that?"

"Exactly twenty minutes to ten, sir."

"What occurred as regards Mr. Stead?"

"Mr. Dauncey told Mr. Stead that Mr. Quinton was just going to see Sir Robert, and that he would wait in the library."

"Did he go into the library?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is the library next door to the study?"

"Yes, sir."

"And there is a communicating door between them?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, you heard Mr. Quinton raise the alarm?"

"I did, sir."

"And then I came was that?"

"I should say, sir, as near as possible it was about ten minutes to ten."

"Stead would be ten minutes after Mr. Stead's arrival?"

"So that Mr. Stead for ten minutes had been in the next room to Sir Robert?"

"Yes, sir."

"That will do, Fisher. Call Dr. Whittaker Chadwick."

The doctor, a middle-aged man who was well known in the district as a physician and surgeon of great reputation, and who was much noted for the punctilious care which he took of his patients, stepped into the box.

"I believe that your residence adjoins the Castle?" began Stanford.

"Yes."

"How long would it take you to walk from your house to the magistrates' room at the Castle?"

"A minute and a-half."

"You were in your surgery about ten minutes to ten last night, and you received a telephone message asking you to hurry to the Castle?"

"I did."

"You went at once, and could therefore be in the study within the next two or three minutes at the outside?"

"I was certainly there before five minutes had elapsed."

"You saw and examined Sir Robert's body at once?"

"I did."

"You ascertained the cause of death?"

"Yes. He had been stabbed through the heart by a blow directed from behind."

"I understand, Dr. Childe, that you have a great reputation for accuracy. I want to put a question to you to which you cannot possibly give an inaccurate answer. How long do you consider Sir Robert to have been dead?"

Dr. Childe's answer came with a snap. "Eight minutes."

"Eight minutes! You can give your opinion as nearly as that?"

"Certainly. He had been dead not less than eight or not more than eight minutes."

"That is to say, if you saw him at 9.54, he had been stabbed about or at 9.46?"

"Yes."

"Do you consider that death was instantaneous?"

"Yes; that is, what is called instantaneous."

"Which means—"

"Which means what you realise by instantaneous," said Dr. Childe, with a smile. "You may take it that it was—instantaneous."

"Very good. Now I want another of your careful scientific answers to a critical question. Do you think the blow that struck would of the physical result on Sir Robert?"

"You mean—would Sir Robert cause any action of his body?"

"That is my meaning, doctor."

"Yes," replied Dr. Childe, after a pause, and it did."

"We are told that he was found fallen forwards across his desk. Does that mean that when he was stabbed he simply collapsed over the desk, and could be found from position?"

"No, certainly not. What I am sure occurred was this, and I have this on careful observation of the position of the body. When Sir Robert was struck he leaped from his chair, believed a moment, and then fell face forward across the desk. He was a tall man, and must have struck on especially the one otherwise he would have slipped off it."

"Now just one question or two more. Would any sound arise from Sir Robert when that blow was struck?"

"Almost certainly. He would utter a groan."

"A loud groan?"

"A more or less loud groan."

"Loud enough to be heard in the next room?"

"Unless the walls were exceptionally thick yes."

"You know the relative position of the study and library in this case. Should such a groan have been heard in the library?"

"In my opinion—yes."

"That is, supposing it were uttered?"

"If it, as I have said, morally certain that it would be uttered."

"Thank you, doctor—that is all," said Stanford. He turned to the Bench. "I think your Worships will agree that we have had some speedy interesting evidence," he said. "I want to ask no more, but I have said on the matter by the man who was in the next room. Call Mr. Marshall Stead."

CHAPTER VIII.

The man whose name had just been pronounced by Stanford rose slowly from a seat which he had occupied all the morning in the well of the court, almost under the dock, and at the time the facial blow was dealt; while he had waited there in the library, his employer had been done to death in the study. It was almost as if the crime had been enacted under his very eyes. There was something strange and weird fascination about him, and as he faced Miller Stanford everything but his presence was forgotten.

The man himself was perhaps the coolest person present—not even excepting the practised barrister, who was feeling the excitement of the fray. He was not a man of remarkable appearance—rather, he was of a type so familiar in every commercial centre as to pass unnoticed; the type of the highly respectable, conventional clerk, quiet and reserved in manner, the type which one meets also with banks and counting-houses and mercantile offices. He was quietly and unostentatiously, but at the same time fashionably dressed in dark clothes, out of respect for the dead man he had assumed a black cravat; he wore black gloves. As he stood in the witness box he made a somber picture—a picture of black and white, of light and shade. Everything about him was of a conventional meaning; his clothes, his hair, his carefully-trimmed moustache, and his glossy shoes. And his face was as quiet as himself; entire attitude and appearance suggested an infinite competence.

Mr. Wood began Stanford. "you are chief cashier of the Manxersley Main Colliery?"

"I am."

"That, I suppose, means that you are really at the head of the financial matters?"

"Under the proprietors—yes."

"How long have you held that post?"

"Five years."

"And what was your previous position?"

"I have held every position in the cashier's department, after entering it ten years ago—from an ordinary clerkship up to my chief cashorship."

"And previous to that?"

"I was a boarding-clerk on the Sleeford and Manchester Railway, and stationed here."

"You naturally enjoyed the late Sir Robert's confidence, seeing that you held a position of such great trust and responsibility?"

"I believe I enjoyed that of the late Sir Robert's full confidence in every way."

"You occasionally called at the Castle?"

"I constantly called at the Castle I called regularly."

"As a visitor, or on business, or what?"

"In both respects. Sir Robert sometimes asked me to dine. I occasionally called to see him in the evening on business matters."

"You went there last night—at twenty minutes to ten?"

"Yes."

"And you were shown into the library?"

"I was."

"And remained there until you heard Mr. Quinton call for help?"

"Yes."

"When you entered the study?"

"That is so."

"You went into the study, of course, through the door which communicates with the library?"

"I did."

"Had that door been closed all the time you were in the library?"

"I believe that it had from the fact that it was certainly closed when I went in Mr. Quinton's assistance."

"You have heard the evidence which has been put before the court—the effect that you saw no one in the library from nine-forty to nine-fifty. Is that correct?"

"I have no reason to dispute it. I should say it is quite correct."

"You have also heard Dr. Childe affirm positively that Sir Robert must have been murdered at or about 9.46, and that there almost certainly—we may take it as certainly—have been two sounds—one, the fall of the body; the other a loud groan. Did you, who were in the next room, a silent apartment, mind, where there was no noise or any sound to distract you, hear anything of either?"

Everybody in court regarded Marshall Stead eagerly as this question was put to him. He looked at it steadily as he had answered all the others.

"I heard nothing."

"Absolutely nothing?"

"Absolutely nothing."

Stanford paused for a moment and seemed to be reflecting. He presently went on:

"You know the interior arrangements of the Castle well?"

"Very well indeed, as regards the lower rooms—the reception rooms."

"Don't you think it a strange thing that you should have heard nothing in the library when Sir Robert was in the next room?

"I should think it a strange thing that I heard nothing if the murder actually happened during the ten minutes I was waiting there. In fact, such a possibility is to me inconceivable."

"Dr. Childe's answer came with a snap. "Eight minutes!"

ROUNDHAY RESIDENTS' FLIGHT FROM GERMANY.

GERMANS WILD WITH EXCITEMENT.

THE KIEL CANAL.

Mr James Midgley, of Fieldhead, Park Avenue, Roundhay, a partner in the firm of Rooke and Midgley, solicitors, Leeds, has just arrived home from a visit to Germany. He was in Hamburg when the air suddenly became filled with war and rumours of war. Speaking of his experiences, he said:—"The populace were intensely excited, and full of enthusiasm and optimism for the success of the German arms. So far as I could judge, one and all were fully convinced that there could be one term to the ation of the trouble—further honour and glory ire ge Fatherland. In no instance did I see the slightest sign of depression; everybody appeared enchanted with the mere thought of the coming conflict, as though it was something they had long looked forward to."

This was before the commencement of hostilities with England, but Aga ss English visitors displayed anxiety to get home. They were told that it would be impossible for them to leave, but, acting on the advice of the British Consul, a party of about 180 boarded the Bury, at Hamburg, and they sailed in her a week last Monday. At Cuxhaven, however, they were told they could proceed no further, and the boat was ordered back to Hamburg, whither, after spending a day in vainly trying to get through, she had to return.

"By this time," said Mr Midgley, "England and Germany were at war, and what a change had come over the port! The people were literally wild with excitement, and a strong anti-British feeling dominated the place. The ordinary people in the streets seemed far more antagonistic to great Britain than to France, and as we left the boat we were jeered at and insulted, and generally treated with hostile derision. All the cafes and taverns and shops which formerly bore English names had changed them for others more in keeping with the new situation."

The party decided on attempting the overland journey into Denmark, and this, with several unwelcome interruptions and much inconvenience, was eventually accomplished, and they sailed from Esbjerg to England on a small steamer laden with provisions.

"Everywhere we saw German troops," Mr Midgley added, "and always they were full of confidence in their own success. They were loudly cheered by the crowds, and the troop trains were lavishly decorated with flowers. Often, too, they were labelled 'To London,' or 'To Paris.' The Danes treated us splendidly, and showed us every courtesy and kindness. A crowd of some 5,000 saw us off from Esbjerg."

Miss Albrecht, of Lakeside, Roundhay, had also difficulty in getting out of Germany. She writes:—Before we arrived at Rensburg we passed over the great Kiel Bridge. Therefore stopped at the entrance, and every one had to get out, leaving their remaining possessions. The train went on, and we walked over, guarded on both sides by armed soldiers. The bridge is magnificent, and the view from it the finest and most magnificent I have ever seen. A war ship was hurrying down the canal to Kiel, bound at her slowest speed. Soldiers and guns moving about below us looked like ants. Some said they saw an effigy of King George hung on a gibbet swinging in the breeze. I hope that little black dangling object was an effigy. Up there we seemed suspended between heaven and earth, perhaps we were equally near them both just then, for the day before two men who were exhausted, unable to walk further, were instantly shot.

This bridge practically holds the key to the safety of the German Fleet, for it is through the Kiel Canal the battleships move between the Baltic and the North Sea. It this bridge could be made to fall into the Canal it would be a terrible blow to the German hopes. After two miles' walk we were again interred, in a train, again with doors and windows shut, and so another weary four hours' misery.

At the next stop, Rensburg, the station was filled with armed soldiers—there appeared to be no civilians left in the whole of the country. One soldier went to each compartment to take out the Englishmen and separate them from the women. I was with two women, and they were overjoyed were Germans. My companion had both my ticket and money in his pocket; as the door was shutting on their retreat I realised this to my horror. I tried to get out, but the officer at the door said that the women were to go on. It was a moment I should not care to experience again—my friend managed to put some money into my hand, though a soldier tried to drag him away, but I felt mightily lonely. I can truly say, The widows had to remain closed, for fear, more venturesome than the rest, when they could stand the atmosphere no longer, opened the window a little, and were greeted by the gutteral command "Fenster zu!"

It was not instantly obeyed.

"Zum Donnerwetter—fenster zu!" an officer shouted, and a soldier brought his rifle to the present, and so it was all the weary eight hours' journey through to Wayang, where we were turned out on to a little wayside station at about 5.30 on Thursday evening.

We had had no sleep or rest and little food since Tuesday night. Some of the women looked ghastly, and their heads nodded sideways as they fell asleep for five minutes where they sat or stood. Thursday on the stones in the station embarrassing to get forty winks, but a heavy shower of rain soon disturbed them. The one waiting-room was crowded with people struggling for places at the "buttered-bun" counter. Here we were allowed to go out of the station into the little village, but without money it was of no use to visit the one hotel. There were rumours that the Englishmen were to follow us, and that they had been released from Ruhleben; but by now we were not believing anything until it came to pass. The train should have left at 9, but the frontier was to leave at 1.30 a.m. The hours dragged slowly, for we were uneasy, ignorant of how the men were faring, and if we should finally cross the frontier. We had to go through the Customs at Wayang. My bag passed all right, but when I was asked for a pass I had not even a letter on me to prove my identity! A cheerful prospect indeed. I vowed if ever I did get through I should secure a passport as a soldier always! We were put into the train at 12.30 midnight, with no news as yet of our friends, but just before we started a train brought them in, and we mounted them anxiously. They were all there, but there were no cheers; it may sound astonishing, but we did not dare raise one.

It seems that the men had been arrested, then marched triumphantly through the town for an hour and a half, all carrying their baggage in the midday August sun. At barracks they were dealt up in public places, being assured by the officials that they were not to be released until the war was over, as they were capable of forming armies. Of course, the people followed, highly interested, and it was a good thing for them that they were well guarded by soldiers. Finally they were imprisoned in barracks to await further orders. One poor old lady of 75, who had absolutely refused to be parted from the men, had to struggle along in the useless miserable parade, as also had the children of one of the Consulate staff.

In our compartment from Wayans to Vandrup there were 15 people, and all windows were to be kept shut. There was an old lady with us who had been through the whole journey, and I wonder if she will ever get over it. I never saw anyone look so ghastly. The lamps went out, and we were in pitch darkness, all piled on like herrings. At a place just before the frontier, we were all called out to be examined for the last time. It was quite dark, I think it must have been about 3 a.m. An officer went through our bags again, and asked for passports. The exquisite relief after climbing back into our packed compartment of getting out at friendly Danish Vandrup, the soldiers gone, and all about us Danes—smiling friendly Danes!

CORRESPONDENCE

CROSSGATES V. TADCASTER CRICKET MATCH.

(To the Editor).

Sir,—I should like to call before the cricketing public in the Shetcliffe Park District, through the medium of your paper, the facts relating to the semi-final of the Lane Fox Cup Competition, which should have taken place last Saturday at Church Fenton.

The reader will probably remember the state of the weather. It rained practically without a stop from 7 in the morning until 3.30 in the afternoon. The only available train for Crossgates to travel by, leaves Crossgates at 1.40, and arrives at Church Fenton at 2.34. The match was advertised to commence at 2.30 p.m. The ordinary fare on this train is 3s. 3d. return (all week bookings being cancelled), and in face of the fact that three or four of Crossgates team being out of work or on short time, owing to the war, they could not see their way to pay this, with very poor prospects of play, and the probability of having to go again. Crossgates had to find two reserves at the last moment to take the place of two who had to work extra duty, also on account of the war, and could not get away one in time to go by this train. It was decided that two of them should travel by the 1.40 train and explain the position to Tadcaster, the remainder following by the 3.40 p.m. train, via Micklefield. On this train the fare was 1s. 6d. return. As it happened this train was delayed at Gorforth, attaching horse boxes, for 15 minutes, consequently the team did not arrive on the ground until 4.20, or about 1 hr. 50 m. it was possible to commence play. The Tadcaster team were then leaving the field, having claimed the match under Rule 4, which reads—

"For the first fifteen minutes late, without reasonable excuse, a club shall be fined 1s., and for the second 15 minutes 2s. 6d. If a club be more than 30 minutes late the matter shall be dealt with by the committee, and if one hour late the match shall be awarded to the club who's team is in readiness to play."

Crossgates appealed to the committee of the League, asking for a replay, but the committee decided they had no option but to award the match to Tadcaster, the rule, in their opinion, not allowing them to do otherwise. At the same time, they asked the Tadcaster representative to see if his committee would be agreeable to play the match on Tadcaster ground. Crossgates are now in receipt of Tadcaster's decision, which is that they refuse to play.

My opinion is that the words in the rule "without reasonable excuse" are intended to apply to the whole of the rule, or now would the committee be placed should one team be delayed by a breakdown of train or other unforseen accident, and the other team be in unsportsmanlike as to claim the match. I think the Chairman would have been quite in order if he had accepted the proposal that was put forward "that the match be replayed."

I think the matter should be further considered by the League Committee, as I am sure the donor of the Cup, Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., never intended, or would care to see any team dismissed from the Competition under such unfortunate circumstances.

There is no doubt that Tadcaster, should they ultimately become the holders, would hold it with more pleasure if they had won every round by sheer merit, instead of gaining by others' misfortunes.

I have always stuck up for League cricket in the past, but if this is competition spirit the sooner it is ended the better, and I for one am in favour of Crossgates playing ordinary matches only in the future.—Yours truly,

WALTER T. STEEL.

7, Oak Terrace, Crossgates.
Aug. 12th, 1914.

AMBULANCE.—By kind permission of Mrs Talbot-Ponsonby, of Lotherton Hall, the village institute has been requisitioned as an hospital and soldiers' rest. It is fully equipped with beds and 'fix,' nursing will be undertaken by the local section of the Aberfordia Ambulance Association.

FARMER PLEADS IGNORANCE OF THE LAW.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday Daniel Hardy, farmer, of Shadwell, was summoned for removing seven pigs from the Auction Mart at Whitkirk, on Monday, July 27th, without having the necessary licence. P.C. Taylor proved the case, and defendant pleaded ignorance as to the necessity of having such a licence. Supt. Symonds stated that a special officer was placed on duty at the Auction Mart to supply these licences, and it would have been necessary for the defendant to have passed the officer in leaving the mart. A fine of one shilling for each pig, together with the costs of the case, was imposed.

TADCASTER HOSPITAL.—The Rev. B. and Mrs Hemsworth have placed at the disposal of the Government the Convent Hall and Alpine Hall for use as a temporary hospital during the war. They have already procured upwards of 50 beds, and directly 15 beds are in readiness it required. Mrs Hemsworth, assisted by a party of nursing helpers, has been busy several days making the necessary arrangements. The rooms are only a few yards from the railway at Milford Junction, and it is thought they will be very convenient if required. The members of the Milford Junction Branch of the St. John Ambulance Association have also promised to render assistance, and the members of the Monk Fryston Women's Voluntary Aid Detachment have signified their willingness to be ready when called upon. Offers of assistance have poured in from all round the district.

A Tale of the Dark Ages.

Three hundred years ago there lived at Augsburg a lad named Willibald, apprentice to a smith, whose industry obtained him the regard of his master, while his good nature caused him to be a favourite with all who knew him. His master was highly estimated his skill that when the day grew into a man he offered to make him his partner, and hinted that he was not displeased at the young man's friendship with his daughter.

Willibald, though favoured by the young lady, was quite free from any feeling of love for her, and the reason of his coldness was apparent.

In the small house opposite lived Dame Martha, a respectable widow, with a grand-daughter of some common loveliness. Young Ellen had quite captivated Willibald; and when he saw her through the window, or the open door, thought there could be no happiness so great as that of calling her his own. But the old woman seldom suffered her to stir from her sight. So that there was no opportunity for the young man to declare the passion with which the fair girl had inspired him.

For a long while Willibald sought some pretence to visit their dwelling, but fortune at length favoured him. One day, when the snow made the ground so slippery as to be dangerous to an unfirm person, he saw Dame Martha coming out of the church door. He hastened to offer the assistance of his arm, and conducted her home. She invited him to enter, for she thought that only a very worthy young man would be so attentive to an aged dame. She was now happier than Willibald. From this day he was one of Dame Martha's most frequent visitors, and was always received with a welcome. In process of time he made bold to lay open his heart to the old woman, and ask permission to make love to her grand-daughter. "My dear young friend," was her reply, "I have the highest esteem for you, and could wish Ellen no better husband. I believe she loves you, too; but you have not yet sufficient for the support of a wife. Save from your wages a decent sum, say thirty gold pieces, for a beginning, then come and receive your bride with my blessing."

Willibald was joyous at this unexpected reply. He had now an object for labour and frugality, and he redoubled his industry, laying by carefully all he made.

About this time Dame Martha became indisposed, and her leech prescribed change of air, as she took a little cottage in the country, about an hour's walk from the city.

One day, as Willibald approached the house, Ellen came to meet him, weeping. She sobbed bitterly as he drew near, and exclaimed—"Ah, Willibald, what a misfortune!"

"You know it, then!" cried he, with faltering voice.

"What—no—what?" asked Ellen, quickly and eagerly.

"That I have been robbed of my box of money," answered the youth, in a tone of anguish.

"Alas!" replied Ellen, "then misfortunes never come single! Yesterday a rich gentleman came to our cottage, and demanded my hand in marriage. His name is Werner; he is a rich merchant from Ulm. Even now he is sitting in the room yonder, with my grandma, drinking wine, and telling her of his house and lands, while his servant, in the stands by the chimney, confirms everything he says. But be comforted, dear Willibald; my grandma may say what she will, I will die rather than be faithless to you!"

Here Dame Martha came out of the house, and commanded Ellen to go in directly. The poor girl was forced to obey; and the old woman said to Willibald: "Young man, I came to say to you that I think it best you should come no more to my cottage. A rich man is a suitor for my Ellen, and it is my duty to do what is for her good."

"Very good—very good, Dame Martha!" cried Willibald, half choking with emotion. "I say nothing of your conduct! If you choose to break my honest fellow's heart—and your own word also—'tis all the same to you."

Saying he hastily went away.

Some hours must have passed unmarked in the indulgence of his grief, for it was late when he rose and tried to find his way homeward. After wandering about some time, without being able to discover the road, he found that he was in a churchyard. "There is the house where the people go to pray," murmured the youth bitterly. "Have I not also prayed? Have I not kept my soul from sin? Prayers will not give Ellen back, she would I say—says, to the lad fend himself—and promise to be his, so she would be mine!"

Scarce had the distracted youth uttered these words when a sound of shrill laughter nearly startled him, and, looking round, he saw a figure which he had no difficulty in recognising by the well-known horns and cloven foot. "I am here," cried he in hoarse tones, "at your service, and ready to do your bidding, asking only a small service in return."

"What is that?" Willibald mustered courage to say, though he trembled all over.

"I have a piece of work for you. I will take you to a spot where lies buried one of my subjects. You must make me an iron railing round this grave; and, in return, I will give you your heart's desire."

"If you have nothing more to ask I am content," replied the young man.

"This is all; but it is a harder task than you imagine. You have but one hour to work. At 12 you must begin, and the railing must be completed by the time the clock strikes 1. If it is done, you are free; if not, you belong to me for ever."

Willibald pledged himself to the unhallowed contract, and followed the fiend, who bobbed on till he stood by a new-made grave.

At the same instant, Willibald saw "fire spring from the ground, and caught a glimpse of several bars of iron and the tools of his trade. The clock so diligently did he apply himself that the work grew rapidly under his hand; a single screw only was wanting when the clock was heard striking 1, and Willibald fell to the ground insensible.

When his senses returned it was morning, the sun was shining brightly, and he thought all that had passed a wild dream.

Full of shame and repentance, Willibald hastened to the church to pray for the pardon of his sin. His heart was lighter after the prayer; but he could not go home to work that day, and sadly he walked towards Dame Martha's cottage.

Ellen came to meet him, as before, and shed tears as she threw her arms round his neck.

"This time," she said, "they are tears of joy. When you left so suddenly yesterday I came into the garden, where I might weep undisturbed. I sat there long after dusk; when, as I leant my head on the table yonder, a female figure approached me. She reminded me of my dead mother, and said: 'Weep not, my child, but pray—pray for your lover; he is in very great danger.' She vanished before I could think her; but I remembered her words and prayed for you all night long."

The young man shuddered, but raised his eyes in grateful thankfulness.

"Early this morning," continued the damsel, "came Herr Werner; I went out to meet him, and told him I would not offend my parents by refusing. He was much vexed, but, without another word, mounted his horse and rode away, followed by his servant. My grandma was angry, but my conscience told me I did right, and now that you return to me in safety, Willibald, I am sure that I have the blessing of Heaven."

And, the young smith felt the same assurance when, a few days later, his box of treasure was restored to him by his master's daughter, who, in a fit of jealousy had stolen it from him. Dame Martha could no longer withhold her consent; but, before Willibald dared to claim Ellen as his bride, he confessed his great sin to the priest, and submitted to the penance enjoined upon him; and this, of course, saved him.

The lovers were married and lived happily, remembering their past troubles only as a warning against incontent and an act of submission to Providence.

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291.
" CROSSGATES 6.

DOBSON & CO.,
— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —
Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,
SEACROFT, AND
70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.

Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.

PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

EXCITING COLLIERY STORY!

DO NOT MISS THE OPENING
CHAPTERS OF

"The Double Chance"

By J. S. FLETCHER, the well known Novelist,
IN THE
"Rothwell Courier and Times"

START NOW. START NOW.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
OR THE MARKET. TELEPHONE 87 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Swout Street, LEEDS.

FINAL REDUCTIONS
— AT —
SMITH & PETTY'S
Summer Sale,
44, Lowerhead Row, LEEDS
Three Doors from Briggate.
FIVE PRICES:—
3s. 5s. 7s. 10s. 15s.
FOR
COSTUMES, DRESSES, RAINCOATS, &c., &c
Best Value ever Offered.
Genuine Bargains. See Windows.

Telephone No. 1129.
RHODES & SONS,
Printers and Bookbinders,
2, Aire Street, LEEDS.

BEST & BOOTH
Tailors & Costumiers,
119, KIRKGATE,
— AND —
143, BRIGGATE
(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.
Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.
Look Out for B. & B.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949. Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
Huddersfield: " 1609.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.
96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).
DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evening, 6.30 to 8.
3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.
3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.
WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.
PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.
Telephone No. 253 JNO. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

THE CHALLENGE!

Never Beaten.
BRAITHWAITE'S
"The Firm with a Reputation."
ARE NOW MAKING A
SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS
In all the LATEST STYLES, for
SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.
LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.
5,000 Pairsof Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared
BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Stores,
58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 16, Austthorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier & Times"
— IS THE —
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 86— [Registered at the G.P.O.] as a Newspaper. NEW SERIES. SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
MONDAY, AUGUST 24th, 1914.
Mr R. G. Hunter presents IDA CRISPI and FRED FARREN, and the original company in the Enormously Successful Burlesque-Revue
A MIXED GRILL.
BRUCE GREEN. ALFREDO.
TOM E. FINGLASS & Co.
LATEST WAR NEWS AND FILMS.
AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 3s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.
Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
ALBERT WHELAN.
The Celebrated Australian Entertainer.
THE HARMONY FOUR.
IRENE MAY. JESSIE BERG Etc.
Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 2s., 6d., and 4d.

QUEEN'S THEATRE, LEEDS.
6.50 TWICE NIGHTLY. 9.
MATINEE EVERY MONDAY AT 2.30.
NEXT WEEK.
Mrs. Kimberley's No. 1 Company in "THE BOY DETECTIVE."
One of the Most Up-to-date Dramas Travelling.

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Graffiting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
42, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established 1856
SPARKLING HOSPERIDE
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
OBTAINABLE FROM HOTELS, RESTAURANTS & HALLS
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

Furniture Delivered
ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.
T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST
LEEDS.
N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.
NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

Throughout the district excellent work is being done in one way or another on behalf of the men who are serving with the colours, and all classes seem anxious to do something in order to mitigate suffering and distress. Seeing that so many sewing parties are being organised, may I direct attention to a phase of this question which has been dealt with by several newspapers. It is remarked that many women are most patriotically devoting their time to making shirts and other garments for the wounded. All honour to them; for in many cases this work, as something added to the ordinary household cares, involves a real sacrifice of strength and leisure. There are some women, however, who could do good service in another way if instead of, or in addition to, making garments themselves, they employed other women to do so, or even ordered them from the manufacturers. Giving out such work would help to reduce unemployment, and in that way would mitigate the distress caused by the war, as well as being of service to our wounded soldiers and sailors. I learn of one party of ladies in the district who have collected a considerable sum of money, and they have determined to buy material and have garments made by women who will be paid for their work.

In these days signs and prophecies make a remarkable appeal to the imagination of what has been termed a sober-minded people, and, of course, they are all, in some way, construed to our own advantage. Only the other day a man, gazing upon the hundreds of acres of corn, ready for the harvesters, was heard to remark—"Ay, we must be in the right this time. Look at the weather we're having, and the corn ripening in a few days." He apparently had his doubts. Harvest or no harvest, the course adopted by this country, however costly, was the only honourable one to pursue.

In many parts of the country a scarcity of labour to harvest the crops has been experienced, but in Barkston Ash the farmers are apparently managing to get the work done without much inconvenience. And last week-end the Lord was a picture, with the harvesters busy and the bright sunshine playing on the sheaves of golden grain. It was a gratifying scene, strangely in constrast with that enacted on the other side of the North Sea. Farmers are sometimes stated to be lacking in imagination, indifferent to the panorama which nature gradually unfolds before them as the seasons pass, but comparatively few, I believe, have shut out of their minds the conditions here as compared with those in the rural districts where Hans and Gretchen have had their peaceful labours disturbed by the ruthless demands of a despotic ruler.

It will be remembered that during the South African campaign rifle clubs were started all over the district, and numerous pubs had shooting organizations associated with them. Interest, however, soon waned, and it is doubtful that a single rifle club established in the district is now in existence. At the time I pointed out that these clubs would soon go to the wall, and I advocated instead that the young men should join the Territorials and thus make themselves efficient marksmen. The "Warrior" behind the slip-rails no doubt meant well, but how would they handle a rifle? Once more the establishment of shooting ranges is being advocated, but surely past experience will be some guide to people.

To be of any use to the country men must be properly drilled and trained; they must be taught the value of discipline; and shooting must be learned under proper conditions. This can only be accomplished by Government organization, and by men pledging themselves to undertake service. Although I do not believe in compulsory service, as it is known in various countries, I think that young men generally would profit by a training, but it could not be given by gun clubs. The manhood of the nation has responded nobly to Lord Kitchener's call, but how vastly easier would the formation of a second Army have been had young men generally had some sort of training.

In Barkston Ash and Rothwell district no attempt, so far as I know, has been made to popularize the Territorial movement, although there are hundreds of young men eligible for membership. Selby, Tadcaster, and Wetherby have had their detachments, but Sherburn, Garforth, Kippax, Allerton Bywater, and Rothwell, as recruiting centres, have been neglected. Every one of the places mentioned could support a company, or half-a-company, and I know districts more sparsely populated which have turned out some of the best "shots" in the country. A dearth of men willing to act as officers has often been given as a reason for the apathy towards the movement, and it is lamentable that men of influence do not realize their responsibilities.

Seacroft people have had a disappointment this year. Their cricket team has always been in the front rank in Barkston Ash, and the manner in which they have maintained their position season after season, despite the loss of players, should make other clubs inquire how it is done. This year they had visions of three trophies going to Seacroft, but they have, contrary to expectations, already said farewell to the Lane Fox Cup and the Riley Smith Shield, for a year at least, and they are wondering what will happen in the Sagar Musgrave Cup final when they meet Halton Wen. They have won the trophy presented by Mr Sagar Musgrave, of Shadwell, in 1901 no fewer than nine times, and they have secured the shield given by the late Mr H. H. Riley-Smith, of Tadcaster, in 1909, three times, but the Lane Fox Cup they cannot secure.

It was understood that at last meeting Garforth Urban Council would undertake the work of naming the streets, etc., but the question was ignored, owing, I suppose, to the necessity for practising stern economy at this time. The streets have been christened, but the "fathers" may re-name some of them in order to honour some of the heroes of the war. After the South African bother Woodlesford named its streets, and they were christened after British officers had his doubts. Harwest or no harvest, the course adopted by this country, however costly, was the only honourable one to pursue.

An amusing story is related concerning an Aberford man. Aflame with patriotic zeal, he, along with two chums, determined that they would offer their services to the country, and forthwith journeyed to the nearest recruiting office. Having explained their errand, they were medically examined, and two were rejected. One was informed that his teeth were bad, and that Lord Kitchener greatly regretted he could not accept his services. The Aberfordian, however, did not see any reason in this, and he turned on the officer, and said—"Rejected for bad teeth, am I? I don't want to eat the Germans, I want to kill 'em." All the same, his heart beat does not now beat under the khaki.

The Aberfordia Ambulance League, whose area stretches from Tadcaster to Rothwell, has done splendidly. Fifteen from the Garforth, Bowers, Allerton, and Rothwell detachments, who have signed on as members of the Royal Army Medical Corps, are now on duty at the Scarborough Northern Hospital at Beckett's Park, Leeds, and it is probable that they will be sent on active service. These men will receive 1s. 2d. per day as wages from a grateful country and their wives will get 1s. 1d. per day and 2d. for each child. "Aberfordia," I understand, has, if numbers are taken into consideration, distinguished itself above all other Voluntary Aid Detachments.

The ladies of the League are ready whenever their services are required. At Garforth fifteen beds are to be provided at St. Mary's Hall, and they will be ready at 24 hours' notice. Parlington Hall is to be turned into an hospital, with 20 beds, by Mrs Gascoigne, and the Aberford ladies will be in charge of it. The Whitkirk ladies have, as stated last week, decided to have an hospital, but the best institution in the district will be at Monk Fryston, where the two excellent halls in the Park will be utilized for this purpose. Tadcaster ladies have got permission to use part of the infirmary at Tadcaster, and the fever hospital at Garforth Cliff will also be used if necessary.

It will be remembered that the men at Allerton Bywater Colliery some time since purchased a motor ambulance for use in cases of accident at the pit, and, as an evidence of the good feeling existing between the owners and themselves, they decided that the money should come out of their own pockets. If my information is correct, the ambulance has cost £600. In the beginning of the week I was told that the ambulance had been "commandeered," and its first work will be done for the good of the country.

Many stories are related about the sale of horses in the district to the war authorities, and it is evident that many people have parted with animals to which they were attached. One man stated that he purchased a horse at Sherburn, and he had had it for seven years, and he was afraid it would have to go. Another went, but the favourite animal remained. "I love my horse," he said, "but I determined to work it up to the last, and if they took it they would have to have it. I would be a coward if I hid the horse away and the country wanted it." In another case a farmer had some of his horses taken by Leeds, and he actually went to the city when the military were exercising horses to have a last look at the animals he had parted with.

Ulleskelf is to be favoured with a cricket final on Saturday. The competing teams are Tadcaster and South Milford, and, as the sides are well-matched, an interesting game should be the outcome. It is impossible for the Competition to get along without funds, and it is hoped that the people in the rural districts will turn up in large numbers and justify the Committee's action in having the match on Ulleskelf ground.

At a meeting of Garforth Urban Council it was stated that Reservists' wives and families had been reduced to sore straits owing to the breadwinners having been called up, and surely local people will see that they do not suffer meantime. The War Office has issued a communique on the subject of separation allowances for the wives and children of soldiers, Reservists, Territorials, and civilians enlisted for temporary service. Separation allowances will be paid during the war at the same rates to the wives not on the married establishment as to those on the establishment, but as the War Office is not at present in possession of any register of these there will be some inevitable delay in making the first payments

Lord Hawke has a brother who is at present in command of one of the Dreadnoughts.

PRESENTATION.—The Selby Gospel Temperance Meeting and friends have presented a silver epergne to the Rev. W. C. Poles, Wesleyan superintendent minister, on his removal from Selby to the York Wesley Circuit. Mr J. Hesketh presided at the gathering. Mr Poles preached his farewell sermon on Sunday night. During his term of service in Selby he has been highly esteemed, and has been one of the best ministers ever connected with the Selby Circuit.

LADY GOLFERS BUSY.—A meeting of the lady members of the Headingley Golf Club was held at the headquarters, Adel, on Friday, to arrange for the distribution of work in connection with the organisation of the Lady Mayoress. Mrs Harding said that they required ladies to undertake the making of garments for the men who were fighting, and also to visit their families while they were away. They were not pressing for money alone, and they would value the work of those who could not aid them financially. During the afternoon over sixty garments were taken away, and nearly £50 was subscribed. It was arranged that meetings for the distribution of work should be held at the clubhouse every Friday at 2 o'clock.

SELBY URBAN COUNCIL.—At a special meeting of the Selby Urban District Council held on Wednesday night—Councillor J. S. Ullathorne presiding—a resolution was adopted with reference to the Museum buildings, the gift to the town under the will of the late Sir Jonathan Hutchinson. The Council have purchased the reversionary interest in the property from Lord Londesborough. The resolution now agreed to was that the Council accept the Museums and Gymnasiums Act, and that the provisions of the same come into operation on October 1st. Dr Bertram Hill, the medical officer to the Selby Council and other local authorities, being away on duty with the Army Medical Corps, it was decided to appoint Dr Radcliffe, of South Milford, as medical officer pro tem., he having the full qualifications for the post. Councillor Mark Scott reported that the use of Brayton Barff, the high ground near Selby, had been granted to the military authorities, and that a military guard had been placed at the waterworks.

KNOCKED DOWN BY MOTOR-WAGGON.—While playing outside the barracks of the depot of the 2nd West Yorkshire Regiment on Saturday afternoon, York, Christopher Thomas Perkins, whose parents live at the Barracks, was knocked down by a motor waggon belonging to Messrs. John Smith and Co., Ltd., brewers, Tadcaster. The boy, who is aged four years, failed to notice the approach of the waggon until it was quite near to him. He then endeavoured unsuccessfully to get out of the way, and was caught by the left hind wheel. Whether he was actually run over or not does not seem clear, but when he was picked up and taken into the Military Hospital close by it was found that he had received an abdominal injury. After the injury had received attention, the little boy was taken to the York County Hospital, where he was detained. So far as can at present be ascertained, the boy is not seriously injured, but is merely suffering from a flesh wound. It is also stated that the man who was controlling the brakes of the waggon had his leg badly scraped by jumping from the waggon in an endeavour to save the child from injury.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

At the Empire Palace this week the programme is headed by Olga, Elgar, and Eli Hudson, who give a musical entertainment of a high order. They are capable instrumentalists, and they provide some melodious numbers. A. D. Robbins and company give a very funny cycle act, their curiously constructed machines reaching the height of absurdity. "The Partners," a sketch presented by Fisher and Green, contains some humorous passages. Amongst the other turns are Marie Santa and her Merry Japs, in a musical comedy playlet, "A Night in Japan"; James A. Watts, jun., buck-and-wing songs and dances; Daisy Taylor, Scotch comedienne and dancer; Australian McEvans, eccentric dancers; and Dan Wade, comedian.

After its recent successful run at the Empire Theatre, London, Mr R. G. Hunter's six-scene "Bur-revue-lesque," "A Mixed Grill," with Fred Farren, Ida Crispi, and John Humphries, will make its appearance at the Leeds Empire on Monday night. This mirthful and thoroughly up-to-date revue, with its smart dialogue and lyrics by W. H. Risque, and delightful melodies by Howard Talbot, is largely a sort of burlesque of the higher of intellectual dramas, and there is certainly much that is delicious in the way of humour. The original cast is as follows:—Ida Crispi, Fred Farren, John Humphries, Maud Joy, Robert Lennyre, Iris Scott, Jinnie James, Ethel George, and Jack Buchanan. The revue is produced by Fred Farren, while the orchestra is under the direction of Howard Carr. There are supplementary turns on the programme, including Bruce Gree, dame comedian; Alfredo, vaga-bond violinist; and Tom E. Finglass, cowboy cyclist. The fine film-fully sanctioned animated pictures of the Great European War will be shown, consisting of King Albert bidding farewell to his 6th Regiment, soldiers leaving the Gare du Nord for the Front, scenes on the fighting line with guns in action, the wounded being attended to at the Royal Palace, etc.

LEEDS HIPPODROME.

At the Hippodrome this week the principal turn is given by the celebrated entertainers, Mr Barclay Gammon. Whether in song or patter this gifted artist has his audience in a titter, but the climax is reached by his rendering of the latest "Who Killed Bill Kaiser?" Joe Boganny's Royal Lunatic Bakers are too well known to need much praise. The final boxing scene between two diminutive members of the company still proves an irresistible attraction. "An Impromptu," a novel dancing scene presented by Mr Alfred Haines, is somewhat novel and highly entertaining. Other capital turns are provided by Sinding, the "human-wire electra"; Binns and Binns, in comedy and music; Miss Olive Weir, American impersonator; Alcide Captaine, a clever and accomplished gymnast; and the King's College Boys, in a splendid vocal turn of songs and choruses

Next week at the Hippodrome the principal turn will be given by Albert Whelan, the celebrated Australian entertainer; the Harmony Four, Irene May, and Jessie Berg.

LEEDS QUEEN'S THEATRE.

At the Queen's Theatre this week the attraction is Mr Arthur Shirley's play "Fallen by the Way," which Mr J. Forbes Knowles' company are producing. The play centres round the early downfall of Ethel Holland, one of two sisters, who is eventually rescued and married to David Grant, a young missionary and church worker. The latter is the main character in the play, and nothing could be finer than Mr Forbes Knowles's impersonation of the role. Other members of the cast also play their parts comfortably, while the humour contributed by Miss Leslie-Vyner and Miss Nellie Shirley is highly appreciated, and creates plenty of laughter. The stage effects are also on an elaborate scale.

Next week at the Queen's Theatre Mrs Kimberley's No. 1. Company will appear in "The Boy Detective," described as one of the most up-to-date dramas travelling.

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

HARRY HAYLEY,
Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,
12, King Edward St, LEEDS
Telephone 56,
HAS NOW IN STOCK A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF
Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,
ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.
HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.
A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.
Footballs as used in International, County, & Best Leagues.
FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.
STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.
BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on right hand side.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
THE GREAT CURE FOR
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
OR THE MAKERS, TELEPHONE 57 CENTRAL.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Swan Street, LEEDS.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949.
Huddersfield: " 1609.
Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

PROBABLE SCARCITY OF BULBS—HOW TO MEET THE DIFFICULTY.

Dutch bulbs are almost certain to be very scarce this year. Owing to the war there is little likelihood of large consignments getting through, and any bulbs that do reach this country will be very dear. This state of affairs will tax the gardener's ingenuity, and no doubt many methods will be adopted whereby the probable shortage of spring flowers will be met. It is next to impossible to find substitutes that can equal the charming Dutch bulbs and daffodil, and all we can do is to make the best of the material at hand.

In many gardens quantities of bulbs have been naturalised in shrubberies and borders, and these may now be utilised for forcing purposes. For the moment it will be sufficient for us to consider the problem of producing flowers during the first three months in the year, that is, the season when forced bulbs are most in demand. It is not generally known that bulbs will often flower again the year after being forced, especially those that have not been subjected to severe forcing. Many gardeners put the pots of bulbs outdoor after flowering, and in some of these, when the tops decay, the bulbs are turned out of the pots and put close together in a shady place, with soil and roots, to remain there for autumn. Where this system has been followed a number of serviceable Bulbs should now be available for potting or boxing up.

Roman Hyacinths, after being forced once, are useless, and the earliest varieties of tulips such as Due Von Thol in variety are very little better. The majority ofdaffodils will give satisfactory results a second year, although it is obvious that the flowers will be much smaller than those from new bulbs. No time should be lost in getting the bulbs boxed or potted. The sooner they are planted the less forcing they will require to get them in bloom early in the new year. Select firm-rooked, heavy bulbs for the purpose and place them in a fairly rich compost.

Tulips and hyacinths that were lifted from the flower beds in spring should also provide a fair number of useful bulbs for pot culture.

Reverting to the subject of naturalised bulbs for forcing purposes, great care should be exercised in lifting them. In most cases root action will have commenced, and as far as it is practicable the roots should be preserved. If the bulbs are in clumps, they should be lifted and planted into boxes without separating them. Many will be too small to produce flowers, but if an attempt was made to sort them, the whole clump would suffer.

In the absence of cholter material, the consolmon bluebell from the fields and woods may be pressed into service. For conservatory decoration small subjects such as snowdrops, crocus, scillas, and chionodoxas may be used.

In addition to bulbs, numerous kinds of hardy shrubs and herbaceous perennials may be pressed into service for early flowering. Deutzias, spiraea, hiburnum, lilac, wistaria, and prunus are but a few of the many hard wooded subjects that force readily. These, of course, must not be lifted until autumn is well advanced. The same treatment may be applied to the following herbaceous perennials—astilbe, anemone, double spiraea, heuchera sanguinea, double and single pyrethrums, veronicas in variety, marmosa and German iris. Excessive forcing should not be applied to any of these subjects. Garden pinks, sweet williams, wallflowers, Canterbury bells, and corn-cockle grandiflora are also suitable for our purpose, and it will be seen that by using a little forethought the difficulty may be overcome.

Another method of overcoming the difficulty is to raise a quantity of suitable plants from seed. Sweet peas suggest themselves to the mind at once, and although it is a difficult matter to get them to flower before April comes in, but a little extra attention they may be persuaded to bloom even in March. The friendly calcium may be had in bloom much earlier, but our experience with these has shown them to be inferior in colour, and much smaller in size than the ordinary varieties. For earliest flowering seed may be sown in early September. Five seeds in a five-inch pot are sufficient, and the pots may be put in a cold frame until germination takes place. Afterwards they may be put outdoor until the end of October, or until frost threatens. During November and December the object of the grower should be to prevent the plants drawing.

cool, light position should be found for them, and if they show a tendency to "bolt," the tops may be pinched out. If numerous shoots develop in consequence of the opinching they must be thinned to one or two on each plant. Early in the new year healthy growth will commence and attention must then be paid to repotting and staking as examination arises. At no time must excessive fire heat be used. All that is required is a exclusion of frost. Another sowing could be made about the middle of October. These should be wintered in the cold frame, and pots in reserve to provide a succession of flowers.

Nicotianas are not generally used for cutting, but there is no reason why they should not be grown for that purpose. Their habit of throwing their flowers in the daytime may be prevented, if many flowers growing them for cutting purposes. When cut and placed in a comparatively shaded room, however, they do not close their flowers, and if once used, we venture to predict they will find a regular place in house decoration. Sow the seed at once, and grow on through the winter in an intermediate house, repotting them as necessity arises. They are not over particular about position, any corner of the greenhouse being suitable for them. The white variety, Affinis, is exquisitely scented, and the variety Sanderae is a nice red variety. The Sand-rea forbiddi is useful for conservatory decoration, but the colours are too much of a muddy purple character to allow them to be described as suitable for table decoration.

Cineraria Stellata stands very well when cut. Seedlings may be induced to flower early by forcing them in comparatively small pots. Under this treatment the leaves are apt to assume a rather sickly appearance but this is no detriment when the flowers are wanted for cutting. Before long must be commenced in earnest if we desire commence to run to flower, or the individual blooms will be very small. The large flowered varieties are practically useless for cutting.

Schizanthus Retusus Alba is another pretty subject possessing all the good qualities of a flower for cutting purposes. Seed may be sown in September.

Primula Obconica and P. Malacoides stand well in water. Plants of the former, if not in bud, may be purchased at a nursery. The Malacoides variety may be raised from seed any time this month. They should be grown in a fairly warm house from the first. Spring sown plants will shortly commence to flower. In the face of the probable shortage of flowers later on it will be advisable to pick off all flower buds as they appear. This will keep the plants strong and healthy and cause them to flower freely later on.

Calla lilies can be brought into full bloom early in the new year. If not already done, repotting must now be attended to. Turn the plants out of the pots and reduce the ball of soil as much as possible without injuring the roots. Repot into suitable sized pots, using a rich compost for the purpose. Under ordinary conditions the plants would probably be allowed to stand outdoor until the end or September. After early flowering they may be put in a cold frame after potting, and as soon as free growth commences they should be transferred to the greenhouse. Copious supplies of water are needed during the growing season.

OULTON DISTRICT EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

HALTON, COLTON, AND WOODLESFORD AFFAIRS.

The monthly meeting of the Oulton Education Sub-Committee was held in the Y.M.C.A. Buildings, Halton Place, Leeds, on Tuesday evening —Mr G. M. Abbey (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs J H. Tomlinson (vice-chairman), B. Wood Higgins, P. S. Marsden, S. H. Young, with the Clerk (Mr H. W. Powell).

The attendance returns for July were considered, that of the Woodleford Council School being noted as good. The returns for the various schools in the district are as follows:—Woodlesford Council (mixed) 91.41; Woodlesford Council (infants) 82.35; Oulton St. John's (mixed) 92.75 Oulton St. John's (infants) 91.57; Halton Council School, Halton Council (infants) 86.1 Colton Council (mixed) 87.6.

The following tenders for the supply of fuel to the schools were received:—Coal, Messrs Briggs, Oulton and Woodsford; Waterloo Main Colliery, Halton and Colton Schools; coke, the Barnsley Gas Company.

A letter was read from Miss Steel, of the Colton Council School, tendering her resignation, which was accepted. In her stead Miss M. Corcoran, of Wetherby, was appointed.

The Clerk reported that application had been made by the War Office for the use of Halton School for the erection of beds. The necessary arrangements had been made when the authorities from York had written saying the school would not be required, the Parochial Hall having been secured.

With regard to a communication from the Central Riding Education Committee respecting the provision of meals for school children during the war, it was decided to hold a meeting to arrange matters in September.

HUMOURS OF BATHING IN JAPAN.

One of the minor trials of the Briton visiting Japan is the system of bathing which prevails there, which he will not understand, and desire for privacy during our ablutions. Mr. W. Carey Jeffries, in "Two Undergraduates in the East" (Sports and Sportsmen, Limited), says:

"We were given a room together, and thought we would like a bath. The Japanese bathe in their baths every evening, and all in the same water. That is not as bad as it sounds, as they never wash in the bath, but always outside it, and then, having taken the soap off, they get into the bath. The bath rooms are always quite open, and often the maid will bring in a tea tray for you while you get to another room. They do not think any more about it than we do of walking down stairs, and it is quite untrue that there are peepholes in the doors and sides, a statement that one often hears in England. Their baths are quite different from ours, and far better in many ways, difficult as they for Europeans to realise them, and also at first somewhat 'disconcerting. We were given kimonos to go down to the bath in, and the latter was in a corner of the room downstairs. It was not a bath as we understand it, but was a large tub, one-third of the boards of which had been taken away, and the remainder fastened in the corner of the room. A little Japanese maid was sweeping the floor when we entered, so we coughed and called for a few minutes with no effect. She evidently intended continuing her work, and did not even look at us, so T. at last got out the bath. The maid went on scrubbing until her bucket was empty, then she got up, went over to the bath in which T. was, put her bucket in and filled it, and then went on scrubbing, utterly unconcerned!"

HALTON

The Hon. Edward Wood, M.P., regrets that, owing to the war, he has been compelled to cancel the Garrowby Harrier luncheon, which was to have taken place on August 24th, at Garrowby.

ECZEMA CURED IN THREE WEEKS

(Copy). 40, Club Row,

Kirkstall, Leeds.

Dear Sir,—This is to certify that my son, Rowland Craven, has been completely cured of eczema in three weeks by your Zam-Buk ointment. Prior to that I had him under the doctors' treatment for 2½ years without any satisfaction whatever. He is now 4 years of age. Before consulting you my little boy could not get any rest day or night. Thanking you for your kindness to me, and the cheapness of your remedies,

I remain, dear sir, yours truly,

JAMES CRAVEN.

SKIN SPECIALIST
MEDICAL HERBALIST
PROF. CROSSWAITE
54, KIRKSTALL ROAD,
OPPOSITE CHARITY ROAD.
HOURS OF ATTENDANCE:
Morning: 10 to 12. Afternoon: 2 to 4. Evening: 5 to 8.
WEDNESDAY (Evenings only) 6.30 to 8.
No Attendance on Sundays.
COMFORTABLE WAITING ROOM.
PRIVATE CONSULTING ROOM.

HALTON MAN'S ADVENTURE WITH WHITAKER CHURCHMEN TAKEN FOR GERMAN SPIES.

AN INCIDENT AT SKEGNESS.

Mr. Harry Jackson, of Whitkirk, who is staying at Skegness, along with his wife, Mr William Beavins, of Whitkirk, and Mr George Farndale, of Halton, writes:—

On Saturday Mr Beavins and myself set off in the afternoon to go to see Wainfleet Church, a historic church about 7 miles from here, and not being quite sure of our way we had to consult our guide book and map to get our bearings. We duly arrived at the church, and were kindly shown over by the vicar, who also took us up the tower, from which we had a very fine view to Lincolnshire and the coast, looking right over to Wash.

On Monday night my wife, Mr Farndale, and I went to a pierrot entertainment on the sands. The show had only just commenced when a naval officer came up and whispered in my ear that he would like to see me outside. On going out he told me a report had been handed in by the patrol "bodyguard" men that I had been seen studying a map on the road a mile from the naval air station here. He wanted to know what we were doing there, when we came, where from, names and addresses, what the little flag was in my coat-lapel (which flag, by the way, I had purchased at a cigarette factory), when we were going back, and a lot questions besides.

However, I think we eventually satisfied him that we were not spies, and after profuse apologies from him for having interrupted our evening's entertainment, he took his departure.

Just imagine the "pillars" of the Whitkirk Church being taken for "furriners" from Germany!"

SKYRACK MAGISTRATE'S SCATHING COMMENT.

AN INCIDENT AT WOODLESFORD.

"The bench think it is a very bad case, and that you have behaved like a brute. You are fined 40s and 2s per cent. of these supplies are derived from nations now engaged in warfare; to a greater or lesser extent, shipping must be affected, so that in addition to some two-thirds of our imports beside out of further diminution must be expected on this account.

With these remarks, sharply pressed on the previous evening about 5.30, he was on the Aberford Road, Woodlesford, near to the Station, when he saw a waggon drawn by two horses coming up the hill at a terrific speed. He pulled up the horses, and found the defendant, who was in charge, in a very drunken condition. He took the waggon to the Black Bull Hotel, where it was left, the defendant being taken to the West Riding Police Station at Leeds. The officer said he examined the waggon, and found that one of them was all of a lather, and covered with sweds over a foot long all over the back. Witness said he saw the defendant about 300 yards away coming over the Garnal Bridge, and he was beating both horses. The one previously mentioned was practically exhausted, and the other horse had pulled the waggon up the hill. Under the circumstances he did fostering wound. The defendant had come from Selby, and was going to Desabury. P.C. Hobinson also gave evidence.

Inspector Stanhope, of the R.S.P.C.A., said he examined the animal and found a number of sores on the horse's back. Some of these had showed signs of very bad treatment. Several were dripping from the horse even at 9.30 p.m.

Defendant was fined 20s. and costs in each case.

MR. LANE FOX, M.P., AND HUNTING.

Mr. G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., who is with the Yorkshire Hussars at Scarborough, writes in reply to inquiries as to how fox-hunting will be carried on in the Riding Mear country by the present crisis. He states—Many of my horses have gone for military purposes, and both I and my huntsman have joined up as military duty. But I am convinced that it would be a real disaster, especially to the already inadequate horse supply of the country, if hunting were to be given up altogether, and I am arranging for the hunt servants to start cubhunting on Monday next, with the Bramham Moor Cubs as possibly, should whatever the difficulties, by mounting them on ponies and on such other horses as the needs of the country may leave us. I hope that this will be carefully limited and killed throughout this winter in the ordinary way. I strongly therefore appeal to all those by whose kind permission I shall be hunting this season, to the pest, whether landowners, shooting tenants, tenant farmers, poultry rearers, or gamekeepers, to give me every facility to be able to kill the foxes as usual, and to put no unusual difficulties in the way of fox-hunting at this most critical time for the country. I shall be grateful if subject to this opinion without notice, and orders are accepted without engagement.

Any enquiries concerning poultry-keeping addressed to our expert, Captain Ralph R. Allen, Sawbridgeworth, Herts., will be answered through these columns free, but those requiring a postal answer direct, or sending birds for post-mortem examination, must remit half-crown fee for each case. The name of the writer must in all cases be given.

MOOR ALLERTON

Mr H. J. Bowring, of Moor Allerton, has taken Mr. Ernest Jowitt's residence as a convalescent home for soldiers.

CORRESPONDENCE.

GARFORTH MINERS AND THE MINIMUM WAGE.

To the Editor.

Sir,—Will you publish in the columns of your paper the following resolution which was passed at the Council meeting of the Yorkshire Miners' Association, on the 8th of August?

"That we deplore the unwarranted action of a private person against the author of the West Yorkshire endeavours in refusing to pay the £1 award of Judge Amphlett, and calls the attention of the general public to the fact that at this time, when appeals are being made on all sides for patriotism and loyalty, the West Yorkshire coalowners are refusing to carry out the existing law with regard to the minimum wage."

Yours, etc.,

CHAS. H. HERBEN,
Sec., Garforth Branch, Y.M.A.
Garforth, Aug. 18th, 1914.

PROFITABLE POULTRY CULTURE

By RALPH R. ALLEN.

Lecturer to the Herts. County Council; Editor of "Monthly Hints on Poultry," &c.

(All rights reserved).

WAR CHAT—No. 4.

During the continuation of war, the articles must necessarily be brief, as the space at my disposal is limited. Again, there is a great danger of a scarcity of paper, in which case the standard size of our newspapers are being reduced.

Now, how does war affect the poultry-industry? They England imports annually some ten million pounds worth of eggs and poultry from Continental countries is an elementary fact to which public attention is continually being drawn. Between 90 and 95 per cent. of these supplies are to a greater or lesser extent, shipping must be affected, so that in addition to some two-thirds of our imports beside out of further diminution must be expected on this account.

With these remarks, sharply pressed on the previous evening about 5.30, he was on the Aberford Road, Woodlesford, near to the Station, when he saw a waggon drawn by two horses coming up the hill at a terrific speed. He pulled up the horses, and found the defendant, who was in charge, in a very drunken condition. He took the waggon to the Black Bull Hotel, where it was left, the defendant being taken to the West Riding Police Station at Leeds. The officer said he examined the waggon, and found that one of them was all of a lather, and covered with sweds over a foot long all over the back. Witness said he saw the defendant about 300 yards away coming over the Garnal Bridge, and he was beating both horses. The one previously mentioned was practically exhausted, and the other horse had pulled the waggon up the hill. Under the circumstances he did fostering wound. The defendant had come from Selby, and was going to Desabury. P.C. Hobinson also gave evidence.

Inspector Stanhope, of the R.S.P.C.A., said he examined the animal and found a number of sores on the horse's back. Some of these had showed signs of very bad treatment. Several were dripping from the horse even at 9.30 p.m.

Defendant was fined 20s. and costs in each case.

MR. LANE FOX, M.P., AND HUNTING.

Mr. G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., who is with the Yorkshire Hussars at Scarborough, writes in reply to inquiries as to how fox-hunting will be carried on in the Riding Mear country by the present crisis. He states—Many of my horses have gone for military purposes, and both I and my huntsman have joined up as military duty. But I am convinced that it would be a real disaster, especially to the already inadequate horse supply of the country, if hunting were to be given up altogether, and I am arranging for the hunt servants to start cubhunting on Monday next, with the Bramham Moor Cubs as possibly, should whatever the difficulties, by mounting them on ponies and on such other horses as the needs of the country may leave us. I hope that this will be carefully limited and killed throughout this winter in the ordinary way. I strongly therefore appeal to all those by whose kind permission I shall be hunting this season, to the pest, whether landowners, shooting tenants, tenant farmers, poultry rearers, or gamekeepers, to give me every facility to be able to kill the foxes as usual, and to put no unusual difficulties in the way of fox-hunting at this most critical time for the country. I shall be grateful if subject to this opinion without notice, and orders are accepted without engagement.

YORK AND AINSTY HUNT.

Lord Furness, the Master of the York and Ainsty, writes anent hunting the Ainsty country. He says:—

"Very notwithstanding the sacrifices which establishments have been called upon to make, and the difficulty there will be to carry on hunting on the same lines as formerly, it seems the most essential in the best interests of the sport in the future that, as soon as harvesting operations will allow, cubhunting be commenced, and a couple of Hounds to commence cub-hunting their countries.

I may state that, as regards the York and Ainsty country, I propose to start when the harvesting conditions permit. I do not think foxhunting should be allowed to cease, since difficulties of transport have been overcome. Certainly its extinction would be a thing to be deplored for many reasons, not the least being the large number of men employed in the stables, and the supply of horses at the command of the nation. I cannot, therefore, appeal too strongly to landlords, farmers, and all others interested to give as few difficulties in the way of their coverts being cubhunted when the moment is thought opportune to make a commencement.

YOUR FATE FROM YOUR FINGER-NAILS

The little white marks on the finger-nails have always been looked upon as signs of certain qualities and as foretelling certain events that are likely to occur in the life of the possessor.

Beginning with the thumb, and taking the fingers in order, the specks denote—

A gift [illegible];
A friend, a foe;
A journey, a voyage.

Red and spotted nails are said to show a fiery and hot-tempered disposition, and pale, convoluted nails one that is melancholy and listless.

Very small nails usually belong to people of a concealed nature, and obstinate turn of mind.

Round-shaped nails show a lover of knowledge and a person of liberal sentiments; the ambitious and quarrelsome have narrow nails.

Had luck attends nail-cutting if the pairings are neither buried nor burned.

DURING WAR TIME
FEED YOUR FOWLS ON ALLEN'S
LAYING MEAL.
ALLEN'S LAYING MEAL contains the correct percentage of gluten, and is therefore particularly rich in Albuminoids, the essential for EGG PRODUCTION.
The price of ALLEN'S LAYING MEAL has NOT been raised and is quoted at 11/- per cwt. free on rail, sacks free.
This price, however, is liable to fluctuation without notice and orders are accepted without engagement.
Send your orders at once to
RALPH R. ALLEN,
SAWBRIDGEWORTH,
HERTS.

Telegrams Scott, Selby. Telephone 194.
IF YOU REQUIRE
GENUINE RAW PERUVIAN GUANO, FISH GUANO, SULPHATE of AMMONIA, NITRATE of SODA, RAPE NUTS and DUST, KAFE MEAL, PURE DISSOLVED BONES, PURE BONE MEAL and FLOUR, SUPER PHOSPHATE (26 per cent.), BASIC SLAG, SULPHATE of POTASH, MURIATE of POTASH, GENUINE KAINIT, LAND SALT (in Truck Loads), ETC., ETC.
We shall be pleased to quote Prices for any quantity.
QUALITY and GOOD CONDITION of the above GUARANTEED.
PROMPT DELIVERY can be given either at Works here or at Buyer's Station.
M. SCOTT & Co
OIL MILLS, SELBY.

THE SEERESS.

"Mrs. Stout!" called Bella from the kitchen. The lady threw down the slip she was trimming with scarlet trade for little Edie, and disappeared within those sacred precincts. Alone and Lou heard a confabulation there, which was presently explained by Mrs. Stout, who popped her head within the door and exclaimed:

"Girls, there's a woman in the kitchen who will tell your fortune for something to eat."

"Oh, crass her palm with silver, and let's know what wonderful fortunes lie in store for us," cried Lou, enthusiastically. "Will you have your fortune told, Ab, if I will have mine?"

"Yes, put on my wedding-ring, so that she will not suspect I'm married," answered that deceptive creature.

They trooped into the kitchen and beheld the reader of their fates. She sat in one corner, an old chair by her side, and on it a piece of white cotton containing bits of roots and herbs, from which she was making a selection. She made a sweeping inclination to the young ladies, and rushed at Bella (who is only sixteen, and was no "stiddy company"), with three bits of root.

"Here, my sweet young lady, is some roots that will nourish you for all diseases." Here she looked at Edie. "You need never be afraid of a child's dyin' if you give them a little tea made of this."

Bella accepted the gift gravely and proceeded to "lay it upon the shelf."

"We should like our fortunes told," said Lou, speaking for herself and Ab.

"Sartin, sartin; it will give me great pleasure to look for you; but I must wait for the tea."

"Yes, the kettle will soon be boiling," said Mrs. Stout. "Here, Lou, I want you."

Lou disappeared, and soon came back with a plate of bread and another of fried fish, which she placed on the chair beside the guest.

"Thank you, thank you," and the fortune-teller thrust in Lou's hand a soiled, crumpled bit of brown paper. "There," said she, "is a little reserving luck for your fairy. When you're sick and going to die, and the doctor has given you up, and your friends are a-weepin' and a-wailin,' put a little of that in a cup of tea, and it will cure you."

With a choking voice and a face full of profound thankfulness that she had found a panacea for all life's ills, Lou replied:

"And here," said the fortune-teller to Mrs. Stout, "is some medicine for you. When you have any aches or pains it will keep you from taking rackey all and salts."

"Where do you get all the roots?" asked Lou, considering a conversation, while Bella poured the tea.

"From Mount Erin, my lady, the beautifullest country you ever saw when you is ill there."

"I'd like to go there," whispered Ab, who was always taking the aldwche and neuralgia.

"It is a good enough country for wealth and prosperity," continued the fortune-teller, "but not for health. It's stage whitening," and such things, but not a good country for health."

"Would you come with me, suppose to bring people these medicines?" interrogated Lou.

"Yes, and some friends. We brought these roots over in flower-pots. A great many families come here from Mount Erin years ago. We meetin' each week, but nearly a hundred got lost. We came from Mount Erin to find them."

"Yes, that's a terrible thing," said Lou, feigning great interest.

"Then we came in a fine steamer—my sister, her husband, and my husband. I had the luck of them all, and they got lost. We're getting over with a vainer. The families we left here years ago had nice steamers, and they got lost."

A change of base had taken place in the dramatis personæ, and Bella, now sitting in the doorway by Lou, asked anxiously:

"She doesn't mean that, like the three men who went to sea in a sieve, they've gone and got lost in vegetable steamers, does she? Because, you know, Lou, that's the kind of timber Jenkins and they've got holes in them."

"How can you be so irreverent in the presence of the prophetic message?" reproved Lou. "Why do you wish your friends to go back with you?"—to the fortune-teller.

"They've made some money, but they've lost it; and this ain't much of a country for losing money. I'm sure we're afraid of their gettin' lost, so we came to carry them back to the beautiful Mount Erin." Then, with true feminine instinct, she added: "I got cold, and had the toothache, and my face swelled, and I'm afraid I'll have it on the voyage. It must be the ocean air didn't agree with me."

"Probably," assented Mrs. Stout. "Do you like travelling by land or water best?"

"Oh, by land. There's a gap of death. I suppose the tea's ready?"

Mrs. Stout handed her a cup supplied with milk and sugar, and all waited anxiously to hear Lou's fortune.

The woman soon disposed of her tea, emptied the dregs in her saucer, and proceeded to study the cup.

"I see a journey," she said. "Many letters, notes and friends. Great prosperity, wealth, journeys and visits, and delightful converse with many people. You had an invitation to take a journey years ago, and you would have made much money, but you declined. It would have been wealth and great good fortin'."

"I never dreamed I did not go!" said Lou.

"But you will have another invitation, and you will travel a long distance, and great wealth will come to you, and you will send for your friends, and be able to live in splendour and magnificent fortin.' Your wealth is comin' through some relative; I think it is an uncle on the mother's side. Is it?"

"It must be my Uncle Samson," said Lou, wickedly, referring to an uncle who had been dead for three years and who left no money enough to pay for his funeral expenses.

"That's him," cried the woman of divination, pouring a little more tea into the cup and rinsing it round and round. "I see sunshine and ease and money, and no sickness, trouble or adversity; only prosperity and happiness, and beautiful letters and newspapers."

"That's because the tea in the canister was so strong," said Bella.

"And how about my lover?" said Lou, a little shyly this time.

"Oh, he is of noble family, and wealthy, and you shall only have a deal of trouble, but it'll be unnecessary, for success will attend all your undertakings. You shall have notes and beautiful letters with money from seaport towns, and visit three beautiful villages and some cities."

"But my lover is ill," said wicked Mrs. Allen. "Is he going to get well?"

"Oh, yes; you shall marry him—have good fortin.'"

"Where is she going to live?" asked Mrs. Stout from behind the screen, where she was making gestures, ostensibly to amuse Edie, but really with mischievous endeavours to disturb the girl's gravi-

"You are born four to five in summer, prefer to the country, and you'll have a very beautiful, magnificent and healthy part,' " etc.

"I'm glad it's not me," said Mrs. Ab. "We can't be happy away from each other."

"You shall visit backwards and forwards all the time."

Then the woman fell to drinking the tea in a rickety, lonely fashion—gurgling. Cup after cup disappeared with astonishing velocity, Lou recording each by a kick registered on the stocking and punctuating the alarming diaphragmatic properties with a sympathetic cough.

The teapot drained, she opened one of her bundles of roots, and, with cold water, mixed a decoction in a few the more of spot, and handed them to Mrs. Stout with the assurance that they would cure any disease of any kind. Then, with a last good wish for Lou, she departed, probably to take the grand steward to Mount Erin.

"I never saw cups run so nobly and wonderfully; all your prophecies shall be fulfilled, Lou."

"I do not believe it," said Lou, a little pettishly, "I shall not part from my own dear friends, and I'm very sorry I was such a fool as to get angry with you for dancing with Arthur Watkins. I came to ask you to go out riding this evening."

And of course Lou's wish [illegible].

[THE END.]

LADIES' COLUMN.

WHEN WASHING BLOUSES.

To prevent the colour from running when blouses are washed, never rub soap on them, but rub out the stains with other things. Make a lather of warm water, wash the blouse in it quickly, rinse in cold water, and hang to dry as quickly as possible. A little alum in the water will help to preserve the colour.

REMOVING INK STAINS.

The stain of almost every kind of ink is quickly removed, but the stains of the ink varying so much as to require different methods for its removal.

In most cases lemon or cold water will be found invaluable in getting out the greater portion of ink stains. If the stain is small enough to be placed in a basin of water, this method should be resorted to at once, and the stain will soon be found to disappear.

If ink is spilt on the floor, it is an excellent plan to cover immediately with sand or salt. Afterwards use flour, or even blotting-paper. As quickly as these become soaked, apply a fresh supply, and when the whole of the ink has been absorbed as possible, rub with a raw lemon, paring off each time the stain becomes lemon, paring off each time the stain becomes lighter, and finishing rinsing with cold water.

If handy, apply dilute oxalic acid in preference to the lemon, and rinse well with cold water. Ten minutes in water to which has been added a little borax or ammonia.

Spots of ink on wood articles to the rays of the sun is also a method employed by many, but this can only be done in summer when there is an abundance of time at disposal.

NICE DISHES.

Onion Soup.—Cut into slices two or three Spanish onions, and two or three potatoes. In a saucepan melt either butter or lard to the value of a tablespoonful. Put in the onions, and fry them till they are lightly browned. Then add the potatoes, with a pint of boiling water in which meat or fish has been cooked for the sake of the stock or gravy. Let the vegetables simmer till quite soft. As soon as the onion is soft enough to mash, pass the whole through a sieve. Put it back into the pan. Make up the required quantity, season to taste, and when boiling stir in a tablespoonful of cornflour, mixed smooth and gently for a few minutes after adding the cornflour. Add a piece of butter if it is required, by stirring in a tablespoonful of grated cheese just before serving. Pour into a hot dish, and have a little flour may be added before the cheese.

Baked Halibut.—Wash and dry a piece of halibut, cut it into portions, brush them lightly with lemon-juice, flour them, and lay them in a well-buttered tin. Season with pepper and salt, and pour over them a little melted butter. Bake in a moderate oven for about half an hour, or until tender. Lift the fillets on to a hot dish, arrange round them a few sprigs of parsley, and serve with Fillets or Beef—Wash and dry half a pound of fillet beef cut from the best part. Melt half an ounce of butter in a stewpan, and fry the fillets till they are lightly browned on both sides. Add a stock cube, pour on the lid, and let them simmer very gently for about half an hour. Season with salt and pepper, stir in the following mixture: Mix a large tablespoonful of the oysters in half, add them to the stew, and thicken with a little flour and water. Arrange the fillets neatly on a dish with the oysters in the centre, and strain the gravy over. Serve with potatoes.

Fig Pudding.—Mix together half a pound of finely-chopped suet, half a pound of flour (one ounce of finely-chopped suet two barely-filled teacupfuls of breadcrumbs, a teaspoonful rather less than a teacupful (three ounces) of soft brown sugar, and a teacupful (four ounces) of flour previously mixed with a very small quantity of salt and baking powder. Add a pound of figs and cream of tartar. Moisten with about a teacupful of milk. Steam in a greased basin for four hours. Serve with hot jam, and another hour and a half before serving it.

Treacle Tart.—Line a pie dish and quarter six large cooking apples. Melt two ounces of butter in the dish, and bake it in a quick oven till the apples are soft. Add two ounces of breadcrumbs, two ounces of sugar, and the grated rind of a lemon. Mix well together, and if quite soft. Rub through a hair-sieve or whisk up till firm and smooth, then add the beaten yolks of three eggs and half a teaspoonful each of ginger, cinnamon. Have ready about three ounces of treacle, and add to the other ingredients, and put thinly to line the sides of a pie-dish. Damp the top of the pastry lining and arrange a ring of ratafia biscuits on it. Put the apple mixture in the dish, and bake it in a quick oven till the paste is cooked and the mixture set. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, with three tablespoonfuls of icing sugar and a drop or two of vanilla essence; heap this meringue on the pudding. Dust it thickly with castor sugar, decorate with a few glacé cherries, and put it back in the oven for a few minutes, till the delicately tinged with brown, and serve at once.

TADCASTER GUARDIANS AND DISTRICT COUNCIL.

PREPARATIONS TO ALLEVIATE DISTRESS

KIPPAX, ALLERTON, TADCASTER, AND ABERFORD AFFAIRS.

A meeting of Tadcaster Board of Guardians was held at the workhouse on Tadcaster on Monday—Alf. E. C. Brooksbank, J.P. (Chairman), presiding. Other members present were the Rev. C. D. Ash (Saxton), Rev. Canon Greenwood (Garinston), Miss Bethell (Newton Kyme), Messrs T. H. Teale (Parlington), W. Simpson (Lead), R. Wright (Berwick), J. E. Cawthorn (Sherburn), W. Sykes, C.C., and J. Rattleson (Tadcaster), J. Wordsworth and H. Lewis (Great Preston), B. Braham and J. Prime (Garforth), J. W. Dobson (Newthorpe), J. Harding and W. A. Dickinson (Kippax), J. H. Schofield (Oxton), W. Crosland, J.P., and A. Johnson (South Milford), Pearson and W. Robinson (Allerton Bywater), and J. V. Wheatley (Appleton Roebuck), with the Clerk (Mr G. A. Bromet).

The treasurer was reported to have a balance of £3,175 in hand.

It was reported that during the month there had been 8 admissions, 7 discharges, and one death in the workhouse. The inmates totalled 81 in the house, and 19 in the children's homes was against 100 at the corresponding date last year.

Mr Wordsworth reported that the fever hospital at Garforth had been offered to the military authorities.

The Chairman suggested that the Sherburn cottage hospital might be offered, too.

HOUSE COMMITTEE

The House Committee reported that application had been made by the Tadcaster district for the use part of the infirmary for wounded soldiers, and it was agreed that 15 beds be set apart for this purpose.

A letter was received from Nurse Owen, bewailing her resignation, her appointment, and the resignation was received with regret.

The Rev. Canon Greenwood said that they might have twenty beds in the infirmary to spare, but they did not want to pledge themselves to more than 15.

Mr Sykes asked why Nurse Owen was leaving.

Canon Greenwood said she did not say in her letter.

The Chairman said he was very sorry to learn that she was leaving.

Mr Sykes said he questioned whether they had ever had another nurse as good.

The Rev. Canon Greenwood said that they had not had a single instance of any tradesman causing his prices to them. They had all stuck to the contract prices.

Mr Pryder submitted the minutes of the Finance Committee. Tadcaster East Parish Council desired to know why the rates were higher on the east side than on the west side of the bridge. The reply given was that it was owing to the difference in rateable value.

DISTRESS COMMITTEE

The Clerk read a communication from the Local Government Board anent the appointment of the Distress Committee's officers in High Ousegate the Guardians to furnish these committees with lists of persons in receipt of relief in order to prevent overlapping. A letter was also read from the Yorkshire Poor Law Association stating four representatives of Boards of Guardians had to be appointed on the Central Distress Committee, and they had called a meeting in Leeds to make the appointment of the four members.

The Chairman said that the position of the Guardians was clear. They had to furnish lists of persons in receipt of poor relief to the Distress Committee, and then the distress suffering owing to the war would receive assistance from the Distress Committee, of which Mr Sykes was a member.

Mr Sykes then stated what the scheme was and how the committee was composed. He said that the County Committee had appointed eight sub-committees for the various districts, so that in this way every case would receive attention. Happily there was plenty of work on the land at present, and where any distress would arise would be in the colliery and manufacturing districts. He held particularly strong views on over-lapping, and they ought by every means in try to prevent it. That was the purpose of the county scheme.

It was agreed that a special meeting of the Guardians should be called to appoint a sub-committee, if necessary.

MENTAL DEFICIENCY.

The Clerk reported on the conference of the Boards of Guardians in Otley on the mental deficiency question (reported in our last issue).

A letter was read from Sheffield Board asking the Board to join another combination, but it was agreed to stick to the Wharfedale combination.

The Yorkshire Poor Law Association wrote calling a conference on the same question, but it was decided not to send delegates to it.

Canon Greenwood said that at the Otley conference a provisional committee was appointed, consisting of one member and the Clerk from each Board in the combination. As far as possible it was intended to utilise existing buildings, and so avoid erecting new premises, and going in for a costly scheme.

The Chairman: You have appointed a committee to draw up a scheme?

Canon Greenwood: Yes, but it will not committee unless. It will come before the Boards.

The Chairman said that having appointed that committee it was not necessary to send representatives to conferences called by other bodies.

It was suggested that Clerk Greenwood should be the Tadcaster member of the Provisional Committee for the Wharfedale scheme.

It was decided not to send representatives to a conference called by the Royal Albert Institution.

The Clerk stated that a return of pauperism had been received, and there was a slight decrease in Tadcaster Union.

A letter from West Ham Union relating to Stoats and ferrets was laid on the table.

DISTRICT COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the District Council it was reported that the treasurer had a balance in hand of £5,641.

The Highways Committee minutes showed that a letter had been received from the Road Board stating that the work of taking the roads and roads should be postponed. It was agreed to postpone the work in the district.—It was stated that the cost of an improved lighting at Bramham Station would be £6, and it was decided that the Railway Co. should do the work, and the Council bear the cost.—It was proposed to lerb and channel a path on the Swillington road, and the surveyor was asked to prepare an estimate of the cost.—Permission was given to erect a boarding at Tadcaster proofed. Regarding lights are provided at night.—A complaint was received from a Sherburn resident about tipping road-sweepings near his house, and it was referred to the surveyor.

The minutes were confirmed.

Canon Greenwood suggested that the surveyor should be empowered to give permission to roadmen to assist in the gathering of the harvest. In some districts there might be a scarcity of labour, and what he had suggested might be of assistance to farmers.

The suggestion was acted upon, and the surveyor was empowered to give the necessary permission.

SANITARY AND BUILDINGS.

At a meeting of the Sanitary and Building Committee permission was asked by Messrs Barclay and Co., bankers, to purchase a piece of land at their bank at Kippax. The question was adjourned.—Plans were received from Mr Blackett for the erection of a garage at West Tadcaster, and they were approved.—A sewer at Barkston Ash was reported to be blocked, and the inspector was instructed to attend to it. Drain rods at a cost of £8 are to be purchased. Tenders for the scavenging of Allerton Bywater were referred to the Allerton Parish Council. The scavenging contracts for Kippax were secured by Messrs Gilbey and Bickerdike, and for South Milford and Newthorpe by Mr Cepley. The contract to empty the closets at Sherburn was let to Mr Lupton, and at Aberford to Mr Cockrem.

Dr Radcliffe, of South Milford, was appointed to act as medical officer of health while Dr Hill, the medical officer, was on military service, provided certain arrangements could be made.

A letter was received from the Rivers Board urging local authorities to proceed with all sewage works so as to provide employment.

Clerk replied that all work would be put in hand as soon as possible.

TADCASTER PETTY SESSIONS.

STUTTON, MARSTON, AND TADCASTER. DEFENDANTS.

At Tadcaster Petty Sessions on Monday the magistrates present were Messrs C. B. Lamb (in the chair), E. M. Lawson Smith, G. T. Fairfax, and J. Fielden.

A. E. Keeling, carting agent, of Leeds, failed to appear in answer to a charge of cycling without a light on the 3rd inst. at Stutton. P.S. Juniper stated the case, and a fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

Reuben Lowe, labourer, of Stutton Grove, was charged with cycling without a light on the London Road at Grimston on the 9th inst., and pleaded guilty. P.C. Hardy said that when he stopped defendant he told him his lamp had just gone out, but it was cold. Fined 1s. and costs.

Emily Smith, married woman, of Marston, failed to appear in answer to a charge of having been drunk on the York Road at Marston on July 19th. P.C. Bentley said he found the woman lying on the roadside and she was drunk. When he assisted her to her feet she fell down again. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed.

Richard Bootland, labourer, Stutton, was charged with indecent conduct in St. James's Square, Tadcaster, on July 19th. P.C. Bennett stated the case, and a fine of 1s. and costs was inflicted.—James Leslly, labourer, of Tadcaster, was charged with a similar offence in High Ousegate, Tadcaster, and he was fined 1s. and costs.

Tom Shannon, labourer, of Tadcaster, was charged with having used obscene language in Tadcaster on July 19th. He did not appear. P.C. Bennett said that he was on duty at Rosemary Row, and he saw defendant there. He was using bad and very disgusting and filthy language. A number of people were about at the time. Fined 5s. and costs.

Ellen Kemp, married, of Tadcaster, was summoned by Ann Grimston, widow, of Tadcaster, for assault, and Mrs Kemp also summoned Mrs Grimston for assault. Mr Davies, solicitor, of Leeds, appeared for Mrs Kemp.—In giving evidence Mrs Grimston stated that on July 19th she was on her own premises, and she did not go Mrs Kemp's. Her niece was thrown over her.—Mr Davies: You got some water thrown on to you?—Mrs Grimston: Yes.—Mr Davies: And you did not see who threw it?—Mrs Grimston: No, but she threw it.—Mr Davies: It came over a wall?—Mrs Grimston: Yes.—Mr Green: Have you any witnesses?—Mrs Grimston: Only God and myself. I never bothered with witnesses.—Mr Davies submitted that he had no case to answer, and if the charge was dismissed he would withdraw the cross-summons. He stated that it was a dispute as to a wall, and dirt and water had been thrown from one side to the other. On the day in question some one had thrown water. He thought a word from the magistrates would cause these people to live in peace.—The Chairman said they would dismiss the case, and the other was withdrawn.—Mrs Slack: That's all—[illegible] thank you very much. It is [illegible] hope it is the last.—Supt. Slack: [illegible]ished.—Mrs Grimston: Yes, sir.

GARFORTH URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL.

PREPARING FOR DISTRESS THAT MAY ARISE.

A special meeting of Garforth Urban District Council was held at the offices, Garforth on Monday night, in connection with the county scheme for the alleviation of distress that may arise in consequence of the war. Mr J. W. Dobson (Chairman) presided, and the other members present were Messrs R. Routledge, jun. (vice-chairman), R. Nettleton, sen., E. R. Archer, W. Goodall, W. W. Hartley, T. S. Slater, H. Chappell, and H. Gascoigne, with the Acting Clerk (Mr. H. H. Carr).

A letter was received from the County Council stating that they had appointed a Distress Committee to deal with distress that might arise owing to the war, and it was explained that the work would probably be done through local sub-committees acquainted with the industrial conditions in the various districts.

The Chairman said the idea was that all money collected should go to a central fund, and it would be distributed through local sub-committees. In addition to the West Riding Fund, it was anticipated that grants would be made from the National Relief Fund. There was an idea, however, that Garforth should have a fund to its own, and that they should themselves distribute it.

Mr Routledge: Suppose Colonel Gascoigne decides to make an allowance will that money go into the fund?

The Chairman said it would be distributed separately. Several differs—Briggs", Middleton, and Allerton Bywater—were to allow the wives of Reservists and Territorials employed by them one a week and 1s per child. In addition, each soldier's wife would get 1s. a day and an allowance of 2d. per child from the Government. Mr Sykes, of John Smith's Brewery, Tadcaster, said that his firm were to allow sums similar to those given by the collieries named. What they had to guard against was over-lapping.

Mr Routledge said he expected the Miners' Association would subscribe.

The Chairman said that if they took this work up they must see that the people who needed assistance got it.

Mr Routledge expressed a fear that a large percentage of the funds would be spent on alcoholism.

The Chairman said it would be foolish to subscribe money if it were spent in that way.

Mr Gascoigne said that people were already going round to collect for the Belgians.

Mr Routledge: That is for the making of garments for the soldiers.

Mr Archer: I am told that the money is to be sent to the Lord Lady Mayoress's Fund.

The Chairman said they should work for the West Riding Fund. Why should people send money to London?

Mr Archer said he felt very strongly on that question.

Mr Goodall: Is it not possible to have a fund of our own?

Mr Routledge: That is my own view. Let us deal with our own district.

In the course of further conversation, Mr Routledge said that he knew of a Reservist's wife and family who were in want.

Mr Gascoigne said he knew of one case where the woman had only 3s. to start the week with, and she had got nothing from the War Office.

It was pointed out that Reservists' wives should at once communicate with the military authorities and obtain the separation allowance.

The Chairman said that he had a lady in Garforth say her husband intended contributing to the Prince of Wales' Fund, and she had asked the money from him so that she could distribute it. That was a case of over-lapping.

Mr Gascoigne said that he did not think that men would be so mean as to take money for subscribing the funds at the disposal of the authorities.

Mr Routledge said he did not know.

Mr Gascoigne: What about Micklefield Fund?

Mr Routledge: Well, it is the only fund I know that has been managed without expense.

The Chairman: This may be done in the same way.

It was eventually decided to co-operate in carrying out the county scheme.

Mr Routledge proposed that a public meeting in connection with the question be called for Friday night.

Mr Archer seconded, and this was agreed to.

It is suggested that Roundhay Park should have shooting ranges established in it.

AN EXTRAORDINARY SCARCROFT CASE.

PRISONER AND LADY MAYORESS.

A SMART SWISS COOK.

A remarkable case, [illegible] money by false pretences, came before the magistrates at Leeds Head Rolling Pin Sessions on Tuesday, when Herbert Thornton, described as a moulder, of Leeds, was charged with demanding £5 with menace by steal from Mrs Ann Lady Mary Saville, of Scarcroft Lodge, Thorner.

Supt. Simpkin said that the prisoner had represented himself to be a detective in the Leeds City Police Force and he had demanded the money from her ladyship as a guarantee against her book, who was of Swiss nationality.

There was a second charge against prisoner of stealing a bicycle, valued at £5, the property of Tom Barker, Leeds.

Mrs Ann Lady Mary Saville said that on Tuesday, August 11th, the prisoner came to her residence about noon and was shown into her room. He had asked to see her, saying that he was a detective from the Leeds Town Hall. He explained that he had come about a foreign cook, who the police having sent him. He said he would want £3 as a bond, and £5 from the cook. Her ladyship gave him £3, and, at his dictation, wrote a note, and, he in order to show his bonafides, presented a slip of paper on which was written "Leeds City Police, Detective Department." After giving the prisoner the money she saw him in the hall when he said the cook had refused to give him £5. He said "I shall have to arrest her at once." He also remarked that, although the cook was a Swiss, she might have German tendencies. Prisoner then went to telephone to the Leeds Police, and it seemed as if he spoke to someone.

Answering Supt. Symonds, witness said she was induced to give prisoner the money because she thought his representations were bonafide, and not because she was afraid of the cook being arrested. She fully believed that the same was being done to all people with foreign servants, and that it was a precaution of the police.

The Clerk: Why did you give him the money? Were you afraid of him?—No, he said he would refund the money on Friday.

Answering a further question by the Clerk, her ladyship said the prisoner became very disagreeable, and his manner was distinctly menacing towards the cook especially. She subsequently got the money back.

Emily Brown, cook to the Hon. Lady Mary Saville, said she was of Swiss nationality. On Tuesday, about noon, she came to Scarcroft Lodge and said he came from the detective department of the City Police, Leeds. He told witness she was being watched on account of some to arrest her because she was not English. He said she would have to give particulars about herself and that the particulars would have to be sent to the detective department, Leeds, by Friday. Prisoner said her ladyship had given him £3 and he would want £2 from her, and the money would be refunded on Friday. Witness did not believe a word he said. She was suspicious as the particulars were forwarded. Witness said she would want to know something about him as to whether he was all right. Prisoner then said he would have to leave the house to get any letters addressed to him. Witness then went to the telephone, saying he was going to ring up the police, but he did not know the number.

Mr Gascoigne said he knew of one case where the woman had only 3s. to start the week with, and she had got nothing from the War Office.

It was pointed out that Reservists' wives should at once communicate with the military authorities and obtain the separation allowance.

The Chairman said that he had a lady in Garforth say her husband intended contributing to the Prince of Wales' Fund, and she had asked the money from him so that she could distribute it. That was a case of over-lapping.

Mr Gascoigne said that he did not think that men would be so mean as to take money for subscribing the funds at the disposal of the authorities.

Mr Routledge said he did not know.

Mr Gascoigne: What about Micklefield Fund?

Mr Routledge: Well, it is the only fund I know that has been managed without expense.

The Chairman: This may be done in the same way.

It was eventually decided to co-operate in carrying out the county scheme.

Mr Routledge proposed that a public meeting in connection with the question be called for Friday night.

Mr Archer seconded, and this was agreed to.

It is suggested that Roundhay Park should have shooting ranges established in it.

This concluded the evidence on the first charge. In connection with the second charge Supt. Symonds stated that after leaving Scarcroft Lodge the prisoner took a bicycle which was standing outside the New Inn. The bicycle belonged to a miner named Tom Barker, of Thwaite Gate, Leeds.

The prosecutor said he was cycling through Scarcroft and left the machine outside the New Inn about 12.45. Half-an-hour later when he went to look for the bicycle it had gone. He gave information to the police. The machine was valued at £5.

Arthur Pearson, blacksmith, of Leeds, said that on Tuesday he saw the prisoner in the Old Fox Inn, Park Street, Leeds. He asked him for a lamp, but subsequently left the bicycle at the house. The next day he saw the prisoner, and he said he was going to the Leeds Town Hall to report a change of address as he was on ticket-of-leave.

The case was committed to take his trial at the next West Riding Quarter Sessions.

TEMPLENEWSAM PUBLIC AFFAIRS.

ALLOTMENTS—WHITKIRK RECREATION GROUND.

A meeting of the Templenewsam Parish Council was held in the Council School, Halton, on Monday evening—Mr J. H. Toomlinson (Chairman) presiding. The other members present were Messrs. Baker, Tranter, Dixon, Firth, Fitton, Goodall, and Greaves, with the Clerk (Mr Vevers, Greaves).

Correspondence from the County Council as to a loan for water, etc., for allotments was read, but it was stated by the Chairman that the loan would not be required—as other arrangements had been gone into, and it was thought they would prove more beneficial to all concerned. The District Council had offered to take water to the gate of the allotment field in Keighley Lane, and fix one stand-pipe there, and an agreement between the Council and the allotment holders had been drawn up, and already 23 out of 31 of the tenants had signed it, and there were other tenants ready to sign it when they returned from their holidays. The tenants had agreed to pay for the water they used the water being supplied by meter. This was considered to be very satisfactory, and a resolution was proposed that the Field End allotments be supplied with water at the cost of the allotment holders, the Hunslet Rural District Council to take the water to the gate of the field, and fix one standpipe, only signatories to the agreement to use the water. This was seconded and carried, and the form of application was signed by the chairman.

Tenders were then considered for fixing the bells (14) in the recreation ground at Halton, and Messrs Shaw and Son were successful in getting the work. As some of the seats had been damaged, it was decided that Mr Dixon and the Clerk should see the damaged seats, and if it was thought they could be repaired, instructions should be given to Messrs Shaw and Son to do the work. The places where the seats are to be fixed were left with Mr Dixon and the Clerk.

The Chairman reported that the new recreation ground for children had been opened at Whitkirk, and an agreement between Mr John Farrar and the Parish Council was read.

It was agreed to pay the sum of one shilling per year, to be paid half-yearly as and from July, 1914, the agreement to be terminated by three months' notice on either side, and the Parish Council to pay all rates and taxes in addition to the rent.

The agreement was accepted, and a resolution was passed that the Chairman should sign it. It was also agreed that a notice board should be put on the ground similar to the board at the Halton ground.

It was agreed that a notice be published regarding changes of tenancy in the allotments, no change of tenancy to be made without the sanction of the Parish Council.

ASKHAM RICHARD

HINT TO A GROOM—At York, Eastern Ainsty Petty Sessions, Edward Hudman, groom, of Askham Richard, admitted riding a bicycle without a light on August 9th on the Tadcaster road at Askham Richard. P.C. Fawcett said that at 12.30 a.m. when on duty he met the defendant and called on him to stop. He did not do so, and he followed after him, but he also failed to stop. Witness then obtained a cycle and went after defendant and overtook him. Sergeant Cook said another constable had called for defendant. Why don't you enlist. There's plenty of demand for men who know anything about horses. Think it over. A fine of 2s. 6d. and costs was imposed.

THE WEEK'S MARKETS.

CORN.

SELBY, Monday.—A small trade, there being only a few samples of new grain on offer. Wheats 38s. to 40s., black winter-sown oats 23s. to 26s. per qr.

PROVISIONS.

SELBY, Monday.—Eggs to be 18.; butter 1s. 2d. to 1s. 3d. per lb.; chickens 4s. 6d. to 5s.; ducks 4s. 6d. per couple.

POTATOES.

SELBY, Monday.—The market was rather disorganised. There was a fall in prices from last week, when a lot was hooded up. The prices were no more than 90s. per ton gs. per ton. Retail 2s. 6d. per bumper of six stones.

CATTLE.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART, Monday.—Messrs Thomlinson and Son had forward a fair show of beasts, sheep, and pigs. The attendance of butchers and dealers was below the average, and trade was easier for beef and mutton. Pigs made more money. Prices—Beasts 1st, £7 8s.; 2d, 7s. 6d.; choicest quality, 9s. 3d.; calves and heavy cattle, 8s. to 8s. 6d. per stone; sheep, 9d. to 10d.; lambs, 9½d. to 10½d. per lb.; pork pigs, 7s. 6d. to 8s. per stone; fat bullocks, to £17 10s. each. Numbers sold—43 beasts, 118 sheep and lambs, and 18 pigs.

GARFORTH AUCTION MART, MONDAY.—Mr Wm Ash offered a light show of stock before the above date in relation to trade. Beef and mutton made late rates, and store pigs were better to sell. Prices—For heifers, to £18 12s. 6d.; fat cows, to £18 10s. 6d.; fat bullocks, to £17 10s. each. Numbers sold—43 beasts, 118 sheep and lambs, and 18 pigs.

SELBY MONDAY.—At this mart Messrs Richard son and Son disposed of 77 beasts, 33 sheep, and 45 pigs. There was the usual attendance of buyers, but only a small supply of stock. Trade ruled about the same as last week, best beef making about 9s. per stone. Best calving heifers were in demand; there was no change in mutton or pork. Prices as follow:—Fat bullocks up to £17 7s. 6d., fat heifers up to £16, fat cows up to £18 10s., store cattle up to £14, heifers in calf up to £19 12s. 6d., cows in milk up to £18 10s., fat sheep up to £2 11s. 6d., lambs up to £2 7s. 6d., pork pigs up to £2 6s. 10d., and small store pigs up to 18s. each.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER.

OLD FRIENDS WITH A NEW FACE.

Iniquitous intercourses contaminate proper habits.

Where individual may pilfer a quadruped, where another may not cast his eyes over the boundary of a field.

Like the instincts of the feline, the mice give themselves up to various pastimes.

Feathered bipeds of advanced age are not to be entrusted with the outer husks of corn.

Casualties will take place in the most excellently-conducted family circles.

More confectioners than are absolutely necessary are apt to ruin the potage.

CONCERNING TATTOOING.

The practice of tattooing the human skin is most widely in vogue among the Japanese, but it prevails also in Africa. In India, too, the practice is widespread. The "art," says an American paper, is of Polynesian origin, the root of the word being "ta," meaning to strike," and the most primitive method of tattooing, which was by beating into the flesh the colouring matter lodged in some sharp point, that left an indelible mark.

Generally speaking, among the people by whom it is most employed, tattooing is held to be significant of manhood, although it is practised on women for ornamental purposes. It seems to be the unanimous opinion of the writers on the subject that the primary object was not one of desire to attract the opposite sex, although this does not exclude motives related to ornamentation. Some have thought that the tattooing is supported by Divine sanction, for the god Vishnu tattooed the arm of Lakshmi as the mark of his wife upon earth and the sun, the moon, and the tulsi plants as a protection for her while she was engaged in the distant and troublesome demesne. He also promised that all the faithful who wore these same marks on their arms should be protected from all evil influences.

Since the operation is a most painful one, it is not usual in countries where the practice obtains to a great extent to tattoo any but the parts of the skin is tough, the order of preference appearing to be, first, the forehead, then the junction of the eyebrows, then the cheeks, chin, and shoulders, and then the arms and back of the hands.

MILLIONS OF BOOKS.

It is computed that the total number of printed books in the world is no less than 11,638,810, and that 8,714,000 of these have been published subsequently to the year 1800, says the Bulletin de l'Institut International de Bibliographie. From 1500 to 1800 the number of books produced annually averaged only 1,250. It was not until 1700 that the annual average passed 10,000, and it was not until 1867 that it reached 100,000. From 1900 to 1906, however, the annual output averaged 174,375.—Nearly 140 years were the average output between 1500 and 1535.

A PEREGRINATING TOWN.

For three months of the year the town of Gartek, in Thibet, is situated at the place where it is designated on the maps. During the other nine months it is not there at all, but is about forty miles further south, at a much lower altitude. Climatic conditions are the cause of this migratory habit. When the heat grows too intense for comfort the whole town packs up and, driving the herds of yaks, sheep, and goats, moves up to the higher altitude, and the traders from India at once begin to drift in.

GELATINE COFFING SLAB.

To make one of these, says Spare Moments, soak in cold water two ounces of pale gelatine glue until it appears a thick jelly, place in fine pan, and squeeze away surplus water, put in thick earthenware vessel with ten ounces of glycerine, place in the oven, and simmer until gelatine is melted, stirring at intervals. After thoroughly mixing add ten drops of oil of cloves to prevent mouldiness. Pour the mixture into a shallow tray, twelve inches square, with sides one inch high, and stand in a cool, level place, so that the surface of slab will set even and without blisters. This takes about four hours. Before using rub surface of slab with wetted sponge. Place on copy gently, rub slightly, and leave for a few minutes. Remove paper, then place blank sheet on slab, and lightly draw hand over the back. When sufficient impressions have been taken, sponge ink from the surface, remelt over slow fire or in oven, and, if rather blue, mix in a little whiting. The best ink to use for the original is: Methyl violet aniline, 20r.; spirit, 2dr.; mix in a hot bottle, then fill up with water. Use a non-nib in pen.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

HOW TO USE DISINFECTANTS.

Nothing is more important to the health of the family than the occasional use of a good disinfectant. This is of great importance, remarks "Pepita" in the Mark Lane Express, if there is any reason to suspect there are noxious germs in the premises.

During hot weather the cellar, lavatories, and cesspools about the house should be treated to a good disinfectant every week. During the winter months these places require only an occasional disinfectant.

Thorough ventilation of the house in winter is more difficult than in summer-time, especially if there is sickness or a member of the family who is inclined to take cold easily. When thorough ventilation is hindered the house may be kept in a sanitary condition by the use of a disinfectant.

Carbolic acid is recommended by physicians as especially purifying. It may be bought at a small cost at the chemist's. But if the smell of carbolic acid is disagreeable, thymol water may be used in its place.

Carbolic Acid Solution.—To one quart of hot water add 7oz. of carbolic acid. The acid and water will not form a permanent solution unless the water is boiling hot. This will keep for weeks. When wanted for use add half an ounce to a pint.

Thymol Water Solution.—Into a half-gallon of water put one teaspoonful of spirits of thymol.

Copperas Solution.—To every gallon of water add 1lb. of copperas. Dissolve copperas to a thin bag and suspend it in a barrel containing the water. This is an excellent disinfectant to use in drains, around the outside premises, but it is poisonous, and must be used carefully.

Lime is a good destroyer of many disease germs. It is used dry for sprinkling in rooms, and for whitewashing.

When there is sickness in the house it is a good plan to keep a small dish of carbolic acid solution in one corner of the bedroom for disinfecting purposes. A little of this solution sprinkled on the sleeping person's face at any time will keep them in a sanitary condition, which is very important.

CHILDREN AND THEIR FOOD.

Children who are growing, and rapidly forming flesh and bone, require food rich in flesh-forming material. Yet we find them too often fed with the very foods which do not contain what they most require—cornflour, tapioca, arrowroot, and such articles. These foods are certainly relatively wanting in flesh-forming material, and are only made useful by being taken in large quantities. The best foods for a child are oatmeal, properly cooked as porridge, with soups, broth, and eggs, says Miss Helen Campbell in "Woman and Her Health." In settling the question whether a child is having sufficient food of the right kind it is not enough to consider the child's increase in weight. Weight may be gained through the layers of fat which do not add to the body on account of the food being too rich in starch, sugar, and fat, while all the time the child may be starving for want of flesh-forming material. Health is to be judged, not from the amount of weight, but from the firmness of flesh, redness of lips and cheeks, and straightness of bone.

COOKING FOR INVALIDS.

Boiling, baking, and stewing are not good methods of cooking for patients in bed or suffering from indigestion. Grilling and frying are preferable, because the meat or fish cooked in these ways lose a lot of fat, and are less likely to be overcooked, says Sister Fanning in "The Nursing of Typhoid Fever Illness." Underdone meat is more easily digested than that which is overdone. When grilling meat have a clear fire, warm the griller before fixing the meat on to it. Allow a hot plate for the meat to rest upon. According to thickness of meat. In steaming keep the water boiling all the time, and when the meat is cooking up and getting into the fish or meat. A steamer is not necessary if you put a basin, strike," and a plate over the top of the pan to the edge of the saucepan, and cover it over with a cloth. Fish should be put into fresh fish for an invalid; it is easier to digest; always serve with a sauce to make up for the deficiency of fish blood.

DAINTY SALADS.

A crisp, appetising salad, daintily served, adds much to any meal. Below we give a number of salads, all of which are wholesome and easily prepared:

CELERY SALAD.—Cut celery into pieces an inch and a half long, and put them into cold water for an hour. When crisp slit with a sharp knife across the celery, and turn and shake again. Put into a dry cloth, and pour over it a mayonnaise dressing.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING.—Beat the yolks of two fresh eggs in a cold bowl and mix with an egg-beater. Add a small half-teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of cayenne, and a tablespoonful of cider vinegar, beating constantly. Then slowly, a few drops at a time, about half a pint of olive oil, beating again, and when it is thick; then add the juice of a small lemon and a dust of powdered sugar.

POTATO SALAD.—Boil half a dozen potatoes until tender, but do not let them cook so that they will fall to pieces. Boil four eggs for five minutes, and drop them into cold water. When cold, peel and slice potatoes and eggs and pour over them a mayonnaise dressing.

TOMATO SALAD.—Peel medium-sized tomatoes and chill them on ice. Serve them on a little of the top, and serve the tomatoes on lettuce leaves. Pour over the top of each a heaping teaspoonful of the following dressing: Beat the yolks of two eggs light, add one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of mustard, four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, and six tablespoonfuls of vinegar very slowly, and all the time beating. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens; then add the yolks of two eggs, one at a time, and remove from the stove. Chill over ice, and before serving add one cupful of whipped cream.

EGG SALAD.—Boil hard eight or nine eggs, drop into cold water, and when thoroughly cool peel, and put in refrigerator. Arrange the slices lap over on lettuce leaves in a pretty fish salad dish, and pour over them a thin French salad dressing to which has been added a spoonful of chopped parsley.

FRENCH DRESSING.—Take a tablespoonful of Tarragon vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, half a teaspoonful of salt, a little black pepper. Mix the salt and pepper and slowly add the oil, then the vinegar, and stir rapidly for two or three minutes.

BEET SALAD.—Cut into small slices cold, tender beets, and add an equal quantity of cold boiled ham, cut away fine, or surplus lettuce leaves, and pour over it mayonnaise dressing or that used for tomato salad.

HAM SALAD.—Chop one pound of cold ham; add one small solid head of cabbage cut fine with a knife, and two cold boiled cucumbers chopped fine, and four hard-boiled eggs chopped fine. Mix with French dressing. One tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two eggs, half a cup of milk, half a teaspoonful of mustard. Cook until thick, and chill before using.

A LUNCHEON SALAD.—An attractive salad for a luncheon is two cries celery cut fine and arranged on a bed of watercress, with mayonnaise dressing poured over them. Around the edge is a border of tomato jelly.

Clifford's new industry—blouse-making—will not be commenced until after the war.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR-SALE, and TO LET.
Words. 1 week. 3 weeks. 6 weeks. 13 weeks
20 ... 0 6 ... 1 0 ... 1 6 ... 3 3
30 ... 0 9 ... 1 6 ... 2 9 ... 5 0
40 ... 1 0 ... 1 9 ... 3 0 ... 6 6
If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than 13 weeks, 1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do. 10d. do. do.
52 do. 8d. do. do.

TO LET.

TO Let at Sherburn-in-Elmet, 8-ROOMED HOUSE, pleasantly situated, every convenience. Rent £18 per annum.—Apply WILLIAM DENNISON, Sherburn-in-Elmet. 3 1628

WANTED

WANTED, a RESPECTABLE GENERAL, 2 kept.—Apply, Station Hotel, Cleckheaton, Leeds. 3 2197

WANTED.—GOOD DAY GIRL. Small family. — Mrs. HOLLIDAY, Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 3 2189

WANTED three steady YOUNG MEN as LODGERS.—Apply, Mrs FLOCKTON, 3, Bentley Square, Oulton, near Leeds. 2 1613

REQUIRED by a Lady, BOARD and LODGING, near Morritt Avenue, Halton. Would live with the family. Separate bedroom. State terms.—Miss OXTON, 160, Roker Avenue, Sunderland. 2 1606

JUNIOR CLERK, about 16, with office experience, posting ledgers, etc., good writer. State age, experience, salary required, to THE YORKSHIRE COPPER WORKS, Ltd., Leeds.

BRASS TURNING—YOUTH wanted, accustomed to Brass Turning. Good wages to suitable applicant. Apply personally, or by letter, to the YORKSHIRE COPPER WORKS, Pontefract Road, Leeds. 1

FOR SALE.

FOR SALE.—PIANO, Rosewood case; HALL LAMP (gas), HANGING LAMP (oil). Cheap.—10, Park View, Halton. 2193

FOR SALE.—SIX PURE MINORCA HENS, One COCK, and 20 CHICKENS from same, 11 weeks old.—DAIS, High Street, South Milford. 2191

FOR Sale 3½ h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR-CYCLE and SIDECAR, in good condition. Cheap.—DOCKRAY, Hazelroyde, Green Lane, Whitkirk.

SPECKLED SUSSEX COCKERELS.—Large boned, vigorous, February-hatched Birds of good type and colour, from 5s. each.—FREEMAN, Sandhills, Thorner. 3 1625

PRIVATE DISPOSAL.—Nice, Respectable BAY CARRIAGE HORSE, 6 years, 16 hands, price 20 guineas; also Pretty BAY COB, 6 years, 13 hands, 15 guineas; both warranted sound and quiet in all harness and saddle, quiet with all motor and traction engines. Every trial allowed by appointment. No dealers. Good home essential. VICTORIA GOVERNESS CART, HARNESS, etc., if required.—Apply, Mrs A. JACKSON, Marsh House, Marsh Road, Newport, Middlesbrough-on-Tees. 3

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allbutt, should be read by all. Sent privately, 7½d. Post Free. Illustrated list of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c., Post Free; 2 Stamps. —(S) DAVIES & CO., 54 Park Lane, Leeds.

LADIES! Woodward's Challenge Remedy is guaranteed under the sum of £100 to cure more cases than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, special 4/6. Consultations free 10 to 10 daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road, Requisites. Only address—Mr and Mrs W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 21 years' experience. My remedies never fail. My Special Mixture or Pills are guaranteed to be the only reliable remedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe, and Sure. Price 2s. 9d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrapper, or stamp for particulars. Consultations by appointment. Only Address: Mrs WOOD, 31, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties in Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/3½ and 2/9 at
KAMB'S HERBAL STORES, 28, KIRKGATE LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc., kept in Stock

PATENTS for INVENTIONS obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, CHARTERED PATENT AGENT,
25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS,
and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
He Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free, or British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738. HALIFAX 357.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

TEMPLENEWSAM ALLOTMENTS ASSOCIATION.
THE SECOND ANNUAL SHOW will be held in the PAROCHIAL HALL, HALTON, ON SATURDAY, AUGUST 22ND, 1914. Entrance Fee 3d. Doors open about 4 p.m. Schedules may be had from S. B. CHADWICK, hon. sec., 6, Grove Road, Halton.

CROSSGATES FLOWER SHOW AND SPORTS.
AUGUST 31st and SEPTEMBER 1st, 1914.
OWING TO THE PRESENT CRISIS THE ABOVE SOCIETY'S SHOW HAS BEEN ABANDONED THIS YEAR.
GEO. HOYLE, Secretary.

THE SALVATION ARMY, GARFORTH.
Saturday and Sunday, August 22nd and 23rd.
A SPECIAL VISIT OF THE LAISTERDYKE BRASS BAND.
Programme of Events:
Saturday at 4-30 p.m. A PUBLIC TEA, 6d.
At 7-15 p.m.
A MUSICAL FESTIVAL.
Admission by Programme, 3d. each.
The following bands will unite—ROTHWELL LAISTERDYKE and GARFORTH.
Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Cricket Field,
A MUSICAL FESTIVAL will be given by the LAISTERDYKE BRASS BAND.
Leader, Bandmaster Johnson.
Sunday at 6-30, SALVATION MEETING. Speaker, Captain Methurst.

THE PICTURE HOUSE, GARFORTH
Every Evening at 7 o'clock, Saturday, Twice Nightly at 6-30 and 8-30.
Children's Matinee at 2-30.
Two Gigantic Programmes for Week commencing Monday, August 24th, 1914.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
Brand New Special War Topical,
"MODERN CRUSADERS."
Presenting "Kitchener's New Army," "The German Crown Prince and the 'Death Head Hussars'," "The Gallant Belgian Army," and many other up-to-date War Pictures.
THE ORPHAN OF WAR.
THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY—
"THE WATERLOO OF THE AMERICAN CIVIL WAR."
"THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG."
Produced in Four Stupendous Parts.
See the Dashing Bowmen Charge, 5,000 Eager Men Storming a Fire-Swept Slope.

Popular Prices:—2d., 4d., and 6d.

TEMPLENEWSAM PARISH COUNCIL.
THE CHILDREN'S RECREATION GROUND at WHITKIRK IS NOW OPEN.
Entrance: SELBY ROAD.
The Public are respectfully requested to protect that which is intended for their enjoyment.
J. HENRY TOMLINSON, Chairman.
V. GREAVES, Clerk.

Established 37 Years.
WM. DENTON & SON,
23, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.,
Insurance Brokers.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

MR and MRS. TURNER,
7 Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchase for Cash, Ladies' and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing. All Letters and Parcels receive immediate attention. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Trial Solicited.
Highest Price Given.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3188; Bradford, 2417.

DENTISTRY.
W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 36, Briggate, Leeds (over Messrs. Newby's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 4s., and 5s. each.
Gold Crown, Stopping, and Teeth Scaled at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 1s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3512C.

Telephone No. 1 Garforth.
ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Cabs, Waggonettes and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

WHEN AT HARROGATE
CALL AT
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality. Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motorists and Cyclists. Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
PROPRIETOR: H. BEEFORTH.

Established 1885. By Royal Appointment. Established 1885.
GENERAL
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Policies of all kinds. Liberal Benefits and conditions. Low Premiums.
EREE FIRE INSURANCE every sixth year to householders and private property owners.
COMBINATION POLICIES covering the requirements of householders in connection with risks of Fire, Burglary, and workmen's compensation.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, including guaranteed options.
Workmen's Compensation,
Motor Car, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee, Driving Accidents, Loss Stock, Plate Glass, and Farmers' Insurances.
Chief Offices—General Bldgs., Perth, Scotland. General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C. Top Glass and Strongest Independent Office. Assets exceed £7,500,000. Claims paid over £7,000,000.
General Manager . . . F. NOBLE-MILLER, J.P.

PUBLIC NOTICES AND SALES BY AUCTION.

SOLDIERS' WIVES ... RS.
YORKSHIRE ... DING.

ROTHWELL DISTRICT COUNCIL'S AREA

THE DEPENDENTS of SOLDIERS and SAILORS and TERRITORIALS who have JOINED the COLOURS are asked to REGISTER THEMSELVES IMMEDIATELY at the COUNCIL OFFICES, ROTHWELL.
WALTER DODGSON, Clerk.
Council Offices,
Rothwell near Leeds.
20th August, 1914.

ROTHWELL GAS-LIGHT COMPANY.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Ordinary HALF-YEARLY MEETING of the Shareholders of the above Company will be held at the Offices of the Company, Low Road, Rothwell, on MONDAY, the 14th day of September, 1914, at 11 o'clock in the Evening, to receive the Report of the Directors and Accounts for Half-year ending 30th June, 1914; to declare a dividend, and to transact the General Business of the Company.

Notice is also hereby given that an EXTRAORDINARY GENERAL MEETING will be held immediately after the Ordinary Half-Yearly Meeting, to consider, and, if thought advisable, to pass the following proposed Resolutions, viz.:—

1. A Resolution authorising the raising of £15,000 additional Capital (exclusive of Premiums), or other such sum as may be decided upon, by the issue of the 5% Preference Shares of £10 each, authorised to be raised under the provisions of the Rothwell Gas Orders, 1893, 1902, 1908.

2. A Resolution for Authority to borrow on Mortgage the sum of £5,000 beyond Capital, authorised pursuant to the provisions of the above Act and Orders.

3. A Resolution empowering the Board of Directors to apply for a Provisional Order from the Board of Trade in the next Session of Parliament to increase the Authorised Capital of the Company by the sum of £10,000, with power to create Borrowing powers in accordance therewith, and in addition to the powers in the above-mentioned Act and Orders.

The Transfer Books will be closed from the 7th to the 14th September, both inclusive.
By Order of the Board,
THOS. WORMALD, Secretary.
Gas Office, Rothwell,
Leeds, August 12th 1914

RURAL DISTRICT OF HUNSLET.

PART II. OF THE HOUSING, TOWN PLANNING, &c., ACT, 1909.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a draft TOWN PLANNING SCHEME has been prepared by the RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL OF HUNSLET, and that it is proposed to submit the same, with any modification that may be deemed desirable, to the Local Government Board for their approval under the above Act.

That the land included in the proposed scheme is situate partly in the CONTRIBUTORY PLACE OF TEMPLENEWSAM in the RURAL DISTRICT OF HUNSLET, and partly in the COUNTY BOROUGH OF LEEDS, bounded on the North by the City of Leeds and the Great Eastern Railway, on the East by the parish of Austhorpe and Hollyshaw Lane, on the West by the City of Leeds, and on the South by lands belonging to the Honourable E. P. Wood and Selby Main Road, and more particularly described on the Map now deposited at the Offices of the said Rural District Council of Hunslet, Leek Street, Hunslet, Leeds, and marked Map No. 4, the land included in the proposed scheme being surrounded by a red border, and the land excluded from the scheme being coloured brown and hatched dark brown on the said Map.

That the draft Scheme and Map No. 4 above referred to have been deposited at the Council Offices, Leek Street, Hunslet, Leeds, and will be open for inspection for a period of one month, at all reasonable hours on any week-day during the said period.

That suitable provision has been made for affording to any such person inspecting the said draft scheme and map any necessary explanation or information in regard thereto.

And that the Rural District Council of Hunslet will be prepared to consider any objections or representations made to them in writing during the said period by any persons affected, including any persons representing any corporation or archæological society interested in the amenity of the proposed scheme.

Dated this twentieth day of August, 1914.
OSCAR ... P. PINDAR.
Clerk to the Council.
Leek Street, Hunslet, Leeds.

YOUR WEDDING
Should be NICE whether the MOTOR or CARRIAGES. We see to most talked of and the most thought of Wedding. Also Carriages for Funerals, CHAPELTOWN ROAD, Leeds.
Tele. 1877 Central.
"WE NEVER SLEEP."

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER and JEWELLER,
96 (Top of LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.
£0 10 0 for 2½d. per month.
£1 0 0 .. 5d. .. ..
£2 0 0 .. 10d. .. ..
£3 0 0 .. 1s. 0d. .. ..
£5 0 0 .. 2s. 0d. .. ..
£10 0 0 .. 3s. 6d. .. ..
£20 0 0 .. 3s. 4d. .. ..
Sums above £20 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 7, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
DENTAL ROOMS,
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TER-RACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free. Hours—10 to 8.
and at
16, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates,
Every Friday, 9 to 7.30 p.m. Other hours by appointment
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing
Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

SALES BY AUCTION.

WETHERBY AUCTION MART
ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 110 Prime Fat SHEEP.
60 to 70 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers

ON MONDAY NEXT AT 12 O'CLOCK, WHITKIRK LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART (Near to Crossgates Station and within four miles of Leeds).
Messrs BARTLE & SON
Will sell by Auction, in strict accordance with the Instructions of the Mart—
430 HEAD OF STOCK, viz.—
75 NEWLY CALVEN and PRESENT CALVING COWS and STORE BEASTS.
60 PRIME FAT BULLOCKS, HEIFERS, and COWS.
20 VEAL and STORE CALVES.
125 PRIME FAT SHEARLINGS, HOGGS, and EWES.
150 BACON, PORK, and STORE PIGS.
Auctioneers' Offices: Garforth, near Leeds. (Tel. No. 26).

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Heads of Families, Private Buyers, Dealers, and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Underclothing always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON.
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS.
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

JOHN TEALE,
Advertising Contractor & Billposter,
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.
Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11, CALL LANE,
LEEDS.
TEL. 1604.

— TRY —
SANCFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt, and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

TO BE CONTENT
With anything but the best is spectacles or eyeglasses is the wisdom of the unwise.
Thoughtful people recognise this fact, and value their eyes too highly to run unnecessary risks by wearing wrong glasses.
It is to such that this appeal is made; and if your eyes are causing you trouble, we ask you to call and talk the matter over with us, when we shall be pleased to advise you.
HEYWOOD,
Optologist,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES, SWATHE TURNERS, HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS &C.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge,
Easy Terms £2 2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-
OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

FOR FUNERALS.
CABS AND CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS
J. T. BUCKTON, PROPRIETOR.
10, Basinghall Street, Boar Lane,
Leeds. Telephone No. 1877 Central. Telegraphic Address "Never Sleep." Double Line Night and Day.
LEEDS'
UNDERTAKERS

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, AUGUST 22ND, 1914.

How wonderfully the predictions of the pessimists have been falsified by the British democracy! For several years they have been mourning over the decadence of the people, as manifested in their growing love of pleasure and in their demand for a larger share of the good things of life, and the Jeremiahs of our time have not hesitated to state that when the hour of trial came upon the country we should be found wanting. That view we have consistently condemned. The hour of trial is upon the nation, and, however the struggle upon which the allies are engaged may finish, everyone will admit that the people of this country have risen to the occasion in a manner unparalleled in our history. And what were the signs of decadence? Working men were condemned for turning out in thousands to view spectacular games, instead of lounging about public-houses, as so many of them did before, and for a failure to discern the serious aspects of life. The most unsparing critics of the family are its own members, arising largely out of intimate association one with another, and too often the frailties which mark human limitations are seen altogether out of perspective. In this way the harmony of the home circle is disturbed, and the critics do greater mischief than they ever intended doing. What applies to individuals may be applied with equal force to nations, and the malicious stories concerning Britain's decadence have worked great harm. Even our own kith and kin across the seas have been misled by these statements, and when they have returned to the mother land, expecting to see a nation fast falling to pieces, they have been amazed at its strength, vitality, and activity. They have discovered no canker at the heart of the Empire. The advocates of compulsory military service are not blameless either. It may be admitted that they were inspired by the highest patriotic motives—that there was no self-seeking in their aims, but the speeches many of them made gave to the world an entirely erroneous conception of the resources of the country and of the spirit of the people. Foreigners do not understand the British, and who can blame them for believing statements derogatory to the nation, especially when they are made by our own countrymen? In view of all this, is it any surprise that, whatever their lip-service, foreigners have not their old-time respect for us? There was no need to beat the big drum, but the creation of false impressions has done incalculable harm. Without doubt German statesmen, in planning their present war of aggression, believed that the British people were so given over to business and sport, pleasure and ease, that they needed not to take them into consideration at all, and, owing to the predictions of the false prophets, they have made a very serious miscalculation. Our Army they regarded as a thing to be laughed at, because it was no conscript force of millions, but before the struggle is over they may realise that there is a difference in the spirit of men fighting under compulsion and men who enter the battlefield inflamed by the highest patriotism. Judging by the stories which have come from the Front the German soldiers do not know what they are fighting for, but there is not a single British soldier so ignorant. Without honour a nation is bankrupt; it would receive and deserve the contempt and derision of the whole world; and the British soldier knows that he is fighting for national honour. And what a magnificent response there has been to the country's call. Men were invited to shoulder the national burden, and it need be, lay down their lives on the battlefield, and how have they received the summons? Thousands of the manhood of the country have rushed to the recruiting offices to offer their services, and soon a second Army will be in being on these shores. This is no time for glorification, but Britishers have, indeed, reason to be proud of the nation to which they belong. Our statesmen have discharged their duties nobly, striving for peace up to the last minute, and when dishonourable proposals were made to them, which meant the selling of friends and the crushing of the weak, they rejected them with scorn and appealed to the arbitrament of the sword. They have the nation behind them to a man, and the wonderful way in which the crisis has been faced shows the determination of all to see this thing through. A terrible price will have to be paid—it is impossible to count the cost—but Britain's very existence is at stake, and the enemy who have misjudged us so ill must be crushed. Our kinsmen across the seas, at one with us in the stand the nation has taken, have followed the example of the country's sons here, and are determined to have some share in the battle against despotism. Huge gifts of food, so that the poor in this country will not know the pangs of hunger, have been sent from the overseas Dominions, and the burden of the mother country has become the common one of the Empire. Such a day was worth striving for. The various members of the imperial family have forgotten their domestic differences, and they are united in a common cause.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the sender.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 2s. 6d. each
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

DEATHS.

AYRES—August 16th (suddenly), at the United Kingdom Hotel, Methley, aged 62, Sarah Ellen Ayres.

ELSTON—August 18, at Commercial Street, Rothwell, Annie Maria, wife of John Elston, chemist.

GREEN—August 16th, at Heath Nurseries, Moortown, Charlie, the beloved husband of Florence Green, and third son of the late Wm. Green, nurseryman, of Garforth and Leeds.

HEMSWORTH—August 16th, at Hillary Place, Robin Hood, aged 79 years, William Hemsworth.

HIRST.—August 16th, at Holmsley, Woodlesford (suddenly), Uriah Hirst, aged 61.

IN MEMORIAM.

BATT.—In ever loving memory of a dear husband and affectionate father, Tom Batt, who died August 21st, 1913.
"He did all as did her best, and we trust that God has given to her eternal rest."
From her dear mother and loving uncle, Wm. H. Swillington.

CHADWICK.—In loving memory of my dear father, W. H. Chadwick, of Garforth, who died August 20th, 1912.
From daughter Jessie and family. 2186

GREEN.—In loving memory of our dear son, George David, who died August 19th, 1913, at Westfield House, Kippax, in the 26th year of his age.
"None can like the broken chain."
Father and mother.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

REGISTRATION OF DEPENDENTS.—It will be seen from our advertisement columns that the wives and dependents of soldiers, sailors, and Territorials who have joined the colours are asked to register at once immediately at the Council Offices, Rothwell.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr J. W. Morkill (in the chair), Mr E. H. Foster, Mr F. M. Lupton, Mr P. H. Booth, Mr J. Hutchinson, Mr E. Parkin, Mr H. Leaman, and Mr J. Farrar.

THE WAR.—On Monday a number of the members of the Rothwell Section of the Abertrodin Division of the St. John Ambulance Association met at the Parish Rooms to take up duties in connection with the Red Cross work. Later in the day, however, several of them returned, it being decided that as at present the married men should not be retained.

CRICKET MATCHES.—Rothwell were at Stanley on Saturday, and won by eighteen runs. The visitors made no great display at the wickets, being dismissed for a total of 57, and H. Hodgkinson was the chief contributor with 20. H. Lunn was second best with 10. The home team made a fine headway against the bowling of H. Banks and W. Bedford, who claimed 6 wickets for 20 runs, and 4 for 15 respectively. Rothwell's total was 75, and the batting was: J. H. Hodgkinson, b Cawthorn, 20; W. Fox, b Cawthorn, 1; E. Moss, b P. Hargreaves, 5; W. Clark, c Duvisor, b Cawthorn, 0; H. Lunn, b Cawthorn, b P. Hargreaves, 3; B. Pozzard, b Cawthorn, 0; W. Bedford, c Walford, b Cawthorn, 11; H. Lunn, c Selby, b Cawthorn, 0; H. Banks, b Cawthorn, 0; O. Banks (not out), 7; extras, 7; total, 57. Stanley—J. Holmes, b H. Banks, 3; H. Little wood, b W. Bedford, 3; J. Davison, c O. Banks, b Bedford, 5; L. Cawthorn, lbw, b H Banks, 2; J. Heaton, c Bedford, b H Banks, 6; C. Poole, c Clark, b H Banks, 0; W. Selby, c Lunn, b Bedford, 0; E. Dobson, c Moss, b H Banks, 7; P. Hargreaves (not out), 5; J. Hobson, b Bedford, 0; H. Walford, b H Banks, 4; extras, 4; total, 39. The same fate which visited the Rothwell first eleven a fortnight ago descended on the A. team on Saturday when they played Darton, in the semi-final of the Wakefield Junior Cup Competition. Although Rothwell made a promising batting display, and knocked up 116 runs, they were unable to bowl out the Darton players, who won by six wickets, it taking eight bowlers to get out the four batsmen. Scores:—Rothwell A.—W. Nelson, b Darton, 16; A. Beaumont, b Stringer, 2; R. Morton, b Tiffany, 17; H. Fletcher, c Stringer, 6; A. Chadwick, not out, 25; F. Brackin, not out, 13; extras, 6; total (for 4 wkts.), 125.

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agent, of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax. Application completed—John Rushworth and Sons, Rawdon, improvements in window-sash fasteners; and A. L. Brockman and G. W. Lancrick, Leeds and Huddersfield, an improved indoor golf game. Patents sealed—L. H. Teale, Leeds, improvements in dismantle fireplaces; and T. R. Anderson, Lockerbie, an improved potato planting machine.

LOCAL TELEPHONE SERVICE.—The Postmaster-General announces that he has been able to make arrangements for effecting an improvement in the trunk telephone service between the Bradford and Leeds telephone areas. The interval which all subscribers have to wait at the time at which a call is passed to the trunk exchange and the time at which it is effected will be reduced, and calls will be completed on demand as far as possible, as in the case of an ordinary call between the two exchanges in the same area. The new service will commence on Monday, August 31st. Subscribers in the Bradford area who desire to communicate with subscribers in the Leeds area, and vice versa, should not ask for "Trunks," but should pass the particulars of the exchange and number of the required subscriber to their local exchange precisely in the same way as for a local call. They should then wait at their telephone until the distant subscriber answers. The Bradford and Leeds telephone areas include the following exchanges:—Bradford, Eccleshill, Bingley, Rastford, Cleckheaton, Crosshills, Cullingworth, Dudley Hill, Grassington, Howarth, Idle, Ilkley, Keighley, Kirkheaton, Lower Moor, Rawdon, Shipley, Skipton, Steeton, Thornton. Leeds Area—Arthington, Burley, Chapeltown, Crossgates, Drighlington, Garforth, Guiseley, Headingley, Leeds Central, Meanston, Morley, Otley, Rothwell, Roundhay, South Milford, Stanningley, Thorner.

ALLERTON BYWATER

IN THE RIVER AIRE.—An inquest was held at Castleford on Friday concerning the death of Harry Gillott (6), of 10, Wainwright Street, Castleford, whose body was taken from the river Aire. The child was in the habit of playing by the river side, and his mother had frequently fetched him away. A sad feature of the occurrence is that the father of the child had been summoned to join his regiment, and is now stationed at Chatham. A verdict of "Accidental Death" was returned.

CARLTON

CRICKET.—On Saturday afternoon Kippax had a League match with Carlton at Kippax, and the visitors won by four wickets. Kippax made 49 (Beckerdike 24), and Carlton replied with 50 for 6 wickets (L. Brown 18). Scores:—Kippax —T. Edwards 0, W. Lloyd 0, B Eddison 7, E Beckerdike 24, A Brookes 8, H. Jowett 2, E Pikwe 1, A Crippard 0, L Veitch 2, S Hodgson (not out) 1, T. Smart 1, extras, 3; total, 49. Carlton—H. Butterworth 0, E. Pozzard 6, W. Brown 2, L. Brown 18, W. Newton (not out) 5, J. Illingworth 0, H. Corns 1, V. Sykes (not out) 4, extras, 8; total (for 6 wkts.), 50.

CROSSGATES

The Committee of Crossgates Horticultural Society have decided, owing to the war, to abandon the show, which was to have been held on August 31st and Sept. 1st.

MUSHROOM STEALING.—Before Mr Marshall, the Stipendiary Magistrate, at the Leeds City Police Court, on Tuesday morning, John Smith and James Green, both of Leeds, were summoned for stealing mushrooms from land belonging to Mr J. F. Archbold, of Stanks, on Saturday, August 15th. Mr Archbold and Mr Kirkbridge proved the case, and each defendant was ordered to pay 20s. and costs and the damage done.

RESIDENTS AND THE WAR.—On Monday evening a largely-attended meeting of men was held in the Wesleyan Schoolroom, Crossgates, to consider what steps should be adopted to render assistance in connection with the war. Mr D. B Wilson, J.P., of Seacroft Hall, presided, and his was supported by the Rev. H. H. Malleson (vicar), Rev. C. Bell (Methodist), County Councillor Denhirst, and Messrs Chadwick and Lee (Guardians). The Vicar suggested that a Guild be established, and it would be established, and that four departments should be formed, and a subcommittee appointed to manage each. The first would deal with the relief of distress, and their duty would be to find out cases of distress and obtain help from the National Fund. The second would give information to young men desirous of getting employment immediately at the Council Offices, Rothwell.

LEEDS WEST RIDING PETTY SESSIONS.—The magistrates at the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday were Mr J. W. Morkill (in the chair), Mr E. H. Foster, Mr F. M. Lupton, Mr P. H. Booth, Mr J. Hutchinson, Mr E. Parkin, Mr H. Leaman, and Mr J. Farrar.

THE WAR.—On Monday a number of the members of the Rothwell Section of the Abertrodin Division of the St. John Ambulance Association met at the Parish Rooms to take up duties in connection with the Red Cross work. Later in the day, however, several of them returned, it being decided that as at present the married men should not be retained.

CRICKET MATCHES.—Rothwell were at Stanley on Saturday, and won by eighteen runs. The visitors made no great display at the wickets, being dismissed for a total of 57, and H. Hodgkinson was the chief contributor with 20. H. Lunn was second best with 10. The home team made a fine headway against the bowling of H. Banks and W. Bedford, who claimed 6 wickets for 20 runs, and 4 for 15 respectively. Rothwell's total was 75, and the batting was: J. H. Hodgkinson, b Cawthorn, 20; W. Fox, b Cawthorn, 1; E. Moss, b P. Hargreaves, 5; W. Clark, c Duvisor, b Cawthorn, 0; H. Lunn, b Cawthorn, b P. Hargreaves, 3; B. Pozzard, b Cawthorn, 0; W. Bedford, c Walford, b Cawthorn, 11; H. Lunn, c Selby, b Cawthorn, 0; H. Banks, b Cawthorn, 0; O. Banks (not out), 7; extras, 7; total, 57. Stanley—J. Holmes, b H. Banks, 3; H. Little wood, b W. Bedford, 3; J. Davison, c O. Banks, b Bedford, 5; L. Cawthorn, lbw, b H Banks, 2; J. Heaton, c Bedford, b H Banks, 6; C. Poole, c Clark, b H Banks, 0; W. Selby, c Lunn, b Bedford, 0; E. Dobson, c Moss, b H Banks, 7; P. Hargreaves (not out), 5; J. Hobson, b Bedford, 0; H. Walford, b H Banks, 4; extras, 4; total, 39. The same fate which visited the Rothwell first eleven a fortnight ago descended on the A. team on Saturday when they played Darton, in the semi-final of the Wakefield Junior Cup Competition. Although Rothwell made a promising batting display, and knocked up 116 runs, they were unable to bowl out the Darton players, who won by six wickets, it taking eight bowlers to get out the four batsmen. Scores:—Rothwell A.—W. Nelson, b Darton, 16; A. Beaumont, b Stringer, 2; R. Morton, b Tiffany, 17; H. Fletcher, c Stringer, 6; A. Chadwick, not out, 25; F. Brackin, not out, 13; extras, 6; total (for 4 wkts.), 125.

"PICTURE HOUSE.—Excellent programmes have attracted good audiences at the Picture House this week, and to-night and Saturday the films secured have a direct connection with the crisis through which the country is passing. "The Curse of War" is described as the greatest coloured military drama ever produced, and "Britain's Might" shows the British Fleet cleaning for action. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday next week some excellent films, educational in character, are promised. They include "Kitchener's New Army," "The German Crown Prince and the Death Head Hussars," "The Gallant Belgian Army," etc. In addition "The orphan of war," an interesting and pathetic story of the battlefield, will be shown. For the week-end the great attraction will be the description of "The Battle of Gettysburg"—the Waterloo of the American Civil War—in four parts, and it will assuredly be worth seeing. Times and prices in advert.

Thorner Attendance.—At the meeting of Garforth Education Committee on Wednesday—Mr. Wordsworth presiding—it was reported that the general department of Garforth Council School had the highest attendance in the division for July, and had won the shield. The percentage was 96.05 against 94.87 in July last year. The figures for the other schools were—Garforth Council, infants, 89.43 against 84.23; East Garforth, 89.32 and 91.21; Garforth, Church of England, 89.32 and 89.21; and Oulton, 78.09 and 80.80. East Garforth M.C., 78.69 and 93.02. The attendance at the two last mentioned schools was affected by measles and chicken-pox.

The Late Mr C. Gomm.—It is with profound regret we have to record the death of Mr Charles Gomm, the head master of the Main Street, Garforth, Council School, which occurred on Tuesday morning, after a long illness. Mr Gomm, who was 58 years of age, was a native of Leeds. Deceased, whose illness extended over nearly two years, was aged only 38 years. The funeral service was conducted in the churchyard at St. John's Church, Moortown, on Wednesday, in the presence of a large number of mourning relatives and friends. The interment was conducted by the Vicar (Rev. G. Barthorough). The service was held in the house, Heath Nurseries, at 3 p.m., and the cortege proceeded to the church. The bearers were Messrs. Green (grocer), Cussins and Mosley (draughtsmen), Mr. and Mrs. Hy. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Green, Mrs. E. S. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Hy. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Whitaker (brother-in-law), Master Tom Green (nephew), Mr. F. Carr (brother-in-law), Mrs. Whitaker (aunt), and Mrs. Joseph Green (sister-in-law). Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Archer (Garforth), Mr. Middleton (Moortown), Mr. and Mrs. Pickersgill (Moortown), Mr. Teasdale (Leeds), Mr. T. Cussins (Moortown), Mr. Cussins (Leeds), Mr. Cussins (Moortown), Mr. Ben Holt (Moortown), besides several of deceased's gardening friends, by whom he was much liked in the district. Floral tributes were sent by the widow and children, Mr and Mrs. Hy. Green and children, Mr and Mrs Joseph Green and children, Mr and Mrs Percy Green, Mr and Mrs A. Whitaker, Mrs. Whitaker (aunt), Mrs. Thackray (aunt), employees at Garforth Nurseries, employees at Moortown Nurseries, employees at the nurseries at seed warehouse, Leeds, Mr. W. Allsop (Bond Street, Leeds), Mr. and Miss Middleton (Moortown), Master Brown (Brea, Chesterton), and Mr and Mrs Frank Carr (Leeds). The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr Hy. Stonock, Garforth.

Women and War.—The ladies of Garforth, anxious to do something for the men who are fighting the country's battles, have decided to make garments for the soldiers, and a public meeting was held in Mr Lund Denby's house on Friday the following were appointed a committee to make arrangements:—Mrs Denby, Mrs Cowell (wife Mrs Smith), Mrs Hudson, Mrs Simpson, Mrs Walker, Mrs Chadwick, Mrs Higgins, Mrs Wood, Mrs Fossett, Miss Hudson (Manorthwaite), Miss Brown (Brea, Mr. Cowell, and Mr. Frank Carr (Leeds). The general arrangements were carried out by Mr Hy. Stonock, Garforth.

Women and War.—The ladies of Garforth, anxious to do something for the men who are fighting the country's battles, have decided to make garments for the soldiers, and a public meeting was held in Mr Lund Denby's house on Friday the following were appointed a committee to make arrangements:—Mrs Denby, Mrs Cowell (wife Mrs Smith), Mrs Hudson, Mrs Simpson, Mrs Walker, Mrs Chadwick, Mrs Higgins, Mrs Wood, Mrs Fossett, Miss Hudson (Manorthwaite), Miss Brown (Brea, Mr. Cowell, and Mr. and Mrs

ROTHWELL URBAN COUNCIL.

The monthly meeting of the Rothwell Urban District Council was held at the Council Offices on Monday night—Mr. J. Fox (Chairman) presiding. Other members present were Messrs G. Gilbert (vice-chairman), A. R. Chadwick, W. Bailey (Hopkinsonville), W. Wade, W. Dyson, J. Armitage, J. Horner, T. Ellis, E. McCulloch, W. Lister, M. Robinson, and W. Spruth, with the Clerk (Mr W. Hodgson), the surveyor (Mr. F. Southwell), and the sanitary inspector (Mr. F. F. Moorhouse).

HIGHWAYS COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Highways Committee it was resolved that a new sludge cart be purchased from Messrs. Lumley and Co., Leeds, at a cost not exceeding £100, if same was approved by the Local Government Board. A letter was read from the Road Board notifying the Council that it was not intended to prosecute in regard to the cutting off the water supply. It was resolved that Messrs Armitage be asked to fetch their pipes off the work by cleaning out the ditches at Shepcote Lane. A letter was read from Messrs Whitehead and Co., Ltd., Chorlton-with-Hardy, stating that the tidings suggested had already been put to by them. The complaint re the flooding of Mr. Cockshaw's house was referred to the Sanitary Committee.

The minutes were passed.

RE LIVE AND DISTRESS

At a meeting of the Finance Committee it was resolved that the question of a District Concert should be left over until the next meeting of the Council, and that the Sanitary Committee be asked to consider how the money is to be raised before they fund the work. A letter was received from the surveyor in regard to Leasewood.

The Clerk read the letter from the County Council relating to the Distress Committee; the surveyor stated that in view of the distribution of relief required in consequence of the war, that the Council supply the names and addresses of the committees of any philanthropic institutions in the district.

The Chairman: Have we any philanthropic institutions in Rothwell?

Mr. Lister: The workhouse.

The Chairman: Is the workhouse for us philanthropic lines? I did not know it was philanthropic.

The Chairman suggested that the question be discussed at a later stage.

Mr. Lister said Rothwell Council could do a lot in finding work. He pointed out the need for sewers in the district—quite five hundred, he understood, if the Council would set about it. Building these houses it would find employment for several in the district. Then the Water Committee, he thought, were asked to see if some cases of the laundry at the bottom of the hill are public baths. Why could not it be opened as a?

He also referred to the question of people thinking gentlemen comfortably for the soldiers, and to sending girls and women to the front to look after the wounded. He thought if each people on a "county of the women," and said it was better that they should find work that talk about giving help.

Mr Armitage said he thought that before Mr. Lister began talking about dealing with distress he should know the difficulty they had to contend with.

Mr Ellis said that certain women of Rothwell were including a meeting that evening to consider what could be done in the matter, and for his part he strongly objected to Mr Lister calling them a "society of old women."

The minutes were subsequently passed.

SANITARY COMMITTEE

The minutes of the Sanitary Committee showed that a Rothwell resident had complained of the condition of a pigsty in regard to the danger of causing a child through puddle-water before it was removed. It was resolved that the Clerk write to the owner, and that the inspector write to Mr John Lister, of Oulton-le-Lane, in regard to some nuisance complained of with host to the Council's property. The Clerk was to write to Messrs Whitehead and Co., Ltd., Chorlton-with-Hardy, to request them to remove the nuisance.

A letter was read from the County Council as to the effect of a combined nursing scheme and the Council, after discussion, decided that the Health Committee was prepared to take up the work as soon as the terms were agreed to. A letter was read from the Clerk to the Leeds Rural Council, stating that a scheme

[A.S. RIGHTS RESERVED.]

THE DOUBLE CHANCE.

By J. S. FLETCHER

Author of "The Threshing Floor," "When Charles I. Was King," "Daniel Quayne," "The Pinfolds," &c.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS: Clinton Barrasenby had been accused and convicted of forgery by his uncle, Sir Robert Manchester. He had protested his innocence, but there was strong against him. Now, when evidence was discovered had nearly expired, and his term of imprisonment had nearly expired, a secret from Dr. Manchester. Secretly he sends a note to Sir Robert's daughter, Phillipa, when he loves. In this he makes known his escape, and again protests his innocence. Phillipa still believed him guilty, but now the wild tone of his letter alarms her, and she makes known its contents to a sturdy miner, Jim Britten, Clinton's foster-brother. Jim feels sure that Clinton will come straight to him, and his expectations are fulfilled the same night. Unknown to either, the meeting is witnessed by a man, who steals silently away into the darkness.

Clinton and Phillipa then meet. Clinton urged upon her the necessity of an interview between her father and himself, so that he may once again declare his innocence. Phillipa gives him a key by which he can easily gain access to Sir Robert's study. When they part, Clinton learns that the police are on his track, and he remains in hiding. On the next evening, under cover of the darkness, he finds his way to the Castle. Entering the study he thinks at first that the room is empty, but, then, to his horror, he sees that Sir Robert has fallen across his desk, dead. Sir Robert has fallen across his desk, dead. Clinton's nerve is running over the papers beneath him. Turning to cry for help, he finds himself in the grip of a stern-faced man, and realises, with sickening fear that he is suspected of murder.

Clinton, who succeeds to the title and estates, is tried for the murder of his uncle. Lionel Mosco, who owned many gaming and betting as a means to a livelihood, had seen Clinton in the woods, had followed him to the Castle, had overheard the interview between Sir Robert and Clinton, and had witnessed the interview. Mark Ashton, Sir Robert's confidential manager and personal friend, had come to the study just as Clinton had made the appalling discovery, and as Clinton had made the appalling discovery, and had at once concluded Clinton before he could be sufficiently recover to cry for help. Ashton had declared to keep Phillipa's name out of the matter, but it is useless, and a hush falls upon the court when the dead man's daughter is called.

Phillipa tells the court that she had met Clinton, and had given him the key of the study, and his much-desired interview with her father. And so the case proceeds, the evidence piling against being fatally equal, all to length Clinton is permitted to make a statement. He declares solemnly that eventful night, the evidence that eventful night, he finishes, a voice from the crowd suddenly cries: "It's the real truth! And I can prove it!"

CHAPTER IX.

In the very thick of the closely-packed mass of pitmen at the back of the court a man had risen and was endeavouring to attract the attention of the bench by violent gesticulation. He was a tall, loosely-built fellow of apparently twenty-eight or thirty years, that he chiefly remarkable for the possession of a crop of carroty hair, an enormous mouth, one of the largest noses, and a long, sharp nose. That he was making a holiday was evident from the fact that he was dressed in his best—obviously his best suit of blue serge, and had a silk handkerchief of at least six different colours knotted about his throat.

"I can prove it!" he shouted again. "I can prove it!"

The chairman bent over to the clerk. "Isn't that the man we sent to prison for sentiff?" he asked. "I don't know for assault!"

"Yes, sir, it's Dick King, Ginger King, as they call him," replied the clerk. "He went for a fortnight. His time was only up yesterday."

"I say I can prove it!" vociferated Ginger King.

The chairman looked across at the interrupter with some impatience. "What is it you can prove?" he demanded.

"I can prove that what Mestur Clinton there has stated isn't true," cried Ginger King.

The chairman looked at Stanford. Stanford jumped to his feet.

"I do not know what this witness's evidence may be worth, your Worships," he said, "but I should like to hear it. Will you step down to the witness-box, my friend?"

Ginger King obeyed this summons with alacrity. He was sworn, and, after promising to help sworn with great solemnity.

"Your name, my friend, and your occupation?" asked Stanford.

"Name's Richard King, only they call me Ginger. Miner, answered the witness; "and I'm a collier."

"Well, what do you wish to say?"

"I know what Mestur Clinton there's just told'en is true."

"How do you know it is true?"

"Cause I can prove it's true. Didn't I say so?"

"Now, then, just tell the court what you know," said Stanford, who saw that he had no earthly chance to deal with this man. "Tell it in your own way."

"Then what I were going to do at first if ye hadn't talked so much," said King, "I'll see, it's this here way. Two week ain't had a bit o' a do wi' Jack-Quinton, you'll there pup o' mine, and I belied Jack reight, and it were sometimes there just when I'd reckoned Gaol for a fortnit, 'cause I wouldn't pay t' fine. Well, I come out yesterday, and, of course, I think I'll go to Jack's and have a day or so. Now, there's a young woman in service at Jack's, Sally 'at I'm a bit after, and I bethowt misen last night 'at I'd go up and see if I could see owt on her, 'cause sometimes when I've whistled at t' kitchen window she's come out into t' garden, d'ye see? Well, I come up, and I'd just climbed over t' wall into t' shrubbery, when I see Mestur Clinton there nip across to a door. could see reight fair, there was a bit o' moon between two lighted windows. Thinks I to myself, 'Well, I didn't know 'at you were in lad!' and then I wonders what he were up to. So I nipped across and looked in at t' window. T' room inside were empty, but I could see in, 'cause t' blind doesn't fit close. And as sure as I'm standing here it all happened, as he said just now. There were t' poor old gentleman lyin' over t' writin'-table wi' t' blood on his head, and Mestur Clinton touched him on t' shoulder and looked at him a bit, and then he put down t' pen like, and there t' manager come in at a back door and collared hold on him. And then I made mesen scarce, and so I didn't see owt more. But that's t' truth at I've telled yer."

Stanford looked at the witness intently. "I think your Worships will agree that this is very remarkable evidence," he said. "There are two witnesses. I could call a third to the witness which relate to two important points. King, you say the blind on the window through which you looked did not fit closely. How much space had you through which you could look?"

"A good couple of inches, sir," answered King.

"And were you standing on when you looked through the window?"

"A form, sir, a sort o' ornamental border."

Stanford turned to the police officials. "Perhaps you will look into both these matters at once?" he said. "I need not show you how important they are. When are the boats you were wearing last night, King?"

"I'm wearin' 'em now, sir."

"Very well—the police will want to see them. That's all, for."

But Rowland Parke rose—the great Mr. Miller-Stanford was not to have all his own way. And when Rowland Parke betrayed a tendency to interfere, those who knew the brilliant young gentleman knew that he had something up his sleeve.

"One moment, Wigg," he said, as Ginger was about to leave the box. "I want to ask you a question or two. What time did you leave Bickford Gaol yesterday?"

"Same time as I allus do," answered Ginger, amidst laughter.

"And what time is that, pray?"

"Eight o'clock, o' course."

"What was the first thing you did?"

"Went and had a pint, to be sure—same as on would if you'd gone without for a orinit," retorted Ginger.

"And what time did you come home?"

"Some time durin' t' forenoon," said Ginger. "I were none particular."

"You'd nothing to do and plenty of money to do it with, I suppose," said Parke, half sarcastically. "Now, where did you spend the rest of the day? You may, as well tell the truth, because I can easily find out."

"I've no objection to sayin' where I spent t' day," replied Ginger. "I were a piece at home, dressed mesen up and havin' a bit o' dinner, and then I went to t' Flyin' Horse and stopped there all t' afternoon."

"Oh, and where did you go then?"

"Nay, I went up t' street to t' Prime Lion and stopped there till I bethowt mesen I'd go up and see if I could get a word wi' t' sarvents like."

"And pray how many pints of ale had you had by that time?" asked Parke, with a glance at the bench.

"I'm sure I never kept no count," answered Ginger, unperturbed.

"A good many, I should think," said Parke. "Now, on your oath, were you sober when you went to the Castle?"

"Aye, as sober as what you are just now!"

"Why did you go to the Castle to tell the police what you'd seen?"

"Why, o' course, 'cause Mestur Parke. It made me feel reight bad. I didn't know what to do. So I considered to sleep over it, and come to them this mornin' and see what were said."

"Now, I don't want to appear too inquisitive," said Parke, "but isn't it a fact that you have been convicted several times at this Court for assault, and for being drunk and disorderly conduct?"

"Nay, I know I'm handy wi' mi fists," admitted King.

"And you've also been convicted at least a dozen times for poaching?"

"I'm fond of a bit of sport."

Parke motioned him to leave the box and turned to the bench. "I shall leave it to your Worships to say what amount of credence is to be placed upon the evidence of a witness of this sort," he said, "and I again claim that the prisoner is entitled to the benefit of the reasonable doubt. I am not addressing for a committal. The evidence—"

But the chairman, who had undergone a brief but animated consultation with his colleagues, interrupted the young counsel with uplifted finger.

"We have already decided upon an adjournment, Mr. Parke," he said. "We desire to make a more searching investigation into what has been stated. The evidence of the last witness, I must say, does not appear to us to be as a brawler and a poacher, I see no reason to doubt his word—will have to be thoroughly sifted, and the prisoner is remanded for eight days."

Parke, who had the sharp-eyed little man from Scotland Yard, who had listened in silence to all that had gone on since his arrival, at his side, looked upon as queer a lot of people as ever he had encountered in the whole of his career. Stanford, standing at the extreme left of the magistrates from the bench and the dis- appearance of the prisoner and his escort, the court, which had been seized upon by the reporters, broke out all over those parts of the court which had been seized upon by the public. Shouts and cries about everywhere; groups began to argue; here and there discussions grew hot and fierce, and soon there was a shindy. It took all the efforts of the local police to get the noisy mob out of the court, and the waiting-out process was going on, Inspector Cortelyon went across the rapidly-thinning space in the body of the court and approached Phillipa, who held out her hand to him.

"What do you do, Inspector Cortelyon?" she said. "I recognised you as soon as you came in."

"I am deeply sorry to meet you on such a sad occasion, Miss Mannersley," said the inspector, "and I must apologise for my very polite bow. "The only comfort I can offer you is that after all the evidence is sifted, the truth will be able to establish your cousin's innocence."

"I am indeed, and very grateful I shall be if that can be done, inspector!" exclaimed Phillipa, "and I do, of course, believe in my cousin. But anyone could suspect my unfortunate cousin of such a dreadful crime. I think I heard you saying to Mr. Kilgworth that anyone who really knew Clinton would recognise that it is quite impossible that he could be a party to so far forgotten himself as to—to have done that. Oh, it is inconceivable—inconceivable!"

The shrewd eyes glanced at Quinton's hard, set face, and then at Phillipa's pale, agitated countenance, something of the manager's secret.

"Well," he said, turning again to Phillipa, "I should keep my mind open, if I were you. I always trust a good deal to first impressions, and my own impression is that the two will have to be heard—your cousin Sir Clinton and the foxy-haired gentleman—were telling an absolute truth. At any rate, I propose to ourselves—I take it that this gentleman is a friend of the Baronet's—to look into the matter, and further about Sir Clinton in the matter, except by working in a way which will clear him."

Phillipa's eyes filled with tears. She felt as if she could have thrown her arms round the neck of this man with the wrinkled face.

"Oh, thank you, thank you a thousand times, Inspector Cortelyon!" she cried. "That gives me so much courage. And you are so clever that I feel sure you will clear things up."

"What line do you propose to follow, Inspector Cortelyon?" asked Parke.

"I propose to look for the real culprit," replied the inspector, rising. "I shall go over to Bickford this afternoon, and I shall commence my inquiries there. I propose to look for the real culprit," replied the inspector, rising. "I shall go over to Bickford this afternoon, and I shall commence my inquiries there. I shall look for the man who was waiting for her, she prepared to leave the now nearly empty court. Quinton approached her. "Miss Mannersley," he said, whose mind was of an extraordinary alertness, and could do a good deal of non-ordinary business character. Across the blotting-pad in the centre of the desk there was a pen-wiper, which Sir Robert had been writing at the moment.

Turning away from the window, Inspector Cortelyon began to examine the room, not in any exhaustive fashion, but by strolling here and there, as though he were idly interested. He briefly panelled in black oak, and contained so many articles of furniture that a few pieces—a writing-table, stands, chests, and other impediments of like nature, that would not be missed if removed to a show at all. Low bookcases of black oak were arranged against the panelling here and there in the panels hung etchings and old steel plates. And, with his hands in his pockets and his head bent forward, Inspector Cortelyon began to study the pictures, Inspector Cortelyon began to study the pictures, in reality keeping a sharp ear on the walls. And in one corner he suddenly paused, seeing that a panel was not flush with the others, narrow, had been cut through the panelling. Here was a door on either side of the wall of the room—the same wall in which stood the door that opened on the garden.

"This," said Inspector Cortelyon to himself, "this must be a cupboard," and he tried to open the door by pulling at the beading of the panels. The door, however, remained fixed. He beat upon it with his hand. It sounded very hollow within—much more hollow than a cupboard would have done. And a sudden idea occurring to him, he unlocked the garden door, and, stepping on to the path, glanced along the side of the house.

Built out from the line of the study wall, and projecting in a semi-circle until it terminated in the wall of another wing of the house, was a building of two storeys in height, which doubtless added to the architectural effect, but did not, so far as Inspector Cortelyon could see, possess any utilitarian feature. He made out through casements, by pacing, of how far it was from the garden door to the study, and, by pacing, returning to the study, he paced the distance to the door in the panelling.

Also just as I thought," he said. "That door leads into the building at the angle I'll lay a pound to a penny to a farthing."

Letting himself out into the corridor, he went in search of Dauncey, and, finding him, once led him to the study. He pointed out the door in the panelling.

"Look here, Mr. Dauncey," he said. "What's that? A cupboard?"

The old man shook his head. "No, sir, no," he said. "Used to be, now, to think of it, you seeing that, inspector! You must have sharp eyes. No, sir—it was a fad of my poor dear master's, was that, and one of which he soon tired."

"And but what is it?" asked the inspector.

"It's a stairway, sir, to the great gallery he had built on to the house. He was a very romantic man, sir, was the late Sir Robert, and a good many years ago he made some alterations in the house, and this was one of them. You'll have noticed, inspector, that in this house there's a which runs right round the house on the first floor, and which gives on to the great gallery. Well, sir, it's the same upstairs there. That's where all which does the same thing. That's where all the best and finest pictures are kept. You, sir, by the garden door, opens out into that gallery, and when he was making the alterations I spoke of he had this stairway put in. It's narrow—these walls are six feet thick, inspector—one to the study and one to the library, and that's why I never knew of it myself. You might be could come straight down for them from the gallery, and save the trouble of having to go all round by the great staircase. But, as a matter of fact, he scarcely ever used it, for I think that while every long when he fell down one and put his ankle out, and he declared he'd never, very badly, by coming down the other, and after that he said they were too steep and too narrow, and that he'd have no more of it. Having them built up, and, to tell you the truth, sir, I don't think he ever knew they were."

"All the same, they're both there," said Inspector Cortelyon.

"Yes, sir, both there, inspector," answered the butler. "Would you like to look into this one now, sir?"

"It's locked," said the detective. "I've tried it."

"No, it's not locked, sir," said Dauncey. "There isn't a lock; it's a spring. See—this is it. Just a touch on the timber."

He pressed a projecting portion of the panelling, and the door flew open.

Inspector Cortelyon saw a very narrow stairway of dark wood, going steeply up in the dark.

"Like to go up it, sir?" asked Dauncey. "If so, I'll go up first and open the top door. Mind your head, sir—it's very low and dark."

"Not just now, thank'ee," said Inspector Cortelyon. "Some other time. Is the similar stair in the library, will you?"

"With pleasure, inspector," replied the butler. "But you don't mind, sir, we'll go round by the corridor. I—the fact is, I can't bear to look at my poor master's desk, sir. It gives me the creeps."

"Ah, I don't wonder," said the detective "I'll go round with you."

Dauncey led the way round to the library, and pointed out the second companion stairway. Then, at Inspector Cortelyon's request, he took him up the great staircase in the inner hall, and showed him the stairway doors in the gallery.

"Both all open in the same way," remarked the butler, demonstrating the secret of the panel in each case. "Like to go down them, sir, now?"

"No," answered the inspector. "Shut them—that's right. Now, have you got such a thing as a particularly strong lamp in the house—a very strong one?"

Dauncey said he did not think of anything at first, but suddenly remembered having heard that Mr. Kilgworth, taking in the new electric hall recently of a very powerful bicycle lamp which he had just bought. And he took Inspector Cortelyon to the room, and went for Fisher and the lamp, and had its capabilities demonstrated to him.

"And now don't let anybody disturb me on any account," said the detective, possessing himself of the lamp. "And don't allow those stairway doors to be opened, Mr. Dauncey, towards which I must request those to be carefully."

Then he went back to the study, and locked himself in again, and, coming through to the library by the door, took the chair of that apartment And then, with the aid of the powerful lamp, he began a examination of the staircases set in the walls—and he began with that in the library first.

It seemed to him that there was nothing to be found. Inspector Cortelyon's thoroughness and perseverance were seemed as wearisome as it was amazing. Hour after hour went by, and found him going over every inch of the doors and the walls of the staircases. The walls were of smooth, highly-polished wood; the doors were panelled. He paid the most scrupulous attention to the projections in the panelling which contained the secret springs, and, by the aid of a penknife, peering at them and about them through a pair of special glasses, drew out a thick, folding rule from his pocket with as much anxiety as if he expected them to speak. And it was already growing dusk when he came at last shut off the lamp in the quiet, stuffy, put his glasses in his pocket, and, with a decisive snap, and knew that his labour had been successful.

"I've got him!" he said to himself, "I've got him, sure enough! And I'll hang him, as sure as my name's John Cortelyon!"

(To be continued.)

INDIA'S EXPORTS OF HUMAN HAIR.

Many thousand pounds' weight of human hair is exported from India every year, the hair of the native women being superior to Chinese hair, and a ready classification of the different kinds required. The best customers are firms in England and Germany, which deal with the Indian hair trade. A large part most of the native hair is said to be obtained by dealers, chiefly among the poorer classes, in the months of January and February, when Hindu women, particularly widows, get their heads shaved as a religious duty. Other cities on the River Ganges, which is sacred according to their religion, and there have their heads shaved. Others sell their husbands' hair through a desire to make sacrifice to their deities, and others cut their hair short as a vow that it will grow into the stream. There it is allowed throwing it into the stream. There it is allowed and is then invariably picked up by persons who are in the habit of collecting it, and who sell it for whatever it will bring. It may be mentioned that the Indian women are chiefly noted for their religion to keep their hair closely clipped, this applying even to young girls who have not reached the age of puberty, at the death of their intended husbands.

LADIES
BLANCHARD'S PILLS,
are unrivalled for all Irregularities, &c., they speedily produce regular periods, and may be safely taken during pregnancy. They expel Worms, Prevent Fainting Fits, Fill Colds, Hinder Ague, &c. "BLANCHARD'S are the Best of all Pills for Women." Sold in boxes, 1/1½, by Sools' Branches, Taylor's Drug Co. Ltd., Chemists, 1/1½, Cheshire, R. DALTON LANE, Limited, Grove Hampton and Wholesale Branches, Hatton Chem. Ltd. Stamp

DISTRICT BREVITIES.

Wetherby folks are thinking about opening a little range.

Preparing! A St. John Ambulance class has been organized at Roundhay.

Major Coverley has offered the use of Oulton Hall as a convalescent home for soldiers.

In Cottingates and district women are busily engaged making garments for the soldiers.

Potatoes from Selby and district are being sent to the towns in large quantities. Prices are normal.

Another Wetherby Golf Club has abandoned the open meeting fixed for September 4th and 5th.

Helping them on! When troops passed through Tadcaster they were regaled with bread, cheese, and beer.

Up to the present the collieries in the district have been working fairly well, although there have been "play days."

Flowing in! Lord Harewood has given £500 to the West Riding War Fund, and Major Dent, of Ribston Hall, Wetherby, has contributed £100.

No politics now. Arrangements were made for the holding of a Primrose League gathering at Ivy Feathelson, Tadcaster, but it has been abandoned.

Lieut. Beaghey, R.N., well-known in Barnston Ash as the secretary for the Primrose League, has gone to the war aboard one of the warships.

Magistrates have started as recruiting officers. "Why don't you enlist," asked the Chairman at Eastern Aviary Petty Sessions at York, of an Askham Richard grocer.

To work! Wetherby Primrose Leaguers have voted £5 for the purchase of material, and the women are to start making garments for sick and wounded soldiers.

Although Barwick is one of the largest parishes in the district, a penny rate raises only about £35—a reminder that since Crossgates withdrew from the partnership.

The church militant! It may or may not be represented in the army, but a curate up North is subjected by superior people is simply ignorance.—The "Saturday Review." Quite true!

Tadcaster cricketers got a surprise on Saturday at Milford. The Halton Wee, come, saw, and conquered. Will they manage to beat the "Crofters"? They are thinking the matter over.

"He'll be home for French neck," panted Hennessy, as he fell back beaten.

At the "Balm" there were only two in it, Pierre and Lovat Young, and it was by a miracle only that Pierre kept his seat as The Dove swung round the "e. But he did not remain long just after the start with the kitchen scenery, he was thrown to one side and only kept himself up by his grip on the horn of the saddle. Long since, just after he had been began, he had stopped the reins and grasp of the high horn of the saddle with both hands.

"Well done, Captain," yelled Young, as he swung round after Pierre.

Then The Dove straightened himself out for home, and Pierre had to use all his strength and skill to keep his seat.

Half a mile from barracks lived a half-breed family, and as they were two rather good-looking girls there, it may have been that Young had ridden to The Dove before; at all events, Pierre guessed as much when the door was broad-neck speed.

Just in front of the door was a little garden, and a little gate, and at the little gate The Dove swung round, and Pierre, who was prepared for the turn, kept the door full into the little log "shack."

To say that the poor half-breeds were astonished would be to say very mildly indeed, not only astonished, but fairly frightened, too, for he thought the police must want him very badly indeed to have two officers in pursuit, and through the door in that way. Looking through the window he could see some of the others following, and he took to his heels out of the back door, crying:

"By gosa! they must want to hang me, sure!"

The whole family followed suit, and left Pierre in possession.

Lovat Young had caught The Dove and held him while Pierre, trembling all over, but ashamed to show it, had scrambled into the saddle as elegantly as a cat going up a tree.

But The Dove's blood was up, and he took the bit between his teeth again as soon as he felt the wobbling legs on either side of him.

It may have been that Lovat Young very often rode The Dove, and knew how to humour him, and such a thing has not occurred for twenty years.

Mrs York, wife of Captain York, J.P., of Tadcaster, is recovering from typhoid, a convalescent home at Hutton Hall, Long Marston. This was the home of Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught for several months immediately after their marriage.

Lovat Young got his horse back and when he rushed to close with Pierre, Pierre velvety one that night there was just a suspicion of coldness in his eye and a little huskiness in his voice as he said:

"Good old Dove. I guess they'll leave you with us now."

It may have been the dust from the hay that had got into him his throat, though, for westerners are much given to emotion.

The Dove had his busy head across is master's shoulder, and gave a little whinny of delighted recognition as he may have been whimpering for supper.

Spofforth was to have had a flower show this month, but it has been abandoned owing to the war.

No racing! The buildings on the Wetherby steeplechase course have been offered for hospital purposes.

No good news for Kippax bairns. The Council have not managed to secure a recreation ground for them yet.

In Tadcaster a number of supernumerated police are wielding the truncheon again. They have been called from their retirement to duty.

In Wetherby school district the attendance returns showed an average of 86.54 for July, against 88.16 in the previous month, and 86.01 in July of last year.

The better the day! On Sunday the military authorities had by recruiting exposition in Pottifoot, Spofforth, Wetherby, Sicklinghall, Kirkby Overblow, and other places.

Templenewsam Allotments' Association is showing the way. The members are to have a show, and the produce should be worth seeing. Will Micklefield allotment holders copy?

Let local golfers beware! A Roundhay man played barehanded during the great heat about a month ago, and his hands, it is said, were affected. He has gone the way of all flesh.

Will other companies follow suit? The owners of the new colliery at Woodlesford have a number of employees serving with the colours, and they are to make allowances to the wives. It will cost them £100 a week.

Will there be any hunting in the district this winter? It is suggested that so many horses have been taken away that the tally-ho men and women will have to indulge in cycling exercises. Clearly a mad idea imported from Germany.

Although she admitted that she did not see the defendant do it, a woman at Tadcaster summoned a neighbour for throwing water over her. It was a costly bucket of water to both sides, who, of course, had their own costs to meet.

"If the fine weather continues," writes Major Dent, of Ribston Hall, Wetherby, "harvest will make rapid progress, and I appeal to farmers to give their troops ample 'field room.' The temptation to hurry is great, but it is essential that our harvest be got in in the best condition, and a little patience will prevent many hot stacks and much damaged grain."

"PRIVATE FLANIGAN."

The hero of "The Finding of" Private Flanigan" in the new novel of Mrs. Flora Annie Steel's volume entitled "The Mercy of the Lord" (Heinemann)—was the chief asset of his regiment, the 88th, before the Gharkas, Sikhs, and "Tommies" indulged in a football match among the mountains:

"They were the biggest, strongest lot of Sikhs I ever saw, but perhaps because they had such long shins, they simply knocked spots off the rest of us. Even the Ghurkas (the Ghurkas). It was almost pitiable to see them; the more so because they were such plucky little beggars. In fact, I was good at anything and everything he chose to take in hand thoroughly; but that was not much. But I was one of the best man-care fellow did not exist. He was, however, a personal favourite, and I noticed that even the regimentally correct captain dealt leniently with his not infrequent lapses from good manners. Flanigan was a big, fine-looking fellow, at a sing-song held the night of the football match. He literally brought down the house with his clog accompaniment to a patter song in which he parodied the feelings of victor and vanquished."

"YANKEE DOODLE."

Theories concerning the origin of the air of "Yankee Doodle" have been almost as numerous as those touching the birthplace of Homer.

By some the tuneful said to have appeared in America about the year 1755, when the Bunker Hill was fought. In that battle it appears, the Americans learnt it of the British, who had used it as a marching air by the English obtained it.

One of the most interesting and it is thought the latest speculation in this regard comes from Germany. It is contended that the tune originally pertained to a country dance of the district of the former provinces of Schleswig and Holstein, and that the air was also played as a military march by bands of Hessian troops during the war of the American Revolution.

In studying the dances of the "Schwalm" the German antiquarian struck by the similarity in form and rhythm to "Yankee Doodle." It is assumed that, as many of the Hessians who served in America, were recruited in this district, they carried "Yankee Doodle" with them.

Years ago an American was visiting the city of San Sebastian, the seaport capital of Guipuzcoa. He made America, for that is one Guehille, the Vice-Consul of the United States. Señor Guehille had been in Boston, where he was naturally much at home, and called "Yankee Doodle." He had known the tune from infancy as the national air of the Bostons.

HUNSLET BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

THE RELIEF OF DISTRESS.

The fortnightly meeting of Hunslet Board of Guardians was held at the offices at Hunslet, on Wednesday afternoon—Mr. J. Gosling (vice chairman), presiding. The other members present were Mrs Dickinson, Dr Groves, Rev. T. Cody, Messrs T. G. Conyers, W. Lane, Appleyard, J. Butterick, E. B. Pickersgill, J. W. Verity, Pulford, Peace, P. S. Marsden, D. W. Hargreaves, Hemingway, and Bennett, with the Assistant Clerk (Mr. Ward).

At the meeting of the Finance Committee it was reported that accounts amounting to £3,530 had been passed.

CASES OF DISTRESS.

A discussion ensued in regard to the relieving of cases of distress owing to the war, and the Chairman said that the Local Government Board had issued an order that the Prince of Wales' Relief Fund was not to be distributed until every other means had been exhausted. He took it that implied that wherever there was a relief fund it must be exhausted before there could be any call on the National Fund. So far as the Guardians were concerned, he did not see that they could do anything unless people made application for relief. It was not for them to seek cases, but it was for the people requiring relief to come to them.

Mr Conyers stated that up to now the contractors had fulfilled their duties and there had been no lack of supplies.

HOMES COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Workhouse Committee the Master reported that a gift of periodicals had been received from Mrs Simpson, Hunslet; that the deep well pump had ceased to draw, and that it will be necessary to lift the rods and tubes to ascertain the cause. It was resolved that the best thanks of the Guardians be given to Mrs Simpson for her kindness.

The Clerk submitted quotations for repair of the lightning conductor, and it was resolved that the quotation of Mr Thomas Kidney at £1 10s. be accepted.

The Committee had under further consideration the question of painting required to be done in the institution, and inspected the parts that had been washed according to instructions given at the last meeting. It was agreed that the matter be adjourned for the present.

The minutes were approved.

CHILDREN'S HOMES COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Home's Committee a letter was received from the Local Government Board acknowledging receipt of the Guardians' application for sanction to the payment of £6 6s. to the West Riding Education Committee in respect of the enrolling of Herbert Arrowsmith's scholarship agreement. The Clerk reported he had been informed by the Leeds Education Committee that there would be no further payment due to them in respect of the lad's withdrawal from the Central High School.

The committee had under consideration the question of the engagement of a temporary shoemaker, Mr John Williams, industrial trainer in shoemaking, having been called upon to join his regiment on account of the outbreak of war. It was resolved that a suitable man be temporarily engaged through the Labour Exchange, at the standard rate of wages. It was resolved that the Board be recommended to grant Mr Williams leave of absence, and to take into consideration the question of payment of salary during such absence.

The minutes were approved, and it was stated a temporary shoemaker had been appointed.

SHERBURN PETTY SESSIONS.

At Sherburn Petty Sessions yesterday the magistrates present were the Rev. B. L. Hemsworth (Chairman), Mr Walter Crosland, and Mr Wm. Crosland.

Mary Bowen, married woman, of Sherburn, was charged with being drunk and disorderly on the 1st inst in Kirkgate, Sherburn. P.C. Parkinson stated that he saw defendant very drunk and she was brandishing a stick, which he took from her. Defendant pleaded not guilty. P.C. Wildblood corroborated. Fined 5s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

Samuel Deighton, labourer, of Sherburn, was charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 13th inst in Chapel Yard, Sherburn. P.C. Parkinson proved the case, and defendant was fined 5s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. costs.

WEDDING AT SOUTH MILFORD.

On Saturday a pretty wedding took place at St Mary's Church, South Milford, the contracting parties being Miss Elsie Harper, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs John Harper, of High Street, South Milford, and Mr A. H. Sewerby, third son of the late Mr J. Frederick Sewerby, of Bridgnorth, Shropshire.

The bride was attired in a grey whipcord dress trimmed with oriental silk and a black picture hat. The bridesmaid—Miss May Pawson (of Sherburn)—wore a dress of cream silk trimmed with blue, and hat to match. Mr Harry Harper, brother of the bride, was best man.

The Rev. E. J. Barry (rector) officiated, and Mr J. Harper (father) gave the bride away.

After the wedding a reception was held at the bride's father's house, where the wedding breakfast was served.

HALTON BOWLERS DEATED AT TADCASTER

On Saturday afternoon a League bowling match was played between Tadcaster and Halton on Tadcaster, and the homesters won by 195 to 129. Tadcaster lost at Halton earlier in the season by 47 points, but winning on Saturday by 66 they secured the two points on the two matches. Details of Saturday's match (Tadcaster names first):—C. Moverley 21 v. Booth, E. Walker 21 v. G. Nicol 15; J. H. Scholefield 14 v. H. Thomas 21; E. Doyle 15 v. G. Cowell 21, T. Waddington 21 v. T. Charlson 9; A. W. Westerman 21 v. W. Green 9; J. H. Hull 21 v. A. Caine 11; I. S. Collins 21 v. J. Gorse 9; D. Hill 21 v. W. Glenn 8; C. Walker 21 v. R. Morris 12.

The takings at the Wistow Church bazaar in aid of the funds for the repair of the tower amounted to £80.

PLAYING WITH MATCHES.—In a stack fire which occurred at Wistow eight or nine tons of new hay was destroyed, there being no water at hand to extinguish the flames. A new stack had been partly built when it was seen to be on fire. The stack, it is stated, took fire through a small boy playing near it with matches.

Concerning Barwick-in-Elmet Charities.

SCHOOL LAND—NATIONAL SCHOOL.

Considerable interest is being evinced in the Barwick-in-Elmet Charities at present, and the following extracts are from the Charity Commissioners report in 1826 on some of the charities:—

THE SCHOOL LAND

It was stated by Canon Hope that the encroachment on the waste, mentioned in the report of 1826, was appropriated to the use of the schoolmaster conditionally on his teaching the children of the township free, but on the inclosure only a portion of this encroachment was awarded to and vested in the rector, churchwardens, and the lord of the manor, for the use of the schoolmaster, but subject to no trusts as to the education of free scholars.

The old school was pulled down in 1860, when the Church School was erected, and the site, which was an encroachment on the churchyard, and belonged together with the old school to the rector and churchwardens, was thrown into the churchyard. Before this it had occurred to the trustees that although they had power to appoint a schoolmaster it was very doubtful whether they could dismiss him, and in order to obviate any difficulty the trustees, on the 23rd February, 1854, appointed the rector schoolmaster. It may be pointed out that the power of appointing the schoolmaster was originally vested, as appears from an entry in the parish register in 1736, in the rector alone, and that the trustees of the allotment congrated the power to themselves, but as the rector was one of them and consented to the appointments, there is no question about their validity. Since 1854 the rector has exercised his office by deputy, having appointed three teachers before the erection of the present school, and all since then.

The endowment consists of 7a. or. 20p. of arable land, let to William Wetherall, at the yearly rent of £7. The access is bad, being through copehold land in the occupation of Mr Wetherall. A tithe rent charge of 6s. 8d., payable to the rector, is not claimed.

The rent is paid to the rector, the sole owner by virtue of his office, and is paid by him into the general account of the church school. In consideration of this endowment from 12 to 16 children were taught free until the passing of the Elementary Education Act, 1891.

THE NATIONAL SCHOOL

By deed dated 29th January, 1861, the Rev. Charles Augustus Hope, with the consent of Sir George Grey, Bart., Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and patron of the living granted to himself and four others, under the School Sites Acts, 1,600 square yards of glebe, in Barwick, to the use of the minister, and churchwardens of Barwick and their successors, for a school in union with the National Society; and it was provided that the master or mistress should be a member of the Church of England, and that the right to appoint and dismiss the master or mistress should be vested in a committee consisting of the principal officiating minister of the parish, his licensed curate or curates, the churchwardens who were churchmen, and five laymen.

TRUE MARRIAGE.

This is Mr. Harding Hall's conclusion on the subject of matrimony, as described in his book "Love's Legend" (Constable):

"Marriage is not a ceremony made by Church or State; it lies in no empty words; it is no tie, no matrimonial chain. It is a living, growing, changing state wherein two opposites are blended into one. There are two loves in marriage. The first is of the flesh. . . . It comes to us unbidden, it is the cry of fire to steel. It is the basis on which alone the other love can grow. . . . The second love is of the spirit, the same is understanding. Out of the first conflict of two opposites there grows a gradual respect and knowledge. Each learns that the other is complementary, and therefore necessary. . . . Neither seeks to convince the other, to impose his views upon the other's sight. . . . Each has a point of view quite different from the other, and each is true. . . . Were either to renounce his sex then were all balance gone. Marriage is a perpetual struggle to keep the balance true."

BARKSTON ASH AMATEUR BOWLING ASSOCIATION.

League Table, including Saturday, Aug. 15th.

	P.	W.	L.	F.	A.	Pts.
Crossgates	11	7	4	1809	1781	2
Crossgates Recreation	12	5	7	1778	2177	4
Garforth	11	6	5	1886	1760	10
Garforth W.M.	12	8	4	2272	1992	10
Garforth Conservatives	10	6	4	1704	1729	4
Halton	10	6	4	1681	1417	2
Halton Travellers	12	1	11	1668	2193	—
Tadcaster	12	6	6	2147	1879	8

WALTER GREEN, Hon. Sec.

HOW TO CLEAN ALUMINIUM.

Soda should never be used for cleaning aluminium. Lemon pulp and cold pieces of rind are the best things to use. Drop the pulp and rind into the vessel to be cleaned, fill it with water and boil for a few minutes; then rub with a dry, soft cloth and you will be delighted with the result.

Mr R. J. Foster has given £100 and Mrs Frank Riley Smith £50 to the West Riding War Fund.

At Aberford School the number in average attendance last month was 181, and the percentage 90.05 against 90.82 for the previous July.

On Monday the District Council accepted the tender of Mr Walker to carry out the work connected with a sewer extension at Aberford.

At South Milford School last month there was an average attendance of 195, and the percentage was 94.66 against 92.23 for the previous July.

Special services for the Territorials at Selby were on Sunday held at the Abbey, on the Bowling Green, and at the various places of worship in the town.

Mr G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., has given £50 and Mrs R. Lane Fox £5 to the West Riding War Fund, while the Brantham Park household has given £5 5s.

At meetings of Tadcaster and Riccall District Councils on Monday Dr Radcliffe, of South Milford, was appointed medical officer of health while Dr Hill, who is with the Army Medical Corps, is on active service.

Mr F. J. Lund, J.P., of Becca Hall, Aberford, has placed his late Harrogate residence, "Beaufield," at the disposal of the Mayor of Harrogate to be used as a convalescent home, hospital, or as may be thought fit, in connection with the war.

GARFORTH [illegible] EDUCATION COMMITTEE.

BARWICK ABERFORD, AND GARFORTH AFFAIRS

The monthly meeting of Garforth District Education Committee was held at the offices at Garforth on Wednesday evening—Mr. John Woodhouth (Chairman) presiding. The other members present were Messrs J. W. Dobson (vice-chairman), H. Gascoigne, H. Chappell, and T. S. Slater (Garforth), and the Rev. B. W. Shepherd-Walwyn (Aberford), with the Clerk (Mr H. W. Powell).

It was reported that the percentage of attendance for the district—nine schools—was 89.91 for last month against 88.97 for July, 1913.

Tenders for fuel were received, and the contracts for the supply of coal to the Garforth, Aberford, and Barwick Schools was secured by Garforth Colliery Co., and for the supply of coke by Garforth Gas Co.

It was reported that Mr Ashworth, assistant at Barwick School, had resigned, and as there was a fall in the number of children attending the school it was decided not to appoint a successor.

The Clerk reported that Miss Abbott, a teacher at Garforth Council Infants' School, had resigned, and the Authority was advertising for an uncertificated teacher to take her place. He suggested that Garforth School Committee should be empowered to make the appointment.

As all the members present, with one exception, were from Garforth, Mr Chappell remarked: It is for Mr Walwyn to say. (Laughter).

The Rev. B. W. Shepherd-Walwyn: I have no objection. (Laughter).

It was reported that Miss King, certificated assistant at Garforth Parochial School, had resigned, having obtained an appointment as headmistress of Rathwell National School, Settle.

A letter was read from the West Riding Authority stating that they intended putting the Act relating to the feeding of school children into operation should necessity arise in any district, and they asked to be at once informed when any children in the district were suffering.

The Chairman: I hope it will not be necessary to do it; in fact, I don't think it will be necessary; but if it is we shall have to carry it out.

The Clerk said that it applied to Barwick and Aberford as well as Garforth.

The Chairman: Well, I don't think it will be necessary in Garforth.

Mr Gascoigne: I don't think it is necessary, but we'll have to wait and see.

The Chairman said that it would be very bad if it came to that in Garforth.

The Clerk said that if there was need at any time they should put the Act into operation because other districts did it.

The Chairman said they could not imagine acute distress all at once. If things came to the worst it would be two or three months before they could act.

The Vicar of Aberford brought forward the question of the nursing scheme, and said he supposed that if they got their scheme organised there was nothing to prevent their getting the support mentioned from the County Council.

The Clerk said the Council had advertised for school nurses, but he thought that they would not be prepared to consider a scheme put forward by any district.

WHEN YOU WRITE A LETTER—

Don't use scented paper; it is in the worst of taste.

Don't forget to write your address and the date, even if you are not writing on business.

Don't write it in pencil; it is considered rude, and it is an untidy, lazy habit at best.

Avoid postscripts if you can; some girls put all the important part of their letter as an afterthought.

Don't cross your writing; paper is cheap and it is trying to have to decipher crossed writing.

Plain paper, white, blue, or grey, of a good quality is preferable, and indicates a refined and excellent taste.

Use envelopes that will take your paper easily when twice folded.

THEFT OF FEEDING CAKE.—At the Petty Sessions Thomas George Scott, a grocer employed by Mr George Gartree, Wetherby, was fined 40s. and costs for stealing a cow-cwt. bag of feeding cake which he had taken for the purpose of feeding his pigs.

DANGEROUS MOTORING.—Mr Wetherby, Ernest Edward Burton, agent, Leeds, was charged with driving a motor-car at a speed dangerous to the public at Wetherby. Mr Holden, solicitor, Harrogate, explained that the defendant was now with his regiment. The defendant was ordered to pay the costs of the case.

ATTENDANCE.—The percentage of attendance at Wetherby Church School last month was 90.57, and Wetherby Council 86.53. Other figures were:—Sicklinghall 91.49, Bardsey Church 93.54, Wighill 94.17, Bickerton 87.58, Spofforth 86.32, Harewood 88.55, Kirk Deighton 88.37, Little Ribston 88.23, Toothwith Woodgrass 87.87, and Long Marston 74.80.

A SOLDIER'S MISHAP AT WETHERBY.—About 80 horses commandeered for the Army were despatched from Wetherby on Saturday. In the principal street of the town a soldier named Coddington was thrown from his horse owing to one of the two he was leading bolshing loose. He was kicked or trampled on by another horse and had to be taken by motor-car to York Military Hospital. He was suffering from concussion.

RELIEF FUND.—A very largely attended and influential meeting in support of the West Riding War Relief Fund, organised by the Earl of Harewood (Lord Lieutenant) was held in the Drill Hall at Wetherby. The Chairman of Harewood presided. A resolution, proposed by Lady Mountgarret, and seconded by the Rev. M. G. Lonsdale, vicar of Harewood, was unanimously adopted, to the effect that support would be given to the West Riding Fund. An Executive Committee was also appointed, and a representative appointed for each village in the area. A considerable amount of money was promised in the room, and Mr R. J. Foster, J.P., of Stockeld Park, has since promised £1,000.

CRICKET.—That Church Fenton is a much improved team is evident by the way in which they disposed of Glasshoughton on Saturday. The result, which may be said to be a surprise to both teams, was brought about in the first place by the excellent bowling of W. Claughton, who had six wickets for 8, and W. Dixon, who had three for 12, and in the second innings which succeeded. Brighter prospects are certainly in store for the Fenton Club. The scores:—Glasshoughton—J. Speed 1, T. Hughes 0, H. Frost 0, H. Hutchinson 5, H. Hempsall 1, E. Griffiths 5, W. Belsdon 0, A. Griffiths 2, J. Murray 6, G. Travis (not out) 0, J. Lucas 0, extras 8; total 28. Church Fenton—J. A. Thompson 11, A. Claughton 17, W. Dixon 7, E. Britton 8, H. Keates (not out) 17, extras, 3; total (for 5 wkts.), 63.

USES OF EUCALYPTUS.

Eucalyptus oil is largely used as a disinfectant and deodorant. Two ounces of oil of eucalyptus placed in a porous earthenware vessel will keep the air of any chamber in which the vessel is suspended perfectly free from smell for several months. For a similar purpose it may be mixed with eight times its weight of sawdust and used to sprinkle on floors.

As an inhalation, oil of eucalyptus may be mixed with smelling salts or a teaspoonful may be stirred into hot water in a jug or bronchitis kettle. This is useful both for checking a cold or influenza attack or for relieving headache.

For malaria the oil is sometimes given, though its use is doubtful in place of quinine in five-drop doses on sugar. Both the oil and the powdered leaf are used combined in olive oil or petrol for an antiseptic lubricant to catheters and for an application to the nose and throat.

GREENGAGE TRIFLE.—Over a tablespoonful of seed tapioca pour a teacupful of cold water; stir it well, then drain the water into a cup and add a corresponding quantity of fresh water. Repeat two or three times, then leave it covered for three or four hours. Take one pound of fairly ripe greengages and prick the skins well. Heat in a large enamelled saucepan two teacupfuls of water and two heaped tablespoonfuls of sugar. Put in the plums, and as they soften remove them carefully to a deep glass dish. When all are done, stir and simmer the soaked tapioca in the liquid until clear, and when slightly cooled pour it over the fruit. Moisten two level tablespoonfuls of semolina with milk. Boil the remainder of a pint, and pour it over the semolina. Replace it in the pan, add sugar to taste, a little salt, and stir and boil till it thickens. When cold, stir in a little stiffly-whipped cream; then pile the semolina lightly in the dish. For an ordinary cold sweet it may be served in a pudish, adding a lump of butter to the semolina before pouring it while hot over the fruit and tapioca. Lemon-juice will improve the flavour of the plums, and a little vanilla might be added to the semolina.—L. GREY in Farmer and Stockbreeder.

EXCITING COLLIERY STORY!

DO NOT MISS THE OPENING

CHAPTERS OF

"The Double Chance"

By J. S. FLETCHER, the well known Novelist,

IN THE

"Rothwell Courier and Times"

START NOW. START NOW.

IF PEOPLE ONLY KNEW THE VALUE OF

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE

Read what Mr S. Leigh, Hessle Road, Hull, says:—"I have had the diarrhœa very acutely, and nothing would do me any good. I saw an advertisement of TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE, and decided to try it, and after only one dose of 20 drops I had immediate relief. If people only knew how soon they could be cured I am sure they would not hesitate to pay £1 a drop.

Try what you will there is no finer cure for Diarrhœa, Dysentery, or Bowel Complaint than the genuine old remedy,

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

It has cured thousands, and will cure you. Have Teasdale's Chlorodyne in the house in case of sudden attacks. Trial Bottle only 7½d., Double size 13½d., and Family Bottles 2s. 6d.

Can be had of PURDY, Cromgatine; RHENARD, Halton, and other Chemists; GODDALL, Backhouse & Co., and TAYLOR'S Drug Stores, or ASK FOR TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE.

TEASDALE'S CHLORODYNE (repeated)

Telephone No. 1129.

RHODES & SONS,

COMMERCIAL AND . .

GENERAL PRINTERS,

"Rothwell Courier and Times" Office,

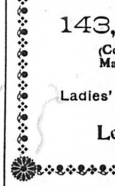
2, AIRE STREET.

LEEDS.

BEST & BOOTH

Tailors & Costumiers,

119, KIRKGATE,



— AND —

143, BRIGGATE

(Corner of Market Street), LEEDS.

Ladies' Department—143, BRIGGATE.

Look Out for B. & B.

THE CHALLENGE!

Never Beaten.

BRAITHWAITE'S

"The Firm with a Reputation."

ARE NOW MAKING A

SPECIAL SHOW OF NEW GOODS

In all the LATEST STYLES, for

SPRING and SUMMER WEAR.

LADIES' & GENT.'S BOOTS & SHOES in Immense Variety at Prices to Suit all Purses.

5,000 Pairs of Children's Boots & Shoes. Newest Designs.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are still offering a lot of Odd Pairs at Ridiculously Low Prices until Cleared

BRAITHWAITE'S, The Value for Money Boot Store,

58, VICAR LANE, LEEDS.

Closed at 1 o'clock on Wednesdays.

FINAL REDUCTIONS

— AT —

SMITH & PETTY'S

Summer Sale,

44, Lowerhead Row, LEEDS

Three Doors from Briggate.

FIVE PRICES:—

3s. 5s. 7s. 10s. 15s.

FOR

COSTUMES, DRESSES, RAINCOATS, &c., &c

Best Value ever Offered.

Genuine Bargains. See Windows.

Telephones—CENTRAL 1291. CROSSGATES 6.

DOBSON & CO.,

— WHOLESALE & RETAIL —

Hay, Straw, Flour, & Horse Corn Merchants, & Contractors,

SEACROFT, AND

70, 72, and 74, Victoria Road, LEEDS.

Orders will be promptly delivered or supplied at either SEACROFT or LEEDS Address.

PIGEON CORN A SPECIALITY.

LEEDS AND HOLBECK PERMANENT BUILDING SOCIETY.

96 ALBION STREET (Corner of Guildford Street, LEEDS).

DAILY from 10 to 3, Saturdays 10 to 1 and Saturday Evenings 6.30 to 8.

3½ PER CENT. INTEREST ALLOWED ON SUBSCRIPTION & PAID UP SHARES.

3 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

WITHDRAWALS CAN BE MADE AT SHORT NOTICE.

PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION.

Telephone No. 253

Jno. EXLEY, President. WM. MAUDE, Manager & Secretary.

Printed and Published by ARTHUR KNOX RHODES, of 26, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates, for the Proprietors of the "Rothwell Courier and Times" at their offices, 2, Aire Street, Leeds, in the County of York.

"The Rothwell Courier & Times"
— IS THE —
Only Weekly Newspaper
PUBLISHED in the DISTRICT.

Rothwell Courier & Times

AND

Methley, Oulton, Woodlesford, Carlton, Robin Hood, Lofthouse, Middleton, Stourton and Hunslet Chronicle

NO. 87— [Registered at the G.P.O.] "A Newspaper." NEW SERIES SATURDAY, AUGUST 29 1914 ESTAB. 1873 PRICE—ONE PENNY

Joshua Tetley & Son (Limited),
THE BREWERY, LEEDS.
NOW READY IN BOTTLE.
East India Pale Ale, 2/- per dozen Small Bottles.
Extra Stout, 1/9 per dozen Small Bottles.
Special (Non-Deposit) Mild Ale, 3/- per dozen Large Bottles.
Delivered Free to Families within 20 Miles of Leeds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

EMPIRE PALACE, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.

TWO PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT. AT 6.50 AND AT 9.
Early Doors Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday, at 6 p.m.
MONDAY, AUGUST 31st, 1914.
LIANE D'EVE.
The "Entente Cordiale" Comedienne.
GRAHAM MOFFAT'S COMPANY in Scottish Sketch, "THE CONCEALED BED."
ZIGEUNER QUARTETTE.
LUPINO LANE. VICTOR KELLY.
MARIE PERA & FRANCIS ANNESLEY.
In a confidential story, "Between Ourselves."
FOUR ELLES.
Society Dancers.
LATEST WAR NEWS AND FILMS.
Prices, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., 4d., 3d.

HIPPODROME, LEEDS.

Performances Nightly at 6.30 and 9.
NEXT WEEK.
THE GIRL AND THE SEAL.
JIMMY BRITT.
LUVAUN & MOANA.
CLAY SMITH & CHRISTINE NEILSON.
"STREET IMPROVEMENTS."
ROBB WILTON.
WILL VAN ALLEN.
LATEST WAR NEWS AND PICTURES.
HARRY MARLOWE.
THE WHITAKERS.

Note Prices:—10s. 6d., 3s., 6d., and 4d.

Gent's 9ct. & 18ct. Bangle Rings
Large Assortment always in Stock at
J. WINTERHALDER'S,
Watchmaker, Jeweller, & Optician,
13, New York Street, LEEDS
(Opposite the Yorkshire Penny Bank, Kirkgate.
Repairs of all kinds a Specialty

DRAINS TESTED AND REPAIRED.
SANITARY WORK A SPECIALITY
Pump Repairs, Electric Bells, Glazing and Glasfitting.
James Smithies,
Registered Plumber & Contractor.
Residence:—
43, AUSTHORPE ROAD, CROSSGATES.

EDMUND BOGG,
3, Woodhouse Lane, Leeds.
is the best shop for
PICTURE FRAMING, RE-GILDING, AND ARTISTS' MATERIALS.
Large Stock of Engravings & Etchings on Sale.

Wm. HELLIWELL,
The Working Man's Friend,
212, Hunslet Rd., LEEDS
WATCH WINDOWS FOR GOOD HONEST VALUE.
Special Suits
From 30/-
NO FIT. NO PAY.

Established 1868. SPARKLING HOSPERIDE TRADE MARK
An Exhilarating & Refreshing Beverage.
Obtainable in the Best Restaurants & Saloons.
REYNOLDS & BRANSON Ltd. LEEDS.

Furniture Delivered
ON PAYMENT OF 5/-
In Town or Country. No Charge for Delivery.
T. COATES,
House Furnisher and Manufacturer,
130, 132 & 134, WELLINGTON ST
LEEDS.

N.B.—Persons entitled to Money or Property under Wills, Reversions, Life Interests, and other Securities, wishing to Sell or Borrow, apply to T. COATES.

NOTE.—Furniture supplied on first payment of 5/-.

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT JOTTINGS.

However good the intention, did not the Tadcaster District Council shake a mischief in deciding to allow their employees to go harvesting? These men have work, and if farmers require hands they should engage men who are at present out of employment. By this means, they would do getting their own work done, and they would alleviate distress. "I have tramped the whole countryside," writes one unfortunate chap, "and I have offered myself at 2s. 6d. per day, but find that, about this district, everybody is full up with skilled harvesters, working 11 hours a day at 3d. per hour, with teas and drink provided free. I would ask all young men in a similar predicament to myself not to waste time in marching round Leeds, but to go up on the Wolds, where they may have a better chance." Why suppose that roadmen should go harvesting, then?

Barkston Ash farmers are a canny lot, and to surprise them into an admission of prosperity is a feat surely accomplished. They have a rare commital way of talking about prospects, if things are going well, that exasperates the townsman, who will tell you that they seem to have an eternal grudge against Providence. However, agriculturists have so many disappointments of one kind or another that their faith is sometimes severely shaken, and they become chary of making definite statements. A Barwick farmer was congratulated the other day by a friend on his splendid crop of wheat, and he replied "It's enough enough, but it will take a lot of getting in." It would not have been in accordance with habit and custom had he not stated a disadvantage, because his friend might have thought he was doing too well.

Templemoseam allotment-holders and the parish "fathers" have composed their differences, and they are now a happy family. Bother arose over the supplying of water to one of the allotment fields, and the matter dragged on for some time, but a suggestion by the men who till the soil has solved the problem, and harmony now prevails. Templemoseam has, I believe, more allotments than any parish in Barkston Ash, and to such a high state of cultivation have they been brought that people from all parts of the district and beyond go to see them. An admirable provide a working-man with an interesting hobby, and it can be made remunerative, so the movement deserves to be encouraged in every way in the district.

Crossgates people are grateful to the Corporation for lighting the station footpath and bridge, which was a very dangerous place to pedestrians last winter. Two or three years ago the Railway Co. illuminated the dismal path by means of four lamps, but they soon cut off the gas supply when the District Council undertook the lighting, which they had no power to do, and which they never attempted to carry out. Excellent lamps have been erected by the Corporation, and they will be of the greatest service to travellers during the dark nights ahead.

Garforth is a very independent community. For years they were quite entered with the management of their affairs from Tadcaster, and they did not cease to agitate until they obtained urban powers, for they were best on having the spending of their own money. It was a laudable ambition, even if it meant an increased district rate. In the administration of relief funds in cases of distress the same spirit has been shown. Garforth would like to go on "its own," but if it cut itself adrift from the county scheme in the urban area requiring help would be at a disadvantage. The national fund is for the benefit of the nation, and it must be administered in a systematic way. It has been realised, and Garforth has decided to co-operate with the County Council.

Tadcaster consists of two civil parishes, divided by the River Wharfe, but there is only one ecclesiastical parish. Tadcaster thus occupies an unique position among the townships in the Union. It has, of course, two parish councillors, one representing the part on the east side of the water, and the other representing the portion on the west, where the great brewing concerns are situated, and the men of the East want to know from the country scheme. At the present time rated quite properly, but why their rates are people are exasperating splendidly in order to higher than those of the men over the bridge. The gate suffering and distress, and why should not only explanation forthcoming is that it is due to the same spirit be manifested among all classes a difference of rateable value. The men of the when we enjoy the blessings of peace. In a large West own the most valuable part of Tadcaster. parish it requires an income of about £100 per annum to run a nursing association successfully, and it brings all sorts and conditions of people together for work in a common cause.

A circular letter has been addressed by the County Authority to all the Education Sub-Committees in the district—Garforth, Kippax, Oulton, Sherburn, Tadcaster, Wetherby, etc.—stating that they intend putting into operation the Act for the feeding of school children should necessity arise. The last occasion when this course was adopted in the district was during the coal strike, but at Garforth, I believe, there was no need for such measures. At the present time the collieries are working about three days a week, and the families are managing to get along on their greatly reduced income, but the stoppage of the continental coal trade may yet have dire effects upon the colliery population. It will all depend upon the duration of the war. In the agricultural districts work appears to be plentiful, and there will probably be no need to give meals to the school children, but the authorities are ready to cope with all emergencies.

Tadcaster Guardians have no desire to become part owners of the Fryston Hall estate, which is to be converted into a home for mental defectives. They were invited to enter into partnership with several other Boards, but they have joined the Wharfedale combination of Unions, and they had to decline the invitation. The Unions in the Wharfedale combination are largely rural in character, and it is perhaps better that Unions of that kind should be grouped together, leaving Unions in urban areas to make their own arrangements. The intention of the Wharfedale combination, if the scheme can be carried out, is to utilize existing premises, so that a costly scheme will be avoided, and it has been suggested that the establishment at Settle should be utilised for the purpose, and the people at present residing there boarded out in other Unions. This is a common-sense plan, but sentiment is sometimes allowed to interfere in such schemes, and it is possible that the ratepayers of Settle might offer objections to the removal of their poor to other districts.

The championship of Barkston Ash Cricket Competition will be decided at Crossgates on Saturday, and the supporters of Hebron Wes. and Scarcroft will turn out in hundreds in anticipation of a keen game. Hebron Wes. are a comparatively new combination—this is their second season, I believe, in the Senior League—but a team who can defeat Tadcaster are well entitled to respect. Scarcroft, on the hand, are experienced League players, and they have been presented with the Sugar Musgrave Cup no fewer than nine times. They are no doubt confident that they will upset the calculations of the Hebron juniors, whom they have already beaten this season, but after their unexpected collapse before South Milford it would be unwise to be dogmatic as to the result.

Hunting in the Bramham Moor country will this year be shorn of much of its glory. The Master and Deputy Master are military men, and they are now serving their country, while a number of regular followers of the hounds are similarly engaged. There is, however, no intention to allow the sport to die out, and cubhunting has, I believe, been commenced. A great difficulty this season will be the getting of a good mount, seeing that so many of the best horses in the district have been "commandeered" for military purposes, and it is obvious that if hunting is to be kept going ladies and gentlemen will have to utilise the nags that they have.

At the last meeting of Hunslet Board of Guardians a short discussion took place on the subject of Reservists' dependents, but, as was stated by the time, the Guardians cannot relieve cases unless application has been made to them. Since then the Local Government Board has issued instructions to Guardians, pointing out that all allowances of various kinds are payable to the dependents of men who have joined the colours, and that where the sums thus payable to the dependents of a soldier or sailor have not reached his family, or the amount is inadequate for their necessities, assistance may be obtained either from the local branches of the Soldiers and Sailors Families' Association, or from the local committees. The Board has no doubt that the Guardians will agree that it is not desirable that the wives and relatives of soldiers and sailors should have recourse to poor relief.

A large body of suffragettes, several of whom have recently been released from prison under the King's clemency, created a scene outside the Home Office yesterday. They demanded to see Mr McKenna in connection with the question of forcible feeding, and when told that they could not be received attempted to force their way into the department.

AMUSEMENTS.

LEEDS EMPIRE PALACE.

The chief turn at the Empire is one of the best of the season, "A Mixed Grill," a bright, gay, artistic show, abounding in merriment and ending in an appropriate patriotic note. The burlesque of dramatic authors and of theatrical productions is greatly to popular liking, and is of the same little, very entertaining. Dancing is a strong feature, and here, as well as in the burlesque business, Miss Ida Crispi and Mr Fred Farrer distinguish themselves. Mr John Humphries is a generous contributor to the humour of the piece. Amongst the ordinary turns are Tom E. Finglas, the cowboy comic, who has some bright songs; Alfredo, a clever violinist; and Bruce Green, dame comedian. The war cinema films are an attractive item.

A splendid list of attractions has been secured for the Leeds Empire on Monday next. At the top of the bill will be Liane D'Eve, the famous Parisienne, who created something of a sensation on her first appearance in this country by her novel methods of entertaining. Then there will be Graham Moffat's company of Scottish players, in the Scottish domestic sketch, "The Concealed Bed." This sketch is conceded by eminent critics to be the funniest and most natural sketch on the variety stage. The Zigeuner Quartette will be back again, with their delightful musical treat, while other turns will be the Four Elles, society dancers; Marie Pera and Francis Annesley, in a confidential story, "Between Ourselves"; Lupino Lane, comedian and eccentric dancer; and Victor Kelly, another popular comedian. The latest war news and pictures will be shown on the bioscope screen.

LEEDS HIPPODROME

Albert Whelan, the popular Australian entertainer, who heads the bill at Leeds Hippodrome this week, very soon holds command of his audience, his well-known introductory whistling refrain, so say nothing of his numerous funny stories and character impersonations, earning for him well-merited applause. Though Hoja Nasr Eddin as the comedian who never smiles, has so the audience, who are kept in a continual state of laughter, the pick of the capellos female quartette occupy the boards. The sensational James Jewel provides a somewhat novel turn, and after an exhibition of stage-craft concludes with a striking patriotic military tableaux. Irene May scores with her two vocal efforts. Among other good turns are those supplied by Tim Carlisle, comedian; Bros. Luck, gutter; Jessie Berg, a Russian vi hist; and Leeto, Lilo, and Otto, clever trick and comedy cyclists; while an interesting series of naval pictures are also highly appreciated.

Next week a sensational novelty, "The Girl and the Seal," heads the bill of fare, and should prove an item of great interest. Willie West, Crossley and Co., will present their burlesque pantomimical comedy, entitled "Street Improvements." While a popular turn will be found in Clay Smith and Christine Neilson, in songs and sayings. Others in the bill are Jimmy Britt, the ex-lightweight champion of the World, who will give his wide varied experiences in a humorous monologue; Luvaun and Moana, in a musical treat; Robb Wilton, confidential comedian; will Van Allen, the tramp musician; Harry Marlowe, comedian; and The Whitakers, in a burlesque scene. The latest war news and pictures will be shown on the screen.

LEEDS QUEEN'S THEATRE.

The patrons of the Queen's Theatre have another pair from a popular authoress this week, Miss E. L. Kinder-ley's great detective drama, "The Boy Detective," providing the attraction. The play deals with the hunting down of a notorious gang of criminals, and the climax is reached when it falls to the lot of the youthful detective to unfold his own mother—though he does not know it—as one of the prime movers. There is, in addition, a strong love romance. Mr Paul Beckett capably sustains the part of a modern detective, and is ably supported by Mr Chas. Booth as the Hebrew. Mr Carthage Cuthbaugh plays a conspicuous part in the villainous rôle as Prof. Herlock, a master criminal. Mr Arthur Lucas is the mirth contributor of the humorous pair.

LEEDS CITY VARIETIES

The principal item at the City Varieties this week is a pathetic one, entitled "The Sweetest Flower," a story of humble life. The main part, that of a man who commits a theft to shield his sister, is well acted by Mr. Stafford Smith, and the supporting players are Miss Viva Harcourt, and Messrs A. Leslie and Jack Hobbs. Another attractive turn is that supplied by the Veronia Cornyer Trio, who provide some good harmony in their musical scena, "Her Brother." A clever acrobatic act is contributed by the Brothers Schiller. Other artistes appearing are the Sisters Esden in an unique dancing act, Madame Courtney's Four Clever Kiddies, in a vaudeville entertainment, Mr Wagner, the conceiting king; and Perley, a smart patter-comedy mimic.

Sir John Fiveoh, who commands the British Expeditionary Force, has a peculiarly close connection with the City of Leeds. He is, in fact, a Freeman of the city, the honour having been decreed in November, 1902, shortly after the conclusion of the South African War. His was the second name placed on the roll—the first was that of the late Colonel Northumbrand—today he is the senior Freeman of Leeds. Only two other Freemen are living, Colonel Harding and Lord Allerton. In the course of his speech on the occasion of the presentation of the honour, Gerferd Fenwick paid a warm tribute of praise to Leeds for its patriotism during the war. "Yorkshire in general, and Leeds in particular," he said, "have always been foremost in fostering the military spirit in the country, and have been staunch supporters of volunteers ever since the volunteer movement commenced."

SMITH BROS'.
Summer Drapery Sale
NOW PROCEEDING.
WONDERFUL BARGAINS in every Department
SMITH Bros. (Drapers), Ld.
Briggate & County Arcade, LEEDS.

HARRY HAYLEY,
Yorkshire Athletic Warehouse,
12, King Edward St, LEEDS
Telephone 56.
Has Now in Stock a Large Assortment of
Jerseys, Knickers, Boots, Footballs,
ETC., IN ALL QUALITIES.
HOCKEY STICKS, 2/6 to 10/6.
A FINE SELECTION OF GOLF STICKS, BALLS, Etc.
Footballs as used in International, Conn'y, & Best Leagues.
FOOTBALL BOOTS, 4/11 to 11/6.
STOCKINGS - - 1/- to 2/6 Pair.
BOXING GLOVES, BOOTS,
DANISH GYMNASTIC SHOES, Etc.

REGISTERED. OPTOLINE REGISTERED.
The Great Cure for
COUGHS, BRONCHITIS, CONSUMPTION and GENERAL WEAKNESS.
Sold by all Chemists and Stores, 1/-, 1/6 and 2/6.
Or the Makers, Telephone 57 Central.
J. N. HORSFIELD & SONS, 81 & 83, Swan Street, LEEDS.

BUY ADGIE'S BOOTS
"BY TEST THE BEST."
THE NEW SEASON'S FOOTWEAR HAS NOW ARRIVED.
The Street, the Country Lane, the Drawing Room, the Fireside, all are represented in our new display of
SPRING FOOT STYLES.
Please Come Round and Inspect our Display
ALL AT MODERATE PRICES.
Note the Address— ADGIE'S Wholesale & Retail Warehouse
31, NEVILLE STREET, LEEDS.
A minute's walk from City Square, down Bishopgate Street, and through Railway Arches. First Warehouse on Right hand side.

Leeds: 'Phone No. 1949.
Huddersfield: " 1609.
Watchmaker to the Admiralty.
William GREENWOOD,
Watchmaker and Jeweller,
92, BRIGGATE, LEEDS.
SPECIALITIES:—
DRESS, ENGAGEMENT, AND WEDDING RINGS.
W. G. makes a Handsome Present with every Wedding Ring.
Wedding Presents, Birthday Presents, and Presentations of every kind.
— AND AT —
3, DEVONSHIRE BUILDINGS, VICTORIA LANE, HUDDERSFIELD.

OUR GARDENS.

A Weekly Article specially Written for

Amateur Gardeners, Allotment Holders, &c.

By ALBERT CLARKE, Birkenshaw.

THE WAR CRISIS AND OUR FOOD SUPPLIES.

England has been forced into a war which may tax our resources to the uttermost so far as food supplies are concerned. Whilst hoping for the best, it is our duty to be prepared for the worst, and no effort should be spared in the attempt to keep up a supply of fresh vegetables. Willful waste is sinful at any time, but under the conditions that now obtain, it would be nothing less than criminal. It is rather late to commence the re-cropping of the kitchen garden although certain seeds and plants may still be put in with a reasonable prospect of giving some return. Existing crops, in some instances, may be encouraged to give continued supplies, and by exercising judgment and caution in the gathering of crops now ready for use, considerable saving may be effected. Any vegetable that will remain in good condition for a considerable time should be saved until all perishable crops are exhausted. Peas, beans, cauliflowers and cabbage soon become coarse and unpalatable if not used when they are ready; but Brussels sprouts, parsnips, turnips, carrots, beetroot, celery, onions, savoys, and spring cabbage will keep for a long time. In the case of root crops, if carefully stored, they will remain fresh all winter. Even peas may be dried, and stored for future use.

Under ordinary circumstances cabbages are pulled up when the heads have been cut. It will be advisable this year to leave them in the ground for later use. Remove the yellow leaves from the bottom, fork up the surface soil around the plants, and if dry, give a thorough soaking of water. In a few days they will commence to break into new growth, and sprouts of small heads will, in course of time, be available for cutting. Top-dressing with rotten manure, or feeding with liquid manure will improve the crop. The total yield will be almost as great as the first cutting.

Seed may be sown of orange jelly turnip, round radishes, spinach, Short, Hammersmith parsley lettuce, early varieties of cabbage, curled kale, and Tripoli onions. There is no harder vegetable than curled kale, and if plants can be obtained they should be planted in quantity.

KIDNEY BEANS.

The fortunate possessor of a greenhouse may with confidence attempt the cultivation of kidney beans. A dozen pots will give several useful dishes, and the cultivation is very simple. The best material to grow them in is a compost of two parts loam, one part old mushroom bed or leaf mould, and one part sand. Add a sprinkling of 4/2,000 for the erection of a church and parsonage, and £4,000 in an endowment fund. It consists of nave, north and south aisles, each divided from the nave by six arches, chancel, south porch, and tower, carried up to the height of the tower containing one bell of sonorous tone. The style is Early English, and effective. The tower and spire being picturesque, especially at a distance; the pinnacles at the angle of the tower are connected with the spire by small flying buttresses; all the windows are single lights; the eastern portion of the chancel is an octagonal end in which are three lancets, eight of which are filled with stained-glass, one being in the face of the pulpit, and the other in the vestry, is a blank. The wall below the windows is covered for a series of inches in pairs, and on the face of the pulpit for six inches, and

Lane-Fox Cup Final.

TADCASTER'S SUCCESS AT ULLESKELF.

PRESENTATION OF THE TROPHY.

Once again and for the fourth time, the Tadcaster Cricket Club have become the guardians of the Lane-Fox Cup, the final for which took place at Ulleskelf on Saturday afternoon. Tadcaster having the South Milford men on their ground...

...The game was an enjoyable one. Winning the toss, Tadcaster sent Tasker and Mount out to open the innings, and for the batting of E. Atkinson and A. Lindley. The latter...

...Mount, Tasker, Ayre and self ought to get ten runs." Mr Painter Well, they have not as yet reached enough. (Laughter). I don't think they have won a different thing in succession.

Another voice:— They will do. (Laughter and applause).

Continuing, Mr Painter said he was quite certain they would be delighted at having the cup to go to the other home once more upon the table. Answers to the cup. They had had a most successful season. They had got off with a good start, and during wonderful that they were playing cricket at all when they remarked that this country was engaged in a conflict that had not been known for one hundred and two years. He added that they were deeply feeling about the sound cautions as such as were given by those who had charge of the nation's affairs. They were fully supplied, and the difference at the end would be given as the Prince of Wales' Fund (Applause). He was sure they would all be glad to congratulate the captain on the Tadcaster victory.

In accepting the cup Mr Gillingham remarked much heavy laughter. Had he won the toss he would have put the side in. Indeed he believed he came to the match that he must not go home without it. They looked upon it as a very fine trophy. Lords harmony. He also complimented Mr Hemelgarn on the South Milford captain, on the splendid sportsmanlike manner in which they had played the game.

Mr Hemelgarn replied.

Health of Garforth Urban District.

MEDICAL OFFICER AND HOW DISEASE IS SPREAD

HINTS AS TO TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTIVE CASES.

In his annual report on the health of Garforth urban area for the year Dr E. P. Pickergill, the medical officer, estimates the population at 3,000. No new houses were erected during the year. He states:—

BIRTHS

The number of births registered in the district was 126. One illegitimate birth was registered, making a total number of registered in the area of 127. The birth-rate for the year was 42.03 per 1,000 living. Considering the abnormal rate all through the country, I think our birth-rate is satisfactory. Five illegitimate births were registered, 2 males and 3 females—one in every 25 children registered. Of the total registered there were 63 males and 64 females.

DEATHS

The number of deaths registered was 58—3 of which were non-residents—occurring in the Old Hospital; 1 of these belonged to Aberford Workhouse and 1 to Seacroft district. Five transferable deaths have to be added to our list of residents who died elsewhere, and were registered elsewhere. There were consequently 60 deaths of persons belonging to the district. Of these 3 were infants under 1 year of age, 6 between 1 and 2 years, 2 between 2 and 5, 2 between 5 and 15, 7 between 15 and 25, 10 between 25 and 45, 5 between 45 and 65, and 9 of 65 and upwards.

The causes of these deaths were:—Enteric fever or typhoid 3, measles and pneumonia 1, whooping cough 1, pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) 3, tuberculer meningitis 1, other tuberculous diseases 3, cancer 7, rheumatism 1, organic heart disease 5, bronchitis 1, pneumonia (all forms) 8, other respiratory diseases 2, diarrhœa and enteritis 6, appendicitis 1, nephritis (kidney) 2, accidental or violent deaths (not including suicide) 2, and premature births 10, violent deaths 2, gastric ulcer 1, and senile decay 5.

INFANTILE MORTALITY

The death-rate of infants under one year of age was 142.7 per 1,000 living. Of the 18 deaths of infants under one month's age, and 6 of these occurred in the first week of life.

DISEASES OTHER THAN TUBERCULOSIS

During the year Dr Hemingway and myself received notifications of infectious disease as follows:—Scarlet, 11 of typhoid, and 9 of tuberculosis. Three deaths were registered from scarlet, but a scarlet fever case was not notified. The cases were from three separate households.

The first case of scarlet fever I notified was on 23rd January, from Scholefield Terrace, and from that date onwards through the year, 9 more cases were notified, the last on 30th December. Fortunately the disease proved mild, and there was no loss of life. The cases were distributed over the whole district, but the most prevalent was in the Main Street, Scholefield Terrace, and Garforth Hall districts. Unfortunately the disease was introduced into the Garforth Hall district by the new cases of scarlet fever which were placed in one room. He added that they were deeply feeling about the sound cautions as such as were given by those who had charge of the nation's affairs. They were fully supplied, and the difference at the end would be given as the Prince of Wales' Fund (Applause). He was sure they would all be glad to congratulate the captain on the Tadcaster victory.

In accepting the cup Mr Gillingham remarked much heavy laughter. Had he won the toss he would have put the side in. Indeed he believed he came to the match that he must not go home without it. They looked upon it as a very fine trophy. Lords harmony. He also complimented Mr Hemelgarn on the South Milford captain, on the splendid sportsmanlike manner in which they had played the game.

Mr Hemelgarn replied.

Health of Garforth Urban District.

MEDICAL OFFICER AND HOW DISEASE IS SPREAD

HINTS AS TO TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTIVE CASES.

In his annual report on the health of Garforth urban area for the year Dr E. P. Pickergill, the medical officer, estimates the population at 3,000. No new houses were erected during the year. He states:—

BIRTHS

The number of births registered in the district was 126. One illegitimate birth was registered, making a total number of registered in the area of 127. The birth-rate for the year was 42.03 per 1,000 living. Considering the abnormal rate all through the country, I think our birth-rate is satisfactory. Five illegitimate births were registered, 2 males and 3 females—one in every 25 children registered. Of the total registered there were 63 males and 64 females.

DEATHS

The number of deaths registered was 58—3 of which were non-residents—occurring in the Old Hospital; 1 of these belonged to Aberford Workhouse and 1 to Seacroft district. Five transferable deaths have to be added to our list of residents who died elsewhere, and were registered elsewhere. There were consequently 60 deaths of persons belonging to the district. Of these 3 were infants under 1 year of age, 6 between 1 and 2 years, 2 between 2 and 5, 2 between 5 and 15, 7 between 15 and 25, 10 between 25 and 45, 5 between 45 and 65, and 9 of 65 and upwards.

The causes of these deaths were:—Enteric fever or typhoid 3, measles and pneumonia 1, whooping cough 1, pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) 3, tuberculer meningitis 1, other tuberculous diseases 3, cancer 7, rheumatism 1, organic heart disease 5, bronchitis 1, pneumonia (all forms) 8, other respiratory diseases 2, diarrhœa and enteritis 6, appendicitis 1, nephritis (kidney) 2, accidental or violent deaths (not including suicide) 2, and premature births 10, violent deaths 2, gastric ulcer 1, and senile decay 5.

TUBERCULOSIS

Nine cases of the disease in one form or other were notified, 3 of pulmonary origin, 1 of brain, 1 of intestine, and 1 of wrist, and 2 of tuberculous meningitis. Of these there has been one death, but the deaths from tuberculous diseases will numerically be affected. It is truly the whole man's plague, and no conduct it all our efforts should be directed to stamping it out. Garforth at Beverlands. Seventeen houses in one had, all had disinfectory treatment.

The Chairman said that he thought they should raise a fund in connection with the County Distress Committee.

The Rector said they were extremely sorry to hear Mr Dobson's statement about the trade outlook in the district, but they hoped that it would be better than he had indicated. He thought that the Garforth ratepayers might subscribe to the National or County Relief Funds, and if the worst came out the worst and there was much distress in the district it might be possible to form a local distress fund.

The Chairman said that if they worked in connection with the West Riding Fund, which was in a position to help them, they would be able to get grants. They ought to prevent overlapping.

The Rector. Would you propose a local fund?

The Chairman. No. The West Riding Fund. They following letter was read from the Rev. Edmund Rees, minister of the Garforth Wesleyan Church, who could not attend the meeting:—"I may answer you to know that the National Free Church Council requests the Nonconformist Churches that no one the country to give to the National Fund and not to be local appeals. Our churches are not bound to obey this injunction, but I feel sure that the reasonableness of it is hardly open to question. I shall be glad to attend the meeting and could express my opinion I would plead the claims of the Council."

Mr Dobson said that the Garforth raised a fund and was the money out, on the Mayor's fund cause. Mr Hemelgarn considered that if they knew the exact figure it would be better for Garforth to give to the Mayor's Fund, as then they would know what to do. Mr Hemelgarn considered that if they knew the exact figure it would be better for Garforth to give to the Mayor's Fund, as then they would know what to do.

Mr Rawlinson said he knew there was something wanted to be done in the way of relief. He himself had told from Mrs Cunningham would give £5 to a Distress Fund. The Urban Council had £100 in hand for the Coronation, and they could do the entertainment that they had money to pay for the Wood Riding Fund.

Mr Hemelgarn said there was a diversity of opinion as to whether the National Fund would relieve all cases of unusual strain.

Mr Chambers said that certain cases came under the Unemployed Act. Mr Hemelgarn said that would be available generally for unemployment.

Mr Cunningham. We should insure if more than we pay to the West Riding Fund we are paying the National Fund.

The Chairman said they all knew that the Garforth ratepayers were generous, and if other parts the West Riding Fund, and this borrowed to the National Fund.

Mr Wedlock said that he did not think the Garforth ratepayers would object to three per cent.

Mr Slater then proposed that a fund be raised in Garforth, and be paid over as the West Riding Distress Fund.

Mr Powell seconded, and this was adopted.

Mr Wordsworth proposed that the Urban Council form the same committee.

The Chairman said that they wanted a strong committee, and it was desirable that various organisations should be represented.

Mr Wordsworth said his proposal referred only to the raising of money. The sub-committee could be formed when occasion arose.

The Chairman. No, the best thing is to do it at once. (Applause).

The following were then elected members of the relief committee:—Urban Council, Messrs R. Rawlinson, Jun., and H. Rice; Guardians, Messrs B. Beaumont and J. Prime; Education Committee, Messrs J. Wordsworth and H. Chappell; ministers of religion, Rev. T. E. H. Wilford and Mr J. B. Beard; Leeds Unions, Messrs C. H. Hough and Walker Dibb; Mr H. W. Slater, and members of women's organisations, who have yet to be selected.

Mr Dobson was appointed Chairman of the Committee, and Mr W. G. Booker was asked to act as secretary and treasurer.

A subscription list was opened, and a sum of over £33 was either given or promised. The list will be published in the "Courier" when it is received.

The War Prophesised by an Astrologer.

DISCLOSURES IN THE "GREEN BOOK."

A remarkable forecast of the present war is made in the August productions of the Zoro-Bolt Green Book for Prophecy" for 1914. The noted astrologer Sepharial predicted for this month "the straining to breaking point" of our diplomatic relations, followed by a financial crisis with a pulse feeling at high tension, just as has actually come to pass.

"The atmosphere," he writes, "is highly charged with explosives which are in danger of sudden ignition. Short the grd inst. (as was previously the case) our diplomatic relations will be severely strained, and the bending of the source of our trouble Sepharial draws at the top of the page a German Eagle in flight with a thunder-bound over a vast army of soldiers.

In his November predictions Sepharial foresees trouble in China, Holland, and Africa, and he gives warning to the British Government to watch the wider interests of the nation.

Throughout the month of August the present issue of the "Green Book" states that "War-like alarms in Europe are among the indications of the year."

When it is recalled that this 1914 almanack was in general early in 1913 the full significance of its prophecy is seen.

So far back as Easter last the proprietors of Zoro-Bolt received from Sepharial his predictions for 1914, and the almanack which is already printing contains similar suggestions of a new distribution of power in Europe next year.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The last batch of Swiss soldiers and Reservists at the country left London on Tuesday for Switzerland.

At a meeting of the Council of the South Wales Miners' Federation it was reported that over 7,000 miners were idle in the district.

In Dublin on Monday, Louis Schuster, a chauffeur, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour for having no light on his motor-car, on the night of Coronation festivities.

Worry over the wife's illness and a financial crisis that appeared to have caused the death of Mr Emma Burgman, a wealthy wright, formerly a Lorrimar gentleman, of Char ...ood Street, Pimlico.

A double tragedy occurred ...rimsby on Saturday, a junior named Bedell ... and his wife being found dead in ... bed. The couple had been heard quarrelling ... the night.

Messrs Maple-lorne and Dewar ... was "the finest whisky in the world" ... a decision of Lord ... at Lincoln's Inn ... Monday morning, and mulsed and bit h... actually that name does not appear on the ... bottle.

The liner Potsdam arrived at ... Plymouth on Tuesday from New York with ... German reservists, some Austrians, and also ... some German women and children. Hundreds ... have landed in order to join their colours and ... the ranks of the army.

The Japanese ultimatum to Germany, demanding a definite reply by midnight on the 23rd, was presented to the Berlin Foreign Office by Count Rex, the Japanese Ambassador, at 6 p.m. on Sunday. The reply, which was to be sent out a reply being made by the German Government. Japan accordingly has declared war.

The London Chamber of Commerce has received a telegram from the Sydney Chamber of Commerce offering a consignment of frozen mutton, which it has been decided shall be appropriated for the use of the poor of London when the necessity arises.

A distressing tragedy occurred at Sudden at midnight on Friday. Mr T. Taylor, son of Alderman Taylor, an ex-Mayor of Hull, was motoring along the Promenade, and failed to respond to the challenge of a sentry, who fired. Mr Taylor was struck in the body, and he died in a few minutes.

A conference of party leaders on the Home Rule question was held on Tuesday in Mr Birrell's room at the House of Commons. Members of the Ulster Unionist party state that, so far as they are aware, no agreement has been arrived at, and the position remains the same.

The strike of employes on the Aire and Calder Canal has taken effect, and a large number of men at Leeds, Wakefield, Bradford, and other Yorkshire centres were affected, but recognising the the hardship of holding out during the war they decided to return to work on the terms existing before they struck.

The funeral of General Sir James Grierson took place at Glasgow Necropolis on Saturday afternoon. The coffin was borne on a gun-carriage. Despite the war there was an imposing parade of military, comprising drafts of the Royal Scots Regiment, the Royal Scots Fusiliers, the Royal Field Artillery, General Grierson's regiment.

It is reported that eighty-three Germans who had been following the French troops, robbing the wounded and murdering disabled men, have been arrested near Melbourne. On them were found a number of gold watches. Several watches were found in possession with Red Cross badges, enabling them to move freely on the battlefield without exciting suspicion.

The first application for admission to Dr. Barnardo's Homes since the direct result of the War is that of a little orphan girl aged 10, who, it is stated, is supported by a Reservist now with his wife. The foster-father has been called up, and the foster-mother, who has recently undergone an operation, is entirely unfit for ill-health. The child is rendered absolutely homeless.

Major Arundel held an inquest at Whitgift, near Goole, on Monday, relative to the death of James William Barratt (22), farm servant, who was killed by lightning on the previous day, in a field where he was working. It was stated that there were marks under both Barratt's boots, on the calves of his legs, and also that his hair and eyebrows were singed. A verdict of "Death by misadventure," was returned.

The Lord Mayor of Newcastle is inviting the people of that city who have any books or monthly magazines printed in German to send them to the 30 German prisoners who are at present under supervision at Benwell, Newcastle, but adds that on no account must newspapers be sent. The prisoners are mainly artisans who, with their vessels, were captured at the outbreak of the war.

Thomas Bryant, of Rivenden, Ashford, Kent, a private in the 5th Battalion (Buffs) Territorials, was drowned on Tuesday morning in the River Stour, whilst attempting to rescue a comrade who had fallen into the water. The latter was saved by a police officer. At the inquest on Bryant, a verdict was returned of "Accidental death while answering his country's call."

For another unaccountable reason a tall chimney at the back of Springfield cotton mill, Bolton Road, Darwen, collapsed and fell across the glass roof of the weaving shed on Monday. Shafting and other machinery were demolished, and the roof was cut through as if by a knife. Between 30 and 40 looms were also completely buried under the debris. Fortunately no one was working at the time.

Seven men were drowned while bathing in the sea at Blyth on Friday. Eight miners from the New Delaval Colliery went into the sea, and seven were caught by a strong current. Efforts at rescue were made, and although all the seven men were got ashore, only one man was brought round. Later in the day two railwaymen drowned at North Blyth were bathing, and were carried from current, and one was carried out to sea and drowned.

A notice at Guernsey about to be naturalised, has sent as a gift to the Prince of Wales Fund a trader, of the face value of three marks, which is, however, not an ordinary coin, but a shrapnel-bullet, struck in the defence of the German territory in the war of 1870-71, and valued at the time of receipt by the giver at £35. As a curiosity it is now for sale at a premium to any person desiring to aid the Belgian Relief Fund.

Arrested three hours after his wedding, Albert Beversteeds, of Prescwater Street, Kentish Town, was bound over on Monday in a sum of £5 on a charge of behaving in a disorderly manner. He told the Marylebone magistrates that after the ceremony his father, mother, and brother set about him in the Kentish Town Road, and all he did was to sell-defence. It was stated that when arrested he was fighting with five or six people, and was surrounded by a crowd of about 200.

A quantity of Mauser rifle ammunition was discovered underneath a gangway leading from the loading stables to the quayside, at Blyth, on Saturday.

In order to meet the expenses and necessities which Belgium has incurred in consequence of the war France and Great Britain have decided to advance her £4,000,000.

On the outbreak of the war, special facilities for marriages were granted in Austria. In the districts in the war-ridden districts of Vienna, twenty couples were married at one time.

General Botha's son, who is aged 17, has left school, and enlisted as a private for active service, without obtaining his father's consent. His parents, however, are understood not to offer any opposition.

While motor-cycling on Monday from Eccleston Bridge to Rhyl his sister is in camp to Rhyl, Dispatch-rider Williams, of Rhyl, received severe injuries, including a compound fracture of the leg, in collision with a motor-car driven by Mr Edwards, of Llandrindod. We ... Monday morning, and mashed and bit h... actually that name does not appear on the ... bottle.

The liner Potsdam arrived a... Plymouth on Tuesday from New York with go... German reservists, some Austrians, and also some German women and children. Hundreds ... have landed in order to join their colours and ... the ranks of the army.

The Japanese ultimatum to Germany, demanding a definite reply by midnight on the 23rd, was presented to the Berlin Foreign Office by Count Rex, the Japanese Ambassador, at 6 p.m. on Sunday. The reply, which was to be sent out a reply being made by the German Government. Japan accordingly has declared war.

The London Chamber of Commerce has received a telegram from the Sydney Chamber of Commerce offering a consignment of frozen mutton, which it has been decided shall be appropriated for the use of the poor of London when the necessity arises.

A distressing tragedy occurred at Sudden at midnight on Friday. Mr T. Taylor, son of Alderman Taylor, an ex-Mayor of Hull, was motoring along the Promenade, and failed to respond to the challenge of a sentry, who fired. Mr Taylor was struck in the body, and he died in a few minutes.

A conference of party leaders on the Home Rule question was held on Tuesday in Mr Birrell's room at the House of Commons. Members of the Ulster Unionist party state that, so far as they are aware, no agreement has been arrived at, and the position remains the same.

The strike of employes on the Aire and Calder Canal has taken effect, and a large number of men at Leeds, Wakefield, Bradford, and other Yorkshire centres were affected, but recognising the the hardship of holding out during the war they decided to return to work on the terms existing before they struck.

The funeral of General Sir James Grierson took place at Glasgow Necropolis on Saturday afternoon. The coffin was borne on a gun-carriage. Despite the war there was an imposing parade of military, comprising drafts of the Royal Scots Regiment, the Royal Scots Fusiliers, the Royal Field Artillery, General Grierson's regiment.

It is reported that eighty-three Germans who had been following the French troops, robbing the wounded and murdering disabled men, have been arrested near Melbourne. On them were found a number of gold watches. Several watches were found in possession with Red Cross badges, enabling them to move freely on the battlefield without exciting suspicion.

The first application for admission to Dr. Barnardo's Homes since the direct result of the War is that of a little orphan girl aged 10, who, it is stated, is supported by a Reservist now with his wife. The foster-father has been called up, and the foster-mother, who has recently undergone an operation, is entirely unfit for ill-health. The child is rendered absolutely homeless.

Major Arundel held an inquest at Whitgift, near Goole, on Monday, relative to the death of James William Barratt (22), farm servant, who was killed by lightning on the previous day, in a field where he was working. It was stated that there were marks under both Barratt's boots, on the calves of his legs, and also that his hair and eyebrows were singed. A verdict of "Death by misadventure," was returned.

The Lord Mayor of Newcastle is inviting the people of that city who have any books or monthly magazines printed in German to send them to the 30 German prisoners who are at present under supervision at Benwell, Newcastle, but adds that on no account must newspapers be sent. The prisoners are mainly artisans who, with their vessels, were captured at the outbreak of the war.

Thomas Bryant, of Rivenden, Ashford, Kent, a private in the 5th Battalion (Buffs) Territorials, was drowned on Tuesday morning in the River Stour, whilst attempting to rescue a comrade who had fallen into the water. The latter was saved by a police officer. At the inquest on Bryant, a verdict was returned of "Accidental death while answering his country's call."

For another unaccountable reason a tall chimney at the back of Springfield cotton mill, Bolton Road, Darwen, collapsed and fell across the glass roof of the weaving shed on Monday. Shafting and other machinery were demolished, and the roof was cut through as if by a knife. Between 30 and 40 looms were also completely buried under the debris. Fortunately no one was working at the time.

Seven men were drowned while bathing in the sea at Blyth on Friday. Eight miners from the New Delaval Colliery went into the sea, and seven were caught by a strong current. Efforts at rescue were made, and although all the seven men were got ashore, only one man was brought round. Later in the day two railwaymen drowned at North Blyth were bathing, and were carried from current, and one was carried out to sea and drowned.

A notice at Guernsey about to be naturalised, has sent as a gift to the Prince of Wales Fund a trader, of the face value of three marks, which is, however, not an ordinary coin, but a shrapnel-bullet, struck in the defence of the German territory in the war of 1870-71, and valued at the time of receipt by the giver at £35. As a curiosity it is now for sale at a premium to any person desiring to aid the Belgian Relief Fund.

Arrested three hours after his wedding, Albert Beversteeds, of Prescwater Street, Kentish Town, was bound over on Monday in a sum of £5 on a charge of behaving in a disorderly manner. He told the Marylebone magistrates that after the ceremony his father, mother, and brother set about him in the Kentish Town Road, and all he did was to self-defence. It was stated that when arrested he was fighting with five or six people, and was surrounded by a crowd of about 200.

LOOK HERE!

We have a REPUTATION to maintain, and we do it by giving you the BEST VALUE in Provisions, Groceries, &c.

Specialists in BUTTER, HAMS, BACON, CHEESE, &c.

Also FLOUR, FEEDING MEAL, POULTRY CORN &c,

T. B. SMITH & SON,

SUPPLY STORES,

GARFORTH.

Our Special Blends of Tea, 2/2, 2/-, 1/8 per lb., contain some of the Finest Teas the World produces.

COUNTRIES WITH SMALL ARMIES

If ever the disarmament of the world comes there will be several countries that will not have much to do. One is Haiti, and so far as we know the army of which comprises 73 guards, 73 artilleers, and 20 fifemen.

Another diminutive army is that of the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, which numbers 125 gendarmes, 170 volunteers, and 30 musicians. The Republic of San Marino has in the field a total of nine companies, consisting of 250 men and 18 officers, commanded by a marshal. The army on a peace footing consists of one company of 60 men.

The fighting force of the "Black Republic," Liberia, is composed of 700 men and almost as many officers. Liberia, however, evidently considers the army a formidable one, since, upon the occasion of hostilities between any of the Powers, it always issues a proclamation of neutrality.

Rothwell Courier & Times

ESTABLISHED 1873.

CHEAP PREPAID RATES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS of the following classes:—
WANTED, FOR SALE, and TO LET.

Words.	1 week.	3 weeks	6 weeks.	13 weeks
20	0 6	1 0	1 6	2 6
30	0 9	1 6	2 0	3 6
40	1 0	1 6	2 6	4 6

If Cash is not sent with advt. ordinary rates will be charged.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.
Are charged at the following rates when ordered for not less than 13 weeks, 1s. per inch per insertion.
26 do. 9d. do. do.
52 do. 8d. do. do.

WANTED

WANTED, a RESPECTABLE GENERAL, 3 kept.—Apply, Norman Hotel, Crossgates, Leeds. 1 1108

WANTED—GOOD DAY GIRL. Small family. Mrs. Hodgson, Woodlands, Tranquility, Crossgates. 1 1189

WANTED a capable COOK GENERAL, 25 to 30. Two inside kept.—Apply, Mrs. Pickersgill, Shotburn-in-Elmet. 3 1054

WANTED, Young GIRL to help in farmhouse, another kept.—Apply, Mrs. Coultas, Kirkfield Grange, Thorner.

WANTED there steady YOUNG MEN as LODGERS.—Apply, Mrs. Flockton, 3, Bentley Square, Oulton, near Leeds. 1 1613

REQUIRED by a Lady, BOARD and RESIDENCE, near Moorlit Avenue, Halton. Would live with the family. Superior bedroom. State terms.—Miss Owens, 260, Roker Avenue, Sunderland. 1 1608

FOR SALE.

FOR Sale 3½ h.p. REX DE LUXE MOTOR-CYCLE and SIDECAR, in good condition.—Dyson-Dockray, Hazelnook, Green Lane, Wrenthorpe.

SPECKLED SUSSEX COCKERELS.—Large breed, vigorous, Prize-winning stock. Birds of good type and colour, from 3s. each.—Fairless, Southside, Thorner. 2 1615

WELL-BRED STORE PIGS for Sale; also four-alone YORKSHIRE WHITE and BERKSHIRE PURE-BRED BOARS. Service fee 5s. Inspection invited.—Coates, Brandeth Lodge Farm, Shadwell.

EXCEPTIONALLY well-matched PONY GELDING, 13hs., browns 12 hands, 5 years old, good action, warranted sound, quiet, good driver; Bronze Motorist, Centremen Car.—Wragge, 45, Mansfield Street, Crossgates, Leeds. 1 1112

PRIVATE DISPOSAL.—Nice, Respectable BAY CARRIAGE HORSE, 6 years, 16 hands, price no reasonable offer; PONY COB, 6 years, 14 hands, 13 guineas; both warranted sound and quiet in all harness and saddle, quiet with children.—Apply, Mrs. Jackson, Moreh House, Marsh Road, Newport, Middlesbrough. 1 1609

MEDICAL.

TO MARRIED LADIES.
THE WIFE'S HANDBOOK, by Dr. Allsop, M.D., Lond., sound in all matters relating to Married Life. Illustrations free of Malthusian Appliances, Rubber Goods, &c. Plain Price, 2 Stamps.—(S) Dixons & Co., 72, Castle Street, Leeds.

LADIES! Wood's Challenge Remedy is a guaranteed cure for cases of 4 to 10 years' more than any other advertised remedy. For all cases of irregularities Challenge Remedy has no equal. Price 2/9, 5/-, 10/6. Consultations free 10 to 12, daily. Hygienic Rubber WOOD, 20, Louis Street, Chapeltown Road, Burmantofts.—Only address: Mr and Mrs W. Leeds.

MARRIED LADIES.

Consult MRS. WOOD, the only reliable Ladies' Specialist, 20 years' experience. My consultation never fail. My Special Mixtures or Pills are guaranteed to be the most reliable and speedy known. Acts in a few hours after all else fails. Quick, Safe and Sure. Price 2s. 6d. Special 4s. 6d., post free in plain wrapper on receipt of stamps for particulars. Consultations by appointment, Only Address:—Mrs WOOD, 30, Park Avenue, Blackpool.

DR. SKELTON'S
BRONCHITIS LOZENGES
Cure Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis, Difficulties of Breathing, Consumption, and all Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.
Sold only in Boxes at 1/13 and 2/9 at
LUMB'S HERBAL STORES, 19, KIRKGATE, LEEDS.
All kinds of Herbs, etc. kept in Stock.

PATENTS for INVENTIONS
obtained by
JOHN E. WALSH, (CHARTERED PATENT AGENT, 25, ROYAL EXCHANGE, LEEDS, and CROSSLEY STREET, HALIFAX.
Its Oldest Established in Leeds. Handbook Free, on British and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Designs.
Telephone: LEEDS 2738 HALIFAX 354.

— TRY —
SANCFORD'S CROWN VINEGAR,
Pickles, Health Salt,
and Baking Powder.
ALL ABSOLUTELY PURE
SANCFORD & Co., Ltd.,
LEEDS.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ROTHWELL GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL.

USUAL ENGLISH SUBJECTS, with French, Latin, and German, if desired. Next term commences, Tuesday, September 8th.

Four prospectus apply Miss CASTLE, Woodcross, Certificated Teacher, Diploma for French teaching from Leeds University, and Trinity College, London, for music.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET LEAGUE.

FINAL TIE—SAGAR-MUSGRAVE CUP
HALTON WEST v. CLAY NORTH
On SATURDAY, AUGUST 29th.
To be played on the
CROSSGATES CRICKET GROUND.
Play to commence at 2.30 p.m.
ADMISSION 6d. E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

PROPOSED MINIATURE RIFLE CLUB

A PUBLIC MEETING will be held at the Brown Cow Inn, Wortley, on Monday next, the 31st August, at 8 p.m., to discuss the advisability of forming a Miniature Rifle Club.

Those interested are invited to attend.

CROSSGATES FEAST.

The above FEAST will be held as usual on SATURDAY, MONDAY, and TUESDAY (August 29th, 31st, and September 1st).

Selections of music will be played each evening for dancing.

BARKSTON ASH CRICKET LEAGUE.

FINAL TIE—RILEY-SMITH SHIELD
GARFORTH v. HALTON "A"
On SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th.
To be played on the
BARWICK CRICKET GROUND.
Play to commence at 2.30 p.m.
ADMISSION 3d. E. D. PAWSON, Hon. Sec.

THE PICTURE HOUSE, GARFORTH

Every Evening at 7.30.
Saturday, Two Houses at 6.30 and 8.30.
Extra Special Attractions on Week Commencing Monday, August 31st.
MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY—
A GAMBLE FOR LIFE.
A thrilling and exciting drama in three parts of love, hatred, and jealousy.
HIS TRUST.
A splendid powerful drama of war.
THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY—
THE WATCH-DOG OF THE DEEP.
A powerful two-part story of events in Australia during the great American Actor—King Baggot.
THE SON OF HIS FATHER
An exceptional fine Western Drama produced by the famous Lubin Company—in two parts.

Children's Matinee Saturday at 1.30.

Popular Prices.—2d., 4d., 6d., and 8d.

Established 37 Years.

WM. DENTON & SON,
20, COMMERCIAL STREET, ROTHWELL,
Estate Agents and Rent Collectors.
Estates Entirely Managed. Terms on application.
Fire, Life, Accident, Plate Glass, etc.
Insurances Brokered.
Quotations for any kind of Insurance Free.

MR and MRS. TURNER,
7, Lady Lane, Leeds,
and 36, Horton Road, Bradford,
Purchasers of Shop, Hotel and Gentlemen's Cast-off Clothing, Boots, Jewellery, Furniture, Office Furniture, Pianos, Motor-cycles, Bicycles, Typewriters, Sewing Machines, Guns, Watches, Musical Instruments, Cameras, Sporting Goods, Tailoring, Etc. Highest Price Given. Full value given for Old Gold and Silver. Call or Write. Valuers Sent Free.
Tel. Nos.: Leeds, 3208; Bradford, 6417.

DENTISTRY.

W. H. WARING
Dental Surgery at 38a, Boar Lane (over Messrs. Neville's, Game Dealers), Leeds.
Artificial Teeth, 2s. 6d., 5s., and 7s. each. Gold Crowns, Stoppings, and Teeth Stated at Reasonable Fees.
Painless Extractions 1s. Advice Free.
Hours 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Telephone 3307C

Telephone No. 2 Garforth.

ALFRED REED,
Late Matthews,
CAB and WAGGONETTE PROPRIETOR,
GARFORTH and BARWICK-IN-ELMET.
Cabs, Waggonettes, and Landaus for Hire.
Large and Small Parties Catered for.

WHEN AT HARROGATE
THE BLACK SWAN HOTEL,
HIGH HARROGATE, FOR REFRESHMENTS.
Wines, Beers, and Spirits of the Finest Quality.
Luncheons, Teas, Dinners.
Good Accommodation for Motors and Cyclists.
Good Stabling.
Two Bowling Greens.
Large or Small Parties Catered for.
Proprietor: H. BEEFORTH.

Established 1885. By Royal Appointment. Established 1854.
GENERAL
Accident Fire and Life
Assurance Corporation, Ltd.
PERSONAL ACCIDENT and SICKNESS Insurance at Moderate Rates.
FREE FIRE INSURANCE to every member entitled to benefits and private property covered.
COMBINATION POLICIES to suit the requirements of householders or non-householders, value of Plate, Bicycles, and Cycle Accessories.
THREE POPULAR FORMS of Life Policy, including guaranteed options.
Workmen's Compensation.
Motor Car, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee, Employers' Liability, Live Stock, Plate Glass, and Farmers' Insurances.
Head Offices—General Buildings, Perth, Scotland.
Chief Offices—General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C.
Ten Chief and Numerous Independent Offices.
Total Funds exceed £2,000,000.
General Manager: F. NIXON-ROLLER, J.P.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

IN THE WEST RIDING OF YORKSHIRE.
THE PARISH OF ROTHWELL.
EXPLOSIVES ACT, 1875
NOTICE.

WHEREAS we the undersigned Brotherton & Company, Limited (a Company registered under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1913), carrying on business in the City of Leeds and elsewhere as Ammonia and Tar Distillers have applied to the Secretary of State for a Licence authorising the establishment by us of a factory for Explosives at Stanley Ferry, in Rothwell Rural District, and

AND WHEREAS the Secretary of State has approved of the said Licence and Plan herein-after referred to, subject to certain conditions as to the precautions to be taken in connection with the said factory, and to the Rules for the Regulation of Petty Sessions in the West Riding Court House, Town Hall, Leeds, being the Local Authority for the purposes of the Explosives Act, 1875, have given consent to the establishment of such a factory on the proposed site upon the terms of and in accordance with the said Licence and Plan.

Now therefore notice is hereby given that the said Licence and Plan have been deposited at the Office of the Clerk of the Peace for the West Riding of Yorkshire, Wakefield, and may be there inspected by any person at all reasonable times between the hours of ten and four o'clock on Saturdays, and that the said Licence will be granted on and from the expiration of one month from the date hereof.

Dated this 29th day of August, 1914.
for BROTHERTON & CO., LTD.
W. H. BARROW WILLIAMS,
Secretary.

RAILWAY NOTICE.

NORTH EASTERN RAILWAY

EXCURSION TRAINS FROM LEEDS NEW STATION, CULLY, AT CROSSGATES AND GARFORTH.

Monday, 31st August, Holiday Excursion to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Wednesday, and September Half-day Excursion to Selby, Hull. Half-day Excursion to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Half-day Excursion to Selby, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Beverley. Thursday, 3rd September, Half-day Excursion to York, Malton, Pickering, Goathland, Grosmont, and Whitby. Thursday, 3rd September, Half-day Excursion to Pocklington, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Beverley. Saturday, 5th September, Half-day Excursion to York, Malton, and Scarborough. Saturday, 5th September, Half-day Excursion to Selby, Market Weighton, Driffield, and Beverley.

For further particulars see bills.

ESTABLISHED 1870.
Ison's Eye & Ear Dispensary
LIMITED.
71, GREAT GEORGE ST., LEEDS
MR. THOS. ISON,
OCULIST and AURIST.

THIS INSTITUTION WAS ESTABLISHED in 1870. The system of working is the provident one, each patient paying a small periodical sum. Short intervals of delay may, therefore, justly expect to receive the prompt care and attention which in many instances of this nature constitutes in the one attended. The most successful operation in the case of Eye Disease, Ear Cancer, or other mechanical or painful operation. Members have the privilege of attending at this dispensary in its system of treatments by correspondence, by which sufferers at long distances can obtain relief. Persons that have the advantage of Mr ISON'S advice and remedies forwarded through the post. No case is undertaken for the public unless a reasonable hope of cure or benefit to the patient.

Attendance at Leeds every Tuesday, from 10 to 7. Other days by appointment. Consultation Free. Hours 10 to 7. Other days by appointment.

TREATMENT WITHOUT OPERATION.
ARTIFICIAL HUMAN EYES fitted from 15s. SPECTACLES and PRESERVERS, 3/6 to 10/6. Gold Frames from 20s.

Special Notice.—There are many cases of failing sight which can be greatly benefited by mild local treatment, and to dispense with the use of glasses.

YOUR WEDDING
should be made whether it is in March or September, a real success by the use of Sanitas and the most thought of in our list. SANITAS, Limited, Bow Common Lane, Mile End Road, London, E.
Charges Lane, 1887 Founded.
"WE NEVER SLEEP."

THOMAS MIDDLETON
PAWNBROKER AND JEWELLER,
36 VICAR LANE,
(OPPOSITE LADY LANE, LEEDS),
ADVANCES MONEY UP TO ANY AMOUNT ON PORTABLE PROPERTY.

£0 10 0	for 2½d.	per month.
£1 0 0	" 3d.	"
£2 0 0	" 4d.	"
£3 0 0	" 5d.	"
£4 0 0	" 6d.	"
£5 0 0	" 7½d.	"
£6 0 0	" 9d.	"
£7 0 0	" 10½d.	"

Sums above £20 by Special Agreement.
ONLY ADDRESS:—
96 VICAR LANE, LEEDS.
PLEDGE OFFICE: 4, LADY LANE, LEEDS.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, EXTRACTIONS, Etc.
Mr. J. DILWORTH'S
Dentistry
CECIL HOUSE, BURLEY LODGE TERRACE, HYDE PARK ROAD, LEEDS.
Advice Free.
and at
18, Austhorpe Road, Crossgates,
Every Friday, 9.30 to 7 p.m. Other hours by appointment.
Painless Extractions. Nitrous Oxide Gas administered.

Window Cleaning, Paintwashing
Limewashing, &c., at Moderate Charges.
EXPERIENCED MEN SENT ANY DISTANCE.
FIRTH & KENYON,
GROVE ROAD, HALTON, near LEEDS.

SALES BY AUCTION.

TADCASTER AUCTION MART.
ON MONDAY NEXT,
Messrs THOMLINSON & SON
Will Sell by Auction:—
50 to 60 Fat Bullocks and Heifers.
100 to 120 Prime Fat SHEEP.
80 to 90 Fat and Store PIGS.
THOMLINSON & SON, Auctioneers.

ON MONDAY NEXT, AT 11 O'CLOCK.
GARFORTH LIVE STOCK AUCTION MART
CHOICE HOLSTEIN and HEIFERS.
FAT LAMBS, SHEARLINGS, and EWES.
PORK and STORE PIGS.
WM. ASH, Auctioneer.

W. A. F. BURROWS & CO.,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
BOND PLACE, LEEDS.
(Opposite Yorkshire Penny Bank).
Sales of every description conducted on the most reasonable terms.
Valuations made for all purposes.
To Brands of Furniture, Private Buyers, Dealers, and others.
Various Stocks of Drapery, Boots, and Shoes, Hosiery, and Haberdashery always on hand, and may be purchased privately at any time. Goods on View. Public Inspection Invited.

Messrs J. CUNDALL & SON,
AUCTIONEERS and TENANT-RIGHT VALUERS.
SHERBURN, E.R., YORK

If your Hearing is Defective, read this :-

The adjustable Earphone, for which we are the sole agents throughout Yorkshire, will enable you to hear perfectly.

There are many thousands in use already, and delighted wearers are daily thanking us for the help they are deriving.

Recommended by the Medical Faculty.

A personal demonstration is invited, and will place no obligation upon you.

CALL OR WRITE FOR BROCHURE.

HEYWOOD,
Eyesight Specialists,
and Earphone Experts,
20, DUNCAN STREET,
LEEDS.

JOHN WATSON & Co.,
34, CALL LANE, LEEDS
See our Special Blue Lounge Suit
A Made to Measure in Fine Quality Serge.
Easy Terms £2/2s. Cash 38/6
Well Worth 50/-
OUR SCARBORO' COSTUMES
Are made to Measure in all Wool Navy Coating Serge. Coat Lined Silk. Satin Collar, Lined Skirt.
Cash 30/- Easy Terms 33/6
Patterns and Particulars on Application.

FRED BARBER,
Pork Butcher,
11. CALL LANE.
LEEDS.
TEL. 1804.

J. ROBINSON & SONS,
King Charles' Croft,
LEEDS.
TELEPHONE No. 1522.
Catalogues free on Application.

MOWERS, HORSE RAKES,
SWATHE TURNERS,
HAYMAKERS, HARVESTERS
&C.
By all the Best Makers at Lowest Cash Prices.

JOHN TEALE,

Advertising Contractor & Billposter
WHITE HOUSE, GARFORTH.

Bills posted and Handbills distributed on the shortest notice throughout the Barkston Ash Division on most reasonable terms.

FOR FUNERALS.
CABS AND CARRIAGES FOR WEDDINGS
J. T. BUCKTON, Proprietor.
19, Basinghall Street, Boar Lane,
Telephone 1522
ALWAYS KEPT
Boston Spa Water
LEEDS'
UNDERTAKERS

Rothwell Courier & Times

SATURDAY, AUGUST 29th, 1914.

Unemployment, one result of the war, will cause distress among the working-class population, and the authorities have made preparations for dealing with the suffering that must inevitably arise. No one knows how many months will elapse before Germany is crushed, and, while everyone earnestly desires a speedy issue, it is wisdom to make arrangements to meet all emergencies. Nothing is being neglected by the authorities, who have exhibited commendable foresight and promptitude in dealing with the unprecedented situation, and by the cordial co-operation of all citizens it may be safely assumed that men who care to make their needs known will receive consideration. The Government have, of course, made themselves responsible for the maintenance of the wives and children of those who are serving with the colours, so that that section of the community will, to a large extent, be provided for, but a great many industrial workers will be thrown out of employment in consequence of the stagnation of trade, following on the war, and provision is being made for them. The National Relief Fund and numerous county and city funds have been started for the purpose of helping people who are out of work, and the Local Government Board has asked that all funds should be merged in a National Fund, so that overlapping will be prevented. It will be remembered that during the South African War there was a multiplicity of funds, and very often people who did not require it received assistance over and over again, whilst deserving cases were overlooked. The National Fund, however, is to be administered in a systematic way through committees appointed by the County Councils, and, as all persons contribute to the fund, they will be debarred from participation, it should not be difficult to get the money into the right hands. All public works which can be carried out will probably be put in hand, but authorities are counselled not to make any move in that direction until the situation absolutely demands it. All these precautions are needed if the nation is to tide over the present crisis with a minimum of suffering. On our own district the collieries, which employ thousands of men, are still going although half time is not being worked. Some of the men will be made by the owners to maintain this state of affairs as long as possible. On the land, which provides work for a large population in the area, prospects appear to be good, and for some time, at any rate, the farm hands will be fully employed. Suffering will be greatest in the manufacturing towns, especially amongst the unskilled labourers and their dependents, and they will no doubt receive the attention they need.

What will the ultimate effects of the war be upon Great Britain, and other countries? No one can gross through, or experience such as that which I've just passed, without being changed personally, altered, and already thoughts are beginning to indicate the directions in which the ox-bows of the people will be driving. The merchants, like ourselves, are an embattled nation, and the contents of headlines in "Yorkshire Post" are the Battle-cloud. Years must elapse before the country is crushed and broken, as it surely will be for the time being, and it is likely that these people who are of the same race on each enemy will allow themselves to look at the world through the eyes of a War Lord? Frankly and this country will have those lessons in Teutonic ferocity which cannot very well be forgotten, for the seething capital of the Germans is being blown to the air, and all will be passive. It is impossible that following the war this country will resume a great trade "boom," and it is not very likely that business which usually went to Germany will be diverted to these shores, but if the continental nations and poverty-stricken their requirements, owing to the lack of power, will be lower, and it will eventually fall upon the world's trade. In these days of international trade it is impossible for a great nation to suffer alone, and evidence of this was furnished a few years ago. Nations cannot always pursue the policy they desire, just as this country, which loves peace, has, in the defence of its honour, been forced to fight the Germans, but it may be assumed that the war will have a great educative effect in teaching people what Norman Angell has been preaching for years, viz., that war is ruinous to everybody who engages in it, whether successful or not. Its effect is immediately seen in our own country by the closing down of mills and factories—trade with the belligerent nations is at an end, and the working-classes have begun to feel the pinch already. No further demonstration is needed of the folly of war. Men, it is often said, will not think, but when they find misery and suffering around them they will be compelled to think. Whilst still the German people say when they realise how great a crime has been committed upon them by the Kaiser, and when they see the industry which they have so laboriously built up shattered and ruined? Will they then ask why they have to gain by war? Assuredly the time will come when the free democracies of Europe will make war a thing impossible, and that will be the last great war to have perpetrated that this will be the last great war in Europe, and if the prediction turns out to be accurate, it will be because the nations have become educated on the question. The old doctrine that "might is right," excusable enough in savages, because they know no better, is being put forward for the last time, we hope, in Europe. The outbreak of hostilities has had a remarkable effect in this country in another direction. How many people have noticed the great extension of State control. The Government has taken in hand various forms of administration and activity which it would never have touched before. It has started a State system for the insurance of ships and cargoes. It has practically taken over the railways and put them under State control. It has set up a committee to regulate food prices, and say what is fair and what isn't. And it has given the Board of Trade power to seize stores of food that are being held up to corner the market, and compel the merchant to sell at a reasonable price. All these measures are perfectly justified in the present crisis, and people who held up their hands in horror at Socialism have cheerfully accepted what has been done. There has not been a murmur, nor, expect from those few miserable beings who expected to make something out of the necessities of the poor. Look at these measures how you will, they are simply so many instalments of Socialism or Collectivism—call it by whatever name you please—and people are now arguing that the results will modify the attitude of the public to many domestic problems. Time, of course, will show how opinion will be influenced, but the terrible experience through which the nation is now passing will undoubtedly leave its effects.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Communications intended for insertion must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer—not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. No notice will be taken of anonymous letters, and rejected communications cannot be returned.
Notice of Births and Deaths are charged 1s. each prepaid. They must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer.
Notices of marriages are charged at the rate of 1s. 6d. each.
In Memoriam" Notices 1s. each, and 6d. extra for all matter up to four lines.

DEATHS.

LEDGER—August 24, at Lytham, aged 84 years, John Ledger, late of the firm of Ledger and Bottle, auctioneers, Crossgates.

VERITY.—August 25th, aged 36 years, Ann, the beloved wife of Thomas H. Verity, "Fairhaven," Davies Avenue, Roundhay.

WATSON—August 20, at 15, Main Street, Carlton, nr. Wakefield, John Watson, aged 88.

IN MEMORIAM.

LAMBERT.—In ever loving memory of Thomas Lambert, who entered into the Homeland on August 28th, 1913.
"Lone are the paths and sad the bowers,
Whence thy meek smile is gone;
But oh, a brighter home than ours,
In heaven is now thy home."

ROTHWELL & DISTRICT NEWS.

ROTHWELL

NO LIGHT.—At the Leeds West Riding Petty Sessions on Tuesday, George Pickersgill, a farmer of Oulton-cum Green, was summoned for riding a bicycle without a light. P.C. Wright stated that on Saturday night, at the Rothwell Rural Sanitation, about 10.40 p.m., on Tuesday, August 11th, he saw the defendant riding a bicycle, which had no light. He overtook him and found that defendant carried no lamp at all. A fine of 5s., including costs, was imposed.

THE SALVATION ARMY HELP THE NATIONAL FUND.—Special collections for the Prince of Wales' Relief Fund were taken up by the Salvation Army when there was a gracious response. The collections, which continue to be received from Headquarters, on Monday will be sent apart as a practical and appreciation on behalf of Her Majesty's Navy and Military Forces engaged in the war. As was mentioned by Mr. Albert Newsom, in the opening of the Infirmary Demonstration, the other Sunday, the Salvation Army is badly hit by the war, as they have men on both sides.

ROTHWELL DISTRICT ALLOTTS AT CRICKET.—On Saturday Rothwell were at home to Allerton Bywater, and were easily beaten them. The visitors batted first and totalled 145 runs for eight wickets. W. Knowles was the best of the bowlers amongst the visitors, who had figures of 23 runs for 3. Of the home side well-known H. Hodgkinson took 3 wickets for 7 runs, C. Tiffany 4 for 10, and H. Banks 2 for 20. The scores:—Allerton Bywater: W. Newsom, b. Hodgkinson, 12; A. Tiffany, b. J. Holmes, 34; C. Tiffany, b. W. Huff, 41; H. Hodgkinson, b. Firth, 7; E. Moon, c. Firth, b. Holmes, 16; W. Knowles, run out, 22; E. Tiffany, c. Adams, b. Knowles, 0; F. Gibson, b. Knowles, 4; H. Lane, not out, 0; extras, 19; total (for 8 wkts.), 145. Rothwell United: J. Bedford, c. Lane, b. Banks, 0; E. Adams, run out, 20; H. Firth, b. Banks, 5; J. Brown, c. E. Moon, b. C. Tiffany, 1; W. Huff, bw. b. C. Tiffany, 0; W. Knowles, b. Hodgkinson, 4; A. Bedford, b. Hodgkinson, 12; J. Holmes, c. Fox, b. Hodgkinson, 1; F. Dolan, b. C. Tiffany, 0; R. Deakin, b. C. Tiffany, 0; extras, 3; total, 89.

DISTRESS COMMITTEE FORMED.—As reported in another part of this journal a special meeting was held at the Council Offices on Monday evening to consider the best means of coping with any distress which may arise among the deputations of those who are thrown out of employment, or those who may be affected by unemployment. A committee was formed to pursue enquiries in the North and South Wards, and any cases where relief is needed will be in nice proportion. Although the district forming the Urban area of Rothwell will be a sub-committee of the West Riding Division of Committee, any efforts will be made to raise funds locally, which will be used to alleviate any immediate distress until a grant has been made from the general fund.

BOSTON SPA.

CRICKET.—On Saturday Boston Spa and Thorparch were defeated at cricket by Spofforth on the latter's ground. Scores:—Boston Spa and Thorparch—Hardy, b. Scott, 5; Adkin, 22; H. J. Milner, 2, W. Milner, 6; Maisby, 4; Cleverly, b. Fleming, 16; Dorwin, 5; Mountain, 8; Preston (not out), 11; Atkins, 13; total, 83. Spofforth: Smithson, 0; Bewsden, 5; S. H. Hill (not out) 59, King, 1; Oddy 1; Howard, 0; Pearson, 9; A. Hill, 0; Morrison, 0; Thorparch (not out) 3; extras, 7; total (for 8 wkts.), 83.

COLLINGHAM

At a sale of horses at York, on Wednesday the following from Collingham were sold:—Bay gelding, 5 years, 15.2 hands, by Sandringham, 55gns., the property of Mr F. W. Dalby, Collingham.

GARFORTH

FOR THE NATIONAL RELIEF FUND.—The sum of £2 12s. 4d. was collected at the Garforth Primitive Methodist Church on Sunday last in aid of the National Relief Fund.

GRASSROOM.—At the public meeting held at Garforth on Friday night—Councillor J. W. Dobson presiding—it was stated by Councillor Archer that the directors of the Picture House had had a meeting, and they had decided to give a performance once a month for the benefit of the Distress Fund so long as it was required. The announcement was received with applause.

PICTURE HOUSE.—Capital houses have enjoyed the bill of fare provided this week. For the latter days of the week a special war topical entitled "Modern Crusaders" was the attraction, and "An Orphan of the War" was a picture, which aroused the sympathy of all. To-night and Saturday "The Watch-dog of the Deep," a powerful two-part story of ocean life; and "The Son of His Father," described as a fine Western drama. Other attractions will be shown in conjunction with the above. There will be the usual children's matinee on Saturday.

HALTON

PAROCHIAL HALL AS TEMPORARY HOSPITAL.—As mentioned in our last issue in the report of the Oulton Education Sub-Committee meeting, the Parochial Hall has been requisitioned by the military authorities as a hospital. Already twenty beds (to be ready at twenty-four hour's notice) have been fitted up.

Halton Sunday school besiege Crossgates in large numbers on Saturday to support the members of the Wesleyan Cricket Club who play Seacroft in the final for the Siegfried Integrative Cup (Senior League). The match will take place on the Crossgates Club's ground, and the umpires will be Messrs J. L. Kitching (Leeds), and C. Auck (Micklefield).

CRICKET.—The Halton Wesleyan Cricket Club engaged Halton in a friendly cricket match on the Halton Moor Road ground on Saturday afternoon. The following was the result:—Halton Wesleyans: P. Popplewell 0, S. Battye 29, C. M. Killip 8, G. D. Crashwaite 45, G. O. Bell 24, J. A. Popplewell 10, A. Powell 8, H. Wilson 26, H. Battye 1, Kitterby (not out) 2, L. Stephenson, extras, 11; total, 180. Halton: S. Battye 5, S. Haigh 14, H. Caswell 3, A. Dodsworth (not out) 41, E. Daniel 3, W. Benson 1, N. Bail 0, Earl 7, D. Wordsworth 0, Shaw 12, L. Sutcliffe 0, extras, 9; total, 95.

SATURDAY'S SHOW.—The Templenewsam Allotments Association held their second annual show on Saturday last, and, as the result of the first season's efforts to show what the allotment holders can grow, the display of flowers and vegetables was very creditable, and it is not unlikely, if circumstances permit, that next year there will be made another year to encourage the allotment-holders. Sweet peas were the chief attraction amongst the flowers, and they were very much admired. The chief prize-winners were as follows:—Sweet peas (open)—1, Mr. Hewitt; 2, W. Walker. Sweet peas (amateur)—1, J. Nicholson; 2, Chadwick; 2, Mr. Lambert. Mr. C. E. Goodall was very successful both with flowers and vegetables, whilst the following had two or three successes to their credit:—S. B. Chadwick, A. B. Calvert, A. Lambert, W. Walker, L. Sunter, J. W. Chadwick, S. Crosland, and J. Firth.

HAREWOOD.

LORD HAREWOOD.—The Earl of Harewood, who is a well-known figure at all the principal race meetings, was 68 on Friday. He is the owner of many of the winners of classic races. In kindness shown to his tenantry has made him a most popular landlord. Huxley once visited Harewood, and, remarking his total to a friend, said that the labourers' houses were the best he had ever seen. Harewood House contains a valuable collection of pictures. A recent work, known as the Long Gallery, has a ceiling painted by Angelica Kauffman. The massive marble vases in the grounds, which are a feature, were made for a former Lord Harewood's estate in the West Indies. The present peer is an A.D.C. to the King.

KIPPAX

WESLEYAN CHURCH.—The collections taken on Sunday in this church were for the Prince of Wales' Fund.

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH.—Collections were taken in the United Methodist Church for the Prince of Wales' Fund. The minister at the morning service was Mr L. Pheby. The services in the evening was conducted by a large attendance from Castleford. The services were of a national character, and in harmony with the occasion or object for which they were set apart.

RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION.—At a meeting of the Ratepayers' Association, held in the Liberal and Working Men's Club, on Sunday, Mr W. Atterfield Dickenson (district councillor), presented his monthly report, and there was a large attendance of members, Mr D. Robinson presiding. The following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That the authorities for the supply of water to our village be called to the fact that in such a crisis as we are now passing through our reservoir should by all means be guarded seeing the thousands of souls dependent on this our only supply." The meeting was of the opinion that this was ever more important than the guarding of bridges. A vote of thanks to Mr Dickinson, who replied, brought the meeting to a close.

CHILDREN'S TREAT.—In connection with the Kippax Central Working Men's Club some 350 of the member's children were treated to a substantial tea on Saturday. The ages of those who took part ranged from three to fourteen years. After tea each child was presented with a pocket handkerchief and a bag of sweets. Altogether the youngsters had a thoroughly enjoyable time. Mrs Stephenson and her staff provided the tea, and the tables were united upon by the officials and members of the club.

PARISH CHURCH.—A ready response was made to the invitation given by the Vicar and Mrs Smith to all who were willing to help in the making of garments for our soldiers and sailors. The meeting, which was held on Monday evening, was well attended. The Sunday School teachers, along with their respective classes, are also assisting, and are providing scarves for the male worthy object. Collections were taken in the church on Sunday for the Prince of Wales' Fund. The Vicar was the preacher at the morning and evening services, which were well attended.

STREET COLLECTION.—The committees of the Kippax Old Prize Band and the Medical Charity Committee were the promoters of a street collection. The band played through the principal streets on Saturday afternoon, and the collections were collected by members of the respective committees who willingly gave assistance in helping to augment the finances which by the end of the day must emergencies arising from the war. The committees have not as yet decided whether to send the money to the Mayoress's Fund, or to provide sewing material for the making of garments for our soldiers and sailors.

PRIMITIVE METHODIST CHURCH.—Collections were taken in this chapel on Sunday morning, afternoon, and evening, for the Prince of Wales' Fund. The Rev. B. B. Farlow, Castleford, was the preacher. The Christian Endeavour meeting was held on Wednesday evening, when a paper was given by Mr L. Plows, subject "Which is productive of the finest type of character, peace or country life." The discussion on opinion in favour of country life were given by the following:—Mr Eli Wilson, Mr J. Prince, Mr C. H. Hobson, Mr A. Colbourn, and Mr J. H. Howson, who also presided. The pianist was Miss M. A. Smith.

LOFTHOUSE.

TO HELP COLLIERS AT WAR.—The men and boys at Lofthouse Colliery have decided upon a voluntary levy of 5d. per man and 1½d. a boy each week for the benefit of the dependents of their 32 comrades who have joined the colours. There are about 800 men and 400 boys engaged at the colliery. It is proposed to collect the levy week to the wife of each married absentee and 2s. for each child, and 5s to dependents of single men.

HICKLEFIELD

Patent list compiled by John E. Walsh, chartered patent agents of 25, Royal Exchange, Boar Lane, Leeds, and Crossley Street, Halifax:—Applications accepted—John Varley, Leeds, improvements for cleaning the fuller gills of drawing and twisting frames, etc.; J. Lindley and J. Adams, Micklefield, cancelling device for winding signal gear, in collieries and mines; V. L. Thomasson, Leeds, improvements in ice-cream freezers; patents renewed—J. W. Loadbeater, Doncaster, treatment and utilisation of peat.

MONK FRYSTON

THE WAR.—Through the untiring efforts of Mrs Hemsworth and Nurse Duke, and a staff of willing and enthusiastic helpers, the two spacious halls in the village are now at the disposal of the Government, with 48 fully-equipped beds, and a band of trained ambulance men and women and nurses. The Ambulance has responded most nobly to the appeal for help. Some have lent beds, while others have assisted in making articles of wearing apparel, etc. Offers of assistance have also poured in from South Milford and district. On Saturday, Sir. Thomas Pilkington, Bart., on behalf of the War Office, visited the hospital, and expressed himself highly satisfied with the arrangements. Services of intercession were held at the Parish Church on Friday, and they were well attended. On Sunday a collection in aid of the fund was made on behalf of the Prince of Wales' Fund.

MOORTOWN

GOLFER AND A FARMER'S CROPS.—Complaints were made at the Leeds West Riding Court on Tuesday by Harry Kent, an Alwoodley farmer, as to damage done to oorn by golfers from the Moortown course searching for lost balls. A summons was brought by him against George William Grasby, money lender, of Wellington Street, Leeds, for doing damage to a field of oats. The prosecutor stated that during the summer £1 worth of damage had been done to his oats by golfers from the Moortown course. He pointed out that always when the corn was out he collected any golf balls in the field and handed them back to the professional of the Moortown Club. Mr Grasby admitted having gone into the field and having done some damage. A fine of 5s. and costs was imposed, and the defendant was ordered to pay 5s. damage.

OULTON

INTERCESSION SERVICES.—At Oulton St. John's Church on Friday, special services of intercession were held on behalf of the Prince of Wales' Military Forces engaged in the war, were held. The services were well attended especially in the morning.

COLLECTING FOR THE WAR.—The members of the Oulton patrol of Boy Scouts do not intend to remain idle while there is war in the world, and on Saturday they put in their time to good advantage by collecting for the Oulton and Woodlesford War Fund. At the close of the day, when the amounts were totalled up, it was found that the tidy sum of £1 16s. 2d. had been collected. The highest separate amount was 9s.

CRICKET.—Oulton A. played away at Woodlesford on Saturday, and they had no difficulty in getting the better of their opponents, the match being won by 9 wickets. Scores:—Oulton A., 1st innings, 107 (for 1 wkt.); F. Smith, 33; C. Higgins o, T. Jones 6, W. Miller o, F. Patterson 11, E. Parkinson 5, Parkinson 5, Hopkinson 5, Wright 6, Wood (not out) 14, H. Burnett 5; extras, 10; total 86. Minds—J. Hollis 6, J. Brown 10, W. H. Brown 13, J. Burnett 7, H. Hollis 0, J. Hollis 2, T. Brown 7, M. H. Brown 1, G. Hampson 6, A. Pickard 1, J. Paton (not out) 1, extras 16; total 85.

